10 Now when all the princes, and all the people, which had entered into the covenant, heard that every one should let his man-servant, and every one his maid-servant, go free, that none should serve themselves of them any more, then they obeyed, and let them go.

11 But [p] afterward they turned, and caused the servants and the handmaids, whom they had let go free, to return, and brought them into subjection for servants and for handmaids.

12 Therefore the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

A. M. cir. 3415. B. C. cir. 589. Ol. XLVII. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 28.

13 Thus saith the LORD, the God of Israel; I made a covenant with your fathers in the day that I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondmen, saying,

14 At the end of [q] seven years let ye go every man his brother a Hebrew, which [r] hath been sold unto thee; and when he hath served thee six years, thou shalt let him go free from thee: but your fathers hearkened not unto me, neither inclined their ear.

15 And ye were [s] now turned, and had done right in my sight, in proclaiming liberty every man to his neighbour; and ye had [t] made a covenant before me [u] in the house [v] which is called by my name:

16 But ye turned and [w] polluted my name, and caused every man his servant, and every man his handmaid, whom he had set at liberty at their pleasure, to return, and brought them into subjection, to be unto you for servants and for handmaids.

17 Therefore thus saith the LORD; Ye have not hearkened unto me, in proclaiming liberty, every one to his brother, and every man to his neighbour: [x] behold, I proclaim a liberty for you, saith the LORD, [y] to the sword, to the pes-

[l] 2 Kings xviii. 13; xix. 8; 2 Chron. xi. 5, 9.——[m] Exod. xxi. 2; Lev. xxv. 10; ver. 14.——[n] Neh. v. 11.——[o] Lev. xxv. 39–46. [p] See ver. 21; chap. xxxvii. 5.——[q] Exod. xxi. 2; xxiii. 10; Deut. xv. 12.——[r] Or, hath sold himself.

[s] Heb. to-day.——[t] So 2 Kings xxiii. 3; Neh. x. 29.——[u] Chap. vii. 10.——[v] Heb. whereupon my name is called.——[w] Exod. xx. 7; Lev. xix. 42.——[x] Matt. vii. 2; Gal. vi. 7; James ii. 13. [y] Chap. xxxii. 24, 36.

Verse 6. Spake all these words unto Zedekiah] He delivered this message at the hazard of his life. Jeremiah feared God, and had no other fear.

Verse 7. Against Lachish, and against Azekah] These were two cities of Judah of considerable importance: they had been strongly fortified by Rehoboam, 2 Chron. xi. 9–11; 2 Chron. xxxii. 9.

Verse 8. The word that came unto Jeremiah] Here the second discourse begins, which was delivered probably a short time, even a few days, after the former.

Zedekiah had made a covenant] We find no account elsewhere of this covenant: "Every man should let his man-servant and his maid-servant go free;" i. e., as we learn from ver. 14, on the sabbatical year; for the seventh year was the year of release. See Deut. xv. 12.

Verse 11. But afterward they turned] They had agreed to manumit them at the end of the seventh year; but when the seventh year was ended, they recalled their engagement, and detained their servants. This, I believe, is what is here meant.

Verse 16. Ye—polluted my name] Had made the covenant in my name, calling me to witness it; now ye have dishonoured my name, by breaking that covenant, and acting contrary to my law.

Verse 17. I proclaim a liberty for you] Ye proclaimed liberty to your slaves, and afterward resumed your authority over them: and I had in consequence restrained the sword from cutting you off: but now I give liberty to the sword, to the pestilence, and to the famine, and to the captivity, to destroy and consume you, and enslave you: for ye shall be removed to all the kingdoms of the earth. The prophet loves to express the conformity between the crime and its punishment. You promised to give liberty to your enslaved brethren: I was pleased, and bound the sword in its sheath. You broke your promise, and brought them again into bondage: I gave liberty to the sword, pestilence, and famine, to destroy multitudes of you, and captivity to take the rest. Thus you are punished according to your crimes, and in the punishment you may see the crime. Sword, pestilence, and famine are frequently joined together, as being often the effects tilence, and to the famine; and I will make you [z] to be [a] removed into all the kingdoms of the earth.

A. M. cir. 3415. B. C. cir. 589. Ol. XLVII. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 28.

18 And I will give the men that have transgressed my covenant, which have not performed the words of the covenant which they had made before me, when [b] they cut the calf in twain, and passed between the parts thereof,

19 The princes of Judah, and the princes of Jerusalem, the eunuchs, and the priests, and all the people of the land, which passed between the parts of the calf;

20 I will even give them into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them that seek their life: and their [c] dead bodies shall be for meat unto the fowls of the heaven, and to the beasts of the earth.

A. M. cir. 3415. B. C. cir. 589 Ol. XLVII. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 28

21 And Zedekiah king of Judah, and his princes, will I give into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them that seek their life, and into the hand of the king of Babylon's army, [d] which are gone up from you.

22 [e] Behold, I will command, saith the LORD, and cause them to return to this city; and they shall fight against it, [f] and take it, and burn it with fire: and [g] I will make the cities of Judah a desolation without an inhabitant.

[z] Heb. for a removing.——[a] Deut. xxviii. 25, 64; chap. xxix. 18. [b] See Gen. xv. 10, 17.——[c] Chap. vii. 33; xvi. 4; xix. 7.

[d] See chap. xxxvii. 5, 11.——[e] Chap. xxxvii. 8, 10.——[f] Chap. xxxviii. 3; xxxix. 1, 2, 8; lii. 7, 13.——[g] Chap. ix. 11; xliv. 2, 6.

of each other. The sword or war produces famine; famine, the pestilence.

Verse 18. When they cut the calf in twain, and passed between the parts thereof] This was the ancient and most solemn way of making a covenant. 1. A calf as sacrifice was offered to God to secure his approbation and support. 2. The victim was then exactly divided from the nose to the rump; the spinal marrow being divided longitudinally, in the most careful manner, that the half of it might remain on each side. 3. These divided parts were laid opposite to each other, a passage being left between them. 4. The contracting parties entered this passage at each end, met in the middle, and there took the covenant oath; adjudging themselves to death should they break this covenant. 5. Then they both feasted on the victim. In reference to this last circumstance, God says he will give their bodies for meat to the fowls of heaven and to the beasts. This is a farther conformity between the crime and the punishment. See my notes on Gen. xv. 9–17.

Verse 21. The king of Babylon's army, which are gone up from you.] Nebuchadnezzar, hearing that there was an Egyptian army coming to the relief of Jerusalem, raised the siege, went out, and met and defeated the Egyptians. It was in the interim this prophecy was delivered.

Verse 22. I will—cause them to return] They did return; re-invested the city; and, after an obstinate defence, took it, plundered it, and burned it to the ground, taking Zedekiah and his princes captive.

CHAPTER XXXV.

Jeremiah is commanded to go to the Rechabites, who, on the approach of the Chaldean army, took refuge in Jerusalem; and to try their obedience to the command of Jonadab, (or Jehonadab, 2 Kings x. 15, 16,) their great progenitor, who lived in the reign of Jehu, king of Israel, upwards of two hundred and fifty years before this time, offers them wine to drink, which they refuse, 1–11. Hence occasion is taken to upbraid the Jews with their disobedience to God, their heavenly Father, 12–17; and a blessing is pronounced on the Rechabites, 18, 19.

A. M. cir. 3397. B. C. cir. 607. Ol. XLIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 10.

THE word which came unto Jeremiah from the LORD in the days of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah, saying,

2 Go unto the house of the [a] Rechabites, and speak unto them, and bring them into the house of the LORD, into one of

A. M. cir. 3397. B. C. cir. 607. Ol. XLIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 10.

[a] 2 Kings x. 15; 1 Chron. ii. 55.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXXV.

Verse 1. The word which came—in the days of Jehoiakim] What strange confusion in the placing of these chapters! Who could have expected to hear of Jehoiakim again, whom we have long ago buried; and we have now arrived in the history at the very last year of the last Jewish king.

This discourse was probably delivered in the fourth or fifth year of Jehoiakim's reign.

Verse 2. The house of the Rechabites] The Rechabites were not descendants of Jacob; they were Kenites, 1 Chron. ii. 55, a people originally settled in that part of Arabia Petræa, called the land of Midian, and most probably the descendants of Jethro, the fa-

A. M. cir. 3397. B. C. cir. 607. Ol. XLIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 10.

[b] the chambers, and give them wine to drink.

3 Then I took Jaazaniah the son of Jeremiah, the son of Habaziniah, and his brethren, and all his sons, and the whole house of the Rechabites;

4 And I brought them into the house of the LORD, into the chamber of the sons of Hanan, the son of Igdaliah, a man of God, which was by the chamber of the princes, which was above the chamber of Maaseiah the son of Shallum, [c] the keeper of the [d] door:

5 And I set before the sons of the house of the Rechabites pots full of wine, and cups, and I said unto them, Drink ye wine.

6 But they said, We will drink no wine: for [e] Jonadab the son of Rechab our father commanded us, saying, Ye shall drink no wine, neither ye, nor your sons for ever:

A. M. cir. 3397. B. C. cir. 607. Ol. XLIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 10.

7 Neither shall ye build house, nor sow seed, nor plant vineyard, nor have any: but all your days ye shall dwell in tents; [f] that ye may live many days in the land where ye be strangers.

8 Thus have we obeyed the voice of Jonadab the son of Rechab our father in all that he hath charged us, to drink no wine all our days, we, our wives, our sons, nor our daughters;

9 Nor to build houses for us to dwell in: neither have we vineyard, nor field, nor seed:

10 But we have dwelt in tents, and have obeyed, and done according to all that Jonadab our father commanded us.

[b] 1 Kings vi. 5.——[c] 2 Kings xii. 9; xxv. 18; 1 Chron. ix. 18, 19.

[d] Heb. threshold, or vessel.——[e] 2 Kings x. 15.——[f] Exod. xx. 12; Eph. vi. 2, 3.

ther-in-law of Moses. Compare Num. x. 29–32, with Judg. i. 16; iv. 11. Those mentioned here seem to have been a tribe of Nomades or Scenite Arabs, who fed their flocks in the deserts of Judea; they preserved the simple manners of their ancestors, considering the life of the inhabitants of cities and large towns as the death of liberty; believing that they would dishonour themselves by using that sort of food that would oblige them to live a sedentary life. Jonadab, one of their ancestors, had required his children and descendants to abide faithful to the customs of their forefathers; to continue to live in tents, and to nourish themselves on the produce of their flocks; to abstain from the cultivation of the ground, and from that particularly of the vine and its produce. His descendants religiously observed this rule, till the time when the armies of the Chaldeans had entered Judea; when, to preserve their lives, they retired within the walls of Jerusalem. But even there we find, from the account in this chapter, they did not quit their frugal manner of life: but most scrupulously observed the law of Jonadab their ancestor, and probably of this family.

When the children of Hobab, or Jethro, the father-in-law of Moses, were invited by him to accompany them in their journeying to the Promised Land, it is very likely that they continued their ancient usages, and lived a patriarchal life. Their property, consisting in nothing but their cattle and tents, was easily removable from place to place; and their manner of living was not likely to excite the envy or jealousy of those who had learnt to relish the luxuries of life; and therefore we may naturally conclude that as they were enemies to none, so they had no enemies themselves. Nature has few wants. Most of those which we feel are factitious; and howsoever what we call civilization may furnish us with the conveniences and comforts of life, let us not deceive ourselves by supposing that these very things do not create the very wants which they are called in to supply; and most certainly do not contribute to the comfort of life, when the term of life is considerably abridged by their use. But it is time to return to the case of the Rechabites before us.

Verse 3. The whole house of the Rechabites] That is, the family—the chiefs of which are here specified.

Verse 4. Igdaliah, a man of God] A prophet or holy man, having some office in the temple.

Verse 5. Pots full of wine, and cups] The cups were to draw the wine out of the pots, in order to drink it.

Verse 6. We will drink no wine] The reason is given above. Their whole religious and political institution consisted in obedience to three simple precepts, each of which has an appropriate spiritual meaning:—

1. Ye shall drink no wine] Ye shall preserve your bodies in temperance, shall use nothing that would deprive you of the exercise of your sober reason at any time; lest in such a time ye should do what might be prejudicial to yourselves, injurious to your neighbour, or dishonourable to your God.

2. Neither shall ye build house] Ye shall not become residents in any place; ye shall not court earthly possessions; ye shall live free from ambition and from envy, that ye may be free from contention and strife.

3. But—ye shall dwell in tents] Ye shall imitate your forefathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and the rest of the patriarchs, who dwelt in tents, being strangers and pilgrims upon earth, looking for a heavenly country, and being determined to have nothing here that would indispose their minds towards that place of endless rest, or prevent them from passing through temporal things so as not to lose those that are eternal.

There must necessarily be more in these injunctions than meets the eye in the letter of this account.

Verse 8. Thus have we obeyed the voice] We have considered these precepts so very reasonable, so very useful, so conducive to the health of both body and mind, and sanctioned by such a respectable antiquity, that we scrupulously and religiously observe them.

A. M. cir. 3397. B. C. cir. 607. Ol. XLIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 10.

11 But it came to pass, when Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon came up into the land, that we said, Come, and let us go to Jerusalem for fear of the army of the Chaldeans, and for fear of the army of the Syrians: so we dwell at Jerusalem.

12 Then came the word of the LORD unto Jeremiah, saying,

13 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Go and tell the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, Will ye not [g] receive instruction to hearken to my words? saith the LORD.

14 The words of Jonadab the son of Rechab, that he commanded his sons not to drink wine, are performed; for unto this day they drink none, but obey their father's commandment: [h] notwithstanding I have spoken unto you, [i] rising early and speaking; but ye hearkened not unto me:

15 [k] I have sent also unto you all my servants the prophets, rising up early and sending them, saying, [l] Return ye now every man from his evil way, and amend your doings, and go not after other gods to serve them, and ye shall dwell in the land which I have given to you and to your fathers: but ye have not inclined your ear, nor hearkened unto me.

A. M. cir. 3397. B. C. cir. 607. Ol. XLIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 10.

16 Because the sons of Jonadab the son of Rechab have performed the commandment of their father, which he commanded them; bu this people hath not hearkened unto me:

17 Therefore thus saith the LORD God of hosts, the God of Israel; Behold, I will bring upon Judah and upon all the inhabitants of Jerusalem all the evil that I have pronounced against them: [m] because I have spoken unto them, but they have not heard; and I have called unto them, but they have not answered.

18 And Jeremiah said unto the house of the Rechabites, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Because ye have obeyed the commandment of Jonadab your father, and kept all his precepts, and done according unto all that he hath commanded you:

19 Therefore thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; [n] Jonadab the son of Rechab shall not want a man to [o] stand before me for ever.

[g] Chap. xxxii. 33.——[h] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 15.——[i] Chap. vii. 13; xxv. 3.——[k] Chap. vii. 25; xxv. 4.——[l] Chap. xviii. 11; xxv. 5, 6.

[m] Prov. i. 24; Isa. lxv. 12; lxvi. 4; chap. vii. 13.——[n] Heb. There shall not a man be cut off from Jonadab the son of Rechab to stand, &c.——[o] Chap. xv. 19.

Verse 11. But—when Nebuchadrezzar—came up] If at present we appear to be acting contrary in any respect to our institutions, in being found in the city, necessity alone has induced us to take this temporary step. We have sought the shelter of the city for the preservation of our lives; so now we dwell at Jerusalem.

Verse 14. The words of Jonadab—are performed—but ye hearkened not unto me.] The Lord, knowing the fidelity of this people, chose to try them in this way, that he might, by their conscientious obedience to the precepts of their forefathers, show the Jews, to their confusion, their ingratitude to him, and their neglect of his precepts, which if a man do, he shall live by them.

Verse 17. I will bring upon Judah and upon all the inhabitants of Jerusalem all the evil] Having, by the conduct of the Rechabites, clearly and fully convicted them of ingratitude and rebellion, he now proceeds to pronounce sentence against them.

Verse 19. Thus saith the Lord—Jonadab—shall not want a man to stand before me for ever.] His name shall ever be honourable, and his posterity shall enjoy my continual protection; and there shall never be found a time in which men of his spirit shall be wanting as patterns of genuine simplicity, filial obedience, purity of manners, and deadness to the world. True Christians may be considered as the genuine successors of these ancient Rechabites; and some suppose that the Essenes, in our Lord's time, were literally their descendants, and that these were they who followed our Lord particularly, and became the first converts to the Gospel. If so, the prophecy is literally fulfilled: they shall never want a man to stand before God, to proclaim his salvation, and minister to the edification and salvation of others, as long as the earth shall endure.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

God commands Jeremiah to write down in one roll or volume all the predictions he had uttered against Israel and Judah, and all the surrounding nations, from the day of his vocation to the prophetic office, that the house of Judah might have abundant warning of the dreadful calamities with which their country was about to be visited, if not prevented by a timely repentance, 1–3. The prophet employs Baruch the scribe, the son of Neriah, to write from his mouth all the words of the Lord, and then to read them publicly upon a fast day in the Lord's house, 4–8. A general fast is proclaimed in the following year, viz., the fifth year of the reign of Jehoiakim; upon which occasion Baruch, in obedience to the prophet's command, reads the words of Jeremiah to all the people at the entry of the new gate of the temple, 9, 10. The princes, hearing of this, send for Baruch, who reads the roll to them; at the contents of which they are greatly alarmed, and solemnly resolve to give information to the king, at the same time advising both the prophet and his scribe to hide themselves, 11–19. Jehoiakim likewise having sent for the roll, Jehudi reads to him a part; and then the king, though advised to the contrary by some of his princes, having cut the leaves, throws the whole into the fire, 20–25, and orders Jeremiah and Baruch to be seized; but they could not be found, because a special providence of God had concealed them, 26. Jeremiah is commanded to re-write his prophecies, and to denounce the judgments of God against the king who had destroyed the first roll, 27–31. Baruch accordingly writes from the mouth of Jeremiah a new copy, with numerous additions, 32.

A. M. 3397. B. C. 607. Ol. XLIII. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 10.

AND it came to pass in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah king of Judah, that this word came unto Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

2 Take thee a [a] roll of a book, and [b] write therein all the words that I have spoken unto thee against Israel, and against Judah, and against [c] all the nations, from the day I spake unto thee, from the days of [d] Josiah, even unto this day.

3 [e] It may be that the house of Judah will hear all the evil which I purpose to do unto them; that they may [f] return every man from his evil way; that I may forgive their iniquity and their sin.

4 Then Jeremiah [g] called Baruch the son of Neriah: and [h] Baruch wrote from the mouth of Jeremiah all the words of the LORD, which he had spoken unto him, upon a roll of a book.

5 And Jeremiah commanded Baruch, saying, I am shut up; I cannot go into the house of the LORD:

A. M. 3397. B. C. 607. Ol. XLIII. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 10.

6 Therefore go thou, and read in the roll, which thou hast written from my mouth, the words of the LORD in the ears of the people in the LORD's house upon [i] the fasting day: and also thou shalt read them in the ears of all Judah that come out of their cities.

7 [k] It may be [l] they will present their supplication before the LORD, and will return every one from his evil way: for great is the anger and the fury that the LORD hath pronounced against this people.

8 And Baruch the son of Neriah did according to all that Jeremiah the prophet commanded him, reading in the book the words of the LORD in the LORD's house.

9 And it came to pass in the fifth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah, in the ninth month, that they proclaimed

[a] Isa. viii. 1; Ezek. ii. 9; Zech. v. 1.——[b] Chap. xxx. 2. [c] Chap. xxv. 15, &c.——[d] Chap. xxv. 3.——[e] Ver. 7; chap. xxvi. 3. [f] Chap. xviii. 8; Jonah iii. 8.

[g] Chap. xxxii. 12.——[h] See chap. xlv. 1.——[i] Lev. xvi. 29; xxiii. 27, 32; Acts xxvii. 9.——[k] Ver. 3.——[l] Heb. their supplication shall fall.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXXVI.

Verse 1. And it came to pass in the fourth year] About the end of this year, see ver. 9. This discourse also bears its own date, and was probably delivered at a time when the people enjoyed peace, and were about to celebrate one of their annual fasts.

Verse 2. Take thee a roll of a book] Take a sufficient quantity of parchment; cut and stitch it together, that it may make a roll on which to write the words that I have already spoken, that they may serve for a testimony to future generations. The Jewish rolls, several of which now lie before me, were made of vellum, or of sheep-skins dressed in the half-tanned or Basil manner. These were cut into certain lengths, and those parts were all stitched together, and rolled upon a roller. The matter was written on these skins in columns or pages. Sometimes two rollers are used, that as the matter is read from the roll in the left hand, the reader may coil it on the roller in his right. In this form the Pentateuch is written which is read in the synagogues.

Verse 3. It may be that the house of Judah will hear] It was yet possible to avert the judgments which had been so often denounced against them. But in order to this they must—1. Hear what God has spoken. 2. Every man turn from his evil way. 3. If they do so, God graciously promises to forgive their iniquity and their sin.

Verse 4. Then Jeremiah called Baruch] This man, so useful to the prophet, and so faithfully attached to him, was by office a scribe; which signifies, not only a writer, but also a man in office; a chancellor, secretary, &c., a learned man; one acquainted with laws and customs.

Verse 6. Upon the fasting day] A day when multitudes of people would be gathered together from all parts to implore the mercy of God. This was a favourable time to read these tremendous prophecies.

Verse 7. Present their supplication] "Let their supplication fall," that they may fall down before God, and deplore their sins.

Verse 9. In the ninth month] Answering to a part of our December.

A. M. 3398. B. C. 606. Ol. XLIII. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 11.

a fast before the LORD to all the people in Jerusalem, and to all the people that came from the cities of Judah unto Jerusalem.

10 Then read Baruch in the book the words of Jeremiah in the house of the LORD, in the chamber of Gemariah the son of Shaphan the scribe, in the higher court, at the [m] entry [n] of the new gate of the LORD's house, in the ears of all the people.

11 When Michaiah the son of Gemariah, the son of Shaphan, had heard out of the book all the words of the LORD,

12 Then he went down into the king's house, into the scribe's chamber: and, lo, all the princes sat there, even Elishama the scribe, and Delaiah the son of Shemaiah, and Elnathan the son of Achbor, and Gemariah the son of Shaphan, and Zedekiah the son of Hananiah, and all the princes.

13 Then Michaiah declared unto them all the words that he had heard, when Baruch read the book in the ears of the people.

14 Therefore all the princes sent Jehudi the son of Nethaniah, the son of Shelemiah, the son of Cushi, unto Baruch, saying, Take in thine hand the roll wherein thou hast read in the ears of the people, and come. So Baruch the son of Neriah took the roll in his hand, and came unto them.

15 And they said unto him, Sit down now, and read it in our ears. So Baruch read it in their ears.

16 Now it came to pass, when they had heard all the words, they were afraid both one and other, and said unto Baruch, We will surely tell the king of all these words.

A. M. 3398. B. C. 606. Ol. XLIII. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 11.

17 And they asked Baruch, saying, Tell us now, How didst thou write all these words at his mouth?

18 Then Baruch answered them, He pronounced all these words unto me with his mouth, and I wrote them with ink in the book.

19 Then said the princes unto Baruch, Go, hide thee, thou and Jeremiah; and let no man know where ye be.

20 And they went in to the king into the court, but they laid up the roll in the chamber of Elishama the scribe, and told all the words in the ears of the king.

21 So the king sent Jehudi to fetch the roll. and he took it out of Elishama the scribe's chamber. And Jehudi read it in the ears of the king, and in the ears of all the princes which stood beside the king.

22 Now the king sat in [o] the winterhouse in the ninth month: and there was a fire on the hearth burning before him.

23 And it came to pass, that when Jehudi had read three or four leaves, he cut it with the penknife, and cast it into the fire that was on the hearth, until all the roll was consumed in the fire that was on the hearth.

24 Yet they were not afraid, nor [p] rent their garments, neither the king, nor any of his servants that heard all these words.

25 Nevertheless Elnathan and Delaiah and Gemariah had made intercession to the king

[m] Or, door.——[n] Chap. xxvi. 10.——[o] See Amos iii. 15.

[p] 2 Kings xxii. 11; Isa. xxxvi. 22; xxxvii. 1.

Verse 10. In the chamber of Gemariah] He was one of the princes of Judah. See ver. 12.

Verse 17. How didst thou write all these words?—At his mouth?] So the text should be pointed. They wished to know whether he had not copied them, or whether he wrote as Jeremiah prophesied.

Verse 19. Go, hide thee, thou and Jeremiah] They saw that the king would be displeased, and most probably seek their lives; and as they believed the prophecy was from God, they wished to save both the prophet and his scribe; but they were obliged to inform the king of what they had heard.

Verse 22. Winterhouse] A warm apartment suited to the season of the year, (December,) when in Palestine there is often snow upon the ground, though it does not last long. A fire on the hearth—a pan or brazier of burning coals. This is the case to the present day. In cold weather the rich burn wood in brass or earthen pans, placed in any part of the room; the indigent burn sticks on the floor.

Verse 23. When Jehudi had read three or four leaves] Rather columns; for the law, and the sacred Hebrew Books, are written in columns of a certain breadth. דלתות delathoth, signifies gates or openings between column and column, or between section and section.

He cut it with the penknife] בתער הסופר bethaar hassopher, "the knife of the scribe," properly enough penknife.

And cast it into the fire] To show his contempt for God's words.

Verse 25. Elnathan and Delaiah and Gemariah] Three of the princes wished to save the roll, and entreated the king that it might not be burnt. They would have saved it out of the fire, but the king would not permit it to be done.

A. M. 3398. B. C. 606 Ol. XLIII. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 11.

that he would not burn the roll: but he would not hear them.

26 But the king commanded Jerahmeel the son [q] of Hammelech, and Seraiah the son of Azriel, and Shelemiah the son of Abdeel, to take Baruch the scribe and Jeremiah the prophet: but the LORD hid them.

A. M. cir. 3399. B. C. cir. 605. Ol. XLIII. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 12.

27 Then the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, after that the king had burned the roll, and the words which Baruch wrote at the mouth of Jeremiah, saying, 28 Take thee again another roll, and write in it all the former words that were in the first roll, which Jehoiakim the king of Judah hath burned.

29 And thou shalt say to Jehoiakim king of Judah, Thus saith the LORD; Thou hast burned this roll, saying, Why hast thou written therein, saying, The king of Babylon shall certainly come and destroy this land, and shall cause to cease from thence man and beast?

A. M. cir. 3399 B. C. cir. 605. Ol. XLIII. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 12.

30 Therefore thus saith the LORD of Jehoiakim king of Judah; [r] He shall have none to sit upon the throne of David: and his dead body shall be [s] cast out in the day to the heat, and in the night to the frost.

31 And I will [t] punish him and his seed and his servants for their iniquity; and I will bring upon them, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and upon the men of Judah, all the evil that I have pronounced against them; but they hearkened not.

32 Then took Jeremiah another roll, and gave it to Baruch the scribe, the son of Neriah; who wrote therein from the mouth of Jeremiah all the words of the book which Jehoiakim king of Judah had burned in the fire: and there were added besides unto them many [u] like words.

[q] Or, of the king.——[r] Chap. xxii. 30.——[s] Chap. xxii. 19.

[t] Heb. visit upon; chap. xxiii. 34.——[u] Heb. as they.

Verse 26. But the Lord hid them.] They had, at the counsel of some of the princes, hidden themselves, ver. 19. And now, though a diligent search was made, the Lord did not permit them to be found.

Verse 28. Take thee again another roll] There was no duplicate of the former preserved; and now God inspired the prophet with the same matter that he had given him before; and there is to be added the heavy judgment that is to fall on Jehoiakim and his courtiers.

Verse 30. He shall have none to sit upon the throne of David] He shall have no successor, and himself shall have an untimely end, and shall not even be buried, but his body be exposed to the open air, both night and day. He who wishes to hide his crimes, or take away the evidence which is against him, adds thereby to his iniquities, and is sure in consequence to double his punishment. See the threatening against Jehoiakim, chap. xxii. 19, and the note there.

Verse 32. There were added—many like words.] All the first roll, with many other threatenings, and perhaps more minute declarations which were merely of a temporary importance and local application; and the Holy Spirit did not think proper to record them here.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

Zedekiah succeeds Coniah, the son of Jehoiakim, in the Jewish throne, and does that which is evil in the sight of the Lord, 1, 2. The king sends a message to Jeremiah, 3–5. God suggests an answer; and foretells the return of the Chaldean army, who should most assuredly take and burn the city, 6–10. Jeremiah, in attempting to leave this devoted city, and retire to his possession in the country, is seized as a deserter, and cast into a dungeon, 11–15. The king, after a conference with him, abates the rigour of his confinement, 16–21.

A. M. 3406 —3416. B. C. 598 —588. Ol. XLV. 3— XLVIII. 1.

AND king [a] Zedekiah the son of Josiah reigned instead of Coniah the son of Jehoiakim, whom Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon made king in the land of Judah.

2 [b] But neither he, nor his servants, nor the people of the land, did hearken unto the words of the LORD, which he spake [c] by the prophet Jeremiah.

A. M. 3406 —3416. B. C. 598 —588. Ol. XLV. 3— XLVIII. 1.

3 And Zedekiah the king sent Jehucal the

[a] 2 Kings xxiv. 17; 2 Chron. xxxvi. 10; chap. xxii. 24.

[b] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 12, 14.——[c] Heb. by the hand of the prophet.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXXVII.

Verse 1. And king Zedekiah the son of Josiah] Of the siege and taking of Jerusalem referred to here, and the making of Zedekiah king instead of Jeconiah, see 2 Kings xxiv. 1, &c., and the notes there.

Verse 3. Zedekiah—to the prophet Jeremiah] He

A. M. cir. 3414. B. C. cir. 590. Ol. XLVII. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 27.

son of Shelemiah and [d] Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah the priest to the prophet Jeremiah, saying, Pray now unto the LORD our God for us.

4 Now Jeremiah came in and went out among the people: for they had not put him into prison.

5 Then [e] Pharaoh's army was come forth out of Egypt: [f] and when the Chaldeans that besieged Jerusalem heard tidings of them, they departed from Jerusalem.

6 Then came the word of the LORD unto the prophet Jeremiah, saying,

7 Thus saith the LORD, the God of Israel; Thus shall ye say to the king of Judah, [g] that sent you unto me to inquire of me; Behold, Pharaoh's army, which is come forth to help you, shall return to Egypt into their own land.

8 [h] And the Chaldeans shall come again, and fight against this city, and take it, and burn it with fire.

9 Thus saith the LORD; Deceive not [i] yourselves, saying, The Chaldeans shall surely depart from us: for they shall not depart.

10 [k] For though ye had smitten the whole army of the Chaldeans that fight against you, and there remained but [l] wounded men among them, yet should they rise up every man in his tent, and burn this city with fire.

A. M. cir. 3414. B. C. cir. 590. Ol. XLVII. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 27.

11 [m] And it came to pass, that when the army of the Chaldeans was [n] broken up from Jerusalem for fear of Pharaoh's army, 12 Then Jeremiah went forth out of Jerusalem to go into the land of Benjamin, [o] to separate himself thence in the midst of the people.

13 And when he was in the gate of Benjamin, a captain of the ward was there, whose name was Irijah, the son of Shelemiah, the son of Hananiah; and he took Jeremiah the prophet, saying, Thou fallest away to the Chaldeans.

14 Then said Jeremiah, It is [p] false; I fall not away to the Chaldeans. But he hearkened not to him: so Irijah took Jeremiah, and brought him to the princes.

15 Wherefore the princes were wroth with Jeremiah, and smote him, [q] and put him in prison in the house of Jonathan the scribe: for they had made that the prison.

[d] Chap. xxi. 1, 2; xxix. 25; lii. 24.——[e] See 2 Kings xxiv.; Ezek. xvii. 15.——[f] Ver. 11; chap. xxxiv. 21.——[g] Chap. xxi. 2.
[h] Chap. xxxiv. 22.——[i] Heb. souls.——[k] Chap. xxi. 4, 5.

[l] Heb. thrust through.——[m] Ver. 5.——[n] Heb. made to ascend.
[o] Or, to slip away from thence in the midst of the people.——[p] Heb. falsehood, or a lie.——[q] Chap. xxxviii. 26.

was willing to hear a message from the Lord, provided it were according to his own mind. He did not fully trust in his own prophets.

Verse 4. Now Jeremiah came in and went out] After the siege was raised, he had a measure of liberty; he was not closely confined, as he afterwards was. See ver. 16.

Verse 5. Then Pharaoh's army] This was Pharaohhophra or Apries, who then reigned in Egypt in place of his father Necho. See Ezek. xxix. 6, &c. Nebuchadnezzar, hearing that the Egyptian army, on which the Jews so much depended, was on their march to relieve the city, suddenly raised the siege, and went to meet them. In the interim Zedekiah sent to Jeremiah to inquire of the Lord to know whether they might consider themselves in safety.

Verse 7. Pharaoh's army—shall return to Egypt] They were defeated by the Chaldeans; and, not being hearty in the cause, returned immediately to Egypt, leaving Nebuchadnezzar unmolested to recommence the siege.

Verse 10. For though ye had smitten the whole army] Strong words; but they show how fully God was determined to give up this city to fire and sword, and how fully he had instructed his prophet on this point.

Verse 12. Jeremiah went forth] At the time that Nebuchadnezzar had raised the siege, and gone to meet the Egyptian army.

Go into the land of Benjamin] To Anathoth, his native city.

To separate himself thence] "To receive a portion thereof among the people;"—Blayney: who supposes that Jeremiah went to receive a portion of the proceeds of his patrimony at Anathoth, which had, previously to the siege, been in the hands of the Chaldeans. The siege being now raised, he thought of looking thus after his own affairs. The Chaldee is to the same sense. "He went that he might divide the inheritance which he had there among the people."

Dahler translates, "He went to withdraw himself from the siege, as many others of the inhabitants." I believe he went to withdraw himself from a city devoted to destruction, and in which he could no longer do any good.

Verse 13. Thou fallest away to the Chaldeans.] Thou art a deserter, and a traitor to thy country. As he had always declared that the Chaldeans should take the city, &c., his enemies took occasion from this to say he was in the interest of the Chaldeans, and that he wished now to go to them, and betray the place.

Verse 15. And smote him] Without any proof of the alleged treachery, without any form of justice.

In prison in the house of Jonathan] In Asiatic

A. M. cir. 3415. B. C. cir. 589. Ol. XLVII. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 28.

16 When Jeremiah was entered into [r] the dungeon, and into the [s] cabins, and Jeremiah had remained there many days;

17 Then Zedekiah the king sent, and took him out: and the king asked him secretly in his house, and said, Is there any word from the LORD? And Jeremiah said, There is: for, said he, thou shalt be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon.

18 Moreover Jeremiah said unto king Zedekiah, What have I offended against thee, or against thy servants, or against this people, that ye have put me in prison?

19 Where are now your prophets which prophesied unto you, saying, The king of Babylon shall not come against you, nor against this land?

A. M. cir. 3415. B. C. cir. 589. Ol. XLVII. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 28.

20 Therefore hear now, I pray thee, O my lord the king: [t] let my supplication, I pray thee, be accepted before thee; that thou cause me not to return to the house of Jonathan the scribe, lest I die there.

21 Then Zedekiah the king commanded that they should commit Jeremiah [u] into the court of the prison, and that they should give him daily a piece of bread out of the bakers' street, [v] until all the bread in the city were spent. Thus Jeremiah remained in the court of the prison.

[r] Gen. xl. 15; xli. 14; Exod. xii. 29; chap. xxxviii. 6.——[s] Or, cells.

[t] Heb. let my supplication fall.——[u] Chap. xxxii. 2; xxxviii. 13, 28.
[v] Chap. xxxviii. 9; lii. 6.

countries there is an apartment in the houses of the officers of the law, to confine all the accused that are brought before them. Jonathan was a scribe or secretary, and had a prison of this kind in his house.

Verse 16. Entered into the dungeon, and into the cabins] The dungeon was probably a deep pit; and the cabins or cells, niches in the sides, where different malefactors were confined. See Blayney.

Verse 17. Is there any word from the Lord?] Is there any farther revelation?

There is:—thou shalt be delivered] What bold faithfulness! And to a king, in whose hands his life now lay.

Verse 19. Where are now your prophets] They told you that the Chaldeans should not come; I told you they would. According to my word the Chaldeans are come, and are departed only for a short time.

Verse 20. Cause me not to return to the house of Jonathan] He had been ill used in this man's custody, so as to endanger his life, the place being cold, and probably unhealthy.

Verse 21. Then Zedekiah—the court of the prison] Was contiguous to the king's house, where the prisoners could readily see their friends.

Give him daily a piece of bread out of the bakers' street] From the public stores; which he received till all the provisions were spent.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

The princes of Judah, taking offence at Jeremiah on account of his predicting the destruction of Jerusalem and the temple by the Chaldeans, cause him to be cast into a deep and miry dungeon, 1–6. Ebed-melech, an Ethiopian, gets the king's permission to take him out, 7–13. Jeremiah advises the king, who consulted him privately, to surrender to the Chaldeans, 14–23. The king promises the prophet thot he will not put him to death, and requires him not to reveal what had passed to the princes; to whom he accordingly gives an evasive answer, telling them only so much of the conference as related to his request for his life, 24–28.

A. M. cir. 3415. B. C. cir. 589. Ol. XLVII. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 28.

THEN Shephatiah the son of Mattan, and Gedaliah the son of Pashur, and [a] Jucal the son of Shelemiah, and [b] Pashur the son of Malchiah, [c] heard the words that Jeremiah had spoken unto all the people, saying,

2 Thus saith the LORD, [d] He that remaineth in this city shall die by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence: but he that goeth forth to the Chaldeans shall live; for he shall have his life for a prey, and shall live.

A. M. cir. 3415. B. C. cir. 589. Ol. XLVII. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 28.

3 Thus saith the LORD, [e] This city shall

[a] Chap. xxxvii. 3.——[b] Chap. xxi. 1.——[c] Chap. xxi. 8.

[d] Chap. xxi. 9.——[e] Chap. xxi. 10; xxxii. 3.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXXVIII.

Verse 1. Then Shephatiah] This was the faction—what Dahler terms the Antitheocratic faction—who were enemies to Jeremiah, and sought his life.

Verse 3. This city shall surely be given] This was a testimony that he constantly bore: he had the authority of God for it. He knew it was true, and he never wavered nor equivocated surely be given into the hand of the king of Babylon's army, which shall take it.

A. M. cir. 3415. B. C. cir. 589. Ol. XLVII. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 28.

4 Therefore the princes said unto the king, We beseech thee, [f] let this man be put to death: for thus he weakeneth the hands of the men of war that remain in this city, and the hands of all the people, in speaking such words unto them: for this man seeketh not the [g] welfare of this people, but the hurt.

5 Then Zedekiah the king said, Behold, he is in your hand: for the king is not he that can do any thing against you.

6 [h] Then took they Jeremiah, and cast him into the dungeon of Malchiah the son [i] of Hammelech, that was in the court of the prison: and they let down Jeremiah with cords. And in the dungeon there was no water, but mire: so Jeremiah sunk in the mire.

7 [k] Now when Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, one of the eunuchs which was in the king's house, heard that they had put Jeremiah in the dungeon; (the king then sitting in the gate of Benjamin;)

8 Ebed-melech went forth out of the king's house, and spake to the king, saying,

9 My lord the king, these men have done evil in all that they have done to Jeremiah the prophet, whom they have cast into the dungeon; and [l] he is like to die for hunger in the place where he is: for there is no more bread in the city.

A. M. cir. 3415. B. C. cir. 589. Ol. XLVII. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 28.

10 Then the king commanded Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, saying, Take from hence thirty men [m] with thee, and take up Jeremiah the prophet out of the dungeon, before he die.

11 So Ebed-melech took the men with him, and went into the house of the king under the treasury, and took thence old cast clouts and old rotten rags, and let them down by cords into the dungeon to Jeremiah.

12 And Ebed-melech the Ethiopian said unto Jeremiah, Put now these old cast clouts and rotten rags under thine armholes under the cords. And Jeremiah did so.

13 [n] So they drew up Jeremiah with cords, and took him up out of the dungeon: and Jeremiah remained [o] in the court of the prison.

14 Then Zedekiah the king sent, and took Jeremiah the prophet unto him into the [p] third entry that is in the house of the LORD: and the king said unto Jeremiah, I will ask thee a thing; hide nothing from me.

15 Then Jeremiah said unto Zedekiah, If I declare it unto thee, wilt thou not surely put me to death? and if I give thee counsel, wilt thou not hearken unto me?

[f] See chap. xxvi. 11.——[g] Heb. peace.——[h] Chap. xxxvii. 21. [i] Or, of the king.

[k] Chap. xxxix. 16.——[l] Heb. he will die.——[m] Heb. in thine hand. [n] Ver. 6.——[o] Chap. xxxvii. 21.——[p] Or, principal.

Verse 4. Let this man be put to death] And they gave their reasons plain enough: but the proof was wanting.

Verse 5. He is in your hand] Ye have power to do as you please; I must act by your counsel. Poor weak prince! you respect the prophet, you fear the cabal, and you sacrifice an innocent man to your own weakness and their malice!

Verse 6. So Jeremiah sunk in the mire.] Their obvious design was, that he might be stifled in that place.

Verse 7. Ebed-melech] The servant of the king, one of the eunuchs who belonged to the palace. Perhaps it should be read, "Now, a servant of the king, a Cushite, one of the eunuchs," &c.

The king then sitting in the gate of Benjamin] To give audience, and to administer justice. We have often seen that the gates of cities were the places of public judicature.

Verse 9. My lord the king, these men have done evil] He must have been much in the king's confidence, and a humane and noble spirited man, thus to have raised his voice against the powerful cabal already mentioned.

There is no more bread in the city.] They had defended it to the last extremity; and it appears that bread had been afforded to the prophet according to the king's commandment, as long as there was any remaining. See chap. xxxvi. 21.

Verse 10. Take from hence thirty men] The king was determined that he should be rescued by force, if the princes opposed.

Verse 11. Went into the house of the king—and took thence] The eastern kings had their wardrobes always well furnished; as garments were a usual present to ambassadors, &c. I cannot think that, in the proper acceptation of the words, these were in any part of the king's house.

Old cast clouts, and old rotten rags] The fact seems to be this: there were several garments that had been used, and would not be used again; and there were others which, through continuing long there, had by insects, &c. been rendered useless. These he took, tied to the cord, let down to the prophet, that he might roll them round the ropes, and place them under his arm-pits, so that in being hauled up he might not suffer injury from the ropes, which in this case must sustain the whole weight of his body.

Verse 14. Into the third entry] A place to enter which two others must be passed through.

A. M. cir. 3415. B. C. cir. 589. Ol. XLVII. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 28.

16 So Zedekiah the king sware secretly unto Jeremiah, saying, As the LORD liveth, [q] that made us this soul, I will not put thee to death, neither will I give thee into the hand of these men that seek thy life.

17 Then said Jeremiah unto Zedekiah, Thus saith the LORD, the God of hosts, the God of Israel; If thou wilt assuredly [r] go forth [s] unto the king of Babylon's princes, then thy soul shall live, and this city shall not be burned with fire; and thou shalt live, and thine house:

18 But if thou wilt not go forth to the king of Babylon's princes, then shall this city be given into the hand of the Chaldeans, and they shall burn it with fire, and [t] thou shalt not escape out of their hand.

19 And Zedekiah the king said unto Jeremiah, I am afraid of the Jews that are fallen to the Chaldeans, lest they deliver me into their hand, and they [u] mock me.

20 But Jeremiah said, They shall not deliver thee. Obey, I beseech thee, the voice of the LORD, which I speak unto thee: so it shall be well unto thee, and thy soul shall live.

21 But if thou refuse to go forth, this is the word that the LORD hath showed me:

22 And, behold, all the women that are left in the king of Judah's house shall be brought forth to the king of Babylon's princes, and those women shall say, [v] Thy friends have set thee on, and have prevailed against thee: thy feet are sunk in the mire, and they are turned away back.

A. M. cir. 3415. B. C. cir. 589. Ol. XLVII. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 28.

23 So they shall bring out all thy wives and [w] thy children to the Chaldeans: and [x] thou shalt not escape out of their hand, but shalt be taken by the hand of the king of Babylon: and [y] thou shalt cause this city to be burned with fire.

24 Then said Zedekiah unto Jeremiah, Let no man know of these words, and thou shalt not die.

25 But if the princes hear that I have talked with thee, and they come unto thee, and say unto thee, Declare unto us now what thou hast said unto the king, hide it not from us, and we will not put thee to death; and also what the king said unto thee:

26 Then thou shalt say unto them, [z] I presented my supplication before the king, that he would not cause me to return [a] to Jonathan's house, to die there.

27 Then came all the princes unto Jeremiah, and asked him: and he told them according to all these words that the king had commanded. So [b] they left off speaking with him; for the matter was not perceived.

28 So [c] Jeremiah abode in the court of the prison until the day that Jerusalem was taken: and he was there when Jerusalem was taken.

A. M. 3415 —3416. B. C. 589 —588. Ol. XLVII. 4. —XLVIII. 1.

[q] Isa. lvii. 16.——[r] 2 Kings xxiv. 12.——[s] Chap. xxxix. 3. [t] Chap. xxxii. 4; xxxiv. 3; ver. 23.——[u] 1 Sam. xxi. 4.——[v] Heb. Men of thy peace.

[w] Chap. xxxix. 6; xli. 10.——[x] Ver. 18.——[y] Heb. thou shalt burn, &c.——[z] Chap. xxxvii. 28.——[a] Chap. xxxvii. 15.——[b] Heb. they were silent from him.——[c] Chap. xxxvii. 21; xxxix. 14.

Verse 16. As the Lord liveth, that made us this soul] He is the living God, and he is the Author of that life which each of us possesses; and as sure as he lives, and we live by him, I will not put thee to death, nor give thee into the hands of those men who seek thy life. A very solemn oath; and the first instance on record of the profane custom of swearing by the soul.

Verse 17. Wilt assuredly go] On the king's obedience to the advice of the prophet the safety of the city depended.

Unto the king of Babylon's princes] The generals of the army then returning to the siege from the defeat of the Egyptians; for Nebuchadnezzar himself was then at Riblah, in Syria, chap. xxxix. 5, 6.

Verse 19. They mock me.] Insult me, and exhibit me in triumph.

Verse 22. All the women—brought forth] I think this place speaks of a kind of defection among the women of the harem; many of whom had already gone forth privately to the principal officers of the Chaldean army, and made the report mentioned in the end of this verse. These were the concubines or women of the second rank.

Verse 23. They shall bring out all thy wives and thy children] These were the women of the first rank, by whom the king had children. These had no temptation to go out to the Chaldeans, nor would they have been made welcome; but the others being young, and without children, would be well received by the Chaldean princes.

Verse 26. I presented my supplication] This was telling the truth, and nothing but the truth, but not the whole truth. The king did not wish him to defile his conscience, nor did he propose any thing that was not consistent with the truth.

Verse 27. The matter was not perceived.] They did not question him farther; and the king's commandment to remove him from the house of Jonathan being well known, they took for granted that they had all the information that they sought. And he was most certainly not obliged to relate any thing that might embroil this weak king with his factious but powerful princes, or affect his own life. He related simply what was necessary, and no more.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

This chapter gives an account of the siege and taking of Jerusalem; the flight, capture, and punishment of Zedekiah; the burning of the city; and the carrying away of the people, (a few of the meanest excepted,) to Babylon, 1–10; also of the release of Jeremiah, and the special orders of Nebuchadnezzar concerning him, 11–14. The remaining verses relate to the subject of the preceding chapter; and contain promises of personal safety to Ebed-melech the Ethiopian amidst the public calamities, on account of his piety, and his humanity to the prophet, 15–18.

A. M. 3414. B. C. 590. Ol. XLVII. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 27.

IN the [a] ninth year of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the tenth month, came Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon and all his army against Jerusalem, and they besieged it.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

2 And in the eleventh year of Zedekiah, in the fourth month, the ninth day of the month, the city was broken up.

3 [b] And all the princes of the king of Babylon came in, and sat in the middle gate, even Nergal-sharezer, Samgar-nebo, Sarsechim, Rab-saris, Nergal-sharezer, Rab-mag, with all the residue of the princes of the king of Babylon.

4 [c] And it came to pass, that when Zedekiah the king of Judah saw them, and all the men of war, then they fled, and went forth out of the city by night, by the way of the king's garden, by the gate betwixt the two walls: and he went out the way of the plain.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

5 But the Chaldeans' army pursued after them, and [d] overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho: and when they had taken him, they brought him up to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon to [e] Riblah in the land of Hamath, where he [f] gave judgment upon him.

6 Then the king of Babylon slew the sons of Zedekiah in Riblah before his eyes: also the

[a] 2 Kings xv. 1–4; chap. lii. 4–7.——[b] Chap. xxxviii. 17.
[c] 2 Kings xxv. 4, &c.; chap. lii. 7, &c.
[d] Chap. xxxii. 4; xxxviii. 18, 23.——[e] 2 Kings xxiii. 33.——[f] Heb. spake with him judgments; chap. iv. 12.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXXIX.

Verse 1. In the ninth year of Zedekiah—in the tenth month] This month is called Tebeth in Esther ii. 16. It began with the first new moon of our January, and it was on the tenth day of this month that Nebuchadnezzar invested the city.

Verse 2. The eleventh year—in the fourth month] This month in the Hebrew calendar is called Thammuz, and commences with the first new moon of our July. The siege had lasted just eighteen months.

The city was broken up.] A breach was made in the wall by which the Chaldeans entered.

Verse 3. Sat in the middle gate] The city of Jerusalem stood upon two hills, Sion to the south, and Acra to the north, with a deep valley between them. The gate of the centre, as the term seems plainly to import was a gate of communication in the middle of the valley, between the two parts of the city, sometimes called the higher and the lower city. The Chaldeans entered the city on the north side by a breach in the walls, and rushing forward and posting themselves in this gate, in the very heart or centre of the city, became thereby masters at will of the whole. Zedekiah with his troop, perceiving this, fled out of the opposite gate on the south side. See Blayney. This is likely; but we know nothing positively on this subject.

Nergal-sharezer] These were the principal commanders; but Dr. Blayney thinks that instead of six persons, we have in reality but three, as the name that follows each is a title of office. Thus, Nergal-sharezer, who was Samgar; Nebu-sarsechim, who was Rab-saris; and Nergal-sharezer, who was Rab-mag. As Nergal-sharezer occurs twice here, and we know that Nebuzar-adan was general-in-chief, the first Nergal-sharezer is probably a mistake for Nebuzar-adan, or some other of the commanders. But these things are as uncertain as they are unimportant.

Verse 4. Went forth out of the city by night] Probably there was a private passage under ground, leading without the walls, by which Zedekiah and his followers might escape unperceived, till they had got some way from the city.

The way of the plain.] There were two roads from Jerusalem to Jericho. One passed over the mount of Olives; but, as this might have retarded his flight, he chose the way of the plain, and was overtaken near Jericho, perhaps about sixteen or eighteen miles from Jerusalem. He had probably intended to have passed the Jordan, in order to escape to Egypt, as the Egyptians were then his professed allies.

Verse 5. To Riblah] This city was situated on the northern frontier of Palestine, and Hamath was a large city belonging also to Syria. See Gen. x. 18.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

king of Babylon slew all the nobles of Judah.

7 Moreover [g] he put out Zedekiah's eyes, and bound him [h] with chains, to carry him to Babylon.

8 [i] And the Chaldeans burnt the king's house, and the houses of the people, with fire, and brake down the walls of Jerusalem.

9 [k] Then Nebuzar-adan the [l] captain [m] of the guard carried away captive into Babylon the remnant of the people that remained in the city, and those that fell away, that fell to him, with the rest of the people that remained.

10 But Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard left of the poor of the people, which had nothing, in the land of Judah, and gave them vineyards and fields [n] at the same time.

11 Now Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon gave charge concerning Jeremiah [o] to Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard, saying, 12 Take him, and [p] look well to him, and do him no harm; but do unto him even as he shall say unto thee.

13 So Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard sent, and Nebushasban, Rab-saris, and Nergal-sharezer, Rab-mag, and all the king of Babylon's princes;

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

14 Even they sent, [q] and took Jeremiah out of the court of the prison, and committed him [r] unto Gedaliah the son of [s] Ahikam the son of Shaphan, that he should carry him home: so he dwelt among the people.

15 Now the word of the LORD came unto Jeremiah, while he was shut up in the court of the prison, saying,

16 Go and speak to [t] Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, saying, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Behold [u] I will bring my words upon this city for evil, and not for good; and they shall be accomplished in that day before thee.

17 But I will deliver thee in that day, saith the LORD: and thou shalt not be given into the hand of the men of whom thou art afraid.

18 For I will surely deliver thee, and thou shalt not fall by the sword, but [v] thy life shall be for a prey unto thee: [w] because thou hast put thy trust in me, saith the LORD.

[g] Ezek. xii. 13, compared with chap. xxxii. 4.——[h] Heb. with two brazen chains or fetters.——[i] 2 Kings xxv. 9; chap. xxxviii. 18; lii. 13.——[k] 2 Kings xxv. 11, &c.; chap. lii. 15, &c. [l] Or, chief marshal.——[m] Heb. chief of the executioners, or slaughtermen; and so ver. 10, 11, &c.; see Gen. xxxvii. 26.

[n] Heb. in that day.——[o] Heb. by the hand of.——[p] Heb. set thine eyes upon him——[q] Chap. xxxviii. 28.——[r] Chap. xl. 5.——[s] Chap. xxvi. 24.——[t] Chap. xxxviii. 7, 12.——[u] Dan. ix. 12.——[v] Chap. xxi. 9; xlv. 5.——[w] 1 Chron. v. 20; Psa. xxxvii. 40.

Verse 7. Bound him with chains] Margin: "Two brazen chains;" one for his hands, and the other for his feet.

Verse 9. Those that fell away] That deserted to the Chaldeans during the siege.

Verse 10. Left of the poor of the people] The very refuse of the inhabitants, who were not worthy of being carried away; and among them he divided the fields and vineyards of those whom he took away.

Verse 12. Take him—look well to him] Nebuchadnezzar had heard that this prophet had foretold his capture of the city, and had frequently used all his influence to induce Zedekiah to pay the tribute, and not rebel against him; and on this account would be inclined to show the prophet especial favour.

Verse 16. Go and speak to Ebed-melech] The king's servant, the Cushite.

Verse 18. I will surely deliver thee] Thou hast feared the Lord, and not the king, nor his princes, and thou hast taken the part of the prophet, and become his intercessor. Thou shalt not be slain. Thou hast put thy trust in me; thou shalt therefore be safe whithersoever thou goest. They that fear God need fear nothing besides.

CHAPTER XL.

This and the four following chapters contain a distinct account of what passed in the land of Judah from the taking of Jerusalem to the retreat of the remnant of the people to Egypt; together with the prophecies of Jeremiah concerning that place, whither he himself accompanied them. In this chapter we have an account of the enlargement of Jeremiah by Nebuzar-adan, the captain of the guard, who advises him to put himself under the jurisdiction of Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, whom the king of Babylon had made governor over the land of Judea, 1–5. The prophet and many of the dispersed Jews repair to Gedaliah, 6–12 Johanan acquaints the governor of a conspiracy against him, but is not believed, 13–16.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

THE word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, [a] after that Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard had let him go from Ramah, when he had taken him being bound in [b] chains among all that were carried away captive of Jerusalem and Judah, which were carried away captive unto Babylon.

2 And the captain of the guard took Jeremiah, and [c] said unto him, The LORD thy God hath pronounced this evil upon this place.

3 Now the LORD hath brought it, and done according as he hath said: [d] because ye have sinned against the LORD, and have not obeyed his voice, therefore this thing is come upon you.

4 And now, behold, I loose thee this day from the chains which [e] were upon thine hand. [f] If it seem good unto thee to come with me into Babylon, come; and [g] I will look well unto thee: but if it seem ill unto thee to come with me into Babylon, forbear: behold, [h] all the land is before thee: whither it seemeth good and convenient for thee to go, thither go.

5 Now while he was not yet gone back, he said, Go back also to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam the son of Shaphan, [i] whom the king of Babylon hath made governor over the cities of Judah, and dwell with him among the people: or go whereseever it seemeth convenient unto thee to go. So the captain of the guard gave him victuals and a reward, and let him go.

6 [k] Then went Jeremiah unto Gedaliah the son of Ahikam to [l] Mizpah; and dwelt with him among the people that were left in the land.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

7 [m] Now when all the captains of the forces which were in the fields, even they and their men, heard that the king of Babylon had made Gedaliah the son of Ahikam governor in the land, and had committed unto him men, and women, and children, and of [n] the poor of the land, of them that were not carried away captive to Babylon;

8 Then they came to Gedaliah to Mizpah, [o] even Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and Johanan and Jonathan the sons of Kareah, and Seraiah the son of Tanhumeth, and the sons of Ephai the Netophathite, and Jezaniah the son of a Maachathite, they and their men.

9 And Gedaliah the son of Ahikam the son of Shaphan sware unto them and to their men, saying, Fear not to serve the Chaldeans: dwell in the land, and serve the king of Babylon, and it shall be well with you.

10 As for me, behold, I will dwell at Mizpah, [p] to serve the Chaldeans, which will come unto us: but ye, gather ye wine, and summer fruits, and oil, and put them in your vessels, and dwell in your cities that ye have taken.

11 Likewise when all the Jews that were in Moab, and among the Ammonites, and in Edom, and that were in all the countries, heard that the king of Babylon had left a

[a] Chap. xxxix. 14.——[b] Or, manacles.——[c] Chap. l. 7.——[d] Deut. xxix. 24, 25; Dan. ix. 11.——[e] Or, are upon thine hand.——[f] Chap. xxxix. 12.——[g] Heb. I will set mine eye upon thee.

[b] Gen. xx. 15.——[i] 2 Kings xxv. 22, &c.——[k] Chap. xxxix. 14. [l] Judg. xx. 1.——[m] 2 Kings xxv. 23, &c.——[n] Chap. xxxix. 10. [o] Chap. xli. 1.——[p] Heb. to stand before; Deut. i. 38.

NOTES ON CHAP. XL.

Verse 1. The word that came to Jeremiah] This and the four following chapters contain a particular account of what passed in the land of Judea from the taking of the city to the retreat of the people into Egypt, and the prophecies of Jeremiah concerning them there.

Had let him go from Ramah] This has embarrassed most of the commentators. Dr. Blayney has thrown much light upon it by his translation and note:—

"The word that came to Jeremiah from Jehovah, after that Nebu-Zaradan captain of the guards had taken him, and let him go from Ramah: for he had been bound with chains among all the captives of Jerusalem and Judah, who were carried away captive to Babylon."

"HAD TAKEN HIM, AND LET HIM GO.—Most interpreters have understood בקחתו אתו bekachto otho of Nebuchadnezzar's having first taken Jeremiah as a captive unto Ramah. But if the order of the sentence be well observed, as well as the more common use of the verb לקח lakach, it will, I think, rather appear that those words relate to his taking or having him brought to him, in order to give him his discharge."

Verse 2. The Lord thy God hath pronounced] I know that thou art a true prophet, for what thou hast predicted from thy God is come to pass.

Verse 4. Come; and I will look well unto thee] Thou art now at full liberty to do as thou pleasest; either to come to Babylon, or to stay in thy own land.

Verse 5. Go back also to Gedaliah] If thou wilt stay in thy own land, thou hadst best put thyself under the protection of thy countryman Gedaliah, whom the king of Babylon has made governor of the land.

Verse 8. Ishmael the son of Nethaniah] This is he who afterwards murdered Gedaliah. He had been employed to do this by Baalis, king of the Ammonites, remnant of Judah, and that he had set over them Gedaliah the son of Ahikam the son of Shaphan;

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

12 Even all the Jews returned out of all places whither they were driven, and came to the land of Judah, to Gedaliah, unto Mizpah, and gathered wine and summer fruits very much.

13 Moreover Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were in the fields, came to Gedaliah to Mizpah, 14 And said unto him, Dost thou certainly know that [q] Baalis the king of the Ammonites hath sent Ishmael the son of Nethaniah [r] to slay thee? But Gedaliah the son of Ahikam believed them not.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

15 Then Johanan the son of Kareah spake to Gedaliah in Mizpah secretly, saying, Let me go, I pray thee, and I will slay Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and no man shall know it: wherefore should he slay thee, that all the Jews which are gathered unto thee should be scattered, and the remnant in Judah perish?

16 But Gedaliah the son of Ahikam said unto Johanan the son of Kareah, Thou shalt not do this thing: for thou speakest falsely of Ishmael.

[q] See chap. xli. 10.

[r] Heb. to strike thee in soul?

with whom he appears to have taken refuge during the siege. See ver. 14.

Verse 14. But Gedaliah the son of Ahikam believed them not.] The account given of this man proves him to have been a person of uncommon greatness of soul. Conscious of his own integrity and benevolence, he took the portrait of others from his own mind; and therefore believed evil of no man, because he felt none towards any in his own breast. He may be reproached for being too credulous and confident: but any thing of this kind that may be justly charged against him serves only to show the greatness of his mind. A little soul is ever suspicious, and ready to believe the worst of every person and thing. A great mind acts always on the contrary.

Verse 16. Thou shalt not do this thing] He cannot be so base.

Thou speakest falsely of Ishmael.] He thought it quite possible that the man who was capable of becoming an assassin was capable of telling a lie; and therefore he would not credit what he said. Had he been a little more distrustful, he would have saved his own life. The next chapter shows that Johanan's information was too true. So noble Gedaliah lost his life by not believing that evil of others of which he himself was incapable.

CHAPTER XLI.

Ishmael executes his conspiracy against Gedaliah the governor and his companions, and attempts to carry away the Jews who were with him captives to the Ammonites, 1–10; but Johanan recovers them, and purposes to flee into Egypt, 11–18.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

NOW it came to pass in the seventh month, [a] that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah the son of Elishama, of the seed royal, and the princes of the king, even ten men with him, came unto Gedaliah the son of Ahikam to Mizpah; and there they did eat bread together in Mizpah.

2 Then arose Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and the ten men that were with him, and [b] smote Gedaliah the son of Ahikam the son of Shaphan with the sword, and slew him, whom the king of Babylon had made governor over the land.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

3 Ishmael also slew all the Jews that were with him, even with Gedaliah, at Mizpah, and the Chaldeans that were found there, and the men of war.

4 And it came to pass the second day after he had slain Gedaliah, and no man knew it,

5 That there came certain from Shechem, from Shiloh, and from Samaria, even fourscore men, [c] having their beards shaven, and their clothes rent, and having cut themselves, with [a] 2 Kings xxv. 25; chap. xl. 6, 8.——[b] 2 Kings xxv. 25.

[c] Lev. xix. 27, 28; Deut. xiv. 1; Isa. xv. 2.

NOTES ON CHAP. XLI.

Verse 1. Now—in the seventh month] Answering to the first new moon in our month of October.

There they did eat bread together] This was the same as making a solemn covenant; for he who ate bread with another was ever reputed a friend.

Verse 2. Smote Gedaliah] See the preceding chapter, ver. 14.

Verse 5. Having their beards shaven] All these offerings and incense in their hand, to bring them to [d] the house of the LORD.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

6 And Ishmael the son of Nethaniah went forth from Mizpah to meet them, [e] weeping all along as he went: and it came to pass, as he met them, he said unto them, Come to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam.

7 And it was so, when they came into the midst of the city, that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah slew them, and [f] cast them into the midst of the pit, he, and the men that were with him.

8 But ten men were found among them that said unto Ishmael, Slay us not: for we have treasures in the field, of wheat, and of barley, and of oil, and of honey. So he forbare, and slew them not among their brethren.

9 Now the pit wherein Ishmael had cast all the dead bodies of the men, whom he had slain [g] because [h] of Gedaliah, was it [i] which Asa the king had made for fear of Baasha king of Israel: and Ishmael the son of Nethaniah filled it with them that were slain.

10 Then Ishmael carried away captive all the residue of the people that were in Mizpah, [k] even the king's daughters, and all the people that remained in Mizpah, [l] whom Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard had committed to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam: and Ishmael the son of Nethaniah carried them away captive, and departed to go over to [m] the Ammonites.

11 But when Johanan the son of Kareah, and all [n] the captains of the forces that were with him, heard of all the evil that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah had done,

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

12 Then they took all the men, and went to fight with Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and found him by [o] the great waters that are in Gibeon.

13 Now it came to pass that when all the people which were with Ishmael saw Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, then they were glad.

14 So all the people that Ishmael had carried away captive from Mizpah cast about and returned, and went unto Johanan the son of Kareah.

15 But Ishmael the son of Nethaniah escaped from Johanan with eight men, and went to the Ammonites.

16 Then took Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, all the remnant of the people whom he had recovered from Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, from Mizpah, after that he had slain Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, even mighty men of war, and the women, and the children, and the eunuchs, whom he had brought again from Gibeon:

17 And they departed, and dwelt in the habitation of [p] Chimham, which is by Beth-lehem, to go to enter into Egypt, 18 Because of the Chaldeans: for they were afraid of them, because Ishmael the son of Nethaniah had slain Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, [q] whom the king of Babylon made governor in the land.

[d] See 2 Kings xxv. 9; 1 Sam. i. 7.——[e] Heb. in going and weeping.——[f] So 1 Mac. vii. 19.——[g] Or, near Gedaliah.——[h] Heb. by the hand, or by the side of Gedaliah.

[i] 1 Kings xv. 22; 2 Chron. xvi. 6.——[k] Chap. xliii. 6.——[l] Chap. xl. 7.——[m] Chap. xl. 14.——[n] Chap. xl. 7, 8, 13.——[o] 2 Sam. ii. 13. [p] 2 Sam. xix. 37, 38.——[q] Chap. xl. 5.

were signs of deep mourning, probably on account of the destruction of the city.

Verse 6. Weeping all along as he went] This felonious hypocrite pretended that he also was deeply afflicted, and wished to bear them company in their sorrow.

Come to Gedaliah] He will appoint you vineyards and fields.

Verse 7. Slew them] He kept the murder of Gedaliah secret, and no doubt had a band of his assassins lodged in Mizpah; and he decoyed these fourscore men thither that he might have strength to slay them. He kept ten alive because they told him they had treasures hidden in a field, which they would show him. Whether he kept his word with them is not recorded. He could do nothing good or great; and it is likely that, when he had possessed himself of those treasures, he served them as he had served their companions. Grain is preserved to the present day in subterranean pits, called mattamores, in different parts of the east.

Verse 9. Now the pit—was it which Asa the king had made for fear of Baasha] See 1 Kings xv. 22. Asa made this cistern as a reservoir for water for the supply of the place; for he built and fortified Mizpah at the time that he was at war with Baasha, king of Israel.

Verse 10. Carried away captive] He took all these that he might sell them for slaves among the Ammonites.

Verse 14. Went unto Johanan] They were weary of the tyranny of Ishmael, and were glad of an opportunity to abandon him.

Verse 16. The women,—children, and the eunuchs] These were all, most probably, persons who belonged to the palace and harem of Zedekiah: some of them his own concubines, and their children.

Verse 17. Dwelt in the habitation of Chimham] The estate that David gave Chimham, the son of Barzillai. See 2 Sam. xix. 37, &c. He took this merely as a resting-place; as he designed to carry all into Egypt, fearing the Chaldeans, who would endeavour to revenge the death of Gedaliah.

CHAPTER XLII

Johanan and the remnant of the people desire Jeremiah to ask counsel of God what they should do, 1–3. The prophet assures them of safety in Judea, but destruction in Egypt, 4–18; and reproves their hypocrisy in asking counsel with which they had no intention to comply, 19–22.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

THEN all the captains of the forces, [a] and Johanan the son of Kareah, and Jezaniah the son of Hoshaiah, and all the people, from the least even unto the greatest, came near,

2 And said unto Jeremiah the prophet, [b] Let, we beseech thee, our supplication be accepted before thee, and [c] pray for us unto the LORD thy God, even for all this remnant; (for we are left but [d] a few of many, as thine eyes do behold us:)

3 That the LORD thy God may show us [e] the way wherein we may walk, and the thing that we may do.

4 Then Jeremiah the prophet said unto them, I have heard you; behold, I will pray unto the LORD your God according to your words; and it shall come to pass, that [f] whatsoever thing the LORD shall answer you, I will declare it unto you; I will [g] keep nothing back from you.

5 Then they said to Jeremiah, [h] The LORD be a true and faithful Witness between us, if we do not even according to all things for the which the LORD thy God shall send thee to us.

6 Whether it be good, or whether it be evil, we will obey the voice of the LORD our God, to whom we send thee; [i] that it may be well with us, when we obey the voice of the LORD our God.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

7 And it came to pass after ten days, that the word of the LORD came unto Jeremiah.

8 Then called he Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces which were with him, and all the people from the least even to the greatest,

9 And said unto them, Thus saith the LORD, the God of Israel, unto whom ye sent me to present your supplication before him;

10 If ye will still abide in this land, then [k] will I build you, and not pull you down; and I will plant you, and not pluck you up: for [l] I repent me of the evil that I have done unto you.

11 Be not afraid of the king of Babylon, of whom ye are afraid; be not afraid of him, saith the LORD: [m] for I am with you to save you, and to deliver you from his hand.

12 And [n] I will show mercies unto you, that he may have mercy upon you, and cause you to return to your own land.

[a] Chap. xl. 8, 13; xli. 11.——[b] Or, Let our supplication fall before thee.——[c] 1 Sam. vii. 8; xii. 19; Isa. xxxvii. 4; James v. 16.——[d] Lev. xxvi. 22.——[e] Ezra viii. 21.——[f] 1 Kings xxii. 14.

[g] 1 Sam. iii. 18; Acts xx. 20.——[h] Gen. xxxi. 50.——[i] Deut. vi. 3; chap. vii. 23.——[k] Chap. xxiv. 6; xxxi. 28; xxxiii. 7.——[l] Deut. xxxii. 36; chap. xviii. 8.——[m] Isa. xliii. 5; Rom. viii. 31.——[n] Psa. cvi. 45, 46.

NOTES ON CHAP. XLII.

Verse 1. The captains of the forces] The different leaders of the small bands or companies, collected from different parts of the land. The principal are those here named.

Verse 3. That the Lord thy God may show us] They all thought there was no safety in Jerusalem or in Judea, and therefore determined to leave the land: but they did not know which might be the safest direction to take; for though they inclined to Egypt, yet they wished to know the mind of God on that point.

Verse 5. The Lord be a true and faithful Witness] The Lord is such; and as ye have bound yourselves to obey his voice, he will register the covenant, and bless or curse according as ye shall conduct yourselves in this matter.

Verse 7. After ten days] All this time he was waiting upon God; for it is evident the prophets could not prophesy when they pleased, any more than the disciples of our Lord could work miracles when they wished. The gift of prophecy and the gift of miracles were both dependent on the will of the Most High, and each of them was given only for the moment; and when the necessity was over, the influence ceased.

Verse 10. For I repent me of the evil] The meaning is, As I have punished you only because you continued to be rebellious, I will arrest this punishment as soon as you become obedient to my word. You need not fear the king of Babylon if you have me for your helper; and I will so show mercy to you that he shall see it, and cease from afflicting you, as he shall see that I am on your side.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

13 But if [o] ye say, We will not dwell in this land, neither obey the voice of the LORD your God,

14 Saying, No; but we will go into the land of Egypt, where we shall see no war, nor hear the sound of the trumpet, nor have hunger of bread; and there will we dwell:

15 And now therefore hear the word of the LORD, ye remnant of Judah, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; If ye [p] wholly set [q] your faces to enter into Egypt, and go to sojourn there;

16 Then it shall come to pass, that the sword, [r] which ye feared, shall overtake you there in the land of Egypt, and the famine, whereof ye were afraid, [s] shall follow close after you there in Egypt; and there ye shall die.

17 [t] So shall it be with all the men that set their faces to go into Egypt to sojourn there; they shall die [u] by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence: and [v] none of them shall remain or escape from the evil that I will bring upon them.

18 For thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; As mine anger and my fury hath been [w] poured forth upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem; so shall my fury be poured forth upon you, when ye shall enter into Egypt: and [x] ye shall be an execration, and an astonishment, and a curse, and a reproach; and ye shall see this place no more.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

19 The LORD hath said concerning you, O ye remnant of Judah; [y] Go ye not into Egypt: know certainly that I have [z] admonished you this day.

20 For [a] ye dissembled in your hearts, when ye sent me unto the LORD your God, saying, [b] Pray for us unto the LORD our God: and according unto all that the LORD our God shall say, so declare unto us, and we will do it.

21 And now I have this day declared it to you; but ye have not obeyed the voice of the LORD your God, nor any thing for the which he hath sent me unto you.

22 Now therefore know certainly that [c] ye shall die by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence, in the place whither ye desire [d] to go and to sojourn.

---

[o] Chap. xliv. 16.——[p] Deut. xvii. 16; chap. xliv. 12, 13, 14. [q] Luke ix. 51.——[r] Ezek. xi. 8.——[s] Heb. shall cleave after you. [t] Heb. So shall all the men be.——[u] Chap. xxiv. 10; ver. 22. [v] See chap. xliv. 14, 28.——[w] Chap. vii. 20.

[x] Chap. xviii. 16; xxiv. 9; xxvi. 6; xxix. 18, 22; xliv. 12; Zech. viii. 13.——[y] Deut. xvii. 16.——[z] Heb. testified against you. [a] Or, ye have used deceit against your souls.——[b] Ver. 2.——[c] Ver. 17; Ezek. vi. 11.——[d] Or, to go to sojourn.

Verse 15. If ye—set your faces to enter into Egypt, &c.] Every evil that ye dreaded by staying in your own land shall come upon you in Egypt.

Verse 16. The sword—and the famine—shall follow close after you] Shall be at your heels; shall overtake and destroy you; for there ye shall die.

Verse 19. Go ye not into Egypt] Why? Because God knew, such was their miserable propensity to idolatry, that they would there adopt the worship of the country, and serve idols.

Verse 20. For ye dissembled in your hearts] What a most miserable and incorrigible people! Ingratitude, hypocrisy, rebellion, and cruelty seem to have been enthroned in their hearts! And what are they still? Just what their fathers were, except in the mere article of idolatry; and that they do not practise because they are indifferent to their own religion and to that of all others. Examine their devotions and their lives, and see whether Charity herself can say they believe in the God of Abraham!

Verse 21. Ye have not obeyed the voice] Though ye have requested to have this particular revelation of the Divine will, and promised obedience, yet have ye not done one thing for which ye sent me to inquire of the Lord.

Verse 22. Now therefore know certainly] As ye have determined to disobey, God has determined to punish. Ye may now follow the full bent of your wicked devices, and I will follow the requisitions of my justice. Ye shall die by the sword, by the pestilence, and by the famine, in the place whither ye desire to go to sojourn. Thus was their doom sealed.

With such dispositions and with such rebellion of heart, it is strange that they should put themselves to any trouble to inquire of the Lord relative to their future operations. They did not intend to obey; but as a matter of curiosity they would inquire to hear what the prophet might say; and if according to their own inclination, they would obey.

CHAPTER XLIII.

The leading men, discrediting Jeremiah's prophecy, carry the people into Egypt, 1–7. Jeremiah, by a type, foretells the conquest of Egypt by Nebuchadnezzar, 8–13. This mode of conveying instruction by actions was very expressive, and frequently practised by the prophets. The image of Nebuchadnezzar arraying himself with Egypt, as a shepherd puts on his garment, is very noble. Egypt at this time contended with Babylon for the empire of the east; yet this mighty kingdom, when God appoints the revolution, shifts its owner with as much ease as a shepherd removes his tent or garment, which the new proprietor has only to spread over him. See ver. 12.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

AND it came to pass, that when Jeremiah had made an end of speaking unto all the people all the words of the LORD their God, for which the LORD their God had sent him to them, even all these words,

2 [a] Then spake Azariah the son of Hoshaiah, and Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the proud men, saying unto Jeremiah, Thou speakest falsely: the LORD our God hath not sent thee to say, Go not into Egypt to sojourn there:

3 But Baruch the son of Neriah setteth thee on against us, for to deliver us into the hand of the Chaldeans, that they might put us to death, and carry us away captives into Babylon.

4 So Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces, and all the people, obeyed not the voice of the LORD, to dwell in the land of Judah.

5 But Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces, took [b] all the remnant of Judah, that were returned from all nations, whither they had been driven to dwell in the land of Judah;

6 Even men, and women, and children, [c] and the king's daughters, [d] and every person that Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard had left with Gedaliah the son of Ahikam the son of Shaphan, and Jeremiah the prophet, and Baruch the son of Neriah.

A. M. 3416 B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci R. Roman., 29.

7 So they came into the land of Egypt: for they obeyed not the voice of the LORD: thus came they even to [e] Tahpanhes.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

8 Then came the word of the LORD unto Jeremiah in Tahpanhes, saying,

9 Take great stones in thine hand, and hide them in the clay in the brick-kiln, which is at the entry of Pharaoh's house in Tahpanhes, in the sight of the men of Judah;

10 And say unto them, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Behold, I will send and take Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon, [f] my servant, and will set his throne upon these stones that I have hid; and he shall spread his royal pavilion over them.

11 [g] And when he cometh, he shall smite the land of Egypt, and deliver [h] such as are for death to death; and such as are for captivity to captivity; and such as are for the sword to the sword.

12 And I will kindle a fire in the houses of [i] the gods of Egypt; and he shall burn them

[a] Ch. xlii. 1.——[b] Ch. xl. 11,12.——[c] Ch. xli. 10.——[d] Ch. xxxix. 10; xl. 7.——[e] Ch. ii. 16; xliv. 1, called Hanes; Isa. xxx. 4.

[f] Chap. xxv. 9; xxvii. 6; see Ezek. xxix. 18, 20.——[g] Chap. xliv. 13; xlvi. 13.——[h] Chap. xv. 2; Zech. xi. 9.——[i] Chap. xlvi. 25.

NOTES ON CHAP. XLIII.

Verse 2. Thou speakest falsely] They had no other colour for their rebellion than flatly to deny that God had spoken what the prophet related.

Verse 6. Men, and women, and children, and the king's daughters] See the note on chap. xli. 10. It is truly surprising that the Chaldeans should have left behind any of the royal family of Judah! But, 1. Perhaps they knew not there were any. 2. If they did know, they might think, being children of concubines, they could not inherit. Or, 3. That being females, they were not eligible. And they had taken care to seize all Zedekiah's sons, and slay them before his eyes.

Verse 7. Came they even to Tahpanhes] This city was called Daphne by the Greeks, and was situated at the extremity of Lower Egypt, near to Heliopolis. It was called Daphne Pelusiaca. They halted at this place, most probably for the purpose of obtaining the king's permission to penetrate farther into Egypt. It was at this place that, according to St. Jerome, tradition says the faithful Jeremiah was stoned to death by these rebellious wretches; for whose welfare he had watched, prayed, gone through many indignities, and suffered every kind of hardship. And now he sealed the truth of his Divine mission with his blood.

Verse 9. Take great stones] This discourse seems to have been delivered about a year after the destruction of Jerusalem. They pretended that they dared not stay in Judea for fear of the Chaldeans. The prophet here assures them that Nebuchadnezzar shall come to Egypt, extend his conquests in that kingdom, and place his tent over the very place where these stones were laid up, and destroy them. How these prophecies were fulfilled, see at the end of chap. xliv.

Verse 11. Such as are for death to death] See the note on chap. xv. 2.

Verse 12. He shall burn them, and carry them away captives] Some of these gods, such as were of wood, he will burn; those of metal he will carry away. Some of them were of gold. See below.

Shall array himself with the land of Egypt] Shall take all its wealth, and all its grandeur; shall take all its spoils.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 30.

and carry them away captives: and he shall array himself with the land of Egypt, as a shepherd putteth on his garment; and he shall go forth from thence in peace.

13 He shall break also the [k] images of [l] Bethshemesh, that is in the land of Egypt; and the houses of the gods of the Egyptians shall he burn with fire.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 30.

[k] Heb. statues, or standing images.

[l] Or, the house of the sun.

As a shepherd putteth on his garment] With as much ease, and with as little opposition; and with as full a confidence that it is now his own.

He shall go forth from thence in peace.] He shall suffer no interruption, nor endure any disaster in his return from his Egyptian expedition. See the proof of all this in the notes at the end of chap. xliv.

Verse 13. He shall break also the images of Beth-shemesh] בית שמש beith shemesh is, literally, the house or temple of the sun; which was worshipped here, and whose images are said to have been of solid gold. These Nebuchadnezzar was to break and carry away, and the houses of the gods—all the temples of Egypt, he was to burn with fire. Beth-shemesh is the same as Heliopolis.

CHAPTER XLIV.

Jeremiah reproves the Jews in Egypt for continuing in idolatry after the exemplary judgments inflicted by God on their nation for that sin, 1–14; and, upon their refusing to reform, denounces destruction to them, and to that kingdom wherein they sought protection, 15–30.

A. M. cir. 3433. B. C. cir. 571. Ol. cir. LII. 2. Servii Tullii, R. Roman, cir. annum 8.

THE word that came to Jeremiah concerning all the Jews which dwell in the land of Egypt, which dwell at [a] Migdol, and at [b] Tahpanhes, and at [c] Noph, and in the country of Pathros, saying,

2 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Ye have seen all the evil that I have brought upon Jerusalem, and upon all the cities of Judah; and, behold, this day they are [d] a desolation, and no man dwelleth therein,

3 Because of their wickedness which they have committed to provoke me to anger, in that they went [e] to burn incense, and to [f] serve other gods, whom they knew not, neither they, ye, nor your fathers.

A. M. cir. 3433. B. C. cir. 571. Ol. cir. LII. 2. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 8.

4 Howbeit [g] I sent unto you all my servants the prophets, rising early and sending them, saying, O, do not this abominable thing that I hate.

5 But they hearkened not, nor inclined their ear to turn from their wickedness, to burn no incense unto other gods.

6 Wherefore [h] my fury and mine anger was poured forth, and was kindled in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem; and they are wasted and desolate, as at this day.

[a] Exod. xiv. 2; chap. xlvi. 14.——[b] Chap. xliii. 7.——[c] Isa. xix. 13.——[d] Chap. ix. 11; xxxiv. 22.——[e] Chap. xix. 4.

[f] Deut. xiii. 6; xxxii. 17.——[g] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 15; chap. vii. 25; xxv. 4; xxvi. 5; xxix. 19.——[h] Chap. xlii. 18.

NOTES ON CHAP. XLIV.

Verse 1. The word that came to Jeremiah concerning all the Jews] Dahler supposes this discourse to have been delivered in the seventeenth or eighteenth year after the taking of Jerusalem.

Which dwell at Migdol] A city of Lower Egypt, not far from Pelusium.

Tahpanhes] Daphne Pelusiaca, the place to which the emigrant Jews first went.

Noph] נפם Maphes, Targum. Memphis, a celebrated city of Middle Egypt, and the capital of its district.

The country of Pathros] A district of Upper Egypt, known by the name of the Thebais. See Bochart, Lib. Phaleg, lib. iv., c. 22. Thus we find that the Jews were scattered over the principal parts of Egypt.

Verse 2. No man dwelleth therein] The desolation of the land of Judea must have been exceedingly great when this, in almost any sense, could be spoken of it.

Verse 4. O, do not this abominable thing] A strong specimen of affectionate entreaty. One of the finest figures of poetry, when judiciously managed, the anthropopathia, the ascribing human passions to God, is often used by this prophet: so God is said to grieve, to mourn, to have his bowels moved with compassion, to repent, to be angry, &c. Here he is represented as tenderly expostulating: O, do not; or, I entreat you, do not that abominable thing which I hate. 1. Do it not: your God commands. 2. O, do it not: your Father entreats. 3. It is an abominable thing, and should not be done. 4. I hate it, and on that account ye should abstain from it.

Verse 5. But they hearkened not] 1. They disregarded the authority of their God. 2. They were not moved by the entreaties of their most affectionate Father. 3. In abominations they delighted. And, 4.

A. M. cir. 3433. B. C. cir. 571. Ol. cir. LII. 2. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 8.

7 Therefore now thus saith the LORD, the God of hosts, the God of Israel; Wherefore commit ye this great evil [i] against your souls, to cut off from you man and woman, child and suckling, [k] out of Judah, to leave you none to remain;

8 In that ye [l] provoke me unto wrath with the works of your hands, burning incense unto other gods in the land of Egypt, whither ye be gone to dwell, that ye might cut yourselves off, and that ye might be [m] a curse and a reproach among all the nations of the earth?

9 Have ye forgotten the [n] wickedness of your fathers, and the wickedness of the kings of Judah, and the wickedness of their wives, and your own wickedness, and the wickedness of your wives, which they have committed in the land of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem?

10 They are not [o] humbled even unto this day, neither have they [p] feared, nor walked in my law, nor in my statutes, that I set before you and before your fathers.

11 Therefore thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Behold [q] I will set my face against you for evil, and to cut off all Judah.

12 And I will take the remnant of Judah, that have set their faces to go into the land of Egypt to sojourn there, and [r] they shall all be consumed, and fall in the land of Egypt; they shall even be consumed by the sword and by the famine: they shall die, from the least even unto the greatest, by the sword and by the famine: and [s] they shall be an execration, and an astonishment, and a curse, and a reproach.

13 [t] For I will punish them that dwell in the land of Egypt, as I have punished Jerusalem, by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence:

A. M. cir. 3433 B. C. cir. 571. Ol. cir. LII. 2. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 8.

14 So that none of the remnant of Judah, which are gone into the land of Egypt to sojourn there, shall escape or remain, that they should return into the land of Judah, to the which they [u] have a desire to return to dwell there: for [v] none shall return but such as shall escape.

15 Then all the men which knew that their wives had burned incense unto other gods, and all the women that stood by, a great multitude, even all the people that dwelt in the land of Egypt, in Pathros, answered Jeremiah, saying,

16 As for the word that thou hast spoken unto us in the name of the LORD, [w] we will not hearken unto thee.

17 But we will certainly do [x] whatsoever thing goeth forth out of our own mouth, to burn incense unto the [y] queen [z] of heaven, and to pour out drink-offerings unto her, as we have done, we, and our fathers, our kings, and our princes, in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem: for then had we plenty of [a] victuals, and were well, and saw no evil.

18 But since we left off to burn incense to the queen of heaven, and to pour out drink-offerings unto her, we have wanted all things, and have been consumed by the sword and by the famine.

19 [b] And when we burned incense to the queen of heaven, and poured out drink-offerings unto her, did we make her cakes to worship

[i] Num. xvi. 38; chap. vii. 19.——[k] Heb. out of the midst of Judah. [l] Chap. xxv. 6, 7.——[m] Chap. xlii. 18; ver. 12.——[n] Heb. wickedness, or punishments, &c.——[o] Heb. contrite; Psa. li. 17. [p] Prov. xxviii. 14.——[q] Lev. xvii. 10; xx. 5, 6; chap. xxi. 10; Amos ix. 4.

[r] Chap. xlii. 15, 16, 17, 22.——[s] Chap. xlii. 18.——[t] Chap. xliii. 11.——[u] Heb. lift up their soul.——[v] Ver. 28.——[w] So chap. vi. 16. [x] Num. xxx. 12; Deut. xxiii. 23; Judg. xi. 36; see ver. 25. [y] Or, frame of heaven.——[z] Chap. vii. 18.——[a] Heb. bread. [b] Chap. vii. 18.

They loved that which God hated; and, apparently, because he hated it.

Verse 7. This great evil against your souls] Will not self-interest weigh with you? See what ruin your conduct has brought upon your country. Your fathers sinned as you are doing; and where are they now? Either destroyed, or in captivity. And you are now taking the same way to your own destruction.

Verse 9. Have ye forgotten the wickedness of your fathers] It seems that the women were principal agents in idolatrous practices; for the queens—the wives, of rulers and of common people, burnt incense to the queen of heaven, (the moon,) ver. 17, and poured out drink-offerings to her Verse 15. Then all the men—and all the women] We have not seen the women in determined rebellion before. Here they make a common cause with their idolatrous husbands.

Verse 19. And when we burned incense to the queen of heaven] The MOON seems to have been called מלכת melecheth, as the SUN was called מלך molech. The Hindoos pour out water to the sun thrice a day; and to the moon whenever they worship her.

The idolatrous worship of these people was a sort of imitation of the worship of the true God; only sacrifice was not common in it. The factious women here tell us in what it consisted. 1. They burnt incense to the moon, and perhaps to the sun and the her, and pour out drink-offerings unto her, without our [c] men?

A. M. cir. 3433. B. C. cir. 571. Ol. cir. LII. 2. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum. 8.

20 Then Jeremiah said unto all the people, to the men, and to the women, and to all the people which had given him that answer, saying,

21 The incense that ye burned in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, ye, and your fathers, your kings, and your princes, and the people of the land, did not the LORD remember them, and came it not into his mind?

22 So that the LORD could no longer bear, because of the evil of your doings and because of the abominations which ye have committed; therefore is your land [d] a desolation, and an astonishment, and a curse, without an inhabitant, [e] as at this day.

23 Because ye have burned incense, and because ye have sinned against the LORD, and have not obeyed the voice of the LORD, nor walked in his law, nor in his statutes, nor in his testimonies; [f] therefore this evil is happened unto you, as at this day.

24 Moreover Jeremiah said unto all the people, and to all the women, Hear the word of the LORD, all Judah [g] that are in the land of Egypt:

25 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, saying; [h] Ye and your wives have both spoken with your mouths, and fulfilled with your hand, saying, We will surely perform our vows that we have vowed, to burn incense to the queen of heaven, and to pour out drink-offerings unto her: ye will surely accomplish your vows, and surely perform your vows.

A. M. cir. 3433. B. C. cir. 571. Ol. cir. LII. 2. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 8.

26 Therefore hear ye the word of the LORD, all Judah that dwell in the land of Egypt; Behold, [i] I have sworn by my great name, saith the LORD, that [k] my name shall no more be named in the mouth of any man of Judah in all the land of Egypt, saying, The Lord GOD liveth.

27 [l] Behold, I will watch over them for evil, and not for good; and all the men of Judah that are in the land of Egypt [m] shall be consumed by the sword and by the famine, until there be an end of them.

28 Yet [n] a small number that escape the sword shall return out of the land of Egypt into the land of Judah, and all the remnant of Judah, that are gone into the land of Egypt to sojourn there, shall know whose [o] words shall stand, [p] mine or theirs.

29 And this shall be a sign unto you, saith the LORD, that I will punish you in this place, that ye may know that my words shall [q] surely stand against you for evil:

30 Thus saith the LORD; Behold, [r] I will give Pharaoh-hophra king of Egypt into the hand of his enemies, and into the hand of them that seek his life; as I gave [s] Zedekiah king of Judah into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, his enemy, and that sought his life.

[c] Or, husbands.——[d] Chap. xxv. 11, 18, 38.——[e] Ver. 6. [f] Dan. ix. 11, 12.——[g] Chap. xliii. 7; ver. 15.——[h] Ver. 15, &c. [i] Gen. xxii. 16.——[k] Ezek. xx. 39.——[l] Chap. i. 10; xxxi. 28; Ezek. vii. 6.

[m] Ver. 12.——[n] Ver. 14; Isa. xxvii. 13.——[o] Ver. 17, 25, 26.——[p] Heb. from me, or them.——[q] Psa. xxxiii. 11.——[r] Chap. xlvi. 25, 26; Ezek. xxix. 3, &c.; xxx. 21, &c.——[s] Chap. xxxix. 5.

planets. 2. They poured out libations to her. 3. They made and consecrated cakes to her. All these were prescribed in the worship of the true GOD. See, among others, Exod. xxix. 23, &c.; Lev. ii. 4; xxiii. 16; and Num. vi. 15. And the women vindicate their conduct by asserting that they did all this by the consent of their husbands: "Did we worship her without our men?"

Verse 22. Therefore is your land a desolation] I grant that ye and your husbands have joined together in these abominations; and what is the consequence? "The Lord could no longer bear because of your evil doings; and therefore is your land a desolation, and an astonishment, and a curse, without an inhabitant, this day."

Verse 30. Behold I will give Pharaoh-hophra] That is, Pharaoh Apries. How this and the prophecies in the preceding chapter were fulfilled, we learn from ancient historians. The sum of such information is this: the subjects of Pharaoh Apries rebelling, he sent Amasis, one of his generals, to reduce them to their duty. But no sooner had Amasis begun to make his speech, than they fixed a helmet on his head, and proclaimed him king. Amasis accepted the title, and confirmed the Egyptians in their revolt; and the greater part of the nation declaring for him, Apries was obliged to retire into Upper Egypt, and the country being thus weakened by intestine war, was attacked and easily overcome by Nebuchadnezzar, who on quitting it left Amasis his viceroy. After Nebuchadnezzar's departure, Apries marched against Amasis; but, being defeated at Memphis, was taken prisoner, carried to Sais, and was strangled in his own palace, thus verifying this prophecy. See Herodotus in Euterpe.

Thus Nebuchadnezzar made an easy conquest of the land. He conquered it as easily as "a shepherd puts on his cloak: he went thence in peace," having clothed himself with its spoils; and left all quiet under a viceroy of his own choosing. The rebellion of Pharaoh's subjects was the "fire that God kindled in Egypt," chap. xliii. 12. And thus was he "delivered into the hands of his enemies," his revolted people; and "into the hand of him who sought his life," i. e., Amasis his general. And thus the whole prophecy was literally fulfilled.

CHAPTER XLV.

This chapter is evidently connected with the subject treated of in the thirty-sixth. Baruch, who had written the prophecies of Jeremiah, and read them publicly in the temple, and afterwards to many of the princes, is in great affliction because of the awful judgments with which the land of Judah was about to be visited; and also on account of the imminent danger to which his own life was exposed, in publishing such unwelcome tidings, 1–3. To remove Baruch's fear with respect to this latter circumstance, the prophet assures him that though the total destruction of Judea was determined because of the great wickedness of the inhabitants, yet his life should be preserved amidst the general desolation, 4, 5.

A. M. cir. 3397. B. C. cir. 607. Ol. XLIII. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 10.

THE [a] word that Jeremiah the prophet spake unto Baruch the son of Neriah, when he had written these words in a book at the mouth of Jeremiah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim [b] the son of Josiah king of Judah, saying,

2 Thus saith the LORD, the God of Israel, unto thee, O Baruch,

3 Thou didst say, Wo is me now! for the LORD hath added grief to my sorrow; I fainted in my sighing, and I find no rest.

4 Thus shalt thou say unto him, The LORD saith thus; Behold, [c] that which I have built will I break down, and that which I have planted I will pluck up, even this whole land.

A. M. cir. 3397. B. C. cir. 607. Ol. XLIII. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 10.

5 And seekest thou great things for thyself? seek them not: for, behold, [d] I will bring evil upon all flesh, saith the LORD: but thy life will I give unto thee [e] for a prey in all places whither thou goest.

[a] Chap. xxxvi. 1, 4, 32.——[b] 2 Kings xxiii. 34.——[c] Isa. v. 5.

[d] Chap. xxv. 26.——[e] Chap. xxi. 9; xxxviii. 2; xxxix. 18.

NOTES ON CHAP. XLV.

Verse 1. The word that Jeremiah—spake unto Baruch] This is another instance of shameless transposition. This discourse was delivered in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, several years before Jerusalem was taken by the Chaldeans. It is a simple appendage to chap. xxxvi., and there it should have been inserted.

Verse 3. Thou didst say, Wo is me now!] All that were the enemies of Jeremiah became his enemies too; and he needed these promises of support.

The Lord hath added grief to my sorrow] He had mourned for the desolations that were coming on his country, and now he mourns for the dangers to which he feels his own life exposed; for we find, from chap. xxxvi. 26, that the king had given commandment to take both Baruch and Jeremiah, in order that they might be put to death at the instance of his nobles.

Verse 4. Behold, that which I have built] I most certainly will fulfil all those threatenings contained in the roll thou hast written; for I will destroy this whole land.

Verse 5. And seekest thou great things for thyself?] Nothing better can be expected of this people: thy hopes in reference to them are vain. Expect no national amendment, till national judgments have taker place. And as for any benefit to thyself, think it sufficient that God has determined to preserve thy life amidst all these dangers.

But thy life will I give unto thee for a prey] This is a proverbial expression. We have met with it before, chap. xxi. 9, xxxviii. 2, xxxix. 18; and it appears to have this meaning. As a prey or spoil is that which is gained from a vanquished enemy, so it is preserved with pleasure as the proof and reward of a man's own valour. So Baruch's life should be doubly precious unto him, not only on account of the dangers through which God had caused him to pass safely, but also on account of those services he had been enabled to render, the consolations he had received, and the continual and very evident interposition of God in his behalf. All these would be dearer to him than the spoils of a vanquished foe to the hero who had overcome in battle.

Spoil may signify unlooked-for gain. The preservation of his life, in such circumstances, must be more than he could reasonably expect; but his life should be safe, and he should have it as a spoil, whithersoever he should go. This assurance must have quieted all his fears.

CHAPTER XLVI.

The difference between the preceding and the subsequent prophecies in point of composition is very remarkable; the last excelling much in majesty and elegance. This chapter (of which the first verse forms a general title to this and the five chapters following) contains two distinct prophecies relating to Egypt.

The first was delivered previous to an engagement between Pharaoh-necho, king of Egypt, and Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon; in which the Egyptians were routed in Carchemish with great slaughter, as here predicted. The prophet sees the mighty preparations; but they are all declared to be of no avail, as God had decreed their fall, 1–6. The king of Egypt, however, is represented as marching with all the confidence of victory, like a river overflowing its banks, and threatening all around with its inundation, 7, 8. But this immense armament of Pharaoh-necho, consisting of various nations, shall, by a righteous judgment of God, receive such a signal overthrow near the river Euphrates, that the political consequence of Egypt shall be thereby irretrievably ruined, and its remaining power became contemptible in the sight of the nations, 9–12. The other prophecy, beginning at the thirteenth verse, relates to the memorable overthrow of the Egyptians by Nebuchadnezzar, subsequent to his siege of Tyre, in the sixteenth year after the destruction of Jerusalem, 13–26. The promise, in the conclusion of the chapter, of preservation to the Jews, (who have for many ages continued a distinct people, when the various nations of antiquity who oppressed them, or with whom they had any intercourse, have long ago ceased to have any separate and visible existence,) has been most remarkably fulfilled; and is a very signal act of providence, and a pledge of the restoration of Israel to the Divine favour, when the time of the Gentiles shall be fulfilled, 27, 28.

A. M. cir. 3397. B. C. cir. 607. Ol. XLIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 10.

THE word of the LORD which came to Jeremiah the prophet against [a] the Gentiles;

2 Against Egypt, [b] against the army of Pharaoh-necho king of Egypt, which was by the river Euphrates in Carchemish, which Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon smote in the fourth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah.

3 [c] Order ye the buckler and shield, and draw near to battle.

4 Harness the horses; and get up, ye horsemen, and stand forth with your helmets; furbish the spears, and put on the brigandines.

5 Wherefore have I seen them dismayed and turned away back? and their mighty ones are [d] beaten down, and are [e] fled apace, and look not back: for [f] fear was round about, saith the LORD.

A. M. cir. 3397. B. C. cir. 607. Ol. XLIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 10.

6 Let not the swift flee away, nor the mighty man escape; they shall [g] stumble, and fall toward the north by the river Euphrates.

7 Who is this that cometh up [h] as a flood, whose waters are moved as the rivers?

8 Egypt riseth up like a flood, and his waters are moved like the rivers; and he saith, I will go up, and will cover the earth; I will destroy the city and the inhabitants thereof.

9 Come up, ye horses; and rage, ye chariots;

[a] Chap. xxv. 15, &c. — [b] 2 Kings xxiii. 29; 2 Chron. xxxv. 20. [c] So chap. li. 11, 12; Nah. ii. 1; iii. 14. — [d] Heb. broken in pieces. [e] Heb. fled a flight. — [f] Chap. vi. 25; xlix. 29. — [g] Dan. xi. 19. [h] See Isa. viii. 7, 8; chap. xlvii. 2; Dan. xi. 22.

NOTES ON CHAP. XLVI.

Verse 1. The word of the Lord—against the Gentiles] This is a general title to the following collection of prophecies, written concerning different nations, which had less or more connexion with the Jews, either as enemies, neighbours, or allies.

They were not written at the same time; and though some of them bear dates, yet it would be difficult to give them any chronological arrangement. Dahler's mode of ascertaining the times of their delivery may be seen in the table in the introduction.

Verse 2. Pharaoh-necho] This was the person who defeated the army of Josiah, in which engagement Josiah received a mortal wound, of which he died, greatly regretted, soon after at Megidda. After this victory, he defeated the Babylonians, and took Carchemish: and, having fortified it, returned to his own country. Nabopolassar sent his son Nebuchadnezzar with an army against him, defeated him with immense slaughter near the river Euphrates, retook Carchemish, and subdued all the revolted provinces, according to the following prophecies.

Verse 3. Order ye the buckler] This is the call to the general armament of the people against the Chaldeans.

Verse 4. Furbish the spears] Cleanse, brighten, and sharpen them: from the Franco-Gallic fourbir, to polish, brighten.

Brigondines.] A coat of mail, especially that which was made scale fashion; one plate overlapping the other, like the scales of fish.

Verse 5. Wherefore have I seen them dismayed] What! such a numerous, formidable, and well-appointed army panic-struck? So that they have turned back—fled apace, and looked not round; while their mighty ones—their generals and commanders, striving to rally them, are beaten down.

Verse 6. Let not the swift flee away] Even the swiftest shall not be able to escape.

They shall—fall toward the north] By the Euphrates, which was northward of Judea. Here the Egyptian army was routed with great slaughter.

Verse 7. Who is this that cometh up as a flood] The vast concourse of people is here represented as a river: for instance, the Jordan, suddenly swollen with the rains in harvest, rolling its waters along, and overflowing the whole country. A fine image to represent the incursions of vast armies carrying all before them. Such was the army of Pharaoh-necho in its march to Carchemish.

Verse 9. The Ethiopians] Heb. Cush, Phut, and the Ludim. This army was composed of many nations. Cush, which we translate Ethiopians, almost invariably means the Arabians; and here, those Arabs that bordered on Egypt near the Red Sea. Phut proand let the mighty men come forth; [i] the Ethiopians and [k] the Libyans, that handle the shield; and the Lydians, [l] that handle and bend the bow.

A. M. cir. 3397. B. C. cir. 607. Ol. XLIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 10.

10 For this is [m] the day of the Lord GOD of hosts, a day of vengeance, that he may avenge him of his adversaries: and [n] the sword shall devour, and it shall be satiate and made drunk with their blood: for the Lord GOD of hosts [o] hath a sacrifice in the north country by the river Euphrates.

11 [p] Go up into Gilead, and take balm, [q] O virgin, the daughter of Egypt: in vain shalt thou use many medicines; for [r] thou [s] shalt not be cured.

12 The nations have heard of thy shame, and thy cry hath filled the land: for the mighty man hath stumbled against the mighty, and they are fallen both together.

13 The word that the LORD spake to Jeremiah the prophet, how Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon should come and [t] smite the land of Egypt.

A. M. cir. 3398 B. C. cir. 606. Ol. XLIII. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 11.

14 Declare ye in Egypt, and publish in Migdol, and publish in Noph and in Tahpanhes: say ye, [u] Stand fast, and prepare thee; for [v] the sword shall devour round about thee.

15 Why are thy valiant men swept away? they stood not, because the LORD did drive them.

16 He [w] made many to fall, yea, [x] one fell upon another: and they said, Arise, and let us go again to our own people, and to the land of our nativity, from the oppressing sword.

17 They did cry there, Pharaoh king of Egypt is but a noise; he hath passed the time appointed.

18 As I live, saith the King, [y] whose name is the LORD of hosts, Surely as Tabor is among the mountains, and as Carmel by the sea, so shall he come.

19 O [z] thou daughter dwelling in Egypt, [a] furnish thyself [b] to go into captivity: for

[i] Heb. Cush.——[k] Heb. Put.——[l] Isa. lxvi. 19.——[m] Isa. xiii. 6; Joel i. 15; ii. 1.——[n] Deut. xxxii. 42; Isa. xxxiv. 6.——[o] Isa. xxxiv. 6; Zeph. i. 7; see Ezek. xxxix. 17.——[p] Chap. viii. 22; li. 8.——[q] Isa. xlvii. 1.——[r] Heb. no cure shall be unto thee. [s] Ezek. xxx. 21.

[t] Isa. xix. 1; chap. xliii. 10, 11; Ezek. xxix., xxx., xxxii. [u] Ver. 3, 4.——[v] Ver. 10.——[w] Heb. multiplied the faller.——[x] Lev. xxvi. 37.——[y] Isa. xlvii. 4; xlviii. 2; chap. xlviii. 15.——[z] See chap. xlviii. 18.——[a] Heb. make thee instruments of captivity. [b] Isa. xx. 4.

bably means the Libyans; for Phut settled in Libya, according to Josephus. Phut and Cush were two of the sons of Ham, and brothers to Mitsraim, the father of the Egyptians, Gen. x. 6; and the Ludim were descended from Mitsraim; see Gen. x. 13. Bochart contends that the Ludim were Ethiopians, and that they were famous for the use of the bow. Phaleg, lib. iv. 26.

Verse 10. For this is the day of the Lord God of hosts] The prophet represents this as a mighty sacrifice, where innumerable victims were slain.

Verse 11. Go up into Gilead, and take balm] An irony. Egypt is so completely enfeebled by this overthrow, that her political wound is utterly incurable. This figure is used with the more propriety here, as the Egyptians have been celebrated from the remotest antiquity for their knowledge of medicine.

Verse 12. The nations have heard of thy shame] Of thy disgrace, by this prodigious slaughter of thy troops.

Verse 13. How Nebuchadrezzar—should come and smite the land of Egypt.] See on chap. xliv. This was after Amasis had driven Pharaoh-necho into Upper Egypt. See chap. xliv. 30.

Verse 14. Migdol] Magdolum, a city of Lower Egypt. Noph, Memphis. Tahpanhes, Daphne. See before, chap. xliv. 1.

Round about thee.] The Phœnicians, Philistines, Ammonites, Moabites, and Edomites, all prostrated by the arms of the Chaldeans.

Verse 15. They stood not, because the Lord did drive them.] The Lord panic-struck them, and drove them back.

Verse 16. One fell upon another] In their terror and confusion ranks fell on ranks, and overturned each other.

Let us go again to our own people] Let us flee to our own country with all possible speed. These were the auxiliaries.

Verse 17. They did cry there] Dr. Blayney translates this cry thus:—

——— "O Pharaoh, king of Egypt,
A tumult hath frustrated the appointed meeting."

These allies sent their excuse to Pharaoh, that the disasters they had met with had prevented them from joining him as they had intended.

Verse 18. As Tabor is among the mountains] This mountain is situated in the plain of Esdraelon in Galilee, on the confines of the tribes of Zebulun and Issachar, Josh. xix. 22. It stood by itself, separated from all the other mountains by deep valleys, and is the highest of the whole.

And as Carmel by the sea] Carmel is a mountain on the coast of the Mediterranean Sea, on the southern frontier of the tribe of Asher. Were the Egyptians as distinguished for valour and strength as the mountains Tabor and Carmel are for height among the other mountains in their vicinity, they should not be able to stand the shock of the Chaldean army.

Verse 19. Furnish thyself to go into captivity] The thing is unavoidable; prepare for this calamity.

A. M. cir. 3398. B. C. cir. 606. Ol. XLIII. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 11.

Noph shall be waste and desolate without an inhabitant.

20 Egypt is like a very fair [c] heifer, but destruction cometh; it cometh [d] out of the north.

21 Also her hired men are in the midst of her like [e] fatted bullocks; for they also are turned back, and are fled away together: they did not stand, because [f] the day of their calamity was come upon them, and the time of their visitation.

22 [g] The voice thereof shall go like a serpent; for they shall march with an army, and come against her with axes, as hewers of wood.

23 They shall [h] cut down her forest, saith the LORD, though it cannot be searched; because they are more than [i] the grasshoppers, and are innumerable.

24 The daughter of Egypt shall be confounded: she shall be delivered into the hand of [k] the people of the north.

25 The LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, saith; Behold, I will punish the [l] multitude [m] of [n] No, and Pharaoh, and Egypt, [o] with their gods, and their kings; even Pharaoh, and all them that trust in him:

A. M. cir. 3398. B. C. cir. 606. Ol. XLIII. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 11.

26 [p] And I will deliver them into the hand of those that seek their lives, and into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and into the hand of his servants: and [q] afterward it shall be inhabited, as in the days of old, saith the LORD.

27 [r] But fear not thou, O my servant Jacob, and be not dismayed, O Israel; for, behold, I will save thee from afar off, and thy seed from the land of their captivity; and Jacob shall return, and be in rest and at ease, and none shall make him afraid.

28 Fear thou not, O Jacob my servant, saith the LORD: for I am with thee; for I will make a full end of all the nations whither I have driven thee: but I will not make [s] a full end of thee, but correct thee in measure, yet will I [t] not leave thee wholly unpunished.

[c] So Hos. x. 11.——[d] Chap. i. 14; xlvii. 2; ver. 6, 10.——[e] Heb. bullocks of the stall.——[f] Psa. xxxvii. 13; chap. l. 27.——[g] See Isa. xxix. 4.——[h] Isa. x. 34.——[i] Judg. vi. 5.——[k] Chap. i. 15. [l] Or, nourisher.——[m] Heb. Amon.

[n] Ezek. xxx. 14, 15, 16; Nah. iii. 8.——[o] Chap. xliii. 12, 13; Ezek. xxx. 13.——[p] Chap. xliv. 30; Ezek. xxxii. 11.——[q] Ezek. xxix. 11, 13, 14.——[r] Isa. xli. 13, 14; xliii. 5; xliv. 2; chap. xxx. 10, 11.——[s] Chap. x. 24; xxx. 11.——[t] Or, not utterly cut thee off.

Verse 20. Egypt is like a very fair heifer] Fruitful and useful; but destruction cometh out of the north, from Chaldea. It may be that there is an allusion here to Isis, worshipped in Egypt under the form of a beautiful cow.

Verse 21. Are fled away together] Perhaps there is a reference here to the case of a cow stung with gnats. She runs hither and thither, not knowing where to go; so shall it be with this scattered people.

Verse 22. The voice—shall go like a serpent] See Isa. xxix. 4, and the note there.

Verse 23. They shall cut down her forest] Supposed to mean her cities, of which Egypt had no fewer than one thousand and twenty.

Verse 24. The hand of the people of the north.] The Chaldeans.

Verse 25. The multitude of No] אמון מנא Amon minno, the Amon of No, called by the Greeks Διοσπολις, or Jupiter's city. It was the famous Thebes, celebrated anciently for its hundred gates. Amon was the name by which the Egyptians called Jupiter, who had a famous temple at Thebes.

The word Pharaoh is twice repeated here; and Dr. Dahler thinks that one may design Pharaoh Hophrah, and the other Amasis, the new king.

Verse 26. Afterward it shall be inhabited] That is, within forty years, as Ezekiel had predicted, chap. xxix. 13.

Verse 27. Fear not—my servant Jacob] In the midst of wrath God remembers mercy. Though Judah shall be destroyed, Jerusalem taken, the temple burnt to the ground, and the people carried into captivity, yet the nation shall not be destroyed. A seed shall be preserved, out of which the nation shall revive.

Verse 28. I will make a full end of all the nations whither I have driven thee; but I will not make a full end of thee] The Jews still remain as a distinct people, while the Assyrians, Chaldeans, Egyptians, &c. are no more!

ON this subject, I cannot withhold from my readers the following very judicious remarks of Bp. Newton, in his Dissertations on the Prophecies.

"The preservation of the Jews through so many ages, and the total destruction of their enemies, are wonderful events; and are made still more wonderful by being signified beforehand by the spirit of prophecy, as particularly in the passage before us. Their preservation is really one of the most illustrious acts of Divine Providence. They are dispersed among all nations, yet not confounded with any. The drops of rain which fall, nay the great rivers which flow into the ocean, are soon mingled with and lost in that immense body of waters. And the same, in all human probability, would have been the fate of the Jews; they would have been mingled and lost in the common mass of mankind: but, on the contrary, they flow into all parts of the world, mix with all nations, and yet keep separate from all. They still live as a distinct people; and yet they nowhere live according to their own laws, nowhere elect their own magistrates, nowhere enjoy the full exercise of their religion. Their solemn feasts and sacrifices are limited to one certain place; and that hath been now for many ages in the hands of strangers and aliens, who will not suffer them to come thither. No people have continued unmixed so long as they have done; not only of those who have sent colonies into foreign countries, but even of those who have remained in their own country. The northern nations have come in swarms into the more southern parts of Europe: but where are they now to be discerned and distinguished? The Gauls went forth in great bodies to seek their fortune in foreign parts; but what traces or footsteps of them are now remaining any where? In France, who can separate the race of the ancient Gauls from the various other people who from time to time have settled there? In Spain, who can distinguish between the first possessors, the Spaniards, and the Goths and Moors, who conquered and kept possession of the country for some ages? In England, who can pretend to say certainly which families are derived from the ancient Britons, and which from the Romans, Saxons, Danes, and Normans? The most ancient and honourable pedigrees can be traced up only to a certain period; and beyond that there is nothing but conjecture and uncertainty, obscurity and ignorance. But the Jews can go up higher than any nation; they can even deduce their pedigree from the beginning of the world. They may not know from what particular tribe or family they are descended; but they know certainly that they all sprang from the stock of Abraham. And yet the contempt with which they have been treated, and the hardships they have undergone in almost all countries, should, one would think, have made them desirous to forget or renounce their original: but they profess it; they glory in it; and after so many wars, massacres, and persecutions, they still subsist; they are still very numerous. And what but a supernatural power could have preserved them in such a manner as no other nation upon earth has been preserved? Nor is the providence of God less remarkable in the destruction of their enemies, than in their own preservation. For, from the beginning, who have been the great enemies and oppressors of the Jewish nation, removed them from their own land, and compelled them into captivity and slavery? The Egyptians afflicted them much, and detained them in bondage several years. The Assyrians carried away captive the ten tribes of Israel; and the Babylonians, afterwards, the two remaining tribes of Judah and Benjamin. The Syro-Macedonians, especially Antiochus Epiphanes, cruelly persecuted them; and the Romans utterly dissolved the Jewish state, and dispersed the people so as that they have never been able to recover their city and country again. And where are now those great and famous monarchies, which in their turn subdued and oppressed the people of God? Are they not vanished as a dream; and not only their power, but their very names, lost in the earth? The Egyptians, Assyrians, and Babylonians were overthrown and entirely subjugated by the Persians; and the Persians, it is remarkable, were the restorers of the Jews as well as the destroyers of their enemies. The Syro-Macedonians were swallowed up by the Romans; and the Roman empire, great and powerful as it was, was broken into pieces by the incursions of the northern nations; while the Jews are subsisting as a distinct people at this day. And what a wonder of providence is it, that the vanquished should so many ages survive the victors; and the former be spread all over the world, while the latter are no more! Nay, not only nations have been punished for their cruelties to the Jews, but Divine vengeance has pursued even single persons who have been their persecutors and oppressors. The first-born of Pharaoh was destroyed; and he himself, with his host, drowned in the sea. Nebuchadnezzar was stricken with madness, and the crown was transferred from his family to strangers. Antiochus Epiphanes and Herod died in great agonies, with ulcers and vermin issuing from them. Flaccus, governor of Egypt, who barbarously plundered and oppressed the Jews of Alexandria, was afterwards banished and slain; and Caligula, who persecuted the Jews for refusing to do Divine honours to his statue, was murdered in the flower of his age, after a short and wicked reign. But where are now,—since they have absolutely rejected the Gospel, and been no longer the peculiar people of God,—where are now such visible manifestations of a Divine interposition in their favour? The Jews would do well to consider this point; for, rightly considered, it may be an effectual means of opening their eyes, and of turning them to Christ our Saviour." See Bp. Newton on the prophecies, dissert. viii. sect. 2. And see the notes on Ezekiel, where the calamities of these miserable people are largely detailed.

CHAPTER XLVII.

Among the nations doomed to suffer from the hostilities of Nebuchadnezzar are the Philistines, (see chap. xxv. 20.) And the calamities predicted in this chapter befell them probably during the long siege of Tyre, when their country was desolated to prevent their giving Tyre or Sidon any assistance, 1–5. The whole of this chapter is remarkably elegant. The address to the sword of Jehovah, at the close of it, is particularly a very beautiful and bold personification, 6, 7.

A. M. cir. 3387. B. C. cir. 617. Ol. cir. XL. 4. Anci Martii, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

THE word of the LORD that came to Jeremiah the prophet [a] against the Philistines, [b] before that Pharaoh smote [c] Gaza.

2 Thus saith the LORD; Behold, [d] waters rise up [e] out of the north, and shall be an overflowing flood, and shall overflow the land, and [f] all that is therein; the city and them that dwell therein: then the men shall cry, and all the inhabitants of the land shall howl.

3 At the [g] noise of the stamping of the hoofs of his strong horses, at the rushing of his chariots, and at the rumbling of his wheels, the fathers shall not look back to their children for feebleness of hands;

A. M. cir. 3387. B. C. cir. 617. Ol. cir. XL. 4. Anci Martii, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

4 Because of the day that cometh to spoil all the Philistines, and to cut off from [h] Tyrus and Zidon every helper that remaineth: for the LORD will spoil the Philistines, [i] the remnant of [k] the country of [l] Caphtor.

5 [m] Baldness is come upon Gaza; [n] Ashkelon is cut off with the remnant of their valley: how long wilt thou [o] cut thyself?

6 O thou [p] sword of the LORD, how long will it be ere thou be quiet? [q] put up thyself into thy scabbard, rest, and be still.

7 [r] How can it be quiet, seeing the LORD hath [s] given it a charge against Ashkelon, and against the sea shore? there hath he [t] appointed it.

[a] Chap. xxv. 20; Ezek. xxv. 15, 16; Zeph. ii. 4, 5. — [b] Amos i. 6, 7, 8. — [c] Heb. Azzah. — [d] Isa. viii. 7; chap. xlvi. 7, 8. [e] Chap. i. 14; xlvi. 20. — [f] Heb. the fulness thereof. — [g] Chap. viii. 16; Nah. iii. 2. — [h] Chap. xxv. 2. — [i] Ezek. xxv. 16; Amos i. 8; ix. 7.

[k] Heb. the isle. — [l] Gen. x. 14. — [m] Amos i. 7; Mic. i. 16; Zeph. ii. 4, 7; Zech. ix. 5. — [n] Chap. xxv. 20. — [o] Chap. xvi. 6; xli. 5; xlviii. 37. — [p] Deut. xxxii. 41; Ezek. xxi. 3, 4, 5. [q] Heb. gather thyself. — [r] Heb. how canst thou? — [s] Ezek. xiv. 17. — [t] Mic. vi. 9.

NOTES ON CHAP. XLVII.

Verse 1. The word of the Lord—against the Philistines] The date of this prophecy cannot be easily ascertained. Dr. Blayney thinks it was delivered about the fourth year of Zedekiah, while Dahler assigns it some time in the reign of Josiah.

Before that Pharaoh smote Gaza.] We have no historical relation of any Egyptian king smiting Gaza. It was no doubt smitten by some of them; but when, and by whom, does not appear either from sacred or profane history.

Verse 2. Waters rise up out of the north] Waters is a common prophetic image for a multitude of people. The north here, as in other places of this prophecy, means Chaldea.

Verse 3. The stamping of the hoofs] At the galloping sound,—

Quadrupedante putrem sonitu quatit ungula campum, is a line of Virgil, (Æn. viii. 596,) much celebrated; and quoted here by Blayney, where the galloping sound of the horses' hoofs is heard. In the stamping of the horses, the rushing of the chariots, and the rumbling of the wheels, our translators intended to convey the sense by the sound of the words; and they have not been unsuccessful. Their translation of the original is at the same time sufficiently literal.

The fathers shall not look back] Though their children are left behind, they have neither strength nor courage to go back to bring them off.

Verse 4. To spoil all the Philistines] These people, of whom there were five seignories, occupied the coast of the Mediterranean Sea, to the south of the Phœnicians.

Tyrus and Zidon] Places sufficiently remarkable both in the Old and New Testament, and in profane history. They belonged to the Phœnicians; and at this time were depending on the succour of their allies, the Philistines. But their expectation was cut off.

The remnant of the country of Caphtor.] Crete, or Cyprus. Some think it was a district along the coast of the Mediterranean, belonging to the Philistines; others, that the Cappadocians are meant.

Verse 5. Baldness is come upon Gaza] They have cut off their hair in token of deep sorrow and distress.

Ashkelon is cut off] Or put to silence; another mark of the deepest sorrow. Ashkelon was one of the five seignories of the Philistines, Gaza was another.

The remnant of their valley] Or plain; for the whole land of the Philistines was a vast plain, which extended along the coast of the Mediterranean Sea from Phœnicia to the frontiers of Egypt. The whole of this plain, the territory of the Philistines, shall be desolated.

Verse 6. O thou sword of the Lord] This is a most grand prosopopœia—a dialogue between the sword of the Lord and the prophet. Nothing can be imagined more sublime.

Put up thyself into thy scabbard, rest, and be still.] Shed no more blood, destroy no more lives, erase no more cities, desolate no more countries. Rest:—hast thou not been long enough at this work of judgment? O be still:—let wars and desolations cease for ever.

Verse 7. How can it be quiet] This is the answer of the Sword. I am the officer of God's judgments, and he has given me a commission against Ashkelon, and against the sea shore; all the coast where the Philistines have their territories. The measure of their iniquities is full; and these God hath appointed this sword to ravage. The Philistines were ever the implacable enemies of the Jews, and the basest and worst of all idolaters. On these accounts the sword of the Lord had its commission against them; and it did its office most fearfully and effectually by the hand of the Chaldeans.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

The following prophecy concerning the Moabites is supposed to have had its accomplishment during the long siege of Tyre in the reign of Nebuchadnezzar. The whole of this chapter is poetry of the first order. The distress of the cities of Moab, with which it opens, is finely described. The cries of one ruined city resound to those of another, 1–3. The doleful helpless cry of the children is heard, 4; the highways, on either hand, resound with the voice of weeping, 5; and the few that remain resemble a blasted tree in the wide howling waste, 6. Chemosh, the chief god of the Moabites, and the capital figure in the triumph, is represented as carried off in chains, with all his trumpery of priests and officers, 7. The desolation of the country shall be so general and sudden that, by a strong figure, it is intimated that there shall be no possibility of escape, except it be in the speediest flight, 8, 9. And some idea may be formed of the dreadful wickedness of this people from the consideration that the prophet, under the immediate inspiration of the Almighty, pronounces a curse on those who do the work of the Lord negligently, in not proceeding to their utter extermination, 10. The subject is then diversified by an elegant and well-supported comparison, importing that the Moabites increased in insolence and pride in proportion to the duration of their prosperity, 11; but this prosperity is declared to be nearly at an end; the destroyer is already commissioned against Moab, and his neighbours called to sing the usual lamentation at his funeral, 13–18. The prophet then represents some of the women of Aroer and Ammon, (the extreme borders of Moab,) standing in the highways, and asking the fugitives of Moab, What intelligence? They inform him of the complete discomfiture of Moab, 19–24, and of the total annihilation of its political existence, 25. The Divine judgments about to fall upon Moab are farther represented under the expressive metaphor of a cup of intoxicating liquor, by which he should become an object of derision because of his intolerable pride, his magnifying himself against Jehovah, and his great contempt for the children of Israel in the day of their calamity, 26, 27. The prophet then points out the great distress of Moab by a variety of striking figures, viz., by the failure of the customary rejoicings at the end of harvest, by the mournful sort of music used at funerals, by the signs which were expressive among the ancients of deep mourning, as shaving the head, clipping the beard, cutting the flesh, and wearing sackcloth; and by the methods of catching wild beasts in toils, and by the terror and pitfall, 28–46. In the close of the chapter it is intimated that a remnant shall be preserved from this general calamity whose descendants shall be prosperous in the latter days, 47.

A. M. cir. 3420. B. C. cir. 584. Ol. XLIX. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 33.

AGAINST [a] Moab thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Wo unto [b] Nebo! for it is spoiled: [c] Kiriathaim is confounded and taken: [d] Misgab is confounded and dismayed.

2 [e] There shall be no more praise of Moab: in [f] Heshbon they have devised evil against it; come, and let us cut it off from being a nation. Also thou shalt [g] be cut down, O Madmen; the sword shall [h] pursue thee.

3 [i] A voice of crying shall be from Horonaim, spoiling and great destruction.

A. M. cir. 3420. B. C. cir. 584. Ol. XLIX. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 33.

4 Moab is destroyed; her little ones have caused a cry to be heard.

5 [k] For in the going up of Luhith [l] continual weeping shall go up; for in the going down of Horonaim the enemies have heard a cry of destruction.

6 [m] Flee, save your lives, and be like [n] the [o] heath in the wilderness.

[a] Isa. xv., xvi; chap. xxv. 21; xxvii. 3; Ezek. xxv. 9; Amos ii. 1, 2.——[b] Num. xxxii. 38; xxxiii. 47; Isa. xv. 2.——[c] Num. xxxii. 37.——[d] Or, The high place.——[e] Isa. xvi. 14.——[f] Isa. xv. 4.

[g] Or, be brought to silence; Isa. xv. 1.——[h] Heb. go after thee.
[i] Ver. 5.——[k] Isa. xv. 5.——[l] Heb. weeping with weeping.
[m] Chap. li. 6.——[n] Or, a naked tree.——[o] Chap. xvii. 6.

NOTES ON CHAP. XLVIII.

Verse 1. Against Moab] This was delivered some time after the destruction of Jerusalem. The Moabites were in the neighbourhood of the Ammonites, and whatever evils fell on the one would naturally involve the other. See Isa. xv. and xvi. on this same subject.

Wo unto Nebo! for it is spoiled] This was a city in the tribe of Reuben, afterwards possessed by the Moabites. It probably had its name from Nebo, one of the principal idols of the Moabites.

Kiriathaim] Another city of the Moabites.

Misgab is confounded] There is no place of this name known; and therefore several learned men translate המשגב hammisgab, literally, The high tower, or fortress, which may apply to Kiriathaim, or any other high and well-fortified place.

Verse 2. No more praise of Moab] "The glory of Moab, that it had never been conquered," (Dahler,) is now at an end. Dr. Blayney translates:—

"Moab shall have no more glorying in Heshbon;
They have devised evil against her (saying.)"

And this most certainly is the best translation of the original. He has marked also a double paronomasia in this and the next verse, a figure in which the prophets delight; בחשבון חשבו becheshbon chashebu, "in Cheshbon they have devised," and מדמן תדמי madmen tiddommi, "Madmena, thou shalt be dumb."

Verse 3. Horonaim] Another city of Moab, near to Luhith. At this latter place the hill country of Moab commenced "It is a place," says Dahler, "situated upon a height between Areopolis and Zoar."

A. M. cir. 3420. B. C. cir. 584. Ol. XLIX. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 33.

7 For because thou hast trusted in thy works and in thy treasures, thou shalt also be taken: and [p] Chemosh shall go forth into captivity with his [q] priests and his princes together.

8 And [r] the spoiler shall come upon every city, and no city shall escape: the valley also shall perish, and the plain shall be destroyed, as the LORD hath spoken.

9 [s] Give wings unto Moab, that it may flee and get away: for the cities thereof shall be desolate, without any to dwell therein.

10 [t] Cursed be he that doeth the work of the LORD [u] deceitfully, and cursed be he that keepeth back his sword from blood.

11 Moab hath been at ease from his youth, and he [v] hath settled on his lees, and hath not been emptied from vessel to vessel, neither hath he gone into captivity: therefore his taste [w] remained in him, and his scent is not changed.

12 Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that I will send unto him wanderers, that shall cause him to wander, and shall empty his vessels, and break their bottles.

A. M. cir. 3420. B. C. cir. 584. Ol. XLIX. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 33.

13 And Moab shall be ashamed of [x] Chemosh, as the house of Israel [y] was ashamed of [z] Beth-el their confidence.

14 How say ye, [a] We are mighty and strong men for the war?

15 [b] Moab is spoiled, and gone up out of her cities, and [c] his chosen young men are [d] gone down to the slaughter, saith [e] the King, whose name is the LORD of hosts.

16 The calamity of Moab is near to come, and his affliction hasteth fast.

17 All ye that are about him, bemoan him; and all ye that know his name, say, [f] How is the strong staff broken, and the beautiful rod!

18 [g] Thou daughter that dost inhabit [h] Dibon, come down from thy glory, and sit in thirst; for [i] the spoiler of Moab shall come upon thee, and he shall destroy thy strong holds.

---

[p] Num. xxi. 29; Judg. xi. 24; see Isa. xlvi. 1, 2; chap. xliii. 12.——[q] Chap. xlix. 3.——[r] Chap. vi. 26; ver. 18.——[s] Psa. lv. 6; ver. 28.——[t] See Judg. v. 23; 1 Sam. xv. 3, 9; 1 Kings xx. 42.——[u] Or, negligently.——[v] Zeph. i. 12.——[w] Heb. stood.

[x] Judg. xi. 24; 1 Kings xi. 7.——[y] Hos. x. 6.——[z] 1 Kings xii. 29.——[a] Isa. xvi. 6.——[b] Ver. 8, 9, 18.——[c] Heb. the choice of.——[d] Chap. l. 27.——[e] Chap. xlvi. 18; li. 57.——[f] See Isa. ix. 4; xiv. 4, 5.——[g] Isa. xlvii. 1; chap. xlvi. 19.——[h] Num. xxi. 30; Isa. xv. 2.——[i] Ver. 8.

Verse 6. Flee, save your lives] The enemy is in full pursuit of you.

Be like the heath] כערוער caaroer, "like Aroer;" which some take for a city, others for a blasted or withered tree. It is supposed that a place of this name lay towards the north, in the land of the Ammonites, on a branch of the river Jabbok; surrounded by deserts. Save yourselves by getting into the wilderness, where the pursuing foe will scarcely think it worth his while to follow you, as the wilderness itself must soon destroy you.

Verse 7. Chemosh shall go forth into captivity] The grand national idol of the Moabites, Num. xxi. 29; Judg. xi. 24. Ancient idolaters used to take their gods with them to the field of battle. This was probably in imitation of the Israelites, who took the ark with them in such cases.

Verse 9. Give wings unto Moab] There is no hope in resistance, and to escape requires the speediest flight. I cannot conceive how Dahler came to translate thus: Tirez Moab par les chevaux, "Drag Moab away by the hair of the head."

Verse 10. Cursed be he that doeth the work of the Lord deceitfully] Moab is doomed to destruction, and the Lord pronounces a curse on their enemies if they do not proceed to utter extirpation. God is the Author of life, and has a sovereign right to dispose of it as he pleases; and these had forfeited theirs long ago by their idolatry and other crimes.

Verse 11. Moab hath been at ease] The metaphor here is taken from the mode of preserving wines. They let them rest upon their lees for a considerable time, as this improves them both in strength and flavour; and when this is sufficiently done, they rack, or pour them off into other vessels. Moab had been very little molested by war since he was a nation; he had never gone out of his own land. Though some had been carried away by Shalmaneser forty years before this, he has had neither wars nor captivity.

Therefore his taste remained in him] Still carrying on the allusion to the curing of wines; by resting long upon the lees, the taste and smell are both improved. See the note on Isa. xxv. 6.

Verse 12. I will send unto him wanderers, that shall cause him to wander] Dr. Blayney renders צעים tsaim, tilters; those who elevate one end of the wine cask when nearly run out, that the remains of the liquor may be the more effectually drawn off at the cock. And this seems to be well supported by the following words,—

And shall empty his vessels] I will send such as will carry the whole nation into captivity.

Verse 13. Beth-el their confidence.] Alluding to the golden calves which Jeroboam had there set up, and commanded all the Israelites to worship.

Verse 17. How is the strong staff broken] The sceptre. The sovereignty of Moab is destroyed.

Verse 18. That dost inhabit Dibon] This was anciently a city of the Reubenites, afterwards inhabited by the Moabites, about two leagues north of the river Arnon, and about six to the east of the Dead Sea.—Dahler.

A. M. cir. 3420. B. C. cir. 584. Ol. XLIX. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 33.

19 O [k] inhabitant of [l] Aroer, [m] stand by the way, and espy; ask him that fleeth, and her that escapeth, and say, What is done?

20 Moab is confounded; for it is broken down: [n] howl and cry; tell ye it in [o] Arnon, that Moab is spoiled,

21 And judgment is come upon [p] the plain country; upon Holon, and upon Jahazah, and upon Mephaath,

22 And upon Dibon, and upon Nebo, and upon Beth-diblathaim,

23 And upon Kiriathaim, and upon Beth-gamul, and upon Beth-meon,

24 And upon [q] Kerioth, and upon Bozrah, and upon all the cities of the land of Moab, far or near.

25 [r] The horn of Moab is cut off, and his [s] arm is broken, saith the LORD.

26 [t] Make ye him drunken: for he magnified himself against the LORD: Moab also shall wallow in his vomit, and he also shall be in derision.

27 For [u] was not Israel a derision unto thee? [v] was he found among thieves? for since thou spakest of him, thou [w] skippedst for joy.

28 O ye that dwell in Moab, leave the cities, and [x] dwell in the rock, and be like [y] the dove that maketh her nest in the sides of the hole's mouth.

29 We have heard the [z] pride of Moab, (he is exceeding proud,) his loftiness, and his arrogancy, and his pride, and the haughtiness of his heart.

30 I know his wrath, saith the LORD; but it shall not be so; [a] his [b] lies shall not so effect it.

A. M. cir. 3420. B. C. cir. 584. Ol. XLIX. 1. Tarquinii Prisci R. Roman., cir. annum 33.

31 Therefore [c] will I howl for Moab, and I will cry out for all Moab; mine heart shall mourn for the men of Kir-heres.

32 [d] O vine of Sibmah, I will weep for thee with the weeping of Jazer: thy plants are gone over the sea, they reach even to the sea of Jazer: the spoiler is fallen upon thy summer fruits and upon thy vintage.

33 And [e] joy and gladness is taken from the plentiful field, and from the land of Moab; and I have caused wine to fail from the wine-presses: none shall tread with shouting; their shouting shall be no shouting.

34 [f] From the cry of Heshbon even unto Elealeh, and even unto Jahaz, have they uttered their voice, [g] from Zoar even unto Horonaim, as a heifer of three years old: for the waters also of Nimrim shall be [h] desolate.

35 Moreover I will cause to cease in Moab, saith the LORD, [i] him that offereth in the high places, and him that burneth incense to his gods

36 Therefore [k] mine heart shall sound for Moab like pipes, and mine heart shall sound like pipes for the men of Kir-heres: because [l] the riches that he hath gotten are perished

37 For [m] every head shall be bald, and every beard [n] clipped: upon all the hands shall be cuttings, and [o] upon the loins sackcloth.

38 There shall be lamentation generally upon all the housetops of Moab, and in the [k] Heb. inhabitress.——[l] Deut. ii. 36.——[m] 1 Sam. iv. 13, 16. [n] Isa. xiv. 7.——[o] See Num. xxi. 13.——[p] Ver. 8.——[q] Ver. 41. Amos ii. 2.——[r] Psa. lxxv. 10.——[s] See Ezek. xxx. 21.——[t] Ch. xxv. 15, 27.——[u] Zeph. ii. 8.——[v] See chap. ii. 26.——[w] Or, movedst thyself.——[x] Psa. lv. 6, 7; ver. 9.——[y] Cant. ii. 14. [z] Isa. xvi. 6, &c.——[a] Isa. xvi. 6; chap. l. 36.

[b] Or, those on whom he stayeth (Heb. his bars) do not right. [c] Isa. xv. 2; xvi. 7, 11.——[d] Isa. xvi. 8, 9.——[e] Isa. xvi. 10; Joel i. 12.——[f] Isa. xv. 4, 5, 6.——[g] Isa. xv. 5, 6; ver. 5. [h] Heb. desolations.——[i] Isa. xv. 2; xvi. 12.——[k] Isa. xv. 5; xvi. 11.——[l] Isa. xv. 7.——[m] Isa. xv. 2, 3; chap. xlvii. 5.——[n] Heb. diminished.——[o] Gen. xxxvii. 34.

Verse 19. O inhabitant of Aroer] See the note on ver. 6. This place, being at a greater distance, is counselled to watch for its own safety, and inquire of every passenger, What is done? that it may know when to pack up and be gone.

Verse 20. Tell ye it in Arnon] Apprize the inhabitants there that the territories of Moab are invaded, and the country about to be destroyed, that they may provide for their own safety.

Verse 21. Upon Holon, &c.] All these were cities of the Moabites, but several of them are mentioned in no other place.

Verse 25. The horn of Moab is cut off, and his arm is broken] His political and physical powers are no more.

Verse 27. Was not Israel a derision unto thee] Didst thou not mock my people, and say their God was no better than the gods of other nations? See Ezek. xxv. 8.

Was he found among thieves?] Did the Israelites come to rob and plunder you? Why then mock them, and rejoice at their desolation, when their enemies prevailed over them? This the Lord particularly resents.

Verse 28. Dwell in the rock] Go to the most inaccessible places in the mountains.

The hole's mouth.] And into the most secret caves and holes of the earth.

Verse 29. The pride of Moab] See on Isa. xvi. 1.

Verse 32. O vine of Sibmah] See on Isa. xvi. 8.

Verse 34. As a heifer of three years old] Which runs lowing from place to place in search of her calf, which is lost or taken from her.

Verse 37. For every head shall be bald] These, as streets thereof: for I have broken Moab like [p] a vessel wherein is no pleasure, saith the LORD.

A. M. cir. 3420. B. C. cir. 584. Ol. XLIX. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 33.

39 They shall howl, saying, How is it broken down! how hath Moab turned the [q] back with shame! so shall Moab be a derision and a dismaying to all them about him.

40 For thus saith the LORD; Behold, [r] he shall fly as an eagle, and shall [s] spread his wings over Moab.

41 [t] Kerioth [u] is taken, and the strong holds are surprised, and [v] the mighty men's hearts in Moab at that day shall be as the heart of a woman in her pangs.

42 And Moab shall be destroyed [w] from being a people, because he hath magnified himself against the LORD.

43 [x] Fear, and the pit, and the snare, shall be upon thee, O inhabitant of Moab, saith the LORD.

A. M. cir. 3420. B. C. cir. 584. Ol. XLIX. 1. Tarquinii Prisci R. Roman., cir. annum 33.

44 He that fleeth from the fear shall fall into the pit; and he that getteth up out of the pit shall be taken in the snare: for [y] I will bring upon it, even upon Moab, the year of their visitation, saith the LORD.

45 They that fled stood under the shadow of Heshbon because of the force: but [z] a fire shall come forth out of Heshbon, and a flame from the midst of Sihon, and [a] shall devour the corner of Moab, and the crown of the head of the [b] tumultuous ones.

46 [c] Wo be unto thee, O Moab! the people of Chemosh perisheth: for thy sons are taken [d] captives, and thy daughters captives.

47 Yet will I bring again the captivity of Moab [e] in the latter days, saith the LORD. Thus far is the judgment of Moab.

[p] Chap. xxii. 28.——[q] Heb. neck.——[r] Deut. xxviii. 49; chap. xlix. 22; Dan. vii. 4; Hos. viii. 1; Hab. i. 8.——[s] Isa. viii. 8. [t] Ver. 24.——[u] Or, The cities.——[v] Isa. xiii. 8; xxi. 3; chap. xxx. 6; xlix. 22, 24; l. 43; li. 30; Mic. iv. 9.

[w] Psa. lxxxiii. 4; Isa. vii. 8.——[x] Isa. xxiv. 17, 18.——[y] See chap. xi. 23.——[z] Num. xxi. 28.——[a] Num. xxiv. 17.——[b] Heb children of noise.——[c] Num. xxi. 29.——[d] Heb. in captivity. [e] Chap. xlix. 6, 39.

we have seen before, were signs of the deepest distress and desolation.

Verse 40. He shall fly as an eagle] The enemy will pounce upon him, carry him off, and tear him to pieces.

Verse 42. Moab shall be destroyed from being a people] They shall not have a king or civil governor: and I doubt whether there be any evidence that they were ever reinstated in their national character. They were captivated by the Chaldeans; and probably many returned with the Jews on the edict of Cyrus: but as to their being an independent nation after this, where is the positive proof!

Verse 43. Fear, and the pit, and the snare] See the note on Isa. xxiv. 17, 18.

Verse 45. They that fled stood under the shadow of Heshbon] Heshbon being a fortified place, they who were worsted in the fight fled to it, and rallied under its walls; but, instead of safety, they found themselves disappointed, betrayed, and ruined. See ver. 2, and the note there.

But a fire shall come forth out of Heshbon] Jeremiah has borrowed this part of his discourse from an ancient poet quoted by Moses, Num. xxi. 28; where see the notes.

The crown of the head] The choicest persons of the whole nation.

Verse 46. The people of Chemosh] The Moabites, who worshipped Chemosh as their supreme god.

Verse 47. Will I bring again the captivity of Moab in the latter days] I have already expressed doubts (see ver. 42) whether the Moabites were ever restored to their national distinction. The expressions in this chapter, relative to their total destruction as a people, are so strong and so frequent, that they leave little room for a limited interpretation. That many of them returned on the edict of Cyrus, by virtue of which the Jews were restored, I doubt not; but neither the Ammonites, Moabites, Philistines, nor even the Jews themselves, were ever restored to their national consequence. Perhaps the restoration spoken of here, which was to take place in the latter days, may mean the conversion of these people, in their existing remnants, to the faith of the Gospel. Several judicious interpreters are of this opinion. The Moabites were partially restored; but never, as far as I have been able to learn, to their national consequence. Their conversion to the Christian faith must be the main end designed by this prophecy.

CHAPTER XLIX.

This chapter is a collection of prophecies relating to several nations in the neighbourhood of Judea; and, like those preceding, are supposed to have been fulfilled by the ministry of Nebuchadnezzar during the thirteen years' siege of Tyre. The chapter opens with a prophecy concerning the Ammonites, whose chief city, Rabbah, shall be destroyed; and Malcom, the supreme divinity of the people, with all his retinue of priests and officers, carried into captivity, 1–5. Promise that the Ammonites shall be restored to their liberty, 6. Prophecy against the Edomites, (very like that most dreadful one in the thirty-fourth chapter of Isaiah against the same people,) who shall be utterly exterminated, after the similitude of Sodom and Gomorrah, 7–22. Prophecy against Damascus, 23–27; and against Kedar, 28, 29. Utter desolation of the kingdoms of Hazor foretold, 30–33. The polity of the Elamites shall be completely dissolved, and the people dispersed throughout the nations, 34–38. The Elamites shall be delivered from their captivity in the latter days, 39. It will be proper here to observe that these predictions should not be so explained as if they admitted of merely a private interpretation; for, as Bishop Lowth remarks upon Isaiah's prophecy concerning the Idumeans, "by a figure very common in the prophetical writings, any city or people, remarkably distinguished as enemies of the people and kingdom of God, is put for those enemies in general;" therefore, it is under the Gospel dispensation that these prophecies shall be accomplished to their fullest extent upon all the antichristian nations that have sinned after the similitude of the ancient enemies of the people of God under the Mosaic economy.

A. M. cir. 3421. B. C. cir. 583. Ol. XLIX. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 34.

[a] CONCERNING [b] the Ammonites, thus saith the LORD; Hath Israel no sons? hath he no heir? why then doth [c] their king inherit [d] Gad, and his people dwell in his cities?

2 Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that I will cause an alarm of war to be heard in [e] Rabbah of the Ammonites; and it shall be a desolate heap, and her daughters shall be burned with fire: then shall Israel be heir unto them that were his heirs, saith the LORD.

3 Howl, O Heshbon, for Ai is spoiled: cry, ye daughters of Rabbah, [f] gird you with sackcloth; lament, and run to and fro by the hedges; for [g] their king shall go into captivity, and his [h] priests and his princes together.

4 Wherefore gloriest thou in the valleys, [i] thy flowing valley, O [k] backsliding daughter? that trusted in her treasures, [l] saying, Who shall come unto me?

A. M. cir. 3421. B. C. cir. 583 Ol. XLIX. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 34.

5 Behold, I will bring a fear upon thee, saith the Lord GOD of hosts, from all those that be about thee; and ye shall be driven out every man right forth; and none shall gather up him that wandereth.

6 And [m] afterward I will bring again the captivity of the children of Ammon, saith the LORD.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

7 [n] Concerning Edom, thus saith the LORD of hosts; [o] Is wisdom no more in Teman? [p] is counsel perished from the prudent? is their wisdom vanished?

8 [q] Flee ye, [r] turn back, dwell deep, O inhabitants of [s] Dedan; for I will bring the cala-

[a] Or, Against.——[b] Ezek. xxi. 28; xxv. 2; Amos i. 13; Zeph. ii. 8, 9.——[c] Or, Melcom.——[d] Amos i. 13.——[e] Ezek. xxv. 5; Amos i. 14——[f] Isa. xxxii. 11; chap. iv. 8; vi. 26.——[g] Or, Melcom; 1 Kings xi. 5 33.——[h] Chap. xlviii. 7; Amos i. 15.

[i] Or, thy valley floweth away.——[k] Chap. iii. 14; vii. 24.
[l] Chap. xxi. 13.——[m] So ver. 39; chap. xlviii. 47.——[n] Ezek. xxv. 12; Amos i. 11.——[o] Obad. 8.——[p] See Isa. xix. 11.——[q] Ver. 30.——[r] Or, they are turned back.——[s] Chap. xxv. 23.

NOTES ON CHAP. XLIX.

Verse 1. CONCERNING THE AMMONITES] This prophetic discourse was also delivered after the capture of Jerusalem.

Hath Israel no sons?—no heir?] The Ammonites, it appears, took advantage of the depressed state of Israel, and invaded their territories in the tribe of Gad, hoping to make them their own for ever. But the prophet intimates that God will preserve the descendants of Israel, and will bring them back to their forfeited inheritances.

Why then doth their king] מלכם Malcom or Milcom, the chief idol of the Ammonites. That the idol Milcom is here meant is sufficiently evident from ver. 3, where it is said: "Milcom (not their king) shall go into captivity; his PRIESTS and his princes together." Milcom is also called Molech. Malcom is put here for the Ammonites, as the people of Chemosh in the preceding chapter are put for the Moabites in general.

Verse 3. Run to and fro by the hedges] It is supposed that this may refer to the women making lamentations for the dead, that were in general buried by the walls of their gardens; but others think that it refers to the smaller cities or villages, called here the daughters of Rabbah, the metropolis; the inhabitants of which are exhorted to seek safety somewhere else, as none can be expected from them, now that the enemy is at hand.

Verse 4. Wherefore gloriest thou] Though thy valleys be fruitful, yet glory not in them. Though thou have much political and military power, do not trust in them, nor in the multitude of thy cities; a stronger than thou is coming against thee.

Verse 6. Afterward I will bring again] The Ammonites are supposed to have returned with the Moabites and Israelites, on permission given by the edict of Cyrus.

Verse 7. CONCERNING EDOM] This is a new and separate discourse.

Teman] A part of Idumea, put here for the whole country.

Verse 8. Dwell deep] An allusion to the custom of the Arabs, who, when about to be attacked by a powerful foe, strike their tents, pack up their utensils, lade their camels, which they can do in a couple of hours, and set off to the great desert, and so bury themselves in it that no enemy either will or can pursue, as it is the Arabs alone that know the deserts, and can find water and provender for their support.

Dedan] Was a city of Idumea, not far from Teman.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

mity of Esau upon him, the time that I will visit him.

9 If [t] grape-gatherers come to thee, would they not leave some gleaning grapes? if thieves by night, they will destroy [u] till they have enough.

10 [v] But I have made Esau bare, I have uncovered his secret places, and he shall not be able to hide himself: his seed is spoiled, and his brethren, and his neighbours, and [w] he is not.

11 Leave thy fatherless children, I will preserve them alive; and let thy widows trust in me.

12 For thus saith the LORD; Behold, [x] they whose judgment was not to drink of the cup have assuredly drunken; and art thou he that shall altogether go unpunished? thou shalt not go unpunished, but thou shalt surely drink of it.

13 For [y] I have sworn by myself, saith the LORD, that [z] Bozrah shall become a desolation, a reproach, a waste, and a curse; and all the cities thereof shall be perpetual wastes.

14 I have heard a [a] rumour from the LORD, and an ambassador is sent unto the heathen, saying, Gather ye together, and come against her, and rise up to the battle.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

15 For, lo, I will make thee small among the heathen, and despised among men.

16 Thy terribleness hath deceived thee, and the pride of thine heart, O thou that dwellest in the clefts of the rock, that holdest the height of the hill: [b] though thou shouldest make thy [c] nest as high as the eagle, [d] I will bring thee down from thence, saith the LORD.

17 Also Edom shall be a desolation: [e] every one that goeth by it shall be astonished, and shall hiss at all the plagues thereof.

18 [f] As in the overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah and the neighbour cities thereof, saith the LORD, no man shall abide there, neither shall a son of man dwell in it.

19 [g] Behold, he shall come up like a lion from [h] the swelling of Jordan against the habitation of the strong: but I will suddenly make him run away from her: and who is a chosen man, that I may appoint over her? for [i] who is like me? and who will [k] appoint me the time? and [l] who is that shepherd that will stand before me?

[t] Obad. 5.——[u] Heb. their sufficiency.——[v] Mal. i. 3.——[w] Isa. xvii. 14.——[x] Chap. xxv. 29; Obad. 15.——[y] Gen. xxii. 16; Isa. xlv. 23; Amos vi. 8.——[z] Isa. xxxiv. 6; lxiii. 1.——[a] Obad. 1, 2, 3.——[b] Obad. 4.

[c] Job xxxix. 27.——[d] Amos ix. 2.——[e] Chap. xviii. 16; l. 13.
[f] Gen. xix. 25; Deut. xxix. 23; chap. l. 40; Amos iv. 11.
[g] Chap. l. 44, &c.——[h] Chap. xii. 5.——[i] Exod. xv. 11.——[k] Or, convent me in judgment.——[l] Job xli. 10.

Verse 9. If grape-gatherers] Both in vintage and harvest every grape and every stalk are not gathered; hence the gleaners get something for their pains: but your enemies shall not leave one of you behind; all shall be carried into captivity.

Verse 10. I have made Esau bare] I have stripped him of all defence, and have discovered his hiding-places to his enemies.

Verse 11. Leave thy fatherless children] The connexion of this with the context is not easy to be discerned; but, as a general maxim, it is of great importance. Widows and orphans are the peculiar care of God. He is as the best of fathers to the one, and the most loving of husbands to the other. Even the widows and orphans of Esau, who escape the general destruction, shall be taken care of by the Lord.

Verse 12. Art thou he that shall altogether go unpunished!] A similar form of speech appears, chap. xxv. 29. Others, less wicked than thou, have been punished; and canst thou expect to escape? Thou shalt not escape.

Verse 13. Bozrah shall become a desolation] Bozrah, a city of Idumea, is here put for the whole country.

Verse 14. I have heard a rumour] The Lord has revealed to me what he is about to do to the Edomites.

An ambassador is sent] I believe this means only that God has given permission, and has stirred up the hearts of these nations to go against those whom he has doomed to destruction.

Verse 16. O thou that dwellest] All Idumea is full of mountains and rocks, and these rocks and mountains full of caves, where, in time of great heats, and in time of war, the people take shelter.

Verse 18. As in the overthrow of Sodom] The destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah and the neighbouring cities was so terrible, that, when God denounces judgments against incorrigible sinners, he tells them they shall be like Sodom and Gomorrah.

No man shall abide there] It shall be so desolate as not to be habitable. Travellers may lodge on the ground for a night; but it cannot become a permanent dwelling.

Verse 19. Behold, he shall come up like a lion] See the note on chap. xii. 5. The similitude used here is well illustrated by Dr. Blayney: "When I shall occasion a like commotion in her (Idumea) as a fierce and strong lion may be supposed to do in the sheepfolds, then I will cause him (the man of whom it is said in the preceding verse that he should not dwell in it) to run away from her as the affrighted shepherds and their flocks run from the lion."

A chosen man] Nebuchadnezzar. That is, God has chosen this man, and given him a commission against Idumea.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

20 [m] Therefore hear the counsel of the LORD, that he hath taken against Edom; and his purposes, that he hath purposed against the inhabitants of Teman: Surely the least of the flock shall draw them out: surely he shall make their habitations desolate with them.

21 [n] The earth is moved at the noise of their fall, at the cry the noise thereof was heard in the [o] Red Sea.

22 Behold, [p] he shall come up and fly as the eagle, and spread his wings over Bozrah: and at that day shall the heart of the mighty men of Edom be as the heart of a woman in her pangs.

A. M. cir. 3404. B. C. cir. 600. Ol. cir. XLV. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

23 [q] Concerning Damascus. Hamath is confounded, and Arpad: for they have heard evil tidings: they [r] are faint-hearted; [s] there is sorrow [t] on the sea; it cannot be quiet.

24 Damascus is waxed feeble, and turneth herself to flee, and fear hath seized on her: [u] anguish and sorrows have taken her, as a woman in travail.

A. M. cir. 3404. B. C. cir. 600. Ol. cir. XLV. 1 Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

25 How is [v] the city of praise not left, the city of my joy!

26 [w] Therefore her young men shall fall in her streets, and all the men of war shall be cut off in that day, saith the LORD of hosts.

27 And I will kindle a [x] fire in the wall of Damascus, and it shall consume the palaces of Ben-hadad.

A. M. cir. 3403. B. C. cir. 601. Ol. XLIV. 4 Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 16.

28 [y] Concerning Kedar, and concerning the kingdoms of Hazor, which Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon shall smite, thus saith the LORD; Arise ye, go up to Kedar, and spoil [z] the men of the east.

29 Their [a] tents and their flocks shall they take away: they shall take to themselves their curtains, and all their vessels, and their camels, and they shall cry unto them, [b] Fear is on every side.

30 [c] Flee, [d] get you far off, dwell deep, O ye inhabitants of Hazor, saith the LORD; for Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon hath taken coun-

[m] Chap. l. 45.——[n] Chap. l. 46.——[o] Heb. weedy sea.——[p] Ch. iv. 13; xlviii. 40, 41.——[q] Isa. xvii. 1; xxxvii. 13; Amos i. 3; Zeph. ix. 1, 2.——[r] Heb. melted.——[s] Isa. lvii. 20.——[t] Or, as an the sea.

[u] Isa. xiii. 8; chap. iv. 31; vi. 24; xxx. 6; xlviii. 41; ver. 22 [v] Chap. xxxiii. 9; li. 41.——[w] Chap. l. 30; li. 4.——[x] Amos i. 4. [y] Isa. xxi. 13.——[z] Judg. vi. 5; Job i. 3.——[a] Psa. cxx. 5. [b] Chap. vi. 25; xlvi. 5.——[c] Ver. 8.——[d] Heb. flit greatly.

Verse 20. The inhabitants of Teman] Taken here for the whole of Idumea. These are a kind of synonyms which prevent monotony, and give variety to the poet's versification.

Surely the least of the flock shall draw them out] They shall be like timid sheep; the weakest foe shall overcome them.

Verse 21. The earth is moved] The whole state is represented here as a vast building suddenly thrown down, so as to cause the earth to tremble, and the noise to be heard at a great distance.

Verse 22. He shall come up and fly as the eagle] Nebuchadnezzar. See chap. xlviii. 40.

Verse 23. CONCERNING DAMASCUS.] This is the head or title of another prophecy. Damascus was one of the principal cities of Syria. It was taken by David, 2 Sam. viii. 6, was retaken in the reign of Solomon, 1 Kings xi. 24, &c., and regained its independence. Its kings were often at war with the ten tribes, and once it joined with them for the destruction of Judah. To defend himself against these powerful enemies Ahaz made a league with the king of Assyria, who besieged Damascus, took, and demolished it. From that time we hear nothing of Damascus till we meet with it in this prophecy. It appears to have been rebuilt and restored to some consequence. It made an obstinate resistance to Nebuchadnezzar; but was at last taken and sacked by him. At present it is both a large and populous city, with considerable commerce.

Hamath is confounded] This is a city of Syria, on the Orontes. The Greeks called it Epiphania.

Arpad] Not far from Damascus.

Sorrow on the sea] They are like the troubled sea, that cannot rest.

Verse 25. How is the city of praise not left] Damascus is so ruined that she can no more be called a praiseworthy or happy city.

Verse 27. The palaces of Ben-hadad.] Damascus was a seat of the Syrian kings, and Ben-hadad was a name common to several of its kings.

Verse 28. CONCERNING KEDAR, AND CONCERNING THE KINGDOMS OF HAZOR] This is the title of another new prophecy.

Kedar was the name of one of the sons of Ishmael (Gen. xxv. 13) who settled in Arabia, and who gave name to a powerful tribe of Arabs who used to traffic with the Tyrians in cattle. It appears from this prophecy that Nebuchadnezzar got a commission to go against and reduce them to great misery.

Verse 29. Their tents and their flocks] This description of property shows that they were Scenite or Nomad Arabs; persons who dwell in tents, and whose principal property was cattle, especially camels, of the whole of which they were plundered by the Chaldeans.

Verse 30. Dwell deep] Retire into the depths of the desert. See on ver. 8.

Inhabitants of Hazor] I cannot find this place. It was no doubt in Arabia, and a place of considerable importance; but it is now no more.

A. M. cir. 3403. B. C. cir. 601. Ol. XLIV. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 16.

sel against you, and hath conceived a purpose against you.

31 Arise, get you up unto [e] the [f] wealthy nation, that dwelleth without care, saith the LORD, which have neither gates nor bars, which [g] dwell alone.

32 And their camels shall be a booty, and the multitude of their cattle a spoil; and I will [h] scatter into all winds [i] them that are [k] in the utmost corners, and I will bring their calamity from all sides thereof, saith the LORD.

33 And Hazor [l] shall be a dwelling for dragons, and a desolation for ever: [m] there shall no man abide there, nor any son of man dwell in it.

A. M. cir. 3406. B. C. cir. 598. Ol. cir. XLV. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 19.

34 The word of the LORD that came to Jeremiah the prophet against [n] Elam in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, saying, 35 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; Behold, I will break [o] the bow of Elam, the chief of their might.

A. M. cir. 3406. B. C. cir. 598. Ol. cir. XLV. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 19.

36 And upon Elam will I bring the four winds from the four quarters of heaven, and [p] will scatter them toward all those winds; and there shall be no nation whither the outcasts of Elam shall not come.

37 For I will cause Elam to be dismayed before their enemies, and before them that seek their life: and I will bring evil upon them, even my fierce anger, saith the LORD; [q] and I will send the sword after them, till I have consumed them:

38 And I will [r] set my throne in Elam, and will destroy from thence the king and the princes, saith the LORD.

39 But it shall come to pass [s] in the latter days, that I will bring again the captivity of Elam, saith the LORD.

[e] Ezek. xxxviii. 11.——[f] Or, that is at ease.——[g] Num. xxiii. 9; Deut. xxxiii. 28; Mic. vii. 14.——[h] Ezek. v. 10; ver. 36. [i] Chap. ix. 26; xxv. 23.——[k] Heb. cut off into corners, or that have the corners of their hair polled.——[l] Chap. ix. 11; x. 22; Mal. i. 3.

[m] Ver. 18.——[n] Chap. xxv. 25.——[o] See Isa. xxii. 6.——[p] Ver. 32.——[q] Chap. ix. 16; xlviii. 2.——[r] See chap. xliii. 10.——[s] Ch xlviii. 47; ver. 6.

Verse 31. The wealthy nation] גוי שליו goi sheleiv, "the peaceable nation"—

Have neither gates nor bars] The Arabs, who had nothing but their tents; no cities, nor even permanent villages.

Verse 32. The utmost corners] Even in these utmost inaccessible recesses the sword and pillage shall reach them. "'The utmost corners;' insulated coasts; the peninsula of Arabia."—Blayney.

Verse 33. Hazor shall be a dwelling for dragons] Shall be turned into a wilderness.

A desolation for ever] Never to be repeopled.

There shall no man abide there] It may occasionally be visited, but never made a permanent abode.

Verse 34. THE WORD—AGAINST ELAM] Another new head of prophecy. As this was delivered in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah, it can have no natural nor historical connexion with the other prophecies in this various chapter. Some think that by Elam Persia is always meant; but this is not at all likely. It was a part of the Babylonian empire in the time of Daniel, (chap. viii. 2,) and is most probably what is called Elymais by the Greeks. This, with Susiana, Nebuchadnezzar subdued, and took from Astyages, king of Media.

Verse 35. I will break the bow of Elam] They were eminent archers; and had acquired their power and eminence by their dexterity in the use of the bow. See Isa. xxii. 6. Strabo, Livy, and others speak of their eminence in archery.

Verse 36. Will I bring the four winds] Nebuchadnezzar and his armies, gathered out of different provinces, and attacking this people at all points in the same time.

There shall be no nation, &c.] They shall be scattered through the one hundred and twenty-seven provinces of which the Babylonish empire is composed.

Verse 38. I will set my throne in Elam] This is spoken either of Nebuchadnezzar or Cyrus. It is certain that Cyrus did render himself master of Elymais and Media, which are in the land of Elam.

Verse 39. I will bring again the captivity of Elam] As this is to be in the latter days, probably it may mean the spiritual freedom which these people would receive under the Gospel dispensation. Under Cyrus, the Elamites, collected out of all quarters, were united with the Persians their neighbours, and became, with them, masters of the east. See Calmet and Dahler. There are still, however, difficulties on this subject. Who the Elamites were is still a question. That which appears to be nearest the truth is, that the Elamites and Persians were two distinct people, and continued so till blended together under Cyrus. It is in this light that I have considered the subject in the preceding notes. Neighbouring people are frequently confounded in history, and sometimes the name of a people is given to those who have the same character.

CHAPTER L.

This and the following chapter contain a prophecy relating to the fall of Babylon, interspersed with several predictions relative to the restoration of Israel and Judah, who were to survive their oppressors, and, on their repentance, to be pardoned and brought to their own land. This chapter opens with a prediction of the complete destruction of all the Babylonish idols, and the utter desolation of Chaldea, through the instrumentality of a great northern nation, 1–3. Israel and Judah shall be reinstated in the land of their forefathers after the total overthrow of the great Babylonish empire, 4, 5. Very oppressive and cruel bondage of the Jewish people during the captivity, 6, 7. The people of God are commanded to remove speedily from Babylon, because an assembly of great nations are coming out of the north to desolate the whole land, 8–10. Babylon, the hammer of the whole earth, the great desolator of nations, shall itself become a desolation on account of its intolerable pride, and because of the iron yoke it has rejoiced to put upon a people whom a mysterious Providence had placed under its domination, 11–34. The judgments which shall fall upon Chaldea, a country addicted to the grossest idolatry, and to every species of superstition, shall be most awful and general, as when God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah, 35–40. Character of the people appointed to execute the Divine judgments upon the oppressors of Israel, 41–45. Great sensation among the nations at the very terrible and sudden fall of Babylon, 46.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

THE word that the LORD spake [a] against Babylon and against the land of the Chaldeans [b] by Jeremiah the prophet.

2 Declare ye among the nations, and publish, and [c] set up a standard; publish, and conceal not: say, Babylon is taken, [d] Bel is confounded, Merodach is broken in pieces; [e] her idols are confounded, her images are broken in pieces.

3 [f] For out of the north there cometh up [g] a nation against her, which shall make her land desolate, and none shall dwell therein: they shall remove, they shall depart, both man and beast.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

4 In those days, and in that time, saith the LORD, the children of Israel shall come, [h] they and the children of Judah together, [i] going and weeping: they shall go, [k] and seek the LORD their God.

5 They shall ask the way to Zion with their faces thitherward, saying, Come, and let us join ourselves to the LORD in [l] a perpetual covenant that shall not be forgotten.

[a] Isa. xiii. 1; xxi. 1; xlvii. 1.——[b] Heb. by the hand of Jeremiah. [c] Heb. lift up.——[d] Isa. xlvi. 1; chap. li. 44.——[e] See chap. xliii. 12, 13.——[f] Chap. li. 48.

[g] Isa. xiii. 17, 18, 20; ver. 39, 40.——[h] Hos. i. 11.——[i] Ezra iii. 12, 13; Psa. cxxvi. 5, 6, chap. xxxi. 9; Zech. xii. 10. [k] Hos. iii. 5.——[l] Chap. xxxi. 31, &c.; xxxii. 40.

NOTES ON CHAP. L.

Verse 1. THE WORD THAT THE LORD SPAKE AGAINST BABYLON] This is also a new head of discourse.

The prophecy contained in this and the following chapter was sent to the captives in Babylon in the fourth year of the reign of Zedekiah. They are very important; they predict the total destruction of the Babylonish empire, and the return of the Jews from their captivity. These chapters were probably composed, with several additions, out of the book that was then sent by Jeremiah to the captives by the hand of Seraiah. See chap. li. 59–64.

Verse 2. Declare ye among the nations] God's determination relative to this empire.

Set up a standard] Show the people where they are to assemble.

Say, Babylon is taken] It is a thing so firmly determined, that it is as good as already done.

Bel] The tutelar deity of Babylon is confounded, because it cannot save its own city.

Merodach] Another of their idols, is broken to pieces; it was not able to save itself, much less the whole empire.

Her idols are confounded] It is a reproach to have acknowledged them.

Her images] Great and small, golden and wooden, are broken to pieces; even the form of them no longer appears.

Verse 3. Out of the north there cometh up a nation] The Medes, who formed the chief part of the army of Cyrus, lay to the north or north-east of Babylon.

Shall make her land desolate] This war, and the consequent taking of the city, began those disasters that brought Babylon in process of time to complete desolation; so that now it is not known where it stood, the whole country being a total solitude.

Verse 4. In those days, and in that time] In the times in which Babylon shall be opposed by the Medes and Persians, both Israel and Judah, seeing the commencement of the fulfilling of the prophecies, shall begin to seek the Lord with much prayer, and broken and contrite hearts. When the decree of Cyrus comes, they shall be ready to set off for their own country, deploring their offences, yet rejoicing in the mercy of God which has given them this reviving in their bondage.

Verse 5. Let us join ourselves to the Lord in a perpetual covenant] All our former covenants have been broken; let us now make one that shall last for ever. HE shall be the LORD OUR GOD, and WE will no more worship idols. This covenant they have kept to the present day; whatever their present moral and spiritual state may be, they are no idolaters, in the gross sense of the term.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

6 My people hath been [m] lost sheep: their shepherds have caused them to go astray, they have turned them away on [n] the mountains: they have gone from mountain to hill, they have forgotten their [o] resting place.

7 All that found them have [p] devoured them: and [q] their adversaries said, [r] We offend not, because they have sinned against the LORD, [s] the habitation of justice, even the LORD, [t] the Hope of their fathers.

8 [u] Remove out of the midst of Babylon, and go forth out of the land of the Chaldeans, and be as the he-goats before the flocks.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

9 [v] For, lo, I will raise and cause to come up against Babylon an assembly of great nations from the north country: and they shall [w] set themselves in array against her; from thence she shall be taken: their arrows shall be as of a mighty [x] expert man; [y] none shall return in vain.

10 And Chaldea shall be a spoil: [z] all that spoil her shall be satisfied, saith the LORD.

[m] Isa. liii. 6; ver. 17; 1 Pet. ii. 25.——[n] Chap. ii. 20; iii. 6, 23.
[o] Heb. place to lie down in.——[p] Psa. lxxix. 7.——[q] Chap. xl. 2, 3; Zech. xi. 5.——[r] See chap. ii. 3; Dan. ix. 16.——[s] Psa. xc. 1; xci. 1.
[t] Psa. xxii. 4.——[u] Isa. xlviii. 20; chap. li. 6, 45; Zech ii. 6, 7; Rev. xviii. 4.——[v] Chap. xv. 14; li. 27; ver. 3. 41.——[w] Ver. 14, 29.
[x] Or, destroyer.——[y] 2 Sam. i. 22.——[z] Rev. xvii. 16.

The description that is here given of the state of this people, their feelings and their conduct, finely exhibit the state of real penitents, who are fervently seeking the salvation of their souls.

1. In those days, when Jesus Christ is manifested in the flesh; and in that time, when through him is preached the remission of sins, and the people who hear are pricked in their conscience.

2. The children of Israel and the children of Judah together.—No distinctions being then felt or attended to; for all feel themselves sinners, who have come short of the glory of God. Even national distinctions and religious differences, which bind men fastest, and hold them longest, are absorbed in the deep and overpowering concern they feel for their eternal interests.

3. Going and weeping shall they go.—Religious sorrow does not preclude activity and diligence. While they are weeping for their sins, they are going on in the path of duty, seeking the Lord while he may be found, and calling upon him while he is near.

4. They shall ask the way to Zion.—Real penitents are the most inquisitive of all mortals; but their inquiries are limited to one object, they ask the way to Zion. What shall we do to be saved? How shall we shun the perdition of ungodly men, &c.

5. With their faces thitherward.—They have turned FROM sin, and turned TO God. They have left the paths of the destroyer, and their hearts are towards God, and the remembrance of his name. Thus they are profiting by that light which has convinced them of sin, righteousness, and judgment.

6. Come, and let us join ourselves to the Lord.—Religion is a social principle, and begets a social feeling in the soul. No man who feels his own sore, and the plague of his heart, wishes to venture alone in the way to heaven. He feels he wants counsel, support, comfort, and the company of those who will watch over him in love. Like David, the true penitent is a companion of all those who fear the Lord. These heavenly feelings come from one and the same Spirit, and lead to the same end; hence they say,—

7. Let us join ourselves to the Lord in a perpetual covenant. It is said, that to be undecided, is to be decided. They who are not determined to go to heaven, will never reach it. If the heart be not laid under obligation, it will do nothing. "I hope I am in earnest; I trust I shall be in earnest about the salvation of my soul; it is very proper I should be so;" and such like, show an irresolute soul. Such persons are ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth.

Let us therefore bind ourselves. We have trifled too long; been indecisive too long; have halted too long between two opinions. We know now that Jehovah is God; let us, therefore, enter into a covenant with him. Let this covenant be a perpetual one: let us not make it for a day, for any particular time, but for ever; and let it never be broken. Let our part be kept inviolable: we ARE and WILL BE thy people; and God's part will never fail, I AM and WILL BE your God.

The covenant requires a sacrifice.—Hence ברית berith signifies both. Christ crucified is the great covenant sacrifice. By him God becomes united to us, and through him we become united to God.

Verse 6. My people hath been lost sheep] He pities them; for their pastors, kings, and prophets have caused them to err.

They have gone from mountain to hill] In all high places they have practised idolatry.

Verse 7. Their adversaries said, We offend not] God has abandoned them; we are only fulfilling his designs in plaguing them.

Verse 8. Remove out of the midst of Babylon] The sentence of destruction is gone out against it; prepare for your flight, that ye be not overwhelmed in its ruin.

Be as the he-goats before the flocks.] Who always run to the head of the flock, giving the example for others to follow. This may be addressed to the elders and persons of authority among the people.

Verse 9. An assembly of great nations] The army of Cyrus was composed of Medes, Persians, Armenians, Caducians, Sacæ, &c. Though all these did not come from the north; yet they were arranged under the Medes, who did come from the north, in reference to Babylon.

Their arrows] They are such expert archers, that they shall never miss their mark.

Verse 10. Chaldea shall be a spoil] She has been a spoiler, and she shall be spoiled. They had destroyed Judea, God's heritage; and now God shall cause her to be destroyed.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

11 [a] Because ye were glad, because ye rejoiced, O ye destroyers of mine heritage, because ye are grown [b] fat [c] as the heifer at grass, and [d] bellow as bulls;

12 Your mother shall be sore confounded; she that bare you shall be ashamed: behold, the hindermost of the nations shall be a wilderness, a dry land, and a desert.

13 Because of the wrath of the LORD it shall not be inhabited, [e] but it shall be wholly desolate: [f] every one that goeth by Babylon shall be astonished, and hiss at all her plagues.

14 [g] Put yourselves in array against Babylon round about: all ye [h] that bend the bow, shoot at her, spare no arrows: for she hath sinned against the LORD.

15 Shout against her round about: she hath [i] given her hand: her foundations are fallen, [k] her walls are thrown down: for [l] it is the vengeance of the LORD: take vengeance upon her; [m] as she hath done, do unto her.

16 Cut off the sower from Babylon, and him that handleth the [n] sickle in the time of harvest: for fear of the oppressing sword [o] they shall turn every one to his people, and they shall flee every one to his own land.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

17 Israel is [p] a scattered sheep; [q] the lions have driven him away: first [r] the king of Assyria hath devoured him; and last this [s] Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon hath broken his bones.

18 Therefore thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Behold, I will punish the king of Babylon and his land, as I have punished the king of Assyria.

19 [t] And I will bring Israel again to his habitation, and he shall feed on Carmel and Bashan, and his soul shall be satisfied upon Mount Ephraim and Gilead.

20 In those days, and in that time, saith the LORD, [u] the iniquity of Israel shall be sought for, and there shall be none; and the sins of Judah, and they shall not be found: for I will pardon them [v] whom I reserve.

21 Go up against the land [w] of Merathaim, even against it, and against the inhabitants of [x] Pekod: [y] waste and utterly destroy after them, saith the LORD, and do [z] according to all that I have commanded thee.

[a] Isa. xlvii. 6.——[b] Heb. big, or corpulent.——[c] Hos. x. 11. [d] Or, neigh as steeds.——[e] Chap. xxv. 12.——[f] Chap. xlix. 17. [g] Ver. 9; chap. li. 2.——[h] Chap. xlix. 35; ver. 29.——[i] 1 Chron. xxix. 24; 2 Chron. xxx. 8; Lam. v. 6; Ezek. xvii. 18.——[k] Ch. li. 58.——[l] Chap. li. 6, 11.——[m] Psa. cxxxvii. 8; ver. 29; Rev. xviii. 6.——[n] Or, scythe.

[o] Isa. xiii. 14; chap. li. 9.——[p] Ver. 6.——[q] Chap. ii. 15. [r] 2 Kings xvii. 6.——[s] 2 Kings xxiv. 10, 14.——[t] Isa. lxv. 10; chap. xxxiii. 12; Ezek. xxxiv. 13, 14.——[u] Chap. xxxi. 34. [v] Isa. i. 9.——[w] Or, of the rebels.——[x] Ezek. xxiii. 23.——[y] Or, visitation.——[z] See 2 Sam. xvi. 11; 2 Kings xviii. 25; 2 Chron. xxxvi. 23; Isa. x. 6; xliv. 28; xlviii. 14; chap. xxxiv. 22.

Verse 11. As the heifer at grass] Ye were wanton in the desolations ye brought upon Judea.

Verse 12. Your mother] Speaking to the Chaldeans: BABYLON, the metropolis, or mother city, shall be a wilderness, a dry land, a desert, neither fit for man nor beast.

Verse 15. Shout against her round about] Encompass her with lines and with troops; let none go in with relief, none come out to escape from her ruin.

Verse 16. Cut off the sower] Destroy the gardens and the fields, that there may be neither fruits nor tillage.

Verse 17. Israel] All the descendants of Jacob have been harassed and spoiled, first by the Assyrians, and afterwards by the Chaldeans. They acted towards them as a lion to a sheep which he has caught; first he devours all the flesh, next he breaks all the bones to extract the marrow.

Verse 18. As I have punished the king of Assyria.] The Assyrians were overthrown by the Medes and the Chaldeans. The king is here taken for all their kings, generals, &c., Tiglath-pileser, Shalmaneser, Sennacherib, Esar-haddon, &c. To them succeeded the Chaldean or Babylonish kings. Nebuchadnezzar came against Judea several times; and at last took the city and burnt it, profaned and demolished the temple, wasted the land, and carried the princes and people into captivity.

Verse 19. I will bring Israel again] This seems to refer wholly to the ten tribes; for Carmel, Bashan, Mount Ephraim, and Gilead, were in their territories.

Verse 20. In those days and in that time] This phrase appears to take in the whole of an epoch, from its commencement to its end. See ver. 4.

I will pardon them] So as to deliver them from their captivity, and exact no more punishment from them whom I reserve; namely, the remnant left in the Babylonish captivity.

Verse 21. Go up against the land of Merathaim—and against the inhabitants of Pekod] No such places as these are to be found any where else; and it is not likely that places are at all meant. The ancient Versions agree in rendering the first as an appellative, and the last as a verb, except the Chaldee, which has Pekod as a proper name. Dr. Blayney translates:—

"Against the land of bitternesses, go up:
Upon it, and upon its inhabitants, visit, O sword!"

Dr. Dahler renders thus:—

"March against the country doubly rebellious,
And against its inhabitants worthy of punishment."

The latter of these two versions I take to be the most

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

22 [a] A sound of battle is in the land, and of great destruction.

23 How is [b] the hammer of the whole earth cut asunder and broken! how is Babylon become a desolation among the nations!

24 I have laid a snare for thee, and thou art also taken, O Babylon, [c] and thou wast not aware: thou art found, and also caught, because thou hast striven against the LORD.

25 The LORD hath opened his armoury, and hath brought forth [d] the weapons of his indignation: for this is the work of the Lord GOD of hosts in the land of the Chaldeans.

26 Come against her [e] from the utmost border, open her storehouses: [f] cast her up as heaps, and destroy her utterly: let nothing of her be left.

27 Slay all her [g] bullocks; let them go down to the slaughter: wo unto them! for their day is come, the time of [h] their visitation.

28 The voice of them that flee and escape out of the land of Babylon, [i] to declare in Zion the vengeance of the LORD our God, the vengeance of his temple.

29 Call together the archers against Babylon: [k] all ye that bend the bow, camp against it round about; let none thereof escape: [l] recompense her according to her work; according to all that she hath done, do unto her: [m] for she hath been proud against the LORD, against the Holy One of Israel.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman, 22.

30 [n] Therefore shall her young men fall in the streets, and all her men of war shall be cut off in that day, saith the LORD.

31 Behold, I am against thee, O thou [o] most proud, saith the Lord GOD of hosts: for [p] thy day is come, the time that I will visit thee.

32 And [q] the most proud shall stumble and fall, and none shall raise him up: and [r] I will kindle a fire in his cities, and it shall devour all round about him.

33 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; The children of Israel and the children of Judah were oppressed together: and all that took them captives held them fast; they refused to let them go.

34 [s] Their Redeemer is strong; [t] the LORD of hosts is his name: he shall thoroughly plead their cause, that he may give rest to the land, and disquiet the inhabitants of Babylon.

35 A sword is upon the Chaldeans, saith the LORD, and upon the inhabitants of Babylon, and [u] upon her princes, and upon [v] her wise men.

---

[a] Chap. li. 54.——[b] Isa. xiv. 6; chap. li. 20.——[c] Chap. li. 8, 31, 39, 57; Dan. v. 30, 31.——[d] Isa. xiii. 5.——[e] Heb. from the end.——[f] Or, tread her.——[g] Psa. xxii. 12; Isa. xxxiv. 7; chap. xlvi. 21.——[h] Chap. xlviii. 44; ver. 31.——[i] Chap. li. 10, 11.

[k] Ver. 14.——[l] Ver. 15; chap. li. 56; Rev. xviii. 6.——[m] Isa. xlvii. 10.——[n] Chap. xlix. 26; li. 4.——[o] Heb. pride.——[p] Ver. 27.——[q] Heb. pride.——[r] Chap. xxi. 14.——[s] Rev. xviii. 8. [t] Isa. xlvii. 4.——[u] Dan. v. 30.——[v] Isa. xlvii. 13.

literal. The words are addressed to the Medes and Persians; and the country is Chaldea, doubly rebellious by its idolatry and its insufferable pride. In these two, it was exceeded by no other land.

Verse 23. The hammer of the whole earth] Nebuchadnezzar dashed to pieces the nations against whom he warred. He was the scourge of the Lord.

Verse 24. I have laid a snare for thee] It was not by storm that Cyrus took the city. The Euphrates ran through it; he dug a channel for the river in another direction, to divert its stream; he waited for that time in which the inhabitants had delivered themselves up to debauchery: in the dead of the night he turned off the stream, and he and his army entered by the old channel, now void of its waters. This was the snare of which the prophet here speaks. See Herodotus, lib. i., c. 191.

Verse 26. Open her store-houses] At the time that Cyrus took the city, it was full of provisions and treasures of all kinds; the walls had suffered no injury; and when the inhabitants heard that the enemy was within, they thought they must have arisen out of the earth in the centre of the city!

Verse 27. Slay all her bullocks] Princes, magistrates, &c., &c.

Verse 28. Declare in Zion the vengeance of the Lord] Zion was desolated by Babylon; tell Zion that God hath desolated the desolator.

The vengeance of his temple.] Which Nebuchadnezzar had pillaged, profaned, and demolished, transporting its sacred vessels to Babylon, and putting them in the temple of his god Bel.

Verse 29. Call together the archers] The preceding verses are the prediction: here, God calls the Medes and Persians to fulfil it.

Verse 31. O thou most proud] זדון zadon. PRIDE in the abstract; proudest of all people.

Verse 32. And the most proud] זדון zadon, as before. Here pride is personified and addressed, as if possessing a being and rational powers.

Verse 34. Their Redeemer is strong] And it was not that he wanted power, and that Nebuchadnezzar had much, that Jerusalem was taken; but because the people had sinned, and would not return; and therefore national sins called for national punishments. These have taken place; and now the Lord of hosts shows them that the power of the Chaldeans is mere weakness against his might.

Verse 35. A sword] War and its calamities, or any grievous plague; and so in the following verses.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

36 A sword is [w] upon the [x] liars; [y] and they shall dote: a sword is upon her mighty men; and they shall be dismayed.

37 A sword is upon their horses, and upon their chariots, and upon all [z] the mingled people that are in the midst of her; and [a] they shall become as women: a sword is upon her treasures; and they shall be robbed.

38 [b] A drought is upon her waters; and they shall be dried up: for it is the land of [c] graven images, and they are mad upon their idols.

39 [d] Therefore the wild beasts of the desert with the wild beasts of the islands shall dwell there, and the owls shall dwell therein: [e] and it shall be no more inhabited for ever; neither shall it be dwelt in from generation to generation.

40 [f] As God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah and the neighbour cities thereof, saith the LORD; so shall no man abide there, neither shall any son of man dwell therein.

41 [g] Behold, a people shall come from the north, and a great nation, and many kings shall be raised up from the coasts of the earth.

42 [h] They shall hold the bow and the lance: [i] they are cruel, and will not show mercy: [k] their voice shall roar like the sea, and they shall ride upon horses, every one put in array, like a man to the battle, against thee, O daughter of Babylon.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman.. 22.

43 The king of Babylon hath heard the report of them, and his hands waxed feeble: [l] anguish took hold of him, and pangs as of a woman in travail.

44 [m] Behold, he shall come up like a lion from the swelling of Jordan unto the habitation of the strong: but I will make them suddenly run away from her: and who is a chosen man, that I may appoint over her? for who is like me? and who will [n] appoint me the time? and [o] who is that shepherd that will stand before me?

45 Therefore hear ye [p] the counsel of the LORD, that he hath taken against Babylon; and his purposes, that he hath purposed against the land of the Chaldeans: Surely the least of the flock shall draw them out: surely he shall make their habitation desolate with them.

46 [q] At the noise of the taking of Babylon the earth is moved, and the cry is heard among the nations.

[w] Isa. xliv. 25; chap. xlviii. 30. — [x] Or, chief stays. — [y] Heb. bars. — [z] Chap. xxv. 20, 24; Ezek. xxx. 5. — [a] Chap. li. 30; Nah. iii. 13. — [b] Isa. xliv. 27; chap. li. 32, 36; Rev. xvi. 12. [c] Ver. 2; chap. li. 44, 47, 52. — [d] Isa. xiii. 21, 22; xxxiv. 14; chap. li. 37; Rev. xviii. 2. — [e] Isa. xiii. 20; chap. xxv. 12. [f] Gen. xiii. 10; xix. 24, 25, 28; Deut. xxix. 23; Isa. i. 9; xiii. 19; chap xlix. 18; Lam. iv. 6; Amos iv. 11; Zeph. ii. 9; 2 Pet. ii. 6; Jude 7. — [g] Ver. 9; chap. vi. 22; xxv. 14; li. 27; Rev. xvii. 16. — [h] Chap. vi. 22. — [i] Isa. xiii. 18. — [k] Isa. v. 30 [l] Chap. xlix. 24. — [m] Chap. xlix. 19, &c. — [n] Or, convent me to plead. — [o] Job xli. 10; chap. xlix. 19. — [p] Isa. xiv. 24, &c.; chap. li. 11. — [q] Rev. xviii. 9.

Verse 38. A drought is upon her waters] May not this refer to the draining of the channel of the Euphrates, by which the army of Cyrus entered the city. See on ver. 24. The original is, however, חרב chereb, a sword, as in the preceding verses, which signifies war, or any calamity by which the thing on which it falls is ruined.

Verse 39. The wild beasts of the desert] Dahler translates these various terms, "The wild cats, the jackals, and the ostriches." And Blayney the same. Wicklif, "Dragons, woodewoses, and ostriches." Coverdale, "Wild beestes, apes, and estriches."

Verse 40. As God overthrew Sodom] As the very ground on which these cities stood, with all the plain, now lies under the Dead Sea; so Babylon and the adjacent country shall be rendered totally barren and unfruitful, and utterly incapable of being inhabited. And this is the fact concerning both countries. See chap. xlix. 18.

Verse 41. Behold, a people shall come from the north] This and the two following verses are nearly the same with chap. vi. 22–24. But here, destroyers against Babylon are intended; there, destroyers against Jerusalem.

Verse 44. Behold, he shall come up like a lion] The same words as in chap. xlix. 19, &c., where see the note.

Verse 46. At the noise of the taking of Babylon] See the note on the parallel place, chap. xlix. 21. In the forty-ninth chapter, these words are spoken of Nebuchadnezzar; here, of Cyrus. The taking of Babylon was a wonder to all the surrounding nations. It was thought to be impregnable.

CHAPTER LI.

Sequel of the prophecies of Jeremiah against Babylon. The dreadful, sudden, and final ruin that shall fall upon the Chaldeans, who have compelled the nations to receive their idolatrous rites, (see an instance in the third chapter of Daniel,) set forth by a variety of beautiful figures; with a command to the people of God, (who have made continual intercession for the conversion of their heathen rulers,) to flee from the impending vengeance, 1–14. Jehovah, Israel's God, whose infinite power, wisdom, and understanding are every where visible in the works of creation, elegantly contrasted with the utterly contemptible objects of the Chaldean worship, 15–19. Because of their great oppression of God's people, the Babylonians shall be visited with cruel enemies from the north, whose innumerable hosts shall fill the land, and utterly extirpate the original inhabitants, 20–44. One of the figures by which this formidable invasion is represented is awfully sublime. "The SEA is come up upon Babylon; she is covered with the multitude of the waves thereof." And the account of the sudden desolation produced by this great armament of a multitude of nations, (which the prophet, dropping the figure, immediately subjoins,) is deeply afflictive. "Her cities are a desolation, a dry land, and a wilderness; a land wherein no man dwelleth, neither doth any son of man pass thereby." The people of God a third time admonished to escape from Babylon, lest they be overtaken with her plagues, 45, 46. Other figures setting forth in a variety of lights the awful judgments with which the Chaldeans shall be visited on account of their very gross idolatries, 47–58. The significant emblem with which the chapter concludes, of Seraiah, after having read the book of the Prophet Jeremiah against Babylon, binding a stone to it, and casting it into the river Euphrates, thereby prefiguring the very sudden downfall of the Chaldean city and empire, 59–64, is beautifully improved by the writer of the Apocalypse, chap. xviii. 21, in speaking of Babylon the GREAT, of which the other was a most expressive type; and to which many of the passages interspersed throughout the Old Testament Scriptures relative to Babylon must be ultimately referred, if we would give an interpretation in every respect equal to the terrible import of the language in which these prophecies are conceived.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

THUS saith the LORD; Behold, I will raise up against Babylon, and against them that dwell in the [a] midst of them that rise up against me, [b] a destroying wind;

2 And will send unto Babylon [c] fanners that shall fan her, and shall empty her land; [d] for in the day of trouble they shall be against her round about.

3 Against him that bendeth [e] let the archer bend his bow, and against him that lifteth himself up in his brigandine: and spare ye not her young men; [f] destroy ye utterly all her host.

4 Thus the slain shall fall in the land of the Chaldeans, [g] and they that are thrust through in her streets.

5 For Israel hath not been forsaken, nor Judah of his God, of the LORD of hosts; though their land was filled with sin against the Holy One of Israel.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

6 [h] Flee out of the midst of Babylon, and deliver every man his soul; be not cut off in her iniquity; for [i] this is the time of the LORD's vengeance; [k] he will render unto her a recompense.

7 [l] Babylon hath been a golden cup in the LORD's hand, that made all the earth drunken: [m] the nations have drunken of her wine; therefore the nations [n] are mad.

8 Babylon is suddenly [o] fallen and destroyed: [p] howl for her; [q] take balm for her pain, if so be she may be healed.

9 We would have healed Babylon, but she is not healed: forsake her, and [r] let us go every one into his own country: [s] for her

[a] Heb. heart.——[b] 2 Kings xix. 7; chap. iv. 11.——[c] Chap. xv. 7.——[d] Chap. l. 14.——[e] Chap. l. 14.——[f] Chap. l. 21.——[g] Chap. xlix. 26; l. 30, 37.——[h] Chap. l. 8; Rev. xviii. 4.——[i] Chap. l. 15, 28.——[k] Chap. xxv. 14.

[l] Rev. xvii. 4.——[m] Rev. xiv. 8.——[n] Chap. xxv. 16.——[o] Isa. xxi. 9; Rev. xiv. 8; xviii. 2.——[p] Chap. xlviii. 20; Rev. xviii. 9, 11, 19.——[q] Chap. xlvi. 11.——[r] Isa. xiii. 4; chap. l. 16. [s] Rev. xviii. 5.

NOTES ON CHAP. LI.

Verse 1. Thus saith the Lord] This chapter is a continuation of the preceding prophecy.

A destroying wind.] Such as the pestilential winds in the east; and here the emblem of a destroying army, carrying all before them, and wasting with fire and sword.

Verse 2. And will send—fanners] When the corn is trodden out with the feet of cattle, or crushed out with a heavy wheel armed with iron, with a shovel they throw it up against the wind, that the chaff and broken straw may be separated from it. This is the image used by the prophet; these people shall be trodden, crushed, and fanned by their enemies.

Verse 5. For Israel hath not been forsaken] God still continued his prophets among them: he had never cast them wholly off. Even in the midst of wrath—highly deserved and inflicted punishment, he has remembered mercy; and is now about to crown what he has done by restoring them to their own land. I conceive אשם asham, which we translate sin, as rather signifying punishment, which meaning it often has.

Verse 7. Made all the earth drunken] The cup of God's wrath is the plenitude of punishment, that he inflicts on transgressors. It is represented as intoxicating and making them mad.

Verse 8. Babylon is suddenly fallen and destroyed] These appear to be the words of some of the spectators of Babylon's misery.

Verse 9. We would have healed Babylon] Had it been in our power, we would have saved her; but we could not turn away the judgment of God.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

judgment reacheth unto heaven, and is lifted up even to the skies.

10 The LORD hath [t] brought forth our righteousness: come, and let us [u] declare in Zion the work of the LORD our God.

11 [v] Make [w] bright the arrows; gather the shields: [x] the LORD hath raised up the spirit of the kings of the Medes: [y] for his device is against Babylon, to destroy it; because it is [z] the vengeance of the LORD, the vengeance of his temple.

12 [a] Set up the standard upon the walls of Babylon, make the watch strong, set up the watchmen, prepare the [b] ambushes: for the LORD hath both devised and done that which he spake against the inhabitants of Babylon.

13 [c] O thou that dwellest upon many waters, abundant in treasures, thine end is come, and the measure of thy covetousness.

14 [d] The LORD of hosts hath sworn [e] by himself, saying, Surely I will fill thee with men, [f] as with caterpillars; and they shall [g] lift [h] up a shout against thee.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

15 [i] He hath made the earth by his power, he hath established the world by his wisdom, and [k] hath stretched out the heaven by his understanding.

16 [l] When he uttereth his voice, there is a [m] multitude of waters in the heavens; and [n] he causeth the vapours to ascend from the ends of the earth: he maketh lightnings with rain, and bringeth forth the wind out of his treasures

17 [o] Every man [p] is brutish by his knowledge; every founder is confounded by the graven image: [q] for his molten image is falsehood, and there is no breath in them.

18 [r] They are vanity, the work of errors: in the time of their visitation they shall perish.

19 [s] The Portion of Jacob is not like them; for he is the former of all things: and Israel is the rod of his inheritance: the LORD of hosts is his name.

[t] Psa. xxxvii. 6.——[u] Chap. l. 28.——[v] Chap. xlvi. 4.——[w] Heb. pure.——[x] Isa. xiii. 17; ver. 28.——[y] Chap. l. 45.——[z] Chap. l. 28.
[a] Nah. ii. 1; iii. 14.——[b] Heb. liers in wait.——[c] Rev. xvii. 1, 15.
[d] Chap. xlix. 13; Amos vi. 8.——[e] Heb. by his soul.——[f] Nah. iii. 15.

[g] Heb. utter.——[h] Chap. l. 15.——[i] Gen. i. 1, 6; chap. x. 12, &c.——[k] Job ix. 8; Psa. civ. 2; Isa. xl. 22.——[l] Chap. x. 13.
[m] Or, noise.——[n] Psa. cxxxv. 7.——[o] Chap. x. 14.——[p] Or, is more brutish than to know.——[q] Chap. l. 2.——[r] Chap. x. 15
[s] Chap. x. 16.

Verse 10. The Lord hath brought forth our righteousness] This is the answer of the Jews. God has vindicated our cause.

Verse 11. Make bright the arrows] This is the prophet's address to Babylon.

The Lord hath raised up the spirit of the kings of the Medes] Of Cyaxares king of Media, called Darius the Mede in Scripture; and of Cyrus king of Persia, presumptive heir of the throne of Cyaxares, his uncle. Cambyses, his father, sent him, Cyrus, with 30,000 men to assist his uncle Cyaxares, against Neriglissar king of Babylon, and by these was Babylon overthrown.

Verse 12. Set up the standard] A call to the enemies of Babylon to invest the city and press the siege.

Verse 13. O thou that dwellest upon many waters] Thou who hast an abundant supply of waters. It was built on the confluence of the Tigris and Euphrates; the latter running through the city. But the many waters may mean the many nations which belonged to the Babylonish empire; nations and people are frequently so called in Scripture.

Verse 14. I will fill thee with men] By means of these very waters through the channel of thy boasted river, thou shalt be filled with men, suddenly appearing as an army of locusts; and, without being expected, shall lift up a terrific cry, as soon as they have risen from the channel of the river.

Verse 15. He hath made the earth by his power] The omnipotence of God is particularly manifested in the works of creation.

He hath established the world by his wisdom] The omniscience of God is particularly seen in the government of תבל tebel, the inhabited surface of the globe. What a profusion of wisdom and skill is apparent in that wondrous system of providence by which he governs and provides for every living thing.

And hath stretched out the heaven by his understanding.] Deep thought, comprehensive design, and consummate skill are especially seen in the formation, magnitudes, distances, revolutions, and various affections of the heavenly bodies.

Verse 16. When he uttereth his voice] Sends thunder.

There is a multitude of waters] For the electric spark, by decomposing atmospheric air, converts the hydrogen and oxygen gases, of which it is composed, into water; which falls down in the form of rain.

Causeth the vapours to ascend] He is the Author of that power of evaporation by which the water is rarified, and, being lighter than the air, ascends in form of vapour, forms clouds, and is ready to be sent down again to water the earth by the action of his lightnings, as before. And by those same lightnings, and the agency of heat in general, currents of air are formed, moving in various directions, which we call winds.

Verse 17. Every man is brutish by his knowledge] He is brutish for want of real knowledge; and he is brutish when he acknowledges that an idol is any thing in the world. These verses, from fifteen to nineteen, are transcribed from chap. x. 12–16.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

20 [t] Thou art my battle axe and weapons of war: for [u] with thee will I break in pieces the nations, and with thee will I destroy kingdoms;

21 And with thee will I break in pieces the horse and his rider; and with thee will I break in pieces the chariot and his rider;

22 With thee also will I break in pieces man and woman; and with thee will I break in pieces [v] old and young; and with thee will I break in pieces the young man and the maid;

23 I will also break in pieces with thee the shepherd and his flock; and with thee will I break in pieces the husbandman and his yoke of oxen; and with thee will I break in pieces captains and rulers.

24 [w] And I will render unto Babylon and to all the inhabitants of Chaldea all their evil that they have done in Zion in your sight, saith the LORD.

25 Behold, I am against thee, [x] O destroying mountain, saith the LORD, which destroyest all the earth: and I will stretch out mine hand upon thee, and roll thee down from the rocks, [y] and will make thee a burnt mountain.

26 And they shall not take of thee a stone for a corner, nor a stone for foundations; but [z] thou shalt be [a] desolate for ever, saith the LORD.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

27 [b] Set ye up a standard in the land, blow the trumpet among the nations, [c] prepare the nations against her, call together against her [d] the kingdoms of Ararat, Minni, and Ashchenaz; appoint a captain against her; cause the horses to come up as the rough caterpillars.

28 Prepare against her the nations with [e] the kings of the Medes, the captains thereof, and all the rulers thereof, and all the land of his dominion.

29 And the land shall tremble and sorrow, for every purpose of the LORD shall be performed against Babylon, [f] to make the land of Babylon a desolation without an inhabitant.

30 The mighty men of Babylon have forborne to fight, they have remained in their holds: their might hath failed; [g] they became as women: they have burned her dwelling-places; [h] her bars are broken.

31 [i] One post shall run to meet another, and one messenger to meet another, to show the king of Babylon that his city is taken at one end, [t] Isa. x. 5, 15; chap. l. 23.——[u] Or, in thee, or by thee.——[v] So 2 Chron. xxxvi. 17.——[w] Chap. l. 15, 29.——[x] Isa. xiii. 2; Zech. iv. 7.——[y] Rev. viii. 8.——[z] Chap. l. 40.——[a] Heb. everlasting desolations.

[b] Isa. xiii. 2.——[c] Chap. xxv. 14.——[d] Chap. l. 41.——[e] Ver. 11.——[f] Chap. l. 13, 39, 40; ver. 43.——[g] Isa. xix. 16; chap. xlviii. 41; l. 37.——[h] Lam. ii. 9; Amos i. 5; Nah. iii. 13.——[i] Chap l. 24.

Verse 20. Thou art my battle axe] I believe Nebuchadnezzar is meant, who is called, chap. l. 23, the hammer of the whole earth. Others think the words are spoken of Cyrus. All the verbs are in the past tense: "With thee have I broken in pieces," &c., &c.

Verse 21. And I will render] The ו vau should be translated but, of which it has here the full power: "But I will render unto Babylon."

Verse 25. O destroying mountain] Another epithet which he applies to the Babylonish government; it is like a burning mountain, which, by vomiting continual streams of burning lava, inundates and destroys all towns, villages, fields, &c., in its vicinity.

And roll thee down from the rocks] I will tumble thee from the rocky base on which thou restest. The combustible matter in thy bowels being exhausted, thou shalt appear as an extinguished crater; and the stony matter which thou casteest out shall not be of sufficient substance to make a foundation stone for solidity, or a corner stone for beauty, ver. 26. Under this beautiful and most expressive metaphor, the prophet shows the nature of the Babylonish government; setting the nations on fire, deluging and destroying them by its troops, till at last, exhausted, it tumbles down, is extinguished, and leaves nothing as a basis to erect a new form of government on; but is altogether useless, like the cooled lava, which is, properly speaking, fit for no human purpose.

Verse 27. Set ye up a standard] Another summons to the Medes and Persians to attack Babylon.

Ararat, Minni] The Greater and Lesser Armenia.

And Ashchenaz] A part of Phrygia, near the Hellespont. So Bochart, Phaleg, lib. i. c. 3, lib. iii. c. 9. Concerning Ashchenaz Homer seems to speak, Il. ii. 370, 371:—

Φορκυς αυ Φρυγας ηγε, και Ασκανιος θεοειδης, Τηλ' εξ Ασκανιης.

"Ascanius, godlike youth, and Phorcys led The Phrygians from Ascania's distant land."

Calmet thinks that the Ascantes, who dwelt in the vicinity of the Tanais, are meant.

Verse 29. And the land shall tremble] It is represented here as trembling under the numerous armies that are passing over it, and the prancing of their horses.

Verse 30. The mighty men—have forborne to fight] They were panic-struck when they found the Medes and Persians within their walls, and at once saw that resistance was useless.

Verse 31. One post shall run to meet another] As the city was taken by surprise, in the manner already

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595 Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

32 And that [k] the passages are stopped, and the reeds they have burned with fire, and the men of war are affrighted.

33 For thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; The daughter of Babylon is [l] like a threshing-floor, [m] it [n] is time to thresh her: yet a little while, [o] and the time of her harvest shall come.

34 Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon hath [p] devoured me, he hath crushed me, he hath made me an empty vessel, he hath swallowed me up like a dragon, he hath filled his belly with my delicates, he hath cast me out.

35 [q] The violence done to me and to my [r] flesh be upon Babylon, shall the [s] inhabitant of Zion say: and my blood upon the inhabitants of Chaldea, shall Jerusalem say.

36 Therefore thus saith the LORD; Behold, [t] I will plead thy cause, and take vengeance for thee; [u] and I will dry up her sea, and make her springs dry.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci R. Roman., 22.

37 [v] And Babylon shall become heaps, a dwelling-place for dragons, [w] an astonishment, and a hissing, without an inhabitant.

38 They shall roar together like lions: they shall [x] yell as lions' whelps.

39 In their heat I will make their feasts, and [y] I will make them drunken, that they may rejoice, and sleep a perpetual sleep, and not wake, saith the LORD.

40 I will bring them down like lambs to the slaughter, like rams with he-goats.

41 How is [z] Sheshach taken! and how is [a] the praise of the whole earth surprised! how is Babylon become an astonishment among the nations!

[k] Chap. l. 38.——[l] Isa. xxi. 10; Mic. iv. 13; Amos i. 3.
[m] Isa. xli. 15; Hab. iii. 12.——[n] Or, in the time that he thresheth her.——[o] Isa. xvii. 5, &c.; Hos. vi. 11; Joel iii. 13; Rev. xiv. 15, 18.——[p] Chap. l. 17.——[q] Heb. My violence.
[r] Or, remainder.——[s] Heb. inhabitress.——[t] Chap. l. 34.——[u] Ch. l. 38.——[v] Isa. xiii. 22; chap. l. 39; Rev. xviii. 2.——[w] Chap. xxv. 9, 18.——[x] Or, shake themselves.——[y] Ver. 57.——[z] Chap. xxv. 26.——[a] Isa. xiii. 19; chap. xlix. 25; Dan. iv. 30.

related, so now messengers, one after another, were despatched to give the king information of what was done; viz., that the city was taken at one end. Herodotus tells us that the extreme parts of the city were taken, before those of the centre knew any thing of the invasion. Herodot. lib. i. c. 191.

Verse 32. That the passages are stopped] Either the bridges or slips for boats, by which the inhabitants passed from one side to the other, and may mean the principal gates or passes in the city, which the victorious army would immediately seize, that they might prevent all communication between the inhabitants.

The reeds they have burned with fire] What this means I cannot tell, unless it refer to something done after the taking of the city. Setting fire to the reeds in the marshy ground, in order the better to clear the places, and give a freer passage to the water, that it may neither stagnate nor turn the solid ground into a marsh. Dr. Blayney thinks it refers to the firing of the houses, in order to throw the inhabitants into the greater confusion; but no historian makes any mention of burning the city, except what is said ver. 30, "They have burned her dwelling places;" and this may be a poetical expression. That they burnt nothing before they took the city must be evident from the circumstance of their taking the city by surprise, in the night time, with the greatest secrecy. Still there might have been some gates, barricadoes, or wooden works, serving for barracks or such like, which obstructed some of the great passages, which, when they had entered, they were obliged to burn, in order to get themselves a ready passage through the city. This is the more likely because this burning of reeds is connected with the stopping of the passages, burning the dwelling places, and breaking the bars.

Verse 33. The daughter of Babylon is like a threshing floor] The threshing wheel is gone over her; she is trodden under foot.

Verse 34. Nebuchadrezzar—hath devoured me] These are the words of Judea; he has taken away all my riches.

He hath cast me out.] He shall vomit all up; i. e., they shall be regained.

Verse 35. The violence done to me—be upon Babylon,—and my blood upon the inhabitants of Chaldea] Zion begins to speak, ver. 34, and ends with this verse. The answer of Jehovah begins with the next verse. Though the Chaldeans have been the instrument of God to punish the Jews, yet in return they, being themselves exceedingly wicked, shall suffer for all the carnage they have made, and for all the blood they have shed.

Verse 36. I will dry up her sea] Exhaust all her treasures.

Verse 37. Without an inhabitant.] See chap. l. 39.

Verse 39. In their heat I will make their feasts] It was on the night of a feast day, while their hearts were heated with wine and revelry, that Babylon was taken; see Dan. v. 1–3. This feast was held in honour of the goddess Sheshach, (or perhaps of Bel,) who is mentioned, ver. 41, as being taken with her worshippers. As it was in the night the city was taken, many had retired to rest, and never awoke; slain in their beds, they slept a perpetual sleep.

Verse 41. How is Sheshach taken!] Perhaps the city is here called by the name of its idol.

The praise of the whole earth] One of the seven wonders of the world; superexcellent for the height, breadth, and compass of its walls, its hanging gardens, the temple of Belus, &c., &c.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

42 [b] The sea is come up upon Babylon: she is covered with the multitude of the waves thereof.

43 [c] Her cities are a desolation, a dry land, and a wilderness, a land wherein no man dwelleth, neither doth any son of man pass thereby.

44 [d] And I will punish Bel in Babylon, and I will bring forth out of his mouth that which he hath swallowed up: and the nations shall not flow together any more unto him: yea, [e] the wall of Babylon shall fall.

45 [f] My people, go ye out of the midst of her, and deliver ye every man his soul from the fierce anger of the LORD.

46 And [g] lest your heart faint, and ye fear [h] for the rumour that shall be heard in the land; a rumour shall both come one year, and after that in another year shall come a rumour, and violence in the land, ruler against ruler.

47 Therefore, behold, the days come, that [i] I will [k] do judgment upon the graven images of Babylon: and her whole land shall be confounded, and all her slain shall fall in the midst of her.

48 Then [l] the heaven and the earth, and all that is therein, shall sing for Babylon: [m] for the spoilers shall come unto her from the north, saith the LORD.

49 [n] As Babylon hath caused the slain of Israel to fall, so at Babylon shall fall the slain of all [o] the earth.

50 [p] Ye that have escaped the sword, go away, stand not still: remember the LORD afar off, and let Jerusalem come into your mind.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

51 [q] We are confounded, because we have heard reproach; shame hath covered our faces: for strangers are come into the sanctuaries of the LORD's house.

52 Wherefore, behold, the days come, saith the LORD, [r] that I will do judgment upon her graven images: and through all her land the wounded shall groan.

53 [s] Though Babylon should mount up to heaven, and though she should fortify the height of her strength, yet from me shall spoilers come unto her, saith the LORD.

54 [t] A sound of a cry cometh from Babylon, and great destruction from the land of the Chaldeans:

55 Because the LORD hath spoiled Babylon, and destroyed out of her the great voice; when her waves do roar like great waters, a noise of their voice is uttered:

56 Because the spoiler is come upon her, even upon Babylon, and her mighty men are taken, every one of their bows is broken: [u] for the LORD God of recompenses shall surely requite.

57 [v] And I will make drunk her princes, and her wise men, her captains, and her rulers, and her mighty men: and they shall sleep a perpetual sleep, and not wake, saith [w] the King,

[b] See Isa. viii. 7, 8.——[c] Chap. l. 39, 40; ver. 29.——[d] Isa. xlvi. 1; chap. l. 2.——[e] Ver. 58.——[f] Ver. 6; chap. l. 8; Rev. xviii. 4. [g] Or, let not.——[h] 2 Kings xix. 7.——[i] Chap. l. 2; ver. 52. [k] Heb. visit upon.——[l] Isa. xliv. 23; xlix. 43; Rev. xviii. 20. [m] Chap. l. 3, 41.

[n] Or, Both Babylon is to fall, O ye slain of Israel, and with Babylon, &c.——[o] Or, the country.——[p] Chap. xliv. 28.——[q] Psa. xliv. 15, 16; lxxix. 4.——[r] Ver. 47.——[s] Chap. xlix. 16; Amos ix. 2; Obad. 4.——[t] Chap. l. 22.——[u] Psa. xciv. 1; chap. lvi. 29; ver. 24.——[v] Ver. 39.——[w] Chap. xlvi. 18; xlviii. 15.

Verse 42. The sea is come up] A multitude of foes have inundated the city.

Verse 44. I will punish Bel in Babylon] Bel or Belus was their supreme deity.

That which he hath swallowed up] The sacred vessels of the temple of Jerusalem, which were taken thence by Nebuchadnezzar, and dedicated to him in his temple at Babylon.

The wall of Babylon shall fall.] It shall cease to be a defence; and shall moulder away until, in process of time, it shall not be discernible.

Verse 45. My people, go ye out] A warning to all the Jews in Babylon to leave the city, and escape for their lives.

Verse 46. A rumour shall—come one year] A year before the capture of the city there shall be a rumour of war,—and in that year Belshazzar was defeated by Cyrus. In the following year the city was taken.

Verse 48. The heaven and the earth—shall sing for Babylon] Its fall shall be a subject of universal rejoicing.

Verse 50. Ye that have escaped the sword] The Jews

Let Jerusalem come into your mind.] Pray for its restoration; and embrace the first opportunity offered of returning thither.

Verse 51. Strangers are come into the sanctuaries] The lamentation of the pious Jews for the profanation of the temple by the Chaldeans.

Verse 53. Though Babylon should mount up to heaven] Though it were fortified even to the skies, it shall fall by the enemies that I will send against it.

Verse 55. The great voice] Its pride and insufferable boasting.

Verse 56. The Lord God of recompenses] The fall of Babylon is an act of Divine justice; whatever it suffers, it is in consequence of its crimes.

Verse 57. I will make drunk her princes] See on ver. 39.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

whose name is the LORD of hosts.

58 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; [x] The [y] broad walls of Babylon shall be utterly [z] broken, and her high gates shall be burned with fire; and [a] the people shall labour in vain, and the folk in the fire, and they shall be weary.

59 The word which Jeremiah the prophet commanded Seraiah the son of Neriah, the son of Maaseiah, when he went [b] with Zedekiah the king of Judah into Babylon in the fourth year of his reign. And this Seraiah was a [c] quiet prince.

60 So Jeremiah wrote in a book all the evil that should come upon Babylon, even all these words that are written against Babylon.

61 And Jeremiah said to Seraiah, When thou comest to Babylon, and shalt see, and shalt read all these words;

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

62 Then shalt thou say, O LORD, thou hast spoken against this place, to cut it off, that [d] none shall remain in it, neither man nor beast, but that it shall be [e] desolate for ever.

63 And it shall be, when thou hast made an end of reading this book, [f] that thou shalt bind a stone to it, and cast it into the midst of Euphrates:

64 And thou shalt say, Thus shall Babylon sink, and shall not rise from the evil that I will bring upon her: [g] and they shall be weary. Thus far are the words of Jeremiah.

[x] Or, The walls of broad Babylon.——[y] Ver. 44.——[z] Or, made naked.——[a] Hab. ii. 13.——[b] Or, on the behalf of.——[c] Or, prince of Menucha, or chief chamberlain.——[d] Chap. l. 3, 39; ver. 29. [e] Heb. desolations.——[f] See Rev. xviii. 21.——[g] Ver. 58.

Verse 58. The broad walls of Babylon] Herodotus, who saw these walls, says, "The city was a regular square, each side of which was one hundred and twenty stadia, the circumference four hundred and eighty stadia. It was surrounded by a wall fifty cubits broad, and two hundred cubits high; and each side had twenty-five brazen gates."—Herod., lib. i. c. 178. Had not Cyrus resorted to stratagem, humanly speaking, he could not have taken this city. For the destruction of this wall and its very vestiges, see on Isa. xiii. 19.

Verse 59. The word which Jeremiah] On account of the message sent by Jeremiah to the Jewish captives in Babylon.

Verse 60. Wrote in a book] Whether this book contained any more than is recorded in this place we do not know; probably it contained no more than what is found in verses 62–64. A book, ספר sepher, signifies, in Hebrew, any writing, great or small.

Verse 64. Thus shall Babylon sink, &c.] This is the emblem of its overthrow and irretrievable ruin. See Rev. xviii. 21, where we find that this is an emblem of the total ruin of mystical Babylon.

Herodotus relates a similar action of the Phocæans, who, having resolved to leave their country, and never return to it again, μυδρον σιδηρεον κατεποντωσαν, και ωμοσαν μη πριν ες Φωκαιην ἡξειν, πριν ἡ τον μυδρον τουτον αναφηναι· "threw a mass of iron into the sea, and swore that they would never return to Phocæa till that iron mass should rise and swim on the top." The story is this: The Phocæans, being besieged by Harpagus, general of the Persians, demanded one day's truce to deliberate on the propositions he had made to them relative to their surrendering their city; and begged that in the mean while he would take off his army from the walls. Harpagus having consented, they carried their wives, children, and their most valuable effects, aboard their ships; then, throwing a mass of iron into the sea, bound themselves by an oath never to return till that iron should rise to the top and swim. See Herodotus, lib. i. c. 165.

Horace refers to this in his epode Ad Populum Romanum, Epode xvi. ver. 25:—

> Sed jnremus in hæc: simul imis saxa renarint
> Vadis levata, ne redire sit nefas.
>
> "As the Phocæans oft for freedom bled,
> At length with imprecated curses fled." FRANCIS.

Thus far are the words of Jeremiah.] It appears that the following chapter is not the work of this prophet: it is not his style. The author of it writes Jehoiachin; Jeremiah writes him always Jeconiah, or Coniah. It is merely historical, and is very similar to 2 Kings xxiv. 18–xxv. 30. The author, whoever he was, relates the capture of Jerusalem, the fate of Zedekiah, the pillage and burning of the city and the temple. He mentions also certain persons of distinction who were slain by the Chaldeans. He mentions the number of the captives that were carried to Babylon at three different times; and concludes with the deliverance of King Jehoiachin from prison in Babylon, in which he had been for thirty-seven years. It is very likely that the whole chapter has been compiled from some chronicle of that time; or it was designed as a preface to the Book of the Lamentations; and would stand with great propriety before it, as it contains the facts on which that inimitable poem is built. Were it allowable, I would remove it to that place.

CHAPTER LII.

This chapter was added after Jeremiah's time, probably by Ezra, after the return from the captivity, of which it gives a short account, nearly the same as in 2 Kings xxiv. 18–20, and xxv. It is very properly subjoined to the preceding prophecies, in order to show how exactly they were fulfilled. It likewise forms a proper introduction to the following Lamentations, as it gives an account of the mournful events which gave rise to them. Zedekiah's evil reign and rebellion against Nebuchadnezzar, 1–3. Jerusalem is taken by the Chaldeans after a siege of eighteen months, 4–7. Zedekiah pursued and taken in the plains of Jericho, and his whole army dispersed, 8, 9. The king's sons and all the princes of Judah slain in Riblah, 10. Zedekiah has his eyes put out by order of the Chaldean monarch; and is afterward bound in chains, carried to Babylon, and imprisoned for life, 11. Nebuzar-adan, the captain of the guard, burns and spoils the city and temple, 12–19. The two pillars of the temple, with their dimensions and ornaments, 20–23. The officers of the temple, and several others, carried away captives into Babylon, and then slain by order of Nebuchadnezzar, 24–27. The number of Jews that Nebuchadnezzar carried away captive in the seventh year of his reign, 28; in his eighteenth year, 29; and in his twenty-third year, 30. Evil-merodach, the son of Nebuchadnezzar, in the year of his accession to the throne of Babylon, (which was in the thirty-seventh year of the captivity, and the one hundred and ninety-first from the building of Rome, according to the computation of Varro,) orders Jehoiachin to be taken out of prison, and treats him kindly for the remainder of his life, 31–34.

A. M. 3406 —3416. B. C. 598 —588. Ol. XLV. 3—XLVIII. 1.

ZEDEKIAH was [a] one and twenty years old when he [b] began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Hamutal the daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah.

2 And he did that which was evil in the eyes of the LORD, according to all that Jehoiakim had done.

A. M. cir. 3411. B. C. cir. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

3 For through the anger of the LORD it came to pass in Jerusalem and Judah, till he had cast them out from his presence, that Zedekiah rebelled against the king of Babylon.

A. M. 3414. B. C. 590. Ol. XLVII. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 27.

4 And it came to pass in the [c] ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, that Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon came, he and all his army, against Jerusalem, and pitched against it, and built forts against it round about.

A. M. 3414 —3416. B. C. 590–588. Ol. XLVII. 3—XLVIII. 1.

5 So the city was besieged unto the eleventh year of king Zedekiah.

6 And in the fourth month, in the ninth day of the month, the famine was sore in the city, so that there was no bread for the people of the land.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

7 Then the city was broken up, and all the men of war fled, and went forth out of the city by night by the way of the gate between the two walls, which was by the king's garden; (now the Chaldeans were by the city round about:) and they went by the way of the plain.

8 But the army of the Chaldeans pursued after the king, and overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho; and all his army was scattered from him.

9 [d] Then they took the king, and carried him up unto the king of Babylon to Riblah in the land of Hamath; where he gave judgment upon him.

10 [e] And the king of Babylon slew the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes: he slew also all the princes of Judah in Riblah.

11 Then he [f] put out the eyes of Zedekiah; and the king of Babylon bound him in [g] chains,

[a] 2 Kings xxiv. 18.——[b] Heb. reigned.——[c] 2 Kings xxv. 1–27; chap. xxxix. 1; Zech. viii. 19.

[d] Chap. xxxii. 4.——[e] Ezek. xii. 13.——[f] Heb. blinded.——[g] Or, fetters.

NOTES ON CHAP. LII.

Verse 1. Zedekiah was one and twenty years old] See 2 Kings xxiv. 18.

Verse 2. And he did—evil] This and the following verse are the same as 2 Kings xxiv. 19.

Verse 3. Through the anger of the Lord] Here is a king given to a people in God's anger, and taken away in his displeasure.

Verse 4. Ninth year—tenth month] Answering nearly to our January.

Verse 5. So the city was besieged] It held out one year and six months.

Verse 6. And in the fourth month] See the notes on chap. xxxix. 1, &c. The fourth month answers nearly to our July.

Verse 8. The army of the Chaldeans pursued] See on 2 Kings xxv. 5.

Verse 9. King of Babylon to Riblah] See the note on chap. xxxix. 5.

Verse 11. He put out the eyes of Zedekiah] See on chap. xxxix. 7.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

and carried him to Babylon, and put him in [h] prison till the day of his death.

12 [i] Now in the fifth month, in the tenth day of the month, [k] which was the nineteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, [l] came Nebuzar-adan, [m] captain [n] of the guard, which [o] served the king of Babylon, into Jerusalem,

13 And burned the house of the LORD, and the king's house; and all the houses of Jerusalem, and all the houses of the great men, burned he with fire:

14 And all the army of the Chaldeans, that were with the captain of the guard, brake down all the walls of Jerusalem round about.

15 [p] Then Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard carried away captive certain of the poor of the people, and the residue of the people that remained in the city, and those that fell away, that fell to the king of Babylon, and the rest of the multitude.

16 But Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard left certain of the poor of the land for vinedressers and for husbandmen.

17 [q] Also the [r] pillars of brass that were in the house of the LORD, and the bases, and the brazen sea that was in the house of the LORD the Chaldeans brake, and carried all the brass of them to Babylon.

18 [s] The caldrons also, and the [t] shovels, and the snuffers, and the [u] bowls, and the spoons, and all the vessels of brass wherewith they ministered, took they away.

19 And the basins, and the [v] firepans, and the bowls, and the caldrons, and the candlesticks, and the spoons, and the cups; that which was of gold in gold, and that which was of silver in silver, took the captain of the guard away.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

20 The two pillars, one sea, and twelve brazen bulls that were under the bases, which king Solomon had made in the house of the LORD: [w] the [x] brass of all these vessels was without weight.

21 And concerning the [y] pillars, the height of one pillar was eighteen cubits; and a [z] fillet of twelve cubits did compass it; and the thickness thereof was four fingers: it was hollow.

22 And a chapiter of brass was upon it; and the height of one chapiter was five cubits, with network and pomegranates upon the chapiters round about, all of brass. The second pillar also and the pomegranates were like unto these.

23 And there were ninety and six pomegranates on a side; and [a] all the pomegranates upon the network were a hundred round about.

24 And [b] the captain of the guard took Seraiah the chief priest, [c] and Zephaniah the second priest, and the three keepers of the [d] door:

25 He took also out of the city an eunuch, which had the charge of the men of war; and seven men of them that [e] were near the king's person, which were found in the city; and the [f] principal scribe of the host, who mustered the people of the land; and threescore men of the people of the land, that were found in the midst of the city.

26 So Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard took them, and brought them to the king of Babylon to Riblah.

27 And the king of Babylon smote them, and put them to death in Riblah in the land of Hamath. Thus [g] Judah was carried away captive out of his own land.

---

[h] Heb. house of the wards.——[i] Zech. vii. 5; viii. 19.——[k] See ver. 29.——[l] Chap. xxxix. 9.——[m] Or, chief marshal.——[n] Heb. chief of the executioners, or slaughtermen; and so ver. 14, &c. [o] Heb. stood before.——[p] Chap. xxxix. 8, 9.——[q] Chap. xxvii. 19. [r] See 1 Kings vii. 15, 23, 27, 50.——[s] Exod. xxvii. 3; 2 Kings xxv. 14, 15, 16.——[t] Or, instruments to remove the ashes.

[u] Or, basins.——[v] Or, censers.——[w] 1 Kings vii. 47.——[x] Heb. their brass.——[y] 1 Kings vii. 15; 2 Kings xxv. 17; 2 Chron. iii. 15.——[z] Heb. thread.——[a] See 1 Kings vii. 20.——[b] 2 Kings xxv. 18.——[c] Chap. xxi. 1; xxix. 25.——[d] Heb. threshold.——[e] Heb. saw the face of the king.——[f] Or, scribe of the captain of the host. [g] Lam. i. 3.

Verse 12. Now in the fifth month] Answering nearly to our August.

Verse 13. And burned the house of the Lord] Thus perished this magnificent structure, after it had stood four hundred and twenty-four years three months and eight days. It was built A. M. 2992, and destroyed A. M. 3416.

Verse 15. Those that fell away] The deserters to the Chaldeans during the siege.

Verse 16. The poor of the land] See on chap. xxxix. 1.

Verse 17. Also the pillars] See on chap. xxvii. 19.

Verses 18–23. In reference to these verses see the parallel texts in the margin, the various readings there, and the notes.

Verse 24. The second priest] See the note on 2 Kings xxv. 18.

The three keepers] The priests who stood at the door to receive the offerings of the people, see 2 Kings xx. 9, and xxiii. 4.

Verse 25. Seven men—that were near the king's person] These were privy counsellors.

A. M. 3404. B. C. 600. Ol. XLV. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 17.

28 [h] This is the people whom Nebuchadrezzar carried away captive: in the [i] seventh year [k] three thousand Jews and three and twenty:

A. M. 3415. B. C. 589. Ol. XLVII. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 28.

29 [l] In the eighteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar he carried away captive from Jerusalem eight hundred thirty and two [m] persons:

A. M. 3420. B. C. 584. Ol. XLIX. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 33.

30 In the three and twentieth year of Nebuchadrezzar Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard carried away captive of the Jews seven hundred forty and five persons: all the persons were four thousand and six hundred.

A. M. 3442. B. C. 562. Ol. LIV. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 17.

31 [n] And it came to pass in the seven and thirtieth year of the captivity of Jehoiachin king of Judah, in the twelfth month, in the five and twentieth day of the month, that Evil-merodach king of Babylon in the first year of his reign [o] lifted up the head of Jehoiachin king of Judah, and brought him forth out of prison,

32 And spake [p] kindly unto him, and set his throne above the throne of the kings that were with him in Babylon,

33 And changed his prison garments: [q] and [h] 2 Kings xxiv. 2.——[i] See 2 Kings xxiv. 12.——[k] See 2 Kings xxiv. 14.——[l] See ver. 12; chap. xxxix. 9.——[m] Heb. souls.

[n] 2 Kings xxv. 27, 28, 29, 30.——[o] Gen. xiv. 13, 20.——[p] Heb. good things with him.——[q] 2 Sam. ix. 13.

Verses 28–30. On these verses Dr. Blayney has some sensible remarks; I will extract the substance. These verses are not inserted in 2 Kings xxv. Are we to conclude from these verses that the whole number of the Jews which Nebuchadnezzar, in all his expeditions, carried away, was no more than four thousand six hundred? This cannot be true; for he carried away more than twice that number at one time; and this is expressly said to have been in the eighth year of his reign, 2 Kings xxiv. 12–16. Before that time he had carried off a number of captives from Jerusalem, in the first year of his reign, among whom were Daniel and his companions, Dan. i. 3–6. These are confessedly not noticed here. And as the taking and burning of Jerusalem is in this very chapter said to have been in the fourth and fifth months of the nineteenth year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar, those who were carried into captivity at the date of those events cannot possibly be the same with those that are said to be carried away either in the eighteenth or twenty-third year of that prince. Nor, indeed, is it credible that the number carried away at the time that the city was taken, and the whole country reduced, could be so few as eight hundred and thirty-two, (see ver. 29;) supposing a mistake in the date of the year, which some are willing to do without sufficient grounds.

Here then we have three deportations, and those the most considerable ones, in the first, in the eighth, and nineteenth years of Nebuchadnezzar, sufficiently distinguished from those in the seventh, eighteenth, and twenty-third years. So that it seems most reasonable to conclude with Abp. Usher, in Chronologia Sacra, that by the latter three the historian meant to point out deportations of a minor kind, not elsewhere noticed in direct terms in Scripture.

The first of these, said to have been in the seventh year of Nebuchadnezzar, was one of those that had been picked up in several parts of Judah by the band of Chaldeans, Syrians, and others, whom the king of Babylon sent against the land previously to his own coming, 2 Kings xxiv. 2.

That in the eighteenth year corresponds with the time when the Chaldean army broke off the siege before Jerusalem, and marched to meet the Egyptian army, at which time they might think it proper to send off the prisoners that were in camp, under a guard to Babylon.

And the last, in the twenty-third year of Nebuchadnezzar, was when that monarch, being engaged in the siege of Tyre, sent off Nebuzar-adan against the Moabites, Ammonites, and other neighbouring nations, who at the same time carried away the gleanings of Jews that remained in their own land, amounting in all to no more than seven hundred and forty-five.

Josephus speaks of this expedition against the Moabites and Ammonites, which he places in the twenty-third year of Nebuchadnezzar; but mentions nothing done in the land of Israel at that time. Only he says, that after the conquest of those nations, Nebuchadnezzar carried his victorious arms against Egypt, which he in some measure reduced, and carried the Jews whom he found there captives to Babylon. But the Egyptian expedition was not till the twenty-seventh year of Jehoiachin's captivity, i. e., the thirty-fifth of Nebuchadnezzar, as may be collected from Ezek. xxix. 17; so that those who were carried away in the twenty-third year were not from Egypt, but were, as before observed, the few Jews that remained in the land of Judah.

Verse 31. In the twelfth month] Answering nearly to our twenty-fifth of April, A. M. 3442.

Lifted up the head of Jehoiachin] This phrase is taken from Gen. xl. 13. It is founded on the observation that those who are in sorrow hold down their heads, and when they are comforted, or the cause of their sorrow removed, they lift up their heads. The Hebrew phrase, lift up the head, signifies to comfort, cheer, make happy.

Verse 32. Spake kindly] Conversed freely with him.

Set his throne] Gave him a more respectable seat than any of the captive princes, or better than even his own princes had, probably near his person.

Verse 33. And changed his prison garments] That is, Jehoiachin changed his own garments, that he might be suited in that respect to the state of his elevation. Kings also, in token of favour, gave caftans or robes to those whom they wish to honour.

A. M. 3442. B. C. 562. Ol. LIV. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 17.

he did continually eat bread before him all the days of his life.

34 And for his diet, there was a continual diet given him of the king of Babylon, [r] every day a portion until the day of his death, all the days of his life.

A. M. 3442. B. C. 562. Ol. LIV. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 17.

[r] Heb. the matter of the day in his day.

And he did continually eat bread before him] Was a constant guest at the king's table.

Verse 34. And—there was a continual diet given him] This was probably a ration allowed by the king for the support of Jehoiachin's household. For other particulars, see the note on 2 Kings xxv. 30.

All the days of his life.] I believe these words have been by mistake added from the preceding verse. There, they are proper; here, they are tautological. They are wanting in the Septuagint and in the Arabic.

The preceding words, עד יום מותו ad yom motho, "to the day of his death," are wanting in two of De Rossi's and one of Kennicott's MSS.

Coverdale ends thus: All the dayes of his life untill he died. This is better than the common Version.

Immediately after this verse my old MS. Bible adds the following words: And done is aftir that into caitifte is brougt Israel, and Jerusalem is destroide, satte Jeremye the prophet weepund, and weiled with this lamentacion Jerusalem; and with bitter inwit sighand and criand weilawai, seide. Then follows in red letters: Here beginneth the Lamentacion of Jeremye, that is intitle Cenoth; with the sortynge out of Ebrue letters. ALEPH: How sittith aloon the city, &c. See something of a similar kind from other authorities, at the beginning of Lamentations

MASORETIC NOTES.

Number of verses in this Book, 1365.

Middle verse, chap. xxviii. 11

Masoretic sections, 31

INTRODUCTION

TO THE

LAMENTATIONS

OF

JEREMIAH.

THIS book, like the several books of the Pentateuch, is denominated in Hebrew איכה eicah, how, from its first word; and sometimes קינות kinnoth, lamentations, from its subject. In the Septuagint it is termed ΘΡΗΝΟΙ ΤΟΥ ΙΕΡΕΜΙΟΥ, for the same reason. The Syriac and Arabic copy or follow the Septuagint; and so does the Vulgate, from the Lamentationes of which, the book has that name which it bears in our language. In the Chaldee it has no name; and in it, and perhaps anciently in the Hebrew, it was written consecutively with the last chapter of Jeremiah.

It is one of the books of the מגילות Megilloth, or Roll, among the Jews; and because it relates to the ruin of their affairs, and contains promises of restoration, it is peculiarly prized, and frequently read. The five Megilloth are: Ecclesiastes, Canticles, Lamentations, Ruth, and Esther.

There has been little difference among learned men concerning the author of this book. The whole current of antiquity and modern times has pointed out Jeremiah as the writer: of this the style is a sufficient evidence. Mr. John Henry Pareau, in a Dissertation prefixed to his Translation and Notes on this book, (8vo. Lugd. Bat. 1790,) has proved this point amply from a general collation of the prophecy of Jeremiah with select passages in this book. I have heard of but one learned man who has entertained serious doubts on the subject, Mr. Herman Van der Hardt, who has supposed the five chapters were written by Daniel, Shadrach, Meshach, Abednego, and Jeconiah. To this opinion I suppose none has ever been converted.

There has been more difference of opinion relative to the subject and occasion. Some have thought the book was composed on the death of Josiah; others that it was composed on occasion of the destruction of Jerusalem, and the various desolations connected with it. To this all its parts and its general phraseology seem best to apply; and this is the sentiment most generally embraced at present. This will receive much proof from a minute consideration of the book itself.

The composition of this poem is what may be called very technical. Every chapter, except the last, is an acrostic. Of the two first, each verse begins with a several letter of the Hebrew alphabet, in the order of the letters, with this exception, that in the second, third, and fourth chapters, the פ phe is put before the ע ain; whereas in all the acrostic Psalms the latter precedes the former, as it does in all grammars of the Hebrew language. In the first and second chapters each verse is composed of three hemistichs or half verses, except the seventh verse of the first, and the nineteenth of the second chapter, which have each four hemistichs.

The third chapter contains sixty-four verses, each, as before, formed of three hemistichs, but with this difference, that each hemistich begins with the same letter, so that the whole alphabet is thrice repeated in this chapter.

The fourth chapter is made up of twenty-two verses, according to the number of the Hebrew letters; but the composition is different from all the rest, for each verse consists of only two hemistichs, and those much shorter than any in the preceding chapters.

I have called this an inimitable poem; better judges are of the same opinion. "Never," says Bishop Lowth, "was there a more rich and elegant variety of beautiful images and adjuncts arranged together within so small a compass, nor more happily chosen and applied."

"One would think," says Dr. South, "that every letter was written with a tear; every word, the sound of a breaking heart: that the author was compacted of sorrows; disciplined to grief from his infancy; one who never breathed but in sighs, nor spoke but in a groan."

"Nor can we too much admire," says Dr. Blayney, "the full and graceful flow of that pathetic eloquence in which the author pours forth the effusions of a patriotic heart, and piously weeps over the ruins of his venerable country. But it was observed before that the prophet's peculiar talent lay in working up and expressing the passions of grief and pity, and, unhappily for him as a man and a citizen, he met with a subject but too well calculated to give his genius its full display."

David in several places has forcibly depicted the sorrows of a heart oppressed with penitential sorrow; but where, in a composition of such length, have bodily misery and mental agony been more successfully painted? All the expressions and images of sorrow are here exhibited in various combinations, and in various points of view. Misery has no expression that the author of the Lamentations has not employed. Patriots! you who tell us you burn for your country's welfare, look at the prophecies and history of this extraordinary man; look at his Lamentations; take him through his life to his death, and learn from him what true patriotism means! The man who watched, prayed, and lived for the welfare of his country; who chose to share her adversities, her sorrows, her wants, her afflictions, and disgrace, where he might have been a companion of princes, and have sat at the table of kings; who only ceased to live for his country when he ceased to breathe;—that was a patriot, in comparison with whom almost all others are obscured, minished, and brought low, or are totally annihilated!

THE

LAMENTATIONS

OF

JEREMIAH.

Chronological notes relative to the Book of the Lamentations.

Year from the Creation, according to Archbishop Usher, 3416.—Year of the Jewish era of the world, 3173.—Year from the Deluge, 1760.—First year of the forty-eighth Olympiad.—Year from the building of Rome, according to the Varronian account, 166.—Year before the birth of Christ, 584.—Year before the vulgar era of Christ's nativity, 588.—Year of the Julian Period, 4126.—Year of the era of Nabonassar, 160.—Cycle of the Sun, 10.—Cycle of the Moon, 3.—Second year after the fourth Sabbatic year after the seventeenth Jewish jubilee, according to Helvicus.—Twenty-ninth year of Tarquinius Priscus, the fifth king of the Romans: this was the seventy-ninth year before the commencement of the consular government.—Thirty-eighth year of Cyaxares or Cyaraxes, the fourth king of Media.—Eighteenth year of Agasicles, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Proclidæ.—Twentieth year of Leon, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Eurysthenidæ. Thirty-second year of Alyattes II., king of Lydia. This was the father of the celebrated Crœsus.—Fifteenth year of Æropas, the seventh king of Macedon.—Nineteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon.—Eleventh year of Zedekiah, the last king of Judah.

CHAPTER I.

The prophet begins with lamenting the dismal reverse of fortune that befell his country, confessing at the same time that her calamities were the just consequence of her sins, 1–6. Jerusalem herself is then personified and brought forward to continue the sad complaint, and to solicit the mercy of God, 7–22.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

HOW doth the city sit solitary, that was full of people: [a] how is she become as a widow! she that was great among the nations, and [b] princess among the provinces, how is she become tributary!

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

2 She [c] weepeth sore in the

[a] Isa. xlvii. 7, 8.——[b] Ezra iv. 20.

[c] Jer. xiii. 17.

In all copies of the Septuagint, whether of the Roman or Alexandrian editions, the following words are found as a part of the text: Και εγενετο μετα το αιχμαλωτισθηναι τον Ισραηλ, και Ιερουσαλημ ερημωθηναι, εκαθισεν Ιερεμιας κλαιων, και εθρηνησεν τον θρηνον τουτον επι Ιερουσαλημ, και ειπεν·—"And it came to pass after Israel had been carried away captive, and Jerusalem was become desolate, that Jeremiah sat weeping: and he lamented with this lamentation over Jerusalem; and he said."

The Vulgate has the same, with some variations:—"Et factum est, postquam in captivitatem redactus est Israel, et Jerusalem deserta est, sedit Jeremias propheta flens, et planxit lamentatione hac in Jerusalem, et amaro animo suspirans et ejulans, dixit." The translation of this, as given in the first translation of the Bible into English, may be found at the end of Jeremiah, taken from an ancient MS. in my own possession.

I subjoin another taken from the first PRINTED edition of the English Bible, that by Coverdale, 1535. "And it came to passe, (after Israel was brought into captyvitie, and Jerusalem destroyed;) that Jeremy the prophet sat weeping, mournynge, and makinge his mone in Jerusalem; so that with an hevy herte he sighed and sobbed, sayenge."

Matthew's Bible, printed in 1549, refines upon this: "It happened after Israell was brought into captyvite, and Jerusalem destroyed, that Jeremy the prophet sate wepyng, and sorrowfully bewayled Jerusalem; and syghynge and hewlynge with an hevy and wooful hert, sayde."

Becke's Bible of the same date, and Cardmarden's of 1566, have the same, with a trifling change in the orthography.

On this Becke and others have the following note:—"These words are read in the LXX. interpreters: but not in the Hebrue."

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

[d] night, and her tears are on her cheeks: [e] among all her lovers [f] she hath none to comfort her: all her friends have dealt treacherously with her, they are become her enemies.

3 [g] Judah is gone into captivity because of affliction, and [h] because of great servitude: [i] she dwelleth among the heathen, she findeth no rest: all her persecutors overtook her between the straits.

4 The ways of Zion do mourn, because none come to the solemn feasts: all her gates are desolate: her priests sigh, her virgins are afflicted, and she is in bitterness.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588 Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

5 Her adversaries [k] are the chief, her enemies prosper; for the LORD hath afflicted her [l] for the multitude of her transgressions: her [m] children are gone into captivity before the enemy.

6 And from the daughter of Zion all her beauty is departed: her princes are become like harts that find no pasture, and they are gone without strength before the pursuer.

[d] Job vii. 3; Psa. vi. 6.——[e] Jer. iv. 30; xxx. 14; ver. 19. [f] Ver. 9, 16, 17, 21.——[g] Jer. lii. 27.——[h] Heb. for the greatness of servitude.——[i] Deut. xxviii. 64, 65; chap. ii. 9.——[k] Deut. xxviii. 43, 44.——[l] Jer. xxx. 14, 15; Dan. ix. 7, 16.——[m] Jer. lii. 28.

All these show that it was the ancient opinion that the Book of Lamentations was composed, not over the death of Josiah, but on account of the desolations of Israel and Jerusalem.

The Arabic copies the Septuagint. The Syriac does not acknowledge it; and the Chaldee has these words only: "Jeremiah the great priest and prophet said."

NOTES ON CHAP. I.

Verse 1. How doth the city sit solitary] Sitting down, with the elbow on the knee, and the head supported by the hand, without any company, unless an oppressor near,—all these were signs of mourning and distress. The coin struck by Vespasian on the capture of Jerusalem, on the obverse of which there is a palm-tree, the emblem of Judea, and under it a woman, the emblem of Jerusalem, sitting, leaning as before described, with the legend Judea capta, illustrates this expression as well as that in Isa. xlvii. 1. See the note on Isa. iii. 26, where the subject is farther explained.

Become as a widow] Having lost her king. Cities are commonly described as the mothers of their inhabitants, the kings as husbands, and the princes as children. When therefore they are bereaved of these, they are represented as widows, and childless.

The Hindoo widow, as well as the Jewish, is considered the most destitute and wretched of all human beings. She has her hair cut short, throws off all ornaments, eats the coarsest food, fasts often, and is all but an outcast in the family of her late husband.

Is she become tributary!] Having no longer the political form of a nation; and the remnant that is left paying tribute to a foreign and heathen conqueror.

Verse 2. Among all her lovers] Her allies; her friends, instead of helping her, have helped her enemies. Several who sought her friendship when she was in prosperity, in the time of David and Solomon, are now among her enemies.

Verse 3. Between the straits.] She has been brought into such difficulties, that it was impossible for her to escape. Has this any reference to the circumstances in which Zedekiah and the princes of Judah endeavoured to escape from Jerusalem, by the way of the gates between the two walls? Jer. lii. 7.

Verse 4. The ways of Zion do mourn] A fine prosopopœia. The ways in which the people trod coming to the sacred solemnities, being now no longer frequented, are represented as shedding tears; and the gates themselves partake of the general distress. All poets of eminence among the Greeks and Romans have recourse to this image. So Moschus, in his Epitaph on Bion, ver. 1–3:—

Αιλινα μοι στοναχειτε ναπαι, και Δωριον ὑδωρ
Και ποταμοι κλαιοιτε τον ἱμεροεντα Βιωνα.
Νυν φυτα μοι μυρεσθε, και αλσεα νυν γοαοισθε, κ. τ. λ.

"Ye winds, with grief your waving summits bow,
Ye Dorian fountains, murmur as ye flow;
From weeping urns your copious sorrows shed,
And bid the rivers mourn for Bion dead.
Ye shady groves, in robes of sable hue,
Bewail, ye plants, in pearly drops of dew;
Ye drooping flowers, diffuse a languid breath,
And die with sorrow, at sweet Bion's death."
FAWKES.

So Virgil, Æn. vii., ver. 759:—

Te nemus Anguitiæ, vitrea te Fucinus unda
Te liquidi flevere lacus.

"For thee, wide echoing, sighed th' Anguitian woods;
For thee, in murmurs, wept thy native floods."

And more particularly on the death of Daphnis, Eclog. v. ver. 24:—

Non ulli pastos illis egere diebus
Frigida, Daphni, boves ad flumina: nulla neque amnem
Libavit quadrupes, nec graminis attigit herbam.
Daphni, tuum Pœnos etiam ingemuisse leones
Interitum, montesque feri, sylvæque loquuntur.

"The swains forgot their sheep, nor near the brink
Of running waters brought their herds to drink:
The thirsty cattle of themselves abstained
From water, and their grassy fare disdained.
The death of Daphnis woods and hills deplore;
The Libyan lions hear, and hearing roar."
DRYDEN.

Verse 5. Her adversaries are the chief] They have now supreme dominion over the whole land.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

7 Jerusalem remembered in the days of her affliction and of her miseries all [n] her pleasant things that she had in the days of old, when her people fell into the hand of the enemy, and none did help her: the adversaries saw her, and did mock at her sabbaths.

8 [o] Jerusalem hath grievously sinned; therefore she [p] is removed: all that honoured her despise her, because [q] they have seen her nakedness: yea, she sigheth, and turneth backward.

9 Her filthiness is in her skirts; she [r] remembereth not her last end; therefore she came down wonderfully: [s] she had no comforter. O LORD, behold my affliction: for the enemy hath magnified himself.

10 The adversary hath spread out his hand upon [t] all her [u] pleasant things: for she hath seen that [v] the heathen entered into her sanctuary, whom thou didst command that [w] they should not enter into thy congregation.

11 All her people sigh, [x] they seek bread; they have given their pleasant things for meat [y] to relieve the soul: see, O LORD, and consider; for I am become vile.

12 [z] Is it nothing to you, all ye that [a] pass by? behold, and see [b] if there be any sorrow like unto my sorrow, which is done unto me, wherewith the LORD hath afflicted me in the day of his fierce anger.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

13 From above hath he sent fire into my bones, and it prevaileth against them: he hath [c] spread a net for my feet, he hath turned me back: he hath made me desolate and faint all the day.

14 [d] The yoke of my transgressions is bound by his hand: they are wreathed, and come up upon my neck: he hath made my strength to fall, the LORD hath delivered me into their hands, from whom I am not able to rise up.

15 The LORD hath trodden under foot all my mighty men in the midst of me: he hath called an assembly against me to crush my young men: [e] the LORD hath trodden [f] the virgin, the daughter of Judah, as in a wine-press.

16 For these things I weep; [g] mine eye, mine eye runneth down with water, because [h] the comforter that should [i] relieve my soul is far from me: my children are desolate, because the enemy prevailed.

[n] Or, desirable; ver. 10.——[o] 1 Kings viii. 46.——[p] Heb. is become a removing, or wandering.——[q] Jer. xiii. 22, 26; Ezek. xvi. 37; xxiii. 29; Hos. ii. 10.——[r] Deut. xxxii. 29; Isa. xlvii. 7.
[s] Ver. 2, 17, 21.——[t] Ver. 7.——[u] Or, desirable.——[v] Jer. li. 51.
[w] Deut. xxiii. 3; Neh. xiii. 1.——[x] Jer. xxxviii. 9; lii. 6; chap. ii. 12; iv. 4.

[y] Or, to make the soul to come again.——[z] Or, It is nothing.
[a] Heb. pass by the way.——[b] Dan. ix. 12.——[c] Ezek. xii. 13; xvii. 20.——[d] Deut. xxviii. 48.——[e] Isa. lxiii. 3; Rev. xiv. 19, 20; xix. 15.——[f] Or, the winepress of the virgin, &c.
[g] Jer. xiii. 17; xiv. 17; chap. ii. 18.——[h] Ver. 2, 9.——[i] Heb. bring back.

Verse 7. Did mock at her Sabbaths.] משבתה mishbattcha. Some contend that Sabbaths are not intended here. The Septuagint has κατοικεσια αυτης, "her habitation;" the Chaldee, על טוביהא al tubaha, "her good things;" the Syriac, ܥܠ ܒܥܘܬܗ al toboroh, "her breach." The Vulgate and Arabic agree with the Hebrew. Some of my oldest MSS. have the word in the plural number, משבתיה mishbatteyha, "her Sabbaths." A multitude of Kennicott's MSS. have the same reading. The Jews were despised by the heathen for keeping the Sabbath. Juvenal mocks them on that account:—

——cui septima quæque fuit lux
Ignava et partem vitæ non attigit ullam. Sat. v.

"To whom every seventh day was a blank, and formed not any part of their life."

St. Augustine represents Seneca as doing the same:—Inutiliter id eos facere affirmans, quod septimani ferme partem ætatis suæ perdent vacando, et multa in tempore urgentia non agendo lædantur. "That they lost the seventh part of their life in keeping their Sabbaths; and injured themselves by abstaining from the performance of many necessary things in such times." He did not consider that the Roman calendar and customs gave them many more idle days than God had prescribed in Sabbaths to the Jews. The Sabbath is a most wise and beneficent ordinance.

Verse 9. She remembereth not her last end] Although evident marks of her pollution appeared about her, and the land was defiled by her sinfulness even to its utmost borders, she had no thought or consideration of what must be the consequence of all this at the last. —Blayney.

Verse 11. They have given their pleasant things] Jerusalem is compared to a woman brought into great straits, who parts with her jewels and trinkets in order to purchase by them the necessaries of life.

Verse 12. Is it nothing to you, all ye that pass by?] The desolations and distress brought upon this city and its inhabitants had scarcely any parallel. Excessive abuse of God's accumulated mercies calls for singular and exemplary punishment.

Verse 14. The yoke of my transgressions] I am now tied and bound by the chain of my sins; and it is so wreathed, so doubled and twisted round me, that I cannot free myself. A fine representation of the miseries of a penitent soul, which feels that nothing but the pitifulness of God's mercy can loose it.

Verse 15. Called an assembly] The Chaldean army, composed of various nations, which God commissioned to destroy Jerusalem.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

17 [k] Zion spreadeth forth her hands, and [l] there is none to comfort her: the LORD hath commanded concerning Jacob, that his adversaries should be round about him: Jerusalem is as a menstruous woman among them.

18 The LORD is [m] righteous; for I have [n] rebelled against his [o] commandment: hear, I pray you, all people, and behold my sorrow: my virgins and my young men are gone into captivity.

19 I called for my lovers, but [p] they deceived me: my priests and mine elders gave up the ghost in the city, [q] while they sought their meat to relieve their souls.

20 Behold, O LORD; for I am in distress: my [r] bowels are troubled: mine heart is turned within me; for I have grievously rebelled: [s] abroad the sword bereaveth, at home there is as death.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

21 They have heard that I sigh: [t] there is none to comfort me: all mine enemies have heard of my trouble; they are glad that thou hast done it: thou wilt bring [u] the day that thou hast [v] called, and they shall be like unto me.

22 [w] Let all their wickedness come before thee; and do unto them, as thou hast done unto me for all my transgressions: for my sighs are many, and [x] my heart is faint.

---

[k] Jer. iv. 31.——[l] Ver. 2, 9.——[m] Neh. ix. 33; Dan. ix. 7, 14. [n] 1 Sam. xii. 14, 15.——[o] Heb. mouth.——[p] Ver. 2; Jer. xxx. 14. [q] Ver. 11.——[r] Job xxx. 27; Isa. xvi. 11; Jer. iv. 19; xlviii. 36; chap. ii. 11; Hos. xi. 8.——[s] Deut. xxxii. 25; Ezek. vii. 15. [t] Ver. 2.——[u] Isa. xiii. &c.; Jer. xlvi. &c.——[v] Or, proclaimed. [w] Psa. cix. 15.——[x] Chap. v. 17.

Verse 17. Zion spreadeth forth her hands] Extending the hands is the form in supplication.

Jerusalem is as a menstruous woman] To whom none dared to approach, either to help or comfort, because of the law, Lev. xv. 19–27.

Verse 19. I called for my lovers] My allies; the Egyptians and others.

Verse 20. Abroad the sword bereaveth] WAR is through the country; and at home death; the pestilence and famine rage in the city; calamity in every shape is fallen upon me.

Virgil represents the calamities of Troy under the same image:—

——— Nec soli pœnas dant sanguine Teucri:
Quondam etiam victis redit in præcordia virtus;
Victoresque cadunt Danai. Crudelis ubique
Luctus, ubique Pavor, et plurima mortis imago.
Æneid. lib. ii. 366.

"Not only Trojans fall; but, in their turn,
The vanquished triumph, and the victors mourn.
Ours take new courage from despair and night;
Confused the fortune is, confused the fight.
All parts resound with tumults, plaints, and fears;
And grisly death in sundry shapes appears."
DRYDEN.

So Milton—

"——————————— Despair
Tended the sick, busiest from couch to couch;
And over them triumphant Death his dart
Shook." Par. Lost, B. xi. 489.

Jeremiah, chap. ix. 21, uses the same image:—

Death is come up into our windows:
He hath entered our palaces,
To cut off the infants without,
And the young men in our streets.

So Silius Italicus, II. 548:—

Mors graditur, vasto pandens cava guttura rictu, Casuroque inhians populo.

"Death stalks along, and opens his hideous throat to gulp down the people."

Verse 21. They have heard that I sigh] My affliction is public enough; but no one comes to comfort me.

They are glad that thou hast done it] On the contrary, they exult in my misery; and they see that THOU hast done what they were incapable of performing.

Thou wilt bring the day that thou hast called, and they shall be like unto me.] Babylon shall be visited in her turn; and thy judgments poured out upon her shall equal her state with my own. See the last six chapters of the preceding prophecy for the accomplishment of this prediction.

Verse 22. Let all their wickedness come before thee] That is, Thou wilt call their crimes also into remembrance; and thou wilt do unto them by siege, sword, famine, and captivity, what thou hast done to me. Though thy judgments, because of thy long-suffering, are slow; yet, because of thy righteousness, they are sure.

For my sighs are many] My desolations continue; and my heart is faint—my political and physical strength almost totally destroyed.

Imprecations in the sacred writings are generally to be understood as declarative of the evils they indicate; or, that such evils will take place. No prophet of God ever wished desolation on those against whom he was directed to prophesy.

CHAPTER II.

The prophet shows the dire effects of the Divine anger in the miseries brought on his country; the unparalleled calamities of which he charges, in a great measure, on the false prophets, 1–14. In this desperate condition, the astonishment and by-word of all who see her, Jerusalem is directed to sue earnestly for mercy and pardon, 15–22.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

HOW hath the LORD covered the daughter of Zion with a cloud in his anger, [a] and cast down from heaven unto the earth [b] the beauty of Israel, and remembered not [c] his footstool in the day of his anger!

2 The LORD hath swallowed up all the habitations of Jacob, [d] and hath not pitied: he hath thrown down in his wrath the strong holds of the daughter of Judah; he hath [e] brought them down to the ground: [f] he hath polluted the kingdom and the princes thereof.

3 He hath cut off in his fierce anger all the horn of Israel: [g] he hath drawn back his right hand from before the enemy, [h] and he burned against Jacob like a flaming fire, which devoureth round about.

4 [i] He hath bent his bow like an enemy: he stood with his right hand as an adversary, and slew [k] all [l] that were pleasant to the eye in the tabernacle of the daughter of Zion: he poured out his fury like fire.

5 [m] The LORD was as an enemy: he hath swallowed up Israel, [n] he hath swallowed up all her palaces: he hath destroyed his strong holds, and hath increased in the daughter of Judah mourning and lamentation.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

6 And he hath violently [o] taken away his [p] tabernacle, [q] as if it were of a garden: he hath destroyed his places of the assembly: [r] the LORD hath caused the solemn feasts and sabbaths to be forgotten in Zion, and hath despised in the indignation of his anger the king and the priest.

7 The LORD hath cast off his altar, he hath abhorred his sanctuary, he hath [s] given up into the hand of the enemy the walls of her palaces; [t] they have made a noise in the house of the LORD, as in the day of a solemn feast.

8 The LORD hath purposed to destroy the wall of the daughter of Zion: [u] he hath stretched out a line, he hath not withdrawn his hand from [v] destroying: therefore he made the rampart and the wall to lament; they languished together.

[a] Matt. xi. 23.——[b] 2 Sam. i. 19.——[c] 1 Chron. xxviii. 2; Psa. xcix. 5; cxxxii. 7.——[d] Ver. 17, 21; chap. iii. 43.——[e] Heb. made to touch.——[f] Psa. lxxxix. 39.——[g] Psa. lxxiv. 11.——[h] Psa. lxxxix. 46.——[i] Isa. lxiii. 10; ver. 5.——[k] Heb. all the desirable of the eye.

[l] Ezek. xxiv. 25.——[m] Ver. 4; Jer. xxx. 14.——[n] 2 Kings xxv. 9; Jer. lii. 13.——[o] Psa. lxxx. 12; lxxxix. 40; Isa. v. 5.——[p] Or, hedge.——[q] Isa. i. 8.——[r] Chap. i. 4; Zeph. iii. 18.——[s] Heb. shut up.——[t] Psa. lxxiv. 4.——[u] 2 Kings xxi. 13; Isa. xxxiv. 11. [v] Heb. swallowing up.

NOTES ON CHAP. II.

Verse 1. How hath the Lord covered the daughter of Zion with a cloud] The women in the eastern countries wear veils, and often very costly ones. Here, Zion is represented as being veiled by the hand of God's judgment. And what is the veil? A dark cloud, by which she is entirely obscured.

Instead of אדני Adonai, lord, twenty-four of Dr. Kennicott's MSS., and some of the most ancient of my own, read יהוה Yehovah, LORD, as in ver. 2.

The beauty of Israel] His Temple.

His footstool] The ark of the covenant, often so called. The rendering of my old MS. Bible is curious:—And record not of his litil steging-stole of his feet, in the dai of his woodnesse. To be wood signifies, in our ancient language, to be mad.

Verse 2. The Lord hath swallowed up] It is a strange figure when thus applied: but Jehovah is here represented as having swallowed down Jerusalem and all the cities and fortifications in the land: that is, he has permitted them to be destroyed. See ver. 5.

Verse 3. The horn of Israel] His power and strength. It is a metaphor taken from cattle, whose principal strength lies in their horns.

Hath drawn back his right hand] He did not support us when our enemies came against us.

Verse 4. He hath bent his bow—he stood with his right hand] This is the attitude of the archer. He first bends his bow; then sets his arrow upon the string; and, lastly, placing his right hand on the lower end of the arrow, in connexion with the string, takes his aim, and prepares to let fly.

Verse 6. As if it were of a garden] "As it were the garden of his own hedging."—Blayney.

The Lord hath caused the solemn feasts] By delivering us up into the hands of the enemy our religious worship is not only suspended, but all Divine ordinances are destroyed.

Verse 7. They have made a noise in the house of the Lord] Instead of the silver trumpets of the sanctuary, nothing but the sounds of warlike instruments are to be heard.

Verse 8. He hath stretched out a line] The line of devastation; marking what was to be pulled down and demolished.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

9 Her gates are sunk into the ground; he hath destroyed and [w] broken her bars: [x] her king and her princes are among the Gentiles: [y] the law is no more; her [z] prophets also find no vision from the LORD.

10 The elders of the daughter of Zion [a] sit upon the ground, and keep silence: they have [b] cast up dust upon their heads; they have [c] girded themselves with sackcloth: the virgins of Jerusalem hang down their heads to the ground.

11 [d] Mine eyes do fail with tears, [e] my bowels are troubled, [f] my liver is poured upon the earth, for the destruction of the daughter of my people; because [g] the children and the sucklings [h] swoon in the streets of the city.

12 They say to their mothers, Where is corn and wine? when they swooned as the wounded in the streets of the city, when their soul was poured out into their mothers' bosom.

13 What thing shall I take to witness for thee? [i] what thing shall I liken to thee, O daughter of Jerusalem? what shall I equal to thee, that I may comfort thee, O virgin daughter of Zion? for thy breach is great like the sea: who can heal thee?

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

14 Thy [k] prophets have seen vain and foolish things for thee: and they have not [l] discovered thine iniquity, to turn away thy captivity; but have seen for thee false burdens and causes of banishment.

15 [m] All that pass [n] by [o] clap their hands at thee; they hiss [p] and wag their head at the daughter of Jerusalem, saying, Is this the city that men call [q] The perfection of beauty, The joy of the whole earth?

16 [r] All thine enemies have opened their mouth against thee: they hiss and gnash the teeth: they say, [s] We have swallowed her up: certainly this is the day that we looked for; we have found, [t] we have seen it.

17 The LORD hath done that which he had [u] devised; he hath fulfilled his word that he had commanded in the days of old: [v] he hath thrown down, and hath not pitied: and he hath caused thine enemy to [w] rejoice over thee, he hath set up the horn of thine adversaries.

18 Their heart cried unto the LORD, O

[w] Jer. li. 30.——[x] Deut. xxviii. 36; 2 Kings xxiv. 15; xxv. 7; chap. i. 3; iv. 20.——[y] 2 Chron. xv. 3.——[z] Psa. lxxiv. 9; Ezek. vii. 26.——[a] Job ii. 13; Isa. iii. 26; chap. iii. 28.——[b] Job ii. 12.——[c] Isa. xv. 3; Ezek. vii. 18; xxvii. 31.——[d] Psa. vi. 7; chap. iii. 48, &c.——[e] Chap i. 20.——[f] Job xvi. 13; Psa. xxii. 14.——[g] Ver. 19; chap. iv. 4.——[h] Or, faint.——[i] Chap. i. 12; Dan. ix. 12.

[k] Jer. ii. 8; v. 31; xiv. 14; xxiii. 16; xxvii. 14; xxix. 8, 9; Ezek. xiii. 2.——[l] Isa. lviii. 1.——[m] 1 Kings ix. 8; Jer. xviii. 16; Nah. iii. 19; Ecclus. xii. 18.——[n] Heb. by the way. [o] Ezek. xxv. 6.——[p] 2 Kings xix. 21; Psa. xliv. 14.——[q] Psa. xlviii. 2; l. 2.——[r] Job xvi. 9, 10; Psa. xxii. 13; chap. iii. 46. [s] Psa. lvi. 2.——[t] Psa. xxxv. 21.——[u] Lev. xxvi. 16, &c.; Deut. xxviii. 15, &c.——[v] Ver. 2.——[w] Psa. xxxviii. 16; lxxxix. 42.

Verse 9. Her gates are sunk into the ground] The consequence of their being long thrown down and neglected. From this it appears that the captivity had already lasted a considerable time.

Her king and her princes are among the Gentiles] Zedekiah and many of the princes were then prisoners in Babylon, another proof that the captivity had endured some time; unless all this be spoken prophetically, of what should be done.

Verse 10. Sit upon the ground] See the note on chap. i. 1.

Keep silence] No words can express their sorrows: small griefs are eloquent, great ones dumb.

Verse 11. Swoon in the streets of the city.] Through the excess of the famine.

Verse 12. When their soul was poured out into their mothers' bosom.] When, in endeavouring to draw nourishment from the breasts of their exhausted mothers, they breathed their last in their bosoms! How dreadfully afflicting was this!

Verse 13. What thing shall I take] Or, rather, as Dr. Blayney, "What shall I urge to thee?" How shall I comfort thee?

Thy breach is great like the sea] Thou hast a flood of afflictions, a sea of troubles, an ocean of miseries.

Verse 14. They have not discovered thine iniquity] They did not reprove for sin; they flattered them in their transgressions; and instead of turning away thy captivity, by turning thee from thy sins, they have pretended visions of good in thy favour, and false burdens for thy enemies.

Verse 15. The perfection of beauty] This probably only applied to the temple. Jerusalem never was a fine or splendid city; but the temple was most assuredly the most splendid building in the world.

Verse 16. This is the day that we looked for] Jerusalem was the envy of the surrounding nations: they longed for its destruction, and rejoiced when it took place.

Verse 17. The Lord hath done that] This and the sixteenth verse should be interchanged, to follow the order of the letters in the Hebrew alphabet; as the sixteenth has פ phe for its acrostic letter, and the seventeenth has ע ain, which should precede the other in the order of the alphabet.

Verse 18. O wall of the daughter of Zion] חומת בת ציון chomath bath tsiyon, wall of the daughter of Zion. These words are probably those of the passengers, who appear to be affected by the desolations of the land; and they address the people, and urge them to plead with God day and night for their restoration. But what is the meaning of wall of the daughter of

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

[x] wall of the daughter of Zion, [y] let tears run down like a river day and night: give thyself no rest; let not the apple of thine eye cease.

19 Arise, [z] cry out in the night: in the beginning of the watches [a] pour out thine heart like water before the face of the LORD: lift up thy hands toward him for the life of thy young children, [b] that faint for hunger [c] in the top of every street.

20 Behold, O LORD, and consider to whom thou hast done this. [d] Shall the women eat their fruit, and children [e] of a span long? [f] shall the priest and the prophet be slain in the sanctuary of the LORD?

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

21 [g] The young and the old lie on the ground in the streets: my virgins and my young men are fallen by the sword; thou hast slain them in the day of thine anger; [h] thou hast killed, and no. pitied.

22 Thou hast called as in a solemn day [i] my terrors round about, so that in the day of the LORD's anger none escaped nor remained: [k] those that I have swaddled and brought up hath mine enemy consumed.

[x] Ver. 8.——[y] Jer. xiv. 17; chap. i. 16.——[z] Psa. cxix. 147. [a] Psa. lxii. 8.——[b] Ver. 11.——[c] Isa. li. 20; chap. iv. 1; Nah. iii. 10.——[d] Lev. xxvi. 29; Deut. xxviii. 53; Jer. xix. 9; chap. iv. 10; Ezek. v. 10.——[e] Or, swaddled with their hands.——[f] Ch. iv. 13, 16.——[g] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 17.——[h] Chap. iii. 43.——[i] Psa. xxxi. 13; Jer. vi. 25; xlvi. 5.——[k] Hos. ix. 12, 13.

Zion? I answer, I do not know. It is certainly harsh to say, "O wall of the daughter of Zion, let tears run down like a river day and night." Zion's ways may lament, and her streets mourn; but how the walls can be said to weep is not so easy to be understood, because there is no parallel for it. One of my most ancient MSS. amits the three words; and in it the text stands thus: "Their heart cried unto the Lord, Let tears run down like a river day and night; give thyself no rest," &c.

Let not the apple of thine eye cease.] בת עין bath ayin means either the pupil of the eye, or the tears. Tears are the produce of the eye, and are here elegantly termed the daughter of the eye. Let not thy tears cease. But with what propriety can we say to the apple or pupil of the eye, Do not cease? Tears are most certainly meant.

Verse 19. Arise, cry out in the night] This seems to refer to Jerusalem besieged. Ye who keep the night watches, pour out your hearts before the Lord, instead of calling the time of night, &c.; or, when you call it, send up a fervent prayer to God for the safety and relief of the place.

Verse 20. Consider to whom thou hast done this.] Perhaps the best sense of this difficult verse is this: "Thou art our Father, we are thy children; wilt thou destroy thy own offspring? Was it ever heard that a mother devoured her own child, a helpless infant of a span long?" That it was foretold that there should be such distress in the siege,—that mothers should be obliged to eat their own children, is evident enough from Lev. xxvi. 29; Deut. xxviii. 53, 56, 57; but the former view of the subject seems the most natural, and is best supported by the context. The priest and the prophet are slain; the young and old lie on the ground in the streets; the virgins and young men are fallen by the sword. "THOU hast slain them in the day of thine anger; THOU hast killed, and not pitied." See chap. iv. 10.

Verse 22. Thou hast called as in a solemn day] It is by thy influence alone that so many enemies are called together at one time; and they have so hemmed us in that none could escape, and none remained unslain or uncaptivated. Perhaps the figure is the collecting of the people in Jerusalem on one of the solemn annual festivals. God has called terrors together to feast on Jerusalem, similar to the convocation of the people from all parts of the land to one of those annual festivals. The indiscriminate slaughter of young and old, priest and prophet, all ranks and conditions, may be illustrated by the following verses from Lucan, which appear as if a translation of the nineteenth, twentieth, and twenty-first verses of this chapter:—

Nobilitas cum plebe perit; lateque vagatur
Ensis, et a nullo revocatum est pectore ferrum.
Stat cruor in Templis; multaque rubentia cæde
Lubrica saxa madent. Nulli sua profuit ætas.
Non senes extremum piguit vergentibus annis
Præcipitasse diem; nec primo in limine vitæ,
Infanti miseri nascentia rumpere fata.
Phorsal. lib. ii., 101.

"With what a slide devouring slaughter passed,
And swept promiscuous orders in her haste;
O'er noble and plebeian ranged the sword,
Nor pity nor remorse one pause afford!
The sliding streets with blood were clotted o'er,
And sacred temples stood in pools of gore.
The ruthless steel, impatient of delay,
Forbade the sire to linger out his day:
It struck the bending father to the earth,
And cropped the wailing infant at its birth."
ROWE.

CHAPTER III.

The prophet, by enumerating his own severe trials, 1–20, and showing his trust in God, 21, encourages his people to the like resignation and trust in the Divine and never-failing mercy, 22–27. He vindicates the goodness of God in all his dispensations, and the unreasonableness of murmuring under them, 28–39. He recommends self-examination and repentance; and then, from their experience of former deliverances from God, encourages them to look for pardon for their sins, and retribution to their enemies, 40–66.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

I AM the man that hath seen affliction by the rod of his wrath.

2 He hath led me, and brought me into darkness, but not into light.

3 Surely against me is he turned; he turneth his hand against me all the day.

4 [a] My flesh and my skin hath he made old; he hath [b] broken my bones.

5 He hath builded against me, and compassed me with gall and travel.

6 [c] He hath set me in dark places, as they that be dead of old.

7 [d] He hath hedged me about, that I cannot get out: he hath made my chain heavy.

8 Also [e] when I cry and shout, he shutteth out my prayer.

9 He hath inclosed my ways with hewn stone, he hath made my paths crooked.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

10 [f] He was unto me as a bear lying in wait, and as a lion in secret places.

11 He hath turned aside my ways, and [g] pulled me in pieces: he hath made me desolate.

12 He hath bent his bow, and [h] set me as a mark for the arrow.

13 He hath caused [i] the [k] arrows of his quiver to enter into my reins.

14 I was a [l] derision to all my people; and [m] their song all the day.

15 [n] He hath filled me with [o] bitterness, he hath made me drunken with wormwood.

16 He hath also broken my teeth [p] with

[a] Job xvi. 3.——[b] Psa. li. 8; Isa. xxxviii. 13; Jer. l. 17. [c] Psa. lxxxviii. 5, 6; cxliii. 3.——[d] Job iii. 23; xix. 8; Hos. ii. 6. [e] Job xxx. 20; Psa. xxii. 2.——[f] Job x. 16; Isa. xxxviii. 13; Hos. v. 14; xiii. 7, 8.

[g] Hos. vi. 1.——[h] Job vii. 20; xvi. 12; Psa. xxxviii. 2. [i] Job vi. 4.——[k] Heb. sons.——[l] Jer. xx. 7.——[m] Job xxx. 9; Psa. lxix. 12; ver. 63.——[n] Jer. ix. 15.——[o] Heb. bitternesses. [p] Prov. xx. 17.

NOTES ON CHAP. III.

Verse 1. I am the man that hath seen affliction] Either the prophet speaks here of himself, or he is personating his miserable countrymen. This and other passages in this poem have been applied to Jesus Christ's passion; but, in my opinion, without any foundation.

Verse 2. He hath—brought me into darkness] In the sacred writings, darkness is often taken for calamity; light, for prosperity.

Verse 5. He hath builded against me] Perhaps there is a reference here to the mounds and ramparts raised by the Chaldeans in order to take the city.

Verse 7. He hath hedged me about] This also may refer to the lines drawn round the city during the siege. But these and similar expressions in the following verses may be merely metaphorical, to point out their straitened, oppressed, and distressed state.

Verse 9. He hath inclosed my ways with hewn stone] He has put insuperable obstacles in my way; and confounded all my projects of deliverance, and all my expectations of prosperity.

Verse 12. He hath bent his bow, and set me as a mark for the arrow.] One might conjecture that the following thought in the Toozek i Teemour was borrowed from this:—

"One addressed the caliph Aaly, and said, 'If the heavens were a bow, and the earth the cord thereof; if calamities were arrows, man the butt for those arrows; and the holy blessed God the unerring marksman; where could the sons of Adam flee for succour?' The caliph replied, 'The children of Adam must flee unto the Lord.'" This was the state of poor Jerusalem. It seemed as a butt for all God's arrows; and each arrow of calamity entered into the soul, for God was the unerring marksman.

Verse 13. The arrows of his quiver] בני אשפתו beney ashpatho, "The sons of his quiver." The issue or effect; the subject, adjunct, or accident, or produce of a thing, is frequently denominated its son or child. So arrows that issue from a quiver are here termed the sons of the quiver.

Verse 15. He hath filled me with bitterness] במרורים bimrorim, with bitternesses, bitter upon bitter.

He hath made me drunken with wormwood.] I have drunk the cup of misery till I am intoxicated with it. Almost in all countries, and in all languages, bitterness is a metaphor to express trouble and affliction. The reason is, there is nothing more disagreeable to the taste than the one; and nothing more distressing to the mind than the other. An Arabic poet, Amralkeis, one of the writers of the Moallakat, terms a man grievously afflicted ناتع حنظل a pounder of wormwood.

Verse 16. He hath also broken my teeth with gravel stones] What a figure to express disgust, pain, and the consequent incapacity of taking food for the support of life; a man, instead of bread, being obliged to eat small pebbles, till all his teeth are broken to pieces by endeavouring to grind them. One can scarcely gravel stones, he hath [q] covered me with ashes.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

17 And thou hast removed my soul far off from peace: I forgat [r] prosperity.

18 [s] And I said, My strength and my hope is perished from the LORD:

19 [t] Remembering mine affliction and my misery, [u] the wormwood and the gall.

20 My soul hath them still in remembrance, and is [v] humbled in me.

21 This I [w] recall to my mind, therefore have I hope.

22 [x] It is of the LORD's mercies that we are not consumed, because his compassions fail not.

23 They are new [y] every morning: great is thy faithfulness.

24 The LORD is my [z] portion, saith my soul: therefore will I hope in him.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

25 The LORD is good unto them that [a] wait for him, to the soul that seeketh him.

26 It is good that a man should both hope [b] and quietly wait for the salvation of the LORD.

27 [c] It is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth.

28 [d] He sitteth alone and keepeth silence, because he hath borne it upon him.

29 [e] He putteth his mouth in the dust; if so be there may be hope.

30 [f] He giveth his cheek to him that smiteth him: he is filled full with reproach.

31 [g] For the LORD will not cast off for ever:

[q] Or, rolled me in the ashes.——[r] Heb. good.——[s] Psa. xxxi. 22. [t] Or, Remember.——[u] Jer. ix. 15.——[v] Heb. bowed.——[w] Heb. make to return to my heart.——[x] Mal. iii. 6.——[y] Isa. xxxiii. 2. [z] Psa. xvi. 5; lxxiii. 26; cxix. 57; Jer. x. 16.

[a] Psa. cxxx. 6; Isa. xxx. 18; Mic. vii. 7.——[b] Psa. xxxvii. 7.——[c] Psa. xc. 12; cxix. 71.——[d] Jer. xv. 17; chap. ii. 10.——[e] Job xlii. 6.——[f] Isa. l. 6; Matt. v. 39.——[g] Psa. xciv. 14.

read this description without feeling the toothache. The next figure is not less expressive.

He hath covered me with ashes.] הכפישני באפר hichphishani beepher, "he hath plunged me into the dust." To be thrown into a mass or bed of perfect dust, where the eyes are blinded by it, the ears stopped, and the mouth and lungs filled at the very first attempt to respire after having been thrown into it—what a horrible idea of suffocation and drowning! One can scarcely read this without feeling a suppression of breath, or a stricture upon the lungs! Did ever man paint sorrow like this man?

Verse 17. Thou hast removed my soul] Prosperity is at such an utter distance from me, that it is impossible I should ever reach it; and as to happiness, I have forgotten whether I have ever tasted of it.

Verse 18. And my hope] That first, that last support of the miserable—it is gone! it is perished! The sovereign God alone can revive it.

Verse 20. My soul—is humbled in me.] It is evident that in the preceding verses there is a bitterness of complaint against the bitterness of adversity, that is not becoming to man when under the chastising hand of God; and, while indulging this feeling, all hope fled. Here we find a different feeling; he humbles himself under the mighty hand of God, and then his hope revives, ver. 21.

Verse 22. It is of the Lord's mercies that we are not consumed] Being thus humbled, and seeing himself and his sinfulness in a proper point of view, he finds that God, instead of dealing with him in judgment, has dealt with him in mercy; and that though the affliction was excessive, yet it was less than his iniquity deserved. If, indeed, any sinner be kept out of hell, it is because God's compassion faileth not.

Verse 23. They are new every morning] Day and night proclaim the mercy and compassion of God. Who could exist throughout the day, if there were not a continual superintending Providence? Who could be preserved in the night, if the Watchman of Israel ever slumbered or slept?

Verse 24. The Lord is my portion] See on Psa cxix. 57.

Verse 26. It is good that a man should both hope] Hope is essentially necessary to faith; he that hopes not, cannot believe; if there be no expectation, there can be no confidence. When a man hopes for salvation, he should not only wait for it, but use every means that may lead to it; for hope cannot live, if there be no exercise. If hope become impatient, faith will be impossible: for who can believe for his salvation when his mind is agitated? He must therefore quietly wait. He must expect, and yet be dumb, as the words imply; ever feeling his utter unworthiness; and, without murmuring, struggle into life.

Verse 27. That he bear the yoke in his youth.] Early habits, when good, are invaluable. Early discipline is equally so. He who has not got under wholesome restraint in youth will never make a useful man, a good man, nor a happy man.

Verse 28. He sitteth alone] He has learned that necessary lesson of independence, that shows him how he is to serve himself; to give no trouble to others; and keep his troubles, as far as possible, in his own bosom.

Verse 29. He putteth his mouth in the dust] Lives in a state of deep humility.

If so be there may be hope.] Because there is room for hope.

Verse 30. He giveth his cheek to him that smiteth] He has that love that is not provoked. He is not quarrelsome, nor apt to resent injuries; he suffers long and is kind. Or, it may be rendered, "let him give his cheek."

He is filled full with reproach] Though all this take place, yet let his "trust be in God, who will not cast off for ever." God will take his part, and bring him safely through all hardships.

Verse 31. The Lord] אדני Adonai; but one of my

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

32 But though he cause grief, yet will he have compassion according to the multitude of his mercies.

33 For [h] he doth not afflict [i] willingly, nor grieve the children of men.

34 To crush under his feet all the prisoners of the earth,

35 To turn aside the right of a man before the face of [k] the Most High, 36 To subvert a man in his cause, [l] the LORD [m] approveth not.

37 Who is he [n] that saith, and it cometh to pass, when the LORD commanded it not?

38 Out of the mouth of the Most High proceedeth not [o] evil and good?

39 [p] Wherefore doth a living man [q] complain, [r] a man for the punishment of his sins?

40 Let us search and try our ways, and turn again to the LORD.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

41 [s] Let us lift up our heart with our hands unto God in the heavens.

42 [t] We have transgressed and have rebelled: thou hast not pardoned.

43 Thou hast covered with anger, and persecuted us: [u] thou hast slain, thou hast not pitied.

44 Thou hast covered thyself with a cloud, [v] that our prayer should not pass through.

45 Thou hast made us as the [w] offscouring and refuse in the midst of the people.

46 [x] All our enemies have opened their mouths against us.

47 [y] Fear and a snare is come upon us, [z] desolation and destruction.

---

[h] Ezek. xxxiii. 11; Heb. xii. 10.——[i] Heb. from his heart. [k] Or, a superior.——[l] Hab. i. 13.——[m] Or, seeth not.——[n] Psa. xxxiii. 9. [o] Job ii. 10; Isa. xlv. 7; Amos iii. 6.——[p] Prov. xix. 3.

[q] Or, murmur.——[r] Mic. vii. 9.——[s] Psa. lxxxvi. 4.——[t] Dan. ix. 5.——[u] Chap. ii. 17, 21.——[v] Ver. 8.——[w] 1 Cor. iv. 13. [x] Chap. ii. 16.——[y] Isa. xxiv. 17; Jer. xlviii. 43.——[z] Isa. li. 19.

---

ancient MSS. has יהוה Yehovah. The above verse is quoted in reference to our Lord's passion, by Matt. xxvi. 62.

Verse 33. For he doth not afflict willingly] It is no pleasure to God to afflict men. He takes no delight in our pain and misery: yet, like a tender and intelligent parent, he uses the rod; not to gratify himself, but to profit and save us.

Verse 34. To crush under his feet] He can neither gain credit nor pleasure in trampling upon those who are already bound, and in suffering; such he knows to be the state of man here below. From which it most assuredly follows, that God never afflicts us but for our good, nor chastises but that we may be partakers of his holiness.

All the prisoners of the earth] By the prisoners of the earth, or land, Dr. Blayney understands those insolvent debtors who were put in prison, and there obliged to work out the debt. Yet this is mercy in comparison with those who put them in prison, and keep them there, when they know that it is impossible, from the state of the laws, to lessen the debt by their confinement.

In verses 34, 35, and 36, certain acts of tyranny, malice, and injustice are specified, which men often indulge themselves in the practice of towards one another, but which the Divine goodness is far from countenancing or approving by any similar conduct.—Blayney.

Verse 35. To turn aside the right of a man] To make a man lose his right, because one of the higher orders opposes him. Dr. Blayney thinks that עליון elyon, instead of being referred to God, should be considered as pointing out one of the chief of the people. I do not see that we gain any thing by this. The evil fact is, turning aside the right of a man; and the aggravation of it is, doing it before the face of the Most High; that is, in a court of justice, where God is ever considered to be present.

Verse 36. To subvert a man in his cause] To prevent his having justice done him in a lawsuit, &c., by undue interference, as by suborning false witnesses, or exerting any kind of influence in opposition to truth and right.—Blayney.

The Lord approveth not.] Instead of אדני Adonai, seventeen MSS., of Kennicott's, and one ancient of my own, have יהוה Yehovah. Approveth not, לא ראה lo raah, doth not see, turns away his face from it, abhors it.

Verse 39. Wherefore doth a living man complain] He who has his life still lent to him has small cause of complaint. How great soever his affliction may be, he is still alive; therefore, he may seek and find mercy unto eternal life. Of this, death would deprive him; therefore let not a living man complain.

Verse 40. Let us search] How are we to get the pardon of our sins? The prophet tells us: 1. Let us examine ourselves. 2. "Let us turn again to the Lord." 3. "Let us lift up our heart;" let us make fervent prayer and supplication for mercy. 4. "Let us lift up our hand;" let us solemnly promise to be his, and bind ourselves in a covenant to be the Lord's only: so much lifting up the hand to God implies. Or, let us put our heart on our hand, and offer it to God; so some have translated this clause. 5. "We have transgressed;" let our confession of sin be fervent and sincere. 6. And to us who profess Christianity it may be added, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ as having died for thee; and thou shalt not perish, but have everlasting life. Verses 46, 47, 48, beginning with פ phe, should, as to the order of the alphabet, follow 49, 50, 51, which begin with ע ain, which in its grammatical position precedes the former.

Verse 47. Fear and a snare] See on Jer. xlviii. 43.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

48 [a] Mine eye runneth down with rivers of water for the destruction of the daughter of my people.

49 [b] Mine eye trickleth down, and ceaseth not, without any intermission.

50 Till the LORD [c] look down, and behold from heaven.

51 Mine eye affecteth [d] mine heart [e] because of all the daughters of my city.

52 Mine enemies chased me sore, like a bird, [f] without cause.

53 They have cut off my life [g] in the dungeon, and [h] cast a stone upon me.

54 [i] Waters flowed over mine head; then [k] I said, I am cut off.

55 [l] I called upon thy name, O LORD, out of the low dungeon.

56 [m] Thou hast heard my voice: hide not thine ear at my breathing, at my cry.

57 Thou [n] drewest near in the day that I called upon thee: thou saidst, Fear not.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

58 O LORD, thou hast [o] pleaded the causes of my soul; [p] thou hast redeemed my life.

59 O LORD, thou hast seen my wrong: [q] judge thou my cause.

60 Thou hast seen all their vengeance and all their [r] imaginations against me.

61 Thou hast heard their reproach, O LORD, and all their imaginations against me;

62 The lips of those that rose up against me, and their device against me all the day.

63 Behold their [s] sitting down, and their rising up; [t] I am their music.

64 [u] Render unto them a recompense, O LORD, according to the work of their hands.

65 Give them [v] sorrow of heart, thy curse unto them.

66 Persecute and destroy them in anger [w] from under the [x] heavens of the LORD.

---

[a] Jer. iv. 19; ix. 1; xiv. 17; chap. ii. 11.——[b] Psa. lxxvii. 2; chap. i. 16.——[c] Isa. lxiii. 15.——[d] Heb. my soul.——[e] Or, more than all.——[f] Psa. xxxv. 7, 19; lxix. 4; cix. 3; cxix. 161.——[g] Jer. xxxvii. 16; xxxviii. 6, 9, 10.——[h] Dan. vi. 17.——[i] Psa. lxix. 2; cxxiv. 4, 5.——[k] Psa. xxxi. 22; Isa. xxxviii. 10, 11; ver. 18.——[l] Psa. cxxx. 1; Jonah ii. 2.

[m] Psa. iii. 4; vi. 8; xviii. 6; lxvi. 19; cxvi. 1.——[n] James iv. 8.——[o] Psa. xxxv. 1; Jer. li. 36.——[p] Psa. lxxi. 23.——[q] Psa. ix. 4; xxxv. 23.——[r] Jer. xi. 19.——[s] Psa. cxxxix. 2.——[t] Ver. 14.——[u] Psa. xxviii. 4; see Jer. xi. 20; 2 Tim. iv. 14.——[v] Or obstinacy of heart.——[w] Deut. xxv. 19; Jer. x. 11.——[x] Psa viii. 3.

Verse 48. Mine eye runneth down] I weep incessantly.

Verse 51. Mine eye affecteth mine heart] What I see I feel. I see nothing but misery; and I feel, in consequence, nothing but pain. There have been various translations of the original: but they all amount to this.

The daughters of my city.] The villages about Jerusalem.

Verse 52. Mine enemies chased me] From this to the end of the chapter the prophet speaks of his own personal sufferings, and especially of those which he endured in the dungeon. See Jer. xxxviii. 6, &c.

Verse 56. Hide not thine ear at my breathing] He dared not even to complain, nor to cry, nor to pray aloud: he was obliged to whisper his prayer to God. It was only a breathing.

Verse 57. Fear not.] How powerful is this word when spoken by the Spirit of the Lord to a disconsolate heart. To every mourner we may say, on the authority of God, Fear not! God will plead thy cause, and redeem thy soul.

Verse 60. Thou hast seen—all their imaginations] Every thing is open to the eye of God. Distressed soul! though thou knowest not what thy enemies meditate against thee; yet he who loves thee does, and will infallibly defeat all their plots, and save thee.

Verse 65. Give them sorrow of heart] They shall have a callous heart, covered with obstinacy, and thy execration. The former is their state, the latter their fate. This is the consequence of their hardening their hearts from thy fear. Blayney translates, "Thou wilt give with a hearty concordance thy curse unto them." That is, Thou wilt give it to them freely, and without reserve; intimating that God felt no longer any bowels of compassion for them. Formerly he inflicted punishments with reluctance, while there was any hope of amendment: but, in the instance before us, the case was so hopeless, that God acts according to the simple principle of vindictive justice. The prophet therefore considers them on the utmost verge of final reprobation: another plunge, and they are lost for ever.

Verse 66. Persecute and destroy them] Thou wilt pursue them with destruction. These are all declaratory, not imprecatory.

From under the heavens of the Lord.] This verse seems to allude to the Chaldaic prediction, in Jer. x. 11. By their conduct they will bring on themselves the curse denounced against their enemies.

The Septuagint and Vulgate seem to have read "From under heaven, O Jehovah:" and the Syriac reads, "Thy heavens, O Jehovah!" None of these makes any material change in the meaning of the words.

It has already been noticed in the introduction, that this chapter contains a triple acrostic, three lines always beginning with the same letter; so that the Hebrew alphabet is thrice repeated in this chapter, twenty-two multiplied by three being equal to sixty-six.

CHAPTER IV.

The present deplorable state of the nation is now contrasted with its ancient prosperity, 1–12; and the unhappy change ascribed, in a great degree, to the profligacy of the priests and prophets, 13–16. The national calamities are tenderly lamented, 17–20. The ruin of the Edomites also, who had insulted the Jews in their distress, is ironically predicted, 21. See Psa. cxxxvii. 7, and Obadiah 10–12. The chapter closes with a gracious promise of deliverance from the Babylonish captivity, 22.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

HOW is the gold become dim! how is the most fine gold changed! the stones of the sanctuary are poured out [a] in the top of every street.

2 The precious sons of Zion, comparable to fine gold, how are they esteemed [b] as earthen pitchers, the work of the hands of the potter!

3 Even the [c] sea monsters draw out the breast, they give suck to their young ones: the daughter of my people is become cruel, [d] like the ostriches in the wilderness.

4 [e] The tongue of the sucking child cleaveth to the roof of his mouth for thirst: [f] the young children ask bread, and no man breaketh it unto them.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

5 They that did feed delicately are desolate in the streets: they that were brought up in scarlet [g] embrace dunghills.

6 For the [h] punishment of the iniquity of the daughter of my people is greater than the punishment of the sin of Sodom, that was [i] overthrown as in a moment, and no hands stayed on her.

7 Her Nazarites were purer than snow, they

[a] Chap. ii. 19.——[b] Isa. xxx. 14; Jer. xix. 11; 2 Cor. iv. 7. [c] Or, sea calves.——[d] Job xxxix. 14, 16.

[e] Psa. xxii. 15.——[f] See chap. ii. 11, 12.——[g] Job xxiv. 8 [h] Or, iniquity.——[i] Gen. xix. 25.

NOTES ON CHAP. IV.

Verse 1. How is the gold become dim] The prophet contrasts, in various affecting instances, the wretched circumstances of the Jewish nation, with the flourishing state of their affairs in former times. Here they are compared to gold, זהב zahab, native gold from the mine, which, contrary to its nature, is become dim, is tarnished; and even the fine, the sterling gold, כתם kethem, that which was stamped to make it current, is changed or adulterated, so as to be no longer passable. This might be applied to the temple, but particularly to the fallen priests and apostate prophets.

The stones of the sanctuary] אבני קדש abney kodesh, the holy stones; the Jewish godly men, who were even then the living stones of which God built his Church.

Verse 2. The precious sons of Zion] The Jewish priests and Jewish believers.

Comparable to fine gold] Who were of the pure standard of holiness; holy, because God who called them is holy; but now esteemed no better than earthen pitchers—vessels of dishonour in comparison of what they once were.

Verse 3. Even the sea monsters draw out the breast] The whales give suck to their young ones. The word תנין tannin, signifies all large and cruel creatures, whether aquatic or terrestrial; and need not here be restrained to the former sort. My Old MS. Bible translates curiously: Bot and the cruel bestis that ben clepid Lamya, and thei naketen ther tetis, gebe ther whelpis souken.

Like the ostriches in the wilderness.] For her carelessness about her eggs, and her inattention to her young, the ostrich is proverbial.

Verse 4. The tongue of the sucking child] See the note on chap. ii. 12.

Verse 5. Embrace dunghills.] Lie on straw or rubbish, instead of the costly carpets and sofas on which they formerly stretched themselves.

Verse 6. For the punishment] He thinks the punishment of Jerusalem far greater than that of Sodom. That was destroyed in a moment, while all her inhabitants were in health and strength; Jerusalem fell by the most lingering calamities; her men partly destroyed by the sword, and partly by the famine.

Instead of no hands stayed on her, Blayney translates, "Nor were hands weakened in her." Perhaps the meaning is, "Sodom was destroyed in a moment without any human labour." It was a judgment from God himself: so the sacred text: "THE LORD rained down fire and brimstone from the Lord out of heaven." See Gen. xix. 24.

Verse 7. Her Nazarites were purer than snow] נזיר nazir does not always signify a person separated under a religious vow; it sometimes denotes what is chief or eminent. It is applied to Joseph, Gen. xlix. 26. Blayney therefore translates here, HER NOBLES.

> "Her nobles were purer than snow, they were whiter than milk;
> They were ruddier on the bone than rubies; their veining was the sapphires."

On which he remarks:—"In the first line the whiteness of their skin is described; and in the second, their flesh;" and as גזר gazar signifies to divide and intersect, as the blue veins do on the surface of the body, these are without doubt intended.

Milk will most certainly well apply to the whiteness of the skin; the beautiful ruby to the ruddiness of the flesh; and the sapphire, in its clear transcendent purple, to the veins in a fine complexion. The reverse of this state, as described in the following verse, needs were whiter than milk, they were more ruddy in body than rubies, their polishing was of sapphire:

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

8 Their visage is [k] blacker [l] than a coal; they are not known in the streets: [m] their skin cleaveth to their bones; it is withered, it is become like a stick.

9 They that be slain with the sword are better than they that be slain with hunger: for these [n] pine away, stricken through for want of the fruits of the field.

10 [o] The hands of the [p] pitiful women have sodden their own children: they were their [q] meat in the destruction of the daughter of my people.

11 The LORD hath accomplished his fury; [r] he hath poured out his fierce anger, and [s] hath kindled a fire in Zion, and it hath devoured the foundations thereof.

12 The kings of the earth, and all the inhabitants of the world, would not have believed that the adversary and the enemy should have entered into the gates of Jerusalem.

13 [t] For the sins of her prophets, and the iniquities of her priests, [u] that have shed the blood of the just in the midst of her,

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

14 They have wandered as blind men in the streets, [v] they have polluted themselves with blood, [w] so [x] that men could not touch their garments.

15 They cried unto them, Depart ye; [y] it is [z] unclean; depart, depart, touch not: when they fled away and wandered, they said among the heathen, They shall no more sojourn there.

16 The [a] anger of the LORD hath divided them; he will no more regard them: [b] they respected not the persons of the priests, they favoured not the elders.

17 As for us, [c] our eyes as yet failed for our vain help: in our watching we have watched for a nation that could not save us.

18 [d] They hunt our steps, that we cannot go in our streets: our end is near, our days are fulfilled; for [e] our end is come.

[k] Heb. darker than blackness.——[l] Chap. v. 10; Joel ii. 6; Nah. ii. 10.——[m] Psa. cii. 5.——[n] Heb. flow out.——[o] Chap. ii. 20. Isa. xlix. 15.——[q] Deut. xxviii. 57; 2 Kings vi. 29.——[r] Jer. vii. 20.——[s] Deut. xxxii. 22; Jer. xxi. 14.——[t] Jer. v. 31; vi. 13; xiv. 14; xxiii. 11, 21; Ezek. xxii. 26, 28; Zeph. iii. 4.

[u] Matt. xxiii. 31, 37.——[v] Jer. ii. 34.——[w] Or, in that they could not but touch.——[x] Num. xix. 16.——[y] Or, ye polluted.——[z] Lev. xiii. 45.——[a] Or, face.——[b] Chap. v. 12.——[c] 2 Kings xxiv. 7; Isa. xx. 5; xxx. 6, 7; Jer. xxxvii. 7; Ezek. xxix. 16.——[d] 2 Kings xxv. 4, 5.——[e] Ezek. vii. 2, 3, 6; Amos viii. 2.

no explanation. The face was a dismal dark brown, the flesh gone, the skin shrivelled, and apparently wrapped round the bones.

Verse 10. The hands of the pitiful women have sodden their own children] See on chap. ii. 20. But here there is a reference to mothers eating their own children; and this was done, not by mothers cruel and brutal, but by נשים רחכניות nashim rachmaniyoth, the compassionate, the tender-hearted mothers. From these horrible scenes it is well to pass with as hasty a step as possible.

Verse 12. The kings of the earth] Jerusalem was so well fortified, both by nature and art, that it appeared as a miracle that it should be taken at all.

Verse 13. For the sins of her prophets, and the iniquities of her priests] These most wretched beings, under the pretence of zeal for the true religion, persecuted the genuine prophets, priests, and people of God, and caused their blood to be shed in the midst of the city, in the most open and public manner; exactly as the murderous priests, and blood-thirsty preachers, under the reign of bloody Queen Mary, did in England. However, the profligate priests and idolatrous prophets in Jerusalem, only shed the blood of the saints of God there: but the sanguinary papists, in the above reign, burnt the blood here, for they burnt the people alive; and at the same time, in their worse than Molochean cruelty, consigned, with all the fervour peculiar to their then ruthless Church, the souls of those whom they thus massacred, to the bitter pains of eternal death! O earth, cover not thou their blood!

Verse 14. They have wandered as blind men in the streets] Rather, "They ran frantic through the streets, they were stained with blood." This was in their pretended zeal for their cause. Bishop Bonner, who was at the head of those sanguinary executions in England, was accustomed to buffet the poor Protestants, when on their examinations they were too powerful for him in argument:—

> "He proved his doctrine orthodox,
> By apostolic blows and knocks."

Just as his elder brethren, the false priests and prophets of Jerusalem.

Verse 15. When they fled away] These priests and prophets were so bad, that the very heathen did not like to permit them to sojourn among them. The prophet now resumes the history of the siege.

Verse 17. We have watched for a nation] Viz., the Egyptians, who were their pretended allies, but were neither able nor willing to help them against the Chaldeans.

Verse 18. We cannot go in our streets] Supposed to refer to the darts and other missiles cast from the mounds which they had raised on the outside of the walls, by which those who walked in the streets were grievously annoyed, and could not shield themselves.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

19 Our persecutors are [f] swifter than the eagles of the heaven: they pursued us upon the mountains, they laid wait for us in the wilderness.

20 The [g] breath of our nostrils, the anointed of the LORD, [h] was taken in their pits, of whom we said, Under his shadow we shall live among the heathen.

21 [i] Rejoice and be glad, O daughter of Edom, that dwellest in the land of Uz; [k] the cup also shall pass through unto thee: thou shalt be drunken, and shalt make thyself naked.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

22 [l] The [m] punishment of thine iniquity is accomplished, O daughter of Zion; he will no more carry thee away into captivity: [n] he will visit thine iniquity, O daughter of Edom; he will [o] discover thy sins.

[f] Deut. xxviii. 49; Jer. iv. 13.——[g] Gen. ii. 7; chap. ii. 9. [h] Jer. lii. 9; Ezek. xii. 13; xix. 4, 8.——[i] Like Eccles. xi. 9.

[k] Jer. xxv. 15, 16, 21; Obad. 10.——[l] Isa. xl. 2.——[m] Or, Thine iniquity.——[n] Psa. cxxxvii. 7.——[o] Or, carry thee captive for thy sins.

Verse 19. They pursued us upon the mountains] They hunted down the poor Jews like wild beasts in every part of the country by their marauding parties, whilst the great army besieged Jerusalem. But this may apply to the pursuit of Zedekiah. See what follows.

Verse 20. The breath of our nostrils, the anointed of the Lord] That is, Zedekiah the king, who was as the life of the city, was taken in his flight by the Chaldeans, and his eyes were put out; so that he was wholly unfit to perform any function of government; though they had fondly hoped that if they surrendered and should be led captives, yet they should be permitted to live under their own laws and king in the land of their bondage.

Verse 21. Rejoice and be glad, O daughter of Edom] A strong irony.

The cup also shall pass through unto thee] Thou who hast triumphed in our disasters shalt shortly have enough of thy own. They had joined themselves to the Chaldeans, (see Psa. cxxxvii. 7,) and therefore they should share in the desolations of Babylon.

Verse 22. The punishment of thine iniquity is accomplished, O daughter of Zion] On the contrary: Rejoice, O Jerusalem, for thy captivity will soon end; thy sufferings are nearly completed; thou shalt soon return to thy own land: but he will visit thy iniquity, O Edom; he will discover thy sins. When sin is pardoned, it is said to be covered: here, God says he will not cover the sins of Edom—he will not pardon them; they shall drink the cup of wrath.

The promise in this last verse may refer to Jerusalem under the Gospel. When they receive Christ crucified, they shall be gathered from all nations, become one with the Church among the Gentiles, be one flock under one and the same Shepherd, and shall be carried no more into captivity.

CHAPTER V.

This chapter is, as it were, an epiphonema or conclusion to the four preceding, representing the nation as groaning under their calamities, and humbly supplicating the Divine favour, 1–22.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

[a] REMEMBER, O LORD, what is come upon us: consider, and behold [b] our reproach.

2 [c] Our inheritance is turned to strangers, our houses to aliens.

3 We are orphans and fatherless, our mothers are as widows.

4 We have drunken our water for money; our wood [d] is sold unto us.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

[a] Psa. lxxxix. 50, 51.——[b] Chap. ii. 15; Psa. lxxix. 4.

[c] Psa. lxxix. 1.——[d] Heb. cometh for price.

NOTES ON CHAP. V.

Verse 1. Remember, O Lord] In the Vulgate, Syriac, and Arabic, this is headed, "The prayer of Jeremiah." In my old MS. Bible: Here bigynneth the orison of Jeremye the prophete.

Though this chapter consists of exactly twenty-two verses, the number of letters in the Hebrew alphabet, yet the acrostic form is no longer observed. Perhaps any thing so technical was not thought proper when in agony and distress (under a sense of God's displeasure on account of sin) they prostrated themselves before him to ask for mercy. Be this as it may, no attempt appears to have been made to throw these verses into the form of the preceding chapters. It is properly a solemn prayer of all the people, stating their past and present sufferings, and praying for God's mercy.

Behold our reproach.] הביטה hebita. But many MSS. of Kennicott's, and the oldest of my own, add the ה he paragogic, הביטה hebitah, "Look down earnestly with commiseration;" for paragogic letters always increase the sense.

Verse 2. Our inheritance is turned to strangers] The greater part of the Jews were either slain or carried away captive; and even those who were left under Gedaliah were not free, for they were vassals to the Chaldeans.

Verse 4. We have drunken our water for money] I suppose the meaning of this is, that every thing was

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

5 [e] Our [f] necks are under persecution: we labour, and have no rest.

6 [g] We have given the hand [h] to the Egyptians, and to the Assyrians, to be satisfied with bread.

7 [i] Our fathers have sinned, and [k] are not; and we have borne their iniquities.

8 [l] Servants have ruled over us: there is none that doth deliver us out of their hand.

9 We gat our bread with the peril of our lives because of the sword of the wilderness.

10 Our [m] skin was black like an oven because of the [n] terrible famine.

11 [o] They ravished the women in Zion, and the maids in the cities of Judah.

12 Princes are hanged up by their hand: [p] the faces of elders were not honoured.

A. M. cir. 3416 B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

13 They took the young men [q] to grind, and the children fell under [r] the wood.

14 The elders have ceased from the gate, the young men from their music.

15 The joy of our heart is ceased; our dance is turned into mourning.

16 [r] The [s] crown is fallen from our head: wo unto us, that we have sinned!

17 For this [t] our heart is faint; [u] for these things our eyes are dim.

18 Because of the mountain of Zion, which is desolate, the foxes walk upon it.

[e] Deut. xxviii. 48; Jer. xxviii. 14.——[f] Heb. On our necks are we persecuted.——[g] Gen. xxiv. 2; Jer. l. 15.——[h] Hos. xii. 1.——[i] Jer. xxxi. 29; Ezek. xviii. 2.——[k] Gen. xlii. 13; Zech. i. 5.——[l] Neh. v. 15.——[m] Job xxx. 30; Psa. cxix. 83; chap. iv. 8.

[n] Or, terrors or storms.——[o] Isa. xiii. 16; Zech. xiv. 2.——[p] Isa. xlvii. 6; chap. iv. 16.——[q] Judg. xvi. 21.——[r] Job xix. 9; Psa. lxxxix. 39.——[s] Heb. The crown of our head is fallen.——[t] Chap. i. 22.——[u] Psa. vi. 7; chap. ii. 11.

taxed by the Chaldeans, and that they kept the management in their own hands, so that wood and water were both sold, the people not being permitted to help themselves. They were now so lowly reduced by servitude, that they were obliged to pay dearly for those things which formerly were common and of no price. A poor Hindoo in the country never buys fire-wood, but when he comes to the city he is obliged to purchase his fuel, and considers it as a matter of great hardship.

Verse 5. Our necks are under persecution] We feel the yoke of our bondage; we are driven to our work like the bullock, which has a yoke upon his neck.

Verse 6. We have given the hand to the Egyptians] We have sought alliances both with the Egyptians and the Assyrians, and made covenants with them in order to get the necessaries of life. Or, wherever we are now driven, we are obliged to submit to the people of the countries in order to the preservation of our lives.

Verse 7. Our fathers have sinned, and are not] Nations, as such, cannot be punished in the other world; therefore national judgments are to be looked for only in this life. The punishment which the Jewish nation had been meriting for a series of years came now upon them, because they copied and increased the sins of their fathers, and the cup of their iniquity was full. Thus the children might be said to bear the sins of the fathers, that is, in temporal punishment, for in no other way does God visit these upon the children. See Ezek. xviii. 1, &c.

Verse 8. Servants have ruled over us] To be subject to such is the most painful and dishonourable bondage:—

Quid domini faciant, audent cum talia fures!
Virg. Ecl. iii. 16.

"Since slaves so insolent are grown,
What may not masters do!"

Perhaps he here alludes to the Chaldean soldiers, whose will the wretched Jews were obliged to obey.

Verse 9. We gat our bread with the peril of our lives] They could not go into the wilderness to feed their cattle, or to get the necessaries of life, without being harassed and plundered by marauding parties, and by these were often exposed to the peril of their lives. This was predicted by Moses, Deut. xxviii. 31.

Verse 10. Our skin was black—because of the terrible famine.] Because of the searching winds that burnt up every green thing, destroying vegetation, and in consequence producing a famine.

Verse 11. They ravished the women in Zion, and the maids in the cities of Judah.] The evil mentioned here was predicted by Moses, Deut. xxviii. 30, 32, and by Jeremiah, chap. vi. 12.

Verse 12. Princes are hanged up by their hand] It is very probable that this was a species of punishment. They were suspended from hooks in the wall by their hands till they died through torture and exhaustion. The body of Saul was fastened to the wall of Bethshan, probably in the same way; but his head had already been taken off. They were hung in this way that they might be devoured by the fowls of the air. It was a custom with the Persians after they had slain, strangled, or beheaded their enemies, to hang their bodies upon poles, or empale them. In this way they treated Histiæus of Miletum, and Leonidas of Lacedæmon. See Herodot. lib. vi. c. 30, lib. vii. c. 238.

Verse 13. They took the young men to grind] This was the work of female slaves. See the note on Isa. xlvii. 2.

Verse 14. The elders have ceased from the gate] There is now no more justice administered to the people; they are under military law, or disposed of in every sense according to the caprice of their masters.

Verse 16. The crown is fallen from our head] At feasts, marriages, &c., they used to crown themselves with garlands of flowers; all festivity of this kind was now at an end. Or it may refer to their having lost all sovereignty, being made slaves.

Verse 18. The foxes walk upon it.] Foxes are very numerous in Palestine, see on Judges xv. 4. It

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

19 Thou, O LORD, [v] remainest for ever; [w] thy throne from generation to generation.

20 [x] Wherefore dost thou forget us for ever, and forsake us [y] so long time?

21 [z] Turn thou us unto thee, O LORD, and we shall be turned; renew our days as of old.

22 [a] But thou hast utterly rejected us; thou art very wroth against us.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

[v] Psa. ix. 7; x. 16; xxix. 10; xc. 2; cii. 12, 26, 27; cxlv. 13; Hab. i. 12.——[w] Psa. xlv. 6.——[x] Psa. xiii. 1.

[y] Heb. for length of days?——[z] Psa. lxxx. 3, 7, 19 · Jer. xxxi. 18.——[a] Or, For wilt thou utterly reject us?

was usual among the Hebrews to consider all desolated land to be the resort of wild beasts; which is, in fact, the case every where when the inhabitants are removed from a country.

Verse 19. Thou, O Lord, remainest for ever] Thou sufferest no change. Thou didst once love us; O let that love be renewed towards us!

Verse 21. Renew our days as of old.] Restore us to our former state. Let us regain our country, our temple, and all the Divine offices of our religion; but, more especially, thy favour.

Verse 22. But thou hast utterly rejected us] It appears as if thou hadst sealed our final reprobation, because thou showest against us exceeding great wrath. But convert us, O Lord, unto thee, and we shall be converted. We are now greatly humbled, feel our sin, and see our folly: once more restore us, and we shall never again forsake thee! He heard the prayer; and at the end of seventy years they were restored to their own land.

This last verse is well rendered in the first printed edition of our Bible, 1535:—Renue our daies as in olde tyme, for thou hast now banished us longe ynough, and bene sore displeased at us.

My Old MS. Bible is not less nervous:—Newe thou our dais as fro the begynnyng: bot castand aweie thou hast put us out: thou wrathedist agein us hugely.

Dr. Blayney translates, "For surely thou hast cast us off altogether:" and adds, "כי ki ought certainly to be rendered as causal; God's having rejected his people, and expressed great indignation against them, being the cause and ground of the preceding application, in which they pray to be restored to his favour, and the enjoyment of their ancient privileges."

Pareau thinks no good sense can be made of this place unless we translate interrogatively, as in Jer. xiv. 19,—

"Hast thou utterly rejected Judah?
Hath thy soul loathed Sion?"

On this ground he translates here,

An enim prorsus nos rejecisses?
Nobis iratus esses usque adeo?

"Hast thou indeed utterly cast us off?
Wilt thou be angry with us for ever?"

Wilt thou extend thy wrath against us so as to show us no more mercy? This agrees well with the state and feelings of the complainants.

Masoretic Notes.

Number of verses in this Book, 154.

Middle verse, chap. iii. 34.

In one of my oldest MSS., the twenty-first verse is repeated at the conclusion of the twenty-second verse. In another, yet older, there is only the first word of it, השיבנו hashibenu, Convert us!

Having given in the preceding preface and notes what I judge necessary to explain the principal difficulties in this very fine and affecting poem, very fitly termed The Lamentations, as it justly stands at the head of every composition of the kind, I shall add but a few words, and these shall be by way of recapitulation chiefly.

The Hebrews were accustomed to make lamentations or mourning songs upon the death of great men, princes, and heroes, who had distinguished themselves in arms; and upon any occasion of public miseries and calamities. Calmet thinks they had collections of these sorts of Lamentations: and refers in proof to 2 Chron. xxxv. 25: "And Jeremiah lamented for Josiah; and all the singing men and the singing women spake of Josiah in their lamentations, to this day; and made them an ordinance in Israel: and, behold, they are written in the Lamentations."

From this verse it is evident, that Jeremiah had composed a funeral elegy on Josiah: but, from the complexion of this Book, it is most evident that it was not composed on the death of Josiah, but upon the desolations of Jerusalem, &c., as has already been noted. His lamentation for Josiah is therefore lost. It appears also, that on particular occasions, perhaps anniversaries, these lamentations were sung by men and women singers, who performed their several parts; for these were all alternate or responsive songs. And it is very likely, that this book was sung in the same way; the men commencing with א aleph, the women responding with ב beth, and so on. Several of this sort of songs are still extant. We have those which David composed on the death of his son Absolom, and on the death of his friend Jonathan. And we have those made by Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel, on the desolation of Egypt, Tyre, Sidon, and Babylon. See Isa. xiv. 4, 5; xv.; xvi.; Jer. vii. 29; ix. 10; xlviii. 32; Ezek. xix. 1; xxviii. 11; xxxii. 2; Jer. ix. 17. Besides these, we have fragments of others in different places; and references to some, which are now finally lost.

In the two first chapters of this book, the prophet describes, principally, the calamities of the siege of Jerusalem.

In the third, he deplores the persecutions which he himself had suffered; though he may in this be personifying the city and state; many of his own sufferings being illustrative of the calamities that fell generally upon the city and people at large.

The fourth chapter is employed chiefly on the ruin and desolation of the city and temple; and upon the misfortunes of Zedekiah, of whom he speaks in a most respectful, tender, and affecting manner:—

"The anointed of Jehovah, the breath of our nostrils, was taken in their toils,
Under whose shadow we said, We shall live among the nations."

At the end he speaks of the cruelty of the Edomites, who had insulted Jerusalem in her miseries, and contributed to its demolition. These he threatens with the wrath of God.

The fifth chapter is a kind of form of prayer for the Jews, in their dispersions and captivity. In the conclusion of it, he speaks of their fallen royalty; attributes all their calamities to their rebellion and wickedness; and acknowledges that there can be no end to their misery, but in their restoration to the Divine favour.

This last chapter was probably written some considerable time after the rest: for it supposes the temple to be so deserted, that the foxes walked undisturbed among its ruins, and that the people were already in captivity.

The poem is a monument of the people's iniquity and rebellion; of the displeasure and judgment of God against them; and of the piety, eloquence, and incomparable ability of the poet.

INTRODUCTION TO THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET EZEKIEL.

EZEKIEL the prophet was the son of Buzi; and was of the sacerdotal race, as himself informs us, chap. i. 3, and was born at a place called Saresa, as the pseudo-Epiphanius tells us in his Lives of the Prophets. He was carried captive by Nebuchadnezzar into Babylon, with Jeconiah king of Judah, and three thousand other captives of the principal inhabitants, and was sent into Mesopotamia, where he received the prophetic gift; which is supposed, from an obscure expression in his prophecies, chap. i. 1, to have taken place in the thirtieth year of his age. He had then been in captivity five years; and continued to prophesy about twenty-two years, from A. M. 3409 to A. M. 3430, which answers to the fourteenth year after the destruction of Jerusalem.

About three months and ten days after this conquest of Jerusalem, Nebuchadnezzar made another descent, and again besieged the city; and Jehoiachin, who succeeded his father Jehoiakim, was obliged to surrender. The victorious Chaldeans carried off all the inhabitants of note into Babylon, leaving none behind but the very poorest of the people. See 2 Kings xxiv. 8–16. These captives were fixed at Tel-abib, and other places on the river Chebar, which flows into the east side of the Euphrates at Carchemish, nearly two hundred miles northward of Babylon. There, as Archbishop Newcome observes, he was present in body, though, in visionary representation, he was sometimes taken to Jerusalem.

With this same learned writer I am of opinion that, the better to understand the propriety and force of these Divine revelations, the circumstances and dispositions of the Jews in their own country, and in their state of banishment, and the chief historical events of that period, should be stated and considered. Most writers on this Prophet have adopted this plan; and Archbishop Newcome's abstract of this history is sufficient for every purpose.

"Zedekiah, uncle to the captive king Jehoiachin, was advanced by Nebuchadnezzar to the kingdom of Judah; and the tributary king bound himself to subjection by a solemn oath in the name of Jehovah, Ezek. xvii. 18. But notwithstanding the Divine judgments which had overwhelmed Judah during the reigns of his two immediate predecessors, he did evil in the sight of God, 2 Chron. xxxvi. 12. Jerusalem became so idolatrous, impure, oppressive, and blood-thirsty, that God is represented as smiting his hands together through astonishment at such a scene of iniquity, chap. xxii. 13. The Prophet Jeremiah was insulted, rejected, and persecuted; false prophets abounded, whose language was, 'Ye shall not serve the king of Babylon,' Jer. xxvii. 9. 'I have broken the yoke of the king of Babylon,' Jer. xxviii. 2 They even limited the restoration of the sacred vessels, and the return of Jehoiachin and his fellow captives, to so short an interval as two years, Jer. xxviii. 3, 4. Zedekiah, blinded by his vices and these delusions, flattered by the embassies which he had received from Edom, Moab, Ammon, Tyre, and Sidon, Jer. xxvii. 3, and probably submitting with his accustomed timidity to the advice of evil counsellors, Jer. xxviii. 25, rebelled against his powerful conquerors, and sent ambassadors into Egypt for assistance, Ezek. xvii. 15. Hence arose a third invasion of the Chaldeans. Pharaoh-hophra, king of Egypt, did not advance to the assistance of Zedekiah till Jerusalem was besieged, Jer. xxxvii. 5. The Babylonians raised the siege with the design of distressing the Egyptians in their march, and of giving battle when advantage offered: but Pharaoh, with perfidy and pusillanimity, returned to his own country; and left the rebellious and perjured king of Judah to the rage of his enemies, Jer xxxvii. 7. Before the siege was thus interrupted, Zedekiah endeavoured to conciliate the favour of God by complying so far with the Mosaic law as to proclaim the sabbatical year a year of liberty to Hebrew servants, Exod. xxi. 2. But such was his impiety, and so irresolute and fluctuating were his counsels, that, on the departure of the Chaldeans, he revoked his edict, Jer. xxxiv. 11; upon which God, by the Prophet Jeremiah, proclaimed liberty to the sword, to the pestilence, and to the famine; and commissioned these messengers of his wrath to avenge himself on his people, Jer. xxxiv. 17. When the siege was resumed, we have a farther instance of Zedekiah's extreme infatuation; his rejection of Jeremiah's counsel, given him by the authority of God, to preserve himself, his family, and his city, by a surrender to the Chaldeans. Thus, after a siege of eighteen months, Jerusalem was stormed and burnt, Jer. xxxix. 1, 2; Zedekiah was taken in his flight; his sons were slain before his eyes; his eyes were afterwards put out, agreeably to the savage custom of eastern conquerors; and he was carried in chains to Babylon, Jer. xxxix. 5–7.

"The exiles on the river Chebar were far from being awakened to a devout acknowledgment of God's justice by the punishment inflicted on them: they continued rebellious and idolatrous, Ezek. ii. 3; xx. 39, they hearkened to false prophets and prophetesses, Ezek. xiii. 2, 17; and they were so alienated that he refused to be inquired of by them. In vain did Ezekiel endeavour to attract and win them by the charms of his flowing and insinuating eloquence; in vain did he assume a more vehement tone to awe and alarm them by heightened scenes of calamity and terror.

"We know few particulars concerning the Jews at Babylon. They enjoyed the instruction and example of the Prophet Daniel, who was carried away captive to that city in the third year of Jehoiakim, eight years before the captivity of Ezekiel, Dan. i. 1. Jeremiah cautioned them not to be deceived by their false prophets and diviners, Jer. xxix. 8, 9, 15, 21; against some of whom he denounced fearful judgments. He exhorted them to seek the peace of the city where they dwelt; to take wives, build houses, and plant gardens, till their restoration after seventy years, Jer. xxix. 5, 6, 7, 10. He also comforted them by a prediction of all the evil which God designed to inflict on Babylon: he assured them that none should remain in that proud city, but that it should be desolate for ever. The messenger, when he had read the book containing these denunciations, was commanded 'to bind a stone to it, and cast it into the Euphrates, and say, Thus shall Babylon sink, and shall not rise from the evil which I will bring on her,' Jer. li. 59–64. It farther appears, by Divine hymns now extant, see Psa. lxxix., cii., cvi., and cxxxvii., that God vouchsafed to inspire some of these Babylonian captives with his Holy Spirit. Nebuchadnezzar appointed Gedaliah ruler of the people that remained in Judea, 2 Kings xxv. 23; Jer. xl. 5; and the scattered military commanders and their men, together with other Jews who had taken refuge in the neighbouring countries, Jer. xl. 7, 11, submitted to his government on the departure of the Chaldeans. The Jews employed themselves in gathering the fruits of the earth, Jer. xl. 12, and a calm succeeded the tempest of war: but it was soon interrupted by the turbulence of this devoted people. Ishmael slew Gedaliah; and compelled the wretched remains of the Jews in Mizpah, the seat of Gedaliah's government, to retire with him towards the country of the Ammonites, Jer. xli. 10; a people hostile to the Chaldeans, Jer. xxvii. 3. Johanan raised a force to revenge this mad and cruel act, Jer. xli. 11–15; pursued Ishmael, overtook him, and recovered from him the people whom he had forced to follow him: but the assassin himself escaped with eight men to his place of refuge. The succeeding event furnishes another signal instance of human infatuation. Johanan, through fear of the Chaldeans, many of whom Ishmael had massacred, together with Gedaliah, Jer. xli. 3, conceived a design of retreating to Egypt, Jer xli. 17; but before he executed this resolution, he formally consulted the Prophet Jeremiah The prophet answered him in the name of Jehovah, Jer. xlii., that if Johanan and the peopl abode in Judea, God would 'build them, and not pull them down: would plant them, and not pluck them up;' but if they went to sojourn in Egypt, they should 'die by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence;' and should become an 'execration, and an astonishment, and a curse, and a reproach.' Notwithstanding this awful assurance, and the many prophecies of Jeremiah, which the most calamitous events had lately verified, Johanan defied the living God and his prophet, and madly adhered to his determination. Not long after the destruction of Jerusalem, the siege of Tyre was undertaken by Nebuchadnezzar. It continued for the space of thirteen years; and many think that the conquest of the Sidonians, Philistines, Ammonites, Moabites, and Idumeans, coincided with this period, the Chaldean being able to make powerful detachments from his vast forces. See the prophecies, Jer. xxvii. 2, 3; xlviii., xlix., and Ezek. xxv. After the reduction of that famous city, Nebuchadnezzar made his descent on Egypt, which he subdued and ravaged throughout; and at this time Johanan and his Jewish colonists experienced the vengeance of the conqueror, together with the Egyptians. So widely did Nebuchadnezzar spread his victories and devastations, that, according to the learned chronologer Marsham, Lond. edit. 1672, fol. p. 556, s. 18, this might justly be called the era of the subversion of cities.

——————— Omnis eo terrore Ægyptus, et Indi, Omnis Arabs, omnes vertebant terga Sabæi. VIRG. Æn. viii. 705.
'The trembling Indians and Egyptians yield:
Arabs and soft Sabæans quit the field.'"

I may add that the stroke fell upon no people so heavily as upon the Jews, for no other nation possessed privileges like them, and no other nation had sinned so deeply against God. Their crimes were seen in their punishment.

The principal design of this prophet was to comfort his companions in tribulation during their captivity, and to render it light by the most positive promises of their restoration to their own land, the re-building of the temple, and the re-establishment of the Divine worship, all their enemies being finally destroyed.

That Ezekiel is a very obscure writer, all have allowed who have attempted to explain his prophecies. The Jews considered him inexplicable. There is a tradition that the rabbins held a consultation whether they should admit Ezekiel into the sacred canon. And it was likely to be carried in the negative, when Rabbi Ananias rose up and said he would undertake to remove every difficulty from the account of Jehovah's chariot, chap. i., which is confessedly the most difficult part in the whole book. His proposal was received; and to assist him in his work, and that he might complete it to his credit, they furnished him with three hundred barrels of oil to light his lamp during the time he might be employed in the study of this part of his subject! This extravagant grant proved at once the conviction the rabbins had of the difficulty of the work; and it is not even intimated that Rabbi Ananias succeeded in any tolerable degree, if indeed he undertook the task; and they believe that to this hour the chariot mentioned in chap. i., and the account of the temple described at the conclusion of the book, have not been explained.

I believe it may be affirmed with truth that these parts of the prophecy have had as many different explanations as there have been expositors! Yet each has been sanguine in the hope that he had removed all difficulties; while every successor felt that the whole work was yet to be done, and that the Gordian knot was not likely to be untied unless by himself! And it is to be lamented that in these circumstances the work still remains as to its principal difficulties; and I certainly do not attempt to add another to Ezekiel's commentators with the most distant hope of being able to solve those particular difficulties.

After all, with the exception of the chariot, Gog and Magog, the peculiarities in the description of the temple, and some matters of this kind, the major part of the prophecy is very intelligible, and highly edifying; and does not present more difficulties than have been found in the preceding prophets, and may be found in those which follow. I have in the following notes done what I could, as a help to a better understanding of this part of the sacred writings.

The ancient Versions give some help; but it is astonishing how difficult it is to settle the text by a collation of MSS. This has not yet been properly done; and we cannot know the true meaning till we can ascertain the true reading. But after having laboured in this way I must express myself as the learned professor of the oriental tongues at Parma, J. B. De Rossi: Tanta hic in suffixis præsertim pronominibus codicum inconstantia ac varietas, ut tæduerit me laboris mei, ac verius ego quod olim de uno Zachariæ versu (xi. 5) dolens inquiebat Norzius, de toto Ezechielis libro usurpare possim, angustiatam fuisse animam meam ob varietates multas, et avertisse faciem meam ab eis. "That there is so much inconstancy and variation among the MSS., especially in the suffixed pronouns, that I was weary of my labour; and I could more truly say of the whole book of Ezekiel, than Norzius did relative to one passage in Zechariah, who, bitterly complaining of the many variations he met with, said, 'My soul was perplexed with them, and I turned away my face from them.'" As most of our printed editions have been taken from a very inadequate collation of MSS., especially of this prophet, much remains to be done to restore the text to a proper state of purity. When this is done it is presumed that several of the difficulties in this book will be removed. In many instances Abp. Newcome has been very successful.

On the famous controversy relative to Gog and Magog, I must refer the reader to the notes on chap. xxxviii. and xxxix., where the best accounts I have met with are detailed. There are only two schemes that appear at all probable; that which makes Gog Antiochus Epiphanes, king of Assyria, and that which makes him Cambyses, king of Persia. The former, as being the most probable, and the best supported in all its parts by the marks given in the prophecy, I have in a certain measure adopted, for want of one more satisfactory to my own mind.

The character of Ezekiel as a poet has been drawn at large by some of the most eminent critics of these and other countries. Lowth, Michaelis, and Eichhorn, are the chief. Abp. Newcome has quoted largely from the latter; and from his work, which is now very scarce and extremely dear, I shall present my readers with the following extracts:—

"The two first visions are so accurately polished, chap. i.–vii., viii.–xi., and demanded so much art to give them their last perfection and proportion, that they cannot possibly be an unpremeditated work. And if, according to the commonly received opinion, they were publicly read by Ezekiel as we read them now, he must have seriously designed them as a picture, and finished them in form. The intention of his visions might make this necessary. He designed no doubt to make deep impressions upon the people whom he was to guide; and by highly labouring the Divine appearances, to open their ears for his future oracles and representations. The more complete, divine, and majestic the Divine appearances were which he represented, the deeper veneration was impressed upon the mind towards the prophet to whom such high visions were communicated. Most of the parts which compose Ezekiel, as they are generally works of art, are full of artificial and elaborate plans.

"The peculiarities of language in the first chapter are to be found in the middle and end of the book. The same enthusiasm which in the beginning of his prophecies produced the magnificent Divine appearances, must also have built the temple of God at the conclusion. As in the beginning every thing is first proposed in high allegorical images, and afterwards the same ideas are repeated in plain words, thus also in the middle and at the end in every piece, allegorical representation is succeeded by literal. Throughout the style is rather prose than verse; and rough, hard, and mixed with the Chaldee.

"The division of Ezekiel into two parts has been adopted by several writers. They continue the former part to the thirty-ninth chapter, and consider the last nine chapters from the fortieth as a separate book. This division is possible. From the eleventh chapter a new elevated scene commences. Before there was nothing but oracles, full of misfortunes, punishments, death, and ruin; visions concerning the destruction of the government, and concerning the flight and state of the last king; and pictures of the universal corruption, idolatry, and superstition of Israel. From the fortieth chapter a new temple rises before the eyes of the holy seer; he walks round about it in Palestine; he measures the city and country for their new inhabitants; he orders sacrifices, feasts, and customs. In short, a Magna Charta is planned for priests, kings, and people, in future and better times. Lastly, from hence prosaic expressions predominate; at least the prophet elevates himself by poetical colouring much more rarely than before.

"A generally acknowledged character of Ezekiel is, that he minutely distinguishes every thing in its smallest parts. What the more ancient prophets brought together in one single picture, and to which they only alluded, and what they explained with the utmost brevity, and showed only from one side, that he explains and unfolds formally, and represents from all possible sides.

"Another character, and a principal one, which distinguishes his oracle is, that no other prophet has given so free a course to his imagination. Almost every thing is dressed in symbolical actions, in fables, narrations, allegories, or in the still higher poetry of visions. And as they are very complicate, there resound from all sides complaints of darkness. Whoever can look on these things with the eye of an eagle, and is not disturbed from the principal object by what is not essential; he alone is able to comprehend the sense of the whole composition, and he scarcely conceives how any one can complain of obscurity. Meanwhile, how different soever the species of composition are which he hazards, they are all worked out in the same general form. What he represents in one image, picture, or vision, in allegory, parable, or narration, is explained in a short speech, which God, who is at his right hand, enables him to pronounce.

"It is evident that he has shown an inexhaustible imagination and power of invention throughout all the pages of his book. He uses all sorts of prophetical poetry to appear always great and magnificent; and it cannot be denied that he has given all kinds, excellent pieces, both in design and execution. Particularly, he is so used to ecstasies and visions, that he adopts the language proper to these, where he has no visions to describe.

"If the dress of vision fitted any prophet, it was certainly Ezekiel: he was even naturally led to it by his situation, and by the subjects which he was to represent. He was to describe and foretell to his fellow captives several facts which happened in Palestine, in Jerusalem, and in the king's palace. A narration and description in simple prose could not possibly suit a prophet; he must give his object the requisite prophetic dignity, by a particular dress.

"He therefore brought the scene of events nearer. For this purpose he chose high ecstasies, such as the Greek and Roman poets pretended to in their flights of enthusiasm; the hand of Jehovah came upon him, and carried him to that place where what he intended to propose to his countrymen in their exile might be seen and considered. All ecstasies in my opinion are nothing but dresses, nothing but poetical fictions; and a poet of another age, and of another tone, of an inferior imagination and poetical endowments, would have given the same ideas quite another dress.

"Accustomed to this kind of poetry, he represented the restitution of the Jewish state in a sublime vision. His imagination placed him upon graves, where he stood on the dried bones of the dead. He saw how the graves opened, the bones were clothed with flesh, and the dead came forth by a new creation. Could there be a more lively fiction for this case? Another poet would have represented the restoration of the Jews in simple words; and would only have compared it to a resurrection, or give it some other ornamental delineation. To view this intuitively in an example, compare Ezek. xxxvii. 1–14 and Isa. xxvi. 19.

> 'Thy dead shall live, their dead bodies shall rise:
> Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust:
> For thy dew is as the dew of herbs,
> And the earth shall cast forth the mighty dead.'

"And, however numerous the fictions of Ezekiel are, they all appear in magnificent dress, and each in its peculiar splendid one. Lustre shines in him on every side; and if the poet has here and there overloaded his subject with ornaments, we shall be unable to refuse our admiration to his genius, notwithstanding these defects.

"The first part of his book may be an instance. The barren genius of Moses was gone when God appeared only in a fiery bush in the wilderness; and as the world improved in cultivation, a more luxuriant one succeeded in his place, which in process of time demanded wonderful figures and giant forms, that the representation of the Divine appearance might please. Isaiah had already appeared in a higher style than Moses. To him God manifested himself in the pomp of an oriental king; and this piece makes a strong impression by its unity, and gains on us by its elevated simplicity, majesty, and dignity, Isa. vi. But Ezekiel differs widely. Before him stands the chariot-throne of God, with wonderful forms; he summons all the pomp which nature and art can furnish; he abundantly employs fiction and composition to give his Divine appearance dignity, elevation, and majesty; and thus to make a suitable expression. The whole creation must lend him its most noble forms. Men, oxen, lions, and eagles support the throne: the Hebrew history must furnish all its most wonderful scenes, to surround the chariot-throne with the greatest pomp imaginable. I admire the master-hand of the artist, who knew how to compose in such a manner. I am astonished at the richness of his imagination, that could give dignity to all the exalted scenes of the Hebrew history, and could combine them in one body. But, notwithstanding this, the scene in Ezekiel is far from making the same deep and heart-striking impression with that of Isaiah. A short view of the whole in Isaiah does wonders; in Ezekiel the prospect is dispersed; and as it is not rounded, it astonishes rather than impresses. In Isaiah there is a majestic silence, which is only interrupted by the heavenly cry of the seraphs, Isa. vi. 3; in Ezekiel, the noise of the restless wheels and moving wings confounds us. In Isaiah, the eye is delighted with artless majesty; in Ezekiel, it is consumed by the brightness of the fire which shines round about the chariot-throne.

"The author of the Revelation, whose poetry is in the same style with that of Ezekiel, and full of imagination, has for the most part avoided the rocks upon which his predecessor struck; and, happily for the most part, has cut off the wild shoots of a heated imagination He also has fictions of wonders and giant forms; but he has produced them only so far as to give the reader a full image before his eyes. He does not pursue them minutely, and he does not distract or pain his reader.

"On the contrary, it was a happy invention that his lofty poems are sometimes interrupted by short speeches; they are not only useful for the illustration of his symbols, but also for the repose of the mind. By this change, his readers are agreeably entertained; and their imagination finds resting places, so as to soar more easily after the imagination of the poet.

"Ezekiel is a great poet, full of originality; and, in my opinion, whoever censures him as if he were only an imitator of the old prophets, can never have felt his power. He must not in general be compared with Isaiah and the rest of the old prophets. Those are great, Ezekiel is also great; those in their manner of poetry, Ezekiel in his; which he had invented for himself, if we may form our judgment from the Hebrew monuments still extant." Thus far a judicious critic, who but indirectly admits the prophet's inspiration.

Bp. Lowth, who has done so much to elucidate the Hebrew poetry, has also given fine critical judgments on the comparative merits of the prophets. Isaiah is his favourite; and him he places always at the head, and with him all others are compared. Of Ezekiel, his character is very high and accurately drawn; and my readers will naturally expect that I should produce what he says on this subject, rather than attempt any thing of my own; for this would resemble the attempt to write an Iliad after Homer.

"Ezekiel," says this learned prelate, "is inferior to Jeremiah in elegance, but is equal to Isaiah in SUBLIMITY, though in a different species of the sublime. He is bold, vehement, tragical, and deals very much in amplification. His SENTIMENTS are lofty, animated, poignant, and full of indignation. His IMAGES are fertile, magnificent, and sometimes rather bordering on indelicacy. His DICTION is grand, weighty, austere, rough, and sometimes uncultivated. He abounds in repetitions, not for the sake of beauty or grace, but from vehemence and indignation. Whatever his subject be, he keeps it always in his eye, without the least deviation, and is so much taken up with it that he has scarcely any regard to order or connection. In other things he may be perhaps exceeded by the other prophets but in that species for which he was particularly turned, that is, force, impetuosity, weight, and grandeur, no writer ever equalled him. His diction is clear enough; almost all his obscurity arises from his subjects. His VISIONS are particularly obscure; which, however, as in Hosea, Amos, and Zechariah, are delivered in a plain historical narration.

"The greater part of the book, particularly the middle of it, is poetical; whether we regard the matter or the language. But some passages are so rough and unpolished, that we are frequently at a loss to what species of writing we ought to refer them. As to STYLE, Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel may be placed with propriety enough in the same rank among the Hebrews, as Homer, Simonides, and Æschylus among the Greeks."

Nothing need be added, and indeed nothing can be added, to this character; it is as fairly as it is fully drawn; and every paragraph in the book will show its propriety. But could we satisfactorily fathom the prophet's meaning in those places where he is peculiarly obscure, we should feel the force and propriety of the bishop's character still more, as in those very places the prophet is peculiarly sublime. The prophecy was delivered that it might be understood and be profitable; and no doubt it was fully apprehended by those to whom it was originally given, and for whose sake it was sent from heaven. As to the portions which respect a very remote futurity, they will be understood when the events take place; which will, in such times, be an additional argument in favour of Divine revelation, when it is seen with what precision and accuracy prophets have foreseen and described such very remote and apparently contingent events.

To the general reader the following table, taken from Calmet, may be useful:—

A Chronological Table of the Prophecies of Ezekiel.

A. M.

3405. Ezekiel is led captive to Babylon with King Jeconiah. From this year the epoch of these prophecies must be taken.

3409. The first vision by the river Chebar, chap. i. The circumstances which followed Ezekiel's vocation to the prophetic office, chap. i., ii.

He draws upon a tile or bed of clay the plan of Jerusalem, and the siege that it was about to endure; and he remains lying on this plan, on his left side, three hundred and ninety days, chap. iv. See under A. M. 3420.

3410. He turns on his right side, and lies forty days, which point out the forty years of the sins of Judah. To this time chap. v., vi., vii. refer.

About the month of September, this being the sixth year of the captivity of Jeconiah, he had the visions related chap. viii.. ix., x., xi.

3411. Prophecies and figurative actions by which he points out the flight, capture, and blinding of Zedekiah, chap. xii. and the seven following.

Zedekiah rebels against Nebuchadnezzar, chap. xvii. 15, 17.

The prophet charges the elders of Judah with hypocrisy, who came to consult him, chap. xx., xxi. xxii., xxiii.

3414. The siege of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar. This was a sabbatic year, Jer. xxiv. 8, &c. The siege did not begin till about the middle of the winter, 2 Kings xxv. 1. The prophet's wife dies on the same day of the siege, and he is forbidden to mourn for her, chap. xxiv. 1, 2.

3415. Predictions against EGYPT, chap. xxix. 16. Nebuchadnezzar puts to flight Pharaoh-hophra, and returns to the siege of Jerusalem three hundred and ninety days before it was taken.

3416. Predictions against Tyre, chap. xxvi.–xxviii., the first day of the first month.

In the seventh day of the same month, God shows the prophet the miseries to be brought on Egypt by Nebuchadnezzar, chap. xxx.

In the third month of the same year, the prophet had another vision against Egypt, chap. xxxi.

Jerusalem is taken the ninth of the fourth month. Zedekiah was taken prisoner near Jericho. He is brought to Riblah, where, after seeing his children slain, his eyes are put out, he is laden with chains and led to Babylon. Thus were fulfilled and reconciled the seemingly contradictory prophecies concerning him.

3417. Ezekiel being informed of the taking of Jerusalem the fifth day of the tenth month, he predicts the ruin of the remnant that was left there under Gedaliah, chap. xxxiv. 21–29.

He afterwards foretells the ruin of Egypt, chap. xxxii. 1, 16, 32; and that of the Idumeans, chap. xxv. 12.

3419. The commencement of the siege of Tyre, which lasted thirteen years.

A. M.

3419. To the same time we must refer the miseries of the Sidonians, the Amalekites, the Moabites, and the Idumeans, pointed out by Jeremiah, chap. xxvii., xlviii., xlix; Ezek. xxv.

3420. End of the forty years mentioned chap. iv. 5, 6, and of the three hundred and ninety years from the separation of Israel and Judah. The forty years commence with the renewal of the covenant under Josiah.

3430. The vision in which God showed the prophet the rebuilding of the city and the temple, and the restoration of the kingdom of Israel, chap. xl. 1 to the end of the book.

This vision took place on the tenth of the first month, fourteen years after the taking of Jerusalem.

3432. Taking of the city of Tyre, by Nebuchadnezzar, to whom God promises the spoils of Egypt, as a compensation for the trouble and loss he sustained before Tyre, chap. xxix. 17–20.

Nebuchadnezzar enters Egypt. Amasis had been made king by the Cyrenians, who had rebelled against Pharaoh-hophra. Herodotus, lib. iv. c. 159, and lib. ii. cc. 161, 162.

3433. The king of Babylon overruns and subdues the whole of Egypt; commits the greatest outrages; and carries off captives the inhabitants, the Jews, and others whom he found there. See Jer. xliii., xliv., xlvi; Ezek. xxix., xxx., xxxi.

Nebuchadnezzar leaves Amasis king of Lower Egypt; Hophra, or Apries, having escaped to the Thebais.

3442. Death of Nebuchadnezzar.

Evil-merodach succeeds him; and sets Jeconiah at liberty, and makes him his companion, 2 Kings xv. 27 and Jer. lii. 31.

THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET EZEKIEL.

Chronological Notes relative to the commencement of Ezekiel's prophesying.

Year from the Creation, according to Archbishop Usher, 3409.—Year of the Jewish era of the world, 3166.—Year from the Deluge, 1753.—Second year of the forty-sixth Olympiad.—Year from the building of Rome, according to the Varronian or generally received account, 159.—Year from the building of Rome, according to Cato and the Fasti Consulares, 158.—Year from the building of Rome, according to Polybius the historian, 157.—Year from the building of Rome, according to Fabius Pictor, 153.—Year of the Julian Period, 4119.—Year of the era of Nabonassar, 153.—Year from the foundation of Solomon's temple, 409.—Year since the destruction of the kingdom of Israel by Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, 126.—Second year after the third Sabbatic year after the seventeenth Jewish jubilee, according to Helvicus. Year before the birth of Christ, 591.—Year before the vulgar era of Christ's nativity, 595.—Cycle of the Sun, 3.—Cycle of the Moon, 15.—Twenty-second year of Tarquinius Priscus, the fifth king of the Romans: this was the eighty-sixth year before the consulship of Lucius Junius Brutus, and Publius Valerius Poplicola.—Thirty-first year of Cyaxares, or Cyaraxes, the fourth king of Media.—Eleventh year of Agasicles, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Proclidæ.—Thirteenth year of Leon, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Eurysthenidæ.—Twenty-fifth year of Alyattes II., king of Lydia, and father of the celebrated Crœsus.—Eighth year of Æropas, the seventh king of Macedon.—Sixth and last year of Psammis, king of Egypt, according to Helvicus, an accurate chronologer. This Egyptian king was the immediate predecessor of the celebrated Apries, called Vaphres by Eusebius, and Pharaoh-hophra by Jeremiah, chap. xliv. 30.—First year of Baal, king of the Tyrians. Twelfth year of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon.—Fourth year of Zedekiah, the last king of Judah.

CHAPTER I.

This chapter contains that extraordinary vision of the Divine glory with which the prophet was favoured when he received the commission and instructions respecting the discharge of his office, which are contained in the two following chapters. The time of this Divine manifestation to the prophet, 1–3. The vision of the four living creatures, and of the four wheels, 4–25. Description of the firmament that was spread over them, and of the throne upon which one sat in appearance as a man, 26–28. This vision, proceeding in a whirlwind from the NORTH, seems to indicate the dreadful judgments that were coming upon the whole land of Judah through the instrumentality of the cruel Chaldeans, who lay to the north of it. See Jer. i. 14; iv. 6; and vi. 1.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

NOW it came to pass in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, in the fifth day of the month, as I was among the [a] captives [b] by the river of Chebar, that [c] the heavens were opened, and I saw [d] visions of God.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

[a] Heb. captivity.——[b] Ver. 3; chap. iii. 15, 23; x. 15, 20, 22; xliii. 3.

[c] So Matt. iii. 16; Acts vii. 56; x. 11; Rev. xix. 11.——[d] Chap. viii. 3.

NOTES ON CHAP. I.

Verse 1. In the thirtieth year] We know not what this date refers to. Some think it was the age of the prophet; others think the date is taken from the time that Josiah renewed the covenant with the people, 2 Kings xxii. 3, from which Usher, Prideaux, and Calmet compute the forty years of Judah's transgression, mentioned chap. iv. 6.

Abp. Newcome thinks there is an error in the text, and that instead of בשלשים bisheloshim, in the thirtieth, we should read בחמישית bachamishith, in the fifth, as in the second verse. "Now it came to pass in the fifth year, in the fourth month, in the fifth day of the month," &c. But this is supported by none of the ancient Versions, nor by any MS. The Chaldee paraphrases the verse, "And it came to pass thirty years

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

2 In the fifth day of the month, which was the fifth year of [e] king Jehoiachin's captivity.

3 The word of the LORD came expressly unto [f] Ezekiel the priest, the son of Buzi, in the land of the Chaldeans by the river Chebar; and [g] the hand of the LORD was there upon him.

4 And I looked, and, behold, [h] a whirlwind came [i] out of the north, a great cloud, and a fire [k] infolding itself, and a brightness was about it, and out of the midst thereof as the colour of amber, out of the midst of the fire.

5 [l] Also out of the midst thereof came the likeness of four living creatures. And [m] this was their appearance; they had [n] the likeness of a man.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

6 And every one had four faces, and every one had four wings.

7 And their feet were [o] straight feet; the sole of their feet was like the sole of a calf's foot: and they sparkled [p] like the colour of burnished brass.

8 [q] And they had the hands of a man under their wings on their four sides; and they

[e] 2 Kings xxiv. 12, 15.——[f] Heb. Jehezkel.——[g] 1 Kings xviii. 46; 2 Kings iii. 15; chap. iii. 14, 22; viii. 1; xl. 1.——[h] Jer. xxiii. 19; xxv. 32.——[i] Jer. i. 14; iv. 6; vi. 1.

[k] Heb. catching itself.——[l] Rev. iv. 6, &c.——[m] Chap. x. 8, &c. [n] Ver. 10; chap. x. 14, 21.——[o] Heb. a straight foot.——[p] Dan. x. 6; Rev. i. 15.——[q] Chap. x. 18, 21.

after the high priest Hilkiah had found the book of the law, in the house of the sanctuary," &c. This was in the twelfth year of Josiah's reign. The thirtieth year, computed as above, comes to A. M. 3409, the fourth year from the captivity of Jeconiah, and the fifth of the reign of Zedekiah. Ezekiel was then among the captives who had been carried away with Jeconiah, and had his dwelling near the river Chebar, Chaborus, or Aboras, a river of Mesopotamia, which falls into the Euphrates a little above Thapsacus, after having run through Mesopotamia from east to west.—Calmet.

Fourth month] Thammuz, answering nearly to our July.

I saw visions of God.] Emblems and symbols of the Divine Majesty. He particularly refers to those in this chapter.

Verse 2. Jehoiachin's captivity] Called also Jeconiah and Coniah; see 2 Kings xxiv. 12. He was carried away by Nebuchadnezzar; see 2 Kings xxiv. 14.

Verse 3. The hand of the Lord] I was filled with his power, and with the influence of the prophetic spirit.

Verse 4. A whirlwind came out of the north] Nebuchadnezzar, whose land, Babylonia, lay north of Judea. Chaldea is thus frequently denominated by Jeremiah.

A great cloud, and a fire infolding itself] A mass of fire concentrated in a vast cloud, that the flames might be more distinctly observable, the fire never escaping from the cloud, but issuing, and then returning in upon itself. It was in a state of powerful agitation; but always involving itself, or returning back to the centre whence it appeared to issue.

A brightness was about it] A fine tinge of light surrounded the cloud, in order to make its limits the more discernible; beyond which verge the turmoiling fire did not proceed.

The colour of amber] This was in the centre of the cloud; and this amber-coloured substance was the centre of the labouring flame. The word ηλεκτρον, which we translate amber, was used to signify a compound metal, very bright, made of gold and brass.

Verse 5. Also out of the midst thereof came—four living creatures.] As the amber-coloured body was the centre of the fire, and this fire was in the centre of the cloud; so out of this amber-coloured igneous centre came the living creatures just mentioned.

Verse 6. Every one had four faces] There were four several figures of these living creatures, and each of these figures had four distinct faces: but as the face of the man was that which was presented to the prophet's view, so that he saw it more plainly than any of the others; hence it is said, ver. 5, that each of these figures had the likeness of a man; and the whole of this compound image bore a general resemblance to the human figure.

Verse 7. Their feet were straight feet] There did not seem to be any flexure at the knee, nor were the legs separated in that way as to indicate progression by walking. I have before me several ancient Egyptian images of Isis, Osiris, Anubis, &c., where the legs are not separated, nor is there any bend at the knees; so that if there was any motion at all, it must have been by gliding, not progressive walking. It is a remark of Ælian, that the gods are never represented as walking, but always gliding; and he gives this as a criterion to discern common angelic appearances from those of the gods: all other spiritual beings walked progressively, rising on one foot, while they stretched out the other; but the deities always glided without gradual progressive motions. And Heliodorus in his Romance of Theogines and Charicha, gives the same reason for the united feet of the gods, &c., and describes the same appearances.

Like the sole of a calf's foot] Before it is stated to be a straight foot; one that did not lay down a flat horizontal sole, like that of the human foot.

And they sparkled like the colour of burnished brass.] I suppose this refers rather to the hoof of the calf's foot, than to the whole appearance of the leg. There is scarcely any thing that gives a higher lustre than highly polished or burnished brass. Our blessed Lord is represented with legs like burnished brass, Rev. i. 15.

Verse 8. They had the hands of a man under their wings] I doubt much whether the arms be not here represented as all covered with feathers, so that they four had their faces and their wings.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

9 [r]Their wings were joined one to another; [s]they turned not when they went; they went every one straight forward.

10 As for [t]the likeness of their faces, they four [u]had the face of a man, [v]and the face of a lion, on the right side: [w]and they four had the face of an ox on the left side; [x]they four also had the face of an eagle.

11 Thus were their faces: and their wings were [y]stretched upward; two wings of every one were joined one to another, and [z]two covered their bodies.

12 And [a]they went every one straight forward: [b]whither the spirit was to go, they went; and [c]they turned not when they went.

13 As for the likeness of the living creatures, their appearance was like burning coals of fire, [d]and like the appearance of lamps: it went up and down among the living creatures; and the fire was bright, and out of the fire went forth lightning.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595 Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman, 22.

14 And the living creatures [e]ran and returned [f]as the appearance of a flash of lightning.

15 Now as I beheld the living creatures, behold [g]one wheel upon the earth by the living creatures, with his four faces.

16 [h]The appearance of the wheels and their work was [i]like unto the colour of a beryl: and they four had one likeness: and their appearance and their work was as it were a wheel in the middle of a wheel.

17 When they went, they went upon their four sides: [k]and they turned not when they went.

[r] Ver. 11.——[s] Ver. 12; chap. x. 11.——[t] See Rev. iv. 7. [u] Num. ii. 10.——[v] Num. ii. 3.——[w] Num. ii. 18.——[x] Num. ii. 25.——[y] Or, divided above.——[z] Isa. vi. 2.

[a] Ver. 9; chap. x. 22.——[b] Ver. 20.——[c] Ver. 9, 17.——[d] Rev. iv. 5.——[e] Zech. iv. 10.——[f] Matt. xxiv. 27.——[g] Chap. x. 9. [h] Chap. x. 9, 10.——[i] Dan. x. 6.——[k] Ver. 12.

had the appearance of wings, only the hand was bare; and I rather think that this is the meaning of their having "the hands of a man under their wings."

Verse 9. Their wings were joined one to another] When their wings were extended, they formed a sort of canopy level with their own heads or shoulders; and on this canopy was the throne, and the "likeness of the man" upon it, ver. 26.

They turned not when they went] The wings did not flap in flying, or move in the manner of oars, or of the hands of a man in swimming, in order to their passing through the air; as they glided in reference to their feet, so they soared in reference to their wings.

Verse 10. As for the likeness of their faces] There was but one body to each of those compound animals: but each body had four faces; the face of a man and of a lion on the right side; the face of an ox and an eagle on the left side. Many of these compound images appear in the Asiatic idols. Many are now before me: some with the head and feet of a monkey, with the body, arms, and legs of a man. Others with the head of the dog; body, arms, and legs human. Some with the head of an ape; all the rest human. Some with one head and eight arms; others with six heads or faces, with twelve arms. The head of a lion and the head of a cock often appear; and some with the head of a cock, the whole body human, and the legs terminating in snakes. All these were symbolical, and each had its own appropriate meaning. Those in the text had theirs also, could we but find it out.

Verse 12. They went every one straight forward] Not by progressive stepping, but by gliding.

Whither the spirit was to go] Whither that whirlwind blew, they went, being borne on by the wind, see ver. 4.

Verse 13. Like burning coals of fire] The whole substance appeared to be of flame; and among them frequent coruscations of fire, like vibrating lamps, often emitting lightning, or rather sparks of fire, as we have seen struck out of strongly ignited iron in a forge. The flames might be something like what is called warring wheels in pyrotechny. They seemed to conflict together.

Verse 14. The living creatures ran and returned] They had a circular movement; they were in rapid motion, but did not increase their distance from the spectator. So I think this should be understood.

Verse 15. One wheel upon the earth] It seems at first view there were four wheels, one for each of the living creatures; that is, the creatures were compound, so were the wheels, for there was "a wheel in the middle of a wheel." And it is generally supposed that these wheels cut each other at right angles up and down; and this is the manner in which they are generally represented; but most probably the wheel within means merely the nave in which the spokes are inserted, in reference to the ring, rim, or periphery, where these spokes terminate from the centre or nave. I do think this is what is meant by the wheel within a wheel; and I am the more inclined to this opinion, by some fine Chinese drawings now before me, where their deities are represented as walking upon wheels, the wheels themselves encompassed with fire. The wheel is simply by itself, having a projecting axis; so of these it is said, "their appearance and their work was, as it were, a wheel within a wheel." There were either two peripheries or rims with their spokes, or the nave answered for the wheel within. I have examined models of what are called Ezekiel's wheels, which are designed to move equally in all directions: but I plainly saw that this was impossible; nor can any kind of complex wheel move in this way.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

18 As for their rings, they were so high that they were dreadful; and their [l] rings were [m] full of eyes round about them four.

19 And [n] when the living creatures went, the wheels went by them: and when the living creatures were lifted up from the earth, the wheels were lifted up.

20 [o] Whithersoever the spirit was to go, they went, thither was their spirit to go; and the wheels were lifted up over against them: [p] for the spirit [q] of the living creature was in the wheels.

21 [r] When those went, these went; and when those stood, these stood; and when those were lifted up from the earth, the wheels were lifted up over against them: for the spirit [s] of the living creature was in the wheels.

22 [t] And the likeness of the firmament upon the heads of the living creature was as the colour of the terrible crystal, stretched forth over their heads above.

23 And under the firmament were their wings straight, the one toward the other: every one had two, which covered on this side, and every one had two, which covered on that side, their bodies.

24 [u] And when they went, I heard the noise of their wings, [v] like the noise of great waters, as [w] the voice of the Almighty, the voice of speech, as the noise of a host: when they stood, they let down their wings.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

25 And there was a voice from the firmament that was over their heads, when they stood, and had let down their wings.

26 [x] And above the firmament that was over their heads was the likeness of a throne, [y] as the appearance of a sapphire stone: and upon the likeness of the throne was the likeness as the appearance of a man above upon it.

27 [z] And I saw as the colour of amber, as the appearance of fire round about within it, from the appearance of his loins even upward, and from the appearance of his loins even downward, I saw as it were the appearance of fire, and it had brightness round about.

28 [a] As the appearance of the bow that is in the cloud in the day of rain, so was the appearance of the brightness round about. [b] This was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of the LORD. And when I saw it, [c] I fell upon my face, and I heard a voice of one that spake.

---

[l] Or, strakes.——[m] Chap. x. 12; Zech. iv. 10.——[n] Chap. x. 16, 17.——[o] Ver. 12.——[p] Chap. x. 17.——[q] Or, of life.——[r] Ver. 19, 20; chap. x. 17.——[s] Or, of life.——[t] Chap. x. 1.——[u] Chap. x. 5.——[v] Chap. xliii. 2; Dan. x. 6; Rev. i. 15.

[w] Job xxxvii. 4, 5; Psa. xxix. 3, 4; lxviii. 33.——[x] Chap. x. 1.——[y] Exod. xxiv. 10.——[z] Chap. viii. 2.——[a] Rev. iv. 3; x. 1.——[b] Chap. iii. 23; viii. 4.——[c] Chap. iii. 23; Dan. viii. 17; Acts ix. 4; Rev. i. 17.

Verse 18. As for their rings] The strakes which form the rim or periphery.

They were dreadful] They were exceedingly great in their diameter, so that it was tremendous to look from the part that touched the ground to that which was opposite above.

Were full of eyes] Does not this refer to the appearance of nails keeping on the spokes, or strakes or bands upon the rim?

Verse 19. When the living creatures went, the wheels went] The wheels were attached to the living creatures, so that, in progress, they had the same motion.

Verse 20. The spirit of the living creature was in the wheels.] That is, the wheels were instinct with a vital spirit; the wheels were alive, they also were animals, or endued with animal life, as the creatures were that stood upon them. Here then is the chariot of Jehovah. There are four wheels, on each of which one of the compound animals stands; the four compound animals form the body of the chariot, their wings spread horizontally above, forming the canopy or covering of this chariot; on the top of which, or upon the extended wings of the four living creatures, was the throne, on which was the appearance of a man, ver. 26.

Verse 22. The colour of the terrible crystal] Like a crystal, well cut and well polished, with various faces, by which rays of light were refracted, assuming either a variety of prismatic colours, or an insufferably brilliant splendour. This seems to be the meaning of the terrible crystal. Newcome translates, fearful ice. The common translation is preferable.

Verse 23. Every one had two, which covered on this side] While they employed two of their wings to form a foundation for the firmament to rest on, two other wings were let down to cover the lower part of their bodies: but this they did only when they stood, ver. 24.

Verse 24. The noise of their wings] When the whirlwind drove the wheels, the wind rustling among the wings was like the noise of many waters; like a waterfall, or waters dashing continually against the rocks, or rushing down precipices.

As the voice of the Almighty] Like distant thunder; for this is termed the voice of God, Psa. xviii. 13; Exod. ix. 23, 28, 29; xx. 18.

Verse 26. A sapphire] The pure oriental sapphire, a large well cut specimen of which is now before me, is one of the most beautiful and resplendent blues that can be conceived. I have sometimes seen the heavens assume this illustrious hue. The human form above this canopy is supposed to represent Him who, in the fulness of time, was manifested in the flesh.

Verse 27. The colour of amber] There are specimens of amber which are very pure and beautifully transparent. One which I now hold up to the light gives a most beautiful bright yellow colour. Such a splendid appearance had the august Being who sat upon this throne from the reins upward; but from thence downward he had the appearance of fire, burning with a clear and brilliant flame. For farther particulars see the notes on chap. x.

Verse 28. As the appearance of the bow] Over the canopy on which this glorious personage sat there was a fine rainbow, which, from the description here, had all its colours vivid, distinct, and in perfection—red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo, and violet. In all this description we must understand every metal, every colour, and every natural appearance, to be in their utmost perfection of shape, colour, and splendour. "And this," as above described, "was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of the Lord." Splendid and glorious as it was, it was only the "appearance of the likeness," a faint representation of the real thing.

I have endeavoured to explain these appearances as correctly as possible; to show their forms, positions, colours, &c. But who can explain their meaning? We have conjectures in abundance; and can it be of any use to mankind to increase the number of those conjectures? I think not. I doubt whether the whole does not point out the state of the Jews, who were about to be subdued by Nebuchadnezzar, and carried into captivity. And I am inclined to think that the "living creatures, wheels, fires, whirlwinds," &c., which are introduced here, point out, emblematically, the various means, sword, fire, pestilence, famine, &c., which were employed in their destruction; and that God appears in all this to show that Nebuchadnezzar is only his instrument to inflict all these calamities. What is in the following chapter appears to me to confirm this supposition. But we have the rainbow, the token of God's covenant, to show that though there should be a destruction of the city, temple, &c., and sore tribulation among the people, yet there should not be a total ruin; after a long captivity they should be restored. The rainbow is an illustrious token of mercy and love

CHAPTER II.

The prophet, having been overwhelmed with the glorious vision in the preceding chapter, is here strengthened and comforted, 1, 2; and then commissioned to declare to the rebellious house of Israel the terrible judgments that would very shortly come upon the whole land, if they repented not; with a gracious assurance to Ezekiel that God would be constantly with him while executing the duties of his office, 3–5. The prophet is also commanded to be fearless, resolute, and faithful in the discharge of it. 6–8, as he must be the messenger of very unpleasing tidings, which will expose him to great persecution, 9, 10.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

AND he said unto me, Son of man, [a] stand upon thy feet, and I will speak unto thee.

2 And [b] the spirit entered into me when he spake unto me, and set me upon my feet, that I heard him that spake unto me.

3 And he said unto me, Son of man, I send thee to the children of Israel, to a rebellious [c] nation that hath rebelled against me: [d] they and their fathers have transgressed against me, even unto this very day.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

[a] Dan. x. 11.——[b] Chap. iii. 24 ——[c] Heb. nations.

[d] Jer. iii. 25; chap. xx. 18, 21, 30.

NOTES ON CHAP. II.

Verse 1. And he said unto me] In the last verse of the preceding chapter we find that the prophet was so penetrated with awe at the sight of the glory of God in the mystical chariot, that "he fell upon his face;" and, while he was in this posture of adoration, he heard the voice mentioned here. It is evident, therefore, that the present division of these chapters is wrong. Either the first should end with the words "This was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of the Lord," ver. 28; or the first verse of this chapter should be added to the preceding, and this begin with the second verse.

Verse 2. And the spirit entered into me] This spirit was different to that mentioned above, by which the wheels, &c., were moved. The spirit of prophecy is here intended; whose office was not merely to enable him to foresee and foretell future events, but to purify and refine his heart, and qualify him to be a successful preacher of the word of life.

He who is sent by the God of all grace to convert sinners must be influenced by the Holy Ghost; otherwise he can neither be saved himself, nor become the instrument of salvation to others.

And set me upon my feet] That he might stand as a servant before his master, to receive his orders.

Verse 3. Son of man] This appellative, so often mentioned in this book, seems to have been given first to this prophet; afterwards to Daniel; and after that to the MAN Christ Jesus. Perhaps it was given to the two former to remind them of their frailty, and that they should not be exalted in their own minds by the extraordinary revelations granted to them; and that they should feel themselves of the same nature with those to whom they were sent; and, from the common principle of humanity, deeply interest themselves in the welfare of their unhappy countrymen. To the latter it might have been appropriated merely to show that though all his actions demonstrated him to be GOD, yet that he was also really MAN; and that in the man Christ Jesus dwelt all the fulness of the Godhead bodily. When the acts of Christ are considered, it is more easy

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

4 [o] For they are [f] impudent children and stiff-hearted. I do send thee unto them; and thou shalt say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God.

5 [g] And they, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear, (for they are a rebellious house,) yet [h] shall know that there hath been a prophet among them.

6 And thou, son of man, [i] be not afraid of them, neither be afraid of their words, though [k] briers [l] and thorns be with thee, and thou dost dwell among scorpions: [m] be not afraid of their words, nor be dismayed at their looks, [n] though they be a rebellious house.

7 [o] And thou shalt speak my words unto them, [p] whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear: for they are [q] most rebellious.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

8 But thou, son of man, hear what I say unto thee; Be not thou rebellious like that rebellious house: open thy mouth, and [r] eat that I give thee.

9 And when I looked, behold, [s] a hand was sent unto me; and, lo, [t] a roll of a book was therein:

10 And he spread it before me; and it was written within and without: and there was written therein lamentations, and mourning, and wo.

[e] Chap. iii. 7.——[f] Heb. hard of face.——[g] Chap. iii. 11, 26, 27. [h] Chap. xxxiii. 33.——[i] Jer. i. 8, 17; Luke xii. 4.——[k] Or, rebels.——[l] Isa. ix. 18; Jer. vi. 28; Mic. vii. 4.

[m] Chap. iii. 9; 1 Pet. iii. 14.——[n] Chap. iii. 9, 26, 27.——[o] Jer. i. 7, 17.——[p] Ver. 5.——[q] Heb. rebellion.——[r] Rev. x. 9.——[s] Ch. viii. 3; Jer. i. 9.——[t] Chap. iii. 1.

to believe his eternal Godhead, than to be convinced that the person we hear speaking, and see working, is also a man like unto ourselves.

I send thee to the children of Israel] To those who were now in captivity, in Chaldea particularly; and to the Jews in general, both far and near.

Verse 4. Thou shalt say unto them, Thus saith the Lord] Let them know that what thou hast to declare is the message of the Lord, that they may receive it with reverence.

Every preacher of God's word should take heed that it is God's message he delivers to the people. Let him not suppose, because it is according to his own creed or confession of faith, that therefore it is God's word. False doctrines and fallacies without end are foisted on the world in this way. Bring the creed first to the Word of God, and scrupulously try whether it be right; and when this is done, leave it where you please; take the Bible, and warn them from God's word recorded there.

Verse 5. Yet shall know that there hath been a prophet among them.] By this they shall be assured of two things: 1. That God in his mercy had given them due warning. 2. That themselves were inexcusable, for not taking it.

Verse 6. Be not afraid of them] They will maltreat thee for thy message; but let not the apprehension of this induce thee to suppress it. Though they be rebels, fear them not; I will sustain and preserve thee.

Verse 7. Whether they will hear] Whether they receive the message, or persecute thee for it, declare it to them, that they may be without excuse.

Verse 8. Open thy mouth and eat that I give thee.] Take my word as thou wouldst take thy proper food; receive it into thy heart; ponder it there, that it may be the means of strengthening and preserving thy soul, as proper nourishment will strengthen the body, and preserve from death And the people to whom such messages of God may come should so hear it, read, mark, learn, and inwardly digest it, that it may become efficient nourishment to their souls.

Verse 9. A hand was sent] Here the hand signifies not only the instrument of conveyance, but an emblem of the Divine power, which the hand of God always signifies.

A roll of a book] מגלת ספר megillath sepher. All ancient books were written so as to be rolled up; hence volumen, a volume, from volvo, I roll.

Verse 10. It was written within and without] Contrary to the state of rolls in general, which are written on the inside only. The Hebrew rolls are generally written in this way. There are several of such Hebrew rolls before me, all written on the inside only, consisting of skins of vellum, or parchment, or basil, a sort of half-tanned sheep or goat skin, sewed together, extending to several yards in length. Other Asiatic books were written in the same way. A Sanscrit roll of sixty feet in length, also before me, is written all on the inside; and a Koran, written in exceedingly small characters, about two inches broad and twelve feet long, and weighing but about half an ounce. But the roll presented to the prophet was written on both sides, because the prophecy was long, and to the same effect; that they might see the mind of God wherever they looked.

There was written therein lamentations, and mourning, and wo.] What an awful assemblage! קינים והגה והי kinim, vahegeh, vehi, lamentations, and a groan, and alas! Lamentations on all hands; a groan from the dying; and alas, or Wo is me! from the survivors. It was the letter that killeth, and is the ministration of death. What a mercy to have that which is emphatically called Το Ευαγγελιον, The glad tidings, the good news! Christ Jesus is come into the world to save sinners; and he wills that all men should be saved and come to the knowledge of the truth. Here are rejoicings, thanksgivings, and exultation.

CHAPTER III.

This chapter contains more particular instructions to the prophet. It begins with repeating his appointment to his office, 1–3. Ezekiel is then informed that his commission is, at this time, to the house of Israel exclusively, 4–6; that his countrymen would pay little regard to him, 7; that he must persevere in his duty notwithstanding such great discouragement; and he is endued with extraordinary courage and intrepidity to enable him fearlessly to declare to a disobedient and gainsaying people the whole counsel of God, 8–11. The prophet is afterwards carried by the spirit that animated the cherubim and wheels, and by which he received the gift of prophecy, to a colony of his brethren in the neighbourhood, where he remained seven days overwhelmed with astonishment, 12–15. He is then warned of the awful importance of being faithful in his office, 16–21; commanded to go forth into the plain that he may have a visible manifestation of the Divine Presence, 22; and is again favoured with a vision of that most magnificent set of symbols described in the first chapter, by which the glorious majesty of the God of Israel was in some measure represented, 23. See also Isa. vi. 1–18; Dan. x. 5–19; and Rev. i. 10–16; iv. 1–11, for other manifestations of the Divine glory, in all of which some of the imagery is very similar. The prophet receives directions relative to his future conduct, 24–27.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

MOREOVER he said unto me, Son of man, eat that thou findest; [a] eat this roll, and go speak unto the house of Israel.

2 So I opened my mouth, and he caused me to eat that roll.

3 And he said unto me, Son of man, cause thy belly to eat, and fill thy bowels with this roll that I give thee. Then did I [b] eat it; and it was in my mouth [c] as honey for sweetness.

4 And he said unto me, Son of man, go, get thee unto the house of Israel, and speak with my words unto them.

5 For thou art not sent to a people [d] of a strange speech and of a hard language, but to the house of Israel;

6 Not to many people [e] of a strange speech and of a hard language, whose words thou canst not understand. [f] Surely, [g] had I sent thee to them, they would have hearkened unto thee.

7 But the house of Israel will not hearken unto thee; [h] for they will not hearken unto me: [i] for all the house of Israel are [k] impudent and hard-hearted.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

8 Behold, I have made thy face strong against their faces, and thy forehead strong against their foreheads.

9 [l] As an adamant harder than flint have I made thy forehead: [m] fear them not, neither be dismayed at their looks, though they be a rebellious house.

10 Moreover he said unto me, Son of man, all my words that I shall speak unto thee, receive in thine heart, and hear with thine ears.

11 And go, get thee to them of the captivity, unto the children of thy people, and speak unto them, and tell them, [n] Thus saith the Lord GOD; whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear.

12 Then [o] the spirit took me up, and I heard

[a] Chap. ii. 8, 9.——[b] Rev. x. 9; see Jer. xv. 16.——[c] Psa. xix. 10; cxix. 103.——[d] Heb. deep of lip, and heavy of tongue; and so ver. 6.——[e] Heb. deep of lip and heavy of language.——[f] Or, If I had sent thee, &c., would they not have hearkened unto thee?

[g] Matt. xi. 21, 23.——[h] John xv. 20.——[i] Chap. ii. 4.——[k] Heb. stiff of forehead, and hard of heart.——[l] Isa. l. 7; Jer. i. 18; xv. 20; Mic. iii. 8.——[m] Jer. i. 8, 17; chap. ii. 6.——[n] Chap. ii. 5, 7; ver. 27.——[o] Ver. 14; chap. viii. 3; see 1 Kings xviii. 12; 2 Kings ii. 16; Acts viii. 39.

NOTES ON CHAP. III.

Verse 1. Eat this roll, and go speak] This must have passed in vision; but the meaning is plain. Receive my word—let it enter into thy soul; digest it—let it be thy nourishment; and let it be thy meat and drink to do the will of thy Father who is in heaven.

Verse 3. It was in my mouth as honey] It was joyous to me to receive the Divine message, to be thus let into the secrets of the Divine counsel, and I promised myself much comfort in that intimate acquaintance with which I was favoured by the Supreme Being. In Rev. x. 10 we find St. John receiving a little book, which he ate, and found it sweet as honey in his mouth, but after he had eaten it, it made his belly bitter, signifying that a deep consideration of the awful matter contained in God's word against sinners, which multitudes of them will turn to their endless confusion, must deeply afflict those who know any thing of the worth of an immortal spirit.

Verse 5. Thou art not sent to a people of a strange speech] I neither send thee to thy adversaries, the Chaldeans, nor to the Medes and Persians, their enemies. Even these would more likely have hearkened unto thee than thy own countrymen.

Verse 7. Impudent and hard-hearted.] "Stiff of forehead, and hard of heart."—Margin. The marginal readings on several verses here are very nervous and very correct.

Verse 12. Then the Spirit took me up] This, as Calmet remarks, has been variously understood. 1.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

behind me a voice of a great rushing, saying, Blessed be the glory of the LORD from his place.

13 I heard also the noise of the wings of the living creatures that [p] touched one another, and the noise of the wheels over against them, and a noise of a great rushing.

14 So [q] the spirit lifted me up and took me away, and I went [r] in bitterness, in the [s] heat of my spirit; but the [t] hand of the LORD was strong upon me.

15 Then I came to them of the captivity at Tel-abib, that dwelt by the river of Chebar, and [u] I sat where they sat, and remained there astonished among them seven days.

16 And it came to pass at the end of seven days, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

17 [v] Son of man, I have made thee a [w] watchman unto the house of Israel: therefore hear the word at my mouth, and give them warning from me.

18 When I say unto the wicked, Thou shalt surely die; and thou givest him not warning, nor speakest to warn the wicked from his wicked way, to save his life; the same wicked man [x] shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thine hand.

19 Yet if thou warn the wicked, and he turn not from his wickedness, nor from his wicked way, he shall die in his iniquity; [y] but thou hast delivered thy soul.

[p] Heb. kissed.——[q] Ver. 12; chap. viii. 3.——[r] Heb. bitter. [s] Heb. hot anger.——[t] 2 Kings iii. 15; chap. i. 3; viii. 1; xxxvii. 1.——[u] Job ii. 13; Psa. cxxxvii. 1.

[v] Chap. xxxiii. 7, 8, 9.——[w] Isa. lii. 8; lvi. 10; lxii. 6; Jer. vi. 17.——[x] Chap. xxxiii. 6; John viii. 21, 24.——[y] Isa. xlix. 4, 5; Acts xx. 26.

An impetuous wind carried him to the place where his brethren sojourned. 2. The Holy Spirit, which filled his heart, transported him in a moment to the place where the captives were. 3. Or, he was so transported with heavenly ardour in his mind, that he ran immediately off, and seemed to fly to the place where God commanded him to go. The promptitude and impetuosity of his spirit seemed to furnish him with wings on the occasion. However this may be understood, the going to the captives was real.

A voice of a great rushing] This was the noise made by the wings of the living creatures that formed the chariot of Jehovah. See the notes on chap. i. and x.

Blessed be the glory of the Lord] Probably the acclamation of the living creatures: "Let God be blessed from the throne of his glory! He deserves the praises of his creatures in all the dispensations of his mercy and justice, of his providence and grace."

Verse 13. A great rushing.] All the living creatures and the wheels being then in motion.

Verse 14. I went in bitterness] Being filled with indignation at the wickedness and obstinacy of my people, I went, determining to speak the word of God without disguise, and to reprove them sharply for their rebellion; and yet I was greatly distressed because of the heavy message which I was commanded to deliver.

Verse 15. I came to them of the captivity] Because the hand of the Lord was strong upon him and supported him, he soon reached the place.

Tel-abib] תל אביב "a heap of corn." So the Vulgate: acervum novarum frugum, "a heap of new fruits." תלא כיבא letola chib, "to the hill Chib," or the hill of grief.—Syriac.

Seven days.] Perhaps God kept him all this time without an immediate revelation, that the bitterness and heat of spirit of which he speaks above might be subdued, and that he might speak God's words in God's own Spirit. Had he gone in a better spirit he had probably been employed in his work as soon as he had gained the place of labour.

Verse 17. I have made thee a watchman] The care and welfare of all this people I have laid on thee. Thou must watch for their safety, preach for their edification, and pray for their eternal welfare. And that thou mayest be successful, receive the word at my mouth, and warn them from me.

God is particularly jealous lest any words but his own be taught for Divine doctrines. He will not have human creeds, no more than TRADITIONS, taught instead of his own word. No word can be successful in the salvation of sinners but that which comes from God. Every minister of the Gospel should be familiar with his Maker by faith and prayer; God will then hold communion with his spirit; otherwise, what he preaches will be destitute of spirit and life, and his hackneyed texts and sermons, instead of being the bread from heaven, will be like the dry mouldy Gibeonitish crusts.

Verse 18. Thou shalt surely die] That is, If he turn not from his wickedness, and thou givest him not warning, as above, he shall die in his iniquity, which he should not have committed; but his blood will I require at thy hand—I will visit thy soul for the loss of his. O how awful is this! Hear it, ye priests, ye preachers, ye ministers of the Gospel; ye, especially, who have entered into the ministry for a living; ye who gather a congregation to yourselves that ye may feed upon their fat, and clothe yourselves with their wool; in whose parishes and in whose congregations souls are dying unconverted from day to day, who have never been solemnly warned by you, and to whom you have never shown the way of salvation, probably because ye know nothing of it yourselves! O what a perdition awaits you! To have the blood of every soul that has died in your parishes or in your congregations unconverted laid at your door! To suffer a common damnation for every soul that perishes through your neglect! How many loads of endless

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

20 Again, When a [z] righteous man doth turn from his [a] righteousness, and commit iniquity, and I lay a stumbling-block before him, he shall die: because thou hast not given him warning, he shall die in his sin, and his righteousness which he hath done shall not be remembered; but his blood will I require at thine hand.

21 Nevertheless if thou warn the righteous man, that the righteous sin not, and he doth not sin, he shall surely live, because he is warned; also thou hast delivered thy soul.

22 [b] And the hand of the LORD was there upon me; and he said unto me, Arise, go forth [c] into the plain, and I will there talk with thee.

23 Then I arose, and went forth into the plain: and, behold, [d] the glory of the LORD stood there, as the glory which I [e] saw by the river of Chebar: [f] and I fell on my face.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

24 Then [g] the spirit entered into me, and set me upon my feet, and spake with me, and said unto me, Go, shut thyself within thine house.

25 But thou, O son of man, behold, [h] they shall put bands upon thee, and shall bind thee with them, and thou shalt not go out among them:

26 And [i] I will make thy tongue cleave to the roof of thy mouth, that thou shalt be dumb, and shalt not be to them [k] a reprover: [l] for they are a rebellious house.

27 [m] But when I speak with thee, I will open thy mouth, and thou shalt say unto them, [n] Thus saith the Lord GOD; he that heareth, let him hear; and he that forbeareth, let him forbear: [o] for they are a rebellious house.

[z] Chap. xviii. 24; xxxiii. 12, 13.——[a] Heb. righteousnesses. [b] Ver. 14; chap. i. 3.——[c] Chap. viii. 4.——[d] Chap. i. 28. [e] Chap. i. 1.——[f] Chap. i. 28.——[g] Chap. ii. 2.

[h] Chap. iv. 8.——[i] Chap. xxiv. 27; Luke i. 20, 22.——[k] Heb. a man reproving.——[l] Chap. ii. 5, 6, 7.——[m] Chap. xxiv. 27; xxxiii. 22.——[n] Ver. 11.——[o] Ver. 9, 26; chap. xii. 2, 3.

wo must such have to bear! Ye take your tithes, your stipends, or your rents, to the last grain, and the last penny; while the souls over whom you made yourselves watchmen have perished, and are perishing, through your neglect. O worthless and hapless men! better for you had ye never been born! Vain is your boast of apostolical authority, while ye do not the work of apostles! Vain your boast of orthodoxy, while ye neither show nor know the way of salvation! Vain your pretensions to a Divine call, when ye do not the work of evangelists! The state of the most wretched of the human race is enviable to that of such ministers, pastors, teachers, and preachers.

But let not this discourage the faithful minister who teaches every man, and warns every man, in all wisdom, that he may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus. If after such teaching and warning they will sin on, and die in their sins, their blood will be upon themselves; but thou, O man of God, hast delivered thine own soul.

Verse 20. When a righteous man doth turn from his righteousness] Which these words plainly state he may do, and commit iniquity, and die in his sin; and consequently die eternally, which is also here granted; if he have not been warned, though he die in his sin, the blood—the life and salvation, of this person also will God require at the watchman's hand. Pastor hunc occidit, quia eum tacendo morti tradidit. "This man the pastor kills; for in being silent, he delivers him over to death."—GREGORY. From these passages we see that a righteous man may fall from grace, and perish everlastingly. Should it be said that it means the self-righteous, I reply, this is absurd; for self-righteousness is a fall itself, and the sooner a man falls from it the better for himself. Real, genuine righteousness of heart and life is that which is meant. Let him that standeth take heed lest he fall.

And I lay a stumbling-block before him] That is, I permit him to be tried, and he fall in the trial. God is repeatedly represented as doing things which he only permits to be done. He lays a stumbling-block, i. e., he permits one to be laid.

Verse 22. Arise, go forth into the plain] Into a place remote from observation and noise; a place where the glory of God might have sufficient room to manifest itself, that the prophet might see all its movements distinctly.

Verse 24. The spirit—said unto me, Go, shut thyself within thine house.] Hide thyself for the present. The reason is immediately subjoined.

Verse 25. They shall put bands upon thee] Thy countrymen will rise up against thee; and, to prevent thy prophesying, will confine thee.

Verse 26. I will make thy tongue cleave to the roof of thy mouth] I will not give thee any message to deliver to them. They are so rebellious, it is useless to give them farther warning.

Verse 27. I will open thy mouth] When it is necessary to address them again, thou shalt sum up what thou hast said in this one speech: Thus saith the Lord, "He that heareth, let him hear; and he that forbeareth, let him forbear." Let him who feels obedience to the voice of God his interest, be steadfast. Let him who disregards the Divine monition go in his own way, and abide the consequences.

CHAPTER IV.

Ezekiel delineates Jerusalem, and lays siege to it, as a type of the manner in which the Chaldean army should surround that city, 1–3. The prophet commanded to lie on his left side three hundred and ninety days, and on his right side forty days, with the signification, 4–8. The scanty and coarse provision allowed the prophet during his symbolical siege, consisting chiefly of the worst kinds of grain, and likewise ill-prepared, as he had only cow's dung for fuel, tended all to denote the scarcity of provision, fuel, and every necessary of life, which the Jews should experience during the siege of Jerusalem, 9–17.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595 Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

THOU also, son of man, take thee a tile, and lay it before thee, and pourtray upon it the city, even Jerusalem:

2 And lay siege against it, and build a fort against it, and cast a mount against it; set the camp also against it, and set [a] battering rams against it round about.

3 Moreover take thou unto thee [b] an iron pan, and set it for a wall of iron between thee and the city: and set thy face against it, and it shall be besieged, and thou shalt lay siege against it. [c] This shall be a sign to the house of Israel.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci R. Roman., 22.

4 Lie thou also upon thy left side, and lay

[a] Or, chief leaders; chap. xxi. 22.——[b] Or, a flat plate, or slice.

[c] Chap. xii. 6, 11; xiv. 24, 27.

NOTES ON CHAP. IV.

Verse 1. Take thee a tile] A tile, such as we use in covering houses, will give us but a very inadequate notion of those used anciently; and also appear very insufficient for the figures which the prophet was commanded to pourtray on it. A brick is most undoubtedly meant; yet, even the larger dimensions here, as to thickness, will not help us through the difficulty, unless we have recourse to the ancients, who have spoken of the dimensions of the bricks commonly used in building. Palladius, De Re Rustica, lib. vi. c. 12, is very particular on this subject:—Sint vero lateres longitudine pedum duorum, latitudine unius, altitudine quatuor unciarum. "Let the bricks be two feet long, one foot broad, and four inches thick." Edit. Gesner, vol. iii. p. 144. On such a surface as this the whole siege might be easily pourtrayed. There are some brick-bats before me which were brought from the ruins of ancient Babylon, which have been made of clay and straw kneaded together and baked in the sun; one has been more than four inches thick, and on one side it is deeply impressed with characters; others are smaller, well made, and finely impressed on one side with Persepolitan characters. These have been for inside or ornamental work; to such bricks the prophet most probably alludes.

But the tempered clay out of which the bricks were made might be meant here; of this substance he might spread out a sufficient quantity to receive all his figures. The figures were, 1. Jerusalem. 2. A fort. 3. A mount. 4. The camp of the enemy. 5. Battering rams, and such like engines, round about. 6. A wall round about the city, between it and the besieging army.

Verse 2. Battering rams] כרים carim. This is the earliest account we have of this military engine. It was a long beam with a head of brass, like the head and horns of a ram, whence its name. It was hung by chains or ropes, between two beams, or three legs, so that it could admit of being drawn backward and forward some yards. Several stout men, by means of ropes, pulled it as far back as it could go; and then, suddenly letting it loose, it struck with great force against the wall which it was intended to batter and bring down. This machine was not known in the time of Homer, as in the siege of Troy there is not the slightest mention of such. And the first notice we have of it is here, where we see that it was employed by Nebuchadnezzar in the siege of Jerusalem, A. M. 3416. It was afterwards used by the Carthaginians at the siege of Gades, as Vitruvius notes, lib. x. c. 19, in which he gives a circumstantial account of the invention, fabrication, use, and improvement of this machine. It was for the want of a machine of this kind, that the ancient sieges lasted so long; they had nothing with which to beat down or undermine the walls.

Verse 3. Take thou unto thee an iron pan] מחבת machubath, a flat plate or slice, as the margin properly renders it: such as are used in some countries to bake bread on, called a griddle or girdle, being suspended above the fire, and kept in a proper degree of heat for the purpose. A plate like this, stuck perpendicularly in the earth, would show the nature of a wall much better than any pan could do. The Chaldeans threw such a wall round Jerusalem, to prevent the besieged from receiving any succours, and from escaping from the city.

This shall be a sign to the house of Israel.] This shall be an emblematical representation of what shall actually take place.

Verse 4. Lie thou also upon thy left side] It appears that all that is mentioned here and in the following verses was done, not in idea, but in fact. The prophet lay down on his left side upon a couch to which he was chained, ver. 5, for three hundred and ninety days; and afterwards he lay in the same manner, upon his right side, for forty days. And thus was signified the state of the Jews, and the punishment that was coming upon them. 1. The prophet himself represents the Jews. 2. His lying, their state of depression. 3. His being bound, their helplessness and captivity. 4. The days signify years, a day for a year; during which they were to bear their iniquity, the iniquity of the house of Israel upon it: according to the number of the days that thou shalt lie upon it thou shalt bear their iniquity.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

5 For I have laid upon thee the years of their iniquity, according to the number of the days, three hundred and ninety days: [d] so shalt thou bear the iniquity of the house of Israel.

6 And when thou hast accomplished them, lie again on thy right side, and thou shalt bear the iniquity of the house of Judah forty days: I have appointed thee [e] each day for a year.

7 Therefore thou shalt set thy face toward the siege of Jerusalem, and thine arm shall be uncovered, and thou shalt prophesy against it.

8 [f] And, behold, I will lay bands upon thee, and thou shalt not turn thee [g] from one side to another, till thou hast ended the days of thy siege.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

9 Take thou also unto thee wheat, and barley, and beans, and lentiles, and millet, and [h] fitches, and put them in one vessel, and make thee bread thereof, according to the number of the days that thou shalt lie upon thy side, three hundred and ninety days shalt thou eat thereof.

10 And thy meat which thou shalt eat shall be by weight, twenty shekels a day: from time to time shalt thou eat it.

11 Thou shalt drink also water by measure, the sixth part of a hin: from time to time shalt thou drink.

12 And thou shalt eat it as barley cakes, and thou shalt bake it with dung that cometh out of man, in their sight.

[d] Num. xiv. 34.——[e] Heb. a day for a year, a day for a year.

[f] Chap. iii. 25.——[g] Heb. from thy side to thy side.——[h] Or, spelt.

or the temporal punishment due to their sins. 5. The three hundred and ninety days, during which he was to lie on his left side, and bear the iniquity of the house of Israel, point out two things: the first, The duration of the siege of Jerusalem. Secondly, The duration of the captivity of the ten tribes, and that of Judah. 6. The prophet lay three hundred and ninety days upon his left side, and forty days upon his right side, in all four hundred and thirty days. Now Jerusalem was besieged the ninth year of the reign of Zedekiah, 2 Kings xxv. 1, 2, and was not taken till the eleventh year of the same prince, 2 Kings xxv. 2. But properly speaking, the siege did not continue the whole of that time; it was interrupted; for Nebuchadnezzar was obliged to raise it, and go and meet the Egyptians, who were coming to its succour. This consumed a considerable portion of time. After he had defeated the Egyptians, he returned and recommenced the siege, and did not leave it till the city was taken. We may, therefore, conclude that the four hundred and thirty days only comprise the time in which the city was actually besieged, when the city was encompassed with walls of circumvallation, so that the besieged were reduced to a state of the utmost distress. The siege commenced the tenth day of the tenth month of the ninth year of Zedekiah; and it was taken on the ninth day of the fourth month of the eleventh year of the same king. Thus the siege had lasted, in the whole, eighteen months, or five hundred and ten days. Subtract for the time that Nebuchadnezzar was obliged to interrupt the siege, in order to go against the Egyptians, four months and twenty days, or one hundred and forty days, and there will remain four hundred and thirty days, composed of 390+40=430. See Calmet on this place. See also at the end of this chapter.

Verse 6. Forty days] Reckon, says Archbishop Newcome, near fifteen years and six months in the reign of Manasseh, two years in that of Amon, three months in that of Jehoahaz, eleven years in that of Jehoiakim, three months and ten days in that of Jehoiachin, and eleven years in that of Zedekiah; and there arises a period of forty years, during which gross idolatry was practised in the kingdom of Judah. Forty days may have been employed in spoiling and desolating the city and the temple.

Verse 9. Take thou also unto thee wheat] In times of scarcity, it is customary in all countries to mix several kinds of coarser grain with the finer, to make it last the longer. This mashlin, which the prophet is commanded to take, of wheat, barley, beans, lentiles, millet, and fitches, was intended to show how scarce the necessaries of life should be during the siege.

Verse 10. Twenty shekels a day] The whole of the above grain, being ground, was to be formed into one mass, out of which he was to make three hundred and ninety loaves; one loaf for each day; and this loaf was to be of twenty shekels in weight. Now a shekel, being in weight about half an ounce, this would be ten ounces of bread for each day; and with this water to the amount of one sixth part of a hin, which is about a pint and a half of our measure. All this shows that so reduced should provisions be during the siege, that they should be obliged to eat the meanest sort of aliment, and that by weight, and their water by measure; each man's allowance being scarcely a pint and a half, and ten ounces, a little more than half a pound of bread, for each day's support.

Verse 12. Thou shalt bake it with dung] Dried ox and cow dung is a common fuel in the east; and with this, for want of wood and coals, they are obliged to prepare their food. Indeed, dried excrement of every kind is gathered. Here, the prophet is to prepare his bread with dry human excrement. And when we know that this did not come in contact with the bread, and was only used to warm the plate, (see ver. 3,) on which the bread was laid over the fire, it removes all

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

13 And the LORD said, Even thus [i] shall the children of Israel eat their defiled bread among the Gentiles, whither I will drive them.

14 Then said I, [k] Ah Lord GOD! behold, my soul hath not been polluted: for from my youth up even till now have I not eaten of [l] that which dieth of itself, or is torn in pieces; neither came there [m] abominable flesh into my mouth.

15 Then he said unto me, Lo, I have given thee cow's dung for man's dung, and thou shalt prepare thy bread therewith.

A. M. 3409. B. C. 595. Ol. XLVI. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 22.

16 Moreover he said unto me, Son of man, behold, I will break the [n] staff of bread in Jerusalem: and they shall [o] eat bread by weight, and with care; and they shall [p] drink water by measure, and with astonishment:

17 That they may want bread and water, and be astonied one with another, and [q] consume away for their iniquity.

[i] Hos. ix. 3.——[k] Acts x. 14.——[l] Exod. xxii. 31; Lev. xi. 40; xvii. 15.——[m] Deut. xiv. 3; Isa. lxv. 4.——[n] Lev. xxvi. 26; Psa. cv. 16; Isa. iii. 1; chap. v. 16; xiv. 13.——[o] Ver. 10; chap. xii 19.——[p] Ver. 11.——[q] Lev. xxvi. 39; chap. xxiv. 23.

the horror and much of the disgust. This was required to show the extreme degree of wretchedness to which they should be exposed; for, not being able to leave the city to collect the dried excrements of beasts, the inhabitants during the siege would be obliged, literally, to use dried human ordure for fuel. The very circumstances show that this was the plain fact of the case. However, we find that the prophet was relieved from using this kind of fuel, for cows' dung was substituted at his request. See ver. 15.

Verse 14. My soul hath not been polluted] There is a remarkable similarity between this expostulation of the prophet and that of St. Peter, Acts x. 14.

Verse 16. I will break the staff of bread] They shall be besieged till all the bread is consumed, till the famine becomes absolute; see 2 Kings xxv. 3: "And on the ninth of the fourth month, the famine prevailed in the city; and THERE WAS NO BREAD for the people of the land." All this was accurately foretold, and as accurately fulfilled.

Abp. Newcome on ver. 6 observes: "This number of years will take us back, with sufficient exactness, from the year in which Jerusalem was sacked by Nebuchadnezzar to the first year of Jeroboam's reign, when national idolatry began in Israel. The period of days seems to predict the duration of the siege by the Babylonians, ver. 9, deducting from the year five months and twenty-nine days, mentioned 2 Kings xxv. 1–4, the time during which the Chaldeans were on their expedition against the Egyptians; see Jer. xxxvii. 5." This amounts nearly to the same as that mentioned above.

CHAPTER V.

In this chapter the prophet shows, under the type of hair, the judgments which God was about to execute on the inhabitants of Jerusalem by famine, sword, and dispersion, 1–4. The type or allegory is then dropped, and God is introduced declaring in plain terms the vengeance that was coming on the whole nation which had proved so unworthy of those mercies with which they had hitherto been distinguished, 5–17.

A. M. cir. 3410. B. C. cir. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 23.

AND thou, son of man, take thee a sharp knife, take thee a barber's razor, [a] and cause it to pass upon thine head and upon thy beard: then take thee balances to weigh, and divide the hair.

2 [b] Thou shalt burn with fire a third part in the midst of [c] the city, when [d] the days of the siege are fulfilled: and thou shalt take a third part, and smite about it with a knife: and a third part thou shalt scatter in the wind; and I will draw out a sword after them.

A. M. cir. 3410. B. C. cir. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 23.

3 [e] Thou shalt also take thereof a few in number, and bind them in thy [f] skirts.

4 Then take of them again, and [g] cast them

[a] See Lev. xxi. 5; Isa. vii. 20; chap. xliv. 20.——[b] Ver. 12.——[c] Chap. iv. 1.——[d] Chap. iv. 8, 9.——[e] Jer. xl. 6; lii. 16.——[f] Heb. wings.——[g] Jer. xli. 1, 2, &c.; xliv. 14.

NOTES ON CHAP. V.

Verses 1–4. Take thee a sharp knife] Among the Israelites, and indeed among most ancient nations, there were very few edge-tools. The sword was the chief; and this was used as a knife, a razor, &c., according to its different length and sharpness. It is likely that only one kind of instrument is here intended; a knife or short sword, to be employed as a razor.

Here is a new emblem produced, in order to mark out the coming evils. 1. The prophet represents the Jewish nation. 2. His hair, the people. 3. The razor, the Chaldeans. 4. The cutting the beard and hair, the calamities, sorrows, and disgrace coming upon the people. Cutting off the hair was a sign of mourning; see on Jer. xlv. 5; xlviii. 37; and also a sign of great disgrace; see 2 Sam. x. 4. 5. He is ordered to divide the hair, ver. 2, into three equal parts, to intimate the different degrees and kinds of punish- into the midst of the fire, and burn them in the fire; for thereof shall a fire come forth into all the house of Israel.

A. M. cir. 3410. B. C. cir. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 23.

5 Thus saith the Lord GOD; This is Jerusalem: I have set it in the midst of the nations and countries that are round about her.

6 And she hath changed my judgments into wickedness more than the nations, and my statutes more than the countries that are round about her: for they have refused my judgments and my statutes, they have not walked in them.

7 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Because ye multiplied more than the nations that are round about you, and have not walked in my statutes, neither have kept my judgments, [h] neither have done according to the judgments of the nations that are round about you;

8 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I, even I, am against thee, and will execute judgments in the midst of thee in the sight of the nations.

A. M. cir. 3410. B. C. cir. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 23.

9 [i] And I will do in thee that which I have not done, and whereunto I will not do any more the like, because of all thine abominations.

10 Therefore the fathers [k] shall eat the sons in the midst of thee, and the sons shall eat their fathers; and I will execute judgments in thee, and the whole remnant of thee will I [l] scatter into all the winds.

11 Wherefore, as I live, saith the Lord GOD; Surely, because thou hast [m] defiled my sanctuary with all thy [n] detestable things, and with all thine abominations, therefore will I also diminish thee; [o] neither shall mine eye spare, neither will I have any pity.

12 [p] A third part of thee shall die with the pestilence, and with famine shall they be con-

[h] Jer. ii. 10, 11; chap. xvi. 47.——[i] Lam. iv. 6; Dan. ix. 12; Amos iii. 2.——[k] Lev. xxvi. 29; Deut. xxviii. 53; 2 Kings vi. 29; Jer. xix. 9; Lam. ii. 20; iv. 10; Bar. ii. 3.——[l] Ver. 12; Lev. xxvi. 33; Deut. xxviii. 64; chap. xii. 14; Zech. ii. 6.

[m] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 14; chap. vii. 20; viii. 5, &c.; xxiii. 38. [n] Chap. xi. 21.——[o] Chap. vii. 4, 9; viii. 18; ix. 10.——[p] See ver. 2; Jer. xv. 2; xxi. 9; chap. vi. 12.

ment which should fall upon the people. 6. The balances, ver. 1, were to represent the Divine justice, and the exactness with which God's judgments should be distributed among the offenders. 7. This hair, divided into three parts, is to be disposed of thus: 1. A third part is to be burnt in the midst of the city, to show that so many should perish by famine and pestilence during the siege. 2. Another third part he was to cut in small portions about the city, (that figure which he had pourtrayed upon the brick,) to signify those who should perish in different sorties, and in defending the walls. 3. And the remaining third part he was to scatter in the wind, to point out those who should be driven into captivity. And, 4. The sword following them was intended to show that their lives should be at the will of their captors, and that many of them should perish by the sword in their dispersions. 5. The few hairs which he was to take in his skirts, ver. 3, was intended to represent those few Jews that should be left in the land under Gedaliah, after the taking of the city. 6. The throwing a part of these last into the fire, ver. 4, was intended to show the miseries that these suffered in Judea, in Egypt, and finally in their being also carried away into Babylon on the conquest of Egypt by Nebuchadnezzar. See these transactions particularly pointed out in the notes on Jeremiah, chapters xl., xli., xlii. Some think that this prophecy may refer to the persecution of the Jews by Antiochus Epiphanes.

Verse 5. This is Jerusalem: I have set it in the midst of the nations] I have made this city the most eminent and the most illustrious in the world. Some think that these words refer to its geographical situation, as being equally in the centre of the habitable world. But any point on a globe is its centre, no matter where laid down; and it would not be difficult to show that even this literal sense is tolerably correct. But the point which is the centre of the greatest portion of land that can be exhibited on one hemisphere is the capital of the British empire. See my Sermon on the universal spread of the Gospel.

Verse 6. She hath changed my judgments] God shows the reason why he deals with Jerusalem in greater severity than with the surrounding nations; because she was more wicked than they. Bad and idolatrous as they were, they had a greater degree of morality among them than the Jews had. Having fallen from the true God, they became more abominable than others in proportion to the height, eminence, and glory from which they had fallen This is the common case of backsliders; they frequently, in their fall, become tenfold more the children of wrath than they were before.

Verse 9. I will do in thee that which I have not done] The destruction of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar was one of the greatest calamities that ever fell on any nation or place before; and that by the Romans under Titus exceeded all that has taken place since. These two sackages of that city have no parallel in the history of mankind.

Verse 10. The fathers shall eat the sons] Though we have not this fact so particularly stated in history, yet we cannot doubt of it, considering the extremities to which they were reduced during the siege. The same is referred to by Jeremiah, Lam. iv. 10. Even the women, who were remarkable for kindness and humanity, boiled their own children, and ate them during the siege.

Will I scatter into all the winds.] Disperse you, by captivity, among all the nations of the earth.

Verse 12. A third part of thee] See the note on ver. 1–4.

A. M. cir. 3410. B. C. cir. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 23.

sumed in the midst of thee: and a third part shall fall by the sword round about thee; and [q] I will scatter a third part into all the winds, and [r] I will draw out a sword after them.

13 Thus shall mine anger [s] be accomplished, and I will [t] cause my fury to rest upon them, [u] and I will be comforted: [v] and they shall know that I the LORD have spoken it in my zeal, when I have accomplished my fury in them.

14 Moreover [w] I will make thee waste, and a reproach among the nations that are round about thee, in the sight of all that pass by.

15 So it shall be a [x] reproach and a taunt, an instruction and an astonishment unto the nations that are round about thee, when I shall execute judgments in thee in anger and in fury and in [y] furious rebukes. I the LORD have spoken it.

A. M. cir. 3410. B. C. cir. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 23.

16 When I shall [z] send upon them the evil arrows of famine, which shall be for their destruction, and which I will send to destroy you: and I will increase the famine upon you, and will break your [a] staff of bread.

17 So will I send upon you famine and [b] evil beasts, and they shall bereave thee; and [c] pestilence and blood shall pass through thee; and I will bring the sword upon thee. I the LORD have spoken it.

[q] Jer. ix. 16; ver. 2, 10; chap. vi. 8.——[r] Lev. xxvi. 33; ver. 2; chap. xii. 14.——[s] Lam. iv. 11; chap. vi. 12; vii. 8.——[t] Ch. xxi. 17.——[u] Deut. xxxii. 36; Isa. i. 24.——[v] Chap. xxxvi. 6; xxxviii. 19.——[w] Lev. xxvi. 31, 32; Neh. ii. 17.——[x] Deut. xxviii. 37; 1 Kings ix. 7; Psa. lxxix. 4; Jer. xxiv. 9; Lam. ii. 15. [y] Chap. xxv. 17.——[z] Deut. xxxii. 23, 24.——[a] Lev. xxvi. 26; chap. iv. 16; xiv. 13.——[b] Lev. xxvi. 22; Deut. xxxii. 24; chap. xiv. 21; xxxiii. 27; xxxiv. 25.——[c] Chap. xxxviii. 22.

Verse 13. I will cause my fury to rest] My displeasure, and the evidences of it, shall not be transient; they shall be permanent upon you, and among you. And is not this dreadfully true to the present day?

Verse 16. The evil arrows of famine] Famine and pestilence are represented as poisoned arrows, inflicting death wherever they wound. The ancients represented them in the same way.

Verse 17. So will I send upon you famine and evil beasts, and they shall bereave thee] Wild beasts always multiply in depopulated countries. In England, wolves abounded when the country was thinly peopled; it is now full of inhabitants, and there is not one wolf in the land. Nebuchadnezzar and his Chaldeans may be called here evil beasts. He is often compared to a lion, Jer. iv. 7; Dan. vii. 14; on account of the ravages made by him and his Chaldean armies.

CHAPTER VI.

In this chapter, which forms a distinct section, the prophet denounces the judgments of God against the Jews for their idolatry, 1–7; but tells them that a remnant shall be saved, and brought to a sense of their sins by their severe afflictions, 8–14.

A. M. cir. 3410. B. C. cir. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 23.

AND the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, [a] set thy face toward the [b] mountains of Israel, and prophesy against them,

3 And say, Ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord GOD; Thus saith the Lord GOD to the mountains, and to the hills, to the rivers, and to the valleys; Behold, I, even I, will bring a sword upon you, and [c] I will destroy your high places.

A. M. cir. 3410. B. C. cir. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 23.

4 And your altars shall be desolate, and your [d] images shall be broken: and [e] I will cast down your slain men before your idols.

5 And I will [f] lay the dead carcasses of the

[a] Chap. xx. 46; xxi. 2; xxv. 2.——[b] Chap. xxxvi. 1.——[c] Lev. xxvi. 30. [d] Or, sun images; and so ver. 6.——[e] Lev. xxvi. 30.——[f] Heb. give.

NOTES ON CHAP. VI.

Verse 2. Set thy face toward the mountains of Israel] This is a new prophecy, and was most probably given after the four hundred and thirty days of his lying on his left and right side were accomplished. By Israel here, Judea is simply meant; not the ten tribes, who had long before been carried into captivity. Ezekiel uses this term in reference to the Jews only. The mountains may be addressed here particularly, because it was on them the chief scenes of idolatry were exhibited.

Verse 4. Your images shall be broken] Literally, your sun images; representations of the sun, which they worshipped. See the margin.

Verse 5. Will scatter your bones round about your altars.] This was literally fulfilled by the Chaldeans children of Israel before their idols; and I will scatter your bones round about your altars.

A. M. cir. 3410. B. C. cir. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 23.

6 In all your dwelling-places the cities shall be laid waste, and the high places shall be desolate; that your altars may be laid waste and made desolate, and your idols may be broken and cease, and your images may be cut down, and your works may be abolished.

7 And the slain shall fall in the midst of you, and [g] ye shall know that I am the LORD.

8 [h] Yet will I leave a remnant, that ye may have some that shall escape the sword among the nations, when ye shall be scattered through the countries.

9 And they that escape of you shall remember me among the nations whither they shall be carried captives, because [i] I am broken with their whorish heart, which hath departed from me, and [k] with their eyes, which go a whoring after their idols: and [l] they shall loathe themselves for the evils which they have committed in all their abominations.

10 And they shall know that I am the LORD, and that I have not said in vain that I would do this evil unto them.

A. M. cir. 3410. B. C. cir. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 23.

11 Thus saith the Lord GOD; Smite [m] with thine hand, and stamp with thy foot, and say, Alas for all the evil abominations of the house of Israel! [n] for they shall fall by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence.

12 He that is far off shall die of the pestilence; and he that is near shall fall by the sword; and he that remaineth and is besieged shall die by the famine: [o] thus will I accomplish my fury upon them.

13 Then [p] shall ye know that I am the LORD, when their slain men shall be among their idols round about their altars, [q] upon every high hill, [r] in all the tops of the mountains, and [s] under every green tree, and under every thick oak, the place where they did offer sweet savour to all their idols.

14 So will I [t] stretch out my hand upon them, and make the land desolate, yea, [u] more desolate than the wilderness toward [v] Diblath, in all their habitations: and they shall know that I am the LORD.

[g] Ver. 13; chap. vii. 4, 9; xi. 10, 12; xii. 15.——[h] Jer. xliv. 28; chap. v. 2, 12; xii. 16; xiv. 22.——[i] Psa. lxxviii. 40; Isa. vii. 13; xliii. 24; lxiii. 10.——[k] Num. xv. 39; chap. xx. 7, 24. [l] Lev. xxvi. 39; Job xlii. 6; chap. xx. 43; xxxvi. 31.

[m] Chap. xxi. 14.——[n] Chap. v. 12.——[o] Chap. v. 13.——[p] Ver. 7.——[q] Jer. ii. 20.——[r] Hos. iv. 13.——[s] Isa. lvii. 5.——[t] Isa. v. 25.——[u] Or, desolate from the wilderness.——[v] Num. xxxiii. 46; Jer. xlviii. 22.

According to Baruch, chap. ii. 24, 25, they opened the sepulchres of the principal people, and threw the bones about on every side.

Verse 9. They that escape of you shall remember me] Those that escape the sword, the pestilence, and the famine, and shall be led into captivity, shall plainly see that it is God who has done this; and shall humble themselves on account of their abominations, leave their idolatry, and worship me alone. And this they have done from the Babylonish captivity to the present day.

Verse 11. Smite with thine hand, and stamp with thy foot] Show the utmost marks of thy astonishment and indignation, and dread of the evils that are coming upon them. Some have contended for the propriety of clapping and stamping in public worship from these words! It is scarcely a breach of charity to think that such persons are themselves incapable either of attending on or conducting the worship of God. To be consistent, they should copy the prophet in his other typical actions as well as these; and then we shall hear of their lying on their left side for three hundred and ninety days, and on their right side for forty days; shaving their heads, burning their hair, baking their bread with dung, &c. Now all these things, because they were typical and commanded, were proper in the prophet: in such persons as the above they would be evidences of insanity. Such extravagant acts are no part of God's worship.

Verse 14. And make the land—more desolate than the wilderness toward Diblath] Diblath or Diblathayim is situated in the land of Moab. It is mentioned Num. xxxiii. 46, Almon-Diblathaim; and in Jer. xlviii. 22, Beth-Diblathaim. It was a part of that horrible wilderness mentioned by Moses, Deut. viii. 15, "wherein were fiery serpents, and scorpions, and drought." The precise reason why it is mentioned here is not very evident. Some think it is the same as Riblah, where Nebuchadnezzar slew the princes of Israel, and put out Zedekiah's eyes; the principal difference lying between the ד daleth and the ר resh, which in MSS. is often scarcely discernible; and hence vast multitudes of various readings. Five, probably six, of Kennicott's MSS. have רבלתה riblathah, as likewise two of my oldest MSS.; though in the margin of one a later hand directs the word to be read בדלת bedaleth, with daleth. But all the Versions read the word with a D. This may appear a matter of little importance, but we should take pains to recover even one lost letter of the word of God.

CHAPTER VII.

This chapter, which also forms a distinct prophecy, foretells the dreadful destruction of the land of Israel, or Judah, (for after the captivity of the ten tribes these terms are often used indiscriminately for the Jews in general,) on account of the heinous sins of its inhabitants, 1–15; and the great distress of the small remnant that should escape, 16–19. The temple itself, which they had polluted with idolatry, is devoted to destruction, 20–22; and the prophet is directed to make a chain, as a type of that captivity, in which both king and people should be led in bonds to Babylon, 23–27. The whole chapter abounds in bold and beautiful figures, flowing in an easy and forcible language.

A. M. cir. 3410. B. C. cir. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 23.

MOREOVER the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Also, thou son of man, thus saith the Lord GOD unto the land of Israel; [a] An end, the end is come upon the four corners of the land.

3 Now is the end come upon thee, and I will send mine anger upon thee, and [b] will judge thee according to thy ways, and will [c] recompense upon thee all thine abominations.

4 And [d] mine eye shall not spare thee, neither will I have pity: but I will recompense thy ways upon thee, and thine abominations shall be in the midst of thee: [e] and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

5 Thus saith the Lord GOD; An evil, an only evil, behold, is come.

A. M. cir. 3410. B. C. cir. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 23.

6 An end is come, the end is come: it [f] watcheth for thee; behold, it is come.

7 [g] The morning is come unto thee, O thou that dwellest in the land: [h] the time is come, the day of trouble is near, and not the [i] sounding again of the mountains.

8 Now will I shortly [k] pour out my fury upon thee, and accomplish mine anger upon thee: [l] and I will judge thee according to thy ways, and will recompense thee for all thine abominations.

9 And [m] mine eye shall not spare, neither will

[a] Ver. 3, 6; Amos viii. 2; Matt. xxiv. 6, 13, 14.——[b] Ver. 8, 9.——[c] Heb. give.——[d] Ver. 9; chap. v. 11; viii. 18; ix. 10. [e] Ver. 27; chap. vi. 7; xii. 20.

[f] Heb. awaketh against thee.——[g] Ver. 10.——[h] Ver. 12; Zeph. i. 14, 15.——[i] Or, echo.——[k] Chap. xx. 8, 21.——[l] Ver. 3. [m] Ver. 4.

NOTES ON CHAP. VII.

Verse 2. An end, the end is come] Instead of קץ בא הקץ kets ba hakkets, one MS. of Kennicott's, one of De Rossi's, and one of my own, read קץ בא בא הקץ kets ba ba hakkets, "The end cometh, come is the end." This reading is supported by all the ancient Versions, and is undoubtedly genuine. The end COMETH: the termination of the Jewish state is coming, and while I am speaking, it is come. The destruction is at the door. The later hand, who put the vowel points to the ancient MS. that has the above reading, did not put the points to the first בא ba, but struck his pen gently across it, and by a mark in the margin intimated that it should be blotted out. All my ancient MSS. were without the points originally; but they have been added by modern hands, with a different ink; and they have in multitudes of instances corrected, or rather changed, important readings, to make them quadrate with the masora. But the original reading, in almost every case, is discernible.

The end is come upon the four corners of the land.] This is not a partial calamity; it shall cover and sweep the whole land. The cup of your iniquity is full, and my forbearing is at an end. This whole chapter is poetical.

Verse 4. Thine abominations shall be in the midst of thee] They shall ever stare thee in the face, upbraid thee with thy ingratitude and disobedience, and be witnesses against thee.

Verse 5. An evil, an only evil] The great, the sovereign, the last exterminating evil, is come: the sword, the pestilence, the famine, and the captivity. Many MSS. read אחר achar, after. So evil cometh after evil; one instantly succeeds another.

Verse 6. An end is come, the end is come: it watcheth for thee] This is similar to the second verse; but there is a paronomasia, or play upon letters and words, which is worthy of note. קץ בא בא הקץ אליך kets ba, ba hakkets, hekits elayich. קצה katsah signifies to make an end or extremity, by cutting off something, and יקץ yakats signifies to awake from sleep: hence קיץ kits, the summer, as the earth and its productions seem then to awake from the sleep of winter. The end or final destruction is here personified; and represented as an executioner who has arisen early from his sleep, and is waiting for his orders to execute judgment upon these offenders. Hence it is said—

Verse 7. The morning is come unto thee] Every note of time is used in order to show the certainty of the thing. The morning that the executioner has watched for is come; the time of that morning, in which it should take place, and the day to which that time, precise hour of that morning, belongs, in which judgment shall be executed. All, all is come.

And not the sounding again of the mountains.] The hostile troops are advancing! Ye hear a sound, a tumultuous noise; do not suppose that this proceeds from festivals upon the mountains; from the joy of harvestmen, or the treaders of the wine-press. It is the noise of those by whom ye and your country are to fall. ולא הד הרים velo hed harim, and not the reverberation of sound, or reflected sound, or re-echoing from the

A. M. cir. 3410. B. C. cir. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 23.

I have pity: I will recompense [n] thee according to thy ways and thine abominations that are in the midst of thee; [o] and ye shall know that I am the LORD that smiteth.

10 Behold the day, behold, it is come: [p] the morning is gone forth; the rod hath blossomed, pride hath budded.

11 [q] Violence is risen up into a rod of wickedness: none of them shall remain, nor of their [r] multitude, nor of any of [s] theirs; [t] neither shall there be wailing for them.

12 [u] The time is come, the day draweth near: let not the buyer rejoice, nor the seller mourn: for wrath is upon all the multitude thereof.

13 For the seller shall not return to that which is sold, [v] although they were yet alive: for the vision is touching the whole multitude thereof, which shall not return; neither shall any strengthen himself [w] in [x] the iniquity of his life.

A. M. cir. 3410. B. C. cir. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Tarquinii Prisci. R. Roman., cir. annum 23.

14 They have blown the trumpet, even to make all ready: but none goeth to the battle: for my wrath is upon all the multitude thereof.

15 [y] The sword is without, and the pestilence and the famine within: he that is in the field shall die with the sword; and he that is in the city, famine and pestilence shall devour him.

16 But [z] they that escape of them shall escape, and shall be on the mountains like doves of the valleys, all of them mourning, every one for his iniquity.

17 All [a] hands shall be feeble, and all

[n] Heb. upon thee.——[o] Ver. 4.——[p] Ver. 7.——[q] Jer. vi. 7. [r] Or, tumult.——[s] Or, their tumultuous persons.——[t] Jer. xvi. 5, 6; chap. xxiv. 16, 22.——[u] Ver. 7.——[v] Heb. though their life were yet among the living.——[w] Or, whose life is in his iniquity [x] Heb. his iniquity.——[y] Deut. xxxii. 25; Lam. i. 20; chap. v. 12. [z] Chap. vi. 8.——[a] Isa. xiii. 7; Jer. vi. 24; chap. xxi. 7.

mountains. "Now will I shortly pour out," ver. 8. Here they come!

Verse 10. Behold the day] The same words are repeated, sometimes varied, and pressed on the attention with new figures and new circumstances, in order to alarm this infatuated people. Look at the day! It is come!

The morning is gone forth] It will wait no longer. The rod that is to chastise you hath blossomed; it is quite ready.

Pride hath budded.] Your insolence, obstinacy, and daring opposition to God have brought forth their proper fruits.

Verse 11. Violence is risen up into a rod of wickedness] The prophet continues his metaphor: "Pride has budded."—And what has it brought forth? Violence and iniquity. To meet these, the rod of God cometh. There is such a vast rapidity of succession in the ideas of the prophet that he cannot wait to find language to clothe each. Hence we have broken sentences; and, consequently, obscurity. Something must be supplied to get the sense, and most critics alter words in the text. Houbigant, who rarely acknowledges himself to be puzzled, appears here completely nonplussed. He has given a meaning; it is this: "Violence hath burst forth from the rod; salvation shall not proceed from them, nor from their riches, nor from their turbulence: there shall be no respite for them." Calmet has given no less than five interpretations to this verse. The simple meaning seems to be, that such and so great is their wickedness that it must be punished; and from this punishment, neither their multitude nor struggles shall set them free. They may strive to evade the threatened stroke; but they shall not succeed, nor shall they have any respite. Our Version is to be understood as saying,—None of the people shall be left; all shall be slain, or carried into captivity: nor shall any of theirs, their princes, priests, wives, or children, escape. And so deserved shall their desolation appear, that none shall lament them. This may be as good a sense as any, and it is nearest to the letter.

Verse 12. Let not the buyer rejoice, nor the seller mourn] Such is now the state of public affairs, that he who through want has been obliged to sell his inheritance, need not mourn on the account; as of this the enemy would soon have deprived him. And he who has bought it need not rejoice in his bargain, as he shall soon be stripped of his purchase, and either fall by the sword, or be glad to flee for his life.

Verse 13. For the seller shall not return] In the sale of all heritages among the Jews, it was always understood that the heritage must return to the family on the year of jubilee, which was every fiftieth year; but in this case the seller should not return to possess it, as it was not likely that he should be alive when the next jubilee should come; and if he were even to live till that time, he could not possess it, as he would then be in captivity. And the reason is particularly given; for the vision—the prophetic declaration of a seventy years' captivity, regards the whole multitude of the people; and it shall not return, i. e., it will be found to be strictly true, without any abatement.

Verse 14. They have blown the trumpet] Vain are all the efforts you make to collect and arm the people, and stand on your own defence; for all shall be dispirited, and none go to the battle.

Verse 15. The sword is without] War through all the country, and pestilence and famine within the city, shall destroy the whole, except a small remnant. He who endeavours to flee from the one shall fall by the other.

Verse 16. They—shall be on the mountains like doves of the valleys] Rather, like mourning doves, הגאיות haggeayoth, chased from their dove-cotes, and separated from their mates.

Verse 17. All knees shall be weak as water.] Calmet understands this curiously: La frayeur dont on sera knees shall [b] be weak as water.

A. M. cir. 3410. B. C. cir. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 23.

18 They shall also [c] gird themselves with sackcloth, and [d] horror shall cover them; and shame shall be upon all faces, and baldness upon all their heads.

19 They shall cast their silver in the streets, and their gold shall be [e] removed: their [f] silver and their gold shall not be able to deliver them in the day of the wrath of the LORD: they shall not satisfy their souls, neither fill their bowels: [g] because it is [h] the stumbling-block of their iniquity.

20 As for the beauty of his ornament, he set it in majesty: [i] but they made the images of their abominations and of their detestable things therein: therefore have I [k] set it far from them.

21 And I will give it into the hands of the strangers for a prey, and to the wicked of the earth for a spoil; and they shall pollute it.

22 My face will I turn also from them, and they shall pollute my secret place: for the [l] robbers shall enter into it, and defile it.

A. M. cir. 3410. B. C. cir. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 23

23 Make a chain: for [m] the land is full of bloody crimes, and the city is full of violence.

24 Wherefore I will bring the worst of the heathen, and they shall possess their houses: I will also make the pomp of the strong to cease; and [n] their holy places shall be defiled.

25 [o] Destruction cometh; and they shall seek peace, and there shall be none.

26 [p] Mischief shall come upon mischief, and rumour shall be upon rumour; [q] then shall they seek a vision of the prophet; but the law shall perish from the priest, and counsel from the ancients.

27 The king shall mourn, and the prince shall be clothed with desolation, and the hands of the people of the land shall be troubled: I will do unto them after their way, and [r] according to their deserts will I judge them; [s] and they shall know that I am the LORD.

[b] Heb. go into water.——[c] Isa. iii. 24; xv. 2, 3; Jer. xlviii. 37; Amos viii. 10.——[d] Psa. lv. 5.——[e] Heb. for a separation, or uncleanness.——[f] Prov. xi. 4; Zeph. i. 18; Ecclus. v. 8.——[g] Or, because their iniquity is their stumbling block.——[h] Chap. xiv. 3, 4; xliv. 12.

[i] Jer. vii. 30.——[k] Or, made it unto them an unclean thing. [l] Or, burglars.——[m] 2 Kings xxi. 16; chap. ix. 9; xi. 6.——[n] Or, they shall inherit their holy places.——[o] Heb. Cutting off.——[p] Deut. xxxii. 23; Jer. iv. 20.——[q] Psa. lxxiv. 9; Lam. ii. 9; chap. xx. 1, 3.——[r] Heb. with their judgments.——[s] Ver. 4.

saisi, fera qu'on ne pourra retenir son urine. D'autres l'expliquent d'une autre soüillure plus honteuse. I believe him to be nearly about right. St. Jerome is exactly the same: Pavoris magnitudine, urina polluet genua, nec valebit profluentes aquas vesica prohibere. This and other malretentions are often the natural effect of extreme fear or terror.

Verse 19. They shall cast their silver in the streets] Their riches can be of no use; as in a time of famine there is no necessary of life to be purchased, and gold and silver cannot fill their bowels.

It is the stumbling-block of their iniquity.] They loved riches, and placed in the possession of them their supreme happiness. Now they find a pound of gold not worth an ounce of bread.

Verse 20. As for the beauty of his ornament] Their beautiful temple was their highest ornament, and God made it majestic by his presence. But they have even taken its riches to make their idols, which they have brought into the very courts of the Lord's house; and therefore God hath set it—the temple, from him—given it up to pillage. Some say it means, "They took their ornaments, which were their pride, and made them into images to worship."

Verse 22. The robbers shall enter into it] The Chaldeans shall not only destroy the city; but they shall enter the temple, deface it, plunder it, and burn it to the ground.

Verse 23. Make a chain] Point out the captivity; show them that it shall come, and show them the reason: "Because the land is full of bloody crimes," &c.

Verse 24. The worst of the heathen] The Chaldeans; the most cruel and idolatrous of all nations.

Verse 25. They shall seek peace] They see now that their ceasing to pay the tribute to the king of Babylon has brought the Chaldeans against them; and now they sue for peace in vain. He will not hear: he is resolved on their destruction.

Verse 26. Then shall they seek a vision] Vision shall perish from the prophet, the law from the priest, and counsel from the ancients. Previously to great national judgments, God restrains the influences of his Spirit. His word is not accompanied with the usual unction; and the wise men of the land, the senators and celebrated statesmen, devise foolish schemes; and thus, in endeavouring to avert it, they hasten on the national ruin. How true is the saying, Quem Deus vult perdere, prius dementat. "Those whom God designs to destroy, he first infatuates."

CHAPTER VIII.

Here begins a section of prophecy extending to the twelfth chapter. In this chapter the prophet is carried in vision to Jerusalem, 1–4; and there shown the idolatries committed by the rulers of the Jews, even within the temple. In the beginning of this vision, by the noblest stretch of an inspired imagination, idolatry itself is personified, and made an idol; and the image sublimely called, from the provocation it gave God, the Image of Jealousy, 5. The prophet then proceeds to describe the three principal superstitions of this unhappy people: the Egyptian, 6–12, the Phœnician, 13, 14, and the Persian, 15, 16; giving the striking features of each, and concluding with a declaration of the heinousness of their sins in the sight of God, and the consequent greatness of their punishment, 17, 18.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

AND it came to pass in the sixth year, in the sixth month, in the fifth day of the month, as I sat in mine house, and [a] the elders of Judah sat before me, that [b] the hand of the Lord God fell there upon me.

2 [c] Then I beheld, and lo a likeness as the appearance of fire: from the appearance of his loins even downward, fire; and from his loins even upward, as the appearance of brightness, [d] as the colour of amber.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

3 And he [e] put forth the form of a hand, and took me by a lock of mine head; and

[a] Chap. xiv. 1; xx. 1; xxxiii. 31.——[b] Chap. i. 3; iii. 22.

[c] Chap. i. 26, 27.——[d] Chap. i. 4.——[e] Dan. v. 5.

NOTES ON CHAP. VIII.

Verse 1. In the sixth year, in the sixth month, in the fifth day of the month] This, according to Abp. Usher, was the sixth year of Ezekiel's captivity. The sixth day of the fifth month of the ecclesiastical year, which answers to August, A. M. 3410.

This chapter and the three following contain but one vision, of which I judge it necessary, with Calmet, to give a general idea, that the attention of the reader may not be too much divided.

The prophet, in the visions of God, is carried to Jerusalem, to the northern gate of the temple, which leads by the north side to the court of the priests. There he sees the glory of the Lord in the same manner as he did by the river Chebar. At one side he sees the image of jealousy. Going thence to the court of the people, he sees through an opening in the wall seventy elders of the people, who were worshipping all sorts of beasts and reptiles, which were painted on the wall. Being brought thence to the gate of the door of the house, he saw women weeping for Tammuz or Adonis. As he returned to the court of the priests, between the porch and the altar, he saw twenty-five men with their backs to the sanctuary and their faces towards the east, worshipping the rising sun. This is the substance of the vision contained in the eighth chapter.

About the same time he saw six men come from the higher gate with swords in their hands; and among them, one with an ink-horn. Then the Divine Presence left the cherubim, and took post at the entrance of the temple, and gave orders to the man with the ink-horn to put a mark on the foreheads of those who sighed and prayed because of the abominations of the land; and then commanded the men with the swords to go forward, and slay every person who had not this mark. The prophet, being left alone among the dead, fell on his face, and made intercession for the people. The Lord gives him the reason of his conduct; and the man with the ink-horn returns, and reports to the Lord what was done. These are the general contents of the ninth chapter.

The Lord commands the same person to go in between the wheels of the cherubim, and take his hand full of live coals, and scatter them over the city. He went as commanded, and one of the cherubim gave him the coals; at the same time the glory of the Lord, that had removed to the threshold of the house, now returned, and stood over the cherubim. The cherubim, wheels, wings, &c., are here described as in the first chapter. This is the substance of the tenth chapter.

The prophet then finds himself transported to the east gate of the temple, where he saw twenty-five men, and among them Jaazaniah the son of Azur, and Pelatiah the son of Benaiah, princes of the people, against whom the Lord commands him to prophesy, and to threaten them with the utmost calamities, because of their crimes. Afterwards God himself speaks, and shows that the Jews who should be left in the land should be driven out because of their iniquities, and that those who had been led captive, and who acknowledged their sins and repented of them, should be restored to their own land. Then the glory of the Lord arose out of the city, and rested for a time on one of the mountains on the east of Jerusalem, and the prophet being carried in vision by the Spirit to Chaldea, lost sight of the chariot of the Divine glory, and began to show to the captivity what the Lord had shown to him. This is the substance of the eleventh chapter.

We may see from all this what induced the Lord to abandon his people, his city, and his temple; the abominations of the people in public and in private. But because those carried away captives with Jeconiah acknowledged their sins, and their hearts turned to the Lord, God informs them that they shall be brought back and restored to a happy state both in temporal and spiritual matters, while the others, who had filled up the measure of their iniquities, should be speedily brought into a state of desolation and ruin. This is the sum and intent of the vision in these four chapters.

Verse 2. The appearance of fire] See the note on chap. i. 27.

Verse 3. The image of jealousy] סמל הקנאה semel

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

[f] the spirit lifted me up between the earth and the heaven, and [g] brought me in the visions of God to Jerusalem, to the door of the inner gate that looketh toward the north; [h] where was the seat of the image of jealousy, which [i] provoketh to jealousy.

4 And, behold, the glory of the God of Israel was there, according to the vision that I [k] saw in the plain.

5 Then said he unto me, Son of man, lift up thine eyes now the way toward the north. So I lifted up mine eyes the way toward the north, and behold northward at the gate of the altar this image of jealousy in the entry.

6 He said furthermore unto me, Son of man, seest thou what they do? even the great abominations that the house of Israel committeth here, that I should go far off from my sanctuary? but turn thee yet again, and thou shalt see greater abominations.

7 And he brought me to the door of the court; and when I looked, behold a hole in the wall.

8 Then said he unto me, Son of man, dig now in the wall: and when I had digged in the wall, behold a door.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci R. Roman., 23.

9 And he said unto me, Go in, and behold the wicked abominations that they do here.

10 So I went in and saw; and behold every form of creeping things, and abominable beasts, and all the idols of the house of Israel, pourtrayed upon the wall round about.

11 And there stood before them seventy men of the ancients of the house of Israel, and in the midst of them stood Jaazaniah the son of Shaphan, with every man his censer in his hand; and a thick cloud of incense went up.

12 Then said he unto me, Son of man, hast thou seen what the ancients of the house of Israel do in the dark, every man in the chambers of his imagery? for they say, [l] The LORD seeth us not; the LORD hath forsaken the earth.

13 He said also unto me, Turn thee yet again, and [m] thou shalt see greater abominations that they do.

14 Then he brought me to the door of the gate of the LORD's house which was toward hakkinah. We do not know certainly of what form this image was, nor what god it represented. Some say it was the image of Baal, which was placed in the temple by Manasses; others, that it was the image of Mars; and others, that it was the image of Tammuz or Adonis. Calmet supports this opinion by the following reasons:—1. The name agrees perfectly with him. He was represented as a beautiful youth, beloved by Venus; at which Mars, her paramour, being incensed and filled with jealousy, sent a large boar against Adonis, which killed him with his tusks. Hence it was the image of him who fell a victim to jealousy. 2. The prophet being returned towards the northern gate, where he had seen the image of jealousy, ver. 14, there saw the women lamenting for Tammuz. Now Tammuz, all agree, signifies Adonis; it was that therefore which was called the image of jealousy. 3. The Scripture often gives to the heathen idols names of degradation; as Baal-zebub, god of flies; Baal-zebul, god of dung. It is likely that it was Adonis who is called The dead, Lev. xix. 27, 28; Deut. xiv. 9, because he was worshipped as one dead. And the women represented as worshipping him were probably adulteresses, and had suffered through the jealousy of their husbands. And this worship of the image of jealousy provoked God to jealousy, to destroy this bad people.

[f] Chap. iii. 14.——[g] Gen. xlvi. 2; 2 Chron. xxvi. 5; chap. xi. 1, 24; xl. 2.——[h] Jer. vii. 30; xxxii. 34; chap. v. 11.

[i] Deut. xxxii. 16, 21.——[k] Chap. i. 28; iii. 22, 23.——[l] Chap. ix. 9.——[m] Ver. 6, 15.

Verse 4. The vision that I saw in the plain.] See the note on chap. iii. 23; see also chap. i. 3.

Verse 7. A hole in the wall.] This we find was not large enough to see what was doing within; and the prophet is directed to dig, and make it larger, ver. 8; and when he had done so and entered, he says,—

Verse 10. And saw—every form of creeping things] It is very likely that these images pourtrayed on the wall were the objects of Egyptian adoration: the ox, the ape, the dog, the crocodile, the ibis, the scarabæus or beetle, and various other things. It appears that these were privately worshipped by the sanhedrin or great Jewish council, consisting of seventy or seventy-two persons, six chosen out of every tribe, as representatives of the people. The images were pourtrayed upon the wall, as we find those ancient idols are on the walls of the tombs of the kings and nobles of Egypt. See the plates to Belzoni's Travels, the Isaic Tomb in the Bodleian Library, and the Egyptian hieroglyphics in general. Virgil speaks of these, Æn. lib. viii.:—

Omnigenumque Deum monstra, et latrator Anubis.

"All kinds of gods, monsters, and barking dogs."

Verse 11. Jaazaniah the son of Shaphan] Shaphan was a scribe, or what some call comptroller of the temple, in the days of Josiah; and Jaazaniah his son probably succeeded him in this office. He was at the head of this band of idolaters.

Verse 14. There sat women weeping for Tammuz.] This was Adonis, as we have already seen; and so the Vulgate here translates. My old MS. Bible reads, There saten women, mornynge a mawmete of leche.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

the north; and, behold, there sat women weeping for Tammuz.

15 Then said he unto me, Hast thou seen this, O son of man? turn thee yet again, and thou shalt see greater abominations than these.

16 And he brought me into the inner court of the LORD'S house, and, behold, at the door of the temple of the LORD, [n] between the porch and the altar, [o] were about five and twenty men, [p] with their backs toward the temple of the LORD, and their faces toward the east; and they worshipped [q] the sun toward the east.

17 Then he said unto me, Hast thou seen this, O son of man? [r] Is it a light thing to the house of Judah that they commit the abominations which they commit here? for they have [s] filled the land with violence, and have returned to provoke me to anger: and, lo, they put the branch to their nose.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

18 [t] Therefore will I also deal in fury: mine [u] eye shall not spare, neither will I have pity and though they [v] cry in mine ears with a loud voice, yet will I not hear them.

[n] Joel ii. 17.——[o] Chap. xi. 1.——[p] Jer. ii. 27; xxxii. 33. [q] Deut. iv. 19; 2 Kings xxiii. 5, 11; Job xxxi. 26; Jer. xliv. 17. [r] Or, Is there any thing lighter than to commit.

[s] Chap. ix. 9.——[t] Chap. v. 13; xvi. 42; xxiv. 13.——[u] Chap. v. 11; vii. 4, 9; ix. 5, 10.——[v] Prov. i. 28; Isa. i. 15; Jer. xi. 11; xiv. 12; Mic. iii. 4; Zech. vii. 13.

type that is called Adonides. He is fabled to have been a beautiful youth beloved by Venus, and killed by a wild boar in Mount Lebanon, whence springs the river Adonis, which was fabled to run blood at his festival in August. The women of Phœnicia, Assyria, and Judea worshipped him as dead, with deep lamentation, wearing priapi and other obscene images all the while, and they prostituted themselves in honour of this idol. Having for some time mourned him as dead, they then supposed him revivified, and broke out into the most extravagant rejoicings. Of the appearance of the river at this season, Mr. Maundrell thus speaks: "We had the good fortune to see what is the foundation of the opinion which Lucian relates, viz., that this stream at certain seasons of the year, especially about the feast of Adonis, is of a bloody colour, proceeding from a kind of sympathy, as the heathens imagined, for the death of Adonis, who was killed by a wild boar in the mountain out of which this stream issues. Something like this we saw actually come to pass, for the water was stained to a surprising redness; and, as we observed in travelling, had stained the sea a great way into a reddish hue." This was no doubt occasioned by a red ochre, over which the river ran with violence at this time of its increase. Milton works all this up in these fine lines:—

"Thammuz came next behind,
Whose annual wound in Lebanon allured
The Syrian damsels to lament his fate,
In amorous ditties all a summer's day;
While smooth Adonis, from his native rock,
Ran purple to the sea, suffused with blood
Of Thammuz, yearly wounded. The love tale
Infected Sion's daughters with like heat:
Whose wanton passions in the sacred porch
Ezekiel saw, when by the vision led,
His eye surveyed the dark idolatries
Of alienated Judah." Par. Lost, b. i. 446.

Tammuz signifies hidden or obscure, and hence the worship of his image was in some secret place.

Verse 16. Five and twenty men] These most probably represented the twenty-four courses of the priests, with the high priest for the twenty-fifth. This was the Persian worship, as their turning their faces to the east plainly shows they were worshipping the rising sun.

Verse 17. They put the branch to their nose.] This is supposed to mean some branch or branches, which they carried in succession in honour of the idol, and with which they covered their faces, or from which they inhaled a pleasant smell, the branches being odoriferous. That the heathens carried branches of trees in their sacred ceremonies is well known to all persons acquainted with classic antiquity; and it is probable that the heathen borrowed those from the use of such branches in the Jewish feast of tabernacles. There are many strange, and some filthy, interpretations given of this clause; but the former are not worth repeating, and I abominate the latter too much to submit to defile my paper with them. Probably the Brahminic Linga is here intended.

It really seems that at this time the Jews had incorporated every species of idolatry in their impure worship,—Phœnician, Egyptian, and Persian. I might add that some imagine the image of jealousy to be a personification of idolatry itself.

CHAPTER IX.

The vision in this chapter seems intended to denote the general destruction of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, excepting a few pious individuals that were distressed at the abominations that were committed in the land; who, in order to be delivered from the general calamity, were MARKED, in allusion, perhaps, to the custom of eastern princes, who marked their servants in the forehead, or rather to the custom very frequent among the Pagan worshippers, of indelibly imprinting on different parts of their body the marks of their idols

To indicate, likewise, that God was soon to forsake the temple, the shechinah, or glorious symbol of his presence, is seen to remove from the inner sanctuary to the threshold or door of the temple, 1–7. The prophet intercedes for his people; but God, on account of the greatness of their sins, will not be entreated, 8–11.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

HE cried also in mine ears with a loud voice, saying, Cause them that have charge over the city to draw near, even every man with his [a] destroying weapon in his hand.

2 And, behold, six men came from the way of the higher gate, [b] which lieth toward the north, and every man [c] a slaughter weapon in his hand; [d] and one man among them was clothed with linen, with a writer's inkhorn [e] by his side: and they went in, and stood beside the brazen altar.

3 And [f] the glory of the God of Israel was gone up from the cherub, whereupon he was, to the threshold of the house. And he called to the man clothed with linen, which had the writer's inkhorn by his side;

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

4 And the LORD said unto him, Go through the midst of the city, through the midst of Jerusalem, and [g] set [h] a mark upon the foreheads of the men [i] that sigh and that cry for all the abominations that be done in the midst thereof.

5 And to the others he said in [k] mine hearing, Go ye after him through the city, and smite: [l] let not your eye spare, neither have ye pity:

6 [m] Slay [n] utterly old and young, both maids,

[a] Jer. xxii. 7.——[b] Heb. which is turned.——[c] Heb. a weapon of his breaking in pieces.——[d] Lev. xvi. 4; chap. x. 6, 7; Rev. xv. 6.——[e] Heb. upon his loins.——[f] See chap. iii. 23; viii. 4; x. 4, 18; xi. 22, 23.——[g] Heb. mark a mark.

[h] Exod. xii. 7; Rev. vii. 3; ix. 4; xiii. 16, 17; xx. 4.——[i] Psa. cxix. 53, 136; Jer. xiii. 17; 2 Cor. xii. 21; 2 Pet. ii. 8.——[k] Heb mine ears.——[l] Ver. 10; chap. v. 11.——[m] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 17 [n] Heb. to destruction.

NOTES ON CHAP. IX.

Verse 1. Cause them that have charge over the city] By those six men with destroying weapons the Chaldeans are represented, who had received commission to destroy the city; and when the north is mentioned in such cases, Chaldea and the Chaldean armies are generally intended. There appears to have been six men with a sort of slaughter-bills, and one man with an inkhorn. These may represent the seven counsellors of the eastern monarchs, who always saw the king's face, and knew all the secrets of the government. One of them was that minister who had the office of reporting concerning criminals, who carried the book of death and the book of life into the presence of the king, where the names were entered of criminals who were destined to suffer, and of those who were either considered as innocent or recommended to mercy; those of the former in the book of death, those of the latter in the book of life. This person with the inkhorn might be termed, in our phrase, the recorder.

Verse 2. Stood beside the brazen altar.] To signify that the people against whom they had their commission were, for their crimes, to be sacrificed to the demands of Divine justice.

Verse 3. And he called to the man] The person here who called was that who sat on the chariot of the Divine glory. See chap. i. 26.

Verse 4. Set a mark upon the foreheads of the men that sigh] This is in allusion to the ancient everywhere-used custom of setting marks on servants and slaves, to distinguish them from others. It was also common for the worshippers of particular idols to have their idol's mark upon their foreheads, arms, &c. These are called sectarian marks to the present day among the Hindoos and others in India. Hence by this mark we can easily know who is a follower of Vishnoo, who of Siva, who of Bramah, &c. The original words, והתוית תו vehithritha tau, have been translated by the Vulgate, et signa thau, "and mark thou tau on the foreheads," &c. St. Jerome and many others have thought that the letter tau was that which was ordered to be placed on the foreheads of those mourners; and Jerome says, that this Hebrew letter ת tau was formerly written like a cross. So then the people were to be signed with the sign of the cross! It is certain that on the ancient Samaritan coins, which are yet extant, the letter ת tau is in the form +, which is what we term St. Andrew's cross. The sense derived from this by many commentators is, that God, having ordered those penitents to be marked with this figure, which is the sign of the cross, intimated that there is no redemption nor saving of life but by the cross of Christ, and that this will avail none but the real penitent. All this is true in itself, but it is not true in respect to this place. The Hebrew words signify literally, thou shalt make a mark, or sign a sign, but give no intimation what that mark or sign was. It was intended here to be what the sprinkling of the blood of the paschal lamb on the lintels and door-posts of the Israelites was, namely, a notice to the destroying angel what house he should spare. As the whole of this matter only passed in vision, we are bound to neither letter, nor any other kind of figure. The symbolical action teaches us that God, in general judgments, will make a distinction between the innocent and the guilty, between the penitent and the hardened sinner.

Verse 6. Begin at my sanctuary.] Let those who have sinned against most mercy, and most privileges, be the first victims of justice. Those who know their Lord's will, and do it not, shall be beaten with many stripes. The unfaithful members of Christ's Church will be first visited and most punished. But let not and little children, and women: but [o] come not near any man upon whom is the mark; and [p] begin at my sanctuary. [q] Then they began at the ancient men which were before the house.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

7 And he said unto them, Defile the house, and fill the courts with the slain: go ye forth. And they went forth, and slew in the city.

8 And it came to pass, while they were slaying them, and I was left, that I [r] fell upon my face, and cried, and said, [s] Ah Lord GOD! wilt thou destroy all the residue of Israel in thy pouring out of thy fury upon Jerusalem?

9 Then said he unto me, The iniquity of the house of Israel and Judah is exceeding great, and [t] the land is [u] full of blood, and the city full of [v] perverseness: for they say, [w] The LORD hath forsaken the earth, and [x] the LORD seeth not.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman, 23

10 And as for me also, mine [y] eye shall not spare, neither will I have pity, but [z] I will recompense their way upon their head.

11 And, behold, the man clothed with linen, which had the inkhorn by his side, [a] reported the matter, saying, I have done as thou hast commanded me.

[o] Rev. ix. 4.——[p] Jer. xxv. 29; 1 Pet. iv. 17.——[q] Chap. viii. 11, 12, 16.——[r] Num. xiv. 5; xvi. 4, 22, 45; Josh. vii. 6.
[s] Chap. xi. 13.——[t] 2 Kings xxi. 16; chap. viii. 17.

[u] Heb. filled with.——[v] Or, wresting of judgment.——[w] Chap. viii. 12.——[x] Psa. x. 11; Isa. xxix. 15.——[y] Chap. v. 11; vii. 4; viii. 18.——[z] Chap. xi. 21.——[a] Heb. returned the word.

those who belong to the synagogue of Satan exult in this; for if judgment begin at the house of God, what will the end be of them who obey not the Gospel! However, the truly penitent of all descriptions in such cases shall be safe. The command of God is, "Set a mark on all them that sigh and cry;" and his command to the destroyers is, "Come not near any man on whom is the mark."

Verse 7. Defile the house] A dreadful sentence, Let it be polluted, I will no more dwell in it; I now utterly forsake it.

Verse 8. Wilt thou destroy all the residue of Israel, in thy pouring out of thy fury upon Jerusalem?] These destroyers had slain the seventy elders, the twenty-five adorers of the sun, and the women that mourned for Tammuz; and on seeing this slaughter the prophet fell on his face, and began to make intercession.

Verse 9. For they say, The Lord hath forsaken the earth] את הארץ eth haarets, "this land." He has no more place in Israel; he has quite abandoned it; he neither sees nor cares, and he can be no longer the object of worship to any man in Israel. This seems to be the meaning; and God highly resents it, because it was bringing him on a level with idols and provincial deities, who had, according to supposition, regency only in some one place.

Verse 10. Mine eye shall not spare] They say, the Lord seeth not: this is false; I have seen all their iniquities, and do see all their abominations; and I will bring deserved judgment upon them, and then that eye which now sees will neither pity nor spare.

Verse 11. I have done as thou hast commanded me.] Angels and men must all give account of their conduct to God; for although he is every where, and his eye sees all things, yet they must personally account for all that they have done. I have done as thou hast commanded me. The penitents are all signed; the penitents are all safe. This is good news for them that mourn.

CHAPTER X.

The same august vision which appeared to the prophet at first, is repeated here; and coals of fire are scattered over the city to intimate that it was to be burned. The symbol of the Divine presence is likewise represented as removing farther and farther from the temple, to signify that God's protection was about to be withdrawn from it, 1–22. It may not be improper to remark, that whatever is particularly intended by the cherubim, wheels, firmament, throne, &c., described in this and the first chapter, the prophet several times informs us, (chap. i. 28; iii. 25; viii. 4; x. 4, 18,) that his vision was a manifestation or similitude of the GLORY of Jehovah; or, in other words, consisted of a set of hieroglyphics by which this glory was in some measure represented. It is also worthy of observation, that the faces of the living creatures, of which we have an account in the fourth chapter of the Apocalypse, are precisely the same with those of Ezekiel's cherubim; and we may readily collect, as Mr. Mede remarks, the quarter of the heavens in which each cherub was situated in reference to the other three, from the consideration that as Ezekiel saw the vision proceeding from the NORTH, (see chap. i. 4, 10,) the human face of the cherubim was towards him, or the south; on his right hand, or the east, was the face of a lion; on his left hand, or the west, the face of an ox; and towards the north, the face of an eagle.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 591. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

THEN I looked, and, behold, in the [a] firmament that was above the head of the cherubims there appeared over them as it were a sapphire stone, as the appearance of the likeness of a throne.

2 [b] And he spake unto the man clothed with linen, and said, Go in between the wheels, even under the cherub, and fill [c] thine hand with [d] coals of fire from between the cherubims, and [e] scatter them over the city. And he went in my sight.

3 Now the cherubims stood on the right side of the house, when the man went in; and the cloud filled the inner court.

4 [f] Then the glory of the LORD [g] went up from the cherub, and stood over the threshold of the house; and [h] the house was filled with the cloud, and the court was full of the brightness of the LORD's glory.

5 And the [i] sound of the cherubims' wings was heard even to the outer court, as [k] the voice of the Almighty God when he speaketh.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 591. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23

6 And it came to pass, that when he had commanded the man clothed with linen, saying, Take fire from between the wheels, from between the cherubims; then he went in, and stood beside the wheels.

7 And one cherub [l] stretched forth his hand from between the cherubims unto the fire that was between the cherubims, and took thereof, and put it into the hands of him that was clothed with linen: who took it, and went out.

8 [m] And there appeared in the cherubims, the form of a man's hand under their wings.

9 [n] And when I looked, behold the four wheels by the cherubims, one wheel by one cherub, and another wheel by another cherub: and the appearance of the wheels was as the colour of a [o] beryl stone.

10 And as for their appearances, they four had one likeness, as if a wheel had been in the midst of a wheel.

[a] Chap. i. 22, 26.——[b] Chap. ix. 2, 3.——[c] Heb. the hollow of thine hand.——[d] Chap. i. 13.——[e] See Rev. viii. 5.——[f] See ver. 18; chap. i. 28; ix. 3.——[g] Heb. was lifted up.

[h] 1 Kings viii. 10, 11; chap. xliii. 5.——[i] Chap. i. 24.——[k] Psa. xxix. 3, &c.——[l] Heb. sent forth.——[m] Chap. i. 8; ver. 21. [n] Chap. i. 15.——[o] Chap. i. 16.

NOTES ON CHAP. X.

Verse 1. As it were a sapphire stone] See the note on chap. i. 22, 26. The chariot, here mentioned by the prophet, was precisely the same as that which he saw at the river Chebar, as himself tells us, ver. 15, of which see the description in chap. i.

Verse 2. Coals of fire] These were to signify the burning of the city by the Chaldeans. It seems that the space between the four wheels, which was all on fire, was that from which those coals were taken.

Verse 3. On the right side of the house] The right hand always marked the south among the Hebrews.

Verse 4. The glory of the Lord went up] This is repeated from chap. ix. 3.

The house was filled with the cloud] This is a fact similar to what occurred frequently at the tabernacle in the wilderness, and in the dedication of the temple by Solomon. What is mentioned here was the Divine shechinah, the symbolical representation of the majesty of God.

Verse 5. As the voice of the Almighty God] That is, as thunder; for this was called the voice of God.

Verse 8. The form of a man's hand under their wings.] I am still of opinion that the hands and wings were not distinct. The arms were feathered like wings, and the hand terminated the arm; but as the long front feathers of the wings would extend much beyond the fingers, hence the hands would appear to be under the wings. See on chap. i. 8. The human hand might be intended to show that God helps and punishes man by man; and that, in the general operations of his providence, he makes use of human agency.

Verse 9. The colour of a beryl stone.] אבן תרשיש eben Tarshish, "the stone of Tarshish." The Vulgate translates it chrysolith; Symmachus, the jacinct; the Septuagint, the carbuncle. In the parallel place, chap. i. 16, it is כעין תרשיש keeyn Tarshish, "like the eye of Tarshish;" i. e., the colour of tarshish, or the stone so called, which the Vulgate translates visio maris, "like the sea," i. e., azure. The beryl is a gem of a green colour, passing from one side into blue, on the other side into yellow. The chrysolith is also green, what is called pistachio green; but the chrysolith of the ancients was our topaz, which is of a fine wine yellow. The beryl, or chrysolith, is most likely what is here meant by tarshish. One name among the ancients served for several kinds of gems that were nearly of the same colour. The moderns go more by chemical characters than by colour.

Verse 10. A wheel had been in the midst of a wheel.] It is difficult to comprehend this description. It is generally supposed to mean one wheel within another, cutting each other at right angles. This, in my opinion, will not account for the motions attributed to these wheels; nor can I see how, on this supposition, they could have any motion; for if one was moved on its axis, the other must be dragged contrary to its axis. I have conjectured it rather to mean a wheel within a wheel, or a wheel with two rims, working on the same axis. See on chap. i. 16–18. It is however no matter of faith; and the reader may judge as he thinks proper. For other matters relative to this chariot, wheels, cherubim, wings, &c., I must refer to the notes on the first chapter. And perhaps from the whole of this vision and its difficulties, he will see the propriety of the council of rabbins ordering Rabbi Ananias three

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594 Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

11 [p] When they went, they went upon their four sides; they turned not as they went, but to the place whither the head looked they followed it; they turned not as they went.

12 And their whole [q] body, and their backs, and their hands, and their wings, and [r] the wheels, were full of eyes round about, even the wheels that they four had.

13 As for the wheels, [s] it was cried unto them in my hearing, O wheel.

14 [t] And every one had four faces: the first face was the face of a cherub, and the second face was the face of a man, and the third the face of a lion, and the fourth the face of an eagle.

15 And the cherubims were lifted up. This is [u] the living creature that I saw by the river of Chebar.

16 [v] And when the cherubims went, the wheels went by them: and when the cherubims lifted up their wings to mount up from the earth, the same wheels also turned not from beside them.

17 [w] When they stood, these stood; and when they were lifted up, these lifted up themselves also: for the spirit [x] of the living creature was in them.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3 Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

18 Then [y] the glory of the LORD [z] departed from off the threshold of the house, and stood over the cherubims.

19 And [a] the cherubims lifted up their wings, and mounted up from the earth in my sight: when they went out, the wheels also were beside them, and every one stood at the door of the east gate of the LORD's house; and the glory of the God of Israel was over them above.

20 [b] This is the living creature that I saw under the God of Israel [c] by the river of Chebar; and I knew that they were the cherubims.

21 [d] Every one had four faces apiece, and every one four wings; [e] and the likeness of the hands of a man was under their wings.

22 And [f] the likeness of their faces was the same faces which I saw by the river of Chebar, their appearances and themselves: [g] they went every one straight forward.

[p] Chap. i. 17.——[q] Heb. flesh.——[r] Chap. i. 18.——[s] Or, they were called in my hearing, wheel, or, galgal.——[t] Chap. i. 6, 10. [u] Chap. i. 5.——[v] Chap. i. 19.——[w] Chap. i. 12, 20, 21.

[x] Or, of life.——[y] Ver. 4.——[z] Hos. ix. 12.——[a] Chap. xi. 22. [b] Chap. i. 22; ver. 15.——[c] Chap. i. 1.——[d] Chap. i. 6; ver. 14. [e] Chap. i. 8; ver. 8.——[f] Chap. i. 10.——[g] Chap. i. 12.

hundred barrels of oil to light his lamp during the time it would be necessary for him to employ in explaining this one vision.

Verse 13. As for the wheels, it was cried unto them —O wheel.] Never was there a more unfortunate and unmeaning translation. The word הגלגל haggalgal, may signify, simply, the roller, or a chariot, or roll on, or the swift roller. And he clepide ilke wheelis boliz ble, or turninge about. Old MS. Bible. Any of these will do: "and as to the wheels," לאופנים laophannim, "they were called in my hearing" הגלגל haggalgal, "the chariot." The gentleman who took for his text "O wheel!" and made God's decree of eternal predestination out of it, must have borrowed some of Rabbi Ananias's three hundred barrels of oil! But such working of God's word cannot be too severely reprehended.

As these wheels are supposed to represent Divine Providence, bringing about the designs of the Most High, how like is the above הגלגל haggalgal, taken as a verb, "roll on," to those words of Virgil in his Pollio:—

Talia sæcla, suis dixerunt, currite, fusis, Concordes stabili fatorum numine Parcæ.

"The Fates, when they this happy web have spun, Shall bless the sacred clue, and bid it swiftly run."

Verse 14. The first—was the face of a cherub] In chap. i 10, this is called the "face of an ox;" here, the "face of a cherub:" hence, a cherub was in the likeness of an ox, at least, as to its head. כרוב kerub never occurs as a verb; and its meaning cannot be precisely ascertained. Parkhurst thinks the כ caph to be here the note of similitude; and then translates כ ke, "like," רב rab or רוב rob, "the mighty one;" and, in consequence, makes the cherubim an emblem of the Holy Trinity. See his lengthy Dissertation under כרב in his Hebrew and English Lexicon.

Verse 20. And I knew that they were the cherubims.] This formation of the plural is quite improper. In general, Hebrew nouns of the masculine gender end in ים im, in the plural; the s, therefore, should never be added to such. Cherub is singular; cherubim is plural. The s should be uniformly expunged.

I have already referred to the end of this chapter for farther information relative to this glorious chariot of Jehovah; but I must say that I have met with nothing on the subject that entirely satisfies myself. In the preceding notes I have endeavoured to make the literal meaning as plain as possible; and have occasionally given some intimations relative to the general design of this sublime vision. My readers are already apprised that I do not like conjectures on Divine things; many points, that had originally no other origin, are now incorporated with creeds of which it is deemed sinful to doubt. Because some learned and pious men have written to prove that this symbolical compound figure is a representation of the Holy Trinity; therefore, the sentiment now passes current. Now this is not proved; and I suppose never can be proved. The continuator of the Historical Discourses of Saurin has made some sensible remarks on the subject of this vision; and these I shall lay here before the intelligent reader. They deserve attention.

This intelligent writer observes: "For the right interpretation of this vision, the following rules should be laid down:—

"The first rule is this:—An explanation, which accounts for all the parts contained in the vision, is much more probable than those which explain only one part.

"The second is this:—An explanation which is conformable to the present circumstances of the prophet, and of the people to whom he is sent, as well as to the nature of the things which he is called upon to say to them, is incomparably more probable than those explanations which go in quest of past or future events, which have no connexion with the immediate circumstances of the prophet, nor with the end of his mission. These rules, which appear incontestable, being laid down, we observe, that their opinion who think that God here draws out a plan of the government of his providence, applied to the present state of the Jews, accounts for all that Ezekiel saw; and that in a manner which refers to the end of the prophet's mission, and all that he had to say to this rebellious people. Why wish God to represent to his prophet the future state of the Christian Church, which was not to be founded till after a series of time, rather than the state of the Jewish Church, and the chastisements which hung over the heads of that hardened people? The people having revolted from God, and persevering obstinately in that revolt, notwithstanding the menaces of the prophet, it was proper to show to Ezekiel, in order that he might declare it to the rebellious, that Providence had its eyes open to all that had been done, all that had hitherto happened, and that it had seized upon the rod to smite. The people imagined, but too much according to the errors of infidelity, that God saw every thing with indifference and had given the world up to chance. It was necessary, therefore, to divest them of these fatal prejudices; and to teach them that the Supreme Being did not behold with the same eye order and disorder, contempt of his laws and submission to his will; and that all the revolutions of states are directed by a superior intelligence, which cannot be imposed upon. The Jewish people imagined but too much that the prophets exaggerated when they threatened them with the severest chastisements. They repeated with emphasis and complacency the promises of God made to the patriarchs; that their posterity should not only be more numerous than the stars of heaven, and the sand which covers the sea-shore; but that it should subsist for ever and ever. God had declared to Abraham, 'I will establish my covenant between me and thee, and thy seed after thee, in their generations, for an everlasting covenant, to be a God unto thee and thy seed after thee,' Gen. xvii. 7. It was proper, therefore, to show this stiff-necked people that the threatenings of God and his promises were not contradictory. That the people, conformable to the promises given by God to the patriarchs, should not be destroyed; but that, notwithstanding, they should be severely chastised, to correct them for their propensity to idolatry, and their scandalous irregularities.

"These suppositions, which are reasonable, being granted, we shall have no difficulty to perceive the sense of this celebrated vision. We shall not follow the order observed by Ezekiel, in the description of what he saw; he raises himself from the nearest to the most distant objects, going back from effects to their general cause. We will begin with the First Cause which gives motion to all that happens, traces out the plan, and procures the execution, according to the rules of his ineffable wisdom, and agreeably to the nature of those creatures which are the object of his ageney. Next, we will proceed to consider the effects of this universal Providence, and the intelligent secondary causes which he frequently employs in the administration of the government of the universe.

"'Ezekiel saw a firmament which was above the heads of the animals; there was the resemblance of a throne like a sapphire stone; and over the resemblance of the throne, there was, as it were, the resemblance of a man.' This vast transparent firmament represents to us the heaven, the peculiar residence of the Lord of the earth; and where he hath established the throne of his empire. This 'appearance of a man' was the emblem of Providence or God; considered as taking care of all the creatures whom he hath made. Man is the symbol of intelligence. The mind of man, with respect to his knowledge and wisdom, is a weak sketch of that mind which knows all things, and whose wisdom is unbounded. And yet, of all sublunary beings, there is none that approaches so near to the Divine nature as man. Under this emblem also it is that God, considered as seeing all things, and directing all, would be represented. This resemblance of man was seated upon a throne, to show that God governs all things as Lord, and that without agitation and without labour.

"The shining metal, and the fire which surrounded him who sat on the throne, were the symbol of his glory and his judgments, which are poured upon the wicked as a fire which nothing can withstand; agreeably to Isaiah, chap. xxxiii. 14.

"The Jews acknowledged that there was a Providence which governs the whole universe with infinite wisdom. The psalmist gives us a description of it, equally just and pathetic, in Psa. civ. 27, &c. Christians, no less than Jews, admit this important truth; and the Gospel establishes it no less strongly than the law. See Matt. vi. 26; x. 29, 30. To raise the mind of the prophet up to the first Mover of those events which strike and admonish us in all the revolutions which happen to individuals, families, and states, God shows him four wheels above the firmament, over which the emblem of Providence was placed on a throne. These wheels are a symbol of those perpetual revolutions, which are observed in the earth; and which, by turns, lift up and abase individuals and nations. They are of a prodigious height, to show that man cannot fathom or know all that is great, wonderful, and astonishing, in the ways of Providence. See Job xi. 7, 8; Rom. xi. 33, 34; Isa. lv. 8, 9. These wheels move themselves every way, and are full of eyes in the vast circle of their felloes. This shows, that all which God does he effects without pain; and that the eye of his wisdom ordereth all events. The wheels did not move of themselves; but they followed the impulse of the four living creatures; "when the living creatures went, they went.' This shows that, in the government of the world, all the living creatures are subject to Providence; and that God subordinates the creatures one to another. He directs what those holy intelligences ought to do, who serve him as ministers, and are here represented by the four animals. And these intelligences, enlightened and supported by the Supreme Wisdom, contribute, as far as is suitable, to all that happens to mankind. The angels whom Ezekiel saw were in number four, in reference to the four cardinal points of the world; to show that their ministry extends every where, and that there is no part of the universe which the Providence of God does not govern in an immediate manner, or by the means of his ministers. The extraordinary shape of these angels, which appeared to the prophet in vision, is symbolical; for it is not to be supposed that those heavenly ministers are really thus formed. The 'four faces, wings, and arms of a man,' denote the sublime qualities of these immediate ministers of the Deity; qualities entirely essential to fill up the extent of their duty. The face of a man denotes their intelligence; of a lion, their intrepid courage; of an ox, their patience and perseverance in labour; and of an eagle, their great penetration, their sublime sight into heavenly things, and their readiness to rise up into all that is great and Divine. The 'wings being stretched out,' signifies that they are always ready to set forward, and run with rapidity wherever the commands of their great Master call them. The 'wings bent down,' are a symbol of that profound respect in which these heavenly ministers stand before the Lord of the universe. Under the wings there were men's arms, to show that zeal produces application and labour. Labour, without zeal, can never be supported; and zeal, without application, is only a hypocritical ardour, which amounts to nothing with that supreme Master who requires sincere homage from those who serve him. If God chose to make known to Ezekiel that his providence extends to all things, and that even in this life it often takes up the rod to chastise nations and individuals, he would also show beforehand that he wished not the destruction of the Jewish people, whom he was about to visit in his anger, but only its correction and amendment. This is signified by the 'precious metal,' which the prophet found unmelted in the midst of the fiery cloud. This cloud of fire, urged on by a whirlwind, and involving on all sides the metal, represented the judgments of God which were about to fall upon this rebellious nation, not to destroy, but to humble and purify it. Nothing is more proper than afflictions to bring men back to their duty. As fire purifies metals, so the paternal chastisements of God have a tendency to purify the soul and heart, if the man be not entirely incorrigible. The people upon whom God was about to pour the vials of his anger, were not worthy of his lenity. But that great God, who is firm in his promises, remembers the covenant of peace he had made with the patriarchs. This covenant is made sensible to the prophet under the image of a rainbow, which was round about him who appeared upon the throne. Every one knows, that this splendid phenomenon, which seems to join heaven and earth together, was given to Noah and his posterity as a symbol of the covenant which God then made with mankind, and by which he declared to them that the earth should undergo a deluge no more. Thus, the Pagans considered the Iris as the messenger of the gods. See Virgil, Æn. lib. iv. ver. 694. But whereas the rainbow to the Jews was a symbol of peace, the Iris of the Pagans was a messenger of trouble. On the sight of this bow, the symbol of grace, Ezekiel was to be encouraged; and persuaded that his people were not threatened with an utter destruction. The event fully justified all that the prophet had contemplated, with surprise, in this enigmatical picture. The Chaldeans, the rod of the Lord's just severity, ravaged Judea; the people were carried away captive; they groaned for seventy years in a foreign land; but they were protected in a miraculous manner against the bloody designs of the cruel Haman; and at length, favoured with various decrees of the kings of Persia, they had permission, not only to return to their own country, but also to rebuild Jerusalem and the temple." See Dr. Dodd's notes on this place

CHAPTER XI.

This chapter denounces the judgments of God against those wicked persons who remained in Jerusalem, and made a mock of the types and predictions of the prophets, 1–13; compare ver. 3 with Jer. i. 13. God promises to favour those who were gone into captivity, and intimates their restoration from the Babylonish yoke, 14–21. Then the shechinah, or symbol of the Divine Presence, is represented forsaking the city, as in the foregoing chapter it did the temple, 22, 23; and the prophet returns in vision to the place from which he set out, (chap. viii. 1, &c.,) in order to communicate his instructions to his brethren of the captivity, 24, 25.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

MOREOVER [a] the spirit lifted me up, and brought me unto [b] the east gate of the LORD'S house, which looketh eastward: and behold [c] at the door of the gate five and twenty men; among

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

[a] Chap. iii. 12, 14; viii. 3; ver. 24.

[b] Chap. x. 19.——[c] See chap. viii. 16.

NOTES ON CHAP. XI.

Verse 1. At the door of the gate five and twenty men] The same persons, no doubt, who appear, chap. viii. 16, worshipping the sun.

Jaazaniah the son of Azur] In chap. viii. 16 we find a Jaazaniah the son of Shaphan. If Shaphan was also called Azur, they may be the same person. But it is most likely that there were whom I saw Jaazaniah the son of Azur, and Pelatiah the son of Benaiah, princes of the people.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

2 Then said he unto me, Son of man, these are the men that devise mischief, and give wicked counsel in this city:

3 Which say, [d] It is not [e] near; let us build houses: [f] this city is the caldron, and we be the flesh.

4 Therefore prophesy against them, prophesy, O son of man.

5 And [g] the Spirit of the LORD fell upon me, and said unto me, Speak; Thus saith the LORD; Thus have ye said, O house of Israel: for I know the things that come into your mind, every one of them.

6 [h] Ye have multiplied your slain in this city, and ye have filled the streets thereof with the slain.

7 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; [i] Your slain whom ye have laid in the midst of it, they are the flesh, and this city is the caldron: [k] but I will bring you forth out of the midst of it.

8 Ye have feared the sword, and I will bring a sword upon you, saith the Lord GOD.

9 And I will bring you out of the midst thereof, and deliver you into the hands of strangers, and [l] will execute judgments among you.

10 [m] Ye shall fall by the sword; I will judge you in [n] the border of Israel; [o] and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

11 [p] This city shall not be your caldron, neither shall ye be the flesh in the midst thereof; but I will judge you in the border of Israel:

12 And [q] ye shall know that I am the LORD: [r] for ye have not walked in my statutes, neither executed my judgments, but [s] have done after the manners of the heathen that are round about you.

13 And it came to pass, when I prophesied, that [t] Pelatiah the son of Benaiah died. Then [u] fell I down upon my face, and cried with a loud voice, and said, Ah, Lord GOD! wilt thou make a full end of the remnant of Israel?

14 Again the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

15 Son of man, thy brethren, even thy brethren, the men of thy kindred, and all the house of Israel wholly, are they unto whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem have said, Get you far from the LORD: unto us is this land given in possession.

16 Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Although I have cast them far off among the heathen, and although I have scattered them among the countries, [v] yet will I be to them as a little sanctuary in the countries where they shall come.

17 Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord

[d] Or, It is not for us to build houses near.——[e] Chap. xii. 22, 27; 2 Pet. iii. 4.——[f] See Jer. i. 13; chap. xxiv. 3, &c.——[g] Chap. ii. 2; iii. 24.——[h] Chap. vii. 23; xxii. 3, 4.——[i] Chap. xxiv. 3, 6, 10, 11; Mic. iii. 3.——[k] Ver. 9.——[l] Chap. v. 8.——[m] 2 Kings xxv. 19, 20, 21; Jer. xxxix. 6; lii. 10.

[n] 1 Kings viii. 65; 2 Kings xiv. 25.——[o] Psa. ix. 16; chap. vi. 7; xiii. 9, 14, 21, 23.——[p] See ver. 3.——[q] Ver. 10.——[r] Or, which have not walked.——[s] Lev. xviii. 3, 24, &c.; Deut. xii. 30, 31; chap. viii. 10, 14, 16.——[t] Ver. 1; Acts v. 5.——[u] Chap. ix. 8.——[v] Psa. xc. 1; xci. 9; Isa. viii. 14.

two of this name, and both chiefs among the people.

Verse 3. It is not near] That is, the threatened invasion.

This city is the caldron, and we be the flesh.] See the vision of the seething pot, Jer. i. 13. These infidels seem to say: "We will run all risks, we will abide in the city. Though it be the caldron, and we the flesh, yet we will share its fate: if it perish, we will perish with it." Or they may allude to the above prediction of Jeremiah, in order to ridicule it: "We were to have been boiled long ago: but the fulfilment of that prediction is not near yet."

Verse 7. Your slain—they are the flesh] Jerusalem is the caldron, and those who have been slain in it, they are the flesh; and though ye purpose to stay and share its fate, ye shall not be permitted to do so; ye shall be carried into captivity.

Verse 9. And deliver you into the hands of strangers] This seems to refer chiefly to Zedekiah and his family.

Verse 11. I will judge you in the border of Israel.] Though Riblah was in Syria, yet it was on the very frontiers of Israel; and it was here that Zedekiah's sons were slain, and his own eyes put out.

Verse 13. Pelatiah the son of Benaiah died.] Most probably he was struck dead the very hour in which Ezekiel prophesied against him. His death appears to have resembled that of Ananias and Sapphira, Acts v. 1, &c.

Verse 15. Get you far from the Lord] These are the words of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, against those of Israel who had been carried away to Babylon with Jeconiah. Go ye far from the Lord: but as for us, the land of Israel is given to us for a possession; we shall never be removed from it, and they shall never return to it.

Verse 16. Yet will I be to them as a little sanc-

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

GOD; [w] I will even gather you from the people, and assemble you out of the countries where ye have been scattered, and I will give you the land of Israel.

18 And they shall come thither, and [x] they shall take away all the detestable things thereof and all the abominations thereof from thence.

19 And [y] I will give them one heart, and I will put [z] a new spirit within you; and I will take [a] the stony heart out of their flesh, and will give them a heart of flesh:

20 [b] That they may walk in my statutes, and keep mine ordinances, and do them: [c] and they shall be my people, and I will be their God.

21 But as for them whose heart walketh after the heart of their detestable things and their abominations, [d] I will recompense their way upon their own heads, saith the Lord GOD.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

22 Then did the cherubims [e] lift up their wings, and the wheels beside them; and the glory of the God of Israel was over them above.

23 And [f] the glory of the LORD went up from the midst of the city, and stood [g] upon the mountain [h] which is on the east side of the city.

24 Afterwards [i] the spirit took me up, and brought me in a vision by the Spirit of God into Chaldea, to them of the captivity. So the vision that I had seen went up from me.

25 Then I spake unto them of the captivity all the things that the LORD had showed me.

[w] Jer. xxiv. 5; chap. xxviii. 25; xxxiv. 13; xxxvi. 24. [x] Chap. xxxvii. 23.——[y] Jer. xxxii. 39; chap. xxxvi. 26, 27; see Zeph. iii. 9.——[z] Psa. li. 10; Jer. xxxi. 33; xxxii. 39; chap. xviii. 31.——[a] Zech. vii. 12.

[b] Psa. cv. 45.——[c] Jer. xxiv. 7; chap. xiv. 11; xxxvi. 28; xxxvii. 27.——[d] Chap. ix. 10; xxii. 31.——[e] Chap. i. 19; x. 19. [f] Chap. viii. 4; ix. 3; x. 4, 18; xliii. 4.——[g] See Zech. xiv. 4. [h] Chap. xliii. 2.——[i] Chap. viii. 3.

tuary] Though thus exiled from their own land, yet not forgotten by their God. While in their captivity, I will dispense many blessings to them; and I will restore them to their own land, ver. 17, from which they shall put away all idolatry, ver. 18.

Verse 19. And I will give them one heart] A whole system of renewed affections.

And I will put a new spirit within you] To direct and influence these new affections.

And I will take the stony heart out of their flesh] That which would not receive the impressions of my Spirit.

And will give them a heart of flesh] One that is capable of receiving and retaining these impressions.

Verse 20. That they may walk in my statutes] The holiness of their lives shall prove the work of God upon their hearts. Then it shall appear that I am their God, because I have done such things in them and for them; and their holy conduct shall show that they are my people. See on chap. xxxvi. 25, &c.

Verse 21. But as for them whose heart walketh] Them whose affections are attached to idolatry, they shall have such reward as their idols can give them, and such a recompense as Divine justice shall award them.

Verse 23. The glory of the Lord went up from the midst of the city] This vision is no mean proof of the long-suffering of God. He did not abandon this people all at once; he departed by little and little. FIRST, he left the temple. SECONDLY, he stopped a little at the gate of the city. THIRDLY, he departed entirely from the city and went to the Mount of Olives, which lay on the east side of the city. Having tarried there for some time to see if they would repent and turn to him,—FOURTHLY, he departed to heaven. The vision being now concluded, the prophet is taken away by the Spirit of God into Chaldea, and there announces to the captive Israelites what God had showed him in the preceding visions, and the good that he had spoken concerning them; who at first did not seem to profit much by them, which the prophet severely reproves.

CHAPTER XII.

The prophet proceeds, by a variety of types and parables, to convince those of the captivity that their brethren who were left behind to sustain the miseries of a siege and the insults of a conqueror, would be in a much worse condition than they who were already settled in a foreign land. In the beginning of this chapter he foretells the approaching captivity of Judah by action instead of words, 1–7. He predicts particularly the flight, capture, captivity, and sufferings of Zedekiah and his followers, 8–16, compared with Jer. lii. 11. He is to eat his food with trembling and signs of terror, as an emblem of the consternation of the Jews when surrounded by their enemies, 17–20; and then he answers the objections and bywords of scoffers and infidels, who either disbelieved his threatenings, or supposed the accomplishment of them very distant, 21–28. Josephus (Antiq. xi. 10) tells us that Zedekiah thought the prophecy of Ezekiel in the thirteenth verse inconsistent with that of Jeremiah, (chap. xxxiv. 3,) and resolved to believe neither. Both, however, were literally fulfilled; and the event convinced him that they were not irreconcilable. Thus, blinded by infidelity, sinners rush on to that destruction against which they are sufficiently warned

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

THE word of the LORD also came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, thou dwellest in the midst of [a] a rebellious house, which [b] have eyes to see, and see not; they have ears to hear, and hear not: [c] for they are a rebellious house.

3 Therefore, thou son of man, prepare thee [d] stuff for removing, and remove by day in their sight; and thou shalt remove from thy place to another place in their sight: it may be they will consider, though they be a rebellious house.

4 Then shalt thou bring forth thy stuff by day in their sight, as stuff for removing: and thou shalt go forth at even in their sight, [e] as they that go forth into captivity.

5 [f] Dig thou through the wall in their sight, and carry out thereby.

6 In their sight shalt thou bear it upon thy shoulders, and carry it forth in the twilight: thou shalt cover thy face, that thou see not the ground: [g] for I have set thee for a sign unto the house of Israel.

7 And I did so as I was commanded: I brought forth my stuff by day, as stuff for captivity, and in the even I [h] digged through the wall with mine hand; I brought it forth in the twilight, and I bare it upon my shoulder in their sight.

8 And in the morning came the word of the LORD unto me, saying,

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594 Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

9 Son of man, hath not the house of Israel, [i] the rebellious house, said unto thee, [k] What doest thou?

10 Say thou unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; This [l] burden concerneth the prince in Jerusalem, and all the house of Israel that are among them.

11 Say, [m] I am your sign: like as I have done, so shall it be done unto them: [n] they [o] shall remove and go into captivity.

12 And [p] the prince that is among them shall bear upon his shoulder in the twilight, and shall go forth; they shall dig through the wall to carry out thereby: he shall cover his face, that he see not the ground with his eyes.

13 My [q] net also will I spread upon him, and he shall be taken in my snare: and [r] I will bring him to Babylon to the land of the Chaldeans; yet shall he not see it, though he shall die there.

14 And [s] I will scatter toward every wind all that are about him to help him, and all his bands; and [t] I will draw out the sword after them.

15 [u] And they shall know that I am the LORD, when I shall scatter them among the nations, and disperse them in the countries.

[a] Chap. ii. 3, 6, 7, 8; iii. 26, 27.——[b] Isa. vi. 9; xlii. 20; Jer. v. 21; Matt. xiii. 13, 14.——[c] Chap. ii. 5.——[d] Or, instruments. [e] Heb. as the goings forth of captivity.——[f] Heb. Dig for thee. [g] Isa. viii. 18; chap. iv. 3; xxiv. 24; ver. 11.——[h] Heb. digged for me.——[i] Chap. ii. 5.——[k] Chap. xvii. 12; xxiv. 19.——[l] Mal. i. 1.

[m] Ver. 6.——[n] Heb. by removing go into captivity.——[o] 2 Kings xxv. 4, 5, 7.——[p] Jer. xxxix. 4.——[q] Job xix. 6; Lam. i. 13; Jer. lii. 9; chap. xvii. 20.——[r] 2 Kings xxv. 7; Jer. lii. 11; chap. xvii. 16.——[s] 2 Kings xxv. 4, 5; chap. v. 10.——[t] Chap. v. 2, 12.——[u] Psa. ix. 16; chap. vi. 7, 14; xi. 10; ver. 16, 20.

NOTES ON CHAP. XII.

Verse 2. Which have eyes to see, and see not] It is not want of grace that brings them to destruction. They have eyes to see, but they will not use them. No man is lost because he had not sufficient grace to save him, but because he abused that grace.

Verse 3. Prepare thee stuff for removing] Get carriages to transport thy goods to another place; signifying by this the captivity that was at hand.

Verse 5. Dig thou through the wall] This refers to the manner in which Zedekiah and his family would escape from the city. They escaped by night through a breach in the wall. See Jer. xxxix. 2–4; and 2 Kings xxv. 4.

Verse 6. Thou shalt cover thy face, that thou see not the ground] Referring to the blinding of Zedekiah: even the covering of the face might be intended to signify that in this way Zedekiah should be carried to Babylon on men's shoulders in some sort of palonquin, with a cloth tied over his eyes, because of the recent wounds made by extracting them. All the prophecies from this to the twentieth chapter are supposed to have been delivered in the sixth year of Zedekiah, five years before the taking of Jerusalem. How accurate the prediction! and how exactly fulfilled!

Verse 10. This burden] This prediction concerning the prince. By this I point out the capture, misery, and ruin of Zedekiah.

Verse 13. I will bring him to Babylon—yet shall he not see it] Because Nebuchadnezzar caused him to have his eyes put out at Riblah. To Babylon he was carried in his blind state, and there he died. In saying, My net also will I spread upon him, there is probably a reference to an ancient manner of fighting. One, who was called the retiarius, had a small casting net, which if he could throw over his antagonist's head, he then despatched him with his sword; if he missed his throw, he was obliged to run in order to get his net once more adjusted for another throw. In the mean time the other pursued him with all his speed to prevent this, and to despatch him: hence he

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

16 [v] But I will leave [w] a few men of them from the sword, from the famine, and from the pestilence; that they may declare all their abominations among the heathen whither they come; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

17 Moreover the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

18 Son of man, [x] eat thy bread with quaking, and drink thy water with trembling and with carefulness;

19 And say unto the people of the land, Thus saith the Lord GOD of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and of the land of Israel; They shall eat their bread with carefulness, and drink their water with astonishment, that her land may [y] be desolate from [z] all that is therein, [a] because of the violence of all them that dwell therein.

20 And the cities that are inhabited shall be laid waste, and the land shall be desolate; and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

21 And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

22 Son of man, what is that proverb that ye have in the land of Israel, saying, [b] The days are prolonged, and every vision faileth?

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

23 Tell them, therefore, Thus saith the Lord GOD; I will make this proverb to cease, and they shall no more use it as a proverb in Israel; but say unto them, [c] The days are at hand, and the effect of every vision.

24 For [d] there shall be no more any [e] vain vision nor flattering divination within the house of Israel.

25 For I am the LORD: I will speak, and [f] the word that I shall speak shall come to pass; it shall be no more prolonged: for in your days, O rebellious house, will I say the word, and will perform it, saith the Lord GOD.

26 Again the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

27 [g] Son of man, behold, they of the house of Israel say, The vision that he seeth is [h] for many days to come, and he prophesieth of the times that are far off.

28 [i] Therefore say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; There shall none of my words be prolonged any more, but the word which I have spoken shall be done, saith the Lord GOD.

---

[v] Chap. vi. 8, 9, 10.——[w] Heb. men of number.——[x] Chap. iv. 16. [y] Zech. vii. 14.——[z] Heb. the fulness thereof.——[a] Psa. cvii. 34. [b] Ver. 27; chap. xi. 3; Amos vi. 3; 2 Pet. iii. 4.

[c] Joel ii. 1.——Zeph. i. 14.——[d] Chap. xiii. 23.——[e] Lam. ii. 14.——[f] Isa. lv. 11; ver. 28; Dan. ix. 12; Luke xxi. 33. [g] Ver. 22.——[h] 2 Pet. iii. 4.——[i] Ver. 23, 25.

---

was called secutor: the first the netman, the second the pursuer.

Verse 18. Eat thy bread with quaking] Assume the manner of a person who is every moment afraid of his life, who has nothing but a morsel of bread to eat, and a little water to drink. Thus signifying the siege, and the straits to which they should be reduced. See this explained, ver. 19.

Verse 22. The days are prolonged, and every vision faileth?] These are the words of the infidels and scoffers, who, because vengeance was not speedily executed on an evil work, set their heart to do iniquity. "These predictions either will not come in our days, or will wholly fail; why then should we disquiet ourselves about them?" Strange, that the very means used by the most gracious God to bring sinners to repentance, should be made by them the very instruments of their own destruction! See 2 Pet. iii. 4.

Verse 23. The days are at hand] Far from failing or being prolonged, time is posting on, and the destruction threatened is at the door.

Verse 25. In your days—will I say the word, and will perform it] Even these mockers shall live to see and feel this desolation. This is more particularly intimated in the following verses.

Verse 28. There shall none of my words be prolonged any more] He had waited to be gracious; they abused his mercy; and at last the protracted wrath rushed upon them with irresistible force

CHAPTER XIII.

This chapter denounces heavy judgments against the lying prophets who flattered the people, in the midst of their sin and danger, with false hopes of peace and security, 19. The work of these deceivers is beautifully compared to a frail and insufficient piece of building, which can never stand against the battering elements of heaven, (the Chaldean forces,) which God will commission against it, 10–16. In the remaining part of the chapter woes are denounced against false prophetesses who practised vain rites and divinations, with the view of promoting their own gain by deceiving the people, 17–23.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

AND the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, prophesy against the prophets of Israel that prophesy, and say thou unto [a] them [b] that prophesy out of their own [c] hearts, Hear ye the word of the LORD;

3 Thus saith the Lord GOD; Wo unto the foolish prophets, that [d] follow their own spirit, [e] and have seen nothing!

4 O Israel, thy prophets are [f] like the foxes in the deserts.

5 Ye [g] have not gone up into the [h] gaps, neither [i] made up the hedge for the house of Israel to stand in the battle in the day of the LORD.

6 [k] They have seen vanity and lying divination, saying, The LORD saith: and the LORD hath not sent them: and they have made others to hope that they would confirm the word.

7 Have ye not seen a vain vision, and have ye not spoken a lying divination, whereas ye say, The LORD saith it; albeit I have not spoken?

8 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Because ye have spoken vanity, and seen lies, therefore, behold, I am against you, saith the Lord GOD.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

9 And mine hand shall be upon the prophets that see vanity, and that divine lies: they shall not be in the [l] assembly of my people, [m] neither shall they be written in the writing of the house of Israel, [n] neither shall they enter into the land of Israel; [o] and ye shall know that I am the Lord GOD.

10 Because, even because they have seduced my people, saying, [p] Peace; and there was no peace; and one built up [q] a wall, and, lo, others [r] daubed it with untempered mortar:

11 Say unto them which daub it with untempered mortar, that it shall fall: [s] there shall be an overflowing shower; and ye, O great hailstones, shall fall; and a stormy wind shall rend it.

12 Lo, when the wall is fallen, shall it not be said unto you, Where is the daubing wherewith ye have daubed it?

13 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; I

[a] Ver. 17.——[b] Heb. them that are prophets out of their own hearts.——[c] Jer. xiv. 14; xxiii. 16, 26.——[d] Heb. walk after. [e] Or, and things which they have not seen.——[f] Cant. ii. 15. [g] Psa. cvi. 23, 30; chap. xxii. 30.——[h] Or, breaches.——[i] Heb. hedged the hedge.

[k] Ver. 23; chap. xii. 24; xxii. 28.——[l] Or, secret, or council. [m] Ezra ii. 59, 62; Neh. vii. 5; Psa. lxix. 28.——[n] Chap. xx. 38. [o] Chap. xi. 10, 12.——[p] Jer. vi. 14; viii. 11.——[q] Or, a slight wall.——[r] Chap. xxii. 28.——[s] Chap. xxxviii. 22; Ecclus. xlix. 9.

NOTES ON CHAP. XIII.

Verse 2. That prophesy out of their own hearts] Who are neither inspired nor sent by ME. They are prophets out of their own hearts. They have their mission from their own assumption, and proceed in it from their own presumption. Such either go of themselves, or are sent by man. Such prophets, ministers, preachers, and clergy have been a curse to the Church and to the world for some thousands of years.

Verse 4. Thy prophets are like the foxes in the deserts.] The cunning of the fox in obtaining his prey has been long proverbial. These false prophets are represented as the foxes who, having got their prey by great subtlety, run to the desert to hide both themselves and it. So the false prophets, when the event did not answer to their prediction, got out of the way, that they might not be overwhelmed with the reproaches and indignation of the people.

Verse 5. Ye have not gone up into the gaps] Far from opposing sinners, who are bringing down the wrath of God upon the place, you prevent their repentance by your flattering promises and false predictions. Ye have neither by prayers, example, nor advice, contributed any thing for the preservation of the place, or the salvation of the people's souls.

Verse 9. They shall not be in the assembly of my people] They shall not be reputed members of my Church. They shall not be reckoned in the genealogy of true Israelites that return from captivity; and they shall never have a possession in the land; they shall be exhereditated and expatriated. They shall all perish in the siege, by the sword, the famine, and the pestilence.

Verse 10. One built up a wall] A true prophet is as a wall of defence to the people. These false prophets pretend to be a wall of defence; but their wall is bad, and their mortar is worse. One gives a lying vision, another pledges himself that it is true; and the people believe what they say, and trust not in God, nor turn from their sins. The city is about to be besieged; it needs stronger fortifications than what it possesses. The prophet should be as a brazen wall for its defence; and such my prophets would have been had the people received the word from my mouth. But ye have prevented this by your lying vanities; and when you have perverted the people, you pretend to raise up a rampart of specious propheey, full of fine promises, for their defence. What one false prophet says, another confirms; and this is like daubing over a bad wall with bad mortar, which prevents its blemishes and weaknesses being discovered, though it has no tendency to strengthen the building.

Verse 11. There shall be an overflowing shower] That shall wash off this bad mortar; sweep away the ground on which the wall stands, and level it with the earth. In the eastern countries, where the walls are will even rend it with a stormy wind in my fury; and there shall be an overflowing shower in mine anger, and great hailstones in my fury to consume it.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

14 So will I break down the wall that ye have daubed with untempered mortar, and bring it down to the ground, so that the foundation thereof shall be discovered, and it shall fall, and ye shall be consumed in the midst thereof: [t] and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

15 Thus will I accomplish my wrath upon the wall, and upon them that have daubed it with untempered mortar, and will say unto you, The wall is no more, neither they that daubed it;

16 To wit, the prophets of Israel which prophesy concerning Jerusalem, and which [u] see visions of peace for her, and there is no peace, saith the Lord GOD.

17 Likewise, thou son of man, [v] set thy face against the daughters of thy people, [w] which prophesy out of their own heart; and prophesy thou against them,

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

18 And say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Wo to the women that sew pillows to all [x] arm holes, and make kerchiefs upon the head of every stature to hunt souls! Will ye [y] hunt the souls of my people, and will ye save the souls alive that come unto you?

19 And will ye pollute me among my people [z] for handfuls of barley and for pieces of bread, to slay the souls that should not die, and to save the souls alive that should not live, by your lying to my people that hear your lies?

20 Wherefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I am against your pillows, wherewith ye there hunt the souls [a] to make them fly, and I will tear them from your arms, and will let the souls go, even the souls that ye hunt to make them fly.

21 Your kerchiefs also will I tear, and deliver my people out of your hand, and they shall be no more in your hand to be hunted;

[t] Ver. 9, 21, 23; chap. xiv. 8.——[u] Jer. vi. 14; xxviii. 9.——[v] Ch. xx. 46; xxi. 2.——[w] Ver. 2.——[x] Or, elbows.

[y] 2 Pet. ii. 14.——[z] See Prov. xxviii. 21; Micah iii. 5.——[a] Or into gardens.

built with unbaked bricks, desolations of this kind are often occasioned by tempestuous rains. Of this sort of materials were the walls of ancient cities made, and hence the reason why no vestige of them remains. Witness Babylon, which was thus built. See the note on chap. iv. 1.

Verse 17. Set thy face against the daughters of thy people, which prophesy] From this it appears that there were prophetesses in the land of Israel, that were really inspired by the Lord: for as a false religion necessarily implies a true one, of which it is the ape; so false prophetesses necessarily imply true ones, whom they endeavoured to imitate.

That there were true prophetesses among the Jews is evident enough from such being mentioned in the sacred writings. Miriam, the sister of Moses, Exod. xv. 20; Num. xii. 2; Deborah, Judg. iv. 4; Huldah, 2 Kings xxii. 14; Anna, the daughter of Phanuel, Luke ii. 36; the four daughters of Philip the deacon, Acts xxi. 9.

Calmet observes that there was scarcely a heresy in the primitive Church that was not supported and fomented by seducing women.

Verse 18. That sew pillows to all arm holes] I believe this refers to those cushions which are so copiously provided in the eastern countries for the apartments of women; on which they sit, lean, rest their heads, and prop up their arms. I have several drawings of eastern ladies, who are represented on sofas; and often with their arm thrown over a pillow, which is thereby pressed close to their side, and against which they thus recline. The prophet's discourse seems to point out that state of softness and effeminacy to which the predictions of those false prophetesses allured the inhabitants of Jerusalem. A careless voluptuous life is that which is here particularly reprehended.

And make kerchiefs] The word kerchief is French, couvre chef, that which covers the head; hence handkerchief and neck handkerchief, and pocket handkerchief, are pitifully improper; because none of them is used to cover the head, from which alone that article of dress has its name. But what are we to understand by kerchiefs here? Probably some kind of ornamental dress which rendered women more enticing, so that they could the more successfully hunt or inveigle souls (men) into the worship of their false gods. These they put on heads of every stature—women of all ages, קומה komah, of every woman that rose up to inveigle men to idolatry.

The word מכפחות mispachoth, translated here kerchiefs, and by the Vulgate cervicalia, bolsters, Calmet contends, means a sort of nets used in hunting, and in every place where it occurs it will bear this meaning; and hence the use to which it is here said to be applied, to hunt souls.

Verse 20. The souls that ye hunt to make them fly.] לפרחות lephorechoth, into the flower gardens, says Parkhurst. These false prophetesses decoyed men into these gardens, where probably some impure rites of worship were performed, as in that of אשרה Asherah or Venus. See Parkhurst under פרח.

Verse 21. Your kerchiefs] Nets, or amulets, as some think.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

[b] and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

22 Because with lies ye have made the heart of the righteous sad, whom I have not made sad; and [c] strengthened the hands of the wicked, that he should not return from his wicked way, [d] by [e] promising him life:

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

23 Therefore [f] ye shall see no more vanity, nor divine divinations: for I will deliver my people out of your hand: [g] and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

[b] Ver. 9.——[c] Jer. xxiii. 14.——[d] Or, that I should save his life.——[e] Heb. by quickening him.

[f] Ver. 6, &c.; chap. xii. 24; Mic. iii. 6.——[g] Ver. 9; chap. xiv. 8; xv. 7.

Verse 22. With lies ye have made the heart of the righteous sad] Here is the ministry of these false prophetesses, and its effects. They told lies: they would speak, and they had no truth to tell; and therefore spoke falsities. They "saddened the souls of the righteous, and strengthened the hands of the wicked." They promised them life, and prevented them from repenting and turning from their sins.

Verse 23. Ye shall see no more vanity] They pretended visions; but they were empty of reality.

Nor divine divinations] As God would not speak to them, they employed demons. Where God is not, because of the iniquity of the people, the devil is, to strengthen and support that iniquity. And if he cannot have his priests, he will have his priestesses; and these will have a Church like themselves, full of lying doctrines, and bad works.

CHAPTER XIV.

Here God threatens those hypocrites who pretended to worship him, while they loved and practised idolatry, 1–11. He declares his irreversible purpose of punishing so guilty a nation, in behalf of which no intercession of the people of God shall be of any avail. The gross idolaters of Jerusalem and Judah shall be visited with God's four sore judgments, famine, 12–14; wild beasts, 15, 16; the sword, 17, 18; and pestilence, 19–21. A remnant shall be delivered from the wrath coming upon the whole land, 22, 23.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

THEN [a] came certain of the elders of Israel unto me, and sat before me.

2 And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

3 Son of man, these men have set up their idols in their heart, and put [b] the stumbling-block of their iniquity before their face: [c] should I be inquired of at all by them?

4 Therefore speak unto them, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Every man of the house of Israel that setteth up his idols in his heart, and putteth the stumbling-block of his iniquity before his face, and cometh to the prophet; I the LORD will answer him that cometh according to the multitude of his idols:

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

5 That I may take the house of Israel in their own heart, because they are all estranged from me through their idols.

6 Therefore say unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Repent, and turn [d] yourselves from your idols; and turn away your faces from all your abominations.

7 For every one of the house of Israel, or of the stranger that sojourneth in Israel, which separateth himself from me, and setteth up his

[a] Chap. viii. 1; xx. 1; xxxiii. 31.——[b] Chap. vii. 19; ver. 4, 7.

[c] 2 Kings iii. 13.——[d] Or, others.

NOTES ON CHAP. XIV.

Verse 1. Then came certain of the elders of Israel unto me] These probably came to tempt him, or get him to say something that would embroil him with the government. They were bad men, as we shall see in the third verse.

Verse 3. These men have set up their idols in their heart] Not only in their houses; in the streets; but they had them in their hearts. These were stumbling-blocks of iniquity; they fell over them, and broke the neck of their souls. And should God be inquired of by such miscreants as these?

Verse 4. According to the multitude of his idols] I will treat him as an idolater, as a flagrant idolater.

Verse 7. And cometh to a prophet] Generally supposed to mean a false prophet.

I the Lord will answer him by myself] I shall discover to him, by my own true prophet, what shall be the fruit of his ways. So, while their false prophets were assuring them of peace and prosperity, God's prophets were predicting the calamities that afterwards fell upon them. Yet they believed the false prophets in preference to the true. Ahab, about to engage with the Syrians, who had possession of Ramoth-Gilead, asked Micaiah, the prophet of the Lord, concerning the event; who told him he should lose the battle. He then inquired of Zedekiah, a false prophet, who promised him a glorious victory. Ahab be-idols in his heart, and putteth the stumbling block of his iniquity before his face, and cometh to a prophet to inquire of him concerning me; I the LORD will answer him by myself:

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

8 And [e] I will set my face against that man, and will make him a [f] sign and a proverb, and I will cut him off from the midst of my people; [g] and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

9 And if the prophet be deceived when he hath spoken a thing, I the LORD [h] have deceived that prophet, and I will stretch out my hand upon him, and will destroy him from the midst of my people Israel.

10 And they shall bear the punishment of their iniquity: the punishment of the prophet shall be even as the punishment of him that seeketh unto him;

11 That the house of Israel may [i] go no more astray from me, neither be polluted any more with all their transgressions; [k] but that they may be my people, and I may be their God, saith the Lord GOD.

12 The word of the LORD came again to me, saying,

13 Son of man, when the land sinneth against me by trespassing grievously, then will I stretch out mine hand upon it, and will break the [l] staff of the bread thereof, and will send famine upon it, and will cut off man and beast from it:

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

14 [m] Though these three men, Noah, Daniel, and Job, were in it, they should deliver but their own souls [n] by their righteousness, saith the Lord GOD.

15 If I cause [o] noisome beasts to pass through the land, and they [p] spoil it, so that it be desolate, that no man may pass through because of the beasts:

16 [q] Though these three men were [r] in it, as I live, saith the Lord GOD, they shall deliver neither sons nor daughters; they only shall be delivered, but the land shall be desolate.

17 Or if [s] I bring a sword upon that land, and say, Sword, go through the land; so that I [t] cut off man and beast from it:

18 [u] Though these three men were in it, as I live, saith the Lord GOD, they shall deliver neither sons nor daughters, but they only shall be delivered themselves.

19 Or if I send [v] a pestilence into that land, and [w] pour out my fury upon it in blood, to cut off from it man and beast:

20 [x] Though Noah, Daniel, and Job, were in it, as I live, saith the Lord GOD, they shall deliver neither son nor daughter; they shall but deliver their own souls by their righteousness

[e] Lev. xvii. 10; xx. 3, 5, 6; Jer. xliv. 11; chap. xv. 7. — [f] Num. xxvi. 10; Deut. xxviii. 37; chap. v. 15. — [g] Chap. vi. 7. [h] 1 Kings xxii. 23; Job xii. 16; Jer. iv. 10; 2 Thess. ii. 11. [i] 2 Pet. ii. 15. — [k] Chap. xi. 20; xxxvii. 27. — [l] Lev. xxvi. 26; Isa. iii. 1; chap. iv. 16; v. 16. — [m] Jer. xv. 1; ver. 16, 18, 20; see Jer. vii. 16; xi. 14; xiv. 11. — [n] Prov. xi. 4. — [o] Lev. xxvi. 22; chap. v. 17. — [p] Or, bereave. — [q] Ver. 14, 18, 20. — [r] Heb. in the midst of it. — [s] Lev. xxvi. 25; chap. v. 12; xxi. 3, 4; xxix. 8; xxxviii. 21. — [t] Chap. xxv. 13; Zeph. i. 3. — [u] Ver. 14. [v] 2 Sam. xxiv. 15; chap. xxxviii. 22. — [w] Ch. vii. 8. — [x] Ver. 14.

lieved the latter, marched against the enemy, was routed, and slain in the battle, 1 Kings xxii. 10, &c.

Verse 9. I the Lord have deceived that prophet] That is, he ran before he was sent; he willingly became the servant of Satan's illusions; and I suffered this to take place, because he and his followers refused to consult and serve me. I have often had occasion to remark that it is common in the Hebrew language to state a thing as done by the Lord which he only suffers or permits to be done; for so absolute and universal is the government of God, that the smallest occurrence cannot take place without his will or permission.

Verse 10. The punishment of the prophet] They are both equally guilty; both have left the Lord, and both shall be equally punished.

Verse 13. By trespassing grievously] Having been frequently warned, and having refused to leave their sin, and so filled up the measure of their iniquity.

Verse 14. Though—Noah, Daniel, and Job] The intercession even of the holiest of men shall not avert my judgments. Noah, though a righteous man, could not by his intercession preserve the old world from being drowned. Job, though a righteous man, could not preserve his children from being killed by the fall of their house. Daniel, though a righteous man, could not prevent the captivity of his country. Daniel must have been contemporary with Ezekiel. He was taken captive in the third year of Jehoiakim, Dan. i. 1. After this Jehoiakim reigned eight years, 2 Kings xxiii. 36. And this prophecy, as appears from chap. viii. 1, was uttered in the sixth year of Jehoiachin's captivity, who succeeded Jehoiakim, and reigned only three months, 2 Kings xxiv. 6, 8. Therefore at this time Daniel had been fourteen years in captivity. See Newcome. Even at this time he had gained much public celebrity. From this account we may infer that Job was as real a person as Noah or Daniel; and of their identity no man has pretended to doubt. When God, as above, has determined to punish a nation, no intercession shall avail. Personal holiness alone can

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

21 For thus saith the Lord GOD; [y] How much more when [z] I send my four sore judgments upon Jerusalem, the sword, and the famine, and the noisome beast, and the pestilence, to cut off from it man and beast?

22 [a] Yet, behold, therein shall be left a remnant that shall be brought forth, both sons and daughters: behold, they shall come forth unto you, and [b] ye shall see their way and their doings: and ye shall be comforted concerning the evil that I have brought upon Jerusalem, even concerning all that I have brought upon it.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

23 And they shall comfort you, when ye see their ways and their doings: and ye shall know that I have not done [c] without cause all that I have done in it, saith the Lord GOD.

[y] Or, Also when.——[z] Chap. v. 17; xxxiii. 27.

[a] Chap. vi. 8.——[b] Chap. xx. 43.——[c] Jer. xxii. 8, 9.

prevent these evils; but the holiness of any man can only avail for himself.

Verse 21. My four sore judgments] SWORD, war. FAMINE, occasioned by drought. PESTILENCE, epidemic diseases which sweep off a great part of the inhabitants of a land. The NOISOME BEAST, the multiplication of wild beasts in consequence of the general destruction of the inhabitants.

Verse 22. Behold, they shall come forth unto you] Though there shall be great desolations in the land of Judea, yet a remnant shall be left that shall come here also as captives; and their account of the abominations of the people shall prove to you with what propriety I have acted in abandoning them to such general destruction. This speech is addressed to those who were already in captivity; i. e., those who had been led to Babylon with their king Jeconiah.

Verse 23. Ye shall know that I have not done without cause] There is no part of the conduct of God towards man that is not dictated by the purest principles of justice, equity, and truth. He does nothing but what is right; and whatever is right to be done, that ought to be done. In God's justice there is no severity; in God's mercy there is no caprice. He alone doth all things well; for he is the Fountain of justice and mercy.

CHAPTER XV.

The Jewish nation, about to be destroyed by the Chaldeans, compared to a barren vine which is fit for nothing but to be cast into the fire, 1–8.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

AND the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, What is the vine tree more than any tree, or than a branch which is among the trees of the forest?

3 Shall wood be taken thereof to do any work? or will men take a pin of it to hang any vessel thereon?

4 Behold, [a] it is cast into the fire for fuel; the fire devoureth both the ends of it, and the midst of it is burned. [b] Is it meet for any work?

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

5 Behold, when it was whole, it was [c] meet for no work: how much less shall it be meet yet for any work, when the fire hath devoured it, and it is burned?

6 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; As the vine tree among the trees of the forest,

[a] John xv. 6.——[b] Heb. Will it prosper?

[c] Heb. made fit.

NOTES ON CHAP. XV.

Verse 2. What is the vine tree more than any tree] It is certain that the vine is esteemed only on account of its fruit. In some countries, it is true, it grows to a considerable size and thickness: but, even then, it is not of a sufficient density to work into furniture. But whatever may be said of the stock of the vine, it is the branch that the prophet speaks of here; and I scarcely know the branch of any tree in the forest more useless than is the branch of the vine. Out of it who can even make a pin to drive into a mud wall, or hang any vessel on? A vine would never be cultivated for the sake of its wood; it is really worthless but as it bears fruit. What is Israel? Good for nothing, but as God influenced them to bring forth fruit to his glory. But now that they have ceased to be fruitful, they are good for nothing, but, like a withered branch of the vine, to be burnt.

Verse 4. The fire devoureth both the ends of it, and the midst of it is burned.] Judea is like a vine branch thrown into the fire, which seizes on both the ends, and scorches the middle: so both the extremities of the land is wasted; and the middle, Jerusalem, is now threatened with a siege, and by and by will be totally destroyed.

Verse 6. Therefore thus saith the Lord] As surely as I have allotted such a vine branch, or vine branches, for fuel; so surely have I appointed the inhabitants of Jerusalem to be consumed.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

which I have given to the fire for fuel, so will I give the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

7 And [d] I will set my face against them: [e] they shall go out from one fire, and another fire shall devour them; [f] and ye shall know that I am the LORD, when I set my face against them.

A. M. 3410 B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3 Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

8 And I will make the land desolate, because they have [g] committed a trespass, saith the Lord GOD.

[d] Lev. xvii. 10; chap. xiv. 8.——[e] Isa. xxiv. 18.——[f] Chap. vi. 7; vii. 4; xi. 10; xx. 38, 42, 44.——[g] Heb. trespassed a trespass.

The design of this parable is to abate the pride of the Jews; to show them that, in their best estate, they had nothing but what they had received, and therefore deserved nothing; and now, having fallen from all righteousness, they can have no expectation of any thing but judgment unmixed with mercy.

Verse 7. They shall go out from one fire, and another fire shall devour them] If they escape the sword, they shall perish by the famine; if they escape the famine, they shall be led away captives. To escape will be impossible. It will be to them according to the proverb:—

Incidit in Scyllam, cupiens vitare Charybdim.

"Out of the scald, into the flame."

Verse 8. They have committed a trespass] They have prevaricated; they are the worst of sinners, and shall have the heaviest of punishments. Can men suppose that it is possible to hide even their dark hearts from God?

CHAPTER XVI.

In this chapter the mercy of God to Jerusalem, (or the Jewish Church and nation,) is set forth by the emblem of a person that should take up an exposed infant, bring her up with great tenderness, and afterwards marry her, 1–14. She is then upbraided with her monstrous ingratitude in departing from the worship of God, and polluting herself with the idolatries of the nations around her, under the figure of a woman that proves false to a tender and indulgent husband, 15–52. But, notwithstanding these her heinous provocations, God promises, after she should suffer due correction, to restore her again to his favour, 53–63. The mode of describing apostasy from the true religion to the worship of idols under the emblem of adultery, (a figure very frequent in the sacred canon,) is pursued with great force, and at considerable length, both in this and the twenty-third chapter; and is excellently calculated to excite in the Church of God the highest detestation of all false worship.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

AGAIN the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, [a] cause Jerusalem to know her abominations,

3 And say, Thus saith the Lord GOD unto Jerusalem; Thy [b] birth [c] and thy nativity is of the land of Canaan; [d] thy father was an Amorite, and thy mother a Hittite.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

[a] Chap. xx. 4; xxii. 2; xxxiii. 7, 8, 9.

[b] Heb. cutting out, or habitation.——[c] Chap. xxi. 30.——[d] Ver. 45.

NOTES ON CHAP. XVI.

Verse 2. Cause Jerusalem to know her abominations] And such a revelation of impurity never was seen before or since. Surely the state of the Jews, before the Babylonish captivity, was the most profligate and corrupt of all the nations of the earth. This chapter contains God's manifesto against this most abominable people; and although there are many metaphors here, yet all is not metaphorical. Where there was so much idolatry, there must have been adulteries, fornications, prostitutions, and lewdness of every description. The description of the prophet is sufficiently clear, except where there is a reference to ancient and obsolete customs. What a description of crimes! The sixth satire of Juvenal is its counterpart. General remarks are all that a commentator is justified in bestowing on this very long, very circumstantial, and caustic invective. For its key, see on the thirteenth and sixty-third verses.

Verse 3. Thy birth and thy nativity is of the land of Canaan] It would dishonour Abraham to say that you sprung from him: ye are rather Canaanites than Israelites. The Canaanites were accursed; so are ye.

Thy father was an Amorite, and thy mother a Hittite.] These tribes were the most famous, and probably the most corrupt, of all the Canaanites. So Isaiah calls the princes of Judah rulers of Sodom, chap. i. 10; and John the Baptist calls the Pharisees a generation or brood of vipers, Matt. iii. 7. There is a fine specimen of this kind of catachresis in Dido's invective against Æneas:—

Nec tibi Diva parens, generis nec Dardanus auctor,
Perfide, sed duris genuit te cautibus horrens
Caucasus, Hyrcanæque admorunt ubera tigres.
Æn. lib. iv. 365.

"False as thou art, and more than false, forsworn;
Not sprung from noble blood, nor goddess born:
But hewn from hardened entrails of a rock,—
And rough Hyrcanian tigers gave thee suck."
DRYDEN

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

4 And as for thy nativity, [e] in the day thou wast born, thy navel was not cut, neither wast thou washed in water [f] to supple thee; thou wast not salted at all, nor swaddled at all.

5 None eye pitied thee, to do any of these unto thee, to have compassion upon thee; but thou wast cast out in the open field, to the loathing of thy person, in the day that thou wast born.

6 And when I passed by thee, and saw thee [g] polluted in thine own blood, I said unto thee when thou wast in thy blood, Live; yea, I said unto thee when thou wast in thy blood, Live.

7 [h] I have [i] caused thee to multiply as the bud of the field, and thou hast increased and waxen great, and thou art come to [k] excellent ornaments: thy breasts are fashioned, and thine hair is grown, whereas thou wast naked and bare.

[e] Hos. ii. 3.——[f] Or, when I looked upon thee.——[g] Or, trodden under foot.——[h] Exod. i. 7.——[i] Heb. made thee a million.——[k] Heb. ornament of ornaments.

8 Now when I passed by thee, and looked upon thee, behold, thy time was the time of love; [l] and I spread my skirt over thee, and covered thy nakedness: yea, I sware unto thee, and entered into a covenant with thee, saith the Lord GOD, and [m] thou becamest mine.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

9 Then washed I thee with water; yea, I throughly washed away thy [n] blood from thee and I anointed thee with oil.

10 I clothed thee also with broidered work and shod thee with badgers' skin, and I girded thee about with fine linen, and I covered thee with silk.

11 I decked thee also with ornaments, and I [o] put bracelets upon thy hands, [p] and a chain on thy neck.

12 And I put a jewel on thy [q] forehead, and ear-rings in thine ears, and a beautiful crown upon thine head.

13 Thus wast thou decked with gold and [l] Ruth iii. 9.——[m] Exod. xix. 5; Jer. ii. 2.——[n] Heb. bloods. [o] Gen. xxiv. 22, 47.——[p] Prov. i. 9.——[q] Heb. nose; see Isa. iii. 21.

This is strong: but the invective of the prophet exceeds it far. It is the essence of degradation to its subject; and shows the Jews to be as base and contemptible as they were abominable and disgusting.

Verse 4. As for thy nativity, &c.] This verse refers to what is ordinarily done for every infant on its birth. The umbilical cord, by which it received all its nourishment while in the womb, being no longer necessary, is cut at a certain distance from the abdomen: on this part a knot is tied, which firmly uniting the sides of the tubes, they coalesce, and incarnate ogether. The extra part of the cord on the outside of the ligature, being cut off from the circulation by which it was originally fed, soon drops off, and the part where the ligature was is called the navel. In many places, when this was done, the infant was plunged into cold water; in all cases washed, and sometimes with a mixture of salt and water, in order to give a greater firmness to the skin, and constringe the pores. The last process was swathing the body, to support mechanically the tender muscles till they should acquire sufficient strength to support the body. But among savages this latter process is either wholly neglected, or done very slightly: and the less it is done, the better for the infant; as this kind of unnatural compression greatly impedes the circulation of the blood, the pulsation of the heart, and the due inflation of the lungs; respiration, in many cases, being rendered oppressive by the tightness of these bandages.

Verse 5. Thou wast cast out in the open field] This is an allusion to the custom of some heathen and barbarous nations, who exposed those children in the open fields to be devoured by wild beasts who had any kind of deformity, or whom they could not support.

Verse 6. I said—Live] I received the exposed child from the death that awaited it, while in such a state as rendered it at once an object of horror, and also of compassion.

——————Modo primos
Edere vagitus, et adhuc a matre rubentem.

Verse 8. Was the time of love] Thou wast marriageable.

I spread my skirt over thee] I espoused thee. This was one of their initiatory marriage ceremonies. See Ruth iii. 9.

I—entered into a covenant with thee] Married thee. Espousing preceded marriage.

Verse 10. I clothed thee also with broidered work] Cloth on which various figures, in various colours, were wrought by the needle.

With badgers' skin] See Exod. xxv. 5. The same kind of skin with which the tabernacle was covered.

Fine linen] שש beshesh, with cotton. I have seen cloth of this kind enveloping the finest mummies.

I covered thee with silk.] משי meshi. Very probably the produce of the silk-worm.

Verse 12. I put a jewel on thy forehead] נזם אפך al appech, upon thy nose. This is one of the most common ornaments among ladies in the east. European translators, not knowing what to make of a ring in the nose, have rendered it, a jewel on thy forehead or mouth, (though they have sometimes a piece of gold or jewel fastened to the centre of their forehead.) I have already spoken of this Asiatic custom, so often referred to in the sacred writings: see Gen. xxiv. 22, 42; Exod. xxxii. 2; Job xlii. 11; Prov. xi. 22; Isa. iii. 21; Hos. ii. 13.

Verse 13. Thus wast thou decked, &c.] The Tar-

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

silver; and thy raiment was of fine linen, and silk, and broidered work; [r] thou didst eat fine flour, and honey, and oil: and thou wast exceeding [s] beautiful, and thou didst prosper into a kingdom.

14 And [t] thy renown went forth among the heathen for thy beauty: for it was perfect through my comeliness, which I had put upon thee, saith the Lord GOD.

15 [u] But thou didst trust in thine own beauty, [v] and playedst the harlot because of thy renown, and pouredst out thy fornications on every one that passed by; his it was.

16 [w] And of thy garments thou didst take, and deckedst thy high places with divers colours, and playedst the harlot thereupon: the like things shall not come, neither shall it be so.

17 Thou hast also taken thy fair jewels of my gold and of my silver, which I had given thee, and madest to thyself images [x] of men, and didst commit whoredom with them,

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

18 And tookest thy broidered garments, and coveredst them: and thou hast set mine oil and mine incense before them.

19 [y] My meat also which I gave thee, fine flour, and oil, and honey, wherewith I fed thee, thou hast even set it before them for [z] a sweet savour: and thus it was, saith the Lord GOD.

20 [a] Moreover thou hast taken thy sons and thy daughters, whom thou hast borne unto me, and these hast thou sacrificed unto them [b] to be devoured. Is this of thy whoredoms a small matter, 21 That thou hast slain my children, and delivered them to cause them to pass through the fire for them?

22 And in all thine abominations and thy

[r] Deut. xxxii. 13, 14.——[s] Psa. xlviii. 2.——[t] Lam. ii. 15. [u] See Deut. xxxii. 15; Jer. vii. 4; Mic. iii. 11.——[v] Isa. i. 21; lvii. 8; Jer. ii. 20; iii. 2, 6, 20; chap. xxiii. 3, 8, 11, 12; Hos. i. 2.

[w] 2 Kings xxiii. 7; chap. vii. 20; Hos. ii. 8.——[x] Heb. of a male.——[y] Hos. ii. 8.——[z] Heb. a savour of rest.——[a] 2 Kings xvi. 3; Psa. cvi. 37, 38; Isa. lvii. 5; Jer. vii. 31; xxxii. 35; chap xx. 26; xxiii. 37.——[b] Heb. to devour.

gum understands all this of the tabernacle service, the book of the law, the sacerdotal vestments, &c.

Thou didst prosper into a kingdom.] Here the figure explains itself: by this wretched infant, the low estate of the Jewish nation in its origin is pointed out; by the growing up of this child into woman's estate, the increase and multiplication of the people; by her being decked out and ornamented, her tabernacle service, and religious ordinances; by her betrothing and consequent marriage, the covenant which God made with the Jews; by her fornication and adulteries, their apostasy from God, and the establishment of idolatrous worship, with all its abominable rites; by her fornication and whoredoms with the Egyptians and Assyrians, the sinful alliances which the Jews made with those nations, and the incorporation of their idolatrous worship with that of Jehovah; by her lovers being brought against her, and stripping her naked, the delivery of the Jews into the hands of the Egyptians, Assyrians, and Chaldeans, who stripped them of all their excellencies, and at last carried them into captivity.

This is the key to the whole of this long chapter of metaphors; and the reader will do well to forget the figures, and look at the facts. The language and figures may in many places appear to us exceptionable: but these are quite in conformity to those times and places, and to every reader and hearer would appear perfectly appropriate, nor would engender either a thought or passion of an irregular or improper kind. Custom sanctions the mode, and prevents the abuse. Among naked savages irregular passions and propensities are not known to predominate above those in civilized life. And why? Because such sights are customary, and therefore in themselves innocent. And the same may be said of the language by which such states and circumstances of life are described. Had Ezekiel spoken in such language as would have been called chaste and unexceptionable among us, it would have appeared to his auditors as a strange dialect, and would have lost at least one half of its power and effect. Let this be the prophet's apology for the apparent indelicacy of his metaphors; and mine, for not entering into any particular discussion concerning them. See also on ver. 63.

Verse 15. Thou didst trust in thine own beauty] Riches, strength, alliances, &c.; never considering that all they possessed came from God; therefore it was his comeliness which he had put upon them. Witness their original abject state, and the degree of eminence to which they had arrived afterwards through the protecting power of God.

Verse 17. And madest to thyself images of men] צלמי זכר tsalmey zachar, male images. Priapi are here meant, which were carried about in the ceremonies of Osiris, Bacchus, and Adonis; and were something like the lingam among the Hindoos. Herodotus, lib. ii, c. 48, 49, gives us an account of these male images: Πηχυαια αγαλματα νευροσπαστα, τα περιφορευσι κατα κωμας ται γυναιξι, νευον το αιδοιον, ου πολλῳ τευ ελασσον εον του αλλου σωματος. This was done at the worship of Bacchus in Egypt: and they who wish to see more may consult Herodotus as above. In this phallic worship the women were principally concerned.

Verse 18. Hast set mine oil and mine incense before them.] It appears that they had made use of the holy vestments, and the different kinds of offerings which belonged to the Lord, to honour their idols.

Verse 21. To cause them to pass through the fire]

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

whoredoms thou hast not remembered the days of thy [c] youth, [d] when thou wast naked and bare, and wast polluted in thy blood.

23 And it came to pass after all thy wickedness, (wo, wo unto thee! saith the Lord GOD;)

24 That [e] thou hast also built unto thee an [f] eminent place, and [g] hast made thee a high place in every street.

25 Thou hast built thy high place [h] at every head of the way, and hast made thy beauty to be abhorred, and hast opened thy feet to every one that passed by, and multiplied thy whoredoms.

26 Thou hast also committed fornication with [i] the Egyptians thy neighbours, great of flesh; and hast increased thy whoredoms, to provoke me to anger.

27 Behold, therefore, I have stretched out my hand over thee, and have diminished thine ordinary food, and delivered thee unto the will of them that hate thee, [k] the [l] daughters of the Philistines, which are ashamed of thy lewd way.

28 [m] Thou hast played the whore also with the Assyrians, because thou wast unsatiable; yea, thou hast played the harlot with them, and yet couldest not be satisfied.

29 Thou hast moreover multiplied thy fornication in the land of Canaan [n] unto Chaldea; and yet thou wast not satisfied herewith.

30 How weak is thine heart, saith the Lord GOD, seeing thou doest all these things, the work of an imperious whorish woman;

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

31 [o] In that [p] thou buildest thine eminent place in the head of every way, and makest thine high place in every street; and hast not been as a harlot, in that thou scornest hire;

32 But as a wife that committeth adultery, which taketh strangers instead of her husband!

33 They give gifts to all whores: but [q] thou givest thy gifts to all thy lovers, and [r] hirest them, that they may come unto thee on every side for thy whoredom.

34 And the contrary is in thee from other women in thy whoredoms, whereas none followeth thee to commit whoredoms: and in that thou givest a reward, and no reward is given unto thee, therefore thou art contrary.

35 Wherefore, O harlot, hear the word of the LORD:

36 Thus saith the Lord GOD; Because thy filthiness was poured out, and thy nakedness discovered through thy whoredoms with thy lovers, and with all the idols of thy abominations, and by [s] the blood of thy children, which thou didst give unto them;

37 Behold, therefore [t] I will gather all thy lovers, with whom thou hast taken pleasure, and all them that thou hast loved, with all them that thou hast hated; I will even gather them round about against thee, and will discover thy nakedness unto them, that they may see all thy nakedness.

[c] Jer. ii. 2; ver. 43, 60; Hos. xi. 1.——[d] Ver. 4, 5, 6.
[e] Ver. 31.——[f] Or, brothel house.——[g] Isa. lvii. 5, 7; Jer. ii. 20; iii. 2.——[h] Prov. ix. 14.——[i] Chap. viii. 10, 14; xx. 7, 8; xxiii. 19, 20, 21.——[k] 2 Chron. xxviii. 18, 19; ver. 57.——[l] Or, cities.

[m] 2 Kings xvi. 7, 10; 2 Chron. xxviii. 23; Jer. ii. 18, 36
[n] Chap. xxiii. 14, &c.——[o] Or. in thy daughters is thine, &c.
[p] Ver. 24, 39.——[q] Isa. xxx. 3; Hos. viii. 9.——[r] Heb. bribest
[s] Ver. 20; Jer. ii. 34.——[t] Jer. xiii. 22, 26; Lam. i. 8; chap xxiii. 9, 10, 22, 29; Hos. ii. 10; viii. 10; Nah. iii. 5.

Bp. Newcome quotes a very apposite passage from Dionysius Halicarnass. Ant. Rom. lib. i., s. 88, p. 72, and marg. p. 75, Edit. Hudson: Μετα δε τουτο, πυρκαϊας προ των σκηνων γενεσθαι κελευσας, εξαγει τον λεων τας φλογας ὑπερθρωσκοντα, της ὁσιωσεως των μιασματων ἑνεκα. "And after this, having ordered that fires should be made before the tents, he brings out the people to leap over the flames, for the purifying of their pollutions." This example shows that we are not always to take passing through the fire for being entirely consumed by it. Among the Israelites this appears to have been used as a rite of consecration.

Verse 24. Thou hast also built unto thee an eminent place] גב gab, a stew or brothel; Vulg. lupanar; Septuag. οικημα πορνικον. So my old MS. Bible, a bordel house. "Thou hast builded thy stewes and bordell houses in every place."—Coverdale's Bible, 1535. Bordel is an Italian word: how it got so early into our language I know not. Our modern word brothel is a corruption of it. Diodati translates, Tu hai edificato un bordello, "Thou hast built a brothel." Houses of this kind were of a very ancient date.

Verse 26. Great of flesh] The most extensive idolaters. Bene vasatis—longa mensura incognita nervi.—Juv. Sat. ix. 34. This is the allusion.

Verse 27. Have diminished thine ordinary] חקך chukkech means here the household provision made for a wife—food, clothing, and money.

Verse 36. Thy filthiness was poured out] נחשתך nechushtech. As this word signifies a sort of metal (brass,) it is generally supposed to mean money. They had given money literally to these heathen nations to procure their friendship and assistance; but the word also means verdigris, the poisonous rust of copper or brass. It is properly translated in our version filthiness, poisonous filth. Does it not refer to that vene-

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

38 And I will judge thee, [u] as [v] women that break wedlock and [w] shed blood are judged; and I will give thee blood in fury and jealousy.

39 And I will also give thee into their hand, and they shall throw down [x] thine eminent place, and shall break down thy high places: [y] they shall strip thee also of thy clothes, and shall take [z] thy fair jewels, and leave thee naked and bare.

40 [a] They shall also bring up a company against thee, [b] and they shall stone thee with stones, and thrust thee through with their swords.

41 And they shall [c] burn thine houses with fire, and [d] execute judgments upon thee in the sight of many women: and I will cause thee to [e] cease from playing the harlot, and thou also shalt give no hire any more.

42 So [f] will I make my fury toward thee to rest, and my jealousy shall depart from thee, and I will be quiet, and will be no more angry.

43 Because [g] thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth, but hast fretted me in all these things; behold, therefore, [h] I also will recompense thy way upon thine head, saith the Lord GOD: and thou shalt not commit this lewdness above all thine abominations.

44 Behold, every one that useth proverbs shall use this proverb against thee, saying, As is the mother, so is her daughter.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

45 Thou art thy mother's daughter, that loathed her husband and her children; and thou art the sister of thy sisters, which loathed their husbands and their children: [i] your mother was a Hittite, and your father an Amorite.

46 And thine elder sister is Samaria, she and her daughters that dwell at thy left hand: and [k] thy [l] younger sister, that dwelleth at thy right hand, is Sodom and her daughters.

47 Yet hast thou not walked after their ways, nor done after their abominations: but [m] as if that were a very little thing, [n] thou wast corrupted more than they in all thy ways.

48 As I live, saith the Lord GOD, [o] Sodom thy sister hath not done, she nor her daughters, as thou hast done, thou and thy daughters.

49 Behold, this was the iniquity of thy sister Sodom, pride, [p] fulness of bread, and abundance of idleness, was in her and in her daughters, neither did she strengthen the hand of the poor and needy.

50 And they were haughty, and [q] committed abomination before me: therefore [r] I took them away, as I saw good.

51 Neither hath Samaria committed half of thy sins; but thou hast multiplied thine abo-

[u] Heb. with judgments of.——[v] Lev. xx. 10; Deut. xxii. 22; chap. xxiii. 45.——[w] Gen. ix. 6; Exod. xxi. 12; see ver. 20, 36. [x] Ver. 24, 31.——[y] Chap. xxiii. 26; Hos. ii. 3.——[z] Heb. instruments of thine ornament.——[a] Chap. xxiii. 10, 47.——[b] John viii. 5, 7.——[c] Deut. xiii. 16; 2 Kings xxv. 9; Jer. xxxix. 8; lii. 13. [d] Chap. v. 8; xxiii. 10, 48.——[e] Chap. xxiii. 27.

[f] Chap. v. 13.——[g] Ver. 22; Psa. lxxviii. 42.——[h] Chap. ix. 10, 11, 21; xxii. 31.——[i] Ver. 3.——[k] Deut. xxxii. 32; Isa. i. 10. [l] Heb. lesser than thou.——[m] Or, that was loathed as a small thing. [n] 2 Kings xxi. 9; chap. v. 6, 7; ver. 48, 51.——[o] Matt. x. 15; xi. 24.——[p] Gen. xiii. 10.——[q] Gen. xiii. 13; xviii. 30; xix. 5. [r] Gen. xix. 24.

real virus which is engendered by promiscuous connexions?

Verse 39. They shall strip thee also of thy clothes—thy fair jewels] Alluding to a lot common enough to prostitutes, their maintainers in the end stripping them of all they had given them.

Verse 42. I will be quiet, and will be no more angry.] I will completely abandon thee; have nothing more to do with thee; think no more of thee. When God in judgment ceases to reprehend, this is the severest judgment.

Verse 43. Thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth] Thy former low beginning, when God made thee a people, who wast no people. He who maintains not a proper recollection of past mercies is not likely to abide steadfast in the faith. Ingratitude to God is the commencement, if not the parent, of many crimes.

Verse 44. As is the mother, so is her daughter.] כאמה בתה keimmah bittah, "As the mother, her daughter." As is the cause, so is the effect. As is the breeding, so is the practice. A silken purse cannot be made out of a swine's ear. What is bred in the bone seldom comes out of the flesh. All such proverbs show the necessity of early holy precepts, supported by suitable example.

Verse 46. Thine elder sister is Samaria, she and her daughters that dwell at thy left] It is supposed that the prophet by Sodom in this place means the Israelites that dwelt beyond Jordan, in the land of the Moabites and Ammonites; or rather of the Moabites and Ammonites themselves. Literally, Sodom could not be called the younger sister of Jerusalem, as it existed before Jerusalem had a name. In looking east from Jerusalem, Samaria was on the left, and Sodom on the right hand; that is, the first was on the north, the second on the south of Jerusalem.

Verse 49. This was the iniquity of thy sister Sodom] If we are to take this place literally, Sodom was guilty of other crimes besides that for which she appears to have been especially punished; in addition to her unnatural crime, she is charged with pride, luxury, idle- minations more than they, and [s] hast justified thy sisters in all thine abominations which thou hast done.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

52 Thou also, which hast judged thy sisters, bear thine own shame for thy sins that thou hast committed more abominable than they: they are more righteous than thou: yea, be thou confounded also, and bear thy shame, in that thou hast justified thy sisters.

53 [t] When I shall bring again their captivity, [u] the captivity of Sodom and her daughters, and the captivity of Samaria and her daughters, then will I bring again the captivity of thy captives in the midst of them.

54 That thou mayest bear thine own shame, and mayest be confounded in all that thou hast done, in that thou art [v] a comfort unto them.

55 When thy sisters, Sodom and her daughters, shall return to their former estate, and Samaria and her daughters shall return to their former estate, then thou and thy daughters shall return to your former estate.

56 For thy sister Sodom was not [w] mentioned by thy mouth in the day of thy [x] pride, 57 Before thy wickedness was discovered, as at the time of thy [y] reproach of the daughters of [z] Syria, and all that are round about her, [a] the daughters of the Philistines, which [b] despise thee round about.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

58 [c] Thou hast [d] borne thy lewdness and thine abominations, saith the LORD.

59 For thus saith the Lord GOD; I will even deal with thee as thou hast done, which hast [e] despised [f] the oath in breaking the covenant.

60 Nevertheless I will [g] remember my covenant with thee in the days of thy youth, and I will establish unto thee [h] an everlasting covenant.

61 Then [i] thou shalt remember thy ways, and be ashamed, when thou shalt receive thy sisters, thine elder and thy younger: and I will give them unto thee for [k] daughters, [l] but not by thy covenant.

62 [m] And I will establish my covenant with thee; and thou shalt know that I am the LORD:

63 That thou mayest [n] remember, and be confounded, [o] and never open thy mouth any more because of thy shame, when I am pacified toward thee for all that thou hast done, saith the Lord GOD.

---

[s] Jer. iii. 11; Matt. xii. 41, 42.——[t] See Isa. i. 9; ver. 60, 61. [u] Jer. xx. 16.——[v] Chap. xiv. 22, 23.——[w] Heb. for a report, or hearing.——[x] Heb. prides, or excellencies.——[y] 2 Kings xvi. 5; 2 Chron. xxviii. 18; Isa. vii. 1; xiv. 28.——[z] Heb. Aram. [a] Ver. 27.——[b] Or, spoil.

[c] Chap. xxiii. 49.——[d] Heb. borne them.——[e] Chap. xvii. 13, 16.——[f] Deut. xxix. 12, 14.——[g] Psa. cvi. 45.——[h] Jer. xxxii. 40; l. 5.——[i] Chap. xx. 43; xxxvi. 31.——[k] Isa. liv. 1; lx. 4; Gal. iv. 26, &c.——[l] Jer. xxxi. 31, &c.——[m] Hos. ii. 19, 20. [n] Ver. 61.——[o] Rom. iii. 19.

---

ness, and uncharitableness; and these were sufficient to sink any city to the bottomless pit.

Verse 52. They are more righteous than thou] הצדקנה מכך tetsuddaknah mimmech, "They shall be justified more than thou." They are less guilty in the sight of God, for their crimes were not accompanied with so many aggravations. This phrase casts light on Luke xviii. 14: "This man went down to his house justified rather than the other." Less blame in the sight of God was attached to him. He always had fewer advantages, and now he was a true penitent; while the other was boasting of what he had done, and what he had not done.

Verse 60. I will remember my covenant] That is, the covenant I made with Abraham in the day of thy youth, when in him thou didst begin to be a nation.

Verse 61. Thy sisters, thine elder and thy younger] The Gentiles, who were before the Jews were called, and after the Jews were cast off, are here termed the elder and younger sister. These were to be given to Jerusalem for daughters; the latter should be converted to God by the ministry of men who should spring out of the Jewish Church. The former, who were patriarchs, &c., profited by the Lamb who was slain from the foundation of the world. Among the latter the Gospel was preached, first by Christ and his apostles, and since by persons raised up from among themselves.

But not by thy covenant.] This was the ancient covenant, the conditions of which they broke, and the blessings of which they forfeited; but by that new covenant, or the renewal to the Gentiles of that covenant that was made originally with Abraham while he was a Gentile, promising that in his seed all the nations of the earth should be blessed; that covenant which respected the incarnation of Christ, and was ratified by the blood of his cross.

Verse 63. When I am pacified toward thee] This intimates that the Jews shall certainly share in the blessings of the Gospel covenant, and that they shall be restored to the favour and image of God. And when shall this be? Whenever they please. They might have enjoyed them eighteen hundred years ago; but they would not come, though all things were then ready. They may enjoy them now; but they still choose to shut their eyes against the light, and contradict and blaspheme. As they do not turn to the Lord, the veil still continues on their hearts. Let their elder brethren pray for them.

For a key to the principal metaphors in this chapter, the reader is referred to the note on the thirteenth verse, which, if he regard not, he will neither do justice to himself nor to the prophet. The whole chapter is a tissue of invective; sharp, cutting, and confounding; every where well sustained, in every respect richly merited; and in no case leaving any room to the delinquent for justification or response.

CHAPTER XVII.

This chapter begins with a new allegory or parable, 1–10; to which an explanation is immediately subjoined, 11–21. In the remaining verses the prophet, by a beautiful metophor, makes an easy and natural transition to the Messiah, and predicts the security, increasing prosperity, and ultimate universality of his kingdom, 22–24. From the beauty of its images, the elegance of its composition, the perspicuity of its language, the rich variety of its matter, and the easy transition from one part of the subject to another, this chapter forms one of the most beautiful and perfect pieces of its kind that can possibly be conceived in so small a compass; and then the unexpected change from objects that presented nothing to the view but gloom and horror, to a prospect of ineffable glory and beauty, has a most happy effect. Every lowering cloud is dispelled, and the fields again smile in the beams of midday. The traveller, who this moment trembled as he looked around for shelter, now proceeds on his way rejoicing.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

AND the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, put forth a riddle, and speak a parable unto the house of Israel;

3 And say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; [a] A great eagle with great wings, long-winged, full of feathers, which had [b] divers colours, came unto Lebanon, and [c] took the highest branch of the cedar;

4 He cropped off the top of his young twigs, and carried it into a land of traffic: he set it in a city of merchants.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

5 He took also of the seed of the land, and [d] planted it in [e] a fruitful field; he placed it by great waters, and set it [f] as a willow tree.

6 And it grew, and became a spreading vine [g] of low stature, whose branches turned toward him, and the roots thereof were under him: so it became a vine, and brought forth branches, and shot forth sprigs.

7 There was also another great eagle with

[a] See ver. 12, &c.——[b] Heb. embroidering.——[c] 2 Kings xxiv. 12.

[d] Heb. put it in a field of seed.——[e] Deut. viii. 7, 8, 9.——[f] Isa. xliv. 4.——[g] Ver. 14.

NOTES ON CHAP. XVII.

Verse 2. Son of man, put forth a riddle] Riddle, ꝑæðꝛel or ꝑæðelꝛ, Anglo-Saxon, from aꝑeaðan, to divine; a thing that must be curiously investigated and sifted, to find out the meaning; and hence, riddle, a sort of coarse sieve to clean corn, to separate coarse chaff and straws from the pure grain. An instrument formerly used for divination. This is not far removed from the Hebrew חידה chidah, from חוד chad, to penetrate; not that which penetrates the mind, but which we must penetrate to find out the sense.

Verse 3. A great eagle] Nebuchadnezzar. See Jer. xlviii. 40; xlix. 22; Dan. vii. 4. And see here, ver. 12, where it is so applied.

Great wings] Extensive empire.

Long-winged] Rapid in his conquests.

Full of feathers] Having multitudes of subjects.

Divers colours] People of various nations.

Came unto Lebanon] Came against Judea.

The highest branch] King Jehoiachin he took captive to Babylon.

The cedar] The Jewish state and king.

Verse 4. The top of his young twigs] The princes of Judah.

A land of traffic] Chaldea.

A city of merchants] Babylon; for which this city was the most celebrated of all the cities of the east. Its situation procured it innumerable advantages; its two rivers, the Tigris and Euphrates, and the Persian Gulf, gave it communication with the richest and the most distant nations.

Verse 5. The seed of the land] Zedekiah, brother of Jehoiachin.

Planted it in a fruitful field] Made him king of Judea in place of his brother.

Placed it by great waters] Put him under the protection of Babylon, situated on the confluence of the Tigris and Euphrates.

And set it as a willow tree] Made him dependent on this city of great waters, as the willow is on humidity.

Verse 6. A spreading vine of low stature] The Jewish state having then no height of dominion, it must abide under the wings or branches of the Chaldean king.

Whose branches turned toward him, and the roots —under him] Zedekiah was wholly dependent on Nebuchadnezzar, both for his elevation to the throne, and his support on it.

Verse 7. Another great eagle] Pharaoh-hophra, or Apries, king of Egypt.

With great wings] Extensive dominion.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

great wings and many feathers: and, behold, [h] this vine did bend her roots toward him, and shot forth her branches toward him, that he might water it by the furrows of her plantation.

8 It was planted in a good [i] soil by great waters, that it might bring forth branches, and that it might bear fruit, that it might be a goodly vine.

9 Say thou, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Shall it prosper? [k] shall he not pull up the roots thereof, and cut off the fruit thereof, that it wither? it shall wither in all the leaves of her spring, even without great power, or many people to pluck it up by the roots thereof.

10 Yea, behold, being planted, shall it prosper? [l] shall it not utterly wither, when the east wind toucheth it? it shall wither in the furrows where it grew.

11 Moreover the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

12 Say now to [m] the rebellious house, Know ye not what these things mean? tell them, Behold, [n] the king of Babylon is come to Jerusalem, and hath taken the king thereof, and the princes thereof, and led them with him to Babylon:

13 [o] And hath taken of the king's seed, and made a covenant with him, [p] and hath [q] taken an oath of him: he hath also taken the mighty of the land:

14 That the kingdom might be [r] base, that it might not lift itself up, [s] but that by keeping of his covenant it might stand.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

15 But [t] he rebelled against him in sending his ambassadors into Egypt, [u] that they might give him horses and much people. [v] Shall he prosper? shall he escape that doeth such things? or shall he break the covenant, and be delivered?

16 As I live, saith the Lord GOD, surely [w] in the place where the king dwelleth that made him king, whose oath he despised, and whose covenant he brake, even with him in the midst of Babylon he shall die.

17 [x] Neither shall Pharaoh with his mighty army and great company make for him in the war, [y] by casting up mounts, and building forts, to cut off many persons:

18 Seeing he despised the oath by breaking the covenant, when, lo, he had [z] given his hand, and hath done all these things, he shall not escape.

19 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; As I live, surely mine oath that he hath despised, and my covenant that he hath broken, even it will I recompense upon his own head.

20 And I will [a] spread my net upon him, and he shall be taken in my snare, and I will bring him to Babylon, and [b] will plead with him there for his trespass that he hath trespassed against me.

[h] Ver. 15.——[i] Heb. field.——[k] 2 Kings xxv. 7.——[l] Chap. xix. 12; Hos. xiii. 15.——[m] Chap. ii. 5; xii. 9.——[n] Ver. 3; 2 Kings xxiv. 11-16.——[o] 2 Kings xxiv. 17.——[p] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 13. [q] Heb. brought him to an oath.——[r] Ver. 6; chap. xxix. 14. [s] Heb. to keep his covenant, to stand to it.

[t] 2 Kings xxiv. 20; 2 Chron. xxxvi. 13.——[u] Deut. xvii. 16; Isa. xxxi. 1, 3; xxxvi. 6, 9.——[v] Ver. 9.——[w] Jer. xxxii. 5; xxxiv. 3; lii. 11; chap. xii. 13.——[x] Jer. xxxvii. 7.——[y] Jer. lii. 4; chap. iv. 2.——[z] 1 Chron. xxix. 24; Lam. v. 6.——[a] Chap. xii. 13; xxxii. 3.——[b] Chap. xx. 36.

And many feathers] Numerous subjects.

Did bend her roots] Looked to him for support in her intended rebellion against Nebuchadnezzar.

Verse 8. It was planted in a good soil] Though he depended on Babylon, he lived and reigned as Nebuchadnezzar's vicegerent in the land of Judea.

Verse 9. Shall it prosper?] Shall Zedekiah succeed in casting off the yoke of the king of Babylon, to whom he had sworn fealty?

Shall he not pull up the roots] Nebuchadnezzar will come and dethrone him.

And cut off the fruit] The children of Zedekiah.

The leaves] All the nobles; all shall perish with Zedekiah.

Verse 10. Shall—utterly wither] The regal government shall be no more restored. Zedekiah shall be the last king, and the monarchy shall finally terminate with him.

Verse 12. Know ye not what these things mean?] They are explained in this and the following verses.

Verse 14. That the kingdom might be base] Have no political consequence; and at last sink into a miserable government under Gedaliah.

Verse 15. Sending his ambassadors into Egypt] Zedekiah must have sent his ambassadors into Egypt, between the sixth month of his sixth year, and the fifth month of his seventh year. Compare chap. viii. 1, with chap. xx. 1.—See Newcome.

Verse 16. In the midst of Babylon he shall die.] His eyes were put out; he was carried to Babylon, and never returned.

Verse 18. Seeing he despised the oath] This God particularly resents. He had bound himself by oath, in the presence of Jehovah, to be faithful to the covenant that he made with Nebuchadnezzar, and he took the first opportunity to break it; therefore he shall not escape.

Verse 20. I will spread my net upon him] See the note on chap. xii. 13.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

21 And [c] all his fugitives with all his bands shall fall by the sword, and they that remain shall be scattered toward all winds: and ye shall know that I the LORD have spoken it.

22 Thus saith the Lord GOD; I will also take of the highest [d] branch of the high cedar, and will set it; I will crop off from the top of his young twigs [e] a tender one, and will [f] plant it upon a high mountain and eminent:

23 [g] In the mountain of the height of Israel will I plant it: and it shall bring forth boughs, and bear fruit, and be a goodly cedar: and [h] under it shall dwell all fowl of every wing; in the shadow of the branches thereof shall they dwell.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

24 And all the trees of the field shall know that I the LORD [i] have brought down the high tree, have exalted the low tree, have dried up the green tree, and have made the dry tree to flourish: [k] I the LORD have spoken and have done it.

[c] Chap. xii. 14.——[d] Isa. xi. 1; Jer. xxiii. 5; Zech. iii. 8. [e] Isa. liii. 2.——[f] Psa. ii. 6.

[g] Isa. ii. 2, 3; chap. xx. 40; Mic. iv. 1.——[h] See chap. xxxi. 6, Dan. iv. 12.——[i] Luke i. 52.——[k] Chap. xxii. 14; xxiv. 14.

Verse 21. All his fugitives] All who attempted to escape with him, and all that ran to Egypt, &c., shall fall by the sword.

Verse 22. I will also take of the highest branch of the high cedar] I will raise up another monarchy, which shall come in the line of David, namely, the Messiah; who shall appear as a tender plant, as to his incarnation; but he shall be high and eminent; his Church, the royal city, the highest and purest ever seen on the face of the earth.

Verse 23. In the mountain of the height of Israel] He shall make his appearance at the temple, and found his Church at Jerusalem.

Shall bring forth boughs] Apostles, evangelists, and their successors in the Gospel ministry.

And bear fruit] Multitudes of souls shall be converted by their preaching.

And under it shall dwell all fowl of every wing] All the nations of the earth shall receive his Gospel.

In the shadow of the branches thereof shall they dwell.] Trust in him alone for salvation, and be saved in their trusting.

Verse 24. All the trees of the field shall know] All the people of Israel and of Chaldea.

I the Lord have brought down the high tree] Have dethroned Jehoiachin.

Have exalted the low tree] Put Zedekiah, brother of Jehoiachin, in his place.

Have dried up the green tree] Zedekiah, who had numerous children, but who were all slain before his eyes at Riblah.

And have made the dry tree to flourish] Have raised up a rod out of the stem of Jesse, the family of David being then apparently dried up and extinct. This was the promised Messiah, of the increase and government of whose kingdom and peace there shall be no end; upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order and establish it with judgment and with justice, from henceforth, even for ever. THE ZEAL OF THE LORD OF HOSTS WILL PERFORM THIS.

The high and green tree, says Newcome, refers to Nebuchadnezzar; the low and the dry tree, to the Jews.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Jews, in Ezekiel's time, complained of God's dealing hardly with them in punishing them for the sins of their forefathers, 1, 2; their temporal calamities having been long threatened as the consequence of the national guilt, (Jer. xv. 4, &c.;) and, from the general complexion of this chapter, it appears that the Jews so interpreted the second commandment of the Decalogue and other passages of like import, as if the sins of the forefathers were visited upon the children, independently of the moral conduct of the latter, not only in this world, but in that which is to come. To remove every foundation for such an unworthy idea of the Divine government, God assures them, with an oath, that he had no respect of persons, 3, 4; strongly intimating that the great mysteries in Providence, (mysterious only on account of the limited capacity of man,) are results of the most impartial administration of justice; and that this would be particularly manifested in the rewards and punishments of another life; when every ligament that at present connects societies and nations together shall be dissolved, and each person receive according to his work, and bear his own burden. This is illustrated by a variety of examples: such as that of a just or righteous man, 5–9; his wicked son, 10–13; and again the just son of this wicked person, 14–20. Then a wicked man repenting, and finding mercy, whose former wickedness shall be no impediment to his salvation, 21–23; and a righteous man revolting, and dying in his sins, whose former righteousness shall be of no avail, 24. The conduct of the Divine Providence is then vindicated, 25–29; and all persons, without any exception, most earnestly exhorted to repentance, 30, 31; because the Lord hath no pleasure in the death of the sinner, 32. As the whole of this chapter is taken up with the illustration of a doctrine nearly connected with the comfort of man, and the honour of the Divine government, the prophet, with great propriety, lays aside his usual mode of figure and allegory, and treats his subject with the utmost plainness and perspicuity.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

THE word of the LORD came unto me again, saying,

2 What mean ye, that ye use this proverb concerning the land of Israel, saying, The [a] fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge?

3 As I live, saith the Lord GOD, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel.

4 Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine: [b] the soul that sinneth, it shall die.

5 But if a man be just, and do [c] that which is lawful and right,

6 [d] And hath not eaten upon the mountains, neither hath lifted up his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel, neither hath [e] defiled his neighbour's wife, neither hath come near to a [f] menstruous woman,

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

7 And hath not [g] oppressed any, but hath restored to the debtor his [h] pledge, hath spoiled none by violence, hath [i] given his bread to the hungry, and hath covered the naked with a garment;

8 He that hath not given forth upon [k] usury, neither hath taken any increase, that hath withdrawn his hand from iniquity, [l] hath executed true judgment between man and man,

[a] Jer. xxxi. 29; Lam. v. 7.——[b] Ver. 20; Rom. vi. 23.——[c] Heb. judgment and justice.——[d] Chap. xxii. 9.——[e] Lev. xviii. 20; xx. 10.——[f] Lev. xviii. 19; xx. 18.——[g] Exod. xxii. 21; Lev. xix. 15; xxv. 14.

[h] Exod. xxii. 26; Deut. xxiv. 12, 13.——[i] Deut. xv. 7, 8; Isa. lviii. 7; Matt. xxv. 35, 36.——[k] Exod. xxii. 25; Lev. xxv. 36, 37; Deut. xxiii. 19; Neh. v. 7; Psa. xv. 5.——[l] Deut. i. 16; Zech. viii. 16.

NOTES ON CHAP. XVIII.

Verse 2. The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge?] We have seen this proverb already, Jer. xxxi. 29, &c., and have considered its general meaning. But the subject is here proposed in greater detail, with a variety of circumstances, to adapt it to all those cases to which it should apply. It refers simply to these questions: How far can the moral evil of the parent be extended to his offspring? And, Are the faults and evil propensities of the parents, not only transferred to the children, but punished in them? Do parents transfer their evil nature, and are their children punished for their offences?

Verse 3. As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel.] I will now, by this present declaration, settle this question for ever. And hence God has sworn to what follows. After this, who will dare to doubt the judgment pronounced?

Verse 4. All souls are mine] Equally so; I am the Father of the spirits of all flesh, and shall deal impartially with the whole.

The soul that sinneth, it shall die.] None shall die for another's crimes; none shall be saved by another's righteousness. Here is the general judgment relative to the righteousness and unrighteousness of men, and the influence of one man's state on that of another; particularly in respect to their moral conduct.

Verse 5. If a man be just, and do that which is lawful and right] If he be just or holy within, and do what is according to law and equity. What is meant by this, is immediately specified.

Verse 6. 1. Hath not eaten upon the mountains] Idolatrous worship was generally performed on mountains and hills; and those who offered sacrifices feasted the sacrifice, and thus held communion with the idol.

2. Neither hath lifted up his eyes to the idols] Has paid them no religious adoration; has trusted in them for nothing, and has not made prayer nor supplication before them.

3. Neither hath defiled his neighbour's wife] Has had no adulterous connexion with any woman; to which idolatrous feasts and worship particularly led.

4. Neither hath come nigh to a menstruous woman] Has abstained from the use of the marriage-bed during the periodical indisposition of his wife. This was absolutely forbidden by the law; and both the man and the woman who disobeyed the command were to be put to death, Lev. xx. 18. For which Calmet gives this reason: "It has been believed, and experience confirms it, that the children conceived at such times are either leprous, or monsters, or deformed by their diminutiveness, or by the disproportion of their members." There are other reasons for this law, should those of the learned commentator be found invalid.

Verse 7. 5. Hath not oppressed any] Has not used his power or influence to oppress, pain, or injure another.

6. Hath restored to the debtor his pledge] Has carefully surrendered the pawn or pledge when its owner came to redeem it. As the pledge is generally of more worth than that for which it is pledged, an unprincipled man will make some pretence to keep it; which is highly abominable in the sight of God.

7. Hath spoiled none by violence] Either by robbery or personal insult. For a man may be spoiled both ways.

8. Hath given his bread to the hungry] Has been kind-hearted and charitable; especially to them that are in the deepest want.

9. Hath covered the naked with a garment] Has divided both his bread and his clothing with the necessitous. These are two branches of the same root.

Verse 8. 10. Hath not given forth upon usury] בנשך לא יתן beneshech lo yitten. נשך nasach signifies

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

9 Hath walked in my statutes, and hath kept my judgments, to deal truly; he is just, he shall surely [m] live, saith the Lord GOD.

10 If he beget a son that is a [n] robber, [o] a shedder of blood, and [p] that doeth the like to any one of these things,

11 And that doeth not any of those duties, but even hath eaten upon the mountains, and defiled his neighbour's wife,

12 Hath oppressed the poor and needy, hath spoiled by violence, hath not restored the pledge, and hath lifted up his eyes to the idols, hath [q] committed abomination,

13 Hath given forth upon usury, and hath taken increase: shall he then live? he shall not live: he hath done all these abominations; he shall surely die; [r] his [s] blood shall be upon him.

14 Now, lo, if he beget a son, that seeth all his father's sins which he hath done, and considereth, and doeth not such like,

15 [t] That hath not eaten upon the mountains, neither hath lifted up his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel, hath not defiled his neighbour's wife,

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

16 Neither hath oppressed any, [u] hath not withholden the pledge, neither hath spoiled by violence, but hath given his bread to the hungry, and hath covered the naked with a garment,

17 That hath taken off his hand from the poor, that hath not received usury nor increase, hath executed my judgments, hath walked in my statutes; he shall not die for the iniquity of his father, he shall surely live.

18 As for his father, because he cruelly oppressed, spoiled his brother by violence, and did that which is not good among his people, lo, even [v] he shall die in his iniquity.

19 Yet say ye, Why? [w] doth not the son bear the iniquity of the father? When the son hath done that which is lawful and right, and hath kept all my statutes, and hath done them, he shall surely live.

20 [x] The soul that sinneth, it shall die. [y] The son shall not bear the iniquity of the father, neither shall the father bear the iniquity

[m] Chap. xx. 11; Amos v. 4.——[n] Or, breaker up of a house. [o] Gen. ix. 6; Exod. xxi. 12; Num. xxxv. 31.——[p] Or, that doeth to his brother besides any of these.——[q] Chap. viii. 6, 17.——[r] Lev. xx. 9, 11, 12, 13, 16, 27; chap. iii. 18; xxxiii. 4; Acts xviii. 6. [s] Heb. bloods.

[t] Ver. 6, &c.——[u] Heb. hath not pledged the pledge, or taken to pledge.——[v] Chap. iii. 18.——[w] Exod. xx. 5; Deut. v. 9; 2 Kings xxiii. 26; xxiv. 3, 4.——[x] Ver. 4.——[y] Deut. xxiv. 16; 2 Kings xiv. 6; 2 Chronicles xxv. 4; Jeremiah xxxi. 29, 30.

to bite; usury is properly so termed, because it bites into and devours the principal. Usury signifies, with us, exacting unlawful interest for money; and taking the advantage of a man's necessities to advance him cash on exorbitant profit. This bites the receiver in his property, and the lender in his salvation.

11. Neither hath taken any increase] In lending has not required more than was lent; and has not taken that product of the cash lent, which was more than the value for its use. This may be a part of the tenth article.

12. That hath withdrawn his hand from iniquity] Never associates with those who act contrary to justice and equity; his hand or influence being never found among evil workers.

13. Hath executed true judgment between man and man] Being neither swayed by prejudice, fear, nor favour.

These thirteen points concern his social and civil relations.

Verse 9. Hath walked in my statutes] Not only acknowledging them to be right, but acting according to them. Especially in every thing that relates to my worship, changing nothing, neglecting nothing.

And hath kept my judgments, to deal truly] Has attended to my Divine direction, both with respect to things forbidden, and things commanded. These concern men in their religious conduct.

He is just] צדיק הוא tsaddik hu. He is a righteous man; he has given to all their due; he has abstained from every appearance of evil, and done that which was lawful and right in the sight of God.

He shall surely live] He has lived to me, and he shall live with me.

Verse 10. If he beget a son] Who is the reverse of the above righteous character, according to the thirteen articles already specified and explained.

Verse 13. Shall he then live?] Because his father was a righteous man, shall the father's holiness be imputed to him? No!

He shall surely die; his blood shall be upon him.] He shall suffer for his own crimes.

Verse 14. Now, lo, if he beget a son that seeth all his father's sins—and considereth] Lays to heart the evil of his father's life, and the dreadful consequences of a life of rebellion against God.

And doeth not such like] Is quite a different man in moral feeling and character; and acts up to the thirteen points already laid down.

Verse 17. He shall not die for the iniquity of his father] He shall no more be affected by his father's crimes, than his father was benefited by his grandfather's righteousness.

Verse 20. The soul that sinneth, it shall die.] Hitherto we have had to do with the simple cases of the righteous and the wicked; of him who lived and died a holy man, and of him who lived and died a wicked man. But there are two cases behind: 1. That of the son: [z] the righteousness of the righteous shall be upon him, [a] and the wickedness of the wicked shall be upon him.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

21 But [b] if the wicked will turn from all his sins that he hath committed, and keep all my statutes, and do that which is lawful and right, he shall surely live, he shall not die.

22 [c] All his transgressions that he hath committed, they shall not be mentioned unto him: in his righteousness that he hath done he shall live.

23 [d] Have I any pleasure at all that the wicked should die? saith the Lord GOD: and not that he should return from his ways, and live?

24 But [e] when the righteous turneth away from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, and doeth according to all the abominations that the wicked man doeth, shall he live? [f] All his righteousness that he hath done shall not be mentioned: in his trespass that he hath trespassed, and in his sin that he hath sinned, in them shall he die.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

25 Yet ye say, [g] The way of the LORD is not equal. Hear now, O house of Israel; Is not my way equal? are not your ways unequal?

26 [h] When a righteous man turneth away from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, and dieth in them; for his iniquity that he hath done shall he die.

27 Again, [i] when the wicked man turneth away from his wickedness that he hath committed, and doeth that which is lawful and right, he shall save his soul alive.

28 Because he [k] considereth, and turneth away from all his transgressions that he hath committed, he shall surely live, he shall not die.

29 [l] Yet saith the house of Israel, The way of the LORD is not equal. O house of Israel, are not my ways equal? are not your ways unequal?

30 [m] Therefore I will judge you, O house of [z] Isa. iii. 10, 11. — [a] Rom. ii. 9. — [b] Ver. 27; chap. xxxiii. 12, 19. — [c] Chap. xxxiii. 16. — [d] Ver. 32; chap. xxxiii. 11; 1 Tim. ii. 4; 2 Pet. iii. 9.

[e] Chap. iii. 20; xxxiii. 12, 13, 18. — [f] 2 Pet. ii. 20. — [g] Ver. 29; chap. xxxiii. 17, 20. — [h] Ver. 24. — [i] Ver. 21. — [k] Ver. 14. [l] Ver. 25. — [m] Chap. vii. 3; xxxiii. 20.

of the wicked man, who repents and turns to God. 2. That of the righteous man, who backslides, and does not return to God by repentance. On both these cases God decides thus:—

Verse 21. But if the wicked will turn from all his sins] And afterwards walk according to the character of the righteous already specified; shall he find mercy, and be for ever saved! YES.

Verse 22. All his transgressions] Shall be so completely forgiven by God's mercy, that they shall not be even mentioned to him; and if he live and die in this recovered state, he shall live with God to all eternity. And why! Hear the reason:—

Verse 23. Have I any pleasure at all that the wicked should die?] No! That is foreign to him whose name is love, and whose nature is mercy. On the contrary he "wills that he should return from his evil ways and live."

And if God can have no pleasure in the death of the wicked, he cannot have made a decree to abandon him to the evil of his nature, and then damn him for what he could not avoid: for as God can do nothing with which he is not pleased, so he can decree nothing with which he is not pleased. But he is "not pleased with the death of a sinner;" therefore he cannot have made a decree to bring him to this death.

Verse 24. When the righteous turneth away from his righteousness] Here is the second case. Can a man who was once holy and pure, fall away so as to perish everlastingly! YES. For God says, "If he turn away from his righteousness;" not his self-righteousness, the gloss of theologians: for God never speaks of turning away from that, for, in his eyes, that is a nonentity. There is no righteousness or holiness but what himself infuses into the soul of man, and as to self-righteousness, i. e., a man's supposing himself to be righteous when he has not the life of God in his soul, it is the delusion of a dark and hardened heart; therefore it is the real righteous principle and righteous practice that God speaks of here. And he tells us, that a man may so "turn away from this," and so "commit iniquity," and "act as the wicked man," that his righteousness shall be no more mentioned to his account, than the sins of the penitent backslider should be mentioned to his condemnation; and "in the sin that he," this once righteous man, "hath sinned, and in the trespass that he hath trespassed, in them shall he die." O, how awful a termination of a life once distinguished for righteousness and true holiness! So then, God himself informs us that a righteous man may not only fall foully, but fall finally. But to such righteous persons the devil will ever preach, "Ye shall not surely die; ye shall be as God." Touch, taste, and handle; ye cannot ultimately fall. Thus we find, by the manner of treating these two cases, that God's way is equal, ver. 25; just, merciful, and impartial. And to prove this, he sums up his conduct in the above cases, in the following verses, 26, 27, 28, 29. And then, that the "wicked may not die in his sins," and that the "backslider may return and find mercy," he thus exhorts:—

Verse 30. Repent, and turn yourselves from all your transgressions] There is still life; still a God that has no pleasure in the death of a sinner, one who is ever ready to give his Holy Spirit to all them that ask him; therefore "repent and turn, so iniquity shall not be your ruin."

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

Israel, every one according to his ways, saith the Lord GOD. [n] Repent, and turn [o] yourselves from all your transgressions; so iniquity shall not be your ruin.

31 [p] Cast away from you all your transgressions, whereby ye have transgressed; and make you a [q] new heart and a new spirit: for why will ye die, O house of Israel?

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

32 For [r] I have no pleasure in the death of him that dieth, saith the Lord GOD: wherefore turn [s] yourselves, and live ye.

[n] Matt. iii. 2; Rev. ii. 5.——[o] Or, others.——[p] Eph. iv. 22, 23. [q] Jer. xxxii. 39; chap. xi. 19; xxxvi. 26.

[r] Lam. iii. 33; ver. 23; chap. xxxiii. 11; 2 Pet. iii. 9.——[s] Or, others.

Verse 31. Cast away] With a holy violence, dash away every transgression and incentive to it.

Make you a new heart] Call upon God for it, and he will give it: for as sure as you earnestly call on God through Christ to save you, so surely you shall be saved; and the effect will so speedily follow, that God is pleased to attribute that in some sort to yourselves, which is done by his grace alone; because ye earnestly call upon him for it, come in the right way to receive it, and are determined never to rest till you have it.

For why will ye die] Why should you go to hell while the kingdom of God is open to receive you? Why should you be the devil's slaves, when ye may be Christ's freemen? WHY WILL YE DIE? Every word is emphatic. Why—show God or man one reason. Will—obstinacy alone,—a determination not to be saved, or a voluntary listlessness about salvation,—can prevent you. Ye—children of so many mercies, fed and supported by a kind God all your life; ye, who are redeemed by the blood of Jesus Christ; ye, who have made many promises to give up yourselves to God; ye, who have been dedicated to the ever-blessed Trinity, and promised to renounce the devil and all his works, the pomps and vanities of this wicked world, and all the sinful lusts of the flesh; why will YE die? Die!—what is this? A separation from God and the glory of his power for ever! Die!—forfeiting all the purposes for which your immortal souls were made! Die—to know what the worm is that never dieth, and what that fire is which is never quenched! Why will ye die?

Verse 32. For I have no pleasure] God repeats what he had so solemnly declared before. Can ye doubt his sincerity? his ability? his willingness? the efficacy of the blood of his covenant?

Wherefore turn yourselves, and live ye.] Reader, now give God thy heart.

Though every man comes into the world with a fallen nature—a soul infected with sin, yet no man is damned on that account. He who refuses that grace which pardons sin and heals infected nature, who permits the evil principle to break out into transgression, and continues and dies in his iniquity and sin, and will not come unto Christ that he may have life; he, and he only, goes to perdition. Nor will the righteousness of a parent or relation help his sinful soul: no man can have more grace than is necessary to save himself; and none can have that, who does not receive it through Christ Jesus. It is the mercy of God in Christ which renders the salvation of a sinner possible; and it is that mercy alone which can heal the backslider. The atoning blood blots out all that is past; the same blood cleanses from all unrighteousness. Who believes so as to apply for this redemption? Who properly thanks God for having provided such a Saviour?

CHAPTER XIX.

This chapter contains two beautiful examples of the parabolic kind of writing; the one lamenting the sad catastrophe of Jehoahaz and Jehoiakim, 1–9, and the other describing the desolation and captivity of the whole people, 10–14. In the first parable, the lioness is Jerusalem. The first of the young lions is Jehoahaz, deposed by the king of Egypt; and the second lion is Jehoiakim, whose rebellion drew on himself the vengeance of the king of Babylon. In the second parable the vine is the Jewish nation, which long prospered, its land being fertile, its princes powerful, and its people flourishing; but the judgments of God, in consequence of their guilt, had now destroyed a great part of the people, and doomed the rest to captivity.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

MOREOVER [a] take thou up a lamentation for the princes of Israel,

2 And say, What is thy mother? A lioness: she lay down among lions, she nourished her whelps among young lions.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

3 And she brought up one of

[a] Chap. xxvi. 17; xxvii. 2.

NOTES ON CHAP. XIX.

Verse 1. Moreover take thou up a lamentation] Declare what is the great subject of sorrow in Israel. Compose a funeral dirge. Show the melancholy fate of the kings who proceeded from Josiah. The prophet deplores the misfortune of Jehoahaz and Jehoia- her whelps: [b] it became a young lion, and it learned to catch the prey; it devoured men.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

4 The nations also heard of him; he was taken in their pit, and they brought him with chains unto the land of [c] Egypt.

5 Now when she saw that she had waited, and her hope was lost, then she [d] took another of her whelps, and made him a young lion.

6 [e] And he went up and down among the lions, [f] he became a young lion, and learned to catch the prey, and devoured men.

7 And he knew [g] their desolate palaces, and he laid waste their cities; and the land was desolate, and the fulness thereof, by the noise of his roaring.

8 [h] Then the nations set against him on every side from the provinces, and spread their net over him: [i] he was taken in their pit.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

9 [k] And they put him in ward [l] in chains, and brought him to the king of Babylon: they brought him into holds, that his voice should no more be heard upon [m] the mountains of Israel.

10 Thy mother is [n] like a vine [o] in thy blood, planted by the waters: she was [p] fruitful and full of branches by reason of many waters.

11 And she had strong rods for the sceptres of them that bare rule, and her [q] stature was exalted among the thick branches, and she

[b] Ver. 6; 2 Kings xxiii. 31, 32.——[c] 2 Kings xxiii. 33; 2 Chron. xxxvi. 4; Jer. xxii. 11, 12.——[d] 2 Kings xxiii. 34.——[e] Jer. xxiii. 13–17.——[f] Ver. 3.——[g] Or, their widows.——[h] 2 Kings xxiv. 2. [i] Ver. 4.

[k] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 6; Jer. xxii. 18.——[l] Or, in hooks.——[m] Ezek. vi. 2.——[n] Chap. xvii. 6.——[o] Or, in thy quietness, or in thy likeness.——[p] Deut. viii. 7, 8, 9.——[q] So chap. xxxi. 3; Dan. iv. 11.

kim, under the figure of two lion whelps, which were taken by hunters, and confined in cages. Next he shows the desolation of Jerusalem under Zedekiah, which he compares to a beautiful vine pulled up by the roots, withered, and at last burned. Calmet justly observes, that the style of this song is beautiful, and the allegory well supported throughout.

Verse 2. What is thy mother? A lioness] Judea may here be the mother; the lioness, Jerusalem. Her lying down among lions, her having confederacy with the neighbouring kings; for lion here means king.

Verse 3. She brought up one of her whelps] Jehoahaz, son of Josiah, whose father was conquered and slain by Pharaoh-necho, king of Egypt.

It learned to catch the prey] His reign was a reign of oppression and cruelty. He made his subjects his prey, and devoured their substance.

Verse 4. The nations also heard of him] The king of Egypt, whose subjects were of divers nations, marched against Jerusalem, took Jehoahaz prisoner, and brought him to Egypt. Thus—

He was taken in their pit] Here is an allusion to those trap-pits digged in forests, into which the wild beasts fall, when the huntsmen, surrounding a given portion of the forest, drive the beasts in; by degrees narrowing the inclosure, till the animals come to the place where the pits are, which, being lightly covered over with branches and turf, are not perceived, and the beasts tread on them and fall in. Jehoahaz reigned only three months before he was dethroned by the king of Egypt, against whom it is apparent some craft was used, here signified by the pit, into which he fell.

Verse 5. When she saw that she had waited] Being very weak, the Jews found that they could not resist with any hope of success; so the king of Egypt was permitted to do as he pleased.

She took another of her whelps] Jehoiakim.

And made him a young lion.] King of Judea.

Verse 6. And he went up and down among the lions] He became a perfect heathen, and made Judea as idolatrous as any of the surrounding nations. He reigned eleven years, a monster of iniquity, 2 Kings xxiii. 30, &c.

Verse 8. The nations set against him] The Chaldeans, Syrians, Moabites, and Ammonites, and the king of Babylon—king of many nations.

He was taken] The city was taken by Nebuchadnezzar; and Jehoiakim was taken prisoner, and sent in chains to Babylon.

Verse 9. That his voice should no more be heard] He continued in prison many years, till the reign of Evil-merodach, who set him at liberty, but never suffered him to return to the mountains of Israel. "The unhappy fate of these princes, mentioned ver. 4, 8, 9, is a just subject of lamentation."—Newcome.

Verse 10. Thy mother (Jerusalem) is like a vine in thy blood] Of this expression I know not what to make. Some think the meaning is, "A vine planted by the waters to produce the blood of the grape." See Deut. xxxii. 14. Others, for בדמך bedamecha, in thy blood, would read ברמון berimmon, in or at a pomegranate; like a vine planted by or beside a pomegranate-tree, by which it was to be supported. And so the Septuagint and Arabic appear to have read. Calmet reads כרמך carmecha, thy vineyard, instead of בדמך bedamecha, in thy blood. Here is no change but a ר resh for a ד daleth. This reading is supported by one of Kennicott's and one of De Rossi's MSS.: "Thy mother is like a vine in thy vineyard, planted by the waters." Though this is rather an unusual construction, yet it seems the best emendation. Of the textual reading no sense can be made. There is a corruption somewhere.

Full of branches] Many princes. See next verse.

Verse 11. She had strong rods] Zedekiah, and his many sons.

Her stature was exalted] Zedekiah grew proud of his numerous offspring and prosperity; and although he copied the example of Jehoiakim, yet he thought he might safely rebel against the king of Babylon.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

appeared in her height with the multitude of her branches.

12 But she was plucked up in fury, she was cast down to the ground, and the [r] east wind dried up her fruit: her strong rods were broken and withered; the fire consumed them.

13 And now she is planted in the wilderness, in a dry and thirsty ground.

A. M. 3410. B. C. 594. Ol. XLVI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 23.

14 [s] And fire is gone out of a rod of her branches, which hath devoured her fruit, so that she hath no strong rod to be a sceptre to rule. [t] This is a lamentation, and shall be for a lamentation.

[r] Chap. xvii. 10; Hos. xiii. 15.

[s] Judg. ix. 15; 2 Kings xxiv. 20; chap. xvii. 18.——[t] Lam. iv. 20.

Verse 12. But she was plucked up in fury] Jerusalem; taken after a violent and most destructive siege; Nebuchadnezzar being violently enraged against Zedekiah for breaking his oath to him.

She was cast down to the ground] Jerusalem was totally ruined, by being burned to the ground.

Her strong rods were broken] The children of Zedekiah were slain before his eyes, and after that his own eyes pulled out; and he was laden with chains, and carried into Babylon.

Verse 13. And now she is planted in the wilderness] In the land of Chaldea, whither the people have been carried captives: and which, compared with their own land, was to them a dreary wilderness.

Verse 14. Fire is gone out] A vindictive and murderous disposition has taken hold—

Of a rod of her branches] Ishmael, son of Nethaniah, who was of the blood-royal of Judah,—

Hath devoured her fruit] Hath assassinated Gedaliah, slain many people, and carried off others into the country of the Ammonites. But he was pursued by Jonathan, the son of Kareah, who slew many of his adherents, and delivered much of the people.

She hath no strong rod] None of the blood-royal of Judah left. And from that time not one of her own royal race ever sat upon the throne of Israel.

This is a lamentation] This is a most lamentable business.

And shall be for a lamentation.] These predictions shall be so punctually fulfilled, and the catastrophe shall be so complete, that it shall ever remain as a lamentation; as this state of Jerusalem shall never be restored. Even to the present day this, to a Jew, is a subject of mourning.

CHAPTER XX.

A deputation of the elders of Israel, as usual, in their distress, came to request Ezekiel to ask counsel of God, 1. In reply to this, God commands the prophet to put them in mind of their rebellion and idolatry: In Egypt, 2–9, in the wilderness, 10–27, and in Canaan, 28–32. Notwithstanding which the Lord most graciously promises to restore them to their own land, after they should be purged from their dross, 33–44. The five last verses of this chapter ought to begin the next, as they are connected with the subject of that chapter, being a prophecy against Jerusalem, which lay to the south of Chaldea, where the prophet then was, and which here and elsewhere is represented under the emblem of a forest doomed to be destroyed by fire, 45–49.

A. M. 3411. B. C. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 24.

AND it came to pass in the seventh year, in the fifth month, the tenth day of the month, that [a] certain of the elders of Israel came to inquire of the LORD, and sat before me.

2 Then came the word of the LORD unto me, saying,

3 Son of man, speak unto the elders of Israel, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Are ye come to inquire of me? As I live, saith the Lord GOD, [b] I will not be inquired of by you.

A. M. 3411. B. C. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 24.

4 Wilt thou [c] judge [d] them, son of man, wilt thou judge them? [e] cause them to know

[a] Chap. viii. 1; xiv. 1.——[b] Ver. 31; chap. xiv. 3.——[c] Or, plead for them.——[d] Chap. xxii. 2; xxiii. 36.——[e] Chap. xvi. 2.

NOTES ON CHAP. XX.

Verse 1. In the seventh year] Of the captivity of Jeconiah, (see chap. viii. 1,) and the seventh of the reign of Zedekiah.

The fifth month, the tenth day] That is, according to Abp. Usher, Monday, August 27, A. M. 3411.

Certain of the elders of Israel] What these came to inquire about is not known. They were doubtless hypocrites and deceivers, from the manner in which God commands the prophet to treat them. It seems to have been such a deputation of elders as those mentioned chap. viii. 1 and xiv. 1.

Verse 3. I will not be inquired of by you.] I will not hear you. I will have nothing to do with you.

Verse 4. Wilt thou judge them] If thou wilt enter into any discussion with them, show them the abomination of their fathers. The whole chapter is a consecutive history of the unfaithfulness, ingratitude, re-

A. M. 3411. B. C. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 24.

the abominations of their fathers:

5 And say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God; In the day when [f] I chose Israel, and [g] lifted up mine hand unto the seed of the house of Jacob, and made myself [h] known unto them in the land of Egypt, when I lifted up mine hand unto them, saying, [i] I am the Lord your God;

6 In the day that I lifted up mine hand unto them, [k] to bring them forth of the land of Egypt into a land that I had espied for them, flowing with milk and honey, [l] which is the glory of all lands:

7 Then said I unto them, [m] Cast ye away every man [n] the abominations of his eyes, and defile not yourselves with [o] the idols of Egypt: I am the Lord your God.

8 But they rebelled against me, and would not hearken unto me: they did not every man cast away the abominations of their eyes, neither did they forsake the idols of Egypt: then I said, I will [p] pour out my fury upon them, to accomplish my anger against them in the midst of the land of Egypt.

A. M. 3411. B. C. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 24.

9 [q] But I wrought for my name's sake, that it should not be polluted before the heathen, among whom they were, in whose sight I made myself known unto them, in bringing them forth out of the land of Egypt.

10 Wherefore I [r] caused them to go forth out of the land of Egypt, and brought them into the wilderness.

11 [s] And I gave them my statutes, and [t] showed them my judgments, [u] which if a man do, he shall even live in them.

12 Moreover also I gave them my [v] sabbaths,

[f] Exod. vi. 7; Deut. vii. 6.——[g] Or, sware; and so ver. 6, &c.; Exod. vi. 8.——[h] Exod. iii. 8; iv. 31; Deut. iv. 34.——[i] Exod. xx. 2.——[k] Exod. iii. 8, 17; Deut. viii. 7, 8, 9; Jer. xxxii. 22. [l] Psa. xlviii. 2; ver. 15; Dan. viii. 9; xi. 16, 41; Zech. vii. 14. [m] Chap. xviii. 31.——[n] 2 Chron. xv. 8.——[o] Lev. xvii. 7; xviii. 3; Deut. xxix. 16, 17, 18; Josh. xxiv. 14.

[p] Chap. vii. 8; ver. 13, 21.——[q] See Exod. xxxii. 12; Num. xiv. 13, &c.; Deut. ix. 28; ver. 14, 22; chap. xxxvi. 21, 22. [r] Exod. xiii. 18.——[s] Deut. iv. 8; Neh. ix. 13, 14; Psa. cxlvii. 19, 20.——[t] Heb. made them to know.——[u] Lev. xviii. 5; ver. 13, 21; Rom. x. 5; Gal. iii. 12.——[v] Exod. xx. 8; xxxi. 13, &c.; xxxv. 2; Deut. v. 12; Neh. ix. 14.

bellion, and idolatry of the Jews, from the earliest times to that day; and vindicates the sentence which God had pronounced against them, and which he was about to execute more fully in delivering them and the city into the hands of the Chaldeans.

Verse 5. I chose Israel] They did not choose me for their God, till I had chosen them to be my people.

I lifted up mine hand] I bound myself in a covenant to them to continue to be their God, if they should be faithful, and continue to be my people. Among the Jews the juror lifted up his right hand to heaven; which explains Psa. cxliv. 8: "Their right hand is a right hand of falsehood." This is a form used in England, Scotland, and Ireland.

Verse 6. To bring them forth of the land of Egypt] When they had been long in a very disgraceful and oppressive bondage.

A land that I had espied for them] God represents himself as having gone over different countries in order to find a comfortable residence for these people, whom he considered as his children.

Flowing with milk and honey] These were the characteristics of a happy and fruitful country, producing without intense labour all the necessaries and comforts of life. Of the happiest state and happiest place, a fine poet gives the following description:—

Ver erat æternum, placidique tepentibus auris
Mulcebant Zephyri natos sine semine flores.
Mox etiam fruges tellus inarata ferebat:
Nec renovatus ager gravidis canebat aristis.
Flumina jam lactis, jam flumina nectaris ibant:
Flavaque de viridi stillabant ilice mella.
Ovid's Metam. lib. i., 107.

On flowers unsown soft Zephyr spreads his wing,
And time itself was one eternal spring;
Ensuing years the yellow harvest crowned,
The bearded blade sprang from the untilled ground,
And laden, unrenewed, the fields were found.
Floods were with milk, and floods with nectar filled,
And honey from the sweating oaks distilled.

In the flourishing state of Judea every mountain was cultivated as well as the valleys. Among the very rocks the vines grew luxuriantly.

Verse 7. Cast ye away—the abominations] Put away all your idols; those incentives to idolatry that ye have looked on with delight.

Verse 8. They did not—cast away] They continued attached to the idolatry of Egypt; so that, had I consulted my justice only, I should have consumed them even in Egypt itself. This is a circumstance that Moses has not mentioned, namely, their provoking God by their idolatry, after he had sent Moses and Aaron to them in Egypt.

Verse 9. But I wrought for my name's sake] I bare with them and did not punish them, lest the heathen, who had known my promises made to them, might suppose that I had either broken them through some caprice, or was not able to fulfil them.

Verse 10. I caused them to go forth] Though greatly oppressed and degraded, they were not willing to leave their house of bondage. I was obliged to force them away.

Verse 11. I gave them my statutes] I showed them what they should do in order to be safe, comfortable, wise, and happy; and what they should avoid in order to be uninjured in body, mind, and possessions. Had they attended to these things, they should have lived by them. They would have been holy, healthy, and happy.

Verse 12. I gave them my Sabbaths] The religious to be a sign between me and them, that they might know that I am the LORD that sanctify them.

A. M. 3411. B. C. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 24.

13 But the house of Israel [w] rebelled against me in the wilderness: they walked not in my statutes, and they [x] despised my judgments, which if a man do, he shall even live in them; and my sabbaths they greatly [y] polluted: then I said, I would pour out my fury upon them in the [z] wilderness, to consume them.

14 [a] But I wrought for my name's sake, that it should not be polluted before the heathen, in whose sight I brought them out.

15 Yet also [b] I lifted up my hand unto them in the wilderness, that I would not bring them into the land which I had given them, flowing with milk and honey, [c] which is the glory of all lands;

16 [d] Because they despised my judgments, and walked not in my statutes, but polluted my sabbaths: for [e] their heart went after their idols.

17 [f] Nevertheless mine eye spared them from destroying them, neither did I make an end of them in the wilderness.

18 But I said unto their children in the wilderness, Walk ye not in the statutes of your fathers, neither observe their judgments, nor defile yourselves with their idols:

19 I am the LORD your God; [g] walk in my statutes, and keep my judgments, and do them;

A. M. 3411. B. C. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 24.

20 [h] And hallow my sabbaths; and they shall be a sign between me and you, that ye may know that I am the LORD your God.

21 Notwithstanding [i] the children rebelled against me: they walked not in my statutes, neither kept my judgments to do them, [k] which if a man do, he shall even live in them; they polluted my sabbaths: then I said, [l] I would pour out my fury upon them, to accomplish my anger against them in the wilderness.

22 [m] Nevertheless I withdrew mine hand, and [n] wrought for my name's sake, that it should not be polluted in the sight of the heathen, in whose sight I brought them forth.

23 I lifted up mine hand unto them also in the wilderness, that [o] I would scatter them among the heathen, and disperse them through the countries;

24 [p] Because they had not executed my judgments, but had despised my statutes, and had polluted my sabbaths, and [q] their eyes were after their fathers' idols.

25 Wherefore [r] I gave them also statutes that were not good, and judgments whereby they should not live;

[w] Num xiv. 22; Psa. lxxviii. 40; xcv. 8, 9, 10.——[x] Ver. 16, 24; Prov. i. 25.——[y] Exod. xvi. 27.——[z] Num. xiv. 29; xxvi. 65; Psa. cvi. 23.——[a] Ver. 9, 22.——[b] Num. xiv. 28; Psa. xcv. 11; cvi. 26.——[c] Ver. 6.——[d] Ver. 13, 24.——[e] Num. xv. 39; Psa. lxxviii. 37; Amos v. 25, 26; Acts vii. 42, 43.——[f] Psa. lxxviii. 38.——[g] Deut. v. 32, 33; vi., vii., viii., x., xi., xii.

[h] Ver. 12; Jer. xvii. 22.——[i] Num. xxv. 1, 2; Deut. ix. 23, 24; xxxi. 27.——[k] Ver. 11, 13.——[l] Ver. 8, 13.——[m] Psa. lxxviii. 38; ver. 17.——[n] Ver. 9, 14.——[o] Lev. xxvi. 33; Deut. xxviii. 64; Psa. cvi. 27; Jer. xv. 4.——[p] Ver. 13, 16.——[q] See chap. vi. 9. [r] See Psa. lxxxi. 12; ver. 39; Rom. i. 24; 2 Thess. ii. 11.

observance of the Sabbath was the first statute or command of God to men. This institution was a sign between God and them, to keep them in remembrance of the creation of the world, of the rest that he designed them in Canaan, and of the eternal inheritance among the saints in light. Of these things the Sabbath was a type and pledge.

Verse 13. But the house of Israel rebelled] They acted in the wilderness just as they had done in Egypt; and he spared them there for the same reason. See ver. 9.

Verse 15. I lifted up my hand] Their provocations in the wilderness were so great, that I vowed never to bring them into the promised land. I did not consume them, but I disinherited them. See the note on ver. 5.

Verse 18. But I said unto their children] These I chose in their fathers' stead; and to them I purposed to give the inheritance which their fathers by disobedience lost.

Verse 22. I withdrew mine hand] I had just lifted it up to crush them as in a moment; for they also were idolatrous, and walked in the steps of their fathers.

Verse 25. I gave them also statutes that were not good] What a foolish noise has been made about this verse by critics, believers and infidels! How is it that God can be said "to give a people statutes that were not good, and judgments whereby they could not live?" I answer, in their sense of the words, God never gave any such, at any time, to any people. Let any man produce an example of this kind if he can; or show even the fragment of such a law, sanctioned by the Most High! The simple meaning of this place and all such places is, that when they had rebelled against the Lord, despised his statutes, and polluted his Sabbaths—in effect cast him off, and given themselves wholly to their idols, then he abandoned them, and they abandoned themselves to the customs and ordinances of the heathen. That this is the meaning of the words, requires no proof to them who are the least acquainted with the genius and idioms of the Hebrew language, in which God is a thousand times said to do, what in the course of his providence or justice he only permits to be done.

A. M. 3411. B. C. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 24.

26 And I polluted them in their own gifts, in that they caused to pass [a] through the fire all that openeth the womb, that I might make them desolate, to the end that they [t] might know that I am the LORD.

27 Therefore, son of man, speak unto the house of Israel, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Yet in this your fathers have [u] blasphemed me, in that they have [v] committed a trespass against me.

28 For when I had brought them into the land, for the which I lifted up mine hand to give it to them, then [w] they saw every high hill, and all the thick trees, and they offered there their sacrifices, and there they presented the provocation of their offering: there also they made their [x] sweet savour, and poured out there their drink-offerings.

29 Then [y] I said unto them, What is the high place whereunto ye go? And the name thereof is called Bamah unto this day.

30 Wherefore say unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Are ye polluted after the manner of your fathers? and commit ye whoredom after their abominations?

31 For when ye offer [z] your gifts, when ye make your sons to [a] pass through the fire, ye pollute yourselves with all your idols, even unto this day: and [b] shall I be inquired of by you, O house of Israel? As I live, saith the Lord GOD, I will not be inquired of by you.

A. M. 3411. B. C. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci R. Roman., 24.

32 And that [c] which cometh into your mind shall not be at all, that ye say, We will be as the heathen, as the families of the countries, to serve wood and stone.

33 As I live, saith the Lord GOD, surely with a mighty hand, and [d] with a stretched-out arm, and with fury poured out, will I rule over you:

34 And I will bring you out from the people, and will gather you out of the countries wherein ye are scattered, with a mighty hand, and with a stretched-out arm, and with fury poured out.

35 And I will bring you into the wilderness of the people, and there [e] will I plead with you face to face.

36 [f] Like as I pleaded with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I plead with you, saith the Lord GOD.

37 And I will cause you to [g] pass under the rod, and I will bring you into [h] the bond of the covenant:

---

[a] 2 Kings xvii. 17; xxi. 6; 2 Chron. xxviii. 3; xxxiii. 6; Jer. xxxii. 35; chap. xvi. 20, 21.——[t] Chap. vi. 7.——[u] Rom. ii. 24. [v] Heb. trespassed a trespass.——[w] Isa. lvii. 5, &c.; chap. vi. 13. [x] Chap. xvi. 19.——[y] Or, I told them what the high place was, or Bamah.——[z] Ver. 26.——[a] 2 Kings xvi. 3; xxi. 6; xxiii. 10 [b] Ver. 3.——[c] Chap. xi. 5.——[d] Jer. xxi. 5.——[e] Jer. ii. 9, 35 chap. xvii. 20.——[f] See Num. xiv. 21, 22, 23, 28, 29.——[g] Lev xxvii. 32; Jer. xxxiii. 13.——[h] Or, a delivering.

Verse 26. I polluted them in their own gifts] I permitted them to pollute themselves by the offerings which they made to their idols. Causing their children to pass through the fire was one of those pollutions; but, did God ever give them a statute or judgment of this kind? No. He ever inveighs against such things, and they incur his heaviest displeasure and curse. See on ver. 31.

Verse 29. What is the high place] מה הבמה mah habbamah, "what is the high place?" What is it good for? Its being a high place shows it to be a place of idolatry. I called it במה bamah, to mark it with infamy; but ye continue to frequent it, even while it is called במה bamah, to the present day!

Verse 31. Ye pollute yourselves] This shows the sense in which God says, ver. 26, "I polluted them in their own gifts." They chose to pollute themselves, and I permitted them to do so. See on verses 25, 26.

Verse 32. And that which cometh into your mind] Ye wish to be naturalized among idolaters, and make a part of such nations. But this shall not be at all; you shall be preserved as a distinct people. Ye shall not be permitted to mingle yourselves with the people of those countries: even they, idolaters as they are, will despise and reject you. Besides, I will change your place, restore your captivity; yet not in mercy, but in fury poured out; and reserve you for sorer evils, ver. 34.

Verse 35. I will bring you into the wilderness of the people] I will bring you out of your captivity, and bring you into your own land, which you will find to be a wilderness, the consequence of your crimes.

There will I plead with you] There I will be your king, and rule you with a sovereign rule; and the dispensations of my justice and mercy shall either end you or mend you.

Verse 37. I will cause you to pass under the rod] This alludes to the custom of tithing the sheep. I take it from the rabbins. The sheep were all penned; and the shepherd stood at the door of the fold, where only one sheep could come out at once. He had in his hand a rod dipped in vermillion; and as they came out, he counted one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine; and as the tenth came out, he marked it with the rod, and said, "This is the tenth;" and that was set apart for the Lord.

I will bring you into the bond of the covenant] You shall be placed under the same obligations as before, and acknowledge yourselves bound; ye shall feel your obligation, and live according to its nature.

A. M. 3411. B. C. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 24.

38 And [i] I will purge out from among you the rebels, and them that transgress against me: I will bring them forth out of the country where they sojourn, and [k] they shall not enter into the land of Israel: [l] and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

39 As for you, O house of Israel, thus saith the Lord GOD; [m] Go ye, serve ye every one his idols, and hereafter also, if ye will not hearken unto me: [n] but pollute ye my holy name no more with your gifts, and with your idols.

40 For [o] in mine holy mountain, in the mountain of the height of Israel, saith the Lord GOD, there shall all the house of Israel, all of them in the land, serve me: there [p] will I accept them, and there will I require your offerings, and the [q] first-fruits of your oblations, with all your holy things.

41 I will accept you with your [r] sweet [s] savour, when I bring you out from the people, and gather you out of the countries wherein ye have been scattered; and I will be sanctified in you before the heathen.

42 [t] And ye shall know that I am the LORD, [u] when I shall bring you into the land of Israel, into the country for the which I lifted up mine hand to give it to your fathers.

A. M. 3411. B. C. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 24.

43 And [v] there shall ye remember your ways, and all your doings, wherein ye have been defiled; and [w] ye shall loathe yourselves in your own sight for all your evils that ye have committed.

44 [x] And ye shall know that I am the LORD, when I have wrought with you [y] for my name's sake, not according to your wicked ways, nor according to your corrupt doings, O ye house of Israel, saith the Lord GOD.

45 Moreover, the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

46 [z] Son of man, set thy face toward the south, and drop thy word toward the south, and prophesy against the forest of the south field;

47 And say to the forest of the south, Hear the word of the LORD; Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, [a] I will kindle a fire in thee, and it shall devour [b] every green tree in thee, and every dry tree: the flaming flame shall not be quenched, and all faces [c] from the south to the north shall be burned therein.

48 And all flesh shall see that I the LORD have kindled it: it shall not be quenched.

49 Then said I, Ah Lord GOD! they say of me, Doth he not speak parables?

[i] Chap. xxxiv. 17, 20; Matt. xxv. 32, 33.——[k] Jer. xliv. 14. [l] Chap. vi. 7; xv. 7; xxiii. 49.——[m] Judg. x. 14; Psa. lxxxi. 12; Amos iv. 4.——[n] Isa. i. 13; chap. xxiii. 38, 39.——[o] Isa. ii, 2, 3; chap. xvii. 23; Mic. iv. 1.——[p] Isa. lvi. 7; lx. 7; Zech. viii. 20, &c.; Mal. iii. 4; Rom. xii. 1.——[q] Or, chief.——[r] Heb. savour of rest.

[s] Eph. v. 2; Phil. iv. 18.——[t] Ver. 38, 44; chap. xxxvi. 23; xxxviii. 23.——[u] Chapter xi. 17; xxxiv. 13; xxxvi. 24. [v] Chap. xvi. 61.——[w] Lev. xxvi. 39; chap. vi. 9; Hos. v. 15.——[x] Ver. 38; chap. xxiv. 24.——[y] Chap. xxxvi. 22. [z] Chap. vi. 2; xxi. 2.——[a] Jer. xxi. 14.——[b] Deut. xii. 2; Luke xxiii. 31.——[c] Chap. xxi. 4.

Verse 38. I will purge out from among you the rebels] The incorrigibly wicked I will destroy; those who will not receive him whom I have appointed for this purpose as the Saviour of Israel. And I will gather you who believe out of all the countries where you sojourn, and bring you into your own land; but those of you who will not believe—will not receive the Son of David to reign over you, shall never enter into the land of Israel, but die in your dispersions. This is what the contradicting and blaspheming Jews of the present day have to expect. And thus, both of you shall know that he is Jehovah, fulfilling his threatenings against the one, and his promises to the other.

Verse 39. Go ye, serve ye every one his idols] Thus, God gave them statutes that were not good, and judgments whereby they could not live, by thus permitting them to take their own way, serve their gods, and follow the maxims and rites of that abominable worship.

Verse 40. For in mine holy mountain] The days shall come in which all true ISRAELITES shall receive HIM whom I have sent to be the true sacrifice for the life of the world; and shall bring to Jerusalem—the pure Christian Church, their offerings, which I will there accept, for they will give me thanks for my unspeakable gift.

Verse 42. And ye shall know] Shall acknowledge that I am Jehovah.

Verse 43. And there shall ye remember your ways] Ye shall be ashamed of your past conduct, and of your long opposition to the Gospel of your-salvation.

These promises may, in a certain limited sense, be applied to the restoration from the Babylonish captivity; but they must have their proper fulfilment when the Jews shall accept Jesus as their Saviour, and in consequence be brought back from all their dispersions to their own land.

Verse 46. Set thy face toward the south] Towards Judea, which lay south from Babylon, or Mesopotamia, where the prophet then dwelt.

The forest of the south field] The city of Jerusalem, as full of inhabitants as the forest is of trees.

Verse 47. I will kindle a fire] I will send war, "and it shall devour every green tree," the most eminent and substantial of the inhabitants; and every dry tree, the lowest and meanest also.

The flaming flame shall not be quenched] The fierce ravages of Nebuchadnezzar and the Chaldeans shall not be stopped till the whole land is ruined.

All faces from the south to the north shall be burned] From the one end of the land to the other there shall be nothing but fear, dismay, terror, and confusion, occasioned by the wide-wasting violence of the Chaldeans. Judea lay in length from north to south.

Verse 48. All flesh] All the people shall see that this war is a judgment of the Lord.

It shall not be quenched.] Till the whole land shall be utterly ruined.

Verse 49. Ah Lord God!] O my God, consider my situation; who will believe what I shall say? They put the evil day far from them.

Doth he not speak parables?] הלא מכשל משלים הוא halo memashshel meshalim hu, "Is not he a maker of parables?" Is it not his custom to deal in enigmas? His figures are not to be understood; we should not trouble ourselves with them. We are not obliged to fathom his meaning; and perhaps after all it does not refer to us, or will not be accomplished in our time, if it even respect the land. Thus they turned aside what might have done them good, and rejected the counsel of God against themselves.

By dividing the word with our neighbour we often lose the benefit both of threatenings and promises. They voluntarily shut their own eyes; and then God, in judgment, sealed them up in darkness.

CHAPTER XXI.

The prophet goes on to denounce the fate of Jerusalem and Judea; using signs of vehement grief, to denote the greatness of the calamity, 2–7. He then changes the emblem to that of a sharp and bright sword, still denoting the same sad event, 8–17; and, becoming yet more explicit, he represents the king of Babylon, who was to be employed by God in this work, as setting out to take vengeance on both the Jews and the Ammonites, for joining with Egypt in a confederacy against him. He is described as standing at the parting of the roads leading to the respective capitals of the Jews and Ammonites; and doubting which to attack first, he commits the decision of the matter to his arts of divination, performed by mingling arrows inscribed with the names of the different nations or cities, and then marching against that whose name was written on the arrow first drawn from the quiver. In this case the name Jerusalem comes forward; and therefore he proceeds against it, 18–24. History itself could scarcely be more explicit than this prophecy. The profane prince Zedekiah is then declared to be given up by God, and his kingdom devoted to utter destruction, for that breach of oath of which the prophet foretells he should be guilty, 25–27. The remaining verses form a distinct prophecy relating to the destruction of the Ammonites, which was fulfilled about five years after the destruction of Jerusalem, 28–32.

A. M. 3411. B. C. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 24.

AND the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 [a] Son of man, set thy face toward Jerusalem, and [b] drop thy word toward the holy places, and prophesy against the land of Israel,

3 And say to the land of Israel, Thus saith the LORD; Behold, I am against thee, and will draw forth my sword out of his sheath, and will cut off from thee [c] the righteous and the wicked.

A. M. 3411. B. C. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 24.

[a] Chap. xx. 46.——[b] Deut. xxxii. 2; Amos vii. 16; Mic. ii. 6, 11.——[c] Job ix. 22.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXI.

Verse 2. Set thy face toward Jerusalem] This is a continuation of the preceding prophecy; and in this chapter the prophet sets before them, in the plainest language, what the foregoing metaphors meant, so that they could not complain of his parables.

Verse 3. Behold, I am against thee] Dismal news! When God is against us, who can be for us?

And will draw forth my sword] War.

And will cut off from thee] The land of Judea.

The righteous and the wicked.] All shall be removed from thee. Some shall be cut off—removed by the sword; shall be slain in battle, or by the pestilence; and some shall be cut off—die by the famine; and some shall be cut off—removed from the land by captivity. Now, among the two latter classes there might be many righteous as well as wicked. And when all the provisions were consumed, so that there was no more bread in the city, during the siege by Nebuchadnezzar, the righteous must have suffered as well as the wicked; for they could not be preserved alive, but by miracle, when there was no bread; nor was their perishing for want any loss to them, because the Lord would take them straight to his glory. And however men in general are unwilling to die, yet there is no instance, nor can there be, of any man's complaint that he got to heaven too soon. Again, if God had permitted none to be carried off captive but the wicked, the case of these would be utterly hopeless, as there would be none to set a good example, to preach repentance, to reprove sin, or to show God's willingness to forgive sinners. But God, in his mercy, permitted many of the righteous to be carried off also, that the wicked might not be totally abandoned, or put beyond the reach of being saved. Hence, both Ezekiel and Daniel, and indeed several others, prophets and righteous men, were thus cut off from the land, and carried into captivity. And how much was God's glory and the good of men promoted by this! What a seed of salvation was sown, even in the heathen countries, by thus cutting off the righteous with the wicked! To this we owe, under God, many of the Psalms, the

A. M. 3411. B. C. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 24.

4 Seeing then that I will cut off from thee the righteous and the wicked, therefore shall my sword go forth out of his sheath against all flesh, [d] from the south to the north:

5 That all flesh may know that I the LORD have drawn forth my sword out of his sheath: it [e] shall not return any more.

6 [f] Sigh therefore, thou son of man, with the breaking of thy loins: and with bitterness sigh before their eyes.

7 And it shall be, when they say unto thee, Wherefore sighest thou? that thou shalt answer, For the tidings; because it cometh: and every heart shall melt, and [g] all hands shall be feeble, and every spirit shall faint, and all knees [h] shall be weak as water: behold, it cometh, and shall be brought to pass, saith the Lord GOD.

8 Again the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

9 Son of man, prophesy and say, Thus saith the LORD; Say, [i] A sword, a sword is sharpened, and also furbished:

A. M. 3411. B. C. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 24.

10 It is sharpened to make a sore slaughter; it is furbished that it may glitter: should we then make mirth? [k] it contemneth the rod of my son, as every tree.

11 And he hath given it to be furbished, that it may be handled: this sword is sharpened, and it is furbished, to give it into the hand of [l] the slayer.

12 Cry and howl, son of man: for it shall be upon my people, it shall be upon all the princes of Israel: [m] terrors by reason of the sword shall be upon my people: [n] smite therefore upon thy thigh.

13 [o] Because it is [p] a trial, and what if the sword contemn even the rod? [q] it shall be no more, saith the Lord GOD.

14 Thou, therefore, son of man, prophesy, and [r] smite thine [s] hands together, and let the sword be doubled the third time, the sword whole of the Book of Ezekiel, all the prophecies of Daniel, the bright example of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, the decrees passed in favour of the religion of the true God by Nebuchadnezzar, Cyrus, Darius, &c. And to this dispensation of God's merciful providence we owe the Books and example of Ezra and Nehemiah. Where then is the injustice, so loudly declaimed against, of God's thus cutting off from the land of Judea the righteous with the wicked? The righteous were not cut off for the crimes of the wicked, (see chap. xviii.,) nor were these crimes visited upon them; yet several of them shared in the common calamity, but none perished. Those that were removed by a violent death, (and I believe we shall find few such,) got a speedier entrance into eternal glory.

[d] Chap. xx. 47.——[e] So Isa. xlv. 23; lv. 11.——[f] Isa. xxii. 4. [g] Chap. vii. 17.——[h] Heb. shall go into water.——[i] Deut. xxxii. 41; ver. 15, 28.——[k] Or, it is the rod of my son, it despiseth every tree. [l] Ver. 19.——[m] Or, they are thrust down to the sword with my people.——[n] Jer. xxxi. 19.——[o] Or, When the trial hath been, what then? shall they not also belong to the despising rod?——[p] Job ix. 23; 2 Cor. viii. 2.——[q] Ver. 27.——[r] Num. xxiv. 10; ver. 17; chap. vi. 11.——[s] Heb. hand to hand.

Verse 4. From the south to the north] The whole land shall be ravaged from one end to the other.

Verse 5. It shall not return any more.] That is, till all the work that I have designed for it is done. Nor did it; for Nebuchadnezzar never rested till he had subdued all the lands from the south to the north, from the Euphrates to the Nile.

Verse 6. Sigh—with the breaking of thy loins] Let thy mourning for this sore calamity be like that of a woman in the pains of travail.

Verse 7. Wherefore sighest thou?] The prophet was a sign unto them. His sighing and mourning showed them how they should act.

All knees shall be weak as water] See the note on chap. vii. 17.

Verse 10. It contemneth the rod of my son] "It," the sword of Nebuchadnezzar, "contemneth the rod," despises the power and influence of my son—Israel, the Jewish people: "Out of Egypt have I called MY SON."

As every tree.] As all the stocks, kindreds, and nations, over which I have already given him commission. Can the rod of Israel be spared, when the trees of Assyria, Egypt, &c., have been cut down?

Verse 11. This sword is sharpened] It is prepared for the slaughter, it is furbished; from the French, fourbir, to polish, brighten. He shall have splendid victories every where. Some complain of corruption in the original in this place; but I think without sufficient reason.

Verse 12. Smite—upon thy thigh.] See on Jer. xxxi. 19. So HOMER, Il. xv. ver. 113:—

Ὡς εφατ'· αυταρ Αρης θαλερω πεπληγετο μηρω
Χερσι καταπρηνεσσ', ολοφυρομενος δε προσηυδα.

"She spake; and, with expanded arms his thighs Smiting, thus sorrowful the god exclaimed."
COWPER.

Verse 13. Because it is a trial] This will be a trial of strength and skill between the Chaldeans and the Jews; and a trial of faith and patience to the righteous.

And what if the sword, (Nebuchadnezzar,) contemn even the rod?] Overthrow Zedekiah? It will do so; for the regal government of Judea shall be no more. Or, it is tried; that is, the sword. Nebuchadnezzar has already shown himself strong and skilful.

Verse 14. Let the sword be doubled the third time] The sword has been doubled, and it shall come the of the slain: it is the sword of the great men that are slain, which entereth into their [t] privy chambers.

A. M. 3411. B. C. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 24.

15 I have set the [u] point of the sword against all their gates, that their heart may faint, and their ruins be multiplied: ah! [v] it is made bright, it is [w] wrapped up for the slaughter.

16 [x] Go thee one way or other, either on the right hand, [y] or on the left, whithersoever thy face is set.

17 I will also [z] smite mine hands together, and [a] I will cause my fury to rest: I the LORD have said it.

18 The word of the LORD came unto me again, saying,

19 Also, thou son of man, appoint thee two ways, that the sword of the king of Babylon may come: both twain shall come forth out of one land: and choose thou a place, choose it at the head of the way to the city.

A. M. 3411. B. C. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 24.

20 Appoint a way, that the sword may come to [b] Rabbath of the Ammonites, and to Judah in Jerusalem the defenced.

21 For the king of Babylon stood at the [c] parting of the way, at the head of the two ways, to use divination: he made his [d] arrows bright, he consulted with [e] images, he looked in the liver.

22 At his right hand was the divination for Jerusalem, to appoint [f] captains, [g] to open the mouth in the slaughter, to [h] lift up the voice with shouting, [i] to appoint battering rams against the gates, to cast a mount, and to build a fort.

23 And it shall be unto them as a false divination in their sight, [k] to them that [l] have [t] 1 Kings xx. 30; xxii. 25.——[u] Or, glittering, or fear.——[v] Ver. 10, 28.——[w] Or, sharpened.——[x] Chap. xiv. 17.——[y] Heb. set thyself, take the left hand.——[z] Ver. 14; chap. xxii. 13.——[a] Chap. v. 13.——[b] Jer. xlix. 2; chap. xxv. 5; Amos i. 14.

[c] Heb. mother of the way.——[d] Or, knives.——[e] Heb. teraphim. [f] Or, battering rams; chap. iv. 2.——[g] Heb. rams.——[h] Jer. li. 14. [i] Chap. iv. 2.——[k] Or, for the oaths made unto them.——[l] Chap. xvii. 13, 15, 16, 18.

third time. Nebuchadnezzar came against Judea THRICE. 1. Against Jehoiakim. 2. Against Jeconiah. 3. Against Zedekiah. The sword had already been doubled; it is to come now the third time, i. e., against Zedekiah.

The sword of the slain] חרב חללים chereb chalalim, "the sword of the soldiers," of the Chaldeans. So in the next clause, היא חרב חלל הגדול hi chereb chalal haggadol, "it is the sword of that great soldier," that eminent king and conqueror. This is the meaning of the word חלל chalal, that is so ill rendered in almost every place of its occurrence, in our Version. See Dr. Kennicott.

Verse 15. Wrapped up] It is not a blunt sword, it is carefully sharpened and preserved for the slaughter.

Verse 16. Go thee one way or other] Thou shalt prosper, O sword, whithersoever thou turnest; against Ammon, or Judea, or Egypt.

Verse 19. Appoint thee two ways] Set off from Babylon, and lay down two ways, either of which thou mayest take; that to the right, which leads to Jerusalem; or that to the left, which leads to Rabbath of the Ammonites, ver. 20. But why against the Ammonites? Because both they and the Moabites were united with Zedekiah against the Chaldeans, (see Jer. xxvii. 3,) though they afterwards fought against Judea, chap. xii. 6.

Verse 21. For the king of Babylon stood at the parting of the way] He was in doubt which way he should first take; whether to humble the Ammonites by taking their metropolis, Riblath, or go at once against Jerusalem. In this case of uncertainty, he made use of divination. And this was of three kinds: 1. By arrows. 2. By images or talismans. 3. By inspecting the entrails of a sacrifice offered on the occasion

1. He made bright his arrows. This might be after the manner in which the divination is still practised among the Arabs. These arrows were without head or wing. They took three. On one they wrote, Command me, Lord. On the second, Forbid me, Lord. The third was blank. These were put in a bag, and the querist put in his hand and took one out. If it was Command me, he set about the business immediately; if it was Forbid me, he rested for a whole year; if it was the blank one, he drew again. On all occasions the Arabs consulted futurity by such arrows. See D'Herbelot, under the word ACDAH.

2. As to the images, the Hebrew calls them תרפים teraphim. See the note on Gen. xxxi. 19.

3. And as to the liver, I believe it was only inspected to see whether the animal offered in sacrifice were sound and healthy, of which the state of the liver is the most especial indication. When the liver is sound, the animal is healthy; and it would have been a bad omen to any who offered sacrifice, to find that the animal they had offered to their gods was diseased; as, in that case, they would have taken for granted that the sacrifice was not accepted.

Verse 22. At his right hand was the divination for Jerusalem] He had probably written on two arrows; one, Jerusalem; the other, Riblath; the third, left blank. He drew, and that on which Jerusalem was written came to his hand; in consequence of which he marched immediately against that city. It was ripe for destruction; and had he marched before or after, it would have fallen; but he never considered himself as sure of the conquest till now.

Verse 23. To them that have sworn oaths] To Zedekiah and his ministers, who had bound themselves by the oath of the Lord to be faithful to the Chaldeans, and to pay them the promised tribute. The sworn oaths: but he will call to remembrance the iniquity, that they may be taken.

A. M. 3411. B. C. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 24.

24 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Because ye have made your iniquity to be remembered, in that your transgressions are discovered, so that in all your doings your sins do appear; because, I say, that ye are come to remembrance, ye shall be taken with the hand.

25 And thou [m] profane wicked prince of Israel, [n] whose day is come, when iniquity shall have an end, 26 Thus saith the Lord GOD; Remove the diadem, and take off the crown: this shall not be the same: [o] exalt him that is low, and abase him that is high.

27 [p] I will overturn, overturn, overturn it: [q] and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him.

28 And thou, son of man, prophesy and say, Thus saith the Lord GOD [r] concerning the Ammonites, and concerning their reproach; even say thou, [s] The sword, the sword is drawn: for the slaughter it is furbished, to consume because of the glittering:

A. M. 3411. B. C. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 24.

29 Whiles they [t] see vanity unto thee, whiles they divine a lie unto thee, to bring thee upon the necks of them that are slain, of the wicked, [u] whose day is come, when their iniquity shall have an end.

30 [v] Shall [w] I cause it to return into his sheath? [x] I will judge thee in the place where thou wast created, [y] in the land of thy nativity.

31 And I will [z] pour out mine indignation upon thee, I will [a] blow against thee in the fire of my wrath, and deliver thee into the hand of [b] brutish men, and skilful to destroy.

32 Thou shalt be for fuel to the fire; thy blood shall be in the midst of the land; [c] thou shalt be no more remembered: for I the LORD have spoken it.

[m] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 13; Jer. lii. 2; chap. xvii. 19.——[n] Ver. 29; chap. xxxv. 5.——[o] Chap. xvii. 24; Luke i. 52.——[p] Heb. perverted, perverted, perverted will I make it.——[q] Gen. xlix. 10; ver. 13; Luke i. 32, 33; John i. 49.——[r] Jer. xlix. 1; chap. xxv. 2, 3, 6; Zeph. ii. 8, 9, 10.

[s] Ver. 9, 10.——[t] Chap. xii. 24; xxii. 28.——[u] Ver. 25; Job xviii. 20; Psa. xxxvii. 13.——[v] Or, Cause it to return.——[w] Jer. xlvii. 6, 7.——[x] Gen. xv. 14; chap. xvi. 38.——[y] Chap. xvi. 3. [z] Chap. vii. 8; xiv. 19; xxii. 22.——[a] Chap. xxii 20, 21.——[b] Or, burning.——[c] Chap. xxv. 10.

oaths may refer, farther, to the alliances formed with the Egyptians, Ammonites, and others. They will not believe that Nebuchadnezzar shall succeed against them, while they expect the powerful assistance of the Egyptians.

Verse 25. And thou profane wicked prince of Israel] Zedekiah, called here profane, because he had broken his oath; and wicked, because of his opposition to God and his prophet.

Whose day is come] Who in a short time shalt be delivered into the hands of thy enemies.

Verse 26. Exalt him that is low] Give Gedaliah the government of Judea.

Abase him that is high.] Depose Zedekiah—remove his diadem, and take off his crown.

Verse 27. I will overturn] I will utterly destroy the Jewish government. Perverted will I make it. See the margin.

Until he come whose—is] משפט mishpat, the judgment; i. e., till the coming of the son of David, the Lord Jesus; who, in a mystic and spiritual sense, shall have the throne of Israel, and whose right it is. See the famous prophecy, Gen. xlix 10, and Luke i. 32.

The עוה avah, which we translate overturn, is thrice repeated here; to point out, say the rabbins, the three conquests of Jerusalem, in which Jehoiakim, Jeconiah, and Zedekiah were overthrown.

Verse 28. Concerning the Ammonites] They had reproached and insulted Judea in its low estate, see chap. xxv. This prophecy against them was fulfilled about five years after the taking of Jerusalem. See Joseph. Ant. lib. x. c. 11; and Jer. xxvii., xlviii., xlix.; Ezek. xxv.

Verse 30. I will judge thee] This seems to refer to Nebuchadnezzar, who, after his return from Jerusalem, became insane, and lived like a beast for seven years; but was afterwards restored, and acknowledged the Lord.

Verse 32. Thou shalt be no more remembered] The empire of the Chaldeans was destroyed, and the power transferred to the Persians; the Persian empire was destroyed, and given to the Greeks; the Grecian empire was destroyed, and given to the Mohammedans; and the destruction of the Mohammedans is at no great distance.

CHAPTER XXII.

This chapter contains a recital of the sins of Jerusalem, 1–12; for which God threatens it with severe judgments, 13–16, in order to purify it from the dross, 17–22. And as the corruption is general, pervading prophets, priests, princes, and people; so, it is declared, shall be the punishment, 23–31.

A. M. cir. 3411. B. C. cir. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

MOREOVER the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Now, thou son of man, [a] wilt thou [b] judge, wilt thou judge [c] the [d] bloody city? yea, thou shalt [e] show her all her abominations.

3 Then say thou, Thus saith the Lord GOD; The city sheddeth blood in the midst of it, that her time may come, and maketh idols against herself to defile herself.

4 Thou art become guilty in thy blood that thou hast [f] shed, and hast defiled thyself in thine idols which thou hast made; and thou hast caused thy days to draw near, and art come even unto thy years: [g] therefore have I made thee a reproach unto the heathen, and a mocking to all countries.

5 Those that be near, and those that be far from thee, shall mock thee, which art [h] infamous and much vexed.

6 Behold, [i] the princes of Israel, every one were in thee to their [k] power to shed blood.

7 In thee have they [l] set light by father and mother: in the midst of thee have they [m] dealt by [n] oppression with the stranger: in thee have they vexed the fatherless and the widow.

8 Thou hast [o] despised mine holy things, and hast [p] profaned my sabbaths.

9 In thee are [q] men [r] that carry tales to shed blood: [s] and in thee they eat upon the mountains: in the midst of thee they commit lewdness.

A. M. cir. 3411. B. C. cir. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

10 In thee have they [t] discovered their father's nakedness: in thee have they humbled her that was [u] set apart for pollution.

11 And [v] one hath committed abomination [w] with his neighbour's wife; and [x] another [y] hath [z] lewdly defiled his daughter-in-law: and another in thee hath humbled his [a] sister, his father's daughter.

12 In thee [b] have they taken gifts to shed blood; [c] thou hast taken usury and increase, and thou hast greedily gained of thy neighbours by extortion, and [d] hast forgotten me, saith the Lord GOD.

13 Behold, therefore, I have [e] smitten mine hand at thy dishonest gain which thou hast made, and at thy blood which hath been in the midst of thee.

14 [f] Can thine heart endure, or can thine hands be strong, in the days that I shall deal with thee? [g] I the LORD have spoken it, and will do it.

15 And [h] I will scatter thee among the heathen, and disperse thee in the countries, and [i] will consume thy filthiness out of thee.

16 And thou [k] shalt take thine inheritance

[a] Chap. xx. 4; xxiii. 36. — [b] Or, plead for. — [c] Chap. xxiv. 6, 9; Nah. iii. 1. — [d] Heb. city of bloods. — [e] Heb. make her know; chap. xvi. 2. — [f] 2 Kings xxi. 16. — [g] Deut. xxviii. 37; 1 Kings ix. 7; chap. v. 14; Dan. ix. 16. — [h] Heb. polluted of name, much in vexation. — [i] Isa. i. 23; Mic. iii. 1, 2, 3; Zeph. iii. 3. [k] Heb. arm. — [l] Deut. xxvii. 16. — [m] Exod. xxii. 21, 22. — [n] Or, deceit. — [o] Ver. 26. — [p] Lev. xix. 30; chap. xxiii. 38. — [q] Heb. men of slanders. — [r] Exod. xxiii. 1; Lev. xix. 16. — [s] Chap. xviii. 6, 11. — [t] Lev. xviii. 7, 8; xx. 11; 1 Cor. v. 1.

[u] Lev. xviii. 19; xx. 18; chap. xviii. 6. — [v] Or, every one. [w] Lev. xviii. 20; xx. 10; Deut. xxii. 22; Jer. v. 8; chap. xviii. 11. — [x] Or, every one. — [y] Lev. xviii. 15; xx. 12. — [z] Or, by lewdness. — [a] Lev. xviii. 9; xx. 17. — [b] Exod. xxiii. 8; Deut. xvi. 19; xxvii. 25. — [c] Exod. xxii. 25; Lev. xxv. 36; Deut. xxiii. 19; chap. xviii. 13. — [d] Deut. xxxii. 18; Jer. iii. 21; chap. xxiii. 35. — [e] Chap. xxi. 17. — [f] See chap. xxi. 7. — [g] Chap. xvii. 24. — [h] Deut. iv. 27; xxviii. 25, 64; chap. xii. 14, 15. [i] Chap. xxiii. 27, 48. — [k] Or, shalt be profaned.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXII.

Verse 2. Wilt thou judge the bloody city] Pronounce the sentence of death against the murderers.

Show her all her abominations.] And a most revolting and dreadful catalogue of these is in consequence exhibited.

Verse 3. Her time may come] Till now, it was my long-suffering; she has fulfilled her days—completed the time of her probation; has not mended, but is daily worse; therefore her judgment can linger no longer.

Verse 4. Thou art become guilty in thy blood] Thou art guilty of blood.

Verse 5. Those that be near] Both distant as well as neighbouring provinces consider thee the most abandoned of characters; and through thee many have been involved in distress and ruin.

Verse 6. Behold, the princes] Ye are a vile and murderous people, and your princes have been of the same character. Like people, like prince.

Verse 7. In thee have they set light] The children do not reverence their parents. Parental affection and filial respect do not exist among you. The stranger is not only not succoured, but he is oppressed. The widows and fatherless are vexed by wrongs and exactions.

Verse 8. Thou hast despised] All my ordinances are not only neglected, but treated with contempt; and my Sabbaths profaned. There is not only no power of godliness among you, but there is no form.

Verse 9. In thee are men that carry tales] Witnesses that will swear any thing, even where life is concerned.

They eat upon the mountains] Sacrifice to idols, and celebrate their festivals.

Verse 10. In thee have they discovered] They are guilty of the most abominable incest and unnatural lust.

In thee have they humbled] In their unholy and unnatural connexions, they have not abstained from those set apart because of their infirmities. The catalogue of crimes that follow is too plain to require comment.

Verse 16. Thou shalt know that I am the Lord.]

A. M. cir. 3411. B. C. cir. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

in thyself in the sight of the heathen, and [l] thou shalt know that I am the LORD.

17 And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

18 Son of man, [m] the house of Israel is to me become dross: all they are brass, and tin, and iron, and lead, in the midst of the furnace; they are even the [n] dross of silver.

19 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Because ye are all become dross, behold, therefore I will gather you into the midst of Jerusalem.

20 [o] As they gather silver, and brass, and iron, and lead, and tin, into the midst of the furnace, to blow the fire upon it, to melt it; so will I gather you in mine anger and in my fury, and I will leave you there, and melt you.

21 Yea, I will gather you, and [p] blow upon you in the fire of my wrath, and ye shall be melted in the midst thereof.

22 As silver is melted in the midst of the furnace, so shall ye be melted in the midst thereof: and ye shall know that I the LORD have [q] poured out my fury upon you.

23 And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

24 Son of man, say unto her, Thou art the land that is not cleansed, nor rained upon in the day of indignation.

25 [r] There is a conspiracy of her prophets in the midst thereof, like a roaring lion ravening the prey: they [s] have devoured souls: [t] they have taken the treasure and precious things: they have made her many widows in the midst thereof.

A. M. cir. 3411. B. C. cir. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

26 [u] Her priests have [v] violated my law, and have [w] profaned mine holy things; they have put no [x] difference between the holy and profane, neither have they showed difference between the unclean and the clean, and have hid their eyes from my sabbaths, and I am profaned among them.

27 [y] Her princes in the midst thereof are like wolves ravening the prey, to shed blood, and to destroy souls, to get dishonest gain.

28 And [z] her prophets have daubed them with untempered mortar, [a] seeing vanity, and divining lies unto them, saying, Thus saith the Lord GOD, when the LORD hath not spoken.

29 [b] The people of the land have used [c] oppression, and exercised robbery, and have vexed the poor and needy: yea, they have [d] oppressed the stranger [e] wrongfully.

30 [f] And I sought for a man among them, that should [g] make up the hedge, and [h] stand in the gap before me for the land, that I should not destroy it: but I found none.

31 Therefore have I [i] poured out mine indignation upon them; I have consumed them with the fire of my wrath: [k] their own way have I recompensed upon their heads, saith the Lord GOD.

---

[l] Psa. ix. 16; chap. vi. 7.——[m] Isa. i. 22; Jer. vi. 28, &c.; see Psa. cxix. 119.——[n] Heb. drosses.——[o] Heb. according to the gathering.——[p] Chap. xxii. 20, 21, 22.——[q] Chap. xx. 8, 33; ver. 31.

[r] Hos. vi. 9.——[s] Matt. xxiii. 14.——[t] Mic. iii. 11; Zeph. iii. 3, 4.

[u] Mal. ii. 8.——[v] Heb. offered violence to.——[w] Lev. xxii. 2, &c.; 1 Sam. ii. 29.——[x] Lev. x. 10; Jer. xv. 19; chap. xliv. 23.

[y] Isa. i. 23; chap. xxii. 6; Mic. iii. 2, 3, 9, 10, 11; Zeph. iii. 3.

[z] Chap. xiii. 10.——[a] Chap. xiii. 6, 7; xxi. 29.——[b] Jer. v. 26, 27, 28; chap. xviii. 12.——[c] Or, deceit.——[d] Exod. xxii. 21; xxiii. 9; Lev. xix. 33; chap. xxii. 7.——[e] Heb. without right.——[f] Jer. v. 1.——[g] Chap. xiii. 5.——[h] Psa. cvi. 23.——[i] Ver. 22.——[k] Ch. ix. 10; xi. 21; xvi. 43.

I shall so deal with and punish thee, that thou shalt be obliged to own the vindictive hand of a sin-avenging God.

Verse 18. The house of Israel is to me become dross] They are all like base metal—brass, tin, iron, and lead alloyed together with silver. Ye must be put in the furnace, and subjected to the most intense fire, till your impurities are consumed away. No ordinary means will avail any thing; the most violent must be resorted to.

Verse 19. I will gather you] Jerusalem is represented here as the fining pot; all the people are to be gathered together in it, and the Chaldean fire is to melt the whole. And God will increase thy sufferings: as the refiner blows the fire with his bellows, so God will blow upon you with the fire of his wrath, ver. 21.

Verse 24. Thou art the land that is not cleansed] Thou art like a country where there is no rain, either to cleanse the garments, or fertilize the ground.

Verse 25. There is a conspiracy] The false prophets have united together to say and support the same things; and have been the cause of the destruction of souls, and the death of many, so that widows, through their means, are multiplied in thee.

Verse 26. Her priests] Even they whose lips should preserve knowledge, have not instructed the people: they have violated my law, not only in their private conduct, but in their careless and corrupt manner of serving in my temple.

Verse 27. Her princes] Are as bad as her priests; they are rapacious, and grievously oppress the people by unjust impositions in order to increase their revenues.

Verse 28. Her prophets] Even those who profess themselves to be my prophets, have been unfaithful in the discharge of their office; have soothed the people in their sins, and pretended to have oracles of peace and safety when I had not spoken to them.

Verse 29. The people] All that have power or authority have abused it; vexed and oppressed the poor, the needy, and the stranger.

Verse 30. I sought for a man] I saw that there was a grievous breach made in the moral state and feeling of the people, and I sought for a man that would stand in the gap; that would faithfully exhort, reprove, and counsel, with all long-suffering and doctrine. But none was to be found!

Verse 31. Therefore] Because of the profligacies already mentioned; because of the false worship so generally practised; because of the false prophets tolerated; because of the unholy and profane priesthood; because of the oppressive princes; because of the unfaithful and deceiving prophets; because of the oppressions of petty officers; and because of the total corruption of manners in all ranks, places, offices, &c.;—

Have I poured out mine indignation—consumed them with the fire of my wrath] Considering the above, has there not been sufficient reason why I should abandon such a people, and pour out upon them such a destructive storm of calamities?

CHAPTER XXIII.

The idolatries of Samaria and Jerusalem are represented in this chapter by the bad practices of two common harlots, for which God denounces severe judgments against them, 1–49. See the sixteenth chapter, where the same metaphor is enlarged upon as here, it being the prophet's view to excite the utmost detestation of the crime against which he inveighs.

A. M. cir. 3411. B. C. cir. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

THE word of the LORD came again unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, there were [a] two women, the daughters of one mother:

3 And [b] they committed whoredoms in Egypt; they committed whoredoms in [c] their youth: there were their breasts pressed, and there they bruised the teats of their virginity.

4 And the names of them were Aholah the elder, and Aholibah her sister: and [d] they were mine, and they bare sons and daughters. Thus were their names; Samaria is [e] Aholah, and Jerusalem [f] Aholibah.

A. M. cir. 3411. B. C. cir. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

5 And Aholah played the harlot when she was mine; and she doted on her lovers, on [g] the Assyrians her neighbours,

6 Which were clothed with blue, captains and rulers, all of them desirable young men, horsemen riding upon horses.

7 Thus she [h] committed her whoredoms with them, with all them that were [i] the chosen men of Assyria, and with all on whom she doted;

[a] Jer. iii. 7, 8, 10; chap. xvi. 46.——[b] Lev. xvii. 7; Josh. xxiv. 14; chap. xx. 8.——[c] Chap. xvi. 22.——[d] Chap. xvi. 8, 20. [e] That is, His tent, or tabernacle.

[f] That is, My tabernacle in her; 1 Kings viii. 29.——[g] 2 Kings xv. 19; xvi. 7; xvii. 3; Hos. viii. 9.——[h] Heb. bestowed her whoredoms upon them.——[i] Heb. the choice of the children of Ashur.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXIII.

Verse 2. Son of man, there were two women] All the Hebrews were derived from one source, Abraham and Sarah; and, till the schism under Rehoboam, formed but one people: but as these ten tribes and a half separated from Judah and Benjamin, they became two distinct people under different kings; called the kingdom of Judah, and the kingdom of Israel. They are called here, because of their consanguinity, two sisters. The elder, Samaria, (for there was the seat of government for the kingdom of Israel,) was called אהלה aholah, "a tent." The younger, Judah, was called אהליבה aholibah, "my tent is in her," because the temple of God was in Jerusalem, the seat of the government of the kingdom of Judah.

Verse 5. And Aholah played the harlot] Without entering into detail here, or following the figures, they both became idolatrous, and received the impure rites of the Egyptians, Assyrians, and Chaldeans; of which connexion the prophet speaks here as he did in chap. xvi., which see.

In this chapter there are many of what we would call indelicate expressions, because a parallel is run between idolatry and prostitution, and the circumstances of the latter illustrate the peculiarities of the former. In such cases, perhaps, the matter alone was given to the prophet, and he was left to use his own language, and amplify as he saw good. Ezekiel was among the Jews what Juvenal was among the Romans,—a rough reprover of the most abominable vices. They both spoke of things as they found them; stripped vice naked, and scourged it publicly. The original is still more rough than the translation; and surely there is no need of a comment to explain imagery that is but too generally understood. I have said enough on chap. xvi., and to that I must refer the reader. It is true that there are a few things here in the shade that might be illustrated by anatomy; and it would not be difficult to do it: but they are not necessary to salvation, and I shall not take off the covering. They were sufficiently understood by those for whose use they were originally designed.

Verse 6. Clothed with blue] The purple dye was highly valued among the ancients, and at first was only used by kings; at last it was used among the military, particularly by officers of high rank in the country.

A. M. cir. 3411. B. C. cir. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

with all their idols she defiled herself.

8 Neither left she her whoredoms brought [k] from Egypt: for in her youth they lay with her, and they bruised the breasts of her virginity, and poured their whoredom upon her.

9 Wherefore I have delivered her into the hand of her lovers, into the hand of the [l] Assyrians, upon whom she doted.

10 These [m] discovered her nakedness: they took her sons and her daughters, and slew her with the sword: and she became [n] famous among women: for they had executed judgment upon her.

11 And [o] when her sister Aholibah saw this, [p] she [q] was more corrupt in her inordinate love than she, and in her whoredoms [r] more than her sister in her whoredoms.

12 She doted upon the [s] Assyrians her neighbours, [t] captains and rulers clothed most gorgeously, horsemen riding upon horses, all of them desirable young men.

13 Then I saw that she was defiled, that they took both one way,

14 And that she increased her whoredoms: for when she saw men pourtrayed upon the wall, the images of the Chaldeans pourtrayed with vermilion,

15 Girded with girdles upon their loins, exceeding in dyed attire upon their heads, all of them princes to look to, after the manner of the Babylonians of Chaldea, the land of their nativity:

16 [u] And [v] as soon as she saw them with her eyes, she doted upon them, and sent messengers unto them into Chaldea.

17 And the [w] Babylonians came to her into the bed of love, and they defiled her with their whoredom, and she was polluted with them, and [x] her mind was [y] alienated from them.

A. M. cir. 3411. B. C. cir. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

18 So she discovered her whoredoms, and discovered her nakedness: then [z] my mind was alienated from her, like as my mind was alienated from her sister.

19 Yet she multiplied her whoredoms in calling to remembrance the days of her youth, [a] wherein she had played the harlot in the land of Egypt.

20 For she doted upon their paramours, [b] whose flesh is as the flesh of asses, and whose issue is like the issue of horses.

21 Thus thou calledst to remembrance the lewdness of thy youth, in bruising thy teats by the Egyptians for the paps of thy youth.

22 Therefore, O Aholibah, thus saith the Lord GOD; [c] Behold, I will raise up thy lovers against thee, from whom thy mind is alienated, and I will bring them against thee on every side;

23 The Babylonians, and all the Chaldeans, [d] Pekod, and Shoa, and Koa, and all the Assyrians with them: [e] all of them desirable young men, captains, and rulers, great lords and renowned, all of them riding upon horses.

24 And they shall come against thee with chariots, wagons, and wheels, and with an assembly of people, which shall set against thee buckler and shield and helmet round about: and I will set judgment before them, and they shall judge thee according to their judgments.

25 And I will set my jealousy against thee,

[k] Ver. 3.——[l] 2 Kings xvii. 3, 4, 5, 6, 23; xviii. 9, 10, 11. [m] Chap. xvi. 37, 41.——[n] Heb. a name.——[o] Jer. iii. 8.——[p] Jer. iii. 11; chap. xvi. 47, 51.——[q] Heb. she corrupted her inordinate love more than, &c.——[r] Heb. more than the whoredoms of her sister.——[s] 2 Kings xvi. 7, 10; 2 Chron. xxviii. 16–23; chap. xvi. 28.

[t] Ver. 6, 23.——[u] 2 Kings xxiv. 1; chap. xvi. 29.——[v] Heb. at the sight of her eyes.——[w] Heb. children of Babel.——[x] Ver. 22, 28.——[y] Heb. loosed, or disjointed.——[z] Jer. vi. 8.——[a] Ver. 3. [b] Chap. xvi. 26.——[c] Chap. xvi. 37; ver. 28.——[d] Jer. l. 21. [e] Ver. 12.

Verse 14. Men pourtrayed upon the wall] See on chap. viii. 10.

Verse 20. She doted upon their paramours] פלגשיהם pillagsheyhem, their harlots or concubines. Anciently harlot meant in our language either the male or female prostitute.

Whose flesh is as the flesh of asses] See on chap. xvi. 25.

Verse 23. Pekod, and Shoa, and Koa] פקוד ושוע וקוע. These names have been thought to designate certain people bordering on the Chaldeans; but no geographer has ever been able to find them out.

In our old translations these names were considered appellatives—rulers, mighty men, and tyrants. Others, following the literal import of the words, have translated, visiting, shouting, and retreating. Others have applied them to the habits of the Chaldean soldiers. Pekod signifying the muster or review of armies; Shoa, the magnificence of their uniform and arms; and Koa, the marks or embroidery of the clothes of the captains and generals. Grotius thought that they might be names of contiguous nations: Pekod, the Bactrians; Shoa, a people of Armenia; and Koa, the Medes. I have nothing to add that would satisfy myself, or be edifying to my readers.

Verse 25. Shall take away thy nose] A punishment and they shall deal furiously with thee: they shall take away thy nose and thine ears; and thy remnant shall fall by the sword: they shall take thy sons and thy daughters; and thy residue shall be devoured by the fire.

A. M. cir. 3411. B. C. cir. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Romani, cir. annum 24.

26 [f] They shall also strip thee out of thy clothes, and take away thy [g] fair jewels.

27 Thus [h] will I make thy lewdness to cease from thee, and [i] thy whoredom brought from the land of Egypt: so that thou shalt not lift up thine eyes unto them, nor remember Egypt any more.

28 For thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I will deliver thee into the hand of them [k] whom thou hatest, into the hand of them [l] from whom thy mind is alienated:

29 And they shall deal with thee hatefully, and shall take away all thy labour, and [m] shall leave thee naked and bare: and the nakedness of thy whoredoms shall be discovered, both thy lewdness and thy whoredoms.

30 I will do these things unto thee, because thou hast [n] gone a whoring after the heathen, and because thou art polluted with their idols.

31 Thou hast walked in the way of thy sister; therefore will I give her [o] cup into thine hand.

32 Thus saith the Lord GOD; Thou shalt drink of thy sister's cup deep and large: [p] thou shalt be laughed to scorn and had in derision; it containeth much.

33 Thou shalt be filled with drunkenness and sorrow, with the cup of astonishment and desolation, with the cup of thy sister Samaria.

A. M. cir. 3411. B. C. cir. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Romani, cir. annum 24.

34 Thou shalt [q] even drink it and suck it out, and thou shalt break the sherds thereof, and pluck off thine own breasts: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord GOD.

35 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Because thou [r] hast forgotten me, and [s] cast me behind thy back, therefore bear thou also thy lewdness and thy whoredoms.

36 The LORD said moreover unto me; Son of man, wilt thou [t] judge [u] Aholah and Aholibah? yea, [v] declare unto them their abominations;

37 That they have committed adultery, and [w] blood is in their hands, and with their idols have they committed adultery, and have also caused their sons, [x] whom they bare unto me, to pass for them through the fire, to devour them.

38 Moreover this they have done unto me: they have defiled my sanctuary in the same day, and [y] have profaned my Sabbaths.

39 For when they had slain their children to their idols, then they came the same day into my sanctuary to profane it; and, lo, [z] thus have they done in the midst of mine house.

40 And furthermore, that ye have sent for men [a] to come from far, [b] unto whom a messenger was sent; and, lo, they came; for whom thou didst [c] wash thyself, [d] paintedst thy eyes, and deckedst thyself with ornaments.

41 And satest upon a [e] stately [f] bed, and a table prepared before it, [g] whereupon thou

[f] Chap. xvi. 39.——[g] Heb. instruments of thy decking.——[h] Ch. xvi. 41; xxii. 15.——[i] Ver. 3, 19.——[k] Chap. xvi. 37.——[l] Ver. 17.——[m] Chap. xvi. 39; ver. 26.——[n] Chap. vi. 9.——[o] Jer. xxv. 15, &c.——[p] Chap. xxii. 4, 5.——[q] Psa. lxxv. 8; Isa. li. 17. [r] Jer. ii. 32; iii. 21; xiii. 25; chap. xxii. 12.——[s] 1 Kings xiv. 9; Neh. ix. 26.——[t] Chap. xx. 4; xxii. 2.

[u] Or, plead for.——[v] Isa. lviii. 1.——[w] Chap. xvi. 38; ver. 45. [x] Chap. xvi. 20, 21, 36, 45; xx. 26, 31.——[y] Chap. xxii. 8. [z] 2 Kings xxi. 4.——[a] Heb. coming.——[b] Isa. lvii. 9.——[c] Ruth iii. 3.——[d] 2 Kings ix. 30; Jer. iv. 30.——[e] Heb. honourable. [f] Esth. i. 6; Isa. lvii. 7; Amos ii. 8; vi. 4.——[g] Prov. vii. 17; chap. xvi. 18, 19; Hos. ii. 8.

frequent among the Persians and Chaldeans, as ancient authors tell. Adulteries were punished in this way; and to this Martial refers:—

Quis tibi persuasit nares abscindere mœcho?

"Who has counselled thee to cut off the adulterer's nose?"

Women were thus treated in Egypt. See Calmet.

Verse 26. They shall also strip thee] See on chap. xvi. 39.

Verse 32. Thou shalt drink of thy sister's cup] Thou shalt be ruined and desolated as Samaria was.

Verse 34. Thou shalt—pluck off thine own breasts] Thou shalt tear them; a frequent action in extreme sorrow and desolation. Weeping, tearing the bosom, and beating the breasts.

Tunc vero rupique sinus, et pectora planxi.
OVID'S Ep. 5.

Verse 38. They have defiled my sanctuary] By placing idols there.

Verse 40. Thou didst wash thyself, paintedst thy eyes, and deckedst thyself with ornaments.] This is exactly the way in which a loose female in Bengal adorns herself to receive guests. She first bathes, then rubs black paint around her eyes, and then covers her body with ornaments.—WARD'S Customs.

Verse 41. And satest upon a stately bed] Hast raised a stately altar to thy idols; probably alluding to that which Ahaz ordered to be made, after the similitude of that which he saw at Damascus. The bed here is in allusion to the sofas on which the ancients were accustomed to recline at their meals; or to the couches hast set mine incense and mine oil.

A. M. cir. 3411. B. C. cir. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

42 And a voice of a multitude being at ease was with her: and with the men [h] of the common sort were brought [i] Sabeans from the wilderness, which put bracelets upon their hands, and beautiful crowns upon their heads.

43 Then said I unto her that was old in adulteries, Will they now commit [k] whoredoms with her, and she with them?

44 Yet they went in unto her, as they go in unto a woman that playeth the harlot: so went they in unto Aholah and unto Aholibah, the lewd women.

45 And the righteous men, they shall [l] judge them after the manner of adulteresses, and after the manner of women that shed blood; because they are adulteresses, and [m] blood is in their hands.

A. M. cir. 3411 B. C. cir. 593. Ol. XLVI. 4. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

46 For thus saith the Lord GOD; [n] I will bring up a company upon them, and will give them [o] to be removed and spoiled.

47 [p] And the company shall stone them with stones, and [q] despatch them with their swords; they [r] shall slay their sons and their daughters, and burn up their houses with fire.

48 Thus [s] will I cause lewdness to cease out of the land, [t] that all women may be taught not to do after your lewdness.

49 And they shall recompense your lewdness upon you, and ye shall [u] bear the sins of your idols: [v] and ye shall know that I am the Lord GOD.

[h] Heb. of the multitude of men.——[i] Or, drunkards.——[k] Heb. her whoredoms.——[l] Chap. xvi. 38.——[m] Ver. 37.——[n] Chap. xvi. 40.——[o] Heb. for a removing and spoil.——[p] Chap. xvi. 41.

[q] Or, single them out.——[r] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 17, 19; chap. xxiv. 21.——[s] Chap. xxii. 15; ver. 27.——[t] Deut. xiii. 11; 2 Pet. ii. 6 [u] Ver. 35.——[v] Chap. xx. 38, 42, 44; xxv. 5.

on which they place Asiatic brides, with incense pots and sweetmeats on a table before them.

Verse 42. And a voice of a multitude] This seems to be an account of an idolatrous festival, where a riotous multitude was assembled, and fellows of the baser sort, with bracelets on their arms and chaplets on their heads, performed the religious rites.

Verse 45. And the righteous men] אנשים צדיקים anashim tsaddikim. The Chaldeans, thus called because they are appointed by God to execute judgment on these criminals.

Verse 47. Shall stone them with stones] As they did adulteresses under the law. See Lev. xx. 10, Deut. xxii. 22, compared with John viii. 3.

Verse 48. Thus will I cause lewdness to cease] Idolatry; and from that time to the present day the Jews never relapsed into idolatry.

Verse 49. Ye shall bear the sins of your idols] The punishment due to your adultery; your apostasy from God, and setting up idolatry in the land.

CHAPTER XXIV.

The prophet now informs those of the captivity of the very day on which Nebuchadnezzar was to lay siege to Jerusalem, (compare Jer. lii. 4,) and describes the fate of that city and its inhabitants by a very apt similitude, 1–14. As another sign of the greatness of those calamities, the prophet is forbidden to mourn for his wife, of whom he is to be deprived; intimating thereby that the sufferings of the Jews should be so astonishing as to surpass all expressions of grief; and that private sorrow, however affectionate and tender the object, ought to be absorbed in the public calamities, 15–18. The prophet, having farther expressed his prediction in plain terms, intimates that he was to speak to them no more till they should have the news of these prophecies having been fulfilled, 19–27.

A. M. 3414. B. C. 590. Ol. XLVII. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 27.

AGAIN in the ninth year, in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, the [a] word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, write thee the name of the day, even of this same day: the king of Babylon set himself against Jerusalem [b] this same day.

A. M. 3414. B. C. 590. Ol. XLVII. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 27.

3 [c] And utter a parable unto the rebellious

[a] Chap. xxiii. 1.——[b] 2 Kings xxv. 1; Jer. xxxix. 1; lii. 4.

[c] Chap. xvii. 12.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXIV.

Verse 1. The ninth year] This prophecy was given in the ninth year of Zedekiah, about Thursday, the thirtieth of January, A. M. 3414; the very day in which the king of Babylon commenced the siege of Jerusalem.

Verse 3. Set on a pot] The pot was Jerusalem; the flesh, the inhabitants in general; every good piece, the thigh and the shoulder, King Zedekiah and his family; the bones, the soldiers; and the setting on the pot, the commencement of the siege. The prophet was then in Mesopotamia; and he was told particularly house, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; [d] Set on a pot, set it on, and also pour water into it:

A. M. 3414. B. C. 590. Ol. XLVII. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 27.

4 Gather the pieces thereof into it, even every good piece, the thigh, and the shoulder; fill it with the choice bones.

5 Take the choice of the flock, and [e] burn also the bones under it, and make it boil well, and let them seethe the bones of it therein.

6 Wherefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Wo to [f] the bloody city, to the pot whose scum is therein, and whose scum is not gone out of it! bring it out piece by piece; let no [g] lot fall upon it.

7 For her blood is in the midst of her; she set it upon the top of a rock; [h] she poured it not upon the ground, to cover it with dust;

8 That it might cause fury to come up to take vengeance; [i] I have set her blood upon the top of a rock, that it should not be covered.

9 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; [k] Wo to the bloody city! I will even make the pile for fire great.

10 Heap on wood, kindle the fire, consume the flesh, and spice it well, and let the bones be burned.

A. M. 3414. B. C. 590. Ol. XLVII. 3 Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 27.

11 Then set it empty upon the coals thereof, that the brass of it may be hot, and may burn, and that [l] the filthiness of it may be molten in it, that the scum of it may be consumed.

12 She hath wearied herself with lies, and her great scum went not forth out of her: her scum shall be in the fire.

13 In thy filthiness is lewdness; because I have purged thee, and thou wast not purged, thou shalt not be purged from thy filthiness any more, [m] till I have caused my fury to rest upon thee.

14 [n] I the LORD have spoken it: it shall come to pass, and I will do it; I will not go back; [o] neither will I spare, neither will I repent; according to thy ways, and according to thy doings, shall they judge thee, saith the Lord GOD.

15 Also the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

16 Son of man, behold, I take away from thee the desire of thine eyes with a stroke:

[d] See Jer. i. 13; chap. xi. 3.——[e] Or, heap.——[f] Chap. xxii. 3; xxiii. 37; ver. 9.——[g] See 2 Sam. viii. 2; Joel iii. 3; Obad. 11; Nah. iii. 10.

[h] Lev. xvii. 13; Deut. xii. 16, 24.——[i] Matt. vii. 2.——[k] Ver. 6; Nah. iii. 1; Hab. ii. 12.——[l] Chap. xxii. 15.——[m] Chap. v. 13; viii. 18; xvi. 42.——[n] 1 Sam. xv. 29.——[o] Chap. v. 11.

to mark the day, &c., that it might be seen how precisely the spirit of prophecy had shown the very day in which the siege took place. Under the same image of a boiling pot, Jeremiah had represented the siege of Jerusalem, chap. i. 13. Ezekiel was a priest; the action of boiling pots was familiar to him, as these things were much in use in the temple service.

Verse 5. Make it boil well] Let it boil over, that its own scum may augment the fire, that the bones—the soldiers, may be seethed therein. Let its contentions, divided counsels, and disunion be the means of increasing its miseries. רתח רתחיה rattach rethacheyha, let it bubble its bubbling; something like that of the poet:—

> "Bubble, bubble, toil and trouble:
> Fire burn, and cauldron bubble."

Very like the noise made by ebullition, when a pot of thick broth, "sleek and slab," is set over a fierce fire. Such was that here represented, in which all the flesh, the fat, and the bones were to be boiled, and generally dissolved together.

Verse 6. Let no lot fall upon it.] Pull out the flesh indiscriminately; let no piece be chosen for king or priest; thus showing that all should be involved in one indiscriminate ruin.

Verse 7. For her blood is in the midst of her] She gloried in her idol sacrifices; she offered them upon a rock, where the blood should remain evident; and she poured none upon the ground to cover it with dust, in horror of that moral evil that required the blood of an innocent creature to be shed, in order to the atonement of the offender's guilt. To "cover the blood of the victim," was a command of the law, Lev. xvii. 13; Deut. xii. 24.

Verse 8. That it might cause fury] This very blood shall be against them, as the blood of Abel was against Cain.

Verse 10. Heap on wood] Let the siege be severe, the carnage great, and the ruin and catastrophe complete.

Verse 13. In thy filthiness is lewdness] זמה zimmah, a word that denominates the worst kinds of impurity; adultery, incest, &c., and the purpose, wish, design, and ardent desire to do these things. Hers were not accidental sins, they were abominations by design; and they were the worse in her, because God had cleansed her, had separated the Israelites from idolatry and idolatrous nations, and by his institutions removed from them all idolatrous incentives. But they formed alliances with the heathen, and adopted all their abominations; therefore God would not spare them See ver. 14.

Verse 16. Behold, I take away from thee the desire of thine eyes] Here is an intimation that the stroke he was to suffer was to be above all grief; that it would be so great as to prevent the relief of tears.

Curæ leves loquuntur, graviores silent, is a well-accredited maxim in such cases. Superficial

A. M. 3414. B. C. 590. Ol. XLVII. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 27.

yet neither shalt thou mourn nor weep, neither shall thy tears [p] run down.

17 [q] Forbear to cry, [r] make no mourning for the dead, [s] bind the tire of thine head upon thee, and [t] put on thy shoes upon thy feet, and [u] cover not thy [v] lips, and eat not the bread of men.

18 So I spake unto the people in the morning: and at even my wife died; and I did in the morning as I was commanded.

19 And the people said unto me, [w] Wilt thou not tell us what these things are to us, that thou doest so?

20 Then I answered them, The word of the LORD came unto me, saying, 21 Speak unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, [x] I will profane my sanctuary, the excellency of your strength, [y] the desire of your eyes, and [z] that which your soul pitieth; [a] and your sons and your daughters whom ye have left, shall fall by the sword.

22 And ye shall do as I have done: [b] ye shall not cover your lips, nor eat the bread of men.

A. M. 3414. B. C. 590. Ol. XLVII. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 27.

23 And your tires shall be upon your heads, and your shoes upon your feet: [c] ye shall not mourn nor weep; but [d] ye shall pine away for your iniquities, and mourn one toward another.

24 Thus [e] Ezekiel is unto you a sign: according to all that he hath done shall ye do: [f] and when this cometh, [g] ye shall know that I am the Lord GOD.

25 Also, thou son of man, shall it not be in the day when I take from them [h] their strength, the joy of their glory, the desire of their eyes, and [i] that whereupon they set their minds, their sons and their daughters, 26 That [k] he that escapeth in that day shall come unto thee, to cause thee to hear it with thine ears?

27 [l] In that day shall thy mouth be opened to him which is escaped, and thou shalt speak, and be no more dumb: and [m] thou shalt be a sign unto them; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

---

[p] Heb. go.——[q] Heb. Be silent.——[r] Jer. xvi. 5, 6, 7.——[s] See Lev. x. 6; xxi. 10.——[t] 2 Sam. xv. 30.——[u] Mic. iii. 7. [v] Heb. upper lip; and so ver. 22; Lev. xiii. 45.——[w] Chap. xii. 9; xxxvii. 18.——[x] Jer. vii. 14; chap. vii. 20, 21, 22. [y] Psa. xxvii. 4.——[z] Heb. the pity of your soul.——[a] Chapter xxiii. 47.

[b] Jer. xvi. 6, 7; ver. 17.——[c] Job xxvii. 15; Psa. lxxviii. 64.——[d] Lev. xxvi. 39; chap. xxxiii. 10.——[e] Isa. xx. 3; chap. iv. 3; xii. 6, 11.——[f] Jer. xvii. 15; John xiii. 19; xiv. 29. [g] Chap. vi. 7; xxv. 5.——[h] Ver. 21.——[i] Heb. the lifting up of their soul.——[k] Chap. iii. 21, 22.——[l] Chap. iii. 26, 27; xxix. 21; xxxiii. 22.——[m] Ver. 24.

griefs affect the more easily moved passions; great ones affect the soul itself, in its powers of reasoning, reflecting, comparing, recollecting, &c., when the sufferer feels all the weight of wo.

Neither shall thy tears run down.] Τουτο γαρ ιδιον των οφθαλμων εν τοις μεγαλοις κακοις· εν μεν γαρ ταις μετριαις συμφοραις αφθονως τα δακρυα καταρρει, ——εν δε τοις ὑπερβαλλουσι δεινοις φευγει και τα δακρυα και προδιδωσι και τους οφθαλμους· Achill. Tat. lib. 3. c. 11. For this is the case with the eyes in great calamities: in light misfortunes tears flow freely, but in heavy afflictions tears fly away, and betray the eyes.

Verse 17. Make no mourning] As a priest, he could make no public mourning, Lev. xxi. 1, &c.

Bind the tire of thine head] This seems to refer to the high priest's bonnet; or perhaps, one worn by the ordinary priests: it might have been a black veil to cover the head.

Put on thy shoes upon thy feet] Walking barefoot was a sign of grief.

Cover not thy lips] Mourners covered the under part of the face, from the nose to the bottom of the chin.

Eat not the bread of men.] לחם אנשים lechem anashim, "the bread of miserable men," i. e., mourners; probably, the funeral banquet.

Verse 18. At even my wife died] The prophet's wife was a type of the city, which was to him exceedingly dear. The death of his wife represented the destruction of the city by the Chaldeans; see ver. 21, where the temple is represented to be the desire of his eyes, as his wife was, ver. 16.

Verse 19. Wilt thou not tell us] In the following verses he explains and applies the whole of what he had done and said.

Verse 27. In that day shall thy mouth be opened] That is, When some one who shall have escaped from Jerusalem, having arrived among the captives, shall inform them of the destruction of the city, the temple, the royal family, and the people at large; till then he might suppress his tears and lamentations. And we find from chap. xxxiii. 21, that one did actually escape from the city, and informed the prophet and his brethren in captivity that the city was smitten.

Thus he was not only a prophet to foretell such things, but he was also a sign or portent, shadowing them out by circumstances in his own person and family; and thus the prediction, agreeing so perfectly with the event, proved that the previous information was from the Lord.

CHAPTER XXV.

This chapter contains threatenings of the heavy judgments of God against the Ammonites, 1–7; Moabites, 8–11; Edomites, 12–14; and Philistines, 15–17; on account of their hatred to his people, and their insulting them in the time of their distress. These prophecies were fulfilled by the instrumentality of Nebuchadnezzar, about five years after the destruction of Jerusalem. The same events were predicted by several of the other prophets, as may be seen from the citation of parallel texts in the margin.

A. M. 3414. B. C. 590. Ol. XLVII. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 27.

THE word of the LORD came again unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, [a] set thy face [b] against the Ammonites, and prophesy against them;

3 And say unto the Ammonites, Hear the word of the Lord GOD; Thus saith the Lord GOD; [c] Because thou saidst, Aha, against my sanctuary, when it was profaned; and against the land of Israel, when it was desolate; and against the house of Judah, when they went into captivity;

4 Behold, therefore I will deliver thee to the [d] men of the east for a possession, and they shall set their palaces in thee, and make their dwellings in thee: they shall eat thy fruit, and they shall drink thy milk.

5 And I will make [e] Rabbah [f] a stable for camels, and the Ammonites a couching-place for flocks: [g] and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

6 For thus saith the Lord GOD; Because thou [h] hast clapped thine [i] hands, and stamped with the [k] feet, and [l] rejoiced in [m] heart with all thy despite against the land of Israel;

A. M. 3414. B. C. 590. Ol. XLVII 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 27

7 Behold, therefore I will [n] stretch out mine hand upon thee, and will deliver thee for [o] a spoil to the heathen; and I will cut thee off from the people, and I will cause thee to perish out of the countries: I will destroy thee; and [p] thou shalt know that I am the LORD.

8 Thus saith the Lord GOD; Because that [q] Moab and [r] Seir do say, Behold, the house of Judah is like unto all the heathen;

9 Therefore, behold, I will open the [s] side of Moab from the cities, from his cities which are on his frontiers, the glory of the country, Beth-jeshimoth, Baal-meon, and Kiriathaim,

10 [t] Unto the men of the east [u] with the Ammonites, and will give them in possession, that the Ammonites [v] may not be remembered among the nations.

[a] Chap. vi. 2; xxxv. 2.——[b] Jer. xlix. 1, &c.; chap. xxi. 28; Amos i. 13; Zeph. ii. 9.——[c] Prov. xvii. 5; chap. xxvi. 2.
[d] Heb. children.——[e] Chap. xxi. 20.——[f] Isa. xvii. 2; xxxii. 14; Zeph. ii. 14, 15.——[g] Chap. xxiv. 24; xxvi. 6; xxxv. 9.——[h] Job xxvii. 23; Lam. ii. 15; Zeph. ii. 15.——[i] Heb. hand.
[k] Heb. foot.——[l] Chap. xxxvi. 5; Zeph. ii. 8, 10.——[m] Heb. soul.——[n] Chap. xxxv. 3.——[o] Or, meat.——[p] Chap. xxii. 16; xxiv. 24.——[q] Isa. xv., xvi; Jer. xlviii. 1, &c.; Amos ii. 1.
[r] Chap. xxxv. 2, 5, 12.——[s] Heb. shoulder of Moab.——[t] Ver. 4.
[u] Or, against the children of Ammon.——[v] Chap. xxi. 32.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXV.

Verse 1. The word of the Lord] The chronological order of this chapter is after chap. xxxiii. 21, &c. See Abp. Newcome.

Verse 2. Set thy face against the Ammonites] We have already seen, chap. xxi. 19, &c., that when Nebuchadnezzar left Babylon, he was in doubt whether he should besiege Riblath, the capital of the Ammonites, or Jerusalem, the capital of the Jews, first: and having used his divination, he was determined, by the result, to attack Jerusalem the first. He did so: and the Ammonites, seeing the success of his arms, made friends with him, and exulted in the ruin of the Jews. God resents this, and predicts their downfall with that of Edom, Moab, and the Philistines. The fulfilment of this prediction is not noted in Scripture: but Josephus tells us, that about five years after the taking of Jerusalem, Nebuchadnezzar turned his arms against the Ammonites and Moabites, and afterwards against Egypt; and having subdued those nations, he returned to Babylon. Joseph. Antiq., l. x., c. ii. Berosus states, as quoted by Josephus, contra App., that Nebuchadnezzar subdued Syria, Arabia, Phœnicia, and Egypt: and consequently, that he had brought under his dominion the Ammonites, Moabites, and Idumeans, who were included among the Philistines. See Calmet.

Verse 4. Will deliver thee to the men of the east] Probably the Scenite Arabs, Ishmaelites, and people of Kedar, who seized upon the provinces of the vanquished Ammonites, &c. The following description suits this people only, living on fruits, the milk of their flocks, using camels, &c. Some think the people of the east mean the Chaldeans.

Verse 7. I will cause thee to perish] Except in history, the name of the Ammonites does not now exist.

Verse 8. Moab and Seir do say] Seir means the Idumeans. It appears that both these, with the Ammonites, had made a league with Zedekiah, Jer. xxvii. 3, which they did not keep; and it is supposed that they even joined with the Chaldeans.

Verse 9. I will open the side] כתף ketheph, the shoulder, the strongest frontier place. Beth-jeshimoth, Baal-meon, and Kiriathaim were strong frontier towns of Moab.

Verse 10. That the Ammonites] The Syriac has, "That Rabbah of the sons of Ammon be not remembered."

A. M. 3414. B. C. 590. Ol. XLVII. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 27.

11 And I will execute judgments upon Moab; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

12 Thus saith the Lord GOD; [w] Because that Edom hath dealt against the house of Judah [x] by taking vengeance, and hath greatly offended, and revenged himself upon them;

13 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; I will also stretch out mine hand upon Edom, and will cut off man and beast from it; and I will make it desolate from Teman; and [y] they of Dedan shall fall by the sword.

14 And [z] I will lay my vengeance upon Edom by the hand of my people Israel: and they shall do in Edom according to mine anger and according to my fury; and they shall know my vengeance, saith the Lord GOD.

A. M. 3414. B. C. 590. Ol. XLVII. 3. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 27.

15 Thus saith the Lord GOD; [a] Because [b] the Philistines have dealt by revenge, and have taken vengeance with a despiteful heart, to destroy it [c] for the old hatred;

16 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, [d] I will stretch out mine hand upon the Philistines, and I will cut off the [e] Cherethims, [f] and destroy the remnant of the [g] sea coasts.

17 And I will [h] execute great [i] vengeance upon them with furious [k] rebukes; [l] and they shall know that I am the LORD, when I shall lay my vengeance upon them.

[w] 2 Chron. xxviii. 17; Psa. cxxxvii. 7; Jer. xlix. 7, 8, &c.; chap. xxxv. 2, &c.; Amos i. 11; Obad. 10, &c.; 1 Esd. iv. 45. [x] Heb. by revenging revengement.——[y] Or, they shall fall by the sword unto Dedan.——[z] See Isa. xi. 14; Jer. xlix. 2; 1 Mac. v. 3; 2 Mac. x. 16, 17.——[a] Jer. xxv. 20; xlvii. 1, &c.; Joel iii. 4, &c.; Amos i. 6.——[b] 2 Chron. xxviii. 18.——[c] Or, with perpetual hatred.——[d] Zeph. ii. 4, &c.——[e] 1 Sam. xxx. 14.——[f] Jer. xlvii. 4.——[g] Or, haven of the sea.——[h] Chap. v. 15.——[i] Heb. vengeances.——[k] 1 Chron. xii. 17; Psa. lxviii. 30; Isa. ii. 4; xvii. 13; Mic. iv. 3; Mal. iii. 11.——[l] Psa. ix. 16.

Verse 12. Because that Edom hath dealt] The Edomites were the most inveterate enemies of the Jews from the very earliest times, and ever did all that they could to annoy them.

Verse 13. I will make it desolate from Teman] Teman and Dedan were both cities of the Moabites, and apparently at each extremity of the land.

Verse 14. I will lay my vengeance upon Edom] God will not allow men to insult those whom he has cast down. His judgment is sufficient; to add more is an insult to God.

By the hand of my people Israel] This was fulfilled by the Maccabees, who not only defeated them and brought them under complete subjection, but obliged them to receive circumcision, Joseph. Antiq. l. xiii., c. 17; 1 Macc. v. 65; 2 Macc. x. 16.

Verse 15. Because the Philistines] They were as inimical to the Jews as the Ammonites, &c., were. Nebuchadnezzar punished them because they had assisted the Tyrians during the time he was besieging their city.

I will cut off the Cherethims] See the note on 2 Sam. viii. 18.

The remnant of the sea coasts.] The different seignories of the Philistines inhabited the coast of the Mediterranean Sea, from Judea to Egypt. For other matters relative to these prophecies, see the passages in the margin.

CHAPTER XXVI.

This prophecy, beginning here and ending in the twentieth verse of the twenty-eighth chapter, is a declaration of the judgments of God against Tyre, a very famous commercial city of antiquity, which was taken by Nebuchadnezzar after an arduous siege of thirteen years. The prophet begins with introducing Tyre insulting Jerusalem, and congratulating herself on the prospect of accession to her commerce now that this city was no more, 1, 2. Upon which God denounces utter destruction to Tyre, and the cities depending on her, 3–6. We have then a particular account of the person raised up in the course of the Divine providence to accomplish this work. We see, as it were, his mighty hosts, (which are likened to the waves of the sea for their multitude,) raising the mounds, setting the engines, and shaking the walls; we hear the noise of the horsemen, and the sound of their cars; we see the clouds of smoke and dust; we see the sword bathed in blood, and hear the groans of the dying. Tyre, (whose buildings were very splendid and magnificent, and whose walls were one hundred and fifty feet in height, with a proportionable breadth,) immediately disappears; her strong (and as she thought impregnable) towers are thrown down; and her very dust is buried in the sea. Nothing remains but the bare rock, 7–14. The scene is then varied. The isles and adjacent regions, by a very strong and beautiful figure, are represented to be shaken, as with a mighty earthquake by violent concussion occasioned by the fall of Tyre. The groans of the dying reach the ears of the people inhabiting these regions. Their princes, alarmed for themselves and grieved for Tyre, descend from their thrones, lay aside their robes, and clothe themselves with—sackcloth?—no, but with trembling! Arrayed in this astonishing attire, the prophet introduces them as a chorus of mourners, lamenting Tyre in a funeral song or dirge, as customary on the death of renowned personages. And pursuing the same image still farther, in the person of God, he performs the last sad office for her. She is brought forth from her place in solemn pomp; the pit is dug for her; and she is buried, to rise no more, 15–21. Such is the prophecy concerning Tyre, comprehending both the city on the continent and that on the island, and most punctually fulfilled in regard to both. That on the continent was razed to the ground by Nebuchadnezzar, B. C. 572, and that on the island by Alexander the Great, B. C. 332. And at present, and for ages past, this ancient and renowned city, once the emporium of the world, and by her great naval superiority the centre of a powerful monarchy, is literally what the prophet has repeatedly foretold it should be, and what in his time was, humanly speaking, so highly improbable—a BARE rock, a place to spread nets on!

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

AND it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the first day of the month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, [a] because that Tyrus hath said against Jerusalem, [b] Aha, she is broken that was the gates of the people: she is turned unto me: I shall be replenished, now she is laid waste:

3 Therefore, thus saith the Lord GOD: Behold, I am against thee, O Tyrus, and will cause many nations to come up against thee, as the sea causeth his waves to come up.

4 And they shall destroy the walls of Tyrus, and break down her towers: I will also scrape her dust from her, and [c] make her like the top of a rock.

5 It shall be a place for the spreading of nets, [d] in the midst of the sea: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord GOD: and it shall become a spoil to the nations.

6 And her daughters which are in the field shall be slain by the sword; [e] and they shall know that I am the LORD.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

7 For thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I will bring upon Tyrus Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, [f] a king of kings, from the north, with horses, and with chariots, and with horsemen, and companies, and much people.

8 He shall slay with the sword thy daughters in the field: and he shall [g] make a fort against thee, and [h] cast a mount against thee, and lift up the buckler against thee.

9 And he shall set engines of war against thy walls, and with his axes he shall break down thy towers.

10 By reason of the abundance of his horses their dust shall cover thee: thy walls shall shake at the noise of the horsemen, and of the wheels, and of the chariots, when he shall enter into thy gates, [i] as men enter into a city wherein is made a breach.

[a] Isa. xxiii.; Jer. xxv. 22; xlvii. 4; Amos i. 9; Zech. ix. 2. [b] Chap. xxv. 3; xxxvi. 2.——[c] Ver. 14.——[d] Chap. xxvii. 32. [e] Chap. xxv. 5.

[f] Ezra vii. 12; Dan. ii. 37.——[g] Chap. xxi. 22.——[h] Or, pour out the engine of shot.——[i] Heb. according to the enterings of a city broken up.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXVI.

Verse 1. The eleventh year] This was the year in which Jerusalem was taken; the eleventh of the captivity of Jeconiah, and the eleventh of the reign of Zedekiah. What month we are not told, though the day is mentioned. There have been many conjectures about this, which are not of sufficient consequence to be detailed.

Verse 2. Tyrus hath said] From this it would appear that Jerusalem had been taken, which was on the fourth month of this year; but it is possible that the prophet speaks of the event beforehand.

She is broken that was the gates of the people] Jerusalem, a general emporium.

I shall be replenished] The merchandise that went to Jerusalem will come to me, (to Tyre.)

Verse 3. Will cause many nations to come up against thee] We have already seen that the empire of the Chaldeans was composed of many different provinces, and that Nebuchadnezzar's army was composed of soldiers from different nations: these may be the people meant; but I doubt whether this may not refer to the different nations which in successive ages fought against Tyre. It was at last finally destroyed in the sixteenth century of the Christian era.

Verse 4. I will also scrape her dust from her] I will totally destroy her fortifications, and leave her nothing but a barren rock, as she was before. This cannot refer to the capture of Tyre by Nebuchadnezzar. It flourished long after his time.

Verse 5. A place for the spreading of nets] A place for the habitation of some poor fishermen, who spent the fishing season there, and were accustomed to dry their nets upon the rocks. See on ver. 11.

Verse 6. And her daughters] The places dependent on Tyre. As there were two places called Tyre, one on the main land, and the other on a rock in the sea, opposite to that on the main land, sometimes the one seems to be spoken of, and sometimes the other. That on the land, Palætyre, was soon taken; but that in the sea cost Nebuchadnezzar thirteen years of siege and blockade. The two formed only one city, and one state.

Verse 7. Nebuchadrezzar—king of kings] An ancient title among those proud Asiatic despots پادشاہ شاہنشاہ shahinshah and padshah, titles still in use.

Verse 8. Thy daughters in the field] This seems to be spoken of Palætyre, or Tyre on the main land:

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

11 With the hoofs of his horses shall he tread down all thy streets: he shall slay thy people by the sword, and thy strong garrisons shall go down to the ground.

12 And they shall make a spoil of thy riches, and make a prey of thy merchandise: and they shall break down thy walls, and destroy [k] thy pleasant houses: and they shall lay thy stones and thy timber and thy dust in the midst of the water.

13 [l] And I will cause the noise of [m] thy songs to cease; and the sound of thy harps shall be no more heard.

14 And [n] I will make thee like the top of a rock: thou shalt be a place to spread nets upon; thou shalt be built no more: for I the LORD have spoken it, saith the Lord GOD.

15 Thus saith the Lord GOD to Tyrus; Shall not the isles [o] shake at the sound of thy fall, when the wounded cry, when the slaughter is made in the midst of thee?

16 Then all the [p] princes of the sea shall [q] come down from their thrones, and lay away their robes, and put off their broidered garments: they shall clothe themselves with [r] trembling; [s] they shall sit upon the ground, and [t] shall tremble at every moment, and [u] be astonished at thee.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29

17 And they shall take up a [v] lamentation for thee, and say to thee, How art thou destroyed, that wast inhabited [w] of seafaring men, the renowned city, which wast [x] strong in the sea, she and her inhabitants, which cause their terror to be on all that haunt it!

18 Now shall [y] the isles tremble in the day of thy fall; yea, the isles that are in the sea shall be troubled at thy departure.

19 For thus saith the Lord GOD; When I shall make thee a desolate city, like the cities that are not inhabited; when I shall bring up the deep upon thee, and great waters shall cover thee;

20 When I shall bring thee down [z] with them that descend into the pit, with the people of old time, and shall set thee in the low parts of the earth, in [a] places desolate of old, with them that go down to the pit, that thou be not inhabited; and I shall set glory [b] in the land of the living;

21 [c] I will make thee [d] a terror, and thou shalt be no more: [e] though thou be sought for, yet shalt thou never be found again, saith the Lord GOD.

[k] Heb. houses of thy desire.——[l] Isa. xiv. 11; xxiv. 8; Jer. vii. 34; xvi. 9; xxv. 10.——[m] Isa. xxiii. 16; chap. xxviii. 13; Rev. xviii. 22.——[n] Ver. 4, 5.——[o] Jer. xlix. 21; ver. 18; chap. xxvii. 28; xxxi. 16.——[p] Isa. xxiii. 8.——[q] Jonah iii. 6. [r] Heb. tremblings.——[s] Job ii. 13.——[t] Chap. xxxii. 10.——[u] Ch. xxvii. 35.

[v] Jer. vii. 29; chap. xix. 1; xxvii. 2, 32; xxviii. 12; xxxii. 2; Rev. xviii. 9.——[w] Heb. of the seas.——[x] Isa. xxiii. 4. [y] Ver. 15.——[z] Chap. xxxii. 18, 24.——[a] Job iii. 14; Psa. cix. 10; Isa. xlix. 19; lix. 10; Amos vii. 9.——[b] Chap. xxxii. 23, 26, 27, 32.——[c] Chap. xxvii. 36; xxviii. 19.——[d] Heb. terrors. [e] Psa. xxxvii. 36.

for farts, maunts, engines of war, horses, and chariots could not be brought to act against the other.

Verse 12. And they shall lay thy stones and thy timber and thy dust in the midst of the water.] This answers to the taking of Tyre by Alexander; he actually took the timbers, stones, rubbish, &c. of old Tyre, and filled up the space between it and new Tyre, and thus connected the latter with the main land; and this he was obliged to do before he could take it.

Verse 14. Thou shalt be built no more] If this refer to Nebuchadnezzar's capture of the city, old Tyre must be intended: that was destroyed by him, and never rebuilt. But I doubt whether the whole of this prophecy do not refer to the taking of Tyre by Alexander, three hundred years after its capture by Nebuchadnezzar. Indeed it may include more recent conquests of this important city. It went through a variety of vicissitudes till 1289, when it and the neighbouring towns were sacked and ravaged by the Mamelukes. Mr. Maundrell, who visited this place, says, "it is a Babel of broken walls, pillars, vaults, &c., there being not so much as one entire house left! Its present inhabitants are only a few poor wretches, harbouring themselves in the vaults, and subsisting chiefly on fishing; who seem to be preserved in this place by Divine Providence as a visible argument how God has fulfilled his word concerning Tyre, that it should be the top of a rock, a place for fishers to dry their nets on."

Verse 15. The isles shake at the sound of thy fall] All those which had traded with this city, which was the grand mart, and on which they all depended. Her ruin involved them all, and caused general wailing.

Verse 16. The princes of the sea] The chief maritime states, such as Leptis, Utica, Carthage, Gades, &c. See Calmet.

Verse 17. Wast strong in the sea] The strength of Tyre was so great, that Alexander despaired of being able to reduce it unless he could fill up that arm of the sea that ran between it and the main land. And this work cost his army seven months of labour.

Verse 20. And I shall set glory in the land of the living.] Judea so called, the land of the living God.

Verse 21. Yet shalt thou never be found again] This is literally true; there is not the smallest vestige of the ancient Tyre, that which was erected on the main land. Even the ground seems to have been washed away; and the new Tyre is in nearly a similar state. I think this prophecy must be extended to the whole duration of Tyre. If it now be found to be in the state here described, it is sufficient to show the truth of the prophecy. And now it is found precisely in the state which the above prophetic declarations, taken according to the letter, point out! No word of God can ever fall to the ground.

Notwithstanding the former destructions, Tyre was a place of some consequence in the time of St. Paul. There was a Church there, (see Acts xxi. 3, 4, &c.,) which afterwards became famous. Calmet observes, it afforded a great number of martyrs for the Christian Church.

CHAPTER XXVII.

This chapter may be considered as the second part of the prophecy concerning Tyre. The prophet pursues his subject in the manner of those ancient lamentations or funeral songs, in which the præficiæ or mourning women first recounted whatever was great or praiseworthy in the deceased, and then mourned his fall. Here the riches, glory, and extensive commerce of Tyre are enlarged upon, 1–25. Her downfall is then described in a beautiful allegory, executed in a few words, with astonishing brevity, propriety, and perspicuity, 26; upon which all the maritime and commercial world are represented as grieved and astonished at her fate, and greatly alarmed for their own, 27–36. Besides the view which this chapter gives of the conduct of Providence, and the example with which it furnishes the critic and man of taste of a very elegant and highly finished piece of composition, it likewise affords the antiquary a very curious and interesting account of the wealth and commerce of ancient times. And to the mind that looks for "a city that hath foundations," what a picture does the whole present of the mutability and inanity of all earthly things! Many of the places mentioned in ancient history have, like Tyre, long ago lost their political consequence; the geographical situation of others cannot be traced; they have sunk in the deep waters of oblivion; the east wind hath carried them away.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

THE word of the LORD came again unto me, saying,

2 Now, thou son of man, [a] take up a lamentation for Tyrus;

3 And say unto Tyrus, [b] O thou that art situate at the entry of the sea, which art [c] a merchant of the people for many isles, Thus saith the Lord GOD; O Tyrus, thou hast said, [d] I am [e] of perfect beauty.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

4 Thy borders are in the [f] midst of the seas, thy builders have perfected thy beauty.

[a] Chap. xix. 1; xxvi. 17; xxviii. 12; xxxii. 2.——[b] Chap. xxviii. 2.——[c] Isa. xxiii. 3.

[d] Chap. xxviii. 12.——[e] Heb. perfect of beauty.——[f] Heb heart.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXVII.

Verse 2. Take up a lamentation for Tyrus] This is a singular and curious chapter. It gives a very circumstantial account of the trade of Tyre with different parts of the world, and the different sorts of merchandise in which she trafficked. The places and the imports are as regularly entered here as they could have been in a European custom-house.

Verse 3. The entry of the sea] Tyre was a small island, or rather rock, in the sea, at a short distance from the main land. We have already seen that there was another Tyre on the main land; but they are both considered as one city.

Verse 4. Thy builders have perfected thy beauty.] Under the allegory of a beautiful ship, the prophet, here and in the following verses, paints the glory of this ancient city. Horace describes the commonwealth of Rome by the same allegory, and is as minute in his description, Carm. lib. i. Od. xiv:—

O navis, referent in mare te novi
Fluctus? O quid agis? Fortiter occupa
Portum. Nonne vides, ut
Nudum remigio latus,
Et malus celeri saucius Africo,
Antennæque gemant? ac sine funibus
Vix durare carinæ
Possint imperiosius
Æquor? non tibi sunt integra lintea;
Non Di, quos iterum pressa voces malo:
Quamvis Pontica pinus,
Sylvæ filia nobilis,
Jactes et genus, et nomen inutile.
Nil pictis timidus navita puppibus
Fidit. Tu, nisi ventis
Debes ludibrium, cave.

Unhappy vessel, shall the waves again
Tumultuous bear thee to the faithless main?
What, would thy madness thus with storms to sport?
Cast firm your anchor in the friendly port.
Behold thy naked decks, the wounded mast,
And sail-yards groan beneath the southern blast.
Nor, without ropes, thy keel can longer brave
The rushing fury of the imperious wave:
Torn are thy sails; thy guardian gods are lost,
Whom you might call, in future tempests tost.
What, though majestic in your pride you stood,
A noble daughter of the Pontic wood,
You now may vainly boast an empty name,
Of birth conspicuous in the rolls of fame.
The mariner, when storms around him rise,
No longer on a painted stern relies.
Ah! yet take heed, lest these new tempests sweep,
In sportive rage, thy glories to the deep.

FRANCIS.

I give this as a striking parallel to many passages in this chapter.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

5 They have [g] made all thy ship boards of fir trees of [h] Senir: they have taken [i] cedars from Lebanon to make masts for thee.

6 Of the oaks of Bashan have they made thine oars: [k] the [l] company of the Ashurites have made thy benches of ivory, brought out of [m] the isles of Chittim.

7 Fine linen with broidered work from Egypt was that which thou spreadest forth to be thy sail; [n] blue and purple from the isles of Elishah was that which covered thee.

8 The inhabitants of Zidon and Arvad were thy mariners: thy wise men, O Tyrus, that were in thee, were thy pilots.

9 The ancients of [o] Gebal and the wise men thereof were in thee thy [p] calkers [q]; all the ships of the sea with their mariners were in thee to occupy thy merchandise.

10 They of Persia and of Lud and of [r] Phut were in thine army, thy men of war: they hanged the shield and helmet in thee; they set forth thy comeliness.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

11 The men of Arvad with thine army were upon thy walls round about, and the Gammadims were in thy towers: they hanged their shields upon thy walls round about; they have made [s] thy beauty perfect.

12 [t] Tarshish was thy merchant by reason of the multitude of all kind of riches; with silver, iron, tin, and lead, they traded in thy fairs.

13 [u] Javan, Tubal, and Meshech, they were thy merchants: they traded [v] the persons of men and vessels of brass in thy [w] market.

14 They of the house of [x] Togarmah traded in thy fairs with horses and horsemen and mules.

[g] Heb. built.——[h] Deut. iii. 9.——[i] Judg. ix. 15.——[k] Or, they have made thy hatches of ivory well trodden.——[l] Heb. the daughter. [m] Jer. ii. 10.——[n] Or, purple and scarlet.——[o] 1 Kings v. 18; Psa. lxxxiii. 7.

[p] Or, stoppers of chinks.——[q] Heb. strengtheners.——[r] Jer. xlvi. 9; chap. xxx. 5; xxxviii. 5.——[s] Ver. 3.——[t] Gen. x. 4; 2 Chron. xx. 36.——[u] Gen. x. 2.——[v] Rev. xviii. 13.——[w] Or, merchandise. [x] Gen. x. 3; chap. xxxviii. 6.

Verse 5. Fir trees of Senir] Senir is a mountain which the Sidonians called Sirion, and the Hebrews Hermon, Deut. iii. 9. It was beyond Jordan, and extended from Libanus to the mountains of Gilead.

Verse 6. Of the oaks of Bashan] Some translate alder, others the pine.

The company of the Ashurites] The word אשרים asherim is by several translated box-wood. The seats or benches being made of this wood inlaid with ivory.

Isles of Chittim] The Italian islands; the islands of Greece; Cyprus. Calmet says Macedonia is meant.

Verse 7. Fine linen] שש shesh, cotton cloth. In this sense the word is generally to be understood.

To be thy sail] Probably the flag—ensign or pennant, is meant.

Blue and purple from the isles of Elishah] Elis, a part of the Peloponnesus.

Verse 8. Zidon and Arvad] Or Arad. Two powerful cities on the Phœnician coast, in the neighbourhood of Tyre, from which Tyre had her sailors; and the best instructed of her own inhabitants were her pilots or steersmen.

Verse 9. The ancients of Gebal] This was a city of Phœnicia, near Mount Libanus, Josh. xiii. 5. It was called Biblos by the Greeks.

Thy calkers] Those who repaired their vessels; paying, as it is termed, pitched hemp into the seams, to prevent the water from oozing through.

To occupy thy merchandise.] That is, to be thy agents or factors.

Verse 10. They of Persia] Lud, the Lydians; Phut, a people of Africa, see Gen. x. 6. From these places they had auxiliary troops; for as they traded with the then known world, were rich, and could afford to give good pay, they no doubt had soldiers and sailors from every part. Skilful and desperate men will go any where after their price.

Verse 11. The Gammadims were in thy towers] Some think these were a people of Phœnicia; others, that tutelar images are meant; others, that the word expresses strong men, who acted as guards. The Vulgate reads Pygmæi, the pygmies, who were fabled to be a little people of a cubit in height, from גמד gomed, a cubit; and we are told that this little people were celebrated for their wars with the cranes; but nothing of this kind can enter into this description. Probably a people inhabiting the promontories of Phœnicia are here intended; and their hanging their shields upon the walls is a proof that soldiers are meant, and persons of skill and prowess too.

Verse 12. Tarshish was thy merchant] After having given an account of the naval and military equipment of this city, he now speaks of the various places and peoples with whom the Tyrians traded, and the different kinds of merchandise imported from those places.

By Tarshish some understand the Carthaginians; some think Tartessus, near the straits of Gibraltar, is meant; others, Tharsis in Cilicia. The place was famous for all the useful metals, silver, iron, tin, and lead. All these they might have had from Britain.

Verse 13. Javan, Tubal, and Meshech] The Ionians, the Tybarenians, and the Cappadocians, or Muscovites.

They traded the persons of men] That is, they trafficked in slaves. The bodies and souls of men were bought and sold in those days, as in our degenerate age. With these also they traded in brazen vessels.

Verse 14. Togarmah] The Sarmatians. Some think Cappadocia. With these they dealt in horses,

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

15 The men of [y] Dedan were thy merchants; many isles were the merchandise of thine hand: they brought thee for a present horns of ivory and ebony.

16 Syria was thy merchant by reason of the multitude of [z] the wares of thy making: they occupied in thy fairs with emeralds, purple, and broidered work, and fine linen, and coral, and [a] agate.

17 Judah, and the land of Israel, they were thy merchants: they traded in thy market [b] wheat of [c] Minnith, and Pannag, and honey, and oil, and [d] balm.[e]

18 Damascus was thy merchant in the multitude of the wares of thy making, for the multitude of all riches; in the wine of Helbon, and white wool.

19 Dan also and Javan [f] going to and fro occupied in thy fairs: bright iron, cassia, and calamus, were in thy market.

20 [g] Dedan was thy merchant in [h] precious clothes for chariots.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

21 Arabia, and all the princes of [i] Kedar, [k] they occupied with thee in lambs, and rams, and goats: in these were they thy merchants.

22 The merchants of [l] Sheba and Raamah, they were thy merchants: they occupied in thy fairs with chief of all spices, and with all precious stones, and gold.

23 [m] Haran, and Canneh, and Eden, the merchants of [n] Sheba, Asshur, and Chilmad, were thy merchants.

24 These were thy merchants in [o] all sorts of things, in blue [p] clothes, and broidered work, and in chests of rich apparel, bound with cords, and made of cedar, among thy merchandise.

25 [q] The ships of Tarshish did sing of thee in thy market: and thou wast replenished, and made very glorious [r] in the midst of the seas.

26 Thy rowers have brought thee into great

---

[y] Gen. x. 7.——[z] Heb. thy works.——[a] Heb. chrysoprase. [b] 1 Kings v. 9, 11; Ezra iii. 7; Acts xii. 20.——[c] Judg. xi. 33. [d] Jer. viii. 22.——[e] Or, rosin.——[f] Or, Meuzal.——[g] Gen. xxv. 3. [h] Heb. clothes of freedom.——[i] Gen. xxv. 13; Isa. lx. 7.

[k] Heb. they were the merchants of thy hand.——[l] Gen. x. 7, 1 Kings x. 1, 2; Psa. lxxii. 10, 15; Isa. lx. 6.——[m] Gen. xi. 31, 2 Kings xix. 12.——[n] Gen. xxv. 3.——[o] Or, excellent things. [p] Heb. foldings.——[q] Psa. xlviii. 7; Isa. ii. 16; xxiii. 14.——[r] Ver. 4.

---

mules, and horsemen; or probably draught horses and war horses are intended.

Verse 15. The men of Dedan] Dedan was one of the descendants of Abraham by Keturah, and dwelt in Arabia, Gen. xxv. 3. Ivory and ebony might come from that quarter. By way of distinction ivory is called both in Hebrew שֵׁן shen, and in Arabic شن shen, the TOOTH, as that beautiful substance is the tooth of the elephant.

Verse 16. Syria] These were always a mercantile people. For the precious stones mentioned here see the notes on Exod. xxviii. 17.

Verse 17. Judah, and the land of Israel—traded in thy markct wheat] The words have been understood as articles of merchandise, not names of places. So the Jews traded with the Tyrians in wheat, stacte, balsam, honey, oil, and resin.

Verse 18. Damascus—wine of Helbon] Now called by the Turks Haleb, and by us Aleppo.

White wool.] Very fine wool: wool of a fine quality. Some think Milesian wool is meant.

Verse 19. Dan also and Javan] It is probable that both these words mean some of the Grecian islands.

Going to and fro] They both took and brought—imported and exported: but מאוזל meuzal, from uzal, may be a proper name. What place is signified I cannot tell, unless it be Azal, a name, according to Kamoos, of the capital of Arabia Felix.

Verse 20. Dedan] Possibly the descendants of Dedan, son of Raamah, see Gen. x. 7.

In precious clothes for chariots.] Either fine carpets, or rich housings for horses, camels, &c., used for riding.

Verse 21. Arabia, and all the princes of Kedar] Arabia Deserta, on the confines of the Dead Sea. The Kedarenes inhabited the same country. These brought lambs, rams, and goats for the consumption of the city.

Verse 22. Sheba and Raamah] Inhabitants of Arabia Felix, at the entrance of the Persian Gulf, who were famous for their riches and spices.

Verse 23. Haran] In Mesopotamia; well known in Scripture.

Canneh] Or Chalane; see Gen. x. 10. It is supposed to be a cape or port of Arabia Felix, on the Indian Sea.

Eden] Equally famous: supposed to have been situated near the confluence of the Tigris and Euphrates.

Sheba] Different from that in ver. 22. This was probably near the country of the Edomites.

Asshur] Perhaps the Assyrians.

Chilmad] Possibly Cholmadora, on the Euphrates. Ptol. lib. v., cap. 15. For several of these places, and the persons from whom they derived their names, see Gen. x., and the notes there; and see Calmet.

Verse 24. These were thy merchants in all sorts of things] The above people traded with the Tyrians in a great variety of the most valuable merchandise: blue or purple cloth, boxes of cedar, covered with skins, and bound with silken cords, and sealed with an engraved seal, finely cut, &c. See the Chaldee.

Verse 25. The ships of Tarshish] The ships of Tharsis, in Cilicia, were the chief of those which traded with thee.

Verse 26. Thy rowers have brought thee into great waters] Tyre is still considered under the allegory waters: [s] the east wind hath broken thee in the [t] midst of the seas.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

27 Thy [u] riches, and thy fairs, thy merchandise, thy mariners, and thy pilots, thy calkers, and the occupiers of thy merchandise, and all thy men of war, that are in thee, [v] and in all thy company which is in the midst of thee, shall fall into the [w] midst of the seas in the day of thy ruin.

28 The [x] suburbs [y] shall shake at the sound of the cry of thy pilots.

29 And [z] all that handle the oar, the mariners, and all the pilots of the sea, shall come down from their ships, they shall stand upon the land;

30 And shall cause their voice to be heard against thee, and shall cry bitterly, and shall [a] cast up dust upon their heads, they [b] shall wallow themselves in the ashes:

31 And they shall [c] make themselves utterly bald for thee, and gird them with sackcloth, and they shall weep for thee with bitterness of heart and bitter wailing.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

32 And in their wailing they shall [d] take up a lamentation for thee, and lament over thee, saying, [e] What city is like Tyrus, like the destroyed in the midst of the sea.

33 [f] When thy wares went forth out of the seas, thou filledst many people; thou didst enrich the kings of the earth with the multitude of thy riches and of thy merchandise.

34 In the time when [g] thou shalt be broken by the seas in the depths of the waters, [h] thy merchandise and all thy company in the midst of thee shall fall.

35 [i] All the inhabitants of the isles shall be astonished at thee, and their kings shall be sore afraid, they shall be troubled in their countenance.

36 The merchants among the people [k] shall hiss at thee; [l] thou shalt be [m] a terror, and [n] never shalt be any more.

[s] Psa. xlviii. 7.——[t] Heb. heart.——[u] Prov. xi. 4; ver. 34; Rev. xviii. 9, &c.——[v] Or, even with all.——[w] Heb. heart.——[x] Or, waves.——[y] Chap. xxvi. 15, 18.——[z] Rev. xviii. 17, &c.——[a] Job ii. 12; Rev. xviii. 19.——[b] Esth. iv. 1, 3; Jer. vi. 26.

[c] Jer. xvi. 6; xlvii. 5; Mic. i. 16.——[d] Chap. xxvi. 17; ver. 2. [e] Rev. xviii. 18.——[f] Rev. xviii. 19.——[g] Chap. xxvi. 19. [h] Ver. 27.——[i] Chap. xxvi. 15, 16.——[k] Jer. xviii. 16.——[l] Chap. xxvi. 21.——[m] Heb. terrors.——[n] Heb. shalt not be for ever.

of a ship; and all the vessels of different nations trading with her are represented as towing her into deep waters—bringing her into great affluence. But while in this state, a stormy east wind, or a destructive wind, meaning the Chaldeans, arises, and dashes her to pieces! See the ode from Horace, already quoted on ver. 4.

Verse 27. Thy riches] This vast ship, laden with all kinds of valuable wares, and manned in the best manner, being wrecked, all her valuables, sailors, officers, &c., went to the bottom.

Verse 28. The cry of thy pilots.] When the ship was dashed against the rocks by the violence of the winds and the waves, and all hope of life was taken away, then a universal cry was set up by all on board. I have heard this cry, and nothing more dismal can be imagined, when the ship by a violent tempest is driving among rocks on a lee shore. Then "All lost! cut away the boat!" is more dreadful than the cry of fire at midnight.

Verse 30. Shall cry bitterly] All that were on the land, seeing this dreadful sight, a gallant ship perishing with all her men and goods, are represented as setting up a dismal cry at this heart-rending sight. But what must they have felt who were on board? Reader, wert thou ever shipwrecked? Wert thou ever in a hurricane on a lee rocky shore, where the helm had lost its power, and the sails were rendered useless? Dost thou remember that apparently last moment, when the ship drove up to the tremendous rocks, riding on the back of a mountainous surge? Then what was the universal cry? Hast thou ever heard any thing so terrific? so appalling? so death and judgment-like? No. It is impossible. These are the circumstances, this is the cry, that the prophet describes; disorder, confusion, dismay, and ruin. And this is a scene which the present writer has witnessed, himself a part of the wretched, when all hope of life was taken away, the yawning gulf opened, and nothing presented itself to support body or soul but that God who gave to both their being, and ultimately rescued him and his forlorn companions from one of the worst of deaths, by heaving the ship from the rocks by the agency of a tremendous receding wave. My soul hath these things still in remembrance, and therefore is humbled within me.

Verse 32. What city is like Tyrus] This, to the end of the chapter, is the lamentation.

Verse 36. Shall hiss at thee] שרקו shareku, shall shriek for thee. This powerfully expresses the sensation made on the feelings of the spectators on the shore when they saw the vessel swallowed up.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

The first part of this chapter relates to a king of Tyre, probably the same who is called in the Phœnician annals Ithobalus. He seems to have been a vain man, who affected Divine honours. The prophet treats his foolish pretensions with severe irony, and predicts his doom, 1–10. He then takes up a funeral dirge and lamentation over him, in which his former pomp and splendour are finely contrasted with his fall, in terms that seem frequently to allude to the fall of Lucifer from heaven, (Isa. xiv.,) 11–19. The overthrow of Sidon, the mother city of Tyre, is next announced, 20–23; and the chapter concludes with a promise to the Jews of deliverance from all their enemies, and particularly of their restoration from the Babylonish captivity, 24–26.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

THE word of the LORD came again unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, say unto the prince of Tyrus, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Because thine heart is lifted up, and [a] thou hast said, I am a god, I sit in the seat of God, [b] in the [c] midst of the seas; [d] yet thou art a man, and not God, though thou set thine heart as the heart of God:

3 Behold, [e] thou art wiser than Daniel; there is no secret that they can hide from thee:

4 With thy wisdom and with thine understanding thou hast gotten thee riches, and hast gotten gold and silver into thy treasures:

5 [f] By [g] thy great wisdom and by thy traffic hast thou increased thy riches, and thine heart is lifted up because of thy riches:

6 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Because thou hast set thine heart as the heart of God;

7 Behold, therefore I will bring strangers upon thee, [h] the terrible of the nations: and they shall draw their swords against the beauty of thy wisdom, and they shall defile thy brightness.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

8 They shall bring thee down to the pit, and thou shalt die the deaths of them that are slain in the midst of the seas.

9 Wilt thou yet [i] say before him that slayeth thee, I am God; but thou shalt be a man, and no God, in the hand of him that [k] slayeth thee.

10 Thou shalt die the deaths of [l] the uncircumcised by the hand of strangers: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord GOD.

11 Moreover the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

12 Son of man, [m] take up a lamentation upon the king of Tyrus, and say unto him, Thus saith the Lord GOD; [n] Thou sealest up the sum, full of wisdom, and perfect in beauty.

13 Thou hast been in [o] Eden the garden of God; every precious stone was thy covering, the [p] sardius, topaz, and the diamond, the [q] beryl, the onyx, and the jasper, the sapphire, the [r] emerald, and the carbuncle, and gold:

[a] Ver. 9.——[b] Chap. xxvii. 3, 4.——[c] Heb. heart.——[d] Isa. xxxi. 3. [e] Zech. ix. 2.——[f] Heb. By the greatness of thy wisdom.——[g] Psa. lxii. 10; Zech. ix. 3.——[h] Chap. xxx. 11; xxxi. 12; xxxii. 12.

[i] Ver. 2.——[k] Or, woundeth.——[l] Chap. xxxi. 18; xxxii. 19, 21, 25, 27.——[m] Chap. xxvii. 2.——[n] Chap. xxvii. 3; ver. 3.——[o] Ch. xxxi. 8, 9.——[p] Or, ruby.——[q] Or, chrysolite.——[r] Or, chrysoprase.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXVIII.

Verse 2. Say unto the prince of Tyrus] But who was this prince of Tyrus? Some think Hiram; some, Sin; some, the devil; others, Ithobaal, with whom the chronology and circumstances best agree. Origen thought the guardian angel of the city was intended.

I am a god] That is, I am absolute, independent, and accountable to none. He was a man of great pride and arrogance.

Verse 3. Thou art wiser than Daniel] Daniel was at this time living, and was reputable for his great wisdom. This is said ironically. See chap. xiv. 14; xxvi. 1.

Verse 5. By thy great wisdom] He attributed every thing to himself; he did not acknowledge a Divine providence. As he got all by himself, so he believed he could keep all by himself, and had no need of any foreign help.

Verse 7. I will bring strangers upon thee] The Chaldeans.

Verse 9. Wilt thou yet say before him that slayeth thee] Wilt thou continue thy pride and arrogance when the sword is sheathed in thee, and still imagine that thou art self-sufficient and independent?

Verse 10. The deaths of the uncircumcised] Two deaths, temporal and eternal. Ithobaal was taken and killed by Nebuchadnezzar.

Verse 12. Thou sealest up] This has been translated, "Thou drawest thy own likeness." "Thou formest a portrait of thyself; and hast represented thyself the perfection of wisdom and beauty." I believe this to be the meaning of the place.

Verse 13. Thou hast been in Eden] This also is a strong irony. Thou art like Adam, when in his innocence and excellence he was in the garden of Eden!

Every precious stone was thy covering] For a description of these stones see the note on Exod. xxviii. 17.

Verse 14. Thou art the anointed cherub that covereth] The irony is continued; and here he is likened to the the workmanship of [s] thy tabrets and of thy pipes was prepared in thee in the day that thou wast created.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

14 Thou art the anointed [t] cherub that covereth: and I have set thee so: thou wast upon [u] the holy mountain of God; thou hast walked up and down in the midst of the stones of fire.

15 Thou wast perfect in thy ways from the day that thou wast created, till iniquity was found in thee.

16 By the multitude of thy merchandise they have filled the midst of thee with violence, and thou hast sinned: therefore I will cast thee as profane out of the mountain of God: and I will destroy thee, [v] O covering cherub, from the midst of the stones of fire.

17 [w] Thine heart was lifted up because of thy beauty, thou hast corrupted thy wisdom by reason of thy brightness: I will cast thee to the ground, I will lay thee before kings, that they may behold thee.

18 Thou hast defiled thy sanctuaries by the multitude of thine iniquities, by the iniquity of thy traffic; therefore will I bring forth a fire from the midst of thee, it shall devour thee, and I will bring thee to ashes upon the earth in the sight of all them that behold thee.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

19 All they that know thee among the people shall be astonished at thee: [x] thou shalt be [y] a terror, and never shalt thou be any more.

20 Again the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

21 Son of man, [z] set thy face [a] against Zidon, and prophesy against it,

22 And say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; [b] Behold, I am against thee, O Zidon; and I will be glorified in the midst of thee: and [c] they shall know that I am the LORD, when I shall have executed judgments in her, and shall be [d] sanctified in her.

23 [e] For I will send into her pestilence, and blood into her streets; and the wounded shall be judged in the midst of her by the sword

[s] Chap. xxvi. 13.——[t] See Exod. xxv. 20; ver. 16.——[u] Chap. xx. 40.——[v] Ver. 14.——[w] Ver. 2, 5.——[x] Chap. xxvi. 21; xxvii. 36.——[y] Heb. terrors.——[z] Chap. vi. 2; xxv. 2; xxix. 2.

[a] Isa. xxiii. 4, 12; Jer. xxv. 22; xxvii. 3; chap. xxxii. 30. [b] Exod. xiv. 4, 17; chap. xxxix. 13.——[c] Psa. ix. 16.——[d] Chap. xx. 41; xxxvi. 23; ver. 25.——[e] Chap. xxxviii. 22.

CHERUB that guarded the gates of Paradise, and kept the way of the tree of life; or to one of the cherubs whose wings, spread out, covered the mercy-seat.

Thou wast upon the holy mountain of God] The irony is still continued; and now he is compared to Moses, and afterwards to one of the chief angels, who has walked op and down among the stones of fire; that is, thy floors have been paved with precious stones, that shone and sparkled like fire.

Lucan, describing the splendour of the apartments of Cleopatra, queen of Egypt, speaks in nearly a similar language:—

Nec summis crustata domus, sectisque nitebat
Marmoribus, stabatque sibi non segnis achates,
Purpureusque lapis, totusque effusus in aula
Calcabatur onyx— Pharsal. lib. x.

Rich as some fane by slavish zealots reared,
For the proud banquet stood the hall prepared:
Thick golden plates the latent beams infold,
And the high roof was fretted o'er with gold.
Of solid marble all the walls were made,
And onyx e'en the meaner floor inlaid;
While porphyry and agate round the court
In massy columns rose, a proud support.
Of solid ebony each post was wrought,
From swarthy Meroë profusely brought.
With ivory was the entrance crusted o'er,
And polished tortoise hid each shining door;
While on the cloudy spots enchased was seen
The trusty emerald's never-fading green.
Within the royal beds and couches shone,
Beamy and bright with many a costly stone,
The glowing purple rich. ROWE.

Verse 15. Thou wast perfect in thy ways] The irony seems still to be kept up. Thou hast been like the angels, like Moses, like the cherubs, like Adam, like God, till thy iniquity was found out.

Verse 16. I will cast thee as profane] Thou shalt be cast down from thine eminence.

From the midst of the stones of fire.] Some, supposing that stones of fire means the stars, have thought that the whole refers to the fall of Satan.

Verse 18. Thou hast defiled thy sanctuaries] Irony continued. As God, as the angels, as the cherubim, thou must have had thy sanctuaries; but thou hast defiled them: and as Adam, thou hast polluted thy Eden, and hast been expelled from Paradise.

Verse 19. Thou shalt be a terror] Instead of being an object of adoration thou shalt be a subject of horror, and at last be destroyed with thy city, so that nothing but thy name shall remain. It was entirely burnt by Alexander the Great, as it had been before by Nebuchadnezzar.

Verse 22. I am against thee, O Zidon] Sidon for a long time had possessed the empire of the sea and of all Phœnicia, and Tyre was one of its colonies; but, in process of time, the daughter became greater than the mother. It seems to have been an independent place at the time in which Tyre was taken; but it is likely that it was taken by the Chaldeans soon after the former.

Verse 23. And the wounded] חלל chalal, the soldiery.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

upon her on every side; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

24 And there shall be no more [f] a pricking brier unto the house of Israel, nor any grieving thorn of all that are round about them, that despised them; and they shall know that I am the Lord GOD.

25 Thus saith the Lord GOD; When I shall have [g] gathered the house of Israel from the people among whom they are scattered, and shall be [h] sanctified in them in the sight of the heathen, then shall they dwell in their land that I have given to my servant Jacob.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

26 And they shall [i] dwell [k] safely therein, and shall [l] build houses, and [m] plant vineyards; yea, they shall dwell with confidence, when I have executed judgments upon all those that [n] despise them round about them; and they shall know that I am the LORD their God.

[f] Num. xxxiii. 55; Josh. xxiii. 13.——[g] Isa. xi. 12; xi. 17; xx. 41; xxxiv. 13; xxxvii. 21.——[h] Ver. 22.

[i] Jer. xxiii. 6; chap. xxxvi. 28.——[k] Or, with confidence. [l] Isa. lxv. 21; Amos ix. 14.——[m] Jer. xxxi. 5.——[n] Or, spoil.

All its supports shall be taken away, and its defenders destroyed.

Verse 24. There shall be no more a pricking brier] Nothing to excite Israel to idolatry when restored from their captivity. Perhaps there is an allusion to Jezebel, daughter of Ethbaal, king of Sidon, and wife to Ahab, king of Israel, who was the greatest curse to Israel, and the universal restorer of idolatry in the land, see 1 Kings xvi. 31. Sidon being destroyed, there would come no encourager of idolatry from that quarter.

Verse 25. When I shall have gathered the house of Israel] In their long captivity, God had been preparing the land for them so as to make it a safe dwelling; and hence he executed judgments on all the heathen nations round about by means of the Chaldeans. Thus Tyre and Sidon were destroyed, as were the Ammonites and others who had been the inveterate enemies of the Jews. Judgment first began at his own house, then proceeded to the heathen nations; and when they were brought down, then he visited and redeemed his people. Thus God's ways are proved to be all equal; partialities and caprices belong not to him

CHAPTER XXIX.

This and the three following chapters foretell the conquest of Egypt by Nebuchadnezzar, which he accomplished in the twenty-seventh year of Jehoiachin's captivity. The same event is foretold by Jeremiah, chap. xlvi. 13, &c. The prophecy opens with God's charging the king of Egypt (Pharaoh-hophra) with the same extravagant pride and profanity which were in the preceding chapter laid to the charge of the prince of Tyre. He appears, like him, to have affected Divine honours; and boasted so much of the strength of his kingdom, that, as an ancient historian (Herodotus) tells us, he impiously declared that God himself could not dispossess him. Wherefore the prophet, with great majesty, addresses him under the image of one of those crocodiles or monsters which inhabited that river, of whose riches and revenue he vaunted; and assures him that, with as much ease as a fisherman drags the fish he has hooked, God would drag him and his people into captivity, and that their carcasses should fall a prey to the beasts of the field and to the fowls of heaven, 1–7. The figure is then dropped; and God is introduced denouncing, in plain terms, the most awful judgments against him and his nation, and declaring that the Egyptians should be subjected to the Babylonians till the fall of the Chaldean empire, 8–12. The prophet then foretells that Egypt, which was about to be devastated by the Babylonians, and many of the people carried into captivity, should again become a kingdom; but that it should never regain its ancient political importance; for, in the lapse of time, it should be even the BASEST of the kingdoms, a circumstance in the prophecy most literally fulfilled, especially under the Christian dispensation, in its government by the Mameluke slaves, 13–16. The prophecy, beginning at the seventeenth verse, is connected with the foregoing, as it relates to the same subject, though delivered about seventeen years later. Nebuchadnezzar and his army, after the long siege of Tyre, which made every head bald by constantly wearing their helmets, and wore the skin off every shoulder by carrying burdens to raise the fortifications, were disappointed of the spoil which they expected, by the retiring of the inhabitants to Carthage. God, therefore, promises him Egypt for his reward, 17–20. The chapter concludes with a prediction of the return of the Jews from the Babylonish captivity, 21.

A. M. 3415. B. C. 589. Ol. XLVII. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 28.

IN the tenth year, in the tenth month, in the twelfth day of the month, the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, [a] set thy face against Pharaoh king of Egypt, and prophesy against him, and [b] against all Egypt:

3 Speak, and say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; [c] Behold, I am against thee, Pharaoh king of Egypt, the great [d] dragon that lieth in the midst of his rivers, [e] which hath said, My river is mine own, and I have made it for myself.

4 But [f] I will put hooks in thy jaws, and I will cause the fish of thy rivers to stick unto thy scales, and I will bring thee up out of the midst of thy rivers, and all the fish of thy rivers shall stick unto thy scales.

5 And I will leave thee thrown into the wilderness, thee and all the fish of thy rivers: thou shalt fall upon the [g] open fields; [h] thou shalt not be brought together, nor gathered: [i] I have given thee for meat to the beasts of the field and to the fowls of the heaven.

6 And all the inhabitants of Egypt shall know that I am the LORD, because they have been a [k] staff of reed to the house of Israel.

A. M. 3415. B. C. 589. Ol. XLVII. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 28.

7 [l] When they took hold of thee by thy hand, thou didst break, and rend all their shoulder: and when they leaned upon thee, thou brakest, and madest all their loins to be at a stand.

8 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I will bring [m] a sword upon thee, and cut off man and beast out of thee.

9 And the land of Egypt shall be desolate and waste; and they shall know that I am the LORD: because he hath said, The river is mine, and I have made it.

10 Behold, therefore I am against thee, and against thy rivers, [n] and I will make the land of Egypt [o] utterly waste and desolate, [p] from [q] the tower of [r] Syene even unto the border of Ethiopia.

11 [s] No foot of man shall pass through it, nor foot of beast shall pass through it, neither shall it be inhabited forty years.

12 [t] And I will make the land of Egypt desolate in the midst of the countries that are desolate, and her cities among the cities that

[a] Chap. xxviii. 21.——[b] Isa. xix. 1; Jer. xxv. 19; xlvi. 2, 25. [c] Jer. xliv. 30; chap. xxviii. 22; ver. 10.——[d] Psa. lxxiv. 13, 14; Isa. xxvii. 1; li. 9; chap. xxxii. 2.——[e] See chap. xxviii. 2. [f] Isa. xxxvii. 29; chap. xxxviii. 4.——[g] Heb. face of the field. [h] Jer. viii. 2; xvi. 4; xxv. 33.——[i] Jer. vii. 33; xxxiv. 20.

[k] 2 Kings xviii. 21; Isa. xxxvi. 6.——[l] Jer. xxxvii. 5, 7, 11; chap. xvii. 17.——[m] Chap. xiv. 17; xxxii. 11, 12, 13.——[n] Chap. xxx. 12.——[o] Heb. wastes of waste.——[p] Or, from Migdol to Syene; Exod. xiv. 2; Jer. xliv. 1.——[q] Chap. xxx. 6.——[r] Heb. Seveneh.——[s] Chap. xxxii. 13.——[t] Chap. xxx. 7, 26.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXIX.

Verse 1. In the tenth year] Of Zedekiah; and tenth of the captivity of Jeconiah.

The tenth month, in the twelfth day of the month] Answering to Monday, the first of February, A. M. 3415.

Verse 2. Set thy face against Pharaoh king of Egypt] This was Pharaoh-hophra or Pharaoh-apries, whom we have so frequently met with in the prophecies of Jeremiah, and much of whose history has been given in the notes.

Verse 3. The great dragon] התנים hattannim should here be translated crocodile, as that is a real animal, and numerous in the Nile; whereas the dragon is wholly fabulous. The original signifies any large animal.

The midst of his rivers] This refers to the several branches of the Nile, by which this river empties itself into the Mediterranean. The ancients termed them septem ostia Nili, "the seven mouths of the Nile." The crocodile was the emblem of Egypt.

Verse 4. I will put hooks in thy jaws] Amasis, one of this king's generals, being proclaimed king by an insurrection of the people, dethroned Apries, and seized upon the kingdom; and Apries was obliged to flee to Upper Egypt for safety.

I will cause the fish—to stick unto thy scales] Most fish are sorely troubled with a species of insect which bury their heads in their flesh, under their scales, and suck out the vital juices. The allusion seems to be to this. Pharaoh was the crocodile; the fish, the common people; and the sticking to his scales, the insurrection by which he was wasted and despoiled of his kingdom.

Verse 5. I will leave thee thrown into the wilderness] Referring to his being obliged to take refuge in Upper Egypt. But he was afterwards taken prisoner, and strangled by Amasis. Herod. lib. ii. s. 169.

Verse 6. They have been a staff of reed] An inefficient and faithless ally. The Israelites expected assistance from them when Nebuchadnezzar came against Jerusalem; and they made a feint to help them, but retired when Nebuchadnezzar went against them. Thus were the Jews deceived and ultimately ruined, see ver. 7.

Verse 10. From the tower of Syene] ממגדל כונה mimmigdol seveneh, "from Migdol to Syene." Syene, now called Essuan, was the last city in Egypt, going towards Ethiopia. It was famous for a well into which the rays of the sun fell perpendicularly at midday.

Verse 12. Shall be desolate forty years] The country from Migdol or Magdolan, which was on the isthmus between the Mediterranean and the Red Sea, was so completely ruined, that it might well be called desert; and it is probable that this desolation continued during the whole of the reign of Amasis, which was are laid waste shall be desolate forty years: and I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and will disperse them through the countries.

A. M. 3415. B. C. 589. Ol. XLVII. 4. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 28.

13 Yet thus saith the Lord GOD; At the [u] end of forty years will I gather the Egyptians from the people whither they were scattered:

14 And I will bring again the captivity of Egypt, and will cause them to return into the land of Pathros, into the land of their [v] habitation; and they shall be there a [w] base [x] kingdom.

15 It shall be the basest of the kingdoms; neither shall it exalt itself any more above the nations: for I will diminish them, that they shall no more rule over the nations.

16 And it shall be no more [y] the confidence of the house of Israel, which bringeth their iniquity to remembrance, when they shall look after them: but they shall know that I am the Lord GOD.

17 And it came to pass in the seven and twentieth year, in the first month, in the first day of the month, the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

A. M. 3432. B. C. 572. Ol. LII. 1. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 7.

18 Son of man, [z] Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon caused his army to serve a great service against Tyrus: every head was made bald, and every shoulder was peeled; yet had he no wages, nor his army, for Tyrus, for the service that he had served against it:

19 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I will give the land of Egypt unto Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon; and he shall take her multitude, and [a] take her spoil, and take her prey; and it shall be the wages for his army.

20 I have given him the land of Egypt [b] for his labour wherewith he [c] served against it, because they wrought for me, saith the Lord GOD.

21 In that day [d] will I cause the horn of the house of Israel to bud forth, and I will give thee [e] the opening of the mouth in the midst of them; and they shall know that I am the LORD

[u] Isa. xix. 23; Jer. xlvi. 26.——[v] Or, birth.——[w] Hebrew, low.——[x] Chapter xvii. 6, 14.——[y] Isaiah xxx. 2, 3; xxxvi. 4, 6.

[z] Jer. xxvii. 6; chap. xxvi. 7, 8.——[a] Heb. spoil her spoil, and prey her prey.——[b] Or, for his hire.——[c] Jer. xxv. 9.——[d] Psa. cxxxii. 17.——[e] Chap. xxiv. 27.

just forty years. See Herod. lib. iii. c. 10; and see Calmet.

Verse 13. Will I gather the Egyptians] It is probable that Cyrus gave permission to the Egyptians brought to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar, to return to their own country. And if we reckon from the commencement of the war against Pharaoh-hophra by Nebuchadnezzar, to the third or fourth year of Cyrus, the term will be about forty years.

Verse 14. Into the land of Pathros] Supposed to mean the Delta, a country included between the branches of the Nile; called Δ delta, from its being in the form of the Greek letter of that name. It may mean the Pathrusim, in Upper Egypt, near to the Thebaid. This is most likely.

Shall be there a base kingdom.] That is, it shall continue to be tributary. It is upwards of two thousand years since this prophecy was delivered, and it has been uninterruptedly fulfilling to the present hour. 1. Egypt became tributary to the Babylonians, under Amasis. 2. After the ruin of the Babylonish empire, it became subject to the Persians. 3. After the Persians, it came into the hands of the Macedonians. 4. After the Macedonians it fell into the hands of the Romans. 5. After the division of the Roman empire it was subdued by the Saracens. 6. About A. D. 1250, it came into the hands of the Mameluke slaves. 7. Selim, the ninth emperor of the Turks, conquered the Mamelukes, A. D. 1517, and annexed Egypt to the Ottoman empire, of which it still continues to be a province, governed by a pacha and twenty-four beys, who are always advanced from servitude to the administration of public affairs. So true is it that Egypt, once so glorious, is the basest of kingdoms. See Newton on the prophecies.

Verse 17. The seven and twentieth year] That is, of the captivity of Jeconiah, fifteen years after the taking of Jerusalem; about April 20, 3432. The preceding prophecy was delivered one year before the taking of Jerusalem; this, sixteen years after; and it is supposed to be the last which this prophet wrote.

Verse 18. Caused his army to serve a great service against Tyrus] He was thirteen years employed in the siege. See Joseph. Antiq. lib. x. c. 11. In this siege his soldiers endured great hardships. Being continually on duty, their heads became bald by wearing their helmets; and their shoulders bruised and peeled by carrying baskets of earth to the fortifications, and wood, &c., to build towers, &c.

Yet had he no wages, nor his army] The Tyrians, finding it at last impossible to defend their city, put all their wealth aboard their vessels, sailed out of the port, and escaped for Carthage; and thus Nebuchadnezzar lost all the spoil of one of the richest cities in the world.

Verse 20. I have given him the land of Egypt for his labour] Because he fulfilled the designs of God against Tyre, God promises to reward him with the spoil of Egypt.

Verse 21. Will I cause the horn of the house of Israel to bud] This may refer generally to the restoration; but particularly to Zerubbabel, who became one of the leaders of the people from Babylon. Or it may respect Daniel, or Mordecai, or Jeconiah, who, about this time, was brought out of prison by Evil-merodach, and afterwards kindly treated.

CHAPTER XXX.

This chapter describes, with great force and elegance, the ruin of Egypt and all her allies by the Chaldeans under Nebuchadnezzar, 1–11; with an amplification of the distress of the principal cities of Egypt on that occasion, 12–19. The remaining verses are a short prophecy relating to the same event, and therefore annexed to the longer one preceding, although this was predicted sooner, 20–26.

A. M. 3432. B. C. 572. Olymp. LII. 1. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 7.

THE word of the LORD came again unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, prophesy and say, Thus saith the Lord GOD;

[a] Howl ye, Wo worth the day!

3 For [b] the day is near, even the day of the LORD is near, a cloudy day; it shall be the time of the heathen.

4 And the sword shall come upon Egypt, and great [c] pain shall be in Ethiopia, when the slain shall fall in Egypt, and they [d] shall take away her multitude, and [e] her foundations shall be broken down.

5 Ethiopia, and [f] Libya, and Lydia, and [g] all the mingled people, and Chub, and the [h] men of the land that is in league, shall fall with them by the sword.

6 Thus saith the LORD; They also that uphold Egypt shall fall; and the pride of her power shall come down: [i] from [k] the tower of Syene shall they fall in it by the sword, saith the Lord GOD.

7 [l] And they shall be desolate in the midst of the countries that are desolate, and her cities shall be in the midst of the cities that are wasted.

8 And they shall know that I am the LORD, when I have set a fire in Egypt, and when all her helpers shall be [m] destroyed.

A. M. 3432. B. C. 572. Olymp. LII. 1. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 7.

9 In that day [n] shall messengers go forth from me in ships to make the careless Ethiopians afraid, and great pain shall come upon them, as in the day of Egypt: for, lo, it cometh.

10 Thus saith the Lord GOD: [o] I will also make the multitude of Egypt to cease by the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon.

11 He and his people with him, [p] the terrible of the nations, shall be brought to destroy the land: and they shall draw their swords against Egypt, and fill the land with the slain.

12 And [q] I will make the rivers [r] dry, and [s] sell the land into the hand of the wicked: and I will make the land waste, and [t] all that is therein, by the hand of strangers: I the LORD have spoken it.

13 Thus saith the Lord GOD; I will also [u] destroy the idols, and I will cause their images to cease out of Noph; [v] and there shall be no more a prince of the land of Egypt: [w] and I will put a fear in the land of Egypt.

[a] Isa. xiii. 6.——[b] Chap. vii. 7, 12; Joel ii. 1; Zeph. i. 7. [c] Or, fear.——[d] Chap. xxix. 19.——[e] Jer. l. 15.——[f] Heb. Phut; chap. xxvii. 10.——[g] Jer. xxv. 20, 24.——[h] Heb. children.——[i] Or, from Migdol to Syene.——[k] Chap. xxix. 10.——[l] Chap. xxix. 12.

[m] Heb. broken.——[n] Isa. xviii. 1, 2.——[o] Chap. xxix. 19. [p] Chap. xxviii. 7.——[q] Isa. xix. 5, 6.——[r] Heb. drought.——[s] Isa. xix. 4.——[t] Heb. the fulness thereof.——[u] Isa. xix. 1; Jer. xliii. 12; xlvi. 25; Zech. xiii. 2.——[v] Zech. x. 11.——[w] Isa. xix. 16.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXX.

Verse 2. Howl ye, Wo worth the day!] My Old MS. Bible,—Goule gee, woo woo to the day! הילילו הה ליום heylilu, hah laiyom! "Howl ye, Alas for the day!" The reading in our present text is taken from Coverdale's Bible, 1535. The expressions signify that a most dreadful calamity was about to fall on Egypt and the neighbouring countries, called here the "time of the heathen," or of the nations; the day of calamity to them. They are afterwards specified, Ethiopia, Libya, Lydia, and Chub, and the mingled people, probably persons from different nations, who had followed the ill fortune of Pharaoh-hophra or Pharaoh-apries, when he fled from Amasis, and settled in Upper Egypt.

Verse 5. Lydia] This place is not well known. The Ludim were contiguous to Egypt, Gen. xi. 13.

Chub] The Cubians, placed by Ptolemy in the Mareotis. But probably instead of וכוב vechub, "and Chub," we should read וכל vechol, "and ALL the men of the land," &c. The Septuagint adds "the Persians and the Cretans."

Verse 7. Shall be desolate] All these countries shall be desolated, and the places named shall be chief in these desolations.

Verse 9. Messengers go forth from me in ships] Ships can ascend the Nile up to Syene or Essuan, by the cataracts; and when Nebuchadnezzar's vessels went up, they struck terror into the Ethiopians. They are represented here as the "messengers of God."

Verse 12. I will make the rivers dry] As the overflowing of the Nile was the grand cause of fertility to Egypt, the drying it up, or preventing that annual inundation, must be the cause of dearth, famine, &c. By rivers, we may understand the various canals cut from the Nile to carry water into the different parts of the land. When the Nile did not rise to its usual height, these canals were quite dry.

Verse 13. Their images to cease out of Noph]

A. M. 3432. B. C. 572. Ol. LII. 1. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 7.

14 And I will make [x] Pathros desolate, and will set fire in [y] Zoan, [z] [a] and will execute judgments in No.

15 And I will pour my fury upon [b] Sin, the strength of Egypt; [c] and I will cut off the multitude of No.

16 And I will [d] set fire in Egypt: Sin shall have great pain, and No shall be rent asunder, and Noph shall have distresses daily.

17 The young men of [e] Aven and of [f] Pi-beseth shall fall by the sword: and these cities shall go into captivity.

18 [g] At Tehaphnehes also the day shall be [h] darkened, when I shall break there the yokes of Egypt: and the pomp of her strength shall cease in her: as for her, a cloud shall cover her, and her daughters shall go into captivity.

19 Thus will I execute judgments in Egypt: and they shall know that I am the LORD.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

20 And it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the first month, in the seventh day of the month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying, 21 Son of man, I have [i] broken the arm of Pharaoh king of Egypt; and lo, [k] it shall not be bound up to be healed, to put a roller to bind it, to make it strong to hold the sword.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

22 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I am against Pharaoh king of Egypt, and will [l] break his arms, the strong, and that which was broken; and I will cause the sword to fall out of his hand.

23 [m] And I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and will disperse them through the countries.

24 And I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, and put my sword in his hand: but I will break Pharaoh's arms, and he shall groan before him with the groanings of a deadly wounded man.

25 But I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, and the arms of Pharaoh shall fall down; and [n] they shall know that I am the LORD, when I shall put my sword into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall stretch it out upon the land of Egypt.

26 [o] And I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and disperse them among the countries; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

---

[x] Chap. xxix. 14.——[y] Psa. lxxviii. 12, 43.——[z] Or, Tanis. [a] Nah. iii. 8, 9, 10.——[b] Or, Pelusium.——[c] Jer. xlvi. 25.——[d] Ver. 8.——[e] Or, Heliopolis.——[f] Or, Pubastum.

[g] Jer. ii. 16.——[h] Or, restrained.——[i] Jer. xlviii. 25.——[k] Jer. xlvi. 11.——[l] Psa. xxxvii. 17.——[m] Ver. 26; chap. xxix. 12. [n] Psa. ix. 16.——[o] Ver. 23; chap. xxix 12.

Afterwards Memphis, and now Cairo or Kahira. This was the seat of Egyptian idolatry; the place where Apis was particularly worshipped.

No more a prince of the land of Egypt] Not one, from that time to the present day. See the note on chap. xxix. 14.

Verse 14. I will make Pathros desolate] See the preceding chapter, ver. 14.

Zoan] Tanis, the ancient capital of Egypt.

No.] Diospolis, or Thebes, the city of Jupiter.

Verse 15. My fury upon Sin] Pelusium, a strong city of Egypt, on the coast of the Mediterranean Sea.

Verse 16. Noph] Cairo or Kahira; see ver. 13.

Verse 17. Aven] Or On, the famous Heliopolis, or city of the sun.

Pibeseth] Bubastum or Bubaste, by a slight alteration of the letters. It is situated on the eastern branch of the Nile, towards Arabia.

Verse 18. Tehaphnehes] Called also Tahapanes, Jer. ii. 16. This is the Pelusian Daphne.

Break there the yokes] The sceptres. Nebuchadnezzar broke the sceptre of Egypt when he confirmed the kingdom to Amasis, who had rebelled against Apries.

Verse 20. In the eleventh year, in the first month, in the seventh day] This was the eleventh year of the captivity of Jeconiah, and the date here answers to April 26, A. M. 3416; a prophecy anterior by several years to that already delivered. In collecting the writings of Ezekiel, more care was taken to put all that related to one subject together, than to attend to chronological arrangement.

Verse 21. I have broken the arm of Pharaoh] Perhaps this may refer to his defeat by Nebuchadnezzar, when he was coming with the Egyptian army to succour Jerusalem.

Verse 22. I will cause the sword to fall out of his hand.] When the arm is broken, the sword will naturally fall. But these expressions show that the Egyptians would be rendered wholly useless to Zedekiah, and should never more recover their political strength. This was the case from the time of the rebellion of Amasis.

Verse 26. I will scatter the Egyptians] Several fled with Apries to Upper Egypt; and when Nebuchadnezzar wasted the country, he carried many of them to Babylon. See on chap. xxix. 12.

CHAPTER XXXI.

This very beautiful chapter relates also to Egypt. The prophet describes to Pharaoh the fall of the king of Nineveh, (see the books of Nahum, Jonah, and Zephaniah,) under the image of a fair cedar of Lebanon, once exceedingly tall, flourishing, and majestic, but now cut down and withered, with its broken branches strewed around, 1–17. He then concludes with bringing the matter home to the king of Egypt, by telling him that this was a picture of his approaching fate, 18. The beautiful cedar of Lebanon, remarkable for its loftiness, and in the most flourishing condition, but afterwards cut down and deserted, gives a very lively painting of the great glory and dreadful catastrophe of both the Assyrian and Egyptian monarchies. The manner in which the prophet has embellished his subject is deeply interesting; the colouring is of that kind which the mind will always contemplate with pleasure.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

AND it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the third month, in the first day of the month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, speak unto Pharaoh king of Egypt, and to his multitude; [a] Whom art thou like in thy greatness?

3 [b] Behold, the Assyrian was a cedar in Lebanon [c] with fair branches, and with a shadowing shroud, and of a high stature; and his top was among the thick boughs.

4 [d] The waters [e] made him great, the deep [f] set him up on high with her rivers running round about his plants, and sent out her [g] little rivers unto all the trees of the field.

5 Therefore [h] his height was exalted above all the trees of the field, and his boughs were multiplied, and his branches became long because of the multitude of waters, [i] when he shot forth.

6 All the [k] fowls of heaven made their nests in his boughs, and under his branches did all the beasts of the field bring forth their young, and under his shadow dwelt all great nations.

7 Thus was he fair in his greatness, in the length of his branches: for his root was by great waters.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

8 The cedars in the [l] garden of God could not hide him: the fir trees were not like his boughs, and the chesnut trees were not like his branches; nor any tree in the garden of God was like unto him in his beauty.

9 I have made him fair by the multitude of his branches; so that all the trees of Eden, that were in the garden of God, envied him.

10 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Because thou hast lifted up thyself in height, and he hath shot up his top among the thick boughs, and [m] his heart is lifted up in his height;

11 I have therefore delivered him into the hand of the mighty one of the heathen; [n] he shall surely deal with him: I have driven him out for his wickedness.

12 And strangers, [o] the terrible of the nations, have cut him off, and have left him: [p] upon the mountains and in all the valleys his branches are fallen, and his boughs are broken by all the rivers of the land; and all the people of the earth are gone down from his shadow, and have left him.

[a] Ver. 18.——[b] Dan. iv. 10.——[c] Heb. fair of branches.——[d] Jer. li. 36.——[e] Or, nourished.——[f] Or, brought him up.——[g] Or, conduits.——[h] Dan. iv. 11.——[i] Or, when it sent them forth.

[k] Chap. xvii. 23; Dan. iv. 12.——[l] Gen. ii. 8; xiii. 10; chap. xxviii. 13.——[m] Dan. v. 20.——[n] Heb. in doing he shall do unto him.——[o] Chap. xxviii. 7.——[p] Chap. xxxii. 5; xxxv. 8.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXXI.

Verse 1. In the eleventh year] On Sunday, June 19, A. M. 3416, according to Abp. Usher; a month before Jerusalem was taken by the Chaldeans.

Verse 3. Behold, the Assyrian was a cedar] Why is the Assyrian introduced here, when the whole chapter concerns Egypt? Bp. Lowth has shown that אשור ארז ashshur erez should be translated the tall cedar, the very stately cedar; hence there is reference to his lofty top; and all the following description belongs to Egypt, not to Assyria. But see on ver. 11.

Verse 4. The waters made him great] Alluding to the fertility of Egypt by the overflowing of the Nile. But waters often mean peoples. By means of the different nations under the Egyptians, that government became very opulent. These nations are represented as fowls and beasts, taking shelter under the protection of this great political Egyptian tree, ver. 6.

Verse 8. The cedars in the garden of God] Egypt was one of the most eminent and affluent of all the neighbouring nations.

Verse 11. The mighty one of the heathen] Nebuchadnezzar. It is worthy of notice, that Nebuchadnezzar, in the first year of his reign, rendered himself master of Nineveh, the capital of the Assyrian empire. See Sedar Olam. This happened about twenty years before Ezekiel delivered this prophecy; on this account, Ashshur, ver. 3, may relate to the Assyrians, to whom it is possible the prophet here compares the Egyptians. But see on ver. 3.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

13 [q] Upon his ruin shall all the fowls of the heaven remain, and all the beasts of the field shall be upon his branches:

14 To the end that none of all the trees by the waters exalt themselves for their height, neither shoot up their top among the thick boughs, neither their trees [r] stand up in their height, all that drink water: for [s] they are all delivered unto death, [t] to the nether parts of the earth, in the midst of the children of men, with them that go down to the pit.

15 Thus saith the Lord GOD; In the day when he went down to the grave I caused a mourning: I covered the deep for him, and I restrained the floods thereof, and the great waters were stayed: and I caused Lebanon [u] to mourn for him, and all the trees of the field fainted for him.

16 I made the nations to [v] shake at the sound of his fall, when I [w] cast him down to hell with them that descend into the pit: and [x] all the trees of Eden, the choice and best of Lebanon, all that drink water, [y] shall be comforted in the nether parts of the earth.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

17 They also went down into hell with him unto them that be slain with the sword; and they that were his arm, that [z] dwelt under his shadow in the midst of the heathen.

18 [a] To whom art thou thus like in glory and in greatness among the trees of Eden? yet shalt thou be brought down with the trees of Eden unto the nether parts of the earth: [b] thou shalt lie in the midst of the uncircumcised with them that be slain by the sword. This is Pharaoh and all his multitude, saith the Lord GOD.

[q] Isa. xviii. 6; chap. xxxii. 4.——[r] Or, stand upon themselves for their height.——[s] Psa. lxxxii. 7.——[t] Chap. xxxii. 18.——[u] Heb. to be black.——[v] Chap. xxvi. 15.

[w] Isa. xiv. 15.——[x] Isa. xiv. 8.——[y] Chap. xxxii. 31.——[z] Lam. iv. 20.——[a] Ver. 2; chap. xxxii. 19.——[b] Chap. xxviii. 10; xxxii. 19, 21, 24, &c.

Verse 13. Upon his ruin shall all the fowls] The fall of Egypt is likened to the fall of a great tree; and as the fowls and beasts sheltered under its branches before, ver. 6, so they now feed upon its ruins.

Verse 14. To the end that none of all the trees] Let this ruin, fallen upon Egypt, teach all the nations that shall hear of it to be humble, because, however elevated, God can soon bring them down; and pride and arrogance, either in states or individuals, have the peculiar abhorrence of God. Pride does not suit the sons of men; it made devils of angels, and makes fiends of men.

Verse 15. I caused Lebanon to mourn for him] All the confederates of Pharaoh are represented as deploring his fall, ver. 16, 17.

Verse 17. They also went down into hell with him] Into remediless destruction.

Verse 18. This is Pharaoh] All that I have spoken in this allegory of the lofty cedar refers to Pharaoh, king of Egypt, his princes, confederates, and people. Calmet understands the whole chapter of the king of Assyria, under which he allows that Egypt is adumbrated; and hence on this verse he quotes,— Mutato nomine, de te fabula narratur.

What is said of Assyria belongs to thee, O Egypt.

CHAPTER XXXII.

The prophet goes on to predict the fall of the king of Egypt, under the figure of an animal of prey, such as a lion or crocodile, caught, slain, and his carcass left a prey to the fowls and wild beasts, 1–6. The figure is then changed; and the greatness of his fall (described by the darkening of the sun, moon, and stars) strikes terror into all the surrounding nations, 7–10. The prophet adds, that the overthrow of the then reigning Egyptian dynasty was to be effected by the instrumentality of the king of Babylon, who should leave Egypt so desolate, that its waters, (alluding to the metaphor used in the second verse,) should run as pure and smooth as oil, without the foot of man or the hoof of a beast to disturb them, 11–16. A beautiful, nervous, and concise description of a land ruined and left utterly desolate. In the remaining part of the chapter the same event is pourtrayed by one of the boldest figures ever attempted in any composition, and which at the same time is executed with astonishing perspicuity and force. God is introduced ordering a place in the lower regions for the king of Egypt and his host, 17, 18. The prophet delivers his message, pronounces their fate, and commands those who buried the slain to drag him and his multitudes to the subterraneous mansions, 19, 20. At the tumult and commotion which this mighty work occasions, the infernal shades are represented as roused from their couches to learn the cause. They see and congratulate the king of Egypt, on his arrival among them, 21. Pharaoh being now introduced into this immense subterraneous cavern, (see the fourteenth chapter of Isaiah, where a similar imagery is employed,) the prophet leads him all around the sides of the pit; shows him the gloomy mansions of former tyrants; tells their names as he goes along; beautifully contrasts their former pomp and destructive ambition, when they were a terror to the surrounding states, with their present most abject and helpless condition; declares that all these oppressors of mankind have not only been cut off out of the land of the living, but have gone down into the grave uncircumcised, that is, they have died in their sins, and therefore shall have no resurrection to eternal life; and concludes with showing Pharaoh the place destined for him in the midst of the uncircumcised, and of them that have been slain by the sword, 22–32. This prophetic ode may be considered as a finished model in that species of writing which is appropriated to the exciting of terror. The imagery throughout is sublime and terrible; and no reader of sensibility and taste can accompany the prophet in this funeral procession, and visit the mansions of Hades, without being impressed with a degree of awe nearly approaching to horror.

A. M. 3417. B. C. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 30.

AND it came to pass in the twelfth year, in the twelfth month, in the first day of the month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, [a] take up a lamentation for Pharaoh king of Egypt, and say unto him, [b] Thou art like a young lion of the nations, [c] and thou art as a [d] whale in the seas: and thou camest forth with thy rivers, and troubledst the waters with thy feet, and [e] fouledst their rivers:

3 Thus saith the Lord GOD; I will therefore [f] spread out my net over thee with a company of many people; and they shall bring thee up in my net.

4 Then [g] will I leave thee upon the land, I will cast thee forth upon the open field, and [h] will cause all the fowls of the heaven to remain upon thee, and I will fill the beasts of the whole earth with thee.

5 And I will lay thy flesh [i] upon the mountains, and fill the valleys with thy height.

6 I will also water with thy blood [k] the land wherein thou swimmest, even to the mountains; and the rivers shall be full of thee.

A. M. 3417. B. C. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 30.

7 And when I shall [l] put thee out, [m] I will cover the heaven, and make the stars thereof dark; I will cover the sun with a cloud, and the moon shall not give her light

8 All the [n] bright lights of heaven will I make [o] dark over thee, and set darkness upon thy land, saith the Lord GOD.

9 I will also [p] vex the hearts of many people, when I shall bring thy destruction among the nations, into the countries which thou hast not known.

10 Yea, I will make many people [q] amazed at thee, and their kings shall be horribly afraid for thee, when I shall brandish my sword before them; and [r] they shall tremble at every moment, every man for his own life, in the day of thy fall.

11 [s] For thus saith the Lord GOD; The sword of the king of Babylon shall come upon thee.

12 By the swords of the mighty will I cause

[a] Chap. xxvii. 2; ver. 16.——[b] Chap. xix. 3, 6; xxxviii. 13. [c] Chap. xxix. 3.——[d] Or, dragon.——[e] Chap. xxxiv. 18.——[f] Ch. xii. 13; xvii. 20; Hos. vii. 12.——[g] Chap. xxix. 5.——[h] Chap. xxxi. 13.——[i] Chap. xxxi. 12.——[k] Or, the land of thy swimming. [l] Or, extinguish.

[m] Isa. xiii. 10; Joel ii. 31; iii. 15; Amos viii. 9; Rev. vi. 12, 13; Matt. xxiv. 29.——[n] Heb. light of the light in heaven. [o] Heb. them dark.——[p] Heb. provoke to anger, or grief.——[q] Chap. xxvii. 35.——[r] Chap. xxvi. 16.——[s] Jer. xlvi. 26; chap. xxx. 4.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXXII.

Verse 1. In the twelfth year, in the twelfth month, in the first day of the month] On Wednesday, March 22, the twelfth year of the captivity of Jeconiah, A. M. 3417.

Instead of the twelfth year, five of Kennicott's MSS., and eight of De Rossi's, read בעשתי עשרה in the eleventh year. This reading is supported by the Syriac; and is confirmed by an excellent MS. of my own, about four hundred years old.

Verse 2. Thou art like a young lion—and thou art as a whale in the seas] Thou mayest be likened to two of the fiercest animals in the creation; to a lion, the fiercest on the land; to a crocodile, תנים tannim, (see chap. xxix. 3,) the fiercest in the waters. It may, however, point out the hippopotamus, as there seems to be a reference to his mode of feeding. He walks deliberately into the water over head, and pursues his way in the same manner; still keeping on his feet, and feeding on the plants, &c., that grow at the bottom. Thus he fouls the water with his feet.

Verse 5. And fill the valleys with thy height.] Some translate, with the warms, which should proceed from the putrefaction of his flesh.

Verse 6. The land wherein thou swimmest] Egypt; so called, because intersected with canals, and overflowed annually by the Nile.

Verse 7. I will cover the heaven] Destroy the empire.

Make the stars thereof dark] Overwhelm all the dependent states.

I will cover the sun] The king himself.

And the moon shall not give her light.] The queen may be meant, or some state less than the kingdom.

Verse 8. And set darkness upon thy land] As I did when a former king refused to let my people go to the wilderness to worship me. I will involve thee, and thy house, and thy people, and the whole land, in desolation and wo.

Verse 9. I will also vex the hearts] Even the remote nations, who had no connexion with thee, shall be amazed at the judgments which have fallen upon thee thy multitude to fall, [t] the terrible of the nations, all of them: and [u] they shall spoil the pomp of Egypt, and all the multitude thereof shall be destroyed.

A. M. 3417. B. C. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 30.

13 I will destroy also all the beasts thereof from beside the great waters; [v] neither shall the foot of man trouble them any more, nor the hoofs of beasts trouble them.

14 Then will I make their waters deep, and cause their rivers to run like oil, saith the Lord GOD.

15 When I shall make the land of Egypt desolate, and the country shall be [w] destitute of that whereof it was full, when I shall smite all them that dwell therein, [x] then shall they know that I am the LORD.

16 This is the [y] lamentation wherewith they shall lament her: the daughters of the nations shall lament her: they shall lament for her, even for Egypt, and for all her multitude, saith the Lord GOD.

17 It came to pass also in the twelfth year, in the fifteenth day of the month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

18 Son of man, wail for the multitude of Egypt, and [z] cast them down, even her, and the daughters of the famous nations, unto the nether parts of the earth, with them that go down into the pit.

19 [a] Whom dost thou pass in beauty? [b] go down, and be thou laid with the uncircumcised.

20 They shall fall in the midst of them that are slain by the sword: [c] she is delivered to the sword: draw her and all her multitudes.

A. M. 3417. B. C. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 30.

21 [d] The strong among the mighty shall speak to him out of the midst of hell with them that help him: they are [e] gone down, they lie uncircumcised, slain by the sword.

22 [f] Asshur is there and all her company: his graves are about him: all of them slain, fallen by the sword:

23 [g] Whose graves are set in the sides of the pit, and her company is round about her grave: all of them slain, fallen by the sword, which [h] caused [i] terror in the land of the living.

24 There is [k] Elam and all her multitude round about her grave, all of them slain, fallen by the sword, which are [l] gone down uncircumcised into the nether parts of the earth, [m] which caused their terror in the land of the living; yet have they borne their shame with them that go down to the pit.

25 They have set her a bed in the midst of the slain with all her multitude: her graves are round about him: all of them uncircumcised, slain by the sword: though their terror was caused in the land of the living, yet have they borne their shame with them that go down to the pit: he is put in the midst of them that be slain.

26 There is [n] Meshech, Tubal, and all her

[t] Chap. xxviii. 7.——[u] Chap. xxix. 19.——[v] Chap. xxix. 11.
[w] Heb. desolate from the fulness thereof.——[x] Exod. vii. 5; xiv. 4, 18; Psa. ix. 16; chap. vi. 7.——[y] Ver. 2; 2 Sam. i. 17; 2 Chron. xxxv. 25; chap. xxvi. 17.——[z] Chap. xxvi. 20; xxxi. 14.——[a] Ch. xxxi. 2, 18.——[b] Ver. 21, 24, &c.; chap. xxviii. 10.

[c] Or, the sword is laid.——[d] Isa. i. 31; xiv. 9, 10; ver. 27.
[e] Ver. 19, 25, &c.——[f] Ver. 24, 26, 29, 30.——[g] Isa. xiv. 15.
[h] Chap. xxvi. 17, 20; ver. 24, 25, 26, 27, 32.——[i] Or, dismaying.
[k] Jer. xlix. 31, &c.——[l] Ver. 21.——[m] Ver. 23.——[n] Gen. x. 2; chap. xxvii. 13; xxxviii. 2.

Verse 14. Cause their rivers to run like oil] Bring the whole state into quietness, there being no longer a political hippopotamus to foul the waters—to disturb the peace of the country.

Verse 15. Shall be destitute of that whereof it was full] Of corn, and all other necessaries of life.

Verse 17. In the twelfth year] Two of Kennicott's MSS., one of De Rossi's, and one of my own, (that mentioned ver. 1,) have, in the ELEVENTH year; and so has the Syriac, as before. This prophecy concerns the people of Egypt.

Verse 18. Cast them down] Show them that they shall be cast down. Proclaim to them a casting down prophecy.

Verse 19. Whom dost thou pass in beauty?] How little does it signify, whether a mummy be well embalmed, wrapped round with rich stuff, and beautifully painted on the outside, or not. Go down into the tombs, examine the niches, and see whether one dead carcass be preferable to another.

Verse 21. Out of the midst of hell] שאול sheol, the catacombs, the place of burial. There is something here similar to Isa. xiv. 9, where the descent of the king of Babylon to the state of the dead is described.

Verse 22. Asshur is there] The mightiest conquerors of the earth have gone down to the grave before thee; there they and their soldiers lie together, all slain by the sword.

Verse 23. Whose graves are set in the sides of the pit] Alluding to the niches in the sides of the subterranean caves or burying-places, where the bodies are laid. These are numerous in Egypt.

Verse 24. There is Elam] The Elamites, not far from the Assyrians; others think that Persia is meant. It was invaded by the joint forces of Cyaxares and Nebuchadnezzar.

Verse 26. There is Meshech, Tubal] See on chap. xxvii. 13.

A. M. 3417. B. C. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 30.

multitude: her graves are round about him: all of them [o] uncircumcised, slain by the sword, though they caused their terror in the land of the living.

27 [p] And they shall not lie with the mighty that are fallen of the uncircumcised, which are gone down to hell [q] with their weapons of war: and they have laid their swords under their heads, but their iniquities shall be upon their bones, though they were the terror of the mighty in the land of the living.

28 Yea, thou shalt be broken in the midst of the uncircumcised, and shalt lie with them that are slain with the sword.

29 There is [r] Edom, her kings, and all her princes, which with their might are [s] laid by them that were slain by the sword: they shall lie with the uncircumcised, and with them that go down to the pit.

A. M. 3417. B. C. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci R. Roman., 30.

30 [t] There be the princes of the north, all of them, and all the [u] Zidonians which are gone down with the slain; with their terror they are ashamed of their might; and they lie uncircumcised with them that be slain by the sword, and bear their shame with them that go down to the pit.

31 Pharaoh shall see them, and shall be [v] comforted over all his multitude, even Pharaoh and all his army slain by the sword, saith the Lord GOD.

32 For I have caused my terror in the land of the living: and he shall be laid in the midst of the uncircumcised with them that are slain with the sword, even Pharaoh and all his multitude, saith the Lord GOD.

[o] Ver. 19, 20, &c.——[p] Ver. 21; Isa. xiv. 18, 19.——[q] Heb. with weapons of their war.——[r] Chap. xxv. 12, &c.

[s] Heb. given, or put.——[t] Chap. xxxviii. 6, 15; xxxix. 2.——[u] Ch. xxviii. 21.——[v] Chap. xxxi. 16.

Verse 27. Gone down to hell with their weapons of war] Are buried in their armour, and with their weapons lying by their sides. It was a very ancient practice, in different nations, to bury a warrior's weapons in the same grave with himself.

Verse 29. There is Edom] All the glory and pomp of the Idumean kings, who also helped to oppress the Israelites, are gone down into the grave. Their kings, princes, and all their mighty men lie mingled with the uncircumcised, not distinguished from the common dead:—

> "Where they an equal honour share,
> Who buried or unburied are.
> Where Agamemnon knows no more
> Than Irus, he condemned before.
> Where fair Achilles and Thersites lie,
> Equally naked, poor, and dry."

Verse 30. There be the princes of the north] The kings of Media and Assyria, and all the Zidonians—the kings of Tyre, Sidon, and Damascus. See Calmet.

Verse 31. Pharaoh shall see them] Pharaoh also, who said he was a god, shall be found among the vulgar dead.

And shall be comforted] Shall console himself, on finding that all other proud boasters are in the same circumstances with himself. Here is a reference to a consciousness after death.

Verse 32. I have caused my terror in the land of the living] I have spread dismay through Judea, the land of the living God, where the living oracles were delivered, and where the upright live by faith. When Pharaoh-necho came against Josiah, defeated, and slew him at Megiddo, fear and terror were spread through all the land of Judea; and the allusion here is probably to that circumstance. But even he is now laid with the uncircumcised, and is no more to be distinguished from the common dead.

Much of the phraseology of this chapter may be illustrated by comparing it with Isa. xiv., where see the notes, which the intelligent reader will do well to consult.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

The prophet, after having addressed several other nations, returns now to his own; previously to which he is told, as on a former occasion, the duty of a watchman, the salvation or ruin of whose soul depends on the manner in which he discharges it. An awful passage indeed; full of important instruction both to such as speak, and to such as hear, the word of God, 1–9. The prophet is then directed what answer to make to the cavils of infidelity and impiety; and to vindicate the equity of the Divine government by declaring the general terms of acceptance with God to be (as told before, chap. xviii.) without respect of persons; so that the ruin of the finally impenitent must be entirely owing to themselves, 10–20. The prophet receives the news of the destruction of Jerusalem by the Chaldeans, about a year and four months after it happened, according to the opinion of some, who have been led to this conjecture by the date given to this prophecy in the twenty-first verse, as it stands in our common Version: but some of the manuscripts of this prophet consulted by Dr. Kennicott have in this place the ELEVENTH year, which is probably the genuine reading. To check the vain confidence of those who expected to hold out by possessing themselves of its other fastnesses, the utter desolation of all Judea is foretold, 21–29. Ezekiel is informed that among those that attended his instructions were a great number of hypocrites, against whom he delivers a most awful message. When the Lord is destroying these hypocrites, then shall they know that there hath been a prophet among them, 30–33.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

AGAIN the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, speak [a] to the children of thy people, and say unto them, [b] When [c] I bring the sword upon a land, if the people of the land take a man of their coasts, and set him for their [d] watchman:

3 If when he seeth the sword come upon the land, he blow the trumpet, and warn the people;

4 Then [e] whosoever heareth the sound of the trumpet and taketh not warning; if the sword come, and take him away, [f] his blood shall be upon his own head.

5 He heard the sound of the trumpet, and took not warning; his blood shall be upon him. But he that taketh warning shall deliver his soul.

6 But if the watchman see the sword come, and blow not the trumpet, and the people be not warned; if the sword come, and take any person from among them, [g] he is taken away in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at the watchman's hand.

7 [h] So thou, O son of man, I have set thee a watchman unto the house of Israel; therefore thou shalt hear the word at my mouth, and warn them from me.

8 When I say unto the wicked, O wicked man, thou shalt surely die; if thou dost not speak to warn the wicked from his way, that wicked man shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thine hand.

9 Nevertheless, if thou warn the wicked of his way to turn from it; if he do not turn from his way, he shall die in his iniquity; but thou hast delivered thy soul.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

10 Therefore, O thou son of man, speak unto the house of Israel; Thus ye speak, saying, If our transgressions and our sins be upon us, and we [i] pine away in them, [k] how should we then live?

11 Say unto them, As I live, saith the Lord GOD, [l] I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked turn from his way and live: turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways; for [m] why will ye die, O house of Israel?

12 Therefore, thou son of man, say unto the children of thy people, [n] The righteousness of the righteous shall not deliver him in the day of his transgression: as for the wickedness of the wicked, [o] he shall not fall thereby in the day that he turneth from his wickedness; neither shall the righteous be able to live for his righteousness in the day that he sinneth.

13 When I shall say to the righteous, that he shall surely live; [p] if he trust to his own righteousness, and commit iniquity, all his righteousness shall not be remembered; but for his iniquity that he hath committed, he shall die for it.

14 Again, [q] when I say unto the wicked, Thou shalt surely die; if he turn from his sin, and do [r] that which is lawful and right;

15 If the wicked [s] restore the pledge, [t] give again that he had robbed, walk in [u] the sta-

[a] Chap. iii. 11.——[b] Chap. xiv. 17.——[c] Heb. I land when I bring a sword upon her.——[d] 2 Sam. xviii. 21, 25; 2 Kings ix. 17; ver. 7; Hos. ix. 8.——[e] Heb. he that hearing heareth. [f] Chap. xviii. 13.——[g] Ver. 8.——[h] Chap. iii. 17, &c.——[i] Chap. xxiv. 23.——[k] So Isa. xlix. 14; chap. xxxvii. 11.——[l] 2 Sam. xiv. 14; chap. xviii. 23, 32; 2 Pet. iii. 9.——[m] Chap. xviii. 31.——[n] Chap. iii. 20; xviii. 24, 26, 27.——[o] 2 Chron. vii. 14.——[p] Chap. iii. 20; xviii. 24.——[q] Chap. iii. 18, 19; xviii. 27.——[r] Heb. judgment and justice.——[s] Chap. xviii. 7.——[t] Exod. xxii. 1, 4; Lev. vi. 2, 4, 5; Num. v. 6, 7; Luke xix. 8.——[u] Lev. xviii. 5; chap. xx. 11, 13, 21.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXXIII.

Verse 2. Son of man—if the people of the land take a man] The first ten verses of this chapter are the same with chap. iii. 17–22: and to what is said there on this most important and awful subject I must refer the reader. Here the PEOPLE choose the watchman; there, the Lord appoints him. When God chooses, the people should approve.

Verse 10. If our transgressions and our sins be upon us] They are upon us, as a grievous burden, too weighty for us to bear: how then can we live under such a load?

We pine away in them] In such circumstances how consoling is that word: "Come unto me, all ye who are heavy laden, and I will give you rest!"

Verse 11. As I live, saith the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked] From this to the twentieth verse inclusive is nearly the same with chap. xviii., on which I wish the reader to consult the notes.

Verse 13. If he trust to his own righteousness, and commit iniquity] If he trust in his acting according to the statutes and ordinances of religion, and according to the laws relative to rights and wrongs among men, and in other respects commit iniquity, he shall die for it.

A. M. cir. 3416. B. C. cir. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

tutes of life, without committing iniquity; he shall surely live, he shall not die.

16 [v] None of his sins that he hath committed shall be mentioned unto him: he hath done that which is lawful and right; he shall surely live.

17 [w] Yet the children of thy people say, The way of the Lord is not equal: but as for them, their way is not equal.

18 [x] When the righteous turneth from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, he shall even die thereby.

19 But if the wicked turn from his wickedness, and do that which is lawful and right, he shall live thereby.

20 Yet ye say, [y] The way of the Lord is not equal. O ye house of Israel, I will judge you every one after his ways.

21 And it came to pass in the twelfth year [z] of our captivity, in the tenth month, in the fifth day of the month, [a] that one that had escaped out of Jerusalem came unto me, saying, [b] The city is smitten.

22 Now [c] the hand of the LORD was upon me in the evening, afore he that was escaped came; and had opened my mouth, until he came to me in the morning; [d] and my mouth was opened, and I was no more dumb.

23 Then the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 29.

24 Son of man, [e] they that inhabit those [f] wastes of the land of Israel speak, saying, [g] Abraham was one, and he inherited the land: [h] but we are many; the land is given us for inheritance.

25 Wherefore say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; [i] Ye eat with the blood, and [k] lift up your eyes towards your idols, and [l] shed blood: and shall ye possess the land?

26 [m] Ye stand upon your sword, ye work abomination, and ye [n] defile every one his neighbour's wife: and shall ye possess the land?

27 Say thou thus unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; As I live, surely [o] they that are in the wastes shall fall by the sword, and him that is in the open field [p] will I give to the beasts [q] to be devoured, and they that be in the forts and [r] in the caves shall die of the pestilence.

28 [s] For I will lay the land [t] most desolate, and the [u] pomp of her strength shall cease; and the [v] mountains of Israel shall be desolate, that none shall pass through.

29 Then shall they know that I am the LORD, when I have laid the land most desolate because of all their abominations which they have committed.

[v] Chap. xviii. 22.——[w] Ver. 20; chap. xviii. 25, 29.——[x] Chap. xviii. 26, 27.——[y] Ver. 17; chap. xviii. 25, 29.——[z] Chap. i. 2. [a] Chap. xxiv. 26.——[b] 2 Kings xxv. 4.——[c] Chap. i. 3.——[d] Chap. xxiv. 27.——[e] Chap. xxxiv. 2.——[f] Ver. 27; chap. xxxvi. 4. [g] Isa. li. 2; Acts vii. 5.——[h] See Mic. iii. 11; Matt. iii. 9; John viii. 39.

[i] Gen. ix. 4; Lev. iii. 17; vii. 26; xvii. 10; xix. 26; Deut. xii. 16.——[k] Chap. xviii. 6.——[l] Chap. xxii. 6, 9.——[m] Wisd. ii. 11. [n] Chap. xviii. 6; xxii. 11.——[o] Ver. 24.——[p] Chap. xxxix. 4. [q] Heb. to devour him.——[r] Judg. vi. 2; 1 Sam. xiii. 6.——[s] Jer. xliv. 2, 6, 22; chap. xxxvi. 34, 35.——[t] Heb. desolation and desolation.——[u] Chap. vii. 24; xxiv. 21; xxx. 6, 7.——[v] Chap. vi. 2, 3, 6.

Verse 19. He shall live thereby] "The wages of sin is death;" the "gift of God is eternal life." It is a miserable trade by which a man cannot live; such a trade is sin.

Verse 21. In the twelfth year of our captivity, in the tenth month, in the fifth day of the month] Instead of the twelfth year, the eleventh is the reading of seven of Kennicott's MSS., one of De Rossi's, and the Syriac. My own, mentioned in the preceding chapter, reads with the present text. This was on Wednesday, Jan. 25, A. M. 3416 or 3417.

One that had escaped out of Jerusalem] After it had been taken by the Chaldeans.

Came unto me, saying, THE CITY IS SMITTEN.] This very message God had promised to the prophet, chap. xxiv. 26.

Verse 22. My mouth was opened] They had now the fullest evidence that I had spoken from the Lord. I therefore spoke freely and fully what God delivered to me, chap. xxiv. 27.

Verse 24. Abraham was one] If he was called to inherit the land when he was alone, and had the whole to himself, why may we not expect to be established here, who are his posterity, and are many? They wished to remain in the land and be happy after the Chaldeans had carried the rest away captives.

Verse 25. Ye eat with the blood] Abraham was righteous, ye are unrighteous. Eating of blood, in any way dressed, or of flesh from which the blood had not been extracted, was and is in the sight of God abominable. All such practices he has absolutely and for ever forbidden. Let the vile blood-eaters hear and tremble. See the note on Acts xv. 20, and the passages in the margin.

Verse 26. Ye stand upon your sword] Ye live by plunder, rapine, and murder. Ye are every way impure; and shall ye possess the land? No.

Verse 27. They that are in the wastes] He seems to speak of those Jews who had fled to rocks, caves, and fortresses, in the mountains; whose death he predicts, partly by the sword, partly by wild beasts, and partly by famine.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman, 29.

30 Also, thou son of man, the children of thy people still are talking [w] against thee by the walls and in the doors of the houses, and [x] speak one to another, every one to his brother, saying, Come, I pray you, and hear what is the word that cometh forth from the LORD.

31 And [y] they come unto thee [z] as the people cometh, and [a] they [b] sit before thee as my people, and they hear thy words, but they will not do them: for [c] with their mouth [d] they show much love, but [e] their heart goeth after their covetousness.

A. M. 3416. B. C. 588. Ol. XLVIII. 1. Anno Tarquinii Prisci R. Roman., 29.

32 And, lo, thou art unto them as [f] a very lovely song of one that hath a pleasant voice, and can play well on an instrument: for they hear thy words, but they do them not.

33 [g] And when this cometh to pass, (lo, it will come,) then [h] shall they know that a prophet hath been among them.

[w] Or, of thee.——[x] Isa. xxix. 13.——[y] Chap. xiv. 1; xx. 1, &c. [z] Heb. according to the coming of the people.——[a] Or, my people set before thee.

[b] Chap. viii. 1.——[c] Psa. lxxviii. 36, 37; Isa. xxix. 13.——[d] Heb they make loves, or jests.——[e] Matt. xiii. 22.——[f] Heb. a song of loves.——[g] 1 Sam. iii. 20.——[h] Chap. ii. 5.

Verse 30. The people still are talking against thee] בך bach should be rather translated, "concerning thee," than "against thee;" for the following verses show that the prophet was much respected. The Vulgate translates, de te; the Septuagint, περι σου, "concerning thee;" both right.

Talking by the walls and in the doors of the houses is not a custom peculiar to the Copts, mentioned by Bp. Pococke; it is a practice among idle people, and among those who are resting from their work, in every country, when the weather permits. Gossiping in the inside of the house is not less frequent, and much more blamable.

Verse 31. As the people cometh] As they are accustomed to come on public days, Sabbaths, &c.

With their mouth they show much love] They respected the prophet, but would not bend themselves to follow his precepts. They loved earthly things, and did not relish those of heaven.

Verse 32. As a very lovely song] They admired the fine voice and correct delivery of the prophet; this was their religion, and this is the whole of the religion of thousands to the present day; for never were itching ears so multiplied as now.

Verse 33. When this cometh to pass—then shall they know that a prophet hath been among them.] What I have predicted, (and it is even now at the doors,) then they will be convinced that there was a prophet among them, by whose ministry they did not profit as they ought.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

The prophet is commanded to declare the dreadful judgments of God against the covetous shepherds of Israel, who feed themselves, and not their flocks; by which emblem the priests and Levites are intended, who in Ezekiel's time were very corrupt, and the chief cause of Israel's apostasy and ruin, 1–10. From this gloomy subject the prophet passes to the blessedness of the true Israel of God under the reign of DAVID, the Great Shepherd of the sheep, our Lord Jesus Christ being named after this prince by a figure exceedingly frequent in the sacred oracles, of putting the type for the antitype, 11–31.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

AND the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, prophesy against the [a] shepherds of Israel, prophesy, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD unto the shepherds, [b] Wo be to the shepherds of Israel that do feed themselves! should not the shepherds feed the flocks?

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

3 [c] Ye eat the fat, and ye clothe you with the wool, [d] ye kill them that are fed: but ye feed not the flock.

[a] Chap. xxxiii. 24.——[b] Jer. xxiii. 1; Zech. xi. 17.——[c] Isa. lvi. 11; Zech. xi. 16.

[d] Chapter xxxiii. 25, 26; Micah iii. 1, 2, 3; Zechariah xi. 5.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXXIV.

Verse 2. Prophesy against the shepherds of Israel] The shepherds include, first, the priests and Levites; secondly, the kings, princes, and magistrates. The flock means the whole of the people. The fat and the wool, the tithes and offerings, the taxes and imposts. The reprehensible feeding and clothing with these, as to the priests and Levites, the using these tithes and offerings, not to enable them the better to fulfil the work of the ministry, but to pamper their own bodies, and support them in an idle voluptuous life; and in reference to the state, the employing the taxes and imposts, not for the support and administration of justice and good government, but to subsidize heathen powers, and maintain their own luxury and idolatrous prodigality.

Verse 3. Ye eat the fat] I think החלב hacheleb should be translated the milk; and so most of the Versions understand it. Or they lived on the fat sheep, and took the wool of all.

"The priests," says Calmet, "ate the tithes, the

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

4 [e] The diseased have ye not strengthened, neither have ye healed that which was sick, neither have ye bound up that which was broken, neither have ye brought again that which was driven away, neither have ye [f] sought that which was lost; but with [g] force and with cruelty have ye ruled them.

5 [h] And they were [i] scattered, [k] because there is no shepherd: [l] and they became meat to all the beasts of the field, when they were scattered.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

6 My sheep wandered through all the mountains, and upon every high hill: yea, my flock was scattered upon all the face of the earth,

[e] Ver. 16; Zech. xi. 16.——[f] Luke xv. 4.——[g] 1 Pet. v. 3. [h] Chap. xxxiii. 21, 28.

[i] 1 Kings xxii. 17; Matt. ix. 36.——[k] Or, without a shepherd; and so ver. 8.——[l] Isa. lvi. 9; Jer. xii. 9; ver. 8.

first-fruits, and the offerings of the people; the princes received the tributes and imposts; and instead of instructing and protecting them, the latter took away their lives by the cruelties they practised against them: the former destroyed their souls by the poison of their doctrine, and by their bad example. The fat sheep point out the rich, to whom these pastors often disguised the truth, by a cruel condescension and complaisance."

Verse 4. The diseased have ye not strengthened] No person is fit for the office of a shepherd, who does not well understand the diseases to which sheep are incident, and the mode of cure. And is any man fit for the pastoral office, or to be a shepherd of souls, who is not well acquainted with the disease of sin in all its varieties, and the remedy for this disease, and the proper mode of administering it, in those various cases? He who does not know Jesus Christ as his own Saviour, never can recommend him to others. He who is not saved, will not save.

Neither have ye healed that which was sick] The prophet first speaks of the general disease; next, of the different kinds of spiritual infirmity.

Neither have ye bound up that which was broken] If a sheep have broken a leg, a proper shepherd knows how to set the bones, and splint and bind it till the bones knit and become strong. And the skilful spiritual pastor knows, if one of the flock be overtaken in a fault, how to restore such. Those sudden falls, where there was not a strong propensity to sin, are, to the soul, as a broken bone to the body.

Neither have ye brought again] A proper shepherd loves his sheep: he feels interested for their welfare; he acquaints himself with them all, so that he knows and can distinguish each. He knows also their number, and frequently counts to see that none is missing; if one be lost or strayed, he goes immediately and seeks it; and as he is constantly on the watch, it cannot have strayed far before he is apprised of its absence from the flock; and the less it has strayed, the sooner it is found and brought back to the fold.

The shepherds of Israel knew nothing about their flock; they might have been diseased, infirm, bruised, maimed, their limbs broken, strayed, and lost; for they watched not over them. When they got fat sheep and wool for their table and their clothing, they regarded nothing else; as they considered the flock given them for their own use, and scarcely ever supposed that they were to give any thing in return for the milk and the wool.

But with force and with cruelty] Exacting tithes and dues by the strong arm of the law, with the most ungodly feelings; and with a cruelty of disposition that proved it was the fat and the wool they sought, and not the safety or comfort of the flock.

Verse 5. And they were scattered] There was no discipline kept up; and the flock, the Church, became disorganized, and separated from each other, both in affection and fellowship. And the consequence was, the grievous wolves, false and worldly interested teachers, seized on and made a prey of them. Of the communion of saints such shepherds know nothing, farther than that it makes a part of the common creed.

Verse 6. My sheep wandered through all the mountains] They all became idolaters, and lost the knowledge of the true God. And could it be otherwise while they had such pastors?

"Himself a wanderer from the narrow way,
His silly sheep, no wonder that they stray!"

Reader, if thou be a minister, a preacher, or a person in holy orders, or pretended holy orders, or art one pretending to holy orders, look at the qualifications of a good shepherd as laid down by the prophet.

1. He professes to be a shepherd, and to be qualified for the office.

2. In consequence he undertakes the care of a flock. This supposes that he believes the great Bishop of souls has called him to the pastoral office; and that office implies that he is to give all diligence to save the souls of them that hear him.

HIS QUALIFICATIONS.

1. He is skilful; he knows the disease of sin and its consequences; for the Eternal Spirit, by whom he is called, has convinced him of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment.

2. He knows well the great remedy for this disease, the passion and sacrificial death of the Lord Jesus Christ.

3. He is skilful, and knows how to apply this remedy.

4. The flock over which he watches is, in its individuals, either,—1. Healthy and sound. 2. Or, in a state of convalescence, returning to health. 3. Or, still under the whole power of the general disease. 4. Or, some are dying in a state of spiritual weakness. 5. Or, some are fallen into sin, and sorely bruised and broken in their souls by that fall. 6. Or, some have been driven away by some sore temptation or cruel usage. 7. Or, some have wandered from the flock, are got into strange pastures, and are perverted by erroneous doctrines. Or, 8. Some wolf has got among and none did search or seek after them.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

7 Therefore, ye shepherds, hear the word of the LORD;

8 As I live, saith the Lord GOD, surely because my flock became a prey, and my flock [m] became meat to every beast of the field, because there was no shepherd, neither did my shepherds search for my flock, [n] but the shepherds fed themselves, and fed not my flock;

9 Therefore, O ye shepherds, hear the word of the LORD;

10 Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I am against the shepherds; and [o] I will require my flock at their hand, and cause them to cease from feeding the flock; neither shall the shepherds [p] feed themselves any more: for I will deliver my flock from their mouth, that they may not be meat for them.

11 For thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I, even I, will both search my sheep, and seek them out.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

12 [q] As a shepherd seeketh out his flock in the day that he is among his sheep that are scattered; so will I seek out my sheep, and will deliver them out of all places where they have been scattered in [r] the cloudy and dark day.

13 And [s] I will bring them out from the people, and gather them from the countries, and will bring them to their own land, and feed them upon the mountains of Israel by the rivers, and in all the inhabited places of the country.

14 [t] I will feed them in a good pasture, and upon the high mountains of Israel shall their fold be: [u] there shall they lie in a good fold, and in a fat pasture shall they feed upon the mountains of Israel.

15 I will feed my flock, and I will cause

[m] Ver. 5, 6.——[n] Ver. 2, 10.——[o] Chap. iii. 18; Heb. xiii. 17. [p] Ver. 2, 8.——[q] Heb. According to the seeking.——[r] Chap. xxx. 3; Joel ii. 2.——[s] Isa. lxv. 9, 10; Jer. xxiii. 3; chap. xxviii. 25; xxxvi. 24; xxxvii. 21, 22.——[t] Psa. xxiii. 2.——[u] Jer. xxxiii. 12.

them, and scattered the whole flock. Now, the true shepherd, the pastor of God's choosing, knows—

1. How to keep the healthy in health; and cause them to grow in grace, and in the knowledge of Jesus Christ.

2. How to nourish, feed, and care for the convalescent, that they may be brought into a state of spiritual soundness.

3. How to reprove, instruct, and awaken those who are still under the full power of the disease of sin.

4. How to find out and remove the cause of all that spiritual weakness of which he sees some slowly dying.

5. How to deal with those who have fallen into some scandalous sin, and restore them from their fall.

6. How to find out and turn aside the sore temptation or cruel usage by which some have been driven away.

7. How to seek and bring back to the fold those who have strayed into strange pastures, and have had their souls perverted by erroneous doctrines; and knows also how, by a godly discipline, to preserve him in the flock, and keep the flock honourably together.

8. How to oppose, confound, and expel the grievous wolf, who has got among the flock, and is scattering them from each other, and from God. He knows how to preach, explain, and defend the truth. He is well acquainted with the weapons he is to use, and the spirit in which he is to employ them.

In a word, the true shepherd gives up his life to the sheep; spends and is spent for the glory of God; and gives up his life for the sheep, in defence of them, and in labouring for their welfare. And while he is thus employed, it is the duty of the flock to feed and clothe him; and see that neither he nor his family lack the necessaries and conveniencies of life. The labourer is worthy of his meat. He who does not labour, or, because of his ignorance of God and salvation, cannot labour, in the word and doctrine, deserves neither meat nor drink; and if he exact that by law, which he has not honestly earned by a proper discharge of the pastoral function, let him read this chapter, and learn from it what a fearful account he shall have to give to the chief Shepherd at the great day; and what a dreadful punishment shall be inflicted on him, when the blood of the souls lost through his neglect or inefficiency is visited upon him! See the notes on chap. iii. 17, &c.

Verse 7. Therefore, ye shepherds. (ye bad and wicked shepherds,) hear the word of the Lord] In the preceding character of the good shepherd the reader will find, by reversing the particulars, the character of a bad shepherd; and therefore I may be excused from entering into farther detail.

Verse 10. I will—cause them to cease from feeding the flock] God, in this country, unpriested a whole hierarchy who fed not the flock, but ruled them with force and cruelty; and he raised up a new set of shepherds better qualified, both by sound doctrine and learning, to feed the flock. Let these be faithful, lest God cause them to cease, and raise up other feeders.

Verse 12. Cloudy and dark day.] Times of general distress and persecution; in such times the shepherd should be especially watchful.

Verse 13. I will—feed them upon the mountains] When I bring back the people from their captivity, I will raise up to them a holy and diligent priesthood, who shall in all places give them sound instruction. But this, and some of the following promises, belong to the Christian Church, as we shall find below.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

them to lie down, saith the Lord God.

16 [v] I will seek that which was lost, and bring again that which was driven away, and will bind up that which was broken, and will strengthen that which was sick: but I will destroy [w] the fat and the strong; I will feed them [x] with judgment.

17 And as for you, O my flock, thus saith the Lord God: [y] Behold, I judge between [z] cattle and cattle, between the rams and the [a] he-goats.

18 Seemeth it a small thing unto you to have eaten up the good pasture, but ye must tread down with your feet the residue of your pastures? and to have drunk of the deep waters, but ye must foul the residue with your feet?

19 And as for my flock, they eat that which ye have trodden with your feet; and they drink that which ye have fouled with your feet.

A. M. cir. 3417 B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

20 Therefore thus saith the Lord God unto them; [b] Behold, I, even I, will judge between the fat cattle and between the lean cattle.

21 Because ye have thrust with side and with shoulder, and pushed all the diseased with your horns, till ye have scattered them abroad;

22 Therefore will I save my flock, and they shall no more be a prey; and [c] I will judge between cattle and cattle.

23 And I will set up one [d] Shepherd over them, and he shall feed them, [e] even my servant David; he shall feed them, and he shall be their Shepherd.

24 And [f] I the Lord will be their God, and my Servant David [g] a Prince among them; I the Lord have spoken it.

[v] See ver. 4; Isa. xl. 11; Mic. iv. 6; Matt. xviii. 11; Mark ii. 17; Luke v. 32.——[w] Isa. x. 16; Amos iv. 1.——[x] Jer. x. 24.
[y] Chap. xx. 37, 38; ver. 20, 22; Zech. x. 3; Matt. xxv. 32, 33.
[z] Heb. small cattle of lambs and kids.——[a] Heb. great he-goats.

[b] Ver. 17.——[c] Ver. 17.——[d] Isa. xl. 11; Jer. xxiii. 4, 5; John x. 11; Heb. xiii. 20; 1 Pet. ii. 25; v. 4.——[e] Jer. xxx. 9; chap. xxxvii. 24, 25; Hos. iii. 5.——[f] Ver. 30; Exod. xxix. 45; chap. xxxvii. 27.——[g] Chap. xxxvii. 22; Luke i. 32, 33.

Verse 16. I will destroy the fat and the strong] I will destroy those cruel and imperious shepherds who abuse their authority, and tyrannize over the flock.

Verse 17. And as for you, O my flock] After having spoken to the shepherds, he now addresses the flock.

I judge between cattle and cattle] Between false and true professors; between them that have only the form and them that have the power of godliness; between the backslider in heart and the upright man.

Verse 18. Have eaten up the good pasture] Arrogate to yourselves all the promises of God, and will hardly permit the simple believer to claim or possess any token of God's favour.

Ye must foul the residue with your feet?] Ye abuse God's mercies; you consume much upon yourselves, and ye spoil more, on which the poor would have been glad to feed. There are some who would rather give food to their sporting dogs than to the poor around them, who are ready to starve, and who would be glad of the crumbs that fall from the table of those masters!

Verse 20. I will judge between the fat cattle and between the lean cattle.] Between the rich and the poor; those who fare sumptuously every day and those who have not the necessaries of life.

Verse 23. I will set up one Shepherd—my servant David] David, king of Israel, had been dead upwards of four hundred years; and from that time till now there never was a ruler of any kind, either in the Jewish Church or state, of the name of David. This, then, must be some typical person; and from the texts marked in the margin we understand that Jesus Christ alone is meant, as both Old and New Testaments agree in this. And from this one Shepherd all Christian ministers must derive their authority to teach, and their grace to teach effectually.

By the kind providence of God it appears that he has not permitted any apostolic succession to be preserved, lest the members of his Church should seek that in an uninterrupted succession which must be found in the Head alone. The papists or Roman Catholics, who boast of an uninterrupted succession, which is a mere fable that never was and never can be proved, have raised up another head, the pope. And I appeal to themselves, in the fear of God, whether they do not in heart and in speech trace up all their authority to him, and only compliment Christ as having appointed Peter to be the first bishop of Rome, (which is an utter falsity, for he was never appointed to such an office there, nor ever held such an office in that city, nor, in their sense, any where else;) and they hold also that the popes of Rome are not so much Peter's successors as God's vicars; and thus both God and Peter are nearly lost sight of in their papal enumerations. With them the authority of the Church is all in all; the authority of Christ is seldom mentioned.

Verse 24. I the Lord will be their God, and my Servant David a Prince] Here we find God and his Christ are all in all in his Church, and Jesus is still Prince among them; and to him the call and qualifications of all genuine pastors belong, and from him they must be derived. And he has blotted out what is called uninterrupted succession, that every Christian minister may seek and receive credentials from himself. Here is the grand reason why the uninterrupted succession cannot be made out. And here is the proof also that the Church that pretends to it, and builds

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

25 And [h] I will make with them a covenant of peace, and [i] will cause the evil beasts to cease out of the land: and they [k] shall dwell safely in the wilderness, and sleep in the woods.

26 And I will make them and the places round about [l] my hill [m] a blessing; and I will [n] cause the shower to come down in his season; there shall be [o] showers of blessing.

27 And [p] the tree of the field shall yield her fruit, and the earth shall yield her increase, and they shall be safe in their land, and shall know that I am the LORD, when I have [q] broken the bands of their yoke, and delivered them out of the hand of those that [r] served themselves of them.

28 And they shall no more [s] be a prey to the heathen, neither shall the beast of the land devour them; but [t] they shall dwell safely, and none shall make them afraid.

29 And I will raise up for them a [u] plant [v] of renown, and they shall be no more [w] consumed with hunger in the land, [x] neither bear the shame of the heathen any more.

30 Thus shall they know that [y] I the LORD their God am with them, and that they, even the house of Israel, are my people, saith the Lord GOD.

31 And ye my [z] flock, the flock of my pasture, are men, and I am your God, saith the Lord GOD.

[h] Chap. xxxvii. 26.——[i] Lev. xxvi. 6; Isa. xi. 6-9; xxxv. 9; Hos. ii. 18.——[k] Ver. 28; Jer. xxiii. 6.——[l] Isa. lvi. 7; chap. xx. 40.——[m] Gen. xii. 2; Isa. xix. 24; Zech. viii. 13.——[n] Lev. xxvi. 4.——[o] Psa. lxviii. 9; Mal. iii. 10.——[p] Lev. xxvi. 4; Psa. lxxxv. 12; Isa. iv. 2.

[q] Lev. xxvi. 13; Jer. ii. 20.——[r] Jer. xxv. 14.——[s] See ver. 8 chap. xxxvi. 4.——[t] Ver. 25; Jer. xxx. 10; xlvi. 27.——[u] Isa. xi 1; Jer. xxiii. 5.——[v] Or, for renown.——[w] Heb. taken away. [x] Chap. xxxvi. 3, 6, 15.——[y] Ver. 21; chap. xxxvii. 27.——[z] Psa. c. 3; John x. 11.

upon it, must be a false Church; for it is founded on a falsity; an uninterrupted succession which does not exist either in history or in fact.

Verse 25. I will make with them a covenant of peace] The original is emphatic: וכרתי להם ברית שלום vecharatti lahem berith shalom, "And I will cut with them the peace covenant;" that is, a covenant sacrifice, procuring and establishing peace between God and man, and between man and his fellows. I need not tell the reader that the cutting refers to the ancient mode of making covenants. The blood was poured out; the animal was divided from mouth to tail, exactly in two; the divisions placed opposite to each other; the contracting parties entered into the space, going in at each end, and met in the middle, and there took the covenant oath. He is the Prince of peace, and through him come glory to God in the highest, and peace and good will to men upon earth.

And will cause the evil beasts to cease] These false and ravenous pastors. Christ purges them out of his Church, and destroys that power by which they lorded it over God's heritage.

Verse 26. The shower to come down] The Holy Spirit's influence.

There shall be showers of blessing.] Light, life, joy, peace, and power shall be manifest in all the assemblies of Christ's people.

Verse 29. I will raise up—a plant of renown] נטע שם matta leshem, "a plantation to the name;" to the name of CHRIST. A Christian Church composed of men who are Christians, who have the spirit of Christ in them, and do not bear his name in vain. I believe the words might be applied to the Christian Church; but that Christ may be called a plant or plantation here,—as he is elsewhere called a branch and a rod, Isa. iv. 2; xi. 1; so Jer. xxiii. 5; xxxv. 15,—is most probable. He is the Person of name, לשם leshem, JESUS; the Saviour, CHRIST; the Anointer, long spoken of before he was manifested in the flesh, and since the daily theme in the Church militant. It is he who hath loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, no other name being given under heaven among men by which we can be saved; he who has a name above every name, and at whose name every knee shall bow; through whose name, by faith in his name, the diseased are healed; and in whose name all our prayers and supplications must be presented to God to make them acceptable. This is the Person of NAME!

They shall be no more consumed with hunger] For this glorious plant of name is the Bread of life; and this is broken in all the assemblies of his people where his name is properly proclaimed.

Verse 31. And ye my flock] That is, under the allegory of a flock of sheep, I point out men; under that of a pasture, my Church; and under that of a shepherd, the Messiah, through whom I am become your God. And he who is your God is אדני יהוה Adonai Yehovah, the self-existent Being; the Governor and Director, as well as the Saviour and Judge, of men.

CHAPTER XXXV.

The prophet having formerly predicted the ruin of Edom, the same with Seir, (chap. xxv. 12,) now resumes and pursues the subject at greater length, intimating, as did also Isaiah, (chap. xxi. 11, 12,) that though other nations should recover their liberty after the fall of the Babylonian monarchy, the Edomites should continue in bondage for their very despiteful behaviour towards the children of Israel in the day of their calamity, 1–15.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman, cir. annum 30.

MOREOVER the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, [a] set thy face against [b] Mount Seir, and [c] prophesy against it.

3 And say unto it, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, O Mount Seir, I am against thee, and [d] I will stretch out mine hand against thee, and I will make thee [e] most desolate.

4 [f] I will lay thy cities waste, and thou shalt be desolate, and thou shalt know that I am the LORD.

5 [g] Because thou hast had a [h] perpetual hatred, and hast [i] shed the blood of the children of Israel, by the [k] force of the sword in the time of their calamity, [l] in the time that their iniquity had an end:

6 Therefore, as I live, saith the Lord GOD, I will prepare thee unto blood, and blood shall pursue thee: [m] sith thou hast not hated blood, even blood shall pursue thee.

7 Thus will I make Mount Seir [n] most desolate, and cut off from it [o] him that passeth out and him that returneth.

8 [p] And I will fill his mountains with his slain men: in thy hills, and in thy valleys, and in all thy rivers, shall they fall that are slain with the sword.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

9 [q] I will make thee perpetual desolations, and thy cities shall not return: [r] and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

10 Because thou hast said, These two nations and these two countries shall be mine, and we will [s] possess it; [t] whereas [u] the LORD was there:

11 Therefore, as I live, saith the Lord GOD, I will even do, [v] according to thine anger, and according to thine envy which thou hast used out of thy hatred against them; and I will make myself known among them, when I have judged thee.

12 [w] And thou shalt know that I am the LORD, and that I have heard all thy blasphemies which thou hast spoken against the mountains of Israel, saying, They are laid desolate, they are given us [x] to consume.

13 Thus [y] with your mouth ye have [z] boasted

[a] Chap. vi. 2.——[b] Deut. ij. 5.——[c] Jer. xlix. 7, 8; chap. xxv. 12; Amos i. 11; Obad. 10, &c.——[d] Chap. vi. 14.——[e] Heb. desolation and desolation; so ver. 7.——[f] Ver. 9.——[g] Chap. xxv. 12; Obad. 10.——[h] Or, hatred of old; chap. xxv. 15.——[i] Heb. poured out the children.——[k] Heb. hands.——[l] Psa. cxxxvii. 7; chap. xxi. 25, 29; Dan. ix. 24; Obad. 11.——[m] Psa. cix. 17.——[n] Heb. desolation and desolation; ver. 3.

[o] Judg. v. 6; chap. xxix. 11.——[p] Chap. xxxi. 12; xxxii. 5. [q] Jer. xlix. 17, 18; ver. 4; chap. xxv. 13; Mal. i. 3, 4.——[r] Ch. vi. 7; vii. 4, 9; xxxvi. 11.——[s] Psa. lxxxiii. 4, 12; chap. xxxvi. 5; Obad. 13.——[t] Or, though the LORD was there.——[u] Psa. xlviii. 1, 3; cxxxii. 13, 14; chap. xlviii. 35.——[v] Matt. vii. 2; James ii. 13.——[w] Chap. vi. 7; Psa. ix. 16.——[x] Heb. to devour. [y] 1 Sam. ii. 3; Rev. xiii. 6.——[z] Heb. magnified.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXXV.

Verse 2. Set thy face against Mount Seir] That is, against the Edomites. This prophecy was probably delivered about the time of the preceding, and before the destruction of Idumea by Nebuchadnezzar, which took place about five years after.

Calmet supposes that two destructions of Idumea are here foretold; one by Nebuchadnezzar, and the other by the Jews after their return from their captivity.

Verse 3. Most desolate.] Literally, "A desolation and a wilderness."

Verse 5. A perpetual hatred] The Edomites were the descendants of Esau; the Israelites, the descendants of Jacob. Both these were brothers; and between them there was contention even in the womb, and they lived generally in a state of enmity. Their descendants kept up the ancient feud: but the Edomites were implacable; they had not only a rooted but perpetual enmity to the Israelites, harassing and distressing them by all possible means; and they seized the opportunity, when the Israelites were most harassed by other enemies, to make inroads upon them, and cut them off wherever they found them.

To afflict the afflicted is cruel. This is scarcely of man, bad as he is. He must be possessed by the malignant spirit of the devil, when he wounds the wounded, insults over the miseries of the afflicted, and seeks opportunities to add affliction to those who are already under the rod of God.

Verse 6. Blood shall pursue thee] Thou lovest blood, and thou shalt have blood. It is said that Cyrus and two hundred thousand men were slain in an ambush by Thomyris, queen of the Scythians, and that she cut off his head, and threw it into a vessel filled with blood, with this severe sarcasm:—

Satia te sanguine quem sitisti, Cyre.
"O Cyrus, now satisfy thyself with blood."

Hence, the figure:—

"Sarcasmus, with this biting taunt doth kill:
Cyrus, thy thirst was blood, now drink thy fill."

Verse 9. Perpetual desolations] Thou shalt have perpetual desolation for thy perpetual hatred.

Verse 10. These two nations] Israel and Judah. The Idumeans thought of conquering and possessing both; and they would have succeeded, but only the Lord was there; and this spoiled their projects, and blasted their hopes.

Verse 12. They are laid desolate, they are given us to consume.] They exulted in seeing Judea overrun; and they rejoiced in the prospect of completing the ruin, when the Chaldeans had withdrawn from the land.

Verse 13. Thus with your mouth ye have boasted against me] Ye have said you would enter into those lands, and take them for your inheritance; though ye against me, and have multiplied your words against me: I have heard them.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

14 Thus saith the Lord GOD; [a] When the whole earth rejoiceth, I will make thee desolate.

15 [b] As thou didst rejoice at the inheritance of the house of Israel, because it was desolate, so will I do unto thee: [c] thou shalt be desolate, O Mount Seir, and all Idumea, even all of it: and they shall know that I am the LORD knew that God had promised them to the Israelites, and that you should never have them for your portion.

[a] Isa. lxv. 13, 14.

[b] Obad. xii. 15.—[c] Ver. 3, 4.

Verse 14. When the whole earth rejoiceth] When the whole land shall rejoice in the restoration of the Jews, I will make thee desolate. Probably this refers to the time of the Maccabees.

Verse 15. So will I do unto thee] Others shall rejoice in thy downfall as thou hast rejoiced at their downfall.

This whole chapter strongly inculcates this maxim: Do as thou wouldst be done by; and what thou wouldst not have done to thee, do not to others. And from it we learn that every man may, in some sort, be said to make his own temporal good or evil; for as he does to others, God will take care to do to him, whether it be evil or good, weal or wo. Would you not be slandered or backbitten? Then do not slander nor backbite. Wouldst thou wish to live in peace? Then do not disturb the peace of others. Be merciful, and thou shalt obtain mercy.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

The Edomites or Idumeans, during the Babylonish captivity, took possession of the mountainous parts of Judea, and the fortresses which command the country, intending to exclude the Jews if ever they should return from their captivity. The prophet therefore, by a beautiful personification, addresses the mountains of Israel; and, ascribing to them passions and emotions similar to those of his own breast, consoles them with the prospect of being soon rid of those usurping foes; of being freed from the dishonour of idols under which they groaned; and of flourishing again in their ancient glory under their rightful owners, 1–15. The idolatry and other sins of the Jews are then declared to be the cause of their captivity and dispersion, 16–20; from which however they are promised a deliverance in terms of great force and beauty, 21–38. This chapter contains also, under the type of the happy condition of the Israelites after their restoration from the Babylonish captivity, a glorious prophecy of the rich blessings of the Gospel dispensation.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

ALSO, thou son of man, prophesy unto the [a] mountains of Israel, and say, Ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the LORD:

2 Thus saith the Lord GOD; Because [b] the enemy hath said against you, Aha, [c] even the ancient high places [d] are ours in possession:

3 Therefore prophesy and say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; [e] Because they have made you desolate, and swallowed you up on every side, that ye might be a possession unto the residue of the heathen, [f] and [g] ye are taken up in the lips of talkers, and are an infamy of the people:

4 Therefore, ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord GOD; Thus saith the Lord GOD to the mountains, and to the hills, to the [h] rivers, and to the valleys, to the desolate wastes, and to the cities that are forsaken, which [i] became a prey and [k] derision to the residue of the heathen that are round about;

5 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; [l] Surely in the fire of my jealousy have I

[a] Chap. vi. 2, 3.—[b] Chap. xxv. 3; xxvi. 2.—[c] Deut. xxxii. 13.—[d] Chap. xxxv. 10.—[e] Heb. Because for because.—[f] Deut. xxviii. 37; 1 Kings ix. 7; Lam. ii. 15; Dan. ix. 16.

[g] Or, ye are made to come upon the lip of the tongue.—[h] Or, bottoms, or dales.—[i] Chap. xxxiv. 28.—[k] Psa. lxxix. 4.—[l] Deut. iv. 24; chap. xxxviii. 19.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXXVI.

Verse 1. Prophesy unto the mountains of Israel] This is a part of the preceding prophecy, though it chiefly concerns the Jews. In it they are encouraged to expect a glorious restoration; and that none of the evil wishes of their adversaries should take place against them.

Verse 2. Because the enemy hath said] The Idumeans thought they would shortly be put in possession of all the strong places of Israel; the ancient high places shall be ours.

Verse 4. Therefore—thus saith the Lord God to the mountains, &c.] They shall neither possess mountain nor valley, hill nor dale, fountain nor river; for though in my justice I made you desolate, yet they shall not profit by your disasters. See ver. 5, 6, and 7.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

spoken against the residue of the heathen, and against all Idumea, [m] which have appointed my land into their possession with the joy of all their heart, with despiteful minds, to cast it out for a prey.

6 Prophesy therefore concerning the land of Israel, and say unto the mountains, and to the hills, to the rivers, and to the valleys, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I have spoken in my jealousy and in my fury, because ye have [n] borne the shame of the heathen:

7 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; I have [o] lifted up mine hand, Surely the heathen that are about you, they shall bear their shame.

8 But ye, O mountains of Israel, ye shall shoot forth your branches, and yield your fruit to my people of Israel; for they are at hand to come.

9 For, behold, I am for you, and I will turn unto you, and ye shall be tilled and sown:

10 And I will multiply men upon you, all the house of Israel, even all of it: and the cities shall be inhabited, and [p] the wastes shall be builded:

11 And [q] I will multiply upon you man and beast: and they shall increase and bring fruit: and I will settle you after your old estates, and will do better unto you than at your beginnings: [r] and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

12 Yea, I will cause men to walk upon you, even my people Israel; [s] and they shall possess thee, and thou shalt be their inheritance, and thou shalt no more henceforth [t] bereave them of men.

13 Thus saith the Lord GOD; Because they say unto you, [u] Thou land devourest up men, and hast bereaved thy nations; A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

14 Therefore thou shalt devour men no more, neither [v] bereave thy nations any more saith the Lord GOD.

15 [w] Neither will I cause men to hear in thee the shame of the heathen any more, neither shalt thou bear the reproach of the people any more, neither shalt thou cause thy nations to fall any more, saith the Lord GOD.

16 Moreover the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

17 Son of man, when the house of Israel dwelt in their own land, [x] they defiled it by their own way and by their doings: their way was before me as [y] the uncleanness of a removed woman.

18 Wherefore I poured my fury upon them [z] for the blood that they had shed upon the land, and for their idols wherewith they had polluted it:

19 And I [a] scattered them among the heathen, and they were dispersed through the countries: [b] according to their way and according to their doings I judged them.

20 And when they entered unto the heathen, whither they went, they [c] profaned my holy name, when they said to them, These are the people of the LORD, and are gone forth out of his land.

21 But I had pity [d] for mine holy name, which the house of Israel had profaned among the heathen, whither they went.

22 Therefore say unto the house of Israel,

[m] Chap. xxxv. 10, 12.——[n] Psa. cxxiii. 3, 4; chap. xxxiv. 29; ver. 15.——[o] Chap. xx. 5.——[p] Ver. 33; Isa. lviii. 12; lxi. 4; Amos ix. 14.——[q] Jer. xxxi. 27; xxxiii. 12.——[r] Chap. xxxv. 9; xxxvii. 6, 13.——[s] Obad. 17, &c.——[t] See Jer. xv. 7.

[u] Num. xiii. 32.——[v] Or, cause to fall.——[w] Chap. xxxiv. 29. [x] Lev. xviii. 25, 27, 28; Jer. ii. 7.——[y] Lev. xv. 19, &c.——[z] Ch. xvi. 36, 38; xxiii. 37.——[a] Chap. xxii. 15.——[b] Chap. vii. 3; xviii. 30; xxxix. 24.——[c] Isa. lii. 5; Rom. ii. 24.——[d] Chap. xx. 9, 14.

Verse 8. For they are at hand to come.] The restoration of the Jews is so absolutely determined that you may rest assured it will take place; and be as confident relative to it, as if you saw the different families entering into the Israelitish borders. It was near at hand in God's determination, though there were about fifty-eight of the seventy years unelapsed.

Verse 9. Ye shall be tilled and sown] The land shall be cultivated as it formerly was, when best peopled and at peace.

Verse 11. I will multiply upon you man and beast] The agriculturist and the beast of burden.

And will do better unto you than at your beginnings] I agree with Calmet, that it would be difficult to show the literal fulfilment of this prophecy from the days of Zerubbabel to the birth of Christ. The colouring is too high for that period; and the whole falls in better with Gospel than with Jewish times.

Verse 17. When the house of Israel dwelt in their own land] Had they continued faithful to me, they had never been removed from it: but they polluted it with their crimes; and I abhorred the land on that account, and gave both them and it up to the destroyers.

Verse 20. And when they entered unto the heathen] So bad were they, and so deeply fallen, that they profaned the Lord's name among the heathen; and, on their account, the true God was blasphemed. These, say they, are the people of Jehovah! O what an abominable people are these! and what a being must that God be who can have and own such for his people!

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

Thus saith the Lord GOD; I do not this for your sakes, O house of Israel, [e] but for mine holy name's sake, which ye have profaned among the heathen, whither ye went.

23 And I will sanctify my great name, which was profaned among the heathen, which ye have profaned in the midst of them; and the heathen shall know that I am the LORD, saith the Lord GOD, when I shall be [f] sanctified in you before [g] their eyes.

24 For [h] I will take you from among the heathen, and gather you out of all countries, and will bring you into your own land.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

25 [i] Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean: [k] from all your filthiness, and from all your idols, will I cleanse you.

26 A [l] new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you: and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you a heart of flesh.

27 And I will put my [m] Spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep my judgments, and do them.

[e] Psa. cvi. 8.——[f] Chap. xx. 41; xxviii. 22.——[g] Or, your.
[h] Chap. xxxiv. 13; xxxvii. 21.

[i] Isa. lii. 15; Heb. x. 22.——[k] Jer. xxxiii. 8.——[l] Jer. xxxii. 39; chap. xi. 19.——[m] Chap. xi. 19; xxxvii. 14.

Verse 23. I will sanctify my great name] By changing your hearts and your conduct, I shall show my hatred to vice, and my love to holiness: but it is not for your sakes, but for my holy name's sake, that I shall do you good in your latter days.

Verse 24. I will take you from among the heathen] This does not relate to the restoration from Babylon merely. The Jews are at this day scattered in all Heathen, Mohammedan, and Christian countries. From these they are to be gathered, and brought to repossess their own land.

Verse 25. Then—at the time of this great restoration—will I sprinkle clean water upon you—the truly cleansing water; the influences of the HOLY SPIRIT typified by water, whose property it is to cleanse, whiten, purify, refresh, render healthy and fruitful.

From all your filthiness] From every sort of external and internal abomination and pollution.

And from all your idols] False gods, false worship, false opinions, and false hopes.

Will I cleanse you.] Entirely separate you.

Verse 26. A new heart also will I give you] I will change the whole of your infected nature; and give you new appetites, new passions; or, at least, the old ones purified and refined. The heart is generally understood to mean all the affections and passions.

And a new spirit will I put within you] I will renew your minds, also enlighten your understanding, correct your judgment, and refine your will; so that you shall have a new spirit to actuate your new heart.

I will take away the stony heart] That heart that is hard, impenetrable, and cold; the affections and passions that are unyielding, frozen to good, unaffected by heavenly things; that are slow to credit the words of God. I will entirely remove this heart: it is the opposite to that which I have promised you; and you cannot have the new heart and the old heart at the same time.

And I will give you a heart of flesh.] One that can feel, and that can enjoy; that can feel love to God and to all men, and be a proper habitation for the living God.

Verse 27. And I will put my Spirit within you] To keep the heart of flesh alive, the feeling heart still sensible, the loving heart still happy. I will put my Spirit, the great principle of light, life, and love, within you, to actuate the new spirit, and to influence the new affections and passions; that the animal spirit may not become brutish, that the mental powers become not foolish. I will put my Spirit within you, so that as the new spirit may influence the new heart, so will MY SPIRIT influence YOUR new spirit, that each may have a proper mover; and then all will be pure, regular, and harmonious, when passion is influenced by reason, and reason by the Holy Ghost.

And the cause shall be evidenced by the effects; for I will cause you to walk in my statutes—not only to believe and reverence my appointments relative to what I command you to perform; but ye shall walk in them, your conduct shall be regulated by them. "And ye shall keep my judgments;" whatsoever I enjoin you to avoid. And ye shall do them—ye shall not only avoid every appearance of evil, but keep all my ordinances and commandments unblamably.

Here is the salvation that God promises to give to restored Israel; and here is the salvation that is the birthright of every Christian believer: the complete destruction of all sin in the soul, and the complete renewal of the heart; no sin having any place within, and no unrighteousness having any place without.

"But where are they that are thus saved?" Ans. Wherever true Christians are to be found. "But I know many true Christians that have not this salvation, but daily mourn over their evil hearts?" Ans. They may be sincere, but they are not true Christians; i. e., such as are saved from their sins; the true Christians are those who are filled with the nature and Spirit of Christ. But I will ask a question in my turn: "Do those you mention think it a virtue to be always mourning over their impurities?" Most certainly. Then it is a pity they were not better instructed. It is right they should mourn while they feel an impure heart; but why do they not apply to that blood which cleanses from all unrighteousness, and to that Spirit which cleanses the very thoughts of the heart by his inspiration? Many employ that time in brooding and mourning over their impure hearts, which should be spent in prayer and faith before God, that their impurities might be washed away. In what a state of nonage are many members of the Christian Church!

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

28 [n] And ye shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers; [o] and ye shall be my people, and I will be your God.

29 I will also [p] save you from all your uncleannesses: and [q] I will call for the corn, and will increase it, and [r] lay no famine upon you.

30 [s] And I will multiply the fruit of the tree, and the increase of the field, that ye shall receive no more reproach of famine among the heathen.

31 Then [t] shall ye remember your own evil ways, and your doings that were not good, and [u] shall loathe yourselves in your own sight for your iniquities and for your abominations.

32 [v] Not for your sakes do I this, saith the Lord GOD, be it known unto you: be ashamed and confounded for your own ways, O house of Israel.

33 Thus saith the Lord GOD; In the day that I shall have cleansed you from all your iniquities I will also cause you to dwell in the cities, [w] and the wastes shall be builded.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci R. Roman., cir. annum 30

34 And the desolate land shall be tilled, whereas it lay desolate in the sight of all that passed by.

35 And they shall say, This land that was desolate is become like the garden of [x] Eden; and the waste and desolate and ruined cities are become fenced, and are inhabited.

36 Then the heathen that are left round about you shall know that I the LORD build the ruined places, and plant that that was desolate: [y] I the LORD have spoken it, and I will do it.

37 Thus saith the Lord GOD; [z] I will yet for this be inquired of by the house of Israel, to do it for them; I will [a] increase them with men like a flock.

38 As the [b] holy flock, as the flock of Jerusalem in her solemn feasts; so shall the waste cities be filled with flocks of men: and they shall know that I am the LORD.

[n] Chap. xxviii. 25; xxxvii. 25.——[o] Jer. xxx. 22; chap. xi. 20; xxxvii. 27.——[p] Matt. i. 21; Rom. xi. 26.——[q] See Psa. cv. 16.
[r] Chap. xxxiv. 29.——[s] Chap. xxxiv. 27.——[t] Chap. xvi. 61, 63.
[u] Lev. xxvi. 39; chap. vi. 9; xx. 43.

[v] Deut. ix. 5; ver. 22.——[w] Ver. 10.——[x] Isa. li. 3; chap. xxviii. 13; Joel ii. 3.——[y] Chap. xvii. 24; xxii. 14; xxxvii. 14.——[z] See chap. xiv. 3; xx. 3, 31.——[a] Ver. 10.——[b] Heb. flock of holy things.

Verse 28. Ye shall be my people] Wholly given up to me in body, soul, and spirit.

And I will be your God.] To fill you with love, joy, peace, meekness, gentleness, long-suffering, fidelity, and goodness, to occupy your whole soul, and gratify your every desire.

Verse 29. I will also save you from all your uncleannesses] I repeat it; "I WILL save you from all your sins."

Verse 30. Ye shall receive no more reproach of famine] Ye shall be daily and hourly fed with the bread that endures unto eternal life. "But will not those get proud, who are thus saved, if there be any such? and will they not undervalue the blood of the covenant, for then they shall not need it?" Ans. Hear what the Lord saith,—

Verse 31. Then shall ye remember your own evil ways] Ye shall never forget that ye were once slaves of sin, and sold under sin; children of the wicked one; heirs to all God's curses, with no hope beyond hell. Such cleansed people never forget the horrible pit and the miry clay out of which they have been brought. And can they then be proud? No: they loathe themselves in their own sight. They never forgive themselves for having sinned against so good a God, and so loving a Saviour. And can they undervalue HIM by whose blood they were bought, and by whose blood they were cleansed? No! That is impossible: they now see Jesus as they ought to see him; they see him in his splendour, because they feel him in his victory and triumph over sin. To them that thus believe he is precious, and he was never so precious as now. As to their not needing him when thus saved from their sins, we may as well say, as soon may the creation not need the sustaining hand of God, because the works are finished! Learn this, that as it requires the same power to sustain creation as to produce it, so it requires the same Jesus who cleansed to keep clean. They feel that it is only through his continued indwelling, that they are kept holy, and happy, and useful. Were he to leave them the original darkness and kingdom of death would soon be restored.

Verse 35. This land that was desolate by sin, is become like the garden of Eden by righteousness.—Satan's blast is removed; God's blessing has taken place

Verse 36. Then the heathen] They shall see how powerful Jehovah is, and how fully he saves those who come unto and worship him.

Verse 37. Thus saith the Lord God] In answer to the question, "Who shall have such blessings?" we say, they that pray, that seek earnestly, that strive to enter in at the strait gate. "Thus saith the Lord, I will yet for this be inquired of by the house of Israel." Neither Jew nor Gentile shall be thus saved who do not earnestly pray to God; and for this thing; for this complete salvation; this setting up of the kingdom of Christ upon earth, and particularly in their own souls.

Verse 38. As the holy flock] The Church of Christ, without spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing.

The flock of Jerusalem] The Jerusalem that is from above, the city of the living God, the place where his Majesty dwells. As they came in ancient times to the solemn national feasts, so shall they come when they have fully returned unto the Lord, and received his salvation by Christ Jesus.

I do not ask my reader's pardon for having considered this most beautiful chapter as relating, not to the restoration from the Babylonish captivity, but to the redemption under the new covenant by Jesus Christ. There is no period of the Jewish history from that time until now, to which it can be applied. It must belong to the Gospel dispensation; and if the Jews will still refuse, contradict, and blaspheme, let no Christian have any fellowship with them in their opposition to this Almighty Saviour. Let none be indifferent to his salvation; let all plead his promises; and let the messengers of the Churches proclaim to the Christian world a FREE, a FULL, and a PRESENT SALVATION! And may great grace rest upon themselves, and upon all their flocks!

CHAPTER XXXVII.

This chapter treats of the same subject with the preceding, in a beautiful and significant vision. Under the emblem of the open valley being thickly strewed with very dry bones is represented the hopeless state of the Jews when dispersed throughout the provinces of the Chaldean empire. But God, contrary to every human probability, restores these bones to life, thereby prefiguring the restoration of that people from the Babylonish captivity, and their resettlement in the land of their forefathers, 1–14. The prophet then makes an easy and elegant transition to the blessedness of the people of God under the Gospel dispensation, in the plenitude of its manifestation; when the genuine converts to Christianity, the spiritual Israel, shall be no longer under the domination of heathen and anti-christian rulers, but shall be collected together into one visible kingdom, and constitute but one flock under one Shepherd, 15–28. The vision of the dry bones reviving is considered by some as having a remote view to the general resurrection.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

THE [a] hand of the LORD was upon me, and carried me out [b] in the spirit of the LORD, and set me down in the midst of the valley which was full of bones,

2 And caused me to pass by them round about: and, behold, there were very many in the open [c] valley; and, lo, they were very dry.

3 And he said unto me, Son of man, can these bones live? And I answered, O Lord GOD, [d] thou knowest.

4 Again he said unto me, Prophesy upon these bones, and say unto them, O ye dry bones, hear the word of the LORD.

5 Thus saith the Lord GOD unto these bones; Behold, I will [e] cause breath to enter into you, and ye shall live:

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

6 And I will lay sinews upon you, and will bring up flesh upon you, and cover you with skin, and put breath in you, and ye shall live; [f] and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

7 So I prophesied as I was commanded: and as I prophesied, there was a noise, and behold a shaking, and the bones came together, bone to his bone.

8 And when I beheld, lo, the sinews and the flesh came up upon them, and the skin covered them above: but there was no breath in them.

[a] Chap. i. 3.——[b] Chap. iii. 14; viii. 3; xi. 24; Luke iv. 1. [c] Or, champaign.——[d] Deut. xxxii. 36; 1 Sam. ii. 6; John v. 21; Rom. iv. 17; 2 Cor. i. 9.——[e] Psa civ. 30; ver. 9.——[f] Chap. vi. 7; xxxv. 12; Joel ii. 27; iii. 17.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXXVII.

Verse 1. The hand of the Lord was upon me] The prophetic influence was communicated.

And carried me out in the spirit] Or, And the Lord brought me out in the spirit; that is, a spiritual vision, in which all these things were doubtless transacted.

The valley which was full of bones] This vision of the dry bones was designed, first, as an emblem of the then wretched state of the Jews; secondly, of the general resurrection of the body.

Verse 3. Can these bones live?] Is it possible that the persons whose bones these are can return to life!

Verse 4. Prophesy upon these bones] Declare to your miserable countrymen the gracious designs of the Lord; show them that their state, however deplorable, is not hopeless.

Verse 5. Behold, I will cause breath] רוח ruach signifies both soul, breath, and wind; and sometimes the Spirit of God. Soul is its proper meaning in this vision, where it refers to the bones: "I will cause the SOUL to enter into you."

Verse 6. I will lay sinews upon you] Observe the progress: 1. Here are the bones. 2. The ligaments, called here sinews, are to be added in order to unite the bones, that the skeleton might be complete. 3. The flesh (the whole muscular system, the subjacent and superjacent muscles, including the arterial and venous system) clothes this skeleton. 4. The skin (the dermis and epidermis, or cutis and cuticle) envelopes the whole of these muscles or flesh; and now these bodies are in the state that the body of Adam was before it received the animal and intellectual principle from God. 5. There was no breath in them—they had not yet received their souls. 6. The wind, רוח ruach, the soul, came into them. They were endued with animal and intellectual life: and they arose and evidenced a complete restoration to life, and began to perform its functions, ver. 10.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

9 Then said he unto me, Prophesy unto the [g] wind, prophesy, son of man, and say to the wind, Thus saith the Lord GOD; [h] Come from the four winds, O breath, and breathe upon these slain, that they may live.

10 So I prophesied as he commanded me, [i] and the breath came into them, and they lived, and stood up upon their feet, an exceeding great army.

11 Then he said unto me, Son of man, these bones are the whole house of Israel: behold, they say, [k] Our bones are dried, and our hope is lost: we are cut off for our parts.

12 Therefore prophesy and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, [l] O my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, and [m] bring you into the land of Israel.

A. M. cir. 3417 B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

13 And ye shall know that I am the LORD, when I have opened your graves, O my people, and brought you up out of your graves, 14 And [n] shall put my Spirit in you, and ye shall live, and I shall place you in your own land: then shall ye know that I the LORD have spoken it, and performed it, saith the LORD.

15 The word of the LORD came again unto me, saying,

16 Moreover, thou son of man, [o] take thee one stick, and write upon it, For Judah, and for [p] the children of Israel his companions:

[g] Or, breath.——[h] Psa. civ. 30; ver. 5.——[i] Rev. xi. 11.——[k] Psa. cxli. 7; Isa. xlix. 14.——[l] Isa. xxvi. 19; Hos. xiii. 14.

[m] Chap. xxxvi. 24; ver. 25.——[n] Chap. xxxvi. 27.——[o] See Num. xvii. 2.——[p] 2 Chron. xi. 12, 13, 16; xv. 9; xxx. 11, 18.

Verse 9. Prophesy unto the wind] רוח ruach. Address thyself to the soul, and command it to enter into these well-organized bodies, that they may live.

Come from the four winds] SOULS, come from all parts where ye are scattered; and reanimate these bodies from which ye have been so long separated. The four winds signify all ports—in every direction. Literally it is, "Souls, come from the four souls;" "Breath, come from the four breaths;" or, "Wind, come from the four winds." But here רוח ruach has both of its most general meanings, wind or breath, and soul.

Verse 11. These bones are the whole house of Israel] That is, their state is represented by these bones; and their restoration to their own land is represented by the revivification of these bones.

Verse 12. I will open your graves] Here is a pointed allusion to the general resurrection; a doctrine properly credited and understood by the Jews, and to which our Lord refers, John v. 25, 28, 29: "The hour is coming when they that are in their graves shall hear his voice, and come forth."

And cause you to come up out of your graves] I am determined that ye shall be restored; so that were ye even in your graves, as mankind at the general resurrection, yet my all-powerful voice shall call you forth.

Verse 13. When I have opened your graves] When I shall have done for you what was beyond your hope, and deemed impossible, then shall ye know that I am Jehovah.

Verse 14. And shall put my Spirit] רוחי ruchi. Here רוח ruach is taken for the Holy Ghost. They were living souls, animal and intellectual beings, when they had received their souls, as mentioned above: but they could only become spiritual, holy, and obedient creatures by the Spirit of God actuating their spirits. See the notes on chap. xxxvi. 25, 26, 27.

THREE degrees or processes have been remarked in this mystic vision. When the prophet was commanded to prophesy—to foretell, on the authority of God, that there should be a restoration to their own land,—

1. There was a noise, which was followed by a general shaking, during which the bones became arranged and united.

2. The flesh and skin came upon them, so that the dry bones were no longer seen.

3. The spirit or soul came into them, and they stood up perfectly vivified.

Perhaps these might be illustrated by three periods of time, which marked the regeneration of the Jewish polity.

1. The publication of the edict of Cyrus in behalf of the Jews, which caused a general shaking or stir among the people, so that the several families began to approach each other, and prepare for their return to Judea, Ezra i. 2, 3. But though partially restored, they were obliged to discontinue the rebuilding of their temple.

2. The edict published by Darius in the second year of his reign, Ezra iv. 23, 24, which removed the impediments thrown in the way of the Jews. Ezra vi. 6, 7, &c.

3. The mission of Nehemiah, with orders from Artaxerxes to complete the building of the temple and the city, Neh. ii. 7, &c. Then the Jews became a great army, and found themselves in sufficient force to defend themselves and city against all their enemies.

As to the spiritual uses of this curious vision, I must leave them to preachers. I have given the literal meaning, and what the different parts refer to; and if they found their observations on these, they may profit their hearers.

Verse 16. Son of man, take thee one stick] The two sticks mentioned in this symbolical transaction represented, as the text declares, the two kingdoms of Israel and Judah, which were formed in the days of Rehoboam, and continued distinct till the time of the captivity. The kingdom of Judah was composed of the tribes of Judah and Benjamin, with the Levites; all the rest went off in the schism with Jeroboam, and formed the kingdom of Israel. Though some out of those tribes did rejoin themselves to Judah, yet no

A. M. cir. 3117. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

then take another stick, and write upon it, For Joseph, the stick of Ephraim, and for all the house of Israel his companions:

17 And [q] join them one to another into one stick; and they shall become one in thine hand.

18 And when the children of thy people shall speak unto thee, saying, [r] Wilt thou not show us what thou meanest by these?

19 [s] Say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I will take [t] the stick of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim, and the tribes of Israel his fellows, and will put them with him, even with the stick of Judah, and make them one stick, and they shall be one in mine hand.

20 And the sticks whereon thou writest shall be in thine hand [u] before their eyes.

21 And say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, [v] I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen, whither they be gone, and will gather them on every side, and bring them into their own land:

22 And I [w] will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel; and [x] one king shall be king to them all: and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all:

23 [y] Neither shall they defile themselves any more with their idols, nor with their detestable things, nor with any of their transgressions: but [z] I will save them out of all their dwelling-places, wherein they have sinned, and will cleanse them: so shall they be my people, and I will be their God.

A. M. cir. 3117 B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

24 And [a] David my servant shall be king over them; and [b] they all shall have one shepherd: [c] they shall also walk in my judgments, and observe my statutes, and do them.

25 [d] And they shall dwell in the land that I have given unto Jacob my servant, wherein your fathers have dwelt; and they shall dwell therein, even they, and their children, and their children's children [e] for ever: and [f] my servant David shall be their prince for ever.

26 Moreover I will make a [g] covenant of peace with them; it shall be an everlasting covenant with them: and I will place them, and [h] multiply them, and will set my [i] sanctuary in the midst of them for evermore.

27 [k] My tabernacle also shall be with them: yea, I will be [l] their God, and they shall be my people.

28 [m] And the heathen shall know that I the LORD do [n] sanctify Israel, when my sanctuary shall be in the midst of them for evermore.

---

[q] See ver. 22, 24.——[r] Chap. xii. 9; xxiv. 19.——[s] Zech. x. 6.
[t] Ver. 16, 17.——[u] Chap. xii. 3.——[v] Chap. xxxvi. 24.——[w] Isa. xi. 13; Jer. iii. 18; l. 4; Hos. i. 11.——[x] Chap. xxxiv. 23, 24; John x. 16.——[y] Chap. xxxvi. 25.——[z] Ch. xxxvi. 28, 29.——[a] Isa. xl. 11; Jer. xxiii. 5; xxx. 9; chap. xxxiv. 23, 24; Hosea iii. 5; Luke i. 32.——[b] Ver. 22; John x. 16.

[c] Chap. xxxvi. 27.——[d] Chap. xxxvi. 28.——[e] Isa. lx. 21; Joel iii. 20; Amos ix. 15.——[f] Ver. 24; John xii. 34.——[g] Psa. lxxxix. 3; Isa. lv. 3; Jer. xxxii. 40; chap. xxxiv. 25.——[h] Chap. xxxvi. 10, 37.——[i] 2 Cor. vi. 16.——[k] Lev. xxvi. 11, 12; chap. xliii. 7; John i. 14.——[l] Chap. xi. 20; xiv. 11; xxxvi. 28.
[m] Chap. xxxvi. 23.——[n] Chap. xx. 12.

---

whole tribe ever returned to that kingdom. Common sufferings in their captivity became the means of reviving a kinder feeling; and to encourage this, God promises that he will reunite them, and restore them to their own land; and that there shall no more be any divisions or feuds among them. To represent this in such a way as would make it a subject of thought, reflection, and inquiry, the prophet is ordered to take the two sticks mentioned above, to write on them the distinguishing names of the divided kingdoms, and then by a notch, dovetail, glue, or some such method, to unite them both before the people. He did so; and on their inquiry, showed them the full meaning of this symbolical action.

Verse 19. The stick of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim] Jeroboam, the first king of the ten tribes, was an Ephraimite. Joseph represents the ten tribes in general: they were in the hand of Ephraim, that is, under the government of Jeroboam.

Verse 22. I will make them one nation] There was no distinction after the return from Babylon. And one king shall be king to them all] Politically speaking, they never had a king from that day to this; and the grand junction and government spoken of here must refer to another time—to that in which they shall be brought into the Christian Church with the fulness of the Gentiles; when JESUS, the King of kings and Lord of lords, shall rule over all.

Verse 24. And David my servant shall be King] That this refers to Jesus Christ, see proved, chap. xxxiv. 23.

Verse 25. The land that I have given unto Jacob my servant] Jacob means here the twelve tribes; and the land given to them was the whole land of Palestine; consequently, the promise states that, when they return, they are to possess the whole of the Promised Land.

Verse 26. Covenant of peace] See this explained chap. xxxiv. 25.

Verse 27. My tabernacle] Jesus Christ, the true tabernacle, in whom dwelt all the fulness of the Godhead bodily.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

The sublime prophecy contained in this and the following chapter relates to Israel's victory over Gog, and is very obscure. It begins with representing a prodigious armament of many nations combined together under the conduct of Gog, with the intention of overwhelming the Jews, after having been for some time resettled in their land subsequent to their return from the Babylonish captivity, 1–9. These enemies are farther represented as making themselves sure of the spoil, 10–13. But in this critical conjuncture when Israel, to all human appearance, was about to be swallowed up by her enemies, God most graciously appears, to execute by terrible judgments the vengeance threatened against these formidable adversaries of his people, 14–16. The prophet, in terms borrowed from human passions, describes, with awful emphasis, the fury of Jehovah as coming up to his face; and the effects of it so dreadful, as to make all the animate and inanimate creation tremble, and even to convulse with terror the whole frame of nature, 17–23

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

AND the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 [a] Son of man, [b] set thy face against [c] Gog, the land of Magog, [d] the chief prince of [e] Meshech and Tubal, and prophesy against him,

3 And say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I am against thee, O Gog, the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal:

4 And [f] I will turn thee back, and put hooks into thy jaws, and I will bring thee forth, and all thine army, horses and horsemen, [g] all of them clothed with all sorts of armour, even a great company with bucklers and shields, all of them handling swords:

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

5 Persia, Ethiopia, and [h] Libya with them; all of them with shield and helmet.

6 [i] Gomer, and all his bands; the house of [k] Togarmah of the north quarters, and all his bands: and many people with thee.

7 [l] Be thou prepared, and prepare for thyself, thou, and all thy company that are assembled unto thee, and be thou a guard unto them.

8 [m] After many [n] days thou shalt be visited: in the latter years thou shalt come into the

[a] Chap. xxxix. 1.——[b] Chap. xxxv. 2, 3.——[c] Rev. xx. 8. [d] Or, prince of the chief.——[e] Chap. xxxii. 26.——[f] 2 Kings xix. 28; chap. xxix. 4; xxxix. 2.——[g] Chap. xxiii. 12.

[h] Or, Phut; chap. xxvii. 10; xxx. 5.——[i] Gen. x. 2.——[k] Ch. xxvii. 14.——[l] Like Isa. viii. 9, 10; Jer. xlvi 3, 4, 14; li. 12. [m] Gen. xlix. 1; Deut. iv. 30; ver. 16.——[n] Isa. xxix. 6.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXXVIII.

Verse 2. Son of man, set thy face against Gog, the land of Magog] This is allowed to be the most difficult prophecy in the Old Testament. It is difficult to us, because we know not the king nor people intended by it: but I am satisfied they were well known by these names in the time that the prophet wrote.

I have already remarked in the introduction to this book that there are but two opinions on this subject that appear to be at all probable: 1. That which makes GOG Cambyses, king of Persia; and, 2. That which makes him ANTIOCHUS EPIPHANES, king of Syria. And between these two (for one or other is supposed to be the person intended) men are much divided.

Calmet, one of the most judicious commentators that ever wrote on the Bible, declares for Cambyses; and supports his opinion, in opposition to all others, by many arguments.

Mr. Mede supposes the Americans are meant, who were originally colonies of the Scythians, who were descendants of Magog, son of Japheth. Houbigant declares for the Scythians, whose neighbours were the people of Rosh, Meshech, and Tubal, that is the Russians, Muscovites, and Tybareni or Cappadocians. Several eminent critics espouse this opinion. Rabbi David Kimchi says the Christians and Turks are meant: and of later opinions there are several, founded in the ocean of conjecture. Calmet says expressly, that GOG is Cambyses, king of Persia, who on his return from the land of Egypt, died in Judea. The Rev. David Martin, pastor of the Waloon church at Utrecht, concludes, after examining all previous opinions, that Antiochus Epiphanes, the great enemy of the Israelites, is alone intended here; and that Gog, which signifies covered, is an allusion to the well-known character of Antiochus, whom historians describe as an artful, cunning, and dissembling man. See Dan. viii. 23, 25; xi. 23, 27, 32. Magog he supposes to mean the country of Syria. Of this opinion the following quotation from Pliny, Hist. Nat., lib. v., c. 23, seems a proof; who, speaking of Cœle-Syria, says: Cœle habet Apamiam Marsyia amne divisam a Nazarinorum Tetrarchia. Bambycem quam alio nomine Hierapolis vocatur, Syris vero Magog. "Cœle-Syria has Apamia separated from the tetrarchy of the Nazarenes by the river Marsyia; and Bambyce, otherwise called Hierapolis; but by the Syrians, MAGOG."

I shall at present examine the text by this latter opinion.

Chief prince of Meshech and Tubal] These probably mean the auxiliary forces, over whom Antiochus was supreme; they were the Muscovites and Cappadocians.

Verse 4. I will turn thee back] Thy enterprise shall fail.

Verse 5. Persia] That a part of this country was tributary to Antiochus, see 1 Macc. iii. 31

Ethiopia, and Libya] That these were auxiliaries of Antiochus is evident from Dan. xi. 43: "The Libyans and Ethiopians shall be at his steps."

Verse 6. Gomer, and all his bands; the house of Togarmah] The Cimmerians and Turcomanians, and other northern nations.—Calmet.

Verse 8. In the latter years thou shalt come] This land that is brought back from the sword, [n] and is gathered out of many people, against [o] the mountains of Israel, which have been always waste: but it is brought forth out of the nations, and they shall [p] dwell safely all of them.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

9 Thou shalt ascend and come [q] like a storm, thou shalt be [r] like a cloud to cover the land, thou, and all thy bands, and many people with thee.

10 Thus saith the Lord GOD; It shall also come to pass that at the same time shall things come into thy mind, and thou shalt [s] think an evil thought:

11 And thou shalt say, I will go up to the land of unwalled villages; I will [t] go to them that are at rest, [u] that dwell [v] safely, all of them dwelling without walls, and having neither bars nor gates,

12 [w] To take a spoil, and to take a prey, to turn thine hand upon [x] the desolate places that are now inhabited, [y] and upon the people that are gathered out of the nations, which have gotten cattle and goods, that dwell in the [z] midst of the land.

13 [a] Sheba, and [b] Dedan, and the merchants [c] of Tarshish, with all [d] the young lions thereof, shall say unto thee, Art thou come to take a spoil? hast thou gathered thy company to take a prey? to carry away silver and gold, to take away cattle and goods, to take a great spoil?

14 Therefore, son of man, prophesy and say unto Gog, Thus saith the Lord GOD; [o] In that day when my people of Israel [f] dwelleth safely, shalt thou not know it?

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

15 [g] And thou shalt come from thy place out of the north parts, thou, [h] and many people with thee, all of them riding upon horses, a great company, and a mighty army:

16 [i] And thou shalt come up against my people of Israel, as a cloud to cover the land; [k] it shall be in the latter days, and I will bring thee against my land, [l] that the heathen may know me, when I shall be sanctified in thee, O Gog, before their eyes.

17 Thus saith the Lord GOD; Art thou he of whom I have spoken in old time, [m] by my servants the prophets of Israel, which prophesied in those days many years that I would bring thee against them?

18 And it shall come to pass at the same time when Gog shall come against the land of Israel, saith the Lord GOD, that my fury shall come up in my face.

19 For [n] in my jealousy [o] and in the fire of my wrath have I spoken, [p] Surely in that day there shall be a great shaking in the land of Israel;

20 So that [q] the fishes of the sea, and the fowls of the heaven, and the beasts of the field, and all creeping things that creep upon the earth, and all the men that are upon the face of the earth, shall shake at my presence, [r] and the mountains shall be thrown down, and the

[a] Ver. 12; chap. xxxiv. 13. — [o] Chap. xxxvi. 1, 4, 8. — [p] Jer. xxiii. 6; chap. xxviii. 26; xxxiv. 25, 28; ver. 11. — [q] Isa. xxviii. 2. — [r] Jer. iv. 13; ver. 16. — [s] Or, conceive a mischievous purpose. — [t] Jer. xlix. 31. — [u] Ver. 8. — [v] Or, confidently. [w] Heb. To spoil the spoil, and to prey the prey; chap. xxix. 19. [x] Chap. xxxvi. 34, 35. — [y] Ver. 8. — [z] Heb. navel; Judg. ix. 37.

[a] Chap. xxvii. 22, 23. — [b] Chap. xxvii. 15, 20. — [c] Chap. xxvii. 12. — [d] See chap. x. 3, 5. — [e] Isa. iv. 1. — [f] Ver. 8. — [g] Chap. xxxix. 2. — [h] Ver. 6. — [i] Ver. 9. — [k] Ver. 8. — [l] Exod. xiv. 4; chap. xxxvi. 23; xxxix. 21. — [m] Heb. by the hands. — [n] Chap. xxxvi. 5, 6; xxxix. 25. — [o] Psa. lxxxix. 46. — [p] Hag. ii. 6, 7; Rev. xvi. 18. — [q] Hos. iv. 3. — [r] Jer. iv. 24; Nah. i. 5, 6.

was fulfilled about four hundred years after.—Martin. The expedition of Cambyses against Egypt was about twelve years after the return of the Jews from Babylon.—Calmet.

Verse 9. Thou shalt ascend and come like a storm] It is observable that Antiochus is thus spoken of by Daniel, chap. xi. 40: The king of the north—Antiochus, shall come against him (the king of the south is the king of Egypt) like a whirlwind.

Verse 10. Shalt things come into thy mind, and thou shalt think an evil thought] Antiochus purposed to invade and destroy Egypt as well as Judea; see Dan. xi. 31, 32, 36. This Calmet interprets of Cambyses, his cruelties in Egypt, and his evil design to destroy the Israelites.

Verse 12. To take a spoil—and a prey] When Antiochus took Jerusalem he gave the pillage of it to his soldiers, and spoiled the temple of its riches, which were immense. See Joseph. WAR, B. i. c. 1.

Verse 13. Sheba, and Dedan] The Arabians, anciently great plunderers; and Tarshish, the inhabitants of the famous isle of Tartessus, the most noted merchants of the time. They are here represented as coming to Antiochus before he undertook the expedition, and bargaining for the spoils of the Jews. Art thou come to take a spoil, to carry away silver and gold, cattle and goods?

Verse 16. When I shall be sanctified in thee, O Gog] By the defeat of his troops under Lysias, his general. 1 Mac. iii. 32, 33, &c., and chap. vi. 6.

Verse 17. Art thou he of whom I have spoken in old time] This prophecy concerning Antiochus and the Jews was delivered about four hundred years before the events took place.—Martin. Calmet maintains

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

[s] steep places shall fall, and every wall shall fall to the ground.

21 And I will [t] call for [u] a sword against him throughout all my mountains, saith the Lord GOD: [v] every man's sword shall be against his brother.

22 And I will [w] plead against him with [x] pestilence and with blood; and [y] I will rain upon him, and upon his bands, and upon the many people that are with him, an overflowing rain, and [z] great hailstones, fire, and brimstone.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

23 Thus will I magnify myself, and [a] sanctify myself; [b] and I will be known in the eyes of many nations, and they shall know that I am the LORD.

[s] Or, towers, or stairs.——[t] Psa. cv. 16.——[u] Chap. xiv. 17. [v] Judg. vii. 22; 1 Sam. xiv. 20; 2 Chron. xx. 23.——[w] Isa. lxvi 16; Jer. xxv. 31.

[x] Chap. v. 17.——[y] Psa. xi. 6; Isa. xxix. 6; xxx. 30.——[z] Chap. xiii. 11; Rev. xvi. 21.——[a] Chap. xxxvi. 23.——[b] Psa. ix. 16; chap. xxxvii. 28; xxxix. 7; ver. 16.

that Cambyses is spoken of, and refers to ancient prophecies, especially Isa. xiv., xv., xvi. 20, 21.

Verse 21. I will call for a sword against him] Meaning Judas Maccabeus, who defeated his army under Lysias, making a horrible carnage.—Martin. Cambyses had no wars in the mountains of Israel.

Verse 22. Great hailstones, fire, and brimstone.] These are probably figurative expressions, to signify that the whole tide of the war should be against him, and that his defeat and slaughter should be great. Abp. Newcome supposes all the above prophecy remains yet to be fulfilled. Where such eminent scribes are divided, who shall decide!

CHAPTER XXXIX.

The prophet goes on to denounce the Divine judgments against Gog and his army, 1–7; and describes their dreadful slaughter, 8–10, and burial, 11–16, in terms so very lofty and comprehensive, as must certainly denote some very extraordinary interposition of Providence in behalf of the Jews. And to amplify the matter still more, the prophet, with peculiar art and propriety, delays the summoning of all the birds and beasts of prey in nature to feast on the slain, (in allusion to the custom of feasting on the remainder of sacrifices,) till after the greater multitudes are buried; to intimate that even the remainder, and as it were the stragglers of such mighty hosts, would be more than sufficient to satisfy their utmost rapacity, 17–20. The remaining verses contain a prediction of the great blessedness of the people of God in Gospel times, and of the stability of the kingdom of Christ, 21–29. It will be proper to remark that the great northern expedition against the natural Israel, described in this and the preceding chapter, is, from its striking resemblance in the main particulars, put by the writer of the Apocalypse, (chap. xx. 7–10,) for a much more formidable armament of a multitude of nations in the four quarters of the earth against the pure Christian Church, the MYSTICAL Israel; an event still extremely remote, and which it is thought shall immediately precede the destruction of the world by fire, and the general judgment.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

THEREFORE, [a] thou son of man, prophesy against Gog, and say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I am against thee, O Gog, the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal;

2 And I will turn thee back, and [b] leave but the sixth part of thee, [c] and will cause thee to come up from [d] the north parts, and will bring thee upon the mountains of Israel:

3 And I will smite thy bow out of thy left hand, and will cause thine arrows to fall out of thy right hand.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

4 [e] Thou shalt fall upon the mountains of Israel, thou, and all thy bands, and the people that is with thee: [f] I will give thee unto the ravenous birds of every [g] sort, and to the beasts of the field [h] to be devoured.

5 Thou shalt fall upon [i] the open field: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord GOD.

6 [k] And I will send a fire on Magog, and

[a] Chap. xxxviii. 2, 3.——[b] Or, strike thee with six plagues; or, draw thee back with a hook of six teeth, as chap. xxxviii. 4.——[c] Ch. xxxviii. 15.——[d] Heb. the sides of the north.

[e] Chap. xxxviii. 21; ver. 17.——[f] Chap. xxxiii. 27.——[g] Heb. wing.——[h] Heb. to devour.——[i] Heb. the face of the field.——[k] Ch. xxxviii. 22; Amos i. 4.

NOTES ON CHAP. XXXIX.

Verse 2. And leave but the sixth part of thee] The margin has, strike thee with six plagues; or, draw thee back with a hook of six teeth.

Verse 3. I will smite thy bow out of thy left hand] The Persians whom Antiochus had in his army, chap. xxxviii. 5, were famous as archers, and they may be intended here. The bow is held by the left hand; the arrow is pulled and discharged by the right.

Verse 6. I will send a fire on Magog] On Syria. I will destroy the Syrian troops.

And among them that dwell carelessly in the isles]

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

among them that dwell [l] carelessly in [m] the isles: and they shall know that I am the LORD.

7 [n] So will I make my holy name known in the midst of my people Israel; and I will not let them [o] pollute my holy name any more: [p] and the heathen shall know that I am the LORD, the Holy One in Israel.

8 [q] Behold, it is come, and it is done, saith the Lord GOD; this is the day [r] whereof I have spoken.

9 And they that dwell in the cities of Israel shall go forth, and shall set on fire and burn the weapons, both the shields and the bucklers, the bows and the arrows, and the [s] handstaves, and the spears, and they shall [t] burn them with fire seven years:

10 So that they shall take no wood out of the field, neither cut down any out of the forests; for they shall burn the weapons with fire: [u] and they shall spoil those that spoiled them, and rob those that robbed them, saith the Lord GOD.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

11 And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will give unto Gog a place there of graves in Israel, the valley of the passengers on the east of the sea; and it shall stop the [v] noses of the passengers: and there shall they bury Gog and all his multitude: and they shall call it The valley of [w] Hamon-gog.

12 And seven months shall the house of Israel be burying of them, [x] that they may cleanse the land.

13 Yea, all the people of the land shall

[l] Or, confidently.——[m] Psa. lxxii. 10.——[n] Ver. 22.——[o] Lev. xviii. 21; chap. xx. 39.——[p] Chap. xxxviii. 16, 23.——[q] Rev. xvi. 17; xxi. 6.——[r] Chap. xxxviii. 17.

[s] Or, javelins.——[t] Or, make a fire of them.——[u] Isa. xiv. 2.

[v] Or, mouths.——[w] That is, The multitude of Gog.——[x] Deut. xxi. 23; ver. 14, 16.

The auxiliary troops that came to Antiochus from the borders of the Euxine Sea.—Martin.

Verse 7. In the midst of my people Israel] This defeat of Gog is to be in Israel: and it was there according to this prophecy, that the immense army of Antiochus was so completely defeated.

And I will not let them pollute my holy name any more] See on 1 Macc. i. 11, &c., how Antiochus had profaned the temple, insulted Jehovah and his worship, &c. God permitted that as a scourge to his disobedient people; but now the scourger shall be scourged, and he shall pollute the sanctuary no more.

Verse 9. And shall set on fire—the weapons] The Israelites shall make bonfires and fuel of the weapons, tents, &c., which the defeated Syrians shall leave behind them, as expressive of the joy which they shall feel for the destruction of their enemies; and to keep up, in their culinary consumption, the memory of this great event.

They shall burn them with fire seven years] These may be figurative expressions, after the manner of the Asiatics, whose language abounds with such descriptions. They occur every where in the prophets. As to the number seven, it is only a certain for an indeterminate number. But as the slaughter was great, and the bows, arrows, quivers, shields, bucklers, handstaves, and spears were in vast multitudes, it must have taken a long time to gather them up in the different parts of the fields of battle, and the roads in which the Syrians had retreated, throwing away their arms as they proceeded; so there might have been a long time employed in collecting and burning them. And as all seem to have been doomed to the fire, there might have been some found at different intervals and burned, during the seven years here mentioned. Mariana, in his History of Spain, lib. xi., c. 24, says, that after the Spaniards had given that signal overthrow to the Saracens, A. D. 1212, they found such a vast quantity of lances, javelins, and such like, that they served them for four years for fuel. And probably these instruments obtained by the Israelites were used in general for culinary firewood, and might literally have served them for seven years; so that during that time they should take no wood out of the fields, nor out of the forests for the purpose of fuel, ver. 10.

Verse 11. The valley of the passengers on the east of the sea] That is, of Gennesareth, according to the Targum. The valley near this lake or sea is called the Valley of the Passengers, because it was a great road by which the merchants and traders from Syria and other eastern countries went into Egypt; see Gen. xxxvii. 17, 25. See Calmet here.

There shall they bury Gog and all his multitude] Some read, "There shall they bury Gog, that is, all his multitude." Not Gog, or Antiochus himself, for he was not in this battle; but his generals, captains, and soldiers, by whom he was represented. As to Hamon-gog, we know no valley of this name but here. But we may understand the words thus: the place where this great slaughter was, and where the multitudes of the slain were buried, might be better called Hamon-gog, the valley of the multitude of Gog, than the valley of passengers; for so great was the carnage there, that the way of the passengers shall be stopped by it. See the text.

Verse 12. And seven months] It shall require a long time to bury the dead. This is another figurative expression; which, however, may admit of a good deal of literal meaning. Many of the Syrian soldiers had secreted themselves in different places during the pursuit after the battle, where they died of their wounds, of hunger, and of fatigue; so that they were not all found and buried till seven months after the defeat of the Syrian army. This slow process of burying is distinctly related in the three following verses, and extended even to a bone, ver. 15; which, when it was bury them; and it shall be to them a renown, the day that [y] I shall be glorified, saith the Lord GOD.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

14 And they shall sever out [z] men of continual employment, passing through the land to bury with the passengers those that remain upon the face of the earth, [a] to cleanse it: after the end of seven months shall they search.

15 And the passengers that pass through the land, when any seeth a man's bone, then shall he [b] set up a sign by it, till the buriers have buried it in the valley of Hamon-gog.

16 And also the name of the city shall be [c] Hamonah. Thus shall they [d] cleanse the land.

17 And, thou son of man, thus saith the Lord GOD; [e] Speak [f] unto every feathered fowl, and to every beast of the field, [g] Assemble yourselves, and come; gather yourselves on every side to my [h] sacrifice that I do sacrifice for you, even a great sacrifice [i] upon the mountains of Israel, that ye may eat flesh, and drink blood.

18 [k] Ye shall eat the flesh of the mighty, and drink the blood of the princes of the earth, of rams, of lambs, and of [l] goats, of bullocks, all of them [m] fatlings of Bashan.

19 And ye shall eat fat till ye be full, and drink blood till ye be drunken, of my sacrifice which I have sacrificed for you.

20 [n] Thus ye shall be filled at my table with horses and chariots, [o] with mighty men, and with all men of war, saith the Lord GOD.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

21 [p] And I will set my glory among the heathen, and all the heathen shall see my judgment that I have executed, and [q] my hand that I have laid upon them.

22 [r] So the house of Israel shall know that I am the LORD their God from that day and forward.

23 [s] And the heathen shall know that the house of Israel went into captivity for their iniquity: because they trespassed against me, therefore [t] hid I my face from them, and [u] gave them into the hand of their enemies: so fell they all by the sword.

24 [v] According to their uncleanness and according to their transgressions have I done unto them, and hid my face from them.

25 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; [w] Now will I bring again the captivity of Jacob, and have mercy upon the [x] whole house of Israel, and will be jealous for my holy name;

26 [y] After that they have borne their shame, and all their trespasses whereby they have trespassed against me, when they [z] dwelt safely in their land, and none made them afraid.

27 [a] When I have brought them again from the people, and gathered them out of their

[y] Chap. xxviii. 22.——[z] Heb. men of continuance.——[a] Ver. 12. [b] Heb. build.——[c] That is, the multitude.——[d] Ver. 12.——[e] Rev. xix. 17.——[f] Heb. to the fowl of every wing.——[g] Isa. xviii. 6; xxxiv. 6; Jer. xii. 9; Zeph. i. 7.——[h] Or, slaughter.——[i] Ver. 4. [k] Rev. xix. 18.——[l] Heb. great goats.——[m] Deut. xxxii. 14; Psa. xxii. 12.——[n] Psa. lxxvi. 6; chap. xxxviii. 4.

[o] Rev. xix. 18.——[p] Chap. xxxviii. 16, 23.——[q] Exod. vii. 4. [r] Ver. 7, 28.——[s] Chap. xxxvi. 18, 19, 20, 23.——[t] Deut. xxxi. 17; Isa. lix. 2.——[u] Lev. xxvi. 25.——[v] Chap. xxxvi. 19.——[w] Jer. xxx. 3, 18; chap. xxxiv. 13; xxxvi. 21.——[x] Chap. xx. 40; Hos. i. 11.——[y] Dan. ix. 16.——[z] Lev. xxvi. 5, 6.——[a] Chap. xxviii. 25, 26.

found by a passenger, the place was marked, that the buriers might see and inter it. Seven months was little time enough for all this work; and in that country putrescency does not easily take place; the scorching winds serving to desiccate the flesh, and preserve it from decomposition.

Verse 17. Gather yourselves—to my sacrifice] This is an allusion to a custom common in the east: when a sacrifice is made, the friends and neighbours of the party sacrificing are invited to come and feast on the sacrifice.

Verse 18. Ye shall—drink the blood of the princes of the earth] I need not mention the custom of the Scandinavians: they were accustomed to drink the blood of their enemies out of the skulls of the dead. But this is spoken of fowls and beasts here—rams, lambs, and goats. The feast shall be as grateful and as plenteous to the fowls and beasts, as one made of the above animals, the fattest and best of their kind, (because fed in the fertile fields of Bashan,) would be to the guests of him who makes a sacrifice.

Verse 19. And ye shall eat fat—and drink blood] Who shall eat and drink, &c.? Not the Jews; though Voltaire says they ate human flesh, and are invited here by the prophet to eat the flesh and drink the blood of their enemies; which is a most unprincipled falsehood. It is the fowls and the beasts that God invites, ver. 17: "Speak to every feathered fowl, and to every beast of the field, assemble yourselves—that ye may eat flesh and drink blood;" nor are the persons altered in all these verses, 17, 18, 19, 20: so the assertion of Voltaire is either through brutish ignorance or Satanic malice.

Verse 25. Now will I bring again the captivity of Jacob] Both they and the heathen shall know that it was for their iniquity that I gave them into the hands of their enemies: and now I will redeem them from those hands in such a way as to prove that I am a merciful God, as well as a just God.

Verse 26. After that they have borne their shame] After they shall have borne the punishment due to a line of conduct which is their shame and reproach, viz. idolatry.

Verse 27. When I have—gathered them] Antiochus

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

enemies' lands, and [b]am sanctified in them in the sight of many nations;

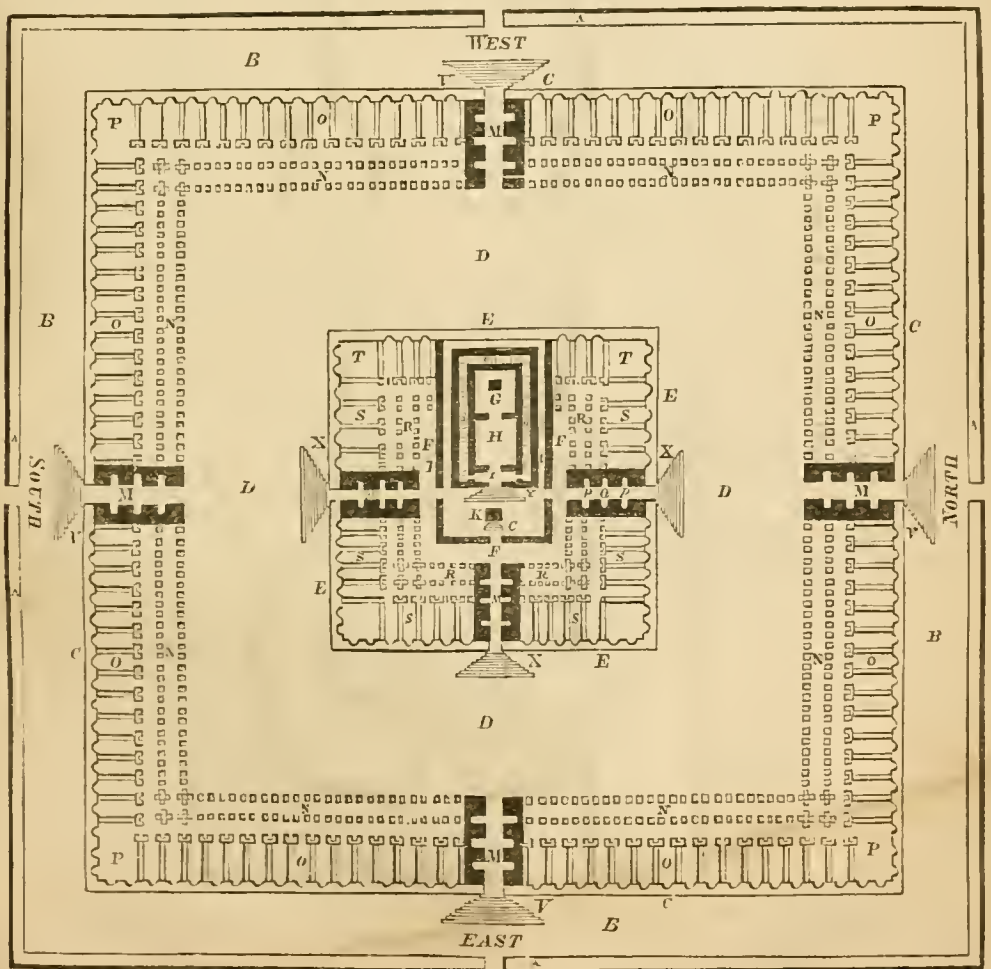
28 [c]Then shall they know that I am the Lord their God, [d]which caused them to be led into captivity among the heathen: but I have gathered them unto their own land, and have left none of them any more there.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

29 [e]Neither will I hide my face any more from them, for I have [f]poured out my Spirit upon the house of Israel, saith the Lord God.

[b] Chap. xxxvi. 23, 24; xxxviii. 16. — [c] Chap. xxxiv. 30; ver. 22.

[d] Heb. by my causing of them, &c. — [e] Isa. liv. 8. — [f] Joel ii. 28; Zech. xii. 10; Acts ii. 17.



had before captured many of the Jews, and sold them for slaves; see Dan. xi. 33.

Verse 28. And have left none of them any more there.] All that chose had liberty to return; but many remained behind. This promise may therefore refer to a greater restoration, when not a Jew shall be left behind. This, the next verse intimates, will be in the Gospel dispensation.

Verse 29. For I have poured out my Spirit] That is, I will pour out my Spirit; see the notes on chap. xxxvi. 25–29, where this subject is largely considered. This Spirit is to enlighten, quicken, purify, and cleanse their hearts; so that, being completely changed, they shall become God's people, and be a praise in the earth. Now, they are a proverb of reproach; then, they shall be eminently distinguished.

A NEW PLAN OF THE TEMPLE AT JERUSALEM.

[For an explanation of this plan, and of the accompanying map of the division of the Land of Canaan, see at the end of chap. xlviii.]

DIVISION OF THE LAND OF CANAAN.

CHAPTER XL.

The prophecy or vision, which begins here, continues to the end of the Book. The Temple of Jerusalem lying in ruins when Ezekiel had this vision, (for its date is the fourteenth year after the destruction of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar,) the Jews needed consolation. If they were not promised a restoration of the temple, they would not feel so great an interest in returning home. It is thought by some that no model of Solomon's Temple had remained. To direct them, therefore, in the dimensions, parts, order, and rules of their new temple might be one reason why Ezekiel is so particular in the description of the old; to which the new was conformable in figure and parts, though inferior in magnificence, on account of the poverty of the nation at the time. Whatever was august or illustrious in the prophetic figures, and not literally fulfilled in or near their own times, the ancient Jews properly considered as belonging to the time of the Messiah. Accordingly, upon finding that the latter temple fell short of the model of the temple here described by Ezekiel, they supposed the prophecy to refer, at least in part, to the period now mentioned. And we, who live under the Gospel dispensation, have apostolical authority for the assertion that the temple and temple worship were emblematic of Christ's Church, frequently represented in the New Testament under the metaphor of a temple, in allusion to the symmetry, beauty, and firmness of that of Solomon; to its orderly worship; and to the manifestations it had of the Divine Presence. This chapter commences with the time, manner, and end of the vision, 1–5. We have next a description of the east gate, 6–19, the north gate, 20–22, and the south gate, 24–31. A farther description of the east gate, 32–34, and of the north gate, 35–38. Account of the eight tables, 39–43: of the chambers, 44–47; and of the porch of the temple, 48, 49.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

IN the five and twentieth year of our captivity, in the beginning of the year, in the tenth day of the month, in the fourteenth year after that [a] the city was smitten, in the selfsame day [b] the hand of the LORD was upon me, and brought me thither.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3 Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

[a] Chap. xxxiii. 21.

[b] Chap. i. 3.

NOTES ON CHAP. XL.

Verse 1. In the five and twentieth year of our captivity] According to the date here given, this prophecy was delivered on Tuesday, April 20, A. M. 3430, in the twenty-fifth year of the captivity of Jeconiah, and fourteen years after the taking of Jerusalem.

The temple here described by Ezekiel is, in all probability, the same which he saw before his captivity, and which had been burned by the Chaldeans fourteen years before this vision. On comparing the Books of Kings and Chronicles with this prophet, we shall find the same dimensions in the parts described by both; for instance, the temple, or place which comprehended the sanctuary, the holy place, and the vestibule or porch before the temple, is found to measure equally the same both in Ezekiel and the Kings. Compare 1 Kings vi. 3–16, with chap. xli. 2, &c. The inside ornaments of the temple are entirely the same; in both we see two courts; an inner one for the priests, and an outer one for the people. Compare 1 Kings vi. 29–36; 2 Chron. iv. 9; and Ezek. xli. 16, 17, and xlviii. 7–10. So that there is room to suppose that, in all the rest, the temple of Ezekiel resembled the old one; and that God's design in retracing these ideas in the prophet's memory was to preserve the remembrance of the plan, the dimensions, the ornaments, and whole structure of this Divine edifice; and that at the return from captivity the people might more easily repair it, agreeably to this model. The prophet's applying himself to describe this edifice was a motive of hope to the Jews of seeing themselves one day delivered from captivity, the temple rebuilt, and their nation restored to its ancient inheritance. Ezekiel touches very slightly upon the description of the temple or house of the Lord, which comprehended the holy place or sanctuary, and which are so exactly described in the Books of Kings. He dwells more largely upon the gates, the galleries, and apartments, of the temple, concerning which the history of the kings had not spoken, or only just taken notice of by the way.

This is the judgment of Calmet; and although every Biblical critic is of the same opinion, yet more labour is spent on rebuilding this temple of Ezekiel than was spent on that built by Solomon! The Jesuits, Prada and Villalpand, have given three folio volumes on this temple, with abundance of cuts, where the different parts are exhibited after the finest models of Grecian and Roman architecture! But still the building is incomplete. Now, of what consequence is all this to the Christian, or to any other reader? I confess I see not. While, then, we have the exact dimensions and accurate description in 1 Kings and 2 Chronicles, of that built by Solomon, in imitation of which this plan by Ezekiel was drawn, we need not be very solicitous about the manner of measuring and describing used by the prophet; as, when we have laboured through the whole, we have only the measurements and description of that built by Solomon, and delineated by a hand not less faithful in the First Book of Kings, chap. vi., and 2 Chron. ii., iii., iv., v., and vi.

As the prophet knew that the Chaldeans had utterly destroyed the temple, he thought it necessary to preserve an exact description of it, that on their restoration the people might build one on the same model. As to allegorical meanings relative to this temple, I can say nothing: God has given no data by which any thing of this kind can be known or applied; and as to those who have laboured in this way, perhaps "Solomon's

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

2 [c] In the visions of God brought he me into the land of Israel, [d] and set me upon a very high mountain, [e] by which was as the frame of a city on the south.

3 And he brought me thither, and, behold, there was a man, whose appearance was [f] like the appearance of brass, [g] with a line of flax in his hand, [h] and a measuring reed; and he stood in the gate.

4 And the man said unto me, [i] Son of man, behold with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears, and set thine heart upon all that I shall show thee; for to the intent that I might show them unto thee art thou brought hither: [k] declare all that thou seest to the house of Israel.

5 And behold [l] a wall on the outside of the house round about, and in the man's hand a measuring reed of six cubits long by the cubit and a hand breadth: so he measured the breadth of the building, one reed; and the height, one reed.

6 Then came he unto the gate [m] which looketh toward the east, and went up the stairs thereof, and measured the threshold of the gate, which was one reed broad; and the other threshold of the gate, which was one reed broad.

7 And every little chamber was one reed long, and one reed broad; and between the little chambers were five cubits; and the threshold of the gate by the porch of the gate within was one reed.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

8 He measured also the porch of the gate within, one reed.

9 Then measured he the porch of the gate, eight cubits: and the posts thereof, two cubits; and the porch of the gate was inward.

10 And the little chambers of the gate eastward were three on this side, and three on that side; they three were of one measure: and the posts had one measure on this side and on that side.

11 And he measured the breadth of the entry of the gate, ten cubits; and the length of the gate, thirteen cubits.

12 The [n] space also before the little chambers was one cubit on this side, and the space was one cubit on that side: and the little chambers were six cubits on this side, and six cubits on that side.

13 He measured then the gate from the roof of one little chamber to the roof of another: the breadth was five and twenty cubits, door against door, 14 He made also posts of threescore cubits, even unto the posts of the court round about the gate.

15 And from the face of the gate of the entrance unto the face of the porch of the inner gate were fifty cubits.

[c] Chap. viii. 3.——[d] Rev. xxi. 10.——[e] Or, upon which.——[f] Chap. i. 7; Dan. x. 6.——[g] Chap. xlvii. 3.——[h] Rev. xi. 1; xxi. 15.

[i] Chap. xliv. 5.——[k] Chap. xliii. 10.——[l] Chap. xlii. 20.——[m] Heb. whose face was the way toward the east.——[n] Heb. limit, or bound.

Temple Spiritualized, by John Bunyan," is equally good with their well-intended inventions. Those who wish to enter much into the particulars of this temple must have recourse to the more voluminous expositors, who on this subject seem to have thought that they could never say enough. See also the accompanying map.

Verse 2. Set me upon a very high mountain] Mount Moriah, the mount on which Solomon's temple was built, 2 Chron. iii. 1.

Verse 3. A man, whose appearance was like—brass] Like bright polished brass, which strongly reflected the rays of light. Probably he had what we would term a nimbus or glory round his head. This was either an angel; or, as some think, a personal appearance of our blessed Lord.

Verse 4. Declare all that thou seest to the house of Israel] That they may know how to build the second temple, when they shall be restored from their captivity.

Verse 5. A measuring reed of six cubits long] The Hebrew cubit is supposed to be about twenty and a half inches; and a palm, about three inches more; the length of the rod about ten feet six inches.

The breadth—one reed; and the height, one reed.] As this wall was as broad as it was high, it must have been a kind of parapet, which was carried, of the same dimensions, all round the temple. See AAAA in the plan.

Verse 6. Went up the stairs thereof] As the temple was built upon an eminence, there must have been steps on the outside, opposite to each door, to ascend by. And it appears there were steps to go up from one court to another, see ver. 22, 26, 34, 37; and also from the court of the priests to the sanctuary, ver. 49. See MMMMM in the plan.

Verse 7. And every little chamber was one reed] These were the chambers of the buildings which were within the inclosure of the temple round the court, and these chambers appear to have been numerous. See the map, which has been carefully copied from that of Calmet.

Verse 9. The porch of the gate] See account of the gates in the plan.

Verse 15. Fifty cubits.] The length of the building. See MMMMM in the plan.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

16 And there were [o] narrow [p] windows to the little chambers, and to their posts within the gate round about, and likewise to the [q] arches: and windows were round about [r] inward: and upon each post were palm trees.

17 Then brought he me into [s] the outward court, and, lo, there were [t] chambers, and a pavement made for the court round about: [u] thirty chambers were upon the pavement.

18 And the pavement by the side of the gates over against the length of the gates was the lower pavement.

19 Then he measured the breadth from the forefront of the lower gate unto the forefront of the inner court [v] without, a hundred cubits eastward and northward.

20 And the gate of the outward court [w] that looked toward the north, he measured the length thereof, and the breadth thereof.

21 And the little chambers thereof were three on this side, and three on that side; and the posts thereof and the [x] arches thereof were after the measure of the first gate: the length thereof was fifty cubits, and the breadth five and twenty cubits.

22 And their windows, and their arches, and their palm trees, were after the measure of the gate that looketh toward the east: and they went up unto it by seven steps; and the arches thereof were before them.

23 And the gate of the inner court was over against the gate toward the north, and toward the east; and he measured from gate to gate a hundred cubits.

24 After that he brought me toward the south, and behold a gate toward the south: and he measured the posts thereof and the arches thereof according to these measures.

25 And there were windows in it and in the arches thereof round about, like those windows: the length was fifty cubits, and the breadth five and twenty cubits.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

26 And there were seven steps to go up to it, and the arches thereof were before them: and it had palm trees, one on this side, and another on that side, upon the posts thereof.

27 And there was a gate in the inner court toward the south: and he measured from gate to gate toward the south a hundred cubits.

28 And he brought me to the inner court by the south gate: and he measured the south gate according to these measures;

29 And the little chambers thereof, and the posts thereof, and the arches thereof, according to these measures: and there were windows in it, and in the arches thereof round about: it was fifty cubits long, and five and twenty cubits broad.

30 And the arches round about were [y] five and twenty cubits long, and five cubits [z] broad.

31 And the arches thereof were toward the utter court; and palm trees were upon the posts thereof: and the going up to it had eight steps.

32 And he brought me into the inner court toward the east: and he measured the gate according to these measures.

33 And the little chambers thereof, and the posts thereof, and the arches thereof, were according to these measures: and there were windows therein and in the arches thereof round about: it was fifty cubits long, and five and twenty cubits broad.

34 And the arches thereof were toward the outward court; and palm trees were upon the posts thereof, on this side, and on that side: and the going up to it had eight steps.

35 And he brought me to the north gate, and measured it according to these measures;

[o] 1 Kings vi. 4.——[p] Heb. closed.——[q] Or, galleries, or porches. [r] Or, within.——[s] Rev. xi. 2.——[t] 1 Kings vi. 5.——[u] Chap. xlv. 5.

[v] Or, from without.——[w] Heb. whose face was.——[x] Or, galleries, or porches.——[y] See verses 21, 25, 33, 36.——[z] Hebrew, breadth.

Verse 17. The outward court] This was the court of the people.

Verse 21. And the little chambers thereof were three, &c.] See the plan.

Arches] Porch. The arch was not known at this period.

Verse 24. According to these measures.] The same measures that had been used at the eastern court.

Verse 30. And the arches round about were five and twenty cubits long] That the five cubits broad should be read twenty-five is evident from verses 21, 25, 29, 33, and 36. The word עֶשְׂרִים veesrim, twenty, has probably been lost out of the text. Indeed the whole verse is wanting in two of Kennicott's MSS., one of De Rossi's, and one of mine, (Cod. B.) It has been added in the margin of mine by a later hand. It is reported to have been anciently wanting in many MSS.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

36 The little chambers thereof, the posts thereof, and the arches thereof, and the windows to it round about: the length was fifty cubits, and the breadth five and twenty cubits.

37 And the posts thereof were toward the utter court; and palm trees were upon the posts thereof, on this side, and on that side: and the going up to it had eight steps.

38 And the chambers and the entries thereof were by the posts of the gates, where they washed the burnt-offering.

39 And in the porch of the gate were two tables on this side, and two tables on that side, to slay thereon the burnt-offering and [a] the sin-offering and [b] the trespass-offering.

40 And at the side without, [c] as one goeth up to the entry of the north gate, were two tables; and on the other side, which was at the porch of the gate, were two tables.

41 Four tables were on this side, and four tables on that side, by the side of the gate; eight tables, whereupon they slew their sacrifices.

42 And the four tables were of hewn stone for the burnt-offering, of a cubit and a half long, and a cubit and a half broad, and one cubit high: whereupon also they laid the instruments wherewith they slew the burnt-offering and the sacrifice.

43 And within were [d] hooks, a hand broad, fastened round about: and upon the tables was the flesh of the offering.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI 3 Anno Servii Tullii R. Roman., 5

44 And without the inner gate were the chambers of [e] the singers in the inner court, which was at the side of the north gate; and their prospect was toward the south: one at the side of the east gate having the prospect toward the north.

45 And he said unto me, This chamber, whose prospect is toward the south, is for the priests, [f] the keepers of the [g] charge of the house.

46 And the chamber whose prospect is toward the north is for the priests, [h] the keepers of the charge of the altar: these are the sons of [i] Zadok among the sons of Levi, which come near to the LORD to minister unto him.

47 So he measured the court, a hundred cubits long, and a hundred cubits broad, foursquare; and the altar that was before the house.

48 And he brought me to the porch of the house, and measured each post of the porch, five cubits on this side, and five cubits on that side: and the breadth of the gate was three cubits on this side, and three cubits on that side.

49 [k] The length of the porch was twenty cubits, and the breadth eleven cubits; and he brought me by the steps whereby they went up to it: and there were [l] pillars by the posts, one on this side, and another on that side.

[a] Lev. iv. 2, 3. —— [b] Lev. v. 6; vi. 6; vii. 1. —— [c] Or, at the step. [d] Or, endirons, or the two hearthstones. —— [e] 1 Chron. vi. 31. [f] Lev. viii. 35; Num. iii. 27, 28, 32, 38; xviii. 5; 1 Chron. ix. 23; 2 Chron. xiii. 11; Psa. cxxxiv. 1. —— [g] Or, ward, or ordinance; and so ver. 46. —— [h] Num. xviii. 5; chap. xliv. 15. —— [i] 1 Kings ii. 35; chap. xliii. 19; xliv. 15, 16. —— [k] 1 Kings vi. 3. —— [l] 1 Kings vii. 21.

Verse 39. The porch of the gate] The north gate of the court of the priests. See Q in the plan.

Two tables] Some say of marble. See dddd in the plan.

Verse 41. Four tables] These were in the porch of the north gate, in the court of the priests: on them they slew, flayed, and cut up the victims. See dddd in the plan.

Verse 47. He measured the court] This was the court of the priests. See FFF in the plan.

Verse 48. Breadth of the gate] It is evident that the gate was a bivalve, or had folding doors. The length of the porch was twenty cubits. Josephus says the vestibule was twenty cubits long and ten broad. Antiq. lib. viii. 3, 2.

Verse 49. By the steps] This was a flight of steps that led to the temple; there were eight steps in each flight. See YY in the plan.

CHAPTER XLI.

In this chapter the prophet gives us a circumstantial account of the measures, parts, chambers, and ornaments of the temple, 1–26.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

AFTERWARD he brought me to the temple, and measured the posts, six cubits broad on the one side, and six cubits broad on the other side, which was the breadth of the tabernacle.

2 And the breadth of the [a] door was ten cubits; and the sides of the door were five cubits on the one side, and five cubits on the other side: and he measured the length thereof, forty cubits: and the breadth, [b] twenty cubits.

3 Then went he inward, and measured the post of the door, two cubits; and the door six cubits; and the breadth of the door, seven cubits.

4 So [c] he measured the length thereof, twenty cubits; and the breadth, twenty cubits, before the temple: and he said unto me, This is the most holy place.

5 After he measured the wall of the house, six cubits; and the breadth of every side chamber, four cubits, round about the house on every side.

6 [d] And the side chambers were three, [e] one over another, and [f] thirty in order; and they entered into the wall which was of the house for the side chambers round about, that they might [g] have hold, but they had not hold in the wall of the house.

7 And [h] there [i] was an enlarging, and a winding about still upward to the side chambers: for the winding about of the house went still upward round about the house: therefore the breadth of the house was still upward, and so increased from the lowest chamber to the highest by the midst.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii R. Roman., 5.

8 I saw also the height of the house round about: the foundations of the side chambers were [k] a full reed of six great cubits.

9 The thickness of the wall, which was for the side chamber without, was five cubits: and that which was left was the place of the side chambers that were within.

10 And between the chambers was the wideness of twenty cubits round about the house on every side.

11 And the doors of the side chambers were toward the place that was left, one door toward the north, and another door toward the south: and the breadth of the place that was left was five cubits round about.

12 Now the building that was before the separate place at the end toward the west was seventy cubits broad; and the wall of the building was five cubits thick round about, and the length thereof ninety cubits.

13 So he measured the house, a hundred cubits long: and the separate place, and the

[a] Or, entrance.——[b] 1 Kings vi. 2.——[c] 1 Kings vi. 20; 2 Chron. iii. 8.——[d] 1 Kings vi. 5, 6.——[e] Heb. side chamber over side chamber.

[f] Or, three and thirty times, or foot.——[g] Heb. be holden. [h] Heb. it was made broader, and went round.——[i] 1 Kings vi. 8. [k] Chap. xl. 5.

NOTES ON CHAP. XLI.

Verse 1. To the temple] He had first described the courts and the porch. See chap. xl.

Verse 2. The breadth of the door] This was the door, or gate, of the sanctuary, (see gates, 3, in the plan,) and this doorway was filled up with folding gates. The measurements are exactly the same as those of Solomon's temple. See 1 Kings vi. 2, 17.

Verse 4. The length thereof, twenty cubits] This is the measurement of the sanctuary, or holy of holies. See G in the plan. This also was the exact measurement of Solomon's temple, see 1 Kings vi. 20. This, and the other resemblances here, sufficiently prove that Ezekiel's temple and that of Solomon were on the same plan; and that the latter temple was intended to be an exact resemblance of the former.

Verse 6. The side chambers were three] We find by Joseph. Antiq. viii. 3, 2, that around Solomon's temple were chambers three stories high, each story consisting of thirty chambers. It is supposed that twelve were placed to the north of the temple, twelve to the south, and six to the east.

Entered into the wall] The beams were admitted into the outer wall, but they rested on projections of the inner wall.

Verse 7. An enlarging, and a winding about] Perhaps a winding staircase that widened upward as the inner wall decreased in thickness; this wall being six cubits thick as high as the first story, five from the floor of the second story to that of the third, and four from the floor to the ceiling of the third story: and thus there was a rest of one cubit in breadth to support the stories.—Newcome.

Verse 9. The thickness of the wall] See LLL in the plan.

The place of the side chambers] A walk, or gallery of communication along the chambers, five cubits broad, ver. 11.

Verse 11. And the doors] See the plan, aa. bb.

Verse 12. The length thereof ninety cubits.] The temple, with the buildings which surrounded it, was eighty-one cubits long; add ten cubits for the vestibule, or five for the breadth of the separate place, and five for its wall; in all, ninety cubits. See the plan, LHHL. By the separate place I suppose the temple itself is meant.

Verse 13. So he measured the house] The temple,

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

building, with the walls thereof, a hundred cubits long;

14 Also the breadth of the face of the house, and of the separate place toward the east, a hundred cubits.

15 And he measured the length of the building over against the separate place which was behind it, and the [l] galleries thereof on the one side and on the other side, a hundred cubits, with the inner temple, and the porches of the court;

16 The door posts, and [m] the narrow window, and the galleries round about on their three stories, over against the door, [n] ceiled with wood round about, [o] and from the ground up to the windows, and the windows were covered;

17 To that above the door, even unto the inner house, and without, and by all the wall round about within and without, by [p] measure.

18 And it was made [q] with cherubims and palm trees, so that a palm tree was between a cherub and a cherub; and every cherub had two faces;

19 [r] So that the face of a man was toward the palm tree on the one side, and the face of a young lion toward the palm tree on the other side: it was made through all the house round about.

20 From the ground unto above the door were cherubims and palm trees made, and on the wall of the temple.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

21 The [s] posts of the temple were squared, and the face of the sanctuary; the appearance of the one as the appearance of the other.

22 [t] The altar of wood was three cubits high, and the length thereof two cubits; and the corners thereof, and the length thereof, and the walls thereof, were of wood: and he said unto me, This is [u] the table that is [v] before the LORD.

23 [w] And the temple and the sanctuary had two doors.

24 And the doors had two leaves apiece, two turning leaves; two leaves for the one door, and two leaves for the other door.

25 And there were made on them, on the doors of the temple, cherubims and palm trees, like as were made upon the walls; and there were thick planks upon the face of the porch without.

26 And there were [x] narrow windows and palm trees on the one side and on the other side, on the sides of the porch, and upon the side chambers of the house, and thick planks.

[l] Or, several walks, or, walks with pillars.——[m] Chap xl. 16; ver. 26.——[n] Heb. ceiling of wood.——[o] Or, and the ground unto the windows.——[p] Heb. measures.

[q] 1 Kings vi. 29.——[r] See chap. i. 10.——[s] Heb. post.——[t] Exod. xxx. 1.——[u] Chap. xliv. 16; Mal. i. 7, 12.——[v] Exod. xxx. 8.——[w] 1 Kings vi. 31–35.——[x] Chap. xl. 16; ver. 16.

taken from the wall which encompassed it from the western side to the vestibule, was one hundred and one cubits; five for the separate place, nine for the wall and the chambers attached to the temple, sixty for the sanctuary and the holy place, ten for the vestibule, and twelve for the two great walls on the west and east of the temple; in all, one hundred and one cubits. See the plan, GHI.

Verse 14. The breadth of the face of the house] That is, the front. See the plan, FRR.

Verse 18. A palm tree was between a cherub and a cherub] That is, the palm trees and the cherubs were alternated; and each cherub had two faces, one of a lion, and the other of a man; one of which was turned to the palm tree on the right, the other to the palm tree on the left.

Verse 20. From the ground unto above the door] The temple was thirty cubits high, 1 Kings vi. 2; the gate was fourteen cubits, chap. xl. 48. The palm trees and the cherubim were the same height as the gate or door. The windows were above the door.

Verse 22. The altar of wood] This was the altar of incense, and was covered with plates of gold.

Verse 25. There were thick planks] The wood, or planks, were thick and strong; for the cherubim and palm trees were carved in relief, out of their substance, and unless they had been of considerable thickness, this could not have been done.

CHAPTER XLII.

This chapter gives us a description of the priests' chambers and their use, with the dimensions of the holy mount on which the temple stood, 1–20.

A. M. 3130. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

THEN he brought me forth into the utter court, the way toward the north: and he brought me into [a] the chamber that was over against the [b] separate place, and which was before the building toward the north.

2 Before the length of a hundred cubits was the north door, and the breadth was fifty cubits.

3 Over against the twenty cubits which were for the inner court, and over against the pavement which was for the utter court, was [c] gallery against gallery in three stories.

4 And before the chambers was a walk of ten cubits' breadth inward, a way of one cubit; and their doors toward the north.

5 Now the upper chambers were shorter: for the galleries [d] were higher than these, [e] than the lower, and than the middlemost of the building.

6 For they were in three stories, but had not pillars as the pillars of the courts: therefore the building was straitened more than the lowest and the middlemost from the ground.

7 And the wall that was without over against the chambers, toward the utter court on the forepart of the chambers, the length thereof was fifty cubits.

8 For the length of the chambers that were in the utter court was fifty cubits: and, lo, before the temple were a hundred cubits.

9 And [f] from under these chambers was [g] the entry on the east side, [h] as one goeth into them from the utter court.

10 The chambers were in the thickness of the wall of the court toward the east, over against the separate place, and over against the building.

11 And [i] the way before them was like the appearance of the chambers which were toward the north, as long as they, and as broad as they: and all their goings out were both according to their fashions, and according to their doors.

A. M. 3130. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

12 And according to the doors of the chambers that were toward the south was a door in the head of the way, even the way directly before the wall toward the east, as one entereth into them.

13 Then said he unto me, The north chambers and the south chambers, which are before the separate place, they be holy chambers, where the priests that approach unto the LORD [k] shall eat the most holy things: there shall they lay the most holy things, and [l] the meat-offering, and the sin-offering, and the trespass-offering; for the place is holy.

14 [m] When the priests enter therein, then shall they not go out of the holy place into the utter court, but there they shall lay their garments wherein they minister; for they are holy; and shall put on other garments, and shall approach to those things which are for the people.

15 Now when he had made an end of measuring the inner house, he brought me forth toward the gate whose prospect is toward the east, and measured it round about.

16 He measured the east [n] side with the measuring reed, five hundred reeds, with the measuring reed round about.

17 He measured the north side, five hundred reeds, with the measuring reed round about.

18 He measured the south side, five hundred reeds, with the measuring reed.

19 He turned about to the west side, and measured five hundred reeds, with the measuring reed.

20 He measured it by the four sides: [o] it had a wall round about, [p] five hundred reeds long, and five hundred broad, to make a separation between the sanctuary and the profane place.

[a] Chap. xli. 12, 15. — [b] Chap. xli. 12, 13, 14; xlii. 10, 13. [c] Chap. xli. 16. — [d] Or, did eat of these. — [e] Or, and the building consisted of the lower and the middlemost. — [f] Or, from the place. [g] Or, he that brought me.

[b] Or, as he came. — [i] Ver. 4. — [k] Lev. vi. 16, 26; xxiv. 9. [l] Lev. ii. 3, 10; vi. 14, 17, 25, 29; vii. 1; x. 13, 14; Num. xviii. 9, 10. — [m] Chap. xliv. 19. — [n] Heb. wind. — [o] Chap. xl. 5. [p] Chap. xlv. 2.

NOTES ON CHAP. XLII.

Verse 1. He brought me forth into the utter court] He brought him out from the temple into the court of the priests. This, in reference to the temple, was called the outer court; but the court of the people was beyond this.

Verse 4. A walk of ten cubits' breadth inward] This seems to have been a sort of parapet.

Verse 14. They shall lay their garments wherein they minister] The priests were not permitted to wear their robes in the outer court. These vestments were to be used only when they ministered; and when they had done, they were to deposit them in one of the chambers mentioned in the thirteenth verse.

Verses 16–19. He measured the east—north—south—west side] Each of which was five hundred reeds:

and, as the building was square, the area must have been nearly thirteen thousand paces. No wonder this was called a city. See chap. xl. 2.

Verse 20. It had a wall round about—to make a separation between the sanctuary and the profane place.] The holy place was that which was consecrated to the Lord; into which no heathen, nor stranger, nor any in a state of impurity, might enter. The profane place was that in which men, women, Gentiles, pure or impure, might be admitted. Josephus says, War, lib. vi., c. 14, that in his time there was a wall built before the entrance three cubits high, on which there were posts fixed at certain distances, with inscriptions on them in Latin and Greek, containing the laws which enjoined purity on those that entered; and forbidding all strangers to enter, on pain of death. See Calmet.

CHAPTER XLIII.

The glory of the Lord is represented as returning to the temple, 1–6; where God promises to fix his residence, if the people repent and forsake those sins which caused him to depart from them, 7–12. Then the measures of the altar, and the ordinances relating to it, are set down, 13–27.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

AFTERWARD he brought me to the gate, even the gate [a] that looketh toward the east:

2 [b] And, behold, the glory of the God of Israel came from the way of the east: and [c] his voice was like a noise of many waters: [d] and the earth shined with his glory.

3 And it was [e] according to the appearance of the vision which I saw, even according to the vision that I saw [f] when I came [g] to destroy the city: and the visions were like the vision that I saw [h] by the river Chebar; and I fell upon my face.

4 [i] And the glory of the LORD came into the house by the way of the gate whose prospect is toward the east.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

5 [k] So the spirit took me up, and brought me into the inner court; and, behold, [l] the glory of the LORD filled the house.

6 And I heard him speaking unto me out of the house; and [m] the man stood by me.

7 And he said unto me, Son of man, [n] the place of my throne, and [o] the place of the soles of my feet, [p] where I will dwell in the midst of the children of Israel for ever, and my holy name shall the house of Israel [q] no more defile, neither they, nor their kings, by their

[a] Chap. x. 19; xliv. 1; xlvi. 1.——[b] Chap. xi. 23.——[c] Chap. i. 24; Rev. i. 15; xiv. 2; xix. 1, 6.——[d] Chap. x. 4; Rev. xviii. 1. [e] Chap. i. 4, 28: viii. 4.——[f] Or, when I came to prophesy that the city should be destroyed; see chap. ix. 1, 5.——[g] So Jer. i. 10. [h] Chap. i. 3; iii. 23.

[i] See chap. x. 19; xliv. 2.——[k] Chap. iii. 12, 14; viii. 3. [l] 1 Kings viii. 10, 11; chap. xliv. 4.——[m] Chap. xl. 3.——[n] Psa. xcix. 1.——[o] 1 Chron. xxviii. 2; Psa. xcix. 5.——[p] Exod. xxix. 45; Psa. lxviii. 16; cxxxii. 14; Joel iii. 17; John i 14; 2 Cor. vi. 16.——[q] Chap. xxxix. 7.

NOTES ON CHAP. XLIII.

Verse 2. The glory of the God of Israel came from the way of the east] This was the chariot of cherubim, wheels, &c., which he saw at the river Chebar. And this glory, coming from the east, is going to enter into the eastern gate of the temple, and thence to shine out upon the whole earth. Is there not a mystery here? All knowledge, all religion, and all arts and sciences, have travelled, according to the course of the sun, FROM EAST TO WEST! From that quarter the Divine glory at first came; and thence the rays of Divine light continue to diffuse themselves over the face of the earth. From thence came the Bible, and through that the new covenant. From thence came the prophets, the apostles, and the first missionaries, that brought the knowledge of God to Europe, to the isles of the sea, and to the west first, and afterwards to these northern regions.

Verse 5. The spirit took me up] And, to follow his thought for a moment, how many men has this heavenly Spirit taken up; filled them with his own influence, and sent them to every country, and nation, and tongue, and people, to testify the Gospel of the grace of God, and to preach among the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ! What spiritual temples have been raised, beautified, and filled with the glory of God! And this light is shining and burning more and more unto the perfect day, when the whole earth shall be filled with the glory of God!

Verse 7. Son of man, the place of my throne] The throne refers to his majesty; the soles of his feet, to his condescension in dwelling among men.

Where I will dwell in the midst of the children of Israel] The tabernacle and temple were types of the incarnation of Jesus Christ: "Destroy THIS TEMPLE, and after three days I will raise it up;—but this he spake of the temple of his body;" John ii. 19, 21. And in THAT TEMPLE "dwelt all the fulness of the Godhead bodily." Into this immaculate humanity did the glory of the Supreme God enter; and thus, "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself." And this Jesus is Immanuel, GOD with us. In him we find united the ineffable majesty of God, with the abjectness of man. He humbled himself in human nature, not only to bear the form of a servant, but to suffer death upon the cross as a malefactor slave! But by these means he has purchased eternal redemption for us; and the spiritual Israel, who find redemption whoredom, nor by the [r] carcasses of their kings in their high places.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

8 [s] In their setting of their threshold by my thresholds, and their post by my posts, [t] and the wall between me and them, they have even defiled my holy name by their abominations that they have committed: wherefore I have consumed them in mine anger.

9 Now let them put away their whoredom, and [u] the carcasses of their kings, far from me, [v] and I will dwell in the midst of them for ever.

10 Thou son of man, [w] show the house to the house of Israel, that they may be ashamed of their iniquities: and let them measure the [x] pattern.

11 And if they be ashamed of all that they have done, show them the form of the house, and the fashion thereof, and the goings out thereof, and the comings in thereof, and all the forms thereof, and all the ordinances thereof, and all the forms thereof, and all the laws thereof: and write it in their sight, that they may keep the whole form thereof, and all the ordinances thereof, and do them.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

12 This is the law of the house; Upon [y] the top of the mountain the whole limit thereof round about shall be most holy. Behold, this is the law of the house.

13 And these are the measures of the altar after the cubits: [z] The cubit is a cubit and a hand breadth; even the [a] bottom shall be a cubit, and the breadth a cubit, and the border thereof by the [b] edge thereof round about shall be a span: and this shall be the higher place of the altar.

14 And from the bottom upon the ground even to the lower settle shall be two cubits, and the breadth one cubit; and from the lesser settle even to the greater settle shall be four cubits, and the breadth one cubit.

15 So [c] the altar shall be four cubits; and from [d] the altar and upward shall be four horns.

16 And the altar shall be twelve cubits long, twelve broad, square in the four squares thereof.

17 And the settle shall be fourteen cubits

[r] Lev. xxvi. 30; Jer. xvi. 18.——[s] See 2 Kings xvi. 14; xxi. 4, 5, 7; chap. viii. 3; xxiii. 39; xliv. 7.——[t] Or, for there was but a wall between me and them.——[u] Ver. 7.——[v] Ver. 7. [w] Chap. xl. 4.

[x] Or, sum, or number.——[y] Chap. xl. 2.——[z] Chap. xl. 5; xli. 8.——[a] Heb. bosom.——[b] Heb. lip.——[c] Heb. Harel, that is, the mountain of God.——[d] Heb. Ariel, that is, the lion of God; Isa. xxix. 1.

in his blood, shall be raised up wherever his holy name shall be proclaimed; and shall not, like the old apostate Israel, defile that great name by idolatry or a life of wickedness, but they shall show forth the virtues of Him who has called them from darkness into his marvellous light.

Verse 8. In their setting of their threshold] They had even gone so far as to set up their idol altars by those of Jehovah; so that their abominable idols were found in the very house of God! therefore, "he consumed them in his anger."

Verse 9. Now let them put away their whoredom] Their idolatry.

And the carcasses of their kings] It appears that God was displeased with their bringing their kings so near his temple. David was buried in the city of David, which was on Mount Zion, near to the temple; and so were almost all the kings of Judah; but God requires that the place of his temple and its vicinity shall be kept unpolluted; and when they put away all kinds of defilement, then will he dwell among them.

Verse 10. Show the house to the house of Israel] Show them this holy house where the holy God dwells, that they may be ashamed of their iniquities. Their name, their profession, their temple, their religious services, all bound them to a holy life; all within them, all without them, should have been holiness unto the Lord. But alas! they have been bound by no ties, and they have sinned against all their obligations; nevertheless, let them measure the pattern, let them see the rule by which they should have walked, and let them measure themselves by this standard, and walk accordingly.

Verse 11. And if they be ashamed] If, in a spirit of true repentance, they acknowledge their past transgressions, and purpose in his help never more to offend their God, then teach them every thing that concerns my worship, and their profiting by it.

Verse 12. This is the law of the house] From the top of the mountain on which it stands, to the bottom, all round about, all shall be holy; no buildings shall be erected in any part, nor place nor spot be appropriated to a common use; all shall be considered as being most holy.

Verse 13. The cubit is a cubit and a hand breadth] It is the same cubit by which all the previous admeasurements were made, and was a hand breadth or four inches longer than the Babylonian cubit.

Verse 15. So the altar] ההראל haharel, "the mount of God."

And from the altar] וכהאראיל umihaariel, "and from the lion of God." Perhaps the first was a name given to the altar when elevated to the honour of God, and on which the victims were offered to him; and the second, the lion of God, may mean the hearth, which might have been thus called, because it devoured and consumed the burnt-offerings, as a lion does his prey. See on Isa. xxix. 1.

Verse 17. And the settle] The ledge on which the long and fourteen broad in the four squares thereof; and the border about it shall be half a cubit; and the bottom thereof shall be a cubit about; and [e] his stairs shall look toward the east.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

18 And he said unto me, Son of man, thus saith the Lord GOD; These are the ordinances of the altar in the day when they shall make it, to offer burnt-offerings thereon, and to [f] sprinkle blood thereon.

19 And thou shalt give to [g] the priests the Levites that be of the seed of Zadok, which approach unto me, to minister unto me, saith the Lord GOD, [h] a young bullock for a sin-offering.

20 And thou shalt take of the blood thereof, and put it on the four horns of it, and on the four corners of the settle, and upon the border round about: thus shalt thou cleanse and purge it.

21 Thou shalt take the bullock also of the sin-offering, and he [i] shall burn it in the appointed place of the house, [k] without the sanctuary.

22 And on the second day thou shalt offer a kid of the goats without blemish for a sin-offering; and they shall cleanse the altar, as they did cleanse it with the bullock

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

23 When thou hast made an end of cleansing it, thou shalt offer a young bullock without blemish, and a ram out of the flock without blemish.

24 And thou shalt offer them before the LORD, [l] and the priests shall cast salt upon them, and they shall offer them up for a burnt-offering unto the LORD.

25 [m] Seven days shalt thou prepare every day a goat for a sin-offering: they shall also prepare a young bullock, and a ram out of the flock, without blemish.

26 Seven days shall they purge the altar and purify it; and they shall [n] consecrate themselves.

27 And when these days are expired, it shall be, that upon the [o] eighth day, and so forward, the priests shall make your burnt-offerings upon the altar, and your [p] peace-offerings; and I will [q] accept you, saith the Lord GOD.

---

[e] See Exod. xx. 26.——[f] Lev. i. 5.——[g] Chap. xliv. 15. [h] Exod. xxix. 10, 12; Lev. viii. 14, 15; chap. xlv. 18, 19. [i] Exod. xxix. 14.——[k] Heb. xiii. 11.——[l] Lev. ii. 13.——[m] Exod. xxix. 35, 36; Lev. viii. 33.——[n] Heb. fill their hands; Exod. xxix. 24.——[o] Lev. ix. 1.——[p] Or, thank-offerings.——[q] Job xlii. 8; chap. xx. 40, 41; xliii. 27; Rom. xii. 1; 1 Pet. ii. 5, 20.

---

priests walked round the altar, see ver. 14. By these settles or ledges the altar was narrowed towards the top. "The ascent shall look toward the east;" this ascent was an inclined plane. But these settles, or more properly ledges, as Bp. Newcome translates, may be thus computed. The altar itself was ten feet high and twenty broad; the same as that of Solomon, 2 Chron. iv. 1.

	Cubits.
For the base, ver. 13, is in height - - - -	1
From the surface of the base to the first ledge, ver. 14, is - - - - - - - - - - - -	1
From the lower ledge to the upper, ver. 14, are - - - - - - - - - - - -	4
From the upper ledge to the ariel or hearth, ver. 15, are - - - - - - - - - -	4
In all - - -	10
And as to the breadth, the upper ledge, ver. 17, was - - - - - - - - - - - -	14
Add a cubit on each side for the higher ledge, ver. 14, latter part - - - - - - -	2
Add a cubit on each side for the lower ledge, ver. 14, former part - - - - - - - -	2
Add a cubit on each side for the base, ver. 13,	2
In all - - -	20

The altar of burnt-offerings, described Exod. xxvii. 1, xxxviii. 1, was smaller than this, because it was to be removed from place to place with the tabernacle. This was designed for a permanent temple. See Bp. Newcome on this chapter.

Verse 19. The priests—that be of the seed of Zadok] It was this Zadok that was put in the place of Abiathar, by Solomon, 1 Kings ii. 35, in whose family the priesthood had continued ever since.

Verse 25. Seven days shalt thou prepare] These are, in general, ordinances of the LAW; and may be seen by consulting the parallel passages. All these directions are given that they might follow them, when they should be put in possession of their own land. For in several cases the prophet enters into particulars, as if he had supposed that the book of the law had perished.

CHAPTER XLIV.

This chapter gives an account of the glory of God having returned to the temple, 1–4. The Jews reproved for suffering idolatrous priests to pollute it with their ministrations, 5–8. Ordinances respecting the conduct of the priests, and the maintenance due to them, 9–31.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

THEN he brought me back the way of the gate of the outward sanctuary [a] which looketh toward the east; and it was shut.

2 Then said the LORD unto me; This gate shall be shut, it shall not be opened, and no man shall enter in by it; [b] because the LORD, the GOD of Israel, hath entered in by it, therefore it shall be shut.

3 It is for the prince; the prince, he shall sit in it to [c] eat bread before the LORD; [d] he shall enter by the way of the porch of that gate, and shall go out by the way of the same.

4 Then brought he me the way of the north gate before the house: and I looked, and, [e] behold, the glory of the LORD filled the house of the LORD: [f] and I fell upon my face.

5 And the LORD said unto me, [g] Son of man, [h] mark well, and behold with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears all that I say unto thee concerning all the ordinances of the house of the LORD, and all the laws thereof; and mark well the entering in of the house, with every going forth of the sanctuary.

6 And thou shalt say to the [i] rebellious, even to the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord GOD; O ye house of Israel, [k] let it suffice you of all your abominations.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

7 [l] In that ye have brought into my sanctuary [m] strangers,[n] [o] uncircumcised in heart, and uncircumcised in flesh, to be in my sanctuary, to pollute it, even my house, when ye offer [p] my bread, [q] the fat and the blood, and they have broken my covenant because of all your abominations.

8 And ye have not [r] kept the charge of mine holy things; but ye have set keepers of my [s] charge in my sanctuary for yourselves.

9 Thus saith the Lord GOD; [t] No stranger, uncircumcised in heart, nor uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter into my sanctuary, of any stranger that is among the children of Israel.

10 [u] And the Levites that are gone away far from me, when Israel went astray, which went astray away from me after their idols; they shall even bear their iniquity.

11 Yet they shall be ministers in my sanctuary, [v] having charge at the gates of the house, and ministering to the house: [w] they shall slay the burnt-offering and the sacrifice for the people, and [x] they shall stand before them to minister unto them.

12 Because they ministered unto them before

[a] Chap. xliii. 1.——[b] Chap. xliii. 4.——[c] Gen. xxxi. 54; 1 Cor. x. 18.——[d] Chap. xlvi. 2, 8.——[e] Chap. iii. 23; xliii. 5. [f] Chap. i. 28.——[g] Chap. xl. 4.——[h] Heb. set thine heart.——[i] Ch. ii. 5.——[k] Chap. xlv. 9; 1 Pet. iv. 3.——[l] Chap. xliii. 8; ver. 9; Acts xxi. 28.——[m] Heb. children of a stranger.——[n] Lev. xxii. 25.

[o] Lev. xxvi. 41; Deut. x. 16; Acts vii. 51.——[p] Lev. xxi. 6, 8, 17, 21.——[q] Lev. iii. 16; xvii. 11.——[r] Lev. xxii. 2, &c [s] Or, ward, or ordinance; and so ver. 14, 16; chap. xl. 45. [t] Ver. 7.——[u] See 2 Kings xxiii. 8, &c.; 2 Chron. xxix. 4, 5; chap. xlviii. 11.——[v] 1 Chron. xxvi. 1.——[w] 2 Chron. xxix. 34; [x] Num. xvi. 9.

NOTES ON CHAP. XLIV.

Verse 1. The outward sanctuary] In opposition to the temple itself, which was the inner sanctuary.

Verse 2. This gate shall be shut] It was not to be opened on ordinary occasions, nor at all on the week days: but only on the Sabbaths and the new moons. See the account of the gates (4) in the explanation of the plan.

This verse has been adduced by the Roman Catholics to prove the perpetual virginity of the mother of our Lord; and it may be allowed to be as much to the purpose as any other that has been brought to prove this very precarious point, on which no stress should ever be laid by any man. Mary was a virgin when she brought forth Jesus.

Verse 5. Mark well, and behold] Take notice of every thing; register all so fully that thou shalt be able to give the most minute information to the children of Israel.

Verse 7. The fat and the blood] These never went into common use; they were wholly offered to God. The blood was poured out; the fat consumed.

Because of all your abominations.] Several MSS. of Kennicott's and De Rossi's read their abominations, referring to the strangers mentioned before.

Verse 10. And the Levites that are gone away far from me] This refers to the schism of Jeroboam, who, when he set up a new worship, got as many of the priests and Levites to join him in his idolatry as he could. These, on the return from the captivity, should not be permitted to perform the functions of priests in the new temple; but they might be continued as keepers of all the charge of the house—be their idols, and [y] caused [z] the house of Israel to fall into iniquity; therefore have I [a] lifted up mine hand against them, saith the Lord GOD, and they shall bear their iniquity.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, Roman., 5.

13 [b] And they shall not come near unto me, to do the office of a priest unto me, nor to come near to any of my holy things, in the most holy place: but they shall [c] bear their shame, and their abominations which they have committed.

14 But I will make them [d] keepers of the charge of the house, for all the service thereof, and for all that shall be done therein.

15 [e] But the priests the Levites, [f] the sons of Zadok, that kept the charge of my sanctuary [g] when the children of Israel went astray from me, they shall come near to me to minister unto me, and they [h] shall stand before me to offer unto me [i] the fat and the blood, saith the Lord GOD:

16 They shall enter into my sanctuary, and they shall come near to [k] my table, to minister unto me, and they shall keep my charge.

17 And it shall come to pass, that when they enter in at the gates of the inner court, [l] they shall be clothed with linen garments; and no wool shall come upon them, whiles they minister in the gates of the inner court, and within.

18 [m] They shall have linen bonnets upon their heads, and shall have linen breeches upon their loins; they shall not gird themselves [n] with [o] any thing that causeth sweat.

19 And when they go forth into the utter court, even into the utter court of the people, [p] they shall put off their garments wherein they ministered, and lay them in the holy chambers, and they shall put on other garments; and they shall [q] not sanctify the people with their garments.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

20 [r] Neither shall they shave their heads, nor suffer their locks to grow long; they shall only poll their heads.

21 [s] Neither shall any priest drink wine, when they enter into the inner court.

22 Neither shall they take for their wives a [t] widow, nor her that is [u] put away: but they shall take maidens of the seed of the house of Israel, or a widow [v] that had a priest before.

23 And [w] they shall teach my people the difference between the holy and profane, and cause them to discern between the unclean and the clean.

24 And [x] in controversy they shall stand in judgment; and they shall judge it according to my judgments; and they shall keep my laws and my statutes in all mine assemblies; [y] and they shall hallow my sabbaths.

25 And they shall come at no [z] dead person to defile themselves: but for father, or for mother, or for son, or for daughter, for brother, or for sister that hath had no husband, they may defile themselves.

26 And [a] after he is cleansed, they shall reckon unto him seven days.

27 And in the day that he goeth into the [y] Isa. ix. 16; Mal. ii. 8.——[z] Heb. were for a stumbling block of iniquity unto, &c.; chap. xiv. 3, 4.——[a] Psa. cvi. 26.——[b] 2 Kings xxiii. 9; Num. xviii. 3.——[c] Chap. xxxii. 30; xxxvi. 7. [d] Num. xviii. 4; 1 Chron. xxiii. 28, 32.——[e] Chap. xl. 46; xliii. 19.——[f] 1 Sam. ii. 35.——[g] Ver. 10.——[h] Deut. x. 8.——[i] Ver. 7. [k] Chap. xli. 22.——[l] Exod. xxviii. 39, 40, 43; xxxix. 27, 28. [m] Exod. xxviii. 40, 42; xxxix. 28.

[n] Or, in sweating places.——[o] Heb. in, or with sweat.——[p] Chap. xlii. 14.——[q] Chap. xlvi. 20; see Exod. xxix. 37; xxx. 29; Lev. vi. 27; Matt. xxiii. 17, 19.——[r] Lev. xxi. 5.——[s] Lev. x. 9. [t] Lev. xxi. 7, 13, 14.——[u] Heb. thrust forth.——[v] Heb. from a priest.——[w] Lev. x. 10, 11; chap. xxii. 26; Mal. ii. 7.——[x] Deut. xvii. 8, &c.; 2 Chron. xix. 8, 10.——[y] See chap. xxii. 26. [z] Lev. xxi. 1, &c.——[a] Num. vi. 10; xix. 11, &c.

treasurers, guards of the temple, porters, &c.; see ver. 11–15. The whole of these passages refer to the period of time when the second temple was built.

Verse 16. Come near to my table] To place the shew-bread there, and to burn incense on the golden altar in the holy of holies.

Verse 17. No wool shall come upon them] The reason is plain; wool is more apt than linen to contract dirt and breed insects; linen breeds none; besides, this is a vegetable, and the other an animal substance. It was an ancient maxim, that whatever was taken from a dead body was impure in matters of religion, and should not be permitted to enter into the temple. The Egyptian priests always wore linen on their bodies, and shoes of matting or rushes on their feet. The Mohammedans never write the Koran upon vellum or skin of any kind, as they would consider that as a defilement.

Verse 20. Neither shall they shave their heads] The priests of Isis shaved their heads close to the skin; the priests of Budhoo do so still; their ordinances oblige them to shave their heads every tenth day. To let the hair grow long would have been improper; therefore the Lord commands them to poll—cut the hair short, but not to shave.

Verse 22. Neither shall they take for their wives a widow] This was prohibited to the high priest only, by Moses, Lev. xxi. 13, 14.

Verse 25. And they shall come at no dead person to defile themselves] Touching the dead defiles a sanctuary, [b] unto the inner court, to minister in the sanctuary, [c] he shall offer his sin-offering, saith the Lord GOD.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

28 And it shall be unto them for an inheritance: I [d] am their inheritance: and ye shall give them no possession in Israel: I am their possession.

29 [e] They shall eat the meat-offering, and the sin-offering, and the trespass-offering; and [f] every [g] dedicated thing in Israel shall be theirs.

A. M. 3430 B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

30 And the [h] first [i] of all the first-fruits of all things, and every oblation of all, of every sort of your oblations, shall be the priest's: [k] ye shall also give unto the priest the first of your dough, [l] that he may cause the blessing to rest in thine house.

31 The priest shall not eat of any thing that is [m] dead of itself, or torn, whether it be fowl or beast.

[b] Ver. 17.——[c] Lev. iv. 3.——[d] Num. xviii. 20; Deut. x. 9; xviii. 1, 2; Josh. xiii. 14, 33.——[e] Lev. vi. 18, 29; vii. 6.——[f] Lev. xxvii. 21, 28, compared with Num. xviii. 14.——[g] Or, devoted.

[h] Or, chief.——[i] Exod. xiii. 2; xxii. 29, 30; xxiii. 19; Num. iii. 13; xviii. 12, 13.——[k] Num. xv. 20; Neh. x. 37.——[l] Prov. iii. 9, 10; Mal. iii. 10.——[m] Exod. xxii. 31; Lev. xxii. 8.

Hindoo now, as it formerly did a Jew; and they must bathe to become clean again.

Verse 28. I am their inheritance] Those who affect to form their ecclesiastical matters on the model of the Jewish Church have with one consent left this out of the question. They will not live on the free-will offerings of the people; but must have vast revenues, and these secured to them by law. That every minister of God should be supported by the altar I grant; but I think, instead of that method of paying the parochial clergy which I see is so much objected to, and breeds so much dissension between the pastors and their flocks, it would be better, on these accounts, to assign them a portion of land adequate to their supply, or let the state maintain them as it does its other officers. In Israel God was their inheritance and their possession; but they had the breast and shoulder of all sin-offerings and trespass-offerings, and all dedicated things were theirs; and they had a portion of all the dough that was prepared for bread. These were considered as the Lord's property, and these he gave to them; and this is always implied in the Lord's being their inheritance and their possession. They had a plentiful support.

Hitherto tithes have been thought the best mode of paying the clergy, and providing for the poor of each parish; but these matters have undergone such alterations since the time of their institution, that some emendation of the system is at present absolutely necessary.

There should be a public acknowledgment of God in every nation, and this should be provided for by the state in a way the least burdensome to the people, that all may rejoice in the benefit. Happy the nations that have a Bible so correct, and a Liturgy so pure, as those in the British empire! In such cases, a religion established by the state is an unutterable blessing to the nation; only keep it to the Bible, and to the Liturgy, and all, under God, will be well; but when the sermon is against these, all is bad

CHAPTER XLV.

The several portions of land appointed for the sanctuary, 1–5, the city, 6, and the prince, 7, 8. Regulations concerning the weights and measures, 9–12; with ordinances respecting the provisions for the ordinary and extraordinary sacrifices, 13–25.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

MOREOVER, [a] when ye shall [b] divide by lot the land for inheritance, ye shall [c] offer an oblation unto the LORD, [d] a holy portion of the land: the length shall be the length of five and twenty thousand reeds, and the breadth shall be ten thousand. This shall be holy in all the borders thereof round about.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

2 Of this there shall be for the sanctuary [e] five hundred in length, with five hundred in breadth, square round about; and fifty cubits round about for the [f] suburbs thereof.

3 And of this measure shalt thou measure

[a] Heb. when ye cause the land to fall.——[b] Chap. xlvii. 22.——[c] Chap. xlviii. 8.

[d] Hebrew, holiness.——[e] Chapter xlii. 20.——[f] Or, void places.

NOTES ON CHAP. XLV.

Verse 1. When ye shall divide by lot] That is, when on your repossessing your land, every family settles according to the allotment which they formerly had; for it is certain that the land was not divided afresh by lot after the Babylonish captivity. The allotment mentioned and described here was merely for the service of the temple, the use of the priests, and the prince or governor of the people. A division of the whole land is not intended.

Verse 2. Of this there shall be for the sanctuary] See the plan, A.

Verse 3. And of this measure] See the plan, A, B, C, D, E.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

the length of five and twenty thousand, and the breadth of ten thousand: [g] and in it shall be the sanctuary and the most holy place.

4 [h] The holy portion of the land shall be for the priests the ministers of the sanctuary, which shall come near to minister unto the LORD: and it shall be a place for their houses, and a holy place for the sanctuary.

5 [i] And the five and twenty thousand of length, and the ten thousand of breadth, shall also the Levites, the ministers of the house, have for themselves, for a possession for [k] twenty chambers.

6 And [l] ye shall appoint the possession of the city five thousand broad, and five and twenty thousand long, over against the oblation of the holy portion: it shall be for the whole house of Israel.

7 [m] And a portion shall be for the prince on the one side and on the other side of the oblation of the holy portion, and of the possession of the city, before the oblation of the holy portion, and before the possession of the city, from the west side westward, and from the east side eastward: and the length shall be over against one of the portions, from the west border unto the east border.

8 In the land shall be his possession in Israel: and [n] my princes shall no more oppress my people; and the rest of the land shall they give to the house of Israel according to their tribes.

9 Thus saith the Lord GOD; [o] Let it suffice you, O princes of Israel: [p] remove violence and spoil, and execute judgment and justice, take away your [q] exactions from my people, saith the Lord GOD.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

10 Ye shall have just [r] balances, and a just ephah, and a just bath.

11 The ephah and the bath shall be of one measure, that the bath may contain the tenth part of an homer, and the ephah the tenth part of an homer: the measure thereof shall be after the homer.

12 And the [s] shekel shall be twenty gerahs: twenty shekels, five and twenty shekels, fifteen shekels shall be your maneh.

13 This is the oblation that ye shall offer: the sixth part of an ephah of an homer of wheat, and ye shall give the sixth part of an ephah of an homer of barley:

14 Concerning the ordinance of oil, the bath of oil, ye shall offer the tenth part of a bath out of the cor, which is an homer of ten baths; for ten baths are an homer:

15 And one [t] lamb out of the flock, out of two hundred, out of the fat pastures of Israel; for a meat-offering, and for a burnt-offering, and for [u] peace-offerings, [v] to make reconciliation for them, saith the Lord GOD.

16 All the people of the land [w] shall give this oblation [x] for the prince in Israel.

17 And it shall be the prince's part to give burnt-offerings, and meat-offerings, and drink-offerings, in the feasts, and in the new moons, and in the sabbaths, in all solemnities of the house of Israel: he shall prepare the sin-offering, and the meat-offering, and the burnt-offering, and the [y] peace-offerings, to make reconciliation for the house of Israel.

[g] Chap. xlviii. 10.——[h] Ver. 1; chap. xlviii. 10, &c.——[i] Chap. xlviii. 13.——[k] See chap. xl. 17.——[l] Chap. xlviii. 15.——[m] Ch. xlviii. 21.——[n] Chap. xlvi. 18; see Jer. xxii. 17; chap. xxii. 27. [o] Chap. xliv. 6.——[p] Jer. xxii. 3.

[q] Heb. expulsions.——[r] Lev. xix. 35, 36; Prov. xi. 1.——[s] Exod. xxx. 13; Lev. xxvii. 25; Num. iii. 47.——[t] Or, kid.——[u] Or, thank-offerings.——[v] Lev. i. 4.——[w] Heb. shall be for.——[x] Or, with.——[y] Or, thank-offerings.

Verse 4. The holy portion] See the plan, A.

Verse 5. And the five and twenty thousand] See the plan, B.

Verse 6. Ye shall appoint] See the plan, FF.

Verse 7. A portion shall be for the prince] נשיא nasi, he who had the authority of chief magistrate; for there was neither king nor prince among the Jews after the Babylonish captivity. For these allotments and divisions, see the plan, EE, FF, GG.

Verse 8. My princes shall no more oppress my people] By exorbitant taxes to maintain profligate courts, or subsidize other powers to help to keep up a system of tyranny in the earth. The former princes even robbed the temple of God to give subsidies to other states.

Verse 9. Take away your exactions from my people] This is the voice of God to all the rulers of the earth.

Take away your exactions; do not oppress the people; they are mine. Abolish all oppressive taxes.

Verse 10. Ye shall have just balances] This appreciation of weights, measures, and money was intended to show them that they must not introduce those to which they had been accustomed in the captivity, but those which God had prescribed to their forefathers. See the notes on the parallel places.

Verse 16. All—this oblation for the prince] A present or offering to the prince.

Verse 18. Thou shalt take a young bullock—and cleanse the sanctuary.] There is nothing of this in

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

18 Thus saith the Lord GOD: In the first month, in the first day of the month, thou shalt take a young bullock without blemish, and [z] cleanse the sanctuary.

19 [a] And the priest shall take of the blood of the sin-offering, and put it upon the posts of the house, and upon the four corners of the settle of the altar, and upon the posts of the gate of the inner court.

20 And so thou shalt do the seventh day of the month [b] for every one that erreth, and for him that is simple: so shall ye reconcile the house.

21 [c] In the first month, in the fourteenth day of the month, ye shall have the passover, a feast of seven days; unleavened bread shall be eaten.

22 And upon that day shall the prince prepare for himself and for all the people of the land [d] a bullock for a sin-offering.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

23 And [e] seven days of the feast he shall prepare a burnt-offering to the LORD, seven bullocks and seven rams without blemish daily the seven days; [f] and a kid of the goats daily for a sin-offering.

24 [g] And he shall prepare a meat-offering of an ephah for a bullock, and an ephah for a ram, and a hin of oil for an ephah.

25 In the seventh month, in the fifteenth day of the month, shall he do the like in the [h] feast of the seven days, according to the sin-offering, according to the burnt-offering, and according to the meat-offering, and according to the oil.

[a] Lev. xvi. 16.——[b] Chap. xliii. 20.——[c] Lev. iv. 27. [c] Exod. xii. 18; Lev. xxiii. 5, 6; Num. ix. 2, 3; xxviii. 16, 17; Deut. xvi. 1, &c.

[d] Lev. iv. 14.——[e] Lev. xxiii. 8.——[f] See Num. xxviii. 15, 22, 30; xxix. 5, 11, 16, 19, &c.——[g] Chap. xlvi. 5, 7.——[h] Lev. xxiii. 33; Num. xxix. 12; Deut. xvi. 13.

the Mosaic law; it seems to have been a new ceremony. An annual purification of the sanctuary may be intended.

Verse 20. For him that is simple] That wants understanding to conduct himself properly.

Verse 25. In the seventh month] He shall do at the feast of tabernacles the same things that he was desired to do on the passover. The prince should offer the same number of victims, of the same quality, and with the same ceremonies, as during the above seven days. The offerings were, sin-offerings, burnt-offerings, and peace-offerings.

CHAPTER XLVI.

Ordinances of worship prescribed for the prince and for the people, 1–15; and the gifts he may bestow on his sons and servants, 16–18. A description of the courts appointed for boiling or baking any part of the holy oblations, 19–24.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

THUS saith the Lord GOD; The gate of the inner court that looketh toward the east shall be shut the six working days; but on the sabbath it shall be opened, and in the day of the new moon it shall be opened.

2 [a] And the prince shall enter by the way of the porch of that gate without, and shall stand by the post of the gate, and the priest shall prepare his burnt-offering and his peace-offerings, and he shall worship at the threshold of the gate: then he shall go forth: but the gate shall not be shut until the evening.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

3 Likewise the people of the land shall worship at the door of this gate before the LORD in the sabbaths and in the new moons.

4 And the burnt-offering that [b] the prince shall offer unto the LORD in the sabbath day shall be six lambs without blemish, and a ram without blemish.

[a] Chap. xliv. 3; ver. 8.

[b] Chap. xlv. 17.

NOTES ON CHAP. XLVI.

Verse 4. The burnt-offering that the prince shall offer] The chief magistrate was always obliged to attend the public worship of God, as well as the priest, to show that the civil and ecclesiastical states were both under the same government of the Lord; and that no one was capable of being prince or priest, who did not acknowledge God in all his ways. It is no wonder that those lands mourn, where neither the established priest nor the civil magistrate either fear or love God. Ungodly priests and profligate magistrates are a curse to any land. In no country have I found both so exemplary for uprightness, as in Britain.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

5 [c] And the meat-offering shall be an ephah for a ram, and the meat-offering for the lambs [d] as he shall be able to give, and a hin of oil to an ephah.

6 And in the day of the new moon it shall be a young bullock without blemish, and six lambs, and a ram: they shall be without blemish.

7 And he shall prepare a meat-offering, an ephah for a bullock, and an ephah for a ram, and for the lambs according as his hand shall attain unto, and a hin of oil to an ephah.

8 [e] And when the prince shall enter, he shall go in by the way of the porch of that gate, and he shall go forth by the way thereof.

9 But when the people of the land [f] shall come before the LORD in the solemn feasts, he that entereth in by the way of the north gate to worship shall go out by the way of the south gate; and he that entereth by the way of the south gate shall go forth by the way of the north gate: he shall not return by the way of the gate whereby he came in, but shall go forth over against it.

10 And the prince in the midst of them, when they go in, shall go in; and when they go forth, shall go forth.

11 And in the feasts and in the solemnities [g] the meat-offering shall be an ephah to a bullock, and an ephah to a ram, and to the lambs as he is able to give, and a hin of oil to an ephah.

12 Now when the prince shall prepare a voluntary burnt-offering or peace-offerings voluntarily unto the LORD, [h] one shall then open him the gate that looketh toward the east, and he shall prepare his burnt-offering and his peace-offerings, as he did on the sabbath day: then he shall go forth; and after his going forth one shall shut the gate.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

13 [i] Thou shalt daily prepare a burnt-offering unto the LORD of a lamb [k] of the first year without blemish: thou shalt prepare it [l] every morning.

14 And thou shalt prepare a meat-offering for it every morning, the sixth part of an ephah, and the third part of a hin of oil, to temper with the fine flour; a meat-offering continually by a perpetual ordinance unto the LORD.

15 Thus shall they prepare the lamb, and the meat-offering, and the oil, every morning for a continual burnt-offering.

16 Thus saith the Lord GOD; If the prince give a gift unto any of his sons, the inheritance thereof shall be his sons'; it shall be their possession by inheritance.

17 But if he give a gift of his inheritance to one of his servants, then it shall be his to [m] the year of liberty; after it shall return to the prince; but his inheritance shall be his sons' for them.

18 Moreover [n] the prince shall not take of the people's inheritance by oppression, to thrust them out of their possession; but he shall give his sons' inheritance out of his own possession: that my people be not scattered every man from his possession.

[c] Chap. xlv. 29; ver. 7, 11.——[d] Heb. the gift of his hand; Deut. xvi. 17.——[e] Ver. 2.——[f] Exod. xxiii. 14–17; Deut. xvi. 16.——[g] Ver. 5.

[h] Chap. xliv. 3; ver. 2.——[i] Exod. xxix. 38; Num. xxviii. 3. [k] Heb. a son of his year.——[l] Heb. morning by morning.——[m] Lev. xxv. 10.——[n] Chap. xlv. 8.

Verse 7. According as his hand shall attain unto] According to his ability, to what the providence of God has put in his hand, i. e.. his power. This proportion of offerings is different from that prescribed by the Mosaic law, Num. xv. 4–12.

Verse 9. He that entereth in by the way of the north, &c.] As the north and the south gates were opposite to each other, he that came in at the north must go out at the south: he that came in at the south must go out at the north. No person was to come in at the east gate, because there was no gate at the west; and the people were not permitted to turn round and go out at the same place by which they came in; for this was like turning their backs on God, and the decorum and reverence with which public worship was to be conducted would not admit of this. Besides, returning by the same way must have occasioned a great deal of confusion, where so many people must have jostled each other, in their meetings in different parts of this space.

Verse 10. And the prince in the midst of them] Even he shall act in the same way: he must also go straight forward, and never turn his back to go out at the same gate by which he entered. The prince and the people were to begin and end their worship at the same time.

Verse 13. Thou shalt prepare it every morning.] The evening offering is entirely omitted, which makes an important difference between this and the old laws. See Exod. xxix. 31–46.

Verse 17. To the year of liberty] That is, to the year of jubilee, called the year of liberty, because there was then a general release. All servants had their liberty, and all alienated estates returned to their former owners.

A. M. 3130. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

19 After he brought me through the entry, which was at the side of the gate, into the holy chambers of the priests, which looked toward the north: and, behold, there was a place on the two sides westward.

20 Then said he unto me, This is the place where the priests shall [o] boil the trespass-offering and the sin-offering, where they shall [p] bake the meat-offering; that they bear them not out into the utter court, [q] to sanctify the people.

21 Then he brought me forth into the utter court, and caused me to pass by the four corners of the court; and, behold, [r] in every corner of the court there was a court.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii R. Roman., 5.

22 In the four corners of the court there were courts [s] joined of forty cubits long and thirty broad: these four [t] corners were of one measure.

23 And there was a row of building round about in them, round about them four, and it was made with boiling places under the rows round about.

24 Then said he unto me, These are the places of them that boil, where the ministers of the house shall [u] boil the sacrifice of the people.

[o] 2 Chron. xxxv. 13. — [p] Lev. ii. 4, 5, 7. — [q] Chap. xliv. 19.
[r] Heb. a court in a corner of a court, and a court in a corner of a court.

[s] Or, made with chimneys. — [t] Heb. cornered. — [u] See ver. 20; Lev. viii. 31; 1 Kings xix. 21; 2 Kings vi. 29.

Verse 19. He brought me through the entry] The prophet had entered by the north gate of the court of the priests, where he had seen, a little before, the glory of the Lord, and where he had received all those directions from chap. xliv. 4, 5, to this chapter. From that gate, (see plan Q,) he entered the vestibule by a gate which was by the side of the apartments of the priests, which were along this aisle, (see S,) to the right of the vestibule towards the west. At the extremity of a row of chambers, he remarked, at the west, the place where they boiled the flesh of the sin-offerings, (see T.) They did not boil there the flesh of all sorts of victims, there were other kitchens appointed for that, (see PP:) but that only which could not be eaten but in the outer court, and by the priests which were sanctified; such were the parts of the offerings for sins of commission and ignorance, and the offerings of flour with which they were accompanied.

Verse 20. The trespass-offering] Part of this, and of the sin-offering, and the flour-offering, was the portion of the priests. See Num. xviii. 9, 10.

Verse 23. It was made with boiling places] These were uncovered apartments, where they kept fires for dressing those parts of the peace-offerings, which were made in the temple by individuals through a principle of devotion. On these their families and their friends feasted; and portions were sent to the poor, the widows, and the orphans. And thus the spirit of devotion was the means of preserving the spirit of mercy, charity, and benevolence in the land. How true is that word, "Godliness is profitable for all things!"

CHAPTER XLVII.

The vision of the holy waters issuing out of the temple, and their virtue; an emblem of the power of God's grace under the Gospel, capable of healing all but the incorrigibly impenitent, represented by the marshy ground that cannot be healed, 1–12. Also a description of the several divisions of the Holy Land indiscriminately shared betwixt Jews and proselytes; to denote that in after times the privileges now enjoyed by the Jews should be also extended to the Gentiles, 13–23.

A. M. 3130. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

AFTERWARD he brought me again unto the door of the house; and, behold, [a] waters issued out from under the [b] threshold of the house eastward: for the fore front of the house stood toward the east, and the waters came down from under from the right side of the house, at the south side of the altar.

A. M. 3130. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

[a] Joel iii. 18; Zech. xiii. 1; xiv. 8; Rev. xxii. 1.

[b] Psa. lxxxiv. 10, in the margin.

NOTES ON CHAP. XLVII.

Verse 1. Behold, waters issued out from under the threshold] Ezekiel, after having made the whole compass of the court of the people, is brought back by the north gate into the courts of the priests; and, having reached the gate of the temple, he saw waters which had their spring under the threshold of that gate, that looked towards the east; and which, passing to the south of the altar of burnt-offerings on the right of the temple, ran from the west to the east, that they might fall into the brook Kidron, and thence be carried into the Dead Sea. Literally, no such waters were ever in the temple; and because there were none, Solomon had what is called the brazen sea made, which held water for the use of the temple. It is true that the water which supplied this sea might have been brought by

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

2 Then brought he me out of the way of the gate northward, and led me about the way without unto the utter gate by the way that looketh eastward; and, behold, there ran out waters on the right side.

3 And when [c] the man that had the line in his hand went forth eastward, he measured a thousand cubits, and he brought me through the waters; the [d] waters were to the ankles.

4 Again he measured a thousand, and brought me through the waters; the waters were to the knees. Again he measured a thousand, and brought me through; the waters were to the loins.

5 Afterward he measured a thousand; and it was a river that I could not pass over: for the waters were risen, [e] waters to swim in, a river that could not be passed over.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

6 And he said unto me, Son of man, hast thou seen this? Then he brought me, and caused me to return to the brink of the river.

7 Now when I had returned, behold, at the [f] bank of the river were very many [g] trees on the one side and on the other.

8 Then said he unto me, These waters issue out toward the east country, and go down into the [h] desert, and go into the sea: which being brought forth into the sea, the waters shall be healed.

9 And it shall come to pass, that every thing that liveth, which moveth, whithersoever the pipes to the place: but a fountain producing abundance of water was not there, and could not be there, on the top of such a hill; and consequently these waters, as well as those spoken of in Joel iii. 18, and in Zech. xiv. 8, are to be understood spiritually or typically; and indeed the whole complexion of the place here shows, that they are thus to be understood. Taken in this view, I shall proceed to apply the whole of this vision to the effusion of light and salvation by the outpouring of the Spirit of God under the Gospel dispensation, by which the knowledge of the true God was multiplied in the earth; and have only one previous remark to make, that the farther the waters flowed from the temple, the deeper they grew.

[c] Chap. xl. 3.——[d] Heb. waters of the ankles.——[e] Heb. waters of swimming.——[f] Heb. lip.

[g] Ver. 12; Rev. xxii. 2.——[h] Or, plain; see Deut iii. 17; iv. 49; Josh. iii. 16.

With respect to the phraseology of this chapter, it may be said that St. John had it particularly in view while he wrote his celebrated description of the paradise of God, Rev. xxii. The prophet may therefore be referring to the same thing which the apostle describes, viz., the grace of the Gospel, and its effects in the world.

Verse 2. There ran out waters] מים מפכים mayim mephaccim, the waters seem to have been at first in small quantity; for the words imply that they oozed or dropped out. They were at first so small that they came guttatim, drop by drop; but they increased so, that they became a river in which one could swim.

Verses 3–5. He measured a thousand cubits,—the waters were to the ANKLES; a thousand more,—the waters were to the KNEES; a thousand more,—they became a RIVER that could not be forded. The waters were risen, and they were waters to SWIM in.

I. This may be applied to the gradual discoveries of the plan of salvation,—1. In the patriarchal ages. 2. In the giving of the law. 3. In the ministry of John the Baptist. And, 4. In the full manifestation of Christ by the communication of the Holy Ghost.

II. This vision may be applied also to the growth of a believer in the grace and knowledge of God. There is—1. The seed of the kingdom. 2. The blade from that seed. 3. The ear out of that blade. And, 4. The full corn in that ear.

III. It may be applied to the discoveries a penitent believer receives of the mercy of God in his salvation. He is—1. A little child, born of God, born from above, and begins to taste the bread of life, and live on the heavenly food. 2. He grows up and increases in stature and strength, and becomes a young man. 3. He becomes matured in the Divine life, and has his spiritual senses exercised so as to become a father in Christ. In other words, the grace of God appears to come drop by drop; it is given as it can be used; it is a seed of light, and multiplies itself. The penitent at first can scarcely believe the infinite goodness of his Maker; he however ventures to follow on with the conducting angel, the minister of the Gospel, in his descriptions of the plenitude of that salvation, provided in that living Temple in which alone the well-spring of life is to be found. 4. In thus following on to know the Lord he finds a continual increase of light and life, till at last he is carried by the streams of grace to the ocean of eternal mercy; then > "Plunged in the Godhead's deepest sea,

> And lost in his immensity."

IV. These waters may be considered as a type of the progress which Christianity shall make in the world. 1. There were only a few poor fishermen. 2. Afterwards many Jews. 3. Then the Gentiles of Asia Minor and Greece. 4. The continent and isles of Europe. And, 5. Now spreading through Africa, Asia, and America, at present these waters are no longer a river, but an immense sea: and the Gospel fishers are daily bringing multitudes of souls to Christ.

Verse 9. Every thing—whithersoever the rivers shall come, shall live] Life and salvation shall continually accompany the preaching of the Gospel; the death of sin being removed, the life of righteousness shall be brought in.

There shall be a very great multitude of fish] On

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

[i] rivers shall come, shall live: and there shall be a very great multitude of fish, because these waters shall come thither: for they shall be healed; and every thing shall live whither the river cometh.

10 And it shall come to pass, that the fishers shall stand upon it from En-gedi even unto En-eglaim; they shall be a place to spread forth nets; their fish shall be according to their kinds, as the fish [k] of the great sea, exceeding many.

11 But the miry places thereof and the marshes thereof [l] shall not be healed; they shall be given to salt.

12 And [m] by the river upon the bank thereof, on this side and on that side, [n] shall grow all trees for meat, [o] whose leaf shall not fade, neither shall the fruit thereof be consumed: it shall bring forth [p] new fruit according to his months, because their waters they issued out of the sanctuary; and the fruit thereof shall be for meat, and the leaf thereof [q] for [r] medicine.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

13 Thus saith the Lord GOD; This shall be the border, whereby ye shall inherit the land according to the twelve tribes of Israel: [s] Joseph shall have two portions.

14 And ye shall inherit it, one as well as another: concerning the which I [t] lifted [u] up mine hand to give it unto your fathers: and this land shall [v] fall unto you for inheritance.

15 And this shall be the border of the land toward the north side, from the great sea, [w] the way of Hethlon, as men go to [x] Zedad;

16 [y] Hamath, [z] Berothah, Sibraim, which is between the border of Damascus and the border of Hamath; [a] Hazar-hatticon, which is by the coast of Hauran.

17 And the border from the sea shall be

[i] Heb. two rivers.——[k] Num. xxxiv. 6; Josh. xxiii. 4; chap. xlviii. 28.——[l] Or, and that which shall not be healed.——[m] Ver. 7. [n] Heb. shall come up.——[o] Job viii. 16; Psa. i. 3; Jer. xvii. 8. [p] Or, principal.——[q] Or, for bruises and sores.——[r] Rev. xxii. 2.

[s] Gen. xlviii. 5; 1 Chron. v. 1; chap. xlviii. 4, 5.——[t] Or, swore.——[u] Gen. xii. 7; xiii. 15; xv. 7; xvii. 8; xxvi. 3; xxviii. 13; chap. xx. 5, 6, 28, 42.——[v] Chap. xlviii. 29.——[w] Chap. xlviii. 1.——[x] Num. xxxiv. 8.——[y] Num. xxxiv. 8.——[z] 2 Sam. viii. 8.——[a] Or, the middle village.

the above plan this must refer to genuine converts to the Christian faith; true believers, who have got life and salvation by the streams of God's grace. The apostles were fishers of men; converts were the fish caught. See below. As the waters flow into the DEAD Sea, where no fish, it is said, can live, its waters must be healed, that is, made capable of preserving life; and so its nature be thus far most surprisingly altered.

Verse 10. The fishers shall stand upon it] On the above plan of interpretation these must mean—1. The apostles of our Lord Jesus. 2. The preachers of the everlasting Gospel. See Matt. iv. 19.

From En-gedi] At the southern extremity of the Dead Sea.

Unto En-eglaim] At the northern extremity of the same.

Their fish shall be according to their kinds] Every kind of fish, and the fish all excellent of their kinds. All nations, and kindreds, and people shall be called by the Gospel; it shall not be an excluding system like that of Judaism, for its Author tasted death for every man.

Verse 11. The miry places] "Point out," says Calmet, "the schismatics and heretics who do not live by the Spirit of Jesus Christ, but separate from his Church; and the evil Christians who dishonour that Church, of which they are corrupt members." A description applicable to the Roman Catholic Church, that is both schismatic and heretic from the Church of Jesus Christ, which is built on the foundation of the prophets and apostles, Jesus himself being the chief corner stone; for the Church of Rome, leaving this foundation, is now built on the foundation of councils and traditions, and lying miracles; the popes in their succession being its only corner stones.

Verse 12. Shall grow all trees for meat, whose leaf shall not fade] A description that suits the righteous, who are still producing—1. The fruits of faith. 2. The fruits of the Spirit. 3. The fruits of love to God, obedience to his holy will, and love to all men. Benevolence, mercy, charity, kindness, &c.

The leaf thereof for medicine.] See Rev. xxii. 1–5. Even the leaves, the holy profession of the righteous, is a spiritual medicine. Righteousness is thus encouraged in the world. The profession points out the salvation, as it shows the nature and sufficiency of that salvation; for a just creed contains all the articles of the Christian faith.

Verse 13. Joseph shall have two portions.] That is, In Ephraim and Manasseh, his two sons, who each had a separate inheritance.

Verse 15. The way of Hethlon, as men go to Zedad.] Probably Hethlon is the same as Cuthlon, a city of Syria, between Antioch and Laodicea, according to Antoninus. Some of these places are not known; but see the same kind of division, Num. xxxiv. 7–12.

Verse 16. Hamath] Emesa or Amesa, in Syria.—Calmet.

Berothah] Berytus, now Baruth or Beeroth, which David took from Hadarezer, king of Syria, 2 Sam. viii. 8; but these things are very uncertain.

Sibraim] Sabarim or Sepharvaim, according to the Syriac, between Hamath and Damascus.

Hazar-hatticon] The middle Hazar; or middle village, as the margin.

Hauran.] The city Aurana, and the district Auranitis, are in the north-east limit of the Holy Land.

Verse 17. The border from the sea] The north bor-

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

[b] Hazar-enan, the border of Damascus, and the north northward, and the border of Hamath. And this is the north side.

18 And the east side ye shall measure [c] from Hauran, and from Damascus, and from Gilead, and from the land of Israel by Jordan, from the border unto the east sea. And this is the east side.

19 And the south side southward, from Tamar even to [d] the waters of [e] strife in Kadesh, the [f] river to the great sea. And this is the south side [g] southward.

20 The west side also shall be the great sea from the border, till a man come over against [h] Hamath. This is the west side.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

21 So shall ye divide this land unto you according to the tribes of Israel.

22 And it shall come to pass, that ye shall divide it by lot for an inheritance unto you, [i] and to the strangers that sojourn among you, which shall beget children among you: [k] and they shall be unto you as born in the country among the children of Israel; they shall have inheritance with you among the tribes of Israel.

23 And it shall come to pass, that in what tribe the stranger sojourneth, there shall ye give him his inheritance, saith the Lord GOD.

[b] Num. xxxiv. 9; chap. xlviii. 1.——[c] Heb. from between. [d] Num. xx. 13; Deut. xxxii. 51; Psa. lxxxi. 7; chap. xlviii. 28. [e] Or, Meribah.

[f] Or, valley.——[g] Or, toward Teman.——[h] Num. xiii. 21; xxxiv. 8; Josh. xiii. 5.——[i] See Eph. iii. 6; Rev. vii. 9, 10. [k] Rom. x. 12; Gal. iii. 28; Col. iii. 11.

der eastward is ascertained ver. 15, 16; here it is shown how far it extends itself northward.

Hazar-enan] The village of Enan, Num. xxxiv. 9, placed to the north of Cæsarea Philippi. Ziphron, see Num. xxxiv. 9, called Zaphion by the Syriac.

Verse 18. The east sea] The same as the Dead Sea.

Verse 19. Tamar] Called Hazazon Tamar, or Engedi, 2 Chron. xx. 2.

The river] Besor, which runs into the sea near Gaza.

Verse 20. The great sea] The Mediterranean.

From the border] The southern border, mentioned ver. 19.

Verse 22. And to the strangers that sojourn] In former divisions of the land, no place was given to strangers; but in this division, (which seems to have no other reference than to the Gospel, for literally such a division never took place,) the strangers are to have an inheritance; intimating the calling of the Gentiles into the Church of Christ, to an inheritance that is incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away. Glory be to God for his unspeakable gift! Amen. Amen.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

This chapter contains a description of the several portions of the land belonging to each tribe, together with the portion allotted to the sanctuary, city, suburb, and prince, 1–29; as also the measure and gates of the new city, 30–35.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

NOW these are the names of the tribes. [a] From the north end to the coast of the way of Hethlon, as one goeth to Hamath, Hazar-enan, the border of Damascus northward, to the coast of Hamath; for these are his sides east and west; [b] a portion for Dan.

2 And by the border of Dan, from the east side unto the west side, a portion for Asher.

3 And by the border of Asher, from the east side even unto the west side, a portion for Naphtali.

4 And by the border of Naphtali, from the east side unto the west side, a portion for Manasseh.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

5 And by the border of Manasseh, from the east side unto the west side, a portion for Ephraim.

6 And by the border of Ephraim, from the east side even unto the west side, a portion for Reuben.

7 And by the border of Reuben, from the east side unto the west side, a portion for Judah.

8 And by the border of Judah, from the east side unto the west side, shall be [c] the offering

[a] Chap. xlvii. 15, &c.——[b] Heb. one portion.

[c] Chap. xlv. 1–6.

NOTES ON CHAP. XLVIII.

Verse 1. Now these are the names of the tribes.] See the division mentioned Num. xxxiv. 7–12, which casts much light upon this.

Verse 9. The oblation] This was a portion of land twenty-five thousand cubits in length, by ten thousand broad; in the centre of which was the temple, which must be destined for the use of the priests, the Levites, and the prince.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

which ye shall offer of five and twenty thousand reeds in breadth, and in length as one of the other parts, from the east side unto the west side: and the sanctuary shall be in the midst of it.

9 The oblation that ye shall offer unto the LORD shall be of five and twenty thousand in length, and of ten thousand in breadth.

10 And for them, even for the priests, shall be this holy oblation; toward the north five and twenty thousand in length, and toward the west ten thousand in breadth, and toward the east ten thousand in breadth, and toward the south five and twenty thousand in length: and the sanctuary of the LORD shall be in the midst thereof.

11 [d] It [e] shall be for the priests that are sanctified of the sons of Zadok; which have kept my [f] charge, which went not astray when the children of Israel went astray, [g] as the Levites went astray.

12 And this oblation of the land that is offered shall be unto them a thing most holy by the border of the Levites.

13 And over against the border of the priests the Levites shall have five and twenty thousand in length, and ten thousand in breadth: all the length shall be five and twenty thousand, and the breadth ten thousand.

14 [h] And they shall not sell of it, neither exchange nor alienate the first-fruits of the land: for it is holy unto the LORD.

15 [i] And the five thousand that are left in the breadth over against the five and twenty thousand, shall be [k] a profane place for the city, for dwelling, and for suburbs: and the city shall be in the midst thereof.

16 And these shall be the measures thereof; the north side four thousand and five hundred, and the south side four thousand and five hundred, and on the east side four thousand and five hundred, and the west side four thousand and five hundred.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

17 And the suburbs of the city shall be toward the north two hundred and fifty, and toward the south two hundred and fifty, and toward the east two hundred and fifty, and toward the west two hundred and fifty.

18 And the residue in length over against the oblation of the holy portion shall be ten thousand eastward, and ten thousand westward: and it shall be over against the oblation of the holy portion; and the increase thereof shall be for food unto them that serve the city.

19 [l] And they that serve the city shall serve it out of all the tribes of Israel.

20 All the oblation shall be five and twenty thousand by five and twenty thousand: ye shall offer the holy oblation foursquare, with the possession of the city.

21 [m] And the residue shall be for the prince, on the one side and on the other of the holy oblation, and of the possession of the city, over against the five and twenty thousand of the oblation toward the east border, and westward over against the five and twenty thousand toward the west border, over against the portions for the prince: and it shall be the holy oblation; [n] and the sanctuary of the house shall be in the midst thereof.

22 Moreover from the possession of the Levites, and from the possession of the city being in the midst of that which is the prince's between the border of Judah and the border of Benjamin, shall be for the prince.

23 As for the rest of the tribes from the [d] Chap. xliv. 15.——[e] Or, The sanctified portion shall be for the priests.——[f] Or, ward, or ordinance.——[g] Chap. xliv. 10.

[h] Exod. xxii. 29; Lev. xxvii. 10, 28, 33.——[i] Chap. xlv. 6.
[k] Chap. xlii. 20.——[l] Chap. xlv. 6.——[m] Chap. xlv. 7.——[n] Ver. 8, 10.

Verse 15. And the five thousand that are left] The territory of the Levites was twenty-five thousand square cubits, ver. 20. But their city was only four thousand five hundred square cubits, see ver. 13 and 16; there remained, therefore, ten thousand cubits square to be divided, of which five thousand cubits in breadth, by twenty-five thousand in length, on the east and west sides, were reserved for a sort of second city; or for suburbs where laymen might dwell who were employed by those priests and Levites who lodged in the temple and in the city, ver. 18. And another space of one thousand cubits in breadth, by twenty-five thousand in length, which extended only from north to south, was for fields and gardens appointed for the support of those lay servants. On which we may remark, there was no cultivated land between the portion of the Levites and that of the prince, but only on the east and west sides. See chap. xlv. 6, and the map FF.

Verse 21. And the residue—for the prince] His portion was alongside that of the Levites, from west to east; these were on each side twenty-five thousand cubits in length, from the east to the west, by twelve thousand five hundred cubits in breadth from north to south. The space both above and below was equal, between the tribe of Judah and that of Benjamin to north and south; and the portion of the Levites, which east side unto the west side, Benjamin shall have [o] a portion.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

24 And by the border of Benjamin, from the east side unto the west side, Simeon shall have a portion.

25 And by the border of Simeon, from the east side unto the west side, Issachar a portion.

26 And by the border of Issachar, from the east side unto the west side, Zebulun a portion.

27 And by the border of Zebulun, from the east side unto the west side, Gad a portion.

28 And by the border of Gad, at the south side southward, the border shall be even from Tamar unto [p] the waters of [q] strife in Kadesh, and to the river toward the great sea.

29 [r] This is the land which ye shall divide by lot unto the tribes of Israel for inheritance, and these are their portions, saith the Lord GOD.

30 And these are the goings out of the city on the north side, four thousand and five hundred measures.

A. M. 3430. B. C. 574. Olymp. LI. 3. Anno Servii Tullii, R. Roman., 5.

31 [s] And the gates of the city shall be after the names of the tribes of Israel: three gates northward; one gate of Reuben, one gate of Judah, one gate of Levi.

32 And at the east side four thousand and five hundred: and three gates; and one gate of Joseph, one gate of Benjamin, one gate of Dan.

33 And at the south side four thousand and five hundred measures: and three gates; one gate of Simeon, one gate of Issachar, one gate of Zebulun.

34 At the west side four thousand and five hundred, with their three gates; one gate of Gad, one gate of Asher, one gate of Naphtali.

35 It was round about eighteen thousand measures: [t] and the name of the city from that day shall be, [u] The [v] LORD is there.

[o] Heb. one portion.——[p] Chap. xlvii. 19.——[q] Heb. Meribah-kadesh.——[r] Chap. xlvii. 14, 21, 22.——[s] Rev. xxi. 12, &c.——[t] Jer. xxxiii. 16.

[u] Heb. Jehovah-shammah; see Exod. xvii. 15; Judg. vi. 24.
[v] Psa. ii. 6; ix. 11; lxxvi. 2; xcix. 2; Jer. iii. 17; Joel iii. 21; Zech. ii. 10; Rev. xxi. 3; xxii. 3.

had Judah and Benjamin to the north and south, and the portion of the prince to the east and to the west. See the map.

Verse 28. From Tamar—in Kadesh] The former was on the south of the Dead Sea; and the latter, or Kadesh-Barnea, was still farther south, and at the extremity of the portion of Gad, which was the most southern tribe, as Dan was the most northern.

Verse 30. These are the goings out] Each of the four sides of the city was four thousand five hundred cubits long. There were three gates on each side, as mentioned below; and the whole circumference of the city was eighteen thousand cubits. See the map, plan B. dddd.

The rector of New Haven College, in New England, supposes the preceding representations to refer to the happy state of the Church in what is called the Millennium. Leaving this period out of the question, the following observations are worthy of notice:—

"The Jews, for whom this vision was intended, would conceive their country to be divided to the twelve tribes, in lots of a regular and mathematical form: and not confused or intermixed, as in Joshua's time. Their city laid out larger than before; and exactly four-square, with regular suburbs; the temple and appendages much more commodious for their sacrifices, and the habitations of the priests and Levites regularly formed round about the temple. So that this whole plan of the division of the country, laying out of the city, temple, and all the appendages, appears to be perfectly regular and uniform, as if it were drawn all at one time, and by one hand, who had power to effect it; and therefore conveyed to the Jews the most complete idea they were capable of conceiving of the most perfect church, commonwealth, city, temple, and conveniences, for Divine worship. I. The Holy Land, as described chap. xlvii. and xlviii., according to the original grant, being about two hundred and fifty miles long, north and south, and about one hundred and fifty miles wide, is divided, by parallel lines east and west, to the twelve tribes, each of them having a portion twenty miles wide. Only between Judah and Benjamin there is a holy portion near ten miles wide; in the middle of which is the holy oblation, twenty-five thousand cubits; that is, about ten miles square for the priests, Levites, city, and temple, chap. xlv. 1; xlviii. 8; the two ends are for the prince, chap. xlv. 7, &c. II. The holy oblation, lying in the middle of the holy portion, is twenty-five thousand cubits square, which is near ten miles; of which ten thousand cubits, or four miles, are taken off from the north side for a habitation for the priests, and as much for the Levites on the south side, chap. xlv. 4, 5, and xlviii. 20; and five thousand cubits in the middle for the city portion, chap. xlv. 6; in the middle of which is the city, four thousand five hundred cubits square, which is nearly two miles, chap. xlviii. 15, 16. Round about this is left two hundred and fifty cubits, near thirty rods, for suburbs, ver. 17. The remaining ten thousand cubits on the east side, and the ten thousand cubits on the west side, are for the profit of those who serve the city, out of all the tribes, ver. 18, 19. The sanctuary is in the midst of the city, chap. xlviii. 8. III. The sanctuary or temple, and its appendages, were entirely surrounded with a wall six cubits high and six cubits thick, chap. xl. 5; and five hundred cubits long on each side, chap. xlii. 15, &c., and xlv. 2. In the middle square stands the temple, which was surrounded by a wall one hundred cubits long on each side, chap. xli. 13, and six cubits thick, chap. xli. 6. The side-chambers on the outside four cubits, ver. 6. The Holy of Holies, at the west end, was twenty cubits square on the inside, ver. 4. The holy place, or outer court at the east end, was forty cubits, ver. 12. The length of the porch on the north side was twenty cubits; the breadth was eleven cubits, chap. xl. 49; and the width of the separate place on the south side twenty cubits. On each side of the temple, towards the four gates in the outer wall, stood two courts, eight in the whole, each one hundred cubits square, chap. xl. 19, 23, 27. In each of these were thirty-six little chambers or buildings, about six cubits square, viz., six at the entrance of the gate, chap. xl. 7, 17, 20, &c., and thirty on the pavement, ver. 17, &c., which were for lodgings for the priests, for hanging up their garments, and their part of the sacrifices, chap. xlii. 13."

Calmet has constructed a map to show the position of the tribes, and the quantum of space each was to possess. As this will give a better view of the subject than any written description can, I have inserted one constructed for this work, which, consulting the places said to be connected with the possessions of the different tribes, shows that the tribes did not all possess the same quantum of space, five of the southern tribes possessing only one half as much as those of the north.

Verse 35. The name of the city from that day shall be, The Lord is there.] It would have been better to have retained the original words:—

יהוה שמה VEHOVAH SHAMMAH.

This is an allusion to the shechinah, or symbol of the Divine Presence, which was in the first, but most certainly was not in the second temple; but Ezekiel tells us that the Divine Presence should be in the city of which he speaks; and should be there so fully and so powerfully, that it should give name to the city itself; and that the very name, Jehovah shammah, should remind all men of the supereminently glorious Being who had condescended to make this city his habitation.

Two points must be considered here:—1. That the prophet intended that, when they should be restored, they should build the temple, and divide the land as he here directs, if the thing could be found to be practicable. 2. That he had another temple, another holy city, another Promised Land, in view. The land of Immanuel, the city of the New Jerusalem; and his temple, the Christian Church, which is the house of the living God, 1 Tim. iii. 15, in which the presence of Christ shall ever be found; and all its inhabitants, all that believe on his name, shall be temples of the Holy Ghost. Nor can there be any reasonable doubt that the prophet here, by the Spirit of God, not only points out the return of the Israelites from the Babylonish captivity, and what was to befall them previously to the advent of Jesus Christ; but also the glorious spread of the Gospel in the earth, and the final conversion of the tribes of Israel by the preaching of that Gospel.

In conclusion, I think it necessary to state, that there are but few of the prophets of the Old Testament who have left a more valuable treasure to the Church of God than Ezekiel. It is true, he is in several places obscure; but there is a great proportion of the work that is in the highest degree edifying; and several portions that for the depth of the salvation predicted, and the accuracy and minuteness of the description, have nothing equal to them in the Old Testament Scriptures On such portions, I have felt it my duty to be very particular, that I might be able to point out spiritual beauties and excellencies in this book which are beyond all praise; while I passed slightly over prophecies and symbols which I did not fully understand; but have left to time, by the fulfilment of the events, to prove to successive generations with what heavenly wisdom this much neglected prophet has spoken. And I take this opportunity to recommend this book to the serious perusal of every pious man; and while he wonders at the extent of the wisdom by which Ezekiel has fathomed the depth of so many Divine mysteries, let him give God the glory for this additional testimony to the unsearchable riches of Christ, and that plenary salvation which he has purchased for, and freely offers to, the vilest of the vile, and to the whole of the descendants of Adam.

MASORETIC NOTES.—Number of verses, 1,273. Middle verse, chap. xxvi. 1. Masoretic sections, 29.

DESCRIPTION OF THE PLAN OF EZEKIEL'S TEMPLE.

As I utterly despair of making the prophet's description of this temple intelligible without a plan, I have introduced one drawn up with great labour and skill by Dom. August. Calmet, where the measurements, distances, gates, chambers, courts, inclosures, &c., are all carefully entered as far as they could possibly be ascertained from Ezekiel's description; which, it must be allowed, though wondrously circumstantial, is in several respects obscure. But by referring to the places, both in Kings and Chronicles, as well as in this prophet, where the same things are mentioned, this obscurity will be considerably diminished, if not entirely removed. At the same time, for a description of the temple in general, I beg leave to refer the reader to 1 Kings vi., at the end, where this subject is considered at large.

THE PLAN.

[Let it be observed that the Hebrew cubit is about twenty inches and a half.]

AAAA The first inclosure, or wall of six hundred cubits, i. e., one thousand and twenty-five royal feet in length on each side, chap. xlv. 2; and six cubits or ten feet three inches high, and as many in breadth, chap. xl. 5.

BBBB The court of the Gentiles, or first court, fifty cubits in breadth, or eighty-five feet five inches, chap. xl. 2.

CCCC The outward wall of the court of Israel, or inclosure, five hundred cubits square, i. e., eight hundred and fifty-four feet two inches. This wall might be thirty cubits high, taken from the level of the threshold of the gate.

DDDD The court of Israel, one hundred cubits, or one hundred and seventy feet ten inches broad, chap. xl. 19.

EEEE The outer wall, or inclosure of the court of the priests, two hundred cubits, or three hundred and forty-one feet eight inches square, is supposed to be thirty cubits, or fifty-one feet three inches in height.

FFF The court of the priests, one hundred cubits, or one hundred and seventy feet ten inches square, chap. xl. 7; xli. 14, 15.

G The Sanctuary, or Holy of Holies, twenty cubits, or thirty-four feet two inches square, chap. xli. 4; 1 Kings vi. 2.

H The holy place, forty cubits long by twenty broad, or sixty-eight feet two inches long by thirty-four feet two inches broad, chap. xli. 2, and 1 Kings vi. 2.

I The vestibule or porch, twenty cubits in breadth, by ten (or according to Ezekiel, eleven) cubits in length, i. e., thirty-four feet two inches long by seventeen feet one inch broad, chap. xl. 48; 1 Kings vi. 3.

K The altar of burnt-offerings, twelve cubits, or twenty feet six inches square, according to Ezekiel, chap. xliii. 12, 13, &c., or ten cubits high by twenty broad, i. e., seventeen feet one inch high, and thirty-four feet two inches broad, according to 2 Chron. iv. 1.

LLL The wall of separation which encompassed the Temple, and the altar of burnt-offerings, of which the Scriptures do not give the dimensions. It was twenty cubits from the buildings in the court of the priests, and five from the Temple, chap. xli. 9, 10. Josephus makes it three cubits high, Antiq. lib. viii. c. 2.

MMMMMM Gates of the court of Israel, and of the court of the priests, all of the same dimensions, chap. xl. 1, 22, 36. Each of the porches was fifty cubits long, i. e., eighty-five feet five inches (as much as the depth of the aisles, chap. xl. 15) and twenty-five cubits, or forty-two feet eight inches and a half in breadth in the opening, and sixty cubits high, i. e., one hundred and two feet six inches, chap. xl. 14. On each side of the porches there were three chambers, each six cubits square, chap. xl. 6. And the separations between the three chambers were five cubits in thickness, chap. xl. 6.

NNNNNNNN Galleries around the court of Israel, chap. xl. I place there thirty pillars on a line of two hundred cubits in length, which is the same proportion as those given for one hundred cubits long, 1 Kings vii. 2, 3, 4, for the court of the palace of Solomon.

OOOOOOOO Chambers or apartments round the court of Israel; there were thirty on both sides of the gate, or fifteen on each side, chap. xl. 17.

PPPP The kitchens of the Temple, forty cubits, or sixty-eight feet four inches long by thirty cubits, or fifty-one feet three inches broad, chap. xlv. 21, 22, 23, 24.

Q The north gate of the court of the priests, where the victims were prepared, and where they slew the animals designed for sacrifice, chap. xl. 38, 39.

RRRR Galleries around the court of the priests, chap. xlii. 3.

SSSSSS Apartments continued round the court of the priests. The aisle, which was to the south of the eastern gate, was for the priests employed as guards of the Temple, chap. xl. 45. The aisle on the north side of the said gate was appointed for the singers, chap. xl. 44; the aisle that was on the eastern side of the south gate was for the priests employed about the altar, chap. xl. 46; the aisles which were to the west of the north gate and of the south gate, contained the halls where the priests ate, chap. xlii. 13.

TT The kitchens of the court of the priests were those where they dressed the trespass-offering, sin-offering, and the meat-offerings, forty cubits, or sixty-eight feet four inches long, and thirty cubits, or fifty-one feet five inches broad, chap. xlvi. 20. He speaks only of that on the north.

VVVV Flights of steps which led to the court of the people. In each flight there were seven steps, chap. xl. 22–26.

XXX Flights of steps which led to the court of the priests; in each there were eight steps, chap. xl. 31, 34, 37.

YY A flight of steps which led to the porch of the Temple, eight steps in each, chap. xl. 49.

aaa Chambers about the Temple, thirty-three in number, Ezekiel makes them four cubits in breadth, chap. xli. 5; but in 1 Kings vi. 5, 6, they are stated to be five cubits in the lower stage, six in the second, and seven in the third.

bb Flights of steps opposite to the chambers, which were continued round the temple, chap. xli. 7, and 1 Kings vi. 8.

c The steps of the altar of burnt-offerings turned toward the east, chap. xliii. 15, 16.

dddd Tables of hewn stone, which were in the portico of the north gate of the priests' court, where they slew, flayed, and cut up the victims. Each table was one and a half cubit square, chap. xl. 38, 39–41.

The great walls of the temple were all six cubits, or ten feet three inches thick. These walls were: 1. That which formed the first inclosure; 2. The wall of the court of Israel; 3. The wall of the court of the priests; and, 4. The walls of the Temple. But the outward wall of the thirty-three chambers, which were around the holy place and the sanctuary, was only five cubits broad, and fifteen high; i. e., eight feet six inches and a half in thickness, and twenty-five feet seven inches and a half in height, chap. xli. 9, 12.

All the gates of the two courts, that of Israel and that of the priests, are of the same dimensions. The wall where was the opening was six cubits, or ten feet three inches in thickness. The gate was eight cubits, or thirteen feet eight inches wide; and the opening of the gate was one cubit, and the gate was thirteen cubits, or twenty-two feet two inches and a half high, chap. xl. 9, 11.

The western gate of the Temple is not mentioned by Ezekiel, because, according to his plan, the king's palace was not to be near the temple; and consequently this gate, which was the gate of the king, did not exist. But this was not followed, as we find that, after the return from Babylon, there were gates on the western side of the Temple, according to Josephus; and before the captivity the western gate did most certainly exist, see chap. xliii. 8; 2 Kings xi. 6; xvi. 18; 1 Chron. ix. 24; xxvi. 16, 18.

1. The gate of the porch of the holy place was fourteen cubits wide, i. e., twenty-three feet eleven inches, chap. xl. 48; 1 Kings vi. 3.

2. The gate of the holy place was ten cubits, or seventeen feet one inch wide, chap. xli. 1, 2.

3. The gate of the sanctuary was six cubits, or ten feet three inches wide. The wall of the separation was only two cubits, chap. xli. 1, 3.

4. The east gate of the court of the priests was shut all the week, and was not opened but on the Sabbath and new moons, according to Ezekiel. It was there that the king had his seat, a sort of tribunal, chap. xliv. 2–4; xlvi. 1, 2, &c.

Calmet observes, with respect to his plan, that he assigns only two galleries to the apartments which were around the court of Israel; but those which were around the court of the priests had three, chap. xlii. 3, 5, 6. There is another difference between the palace (atrium) of the court of the priests, and that of the court of Israel. The walls of the first were built with three rows of hewn stones and one of cedar alternately, 1 Kings vi. 36; but this is not said to be the same in the structure of the outward court, or that of the people.

In the Old Testament we find no mention of the court of the Gentiles. Only two courts are mentioned there, one of the priests, the other of the people; one the inner, the other the outer court; but it is certain that such a court did exist, and is here marked BBBB.

The height of the aisles, or apartments that were around the two courts, is not mentioned any where in the Scriptures; but they are here fixed at thirty cubits; for the temple was not higher, neither was Solomon's palace. See 1 Kings vii. 2.

EXPLANATION OF THE PLAN FOR THE DIVISION OF THE LAND OF CANAAN, ACCORDING TO EZEKIEL'S VISION, chap. xlviii.

A The Temple of the Lord, five hundred cubits square, chap. xlv. 2.

BB The city of the Levites, four thousand five hundred cubits square, and eighteen thousand in compass, chap. xlviii. 16.

cccc Suburbs of the city of the Levites, two hundred and fifty cubits in breadth, chap. xlviii. 17.

dddd The twelve gates of the Levitical city, four on each side, chap. xlviii. 31–34.

EE City of the lay persons or workmen employed in the service of the priests and of the Levites, five thousand broad by twenty-five thousand cubits long, chap. xlv. 6.

FF Cultivated ground for the maintenance of the lay artisans, chap. xlviii. 15.

GG Portion of the prince of Israel, twenty-five thousand cubits long by twelve thousand five hundred broad, chap. xlviii. 21.

The whole extent of the land from Kadesh-barnea south to Hethlon or Hamath north, was about two hundred and twenty miles, its mean breadth about one hundred.

INTRODUCTION TO THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET DANIEL

DANIEL is said to have descended from the royal family of David; and he appears to have been carried into Babylon when very young, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim king of Judah, A. M. 3398, B. C. 602, or 606 before the vulgar era. He and his three fellow-captives, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, being likely youths, were chosen to be about the king's court, and were appointed to have an education suitable to the employments for which they were destined. As they had been carefully bred up in the Mosaic institutions, they regulated their conduct by them, even in the court of a heathen king, where they were in the capacity of slaves; hence, though ordered to be fed from the royal table, they would not touch that food, because the Chaldeans ate of meat forbidden by the Mosaic law; and probably even that which might be denominated clean became defiled by having been sacrificed to idols before it was prepared for common use. At their earnest request, the officer under whose care they were placed permitted them to use vegetables only; and finding that they grew healthy and strong by this aliment, did not oblige them to use the portion sent from the king's table.

Daniel appears to have been instructed in all the wisdom of the Chaldeans, which was at that time greatly superior to the learning of the ancient Egyptians; and he was soon distinguished in the Babylonish court, as well for his wisdom and strong understanding as for his deep and steady piety.

His interpretation of Nebuchadnezzar's dream of the variously compounded metallic image raised his credit so high at the court that he was established governor of the province of Babylon, and made chief of all the Magians, or wise men in that country. The chief facts and incidents of his history are so particularly woven throughout the book bearing his name, and undoubtedly written by himself, that they need not be detailed here.

The reputation of Daniel was so great, even in his lifetime, that it became a proverb. "Thou art wiser than Daniel," said Ezekiel ironically to the king of Tyre, chap. xxviii. 3; and by the same prophet God ranks him among the most holy and exemplary of men, when he declares, speaking relative to Jerusalem, which had been condemned to destruction, "Though these three men, Noah, Daniel, and Job, were in it, they should deliver but their own lives by their righteousness," chap. xiv. 14, 20.

Josephus, Ant. lib. x., c. 12, says that God bestowed many favours on him: that he was advanced to the rank of the most considerable prophets; that he enjoyed the favour of princes, and the affection of the people during his life; and that after his death his memory became immortal. He observes also that, in the complexion of his predictions, he differs widely from all other prophets; they foretold scarcely any thing but disastrous events; on the contrary, he predicts the most joyous events, and fixes the times of accomplishment with more circumstantial precision than they did. And this is so true, that we cannot help thinking that God had given this eminent man a greater degree of light to fix the times when his predictions should issue, than he had given in general to all his predecessors, who simply declared the mind of God in relation to things future, without attempting to indicate the distance of time in which they should be fulfilled. There are but very few exceptions to this either in Isaiah or Jeremiah. And in this respect the prophecy of the seventy weeks of Daniel exceeds all that have gone before, as the incidents and transactions relative to its fulfilment were so various, and yet so fixed and declared six hundred years before the time, that when the time came in which they were predicted to take place, they were expected, and occurred exactly according to the prediction, and the expectations founded upon it. This prophet therefore, far from occupying a lower place among divinely inspired men, deserves to be placed in the front rank with all those who have been most distinguished among the men who have partaken most largely of the prophetic gift.

The rabbins have endeavoured to degrade Daniel, and have placed his prophecies among the hagiographa, books which they consider to possess a minor degree of inspiration; and it is probable that he meets with this treatment from them because his prophecies are proofs too evident that Jesus Christ is the true Messiah, and that he came at the very time that Daniel said the Prince Messiah should come. But the testimony and sayings of such men are infinitely overpowered by the testimony of Ezekiel, which has been produced above; and the testimony of our LORD, who gives him the title of prophet, Matt. xxiv. 15, without the slightest intimation that he was to wear this title with abatement.

It is very probable that Daniel did not return at the general restoration from the Babylonish captivity. At that time, if alive, he must have been an old man; and it is most likely that he finished his days in Babylon, though some Asiatic authors hold that he returned to Judea with Ezra, came back afterward to Persia, and died in the city of Susa.

Josephus speaks of his skill in architecture, Antiq. lib. x., c. 12, and that he built a famous tower at Ecbatane or Susa, which remained to his time, and was so exquisitely finished that it always appeared as if newly built. In this tower or palace the kings of Persia were interred; and in consideration of its founder, the guard of it was always chosen from the Jews.

Daniel is famous among the orientalists. The author of the Tareekh Muntekheb says that Daniel flourished in the time of Lohorasp, king of Persia; and consequently in that of Ceresh, or Cyrus, who gave him the government of Syria; that he taught these two princes the knowledge of the true God; that he preached the true faith through the whole of the Babylonian Irak; and was, on the death of Nebuchadnezzar, sent by Bahman, (Artaxerxes Longimanus,) son of Asfendiar, who then reigned in Persia, into Judea; and that, having returned, he died at Shouster, or Susa, the capital of Persia, where he lies interred.

Some have supposed that the Zoroaster or Zeradusht of the Persians is a confused picture of the Prophet Daniel. The account given by Abul Pharaje, in his fifth dynasty, may be considered favourable to this opinion. He says, "Zeradusht, author of the Magiouseiah Magism, or sect of the worshippers of fire, flourished in the reign of Cambasous, (Cambyses;) that he was a native of the province of Adherbigian, or Media, or, according to others, of Assyria; that he foretold to his disciples the coming of the Messiah, who should be pointed out by a star which should appear in the day time at his birth; that they should have the first information of his advent; that he should be born of a virgin; and that they should present him with gifts; because he is the WORD that made the heavens." See Pococke's Abul Pharajius, p. 83 of the Arabic, and 54 of the Latin.

D'Herbelot, on this account, makes the following remark: "We may see by these words of the historian, that the prophecy of Balaam was pretty generally known throughout the east, and that the Magi, who came to worship our Lord, were the true Magians of Persia, and not Arab kings."

The account given by Abul Pharaje makes Daniel and Zeradusht contemporary, and thus far is favourable to the opinion that the history of the former may be disguised under that of the latter. There have been several Zoroasters, of whom many fables are told; and no wonder, when the persons themselves are generally fabulous.

The Asiatics make him the inventor of رمل remel, or geomancy; and among them he passes for the author of a work entitled Assoul ol Tabeer, "The Principles of the Interpretation of Dreams." I have in my own library a very ancient work which pretends to be drawn from this, and is entitled Somnia Daniel; it was printed in the infancy of printing, out without date; small 4to. There is an Arabic work in the French king's library, No. 410, entitled Odhmet al Mancoul, ân Danial an Nabi, "The Traditionary Predictions of Daniel the Prophet;" which is said to contain many falsities, built on the foundation of Daniel's prophecies; but it has never been given to the public, and I have no other notice of it than the above from D'Herbelot. But although all these are curious from their antiquity, yet they are doubtless impostures.

Abul Pharaje, in his history of the dynasties, says, that the seventy weeks of Daniel are to be dated from the twentieth year of اردشير ديرازدست Ardsheer Dirazdest, the Artaxerxes Longimanus of the Greeks, (called Bahaman above,) and the same to whom Nehemiah was ساقي sakee, or cup-bearer. Other orientalists are of the same opinion. This shall be considered more at large when we come to the prophecy itself. Artaxerxes had the name of Longimanus, or Long-handed, from the great extent of his dominions.

Daniel cannot be ranked among the Hebrew poets: his book is all in prose; and it is written partly in Hebrew, and partly in Chaldee. The Chaldee, or Syro-Chaldaic part, begins with מלכא לעלמין חי malka lealmin chei, "O king, live for ever!" and continues to the end of the seventh chapter.

In the interpretation of his prophecies I have endeavoured to follow the best critics and chronologists; and, without an extended comment, to give in as short a space as possible the meaning of every place. On the metallic images and seventy weeks I have been obliged to be more prolix, as these are of too much importance to be slightly handled. It is not my province to enter into the controversy about the date when the seventy weeks commence; even they who disagree so much from each other on this point come so near to the general issue that the difference is immaterial.

The chronology of the several events mentioned in this book Calmet endeavours to fix as follows:—

A. M.

3398. Daniel led captive to Babylon, chap. i. 1–7.
3399. Death of Nabopolassar, father of Nebuchadnezzar.
3401. Jehoiakim revolts against Nebuchadnezzar, 2 Kings xxiv. 1.
3402. Dream of the compound statue, Dan. ii. 1, &c.
Daniel and his companions promoted to honour at court.
Birth of Cyrus, son of Cambyses and Mandane.
3405. Jehoiakim is taken and put to death by the Chaldeans.
Jeconiah is raised to his throne, but reigns only three months and ten days.
Zedekiah, last king of Judah, succeeds; and reigns eleven years.
3416. Taking of Jerusalem, and destruction of the temple, 1 Chron. xxxvi.
3434. Return of Nebuchadnezzar to Babylon after his great conquests in Phœnicia, Judea, Egypt, &c.
His dream of the great tree, chap. iv. 7, &c.
3435. He becomes insane, which lasts for seven years, chap. iv. 32, 33.
3442. He becomes sane, and re-ascends the throne.
The golden image set up. The three Hebrews cast into the fiery furnace, chap. iii.
Death of Nebuchadnezzar after a reign of forty-three years, according to Berosus Evil-Merodach succeeds him, and reigns two years.—Berosus.
He sets Jeconiah at liberty, Jer. lii. 31.
3444. Belshazzar his son succeeds, Dan. vii. 1.
Daniel's vision of the four beasts, representing the four great empires, chap. vii.
3447. Vision of the ram and he-goat, chap. viii.
The death of Belshazzar, chap. v.
3449. Darius the Mede, called Cyaxares by Xenophon, and Astyages in the Apocrypha, son of Astyages, king of the Medes, and maternal great uncle to Belshazzar, succeeds him in the government of Chaldea, chap. v. 30, 31. See Isa. xiii. 1, &c.
The visions of Daniel related, chap. ix., x., xi., xii.
Cyrus attacks the Medes in the first or second year of Darius the Mede, chap. x. 1.
3455. Daniel is cast into the den of lions, chap. vi.
3456. Death of Darius. Cyrus succeeds him.
3457. End of the Babylonish captivity declared by Cyrus, in the first year of his reign, 2 Chron. xxxvi. 22, and Ezra i. 1; but afterward interrupted. See below.

A. M.
3485. Termination of Jeremiah's seventy years under Darius Hystaspes, who gives orders to continue the rebuilding of the temple.
3550. Commencement of the seventy weeks, chap. ix. 24.
Nehemiah returns to Jerusalem, Neh. ii. 1–6.

In this chronology Calmet differs from Usher.

As a writer, this prophet is simple, yet pure and correct: and he is so conscientious that he relates the very words of those persons whom he introduces as speaking. He writes Hebrew where what he delivers is a bare narrative; but he relates in Chaldee the conversations which he had with the wise men and the kings; and in the same language he relates Nebuchadnezzar's edict, which he made after Daniel had interpreted his dream concerning the great metalline image. This is a proof of his great and conscientious accuracy; and exhibits this prophet in a most advantageous point of view. Daniel writes both Hebrew and Chaldee with great purity.

This book divides itself into two parts. Part I. is historical, and is contained in the six former chapters. Part II. is prophetical, and occupies the other six.

THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET DANIEL.

Chronological Notes relative to the commencement of Daniel's prophesying.

Year from the Creation, according to Archbishop Usher, 3397.—Year of the Jewish era of the world, 3154.—Year from the Deluge, 1741.—Second year of the forty-third Olympiad.—Year from the building of Rome, according to the Varronian or generally received account, 147.—Year from the building of Rome, according to Cato and the Fasti Consulares, 146.—Year from the building of Rome, according to Polybius the historian, 145.—Year from the building of Rome, according to Fabius Pictor, 411.—Year of the Julian Period, 4107.—Year of the era of Nabonassar, 141.—Year from the foundation of Solomon's temple, 397.—Year since the destruction of the kingdom of Israel by Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, 114.—Fourth year after the first Sabbatic year after the seventeenth Jewish jubilee, according to Helvicus.—Year before the birth of Christ, 603.—Year before the vulgar era of Christ's nativity, 607.—Cycle of the Sun, 19.—Cycle of the Moon, 3.—Tenth year of Tarquinius Priscus, the fifth king of the Romans.—Nineteenth year of Cyaxares or Cyaraxes, the fourth king of Media.—Forty-fourth year of Archidamus, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Proclidæ.—First year of Leon, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Eurysthenidæ.—Thirteenth year of Alyattes II., king of Lydia, and father of the celebrated Crœsus.—Thirty-fourth year of Philip, the sixth king of Macedon.—Eleventh year of Pharaoh-necho, called Necus by Herodotus. This king was the immediate predecessor of Psammis; and Psammis was succeeded by the celebrated Pharaoh-hophra, called also Apries.—Eighth year of Ithobalus, king of the Tyrians, according to Helvicus.—Third year (ending) of Jehoiakim, king of Judah; for the principal part of A. M. 3397 corresponded to the fourth year of this prince.

CHAPTER I.

This chapter begins with giving a short account of Nebuchadnezzar's conquest of Judea, when Jehoiakim became tributary to him; and consequently the seventy years' captivity and vassalage began, 1, 2. On this expedition (taking Egypt in his way) the king of Babylon set out towards the end of the third year of Jehoiakim, but did not take Jerusalem before the ninth month of the year following. Hence the seeming discrepancy between Daniel and Jeremiah, (chap. xxv. 1,) the one computing from the time of his setting out on the expedition, and the other from the time in which the purpose of it was accomplished. We have next an account of the manner in which Daniel and his companions were brought up at the king's court, 3–7. They reject the daily provision of meat granted by the king, lest they should be defiled, and are allowed to live on pulse, 8–16. Their great proficiency in the wisdom of that time, 17–20. Daniel flourishes till the reign of Cyrus the Persian, 21.

A. M. 3397. B. C. 607. Ol. XLIII. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 10.

IN the third year of the reign of Jehoiakim king of Judah [a] came Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon unto Jerusalem, and besieged it.

2 And the LORD gave Jehoiakim king of Judah into his hand, with [b] part of the vessels of the house of God: which he carried [c] into the land of Shinar to the house of his

A. M. cir. 3398. B. C. cir. 606. Ol. XLIII. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman, cir. annum 11.

[a] 2 Kings xxiv. 1; 2 Chron. xxxvi. 6.——[b] Jer. xxvii. 19, 20.

[c] Gen. x. 10; xi. 2; Isa. xi. 11; Zech. v. 11.

NOTES ON CHAP. I.

Verse 1. In the third year of the reign of Jehoiakim] This king was raised to the throne of Judea in the place of his brother Jehoahaz, by Pharaoh-necho, king of Egypt, 2 Kings xxiii. 34–36, and continued tributary to him during the first three years of his reign; but in the fourth, which was the first of Nebuchadnezzar, Jer. xxv. 1, Nebuchadnezzar completely defeated the Egyptian army near the Euphrates, Jer. xlvi. 2; and this victory put the neighbouring countries of Syria, among which Judea was the chief, under the Chaldean government. Thus Jehoiakim, who had first been tributary to Egypt, became now the vassal of the king of Babylon, 2 Kings xxiv. 1.

A. M. cir. 3398. B. C. cir. 606. Ol. XLIII. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 11.

god; [d] and he brought the vessels into the treasure house of his god.

3 And the king spake unto Ashpenaz the master of his eunuchs, that he should bring certain of the children of Israel, and of the king's seed, and of the princes;

4 Children [e] in whom was no blemish, but well favoured, and skilful in all wisdom, and cunning in knowledge, and understanding science, and such as had ability in them to stand in the king's palace, and [f] whom they might teach the learning and the tongue of the Chaldeans.

5 And the king appointed them a daily provision of the king's meat, and of [g] the wine which he drank: so nourishing them three years, that at the end thereof they might [h] stand before the king.

6 Now among these were of the children of Judah, Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah:

7 [i] Unto whom the prince of the eunuchs gave names: [k] for he gave unto Daniel the name of Belteshazzar; and to Hananiah, of [d] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 7.——[e] See Lev. xxiv. 19, 20.——[f] Acts vii. 22. [g] Heb. the wine of his drink.

[h] Ver. 19; Gen. xli. 46; 1 Kings x. 8.——[i] Gen. xli. 45; 2 Kings xxiv. 17.——[k] Chap. iv. 8; v. 12.

At the end of three years Jehoiakim rebelled against Nebuchadnezzar, who, then occupied with other wars, did not proceed against Jerusalem till three years after, which was the eleventh and last of Jehoiakim, 2 Kings xxiii. 36.

There are some difficulties in the chronology of this place. Calmet takes rather a different view of these transactions. He connects the history thus: Nabopolassar, king of Babylon, finding that one of his lords whom he had made governor of Cœlesyria and Phœnicia had revolted from him, and formed an alliance with the king of Egypt, sent Neubuchadnezzar his son, whom he invested with the authority of king, to reduce those provinces, as was customary among the easterns when the heir presumptive was sent on any important expedition or embassy. This young prince, having quelled the insurrection in those parts, marched against Jerusalem about the end of the third or beginning of the fourth year of the reign of Jehoiakim, king of Judah. He soon took the city, and put Jehoiakim in chains with the design of carrying him to Babylon; but, changing his mind, he permitted him to resume the reins of government under certain oppressive conditions. At this year, which was A. M. 3398, the seventy years of the Babylonish captivity commence. Nabopolassar dying in the interim, Nebuchadnezzar was obliged to return speedily to Babylon, leaving his generals to conduct the Jewish captives to Babylon, among whom were Daniel and his companions.

Verse 2. Part of the vessels of the house of God] He took the richest and finest of them for the service of his god Bel, and left what were necessary for carrying on the public worship of Jehovah, (for he did not attempt to alter the civil or religious constitution of Judea;) for leaving Jehoiakim on the throne, he only laid the land under tribute. The Chaldeans carried these sacred vessels away at three different times. 1. In the war spoken of in this place. 2. In the taking of Jerusalem and Jeconiah a few months after, 2 Kings xxiv. 13. 3. Eleven years after, under the reign of Zedekiah, when the city and temple were totally destroyed, and the land ruined, 2 Kings xxv. 8–15.

The land of Shinar] This was the ancient name of Babylon. See Gen. xi. 2.

The treasure house of his god.] This was Bel, who had a splendid temple in Babylon, and was the tutelar god of the city and empire.

Verse 3. Master of his eunuchs] This word eunuchs signifies officers about or in the palace, whether literally eunuchs or not.

Verse 4. Children] ילדים yeladim, youths, young men; and so the word should be rendered throughout this book.

Skilful in all wisdom] Rather, persons capable of every kind of literary accomplishment, that they might be put under proper instruction. And as children of the blood and of the nobles were most likely, from the care usually taken of their initiatory education, to profit most by the elaborate instruction here designed, the master of the eunuchs, the king's chamberlain, was commanded to choose the youths in question out of such.

Verse 5. A daily provision] Athenæus, lib. iv., c. 10, says: The kings of Persia, (who succeeded the kings of Babylon, on whose empire they had seized,) were accustomed to order the food left at their own tables to be delivered to their courtiers.

So nourishing them three years] This was deemed a sufficient time to acquire the Chaldee language, and the sciences peculiar to that people. I suppose they had good introductory books, able teachers, and a proper method; else they would have been obliged, like us, to send their children seven years to school, and as many to the university, to teach them any tolerable measure of useful and ornamental literature! O how reproachful to the nations of Europe, and particularly to our own, is this backward mode of instruction. And what is generally learned after this vast expense of time and money? A little Latin, Greek, and mathematics; perhaps a little moral philosophy; and by this they are entitled, not qualified, to teach others, and especially to teach the people the important science of salvation! To such shepherds, (and there are many such,) the hungry sheep look up, and are not fed; and if all are not such, no thanks to our plan of national education.

Verse 6. Now among these] There were no doubt several noble youths from other provinces: but the four mentioned here were Jews, and are supposed to have all been of royal extraction.

Verse 7. Unto whom the prince of the eunuchs gave

A. M. cir. 3398. B. C. cir. 606. Ol. XLIII. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 11.

Shadrach; and to Mishael, of Meshach; and to Azariah, of Abed-nego.

8 But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself [l] with the portion of the king's meat, nor with the wine which he drank: therefore he requested of the prince of the eunuchs that he might not defile himself.

9 Now [m] God had brought Daniel into favour and tender love with the prince of the eunuchs.

10 And the prince of the eunuchs said unto Daniel, I fear my lord the king who hath appointed your meat and your drink: for why should he see your faces [n] worse liking than the children which are of your [o] sort? then shall ye make me endanger my head to the king.

11 Then said Daniel to [p] Melzar, whom the prince of the [q] eunuchs had set over Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, 12 Prove thy servants, I beseech thee, ten days; and let them give us [r] pulse [s] to eat, and water to drink.

A. M. cir. 3398. B. C. cir. 606. Ol. XLIII. 3. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 11.

13 Then let our countenances be looked upon before thee, and the countenance of the children that eat of the portion of the king's meat: and as thou seest, deal with thy servants.

14 So he consented to them in this matter, and proved them ten days.

15 And at the end of ten days their countenances appeared fairer and fatter in flesh than all the children which did eat the portion of the king's meat.

16 Thus Melzar took away the portion of their meat, and the wine that they should drink; and gave them pulse.

17 As for these four children, [t] God gave them [u] knowledge and skill in all learning and wisdom; and [v] Daniel had [w] understanding in all visions and dreams.

[l] Deut. xxxii. 38; Ezek. iv. 13; Hos. ix. 3.——[m] See Gen. xxxix. 21; Psa. cvi. 46; Prov. xvi. 7.——[n] Heb. sadder.——[o] Or, term, or continuance.——[p] Or, the steward.——[q] 2 Kings ix. 32; xx. 18; Isa. xxxix. 7; Acts viii. 27.

[r] Heb. of pulse.——[s] Heb. that we may eat, &c.——[t] 1 Kings iii. 12; James i. 5, 17.——[u] Acts vii. 22.——[v] Or, he made Daniel understand.——[w] Num. xii. 6; 2 Chron. xxvi. 5; chap. v. 11, 12, 14; x. 1.

names] This change of names, Calmet properly remarks, was a mark of dominion and authority. It was customary for masters to impose new names upon their slaves; and rulers often, on their ascending the throne, assumed a name different from that which they had before.

דניאל DANIEL signifies "God is my Judge." This name they changed into בלטשאצר BELTESHATSTSAR; in Chaldee, "The treasure of Bel," or "The depository of the secrets (or treasure) of Bel."

חנניה HANANIAH signifies, "The Lord has been gracious to me;" or "He to whom the Lord is gracious." This name was changed into שדרך SHADRACH, Chaldee, which has been variously translated: "The inspiration of the sun;" "God, the author of evil, be propitious to us;" "Let God preserve us from evil."

מישאל MISHAEL signifies, "He who comes from God." Him they called מישך MESHACH, which in Chaldee signifies, "He who belongs to the goddess Sheshach," a celebrated deity of the Babylonians, mentioned by Jeremiah, chap. xxv. 26.

עזריה AZARIAH, which signifies "The Lord is my Helper," they changed into אבד נגו ABED-NEGO, which in Chaldee is "the servant of Nego," who was one of their divinities; by which they meant either the sun, or the morning star; whether Jupiter or Venus.

The vicious pronunciation of this name should be carefully avoided; I mean that which lays the accent on the first syllable, and hurries to the end, without attending to the natural division of the word Abed-Nego.

Verse 8. But Daniel—would not defile himself] I have spoken of this resolution in the introduction. The chief reasons why Daniel would not eat meat from the royal table were probably these three:—1. Because they ate unclean beasts, which were forbidden by the Jewish law. 2. Because they ate, as did the heathens in general, beasts which had been strangled, or not properly blooded. 3. Because the animals that were eaten were first offered as victims to their gods. It is on this account that Athenæus calls the beasts which were served up at the tables of the Persian kings, ἱερια, victims, lib. iv. c. 10, p. 145.

Verse 11. Then said Daniel to Melzar] Melzar was an officer under Ashpenaz, whose office it was to attend to the food, clothing, &c., of these royal captives. Others think מלצר meltsar, master of the inn or hotel, the name of an office.

Verse 12. Give us pulse to eat] הזרעים hazzeraim, seeds or grain, such as barley, wheat, rye, and peas, &c. Though a vegetable diet might have produced that healthiness of the system in general, and of the countenance particularly, as mentioned here; yet we are to understand that there was an especial blessing of God in this, because this spare diet was taken on a religious account.

Verse 17. As for these four children] Young men or youths. Our translation gives a false idea.

In all visions and dreams.] That is, such as are Divine; for as to dreams in general, they have as much signification as they have connexion, being the effects of the state of the body, of the mind, or of the circumstances of the dreamer. A dream may be considered supernatural, if it have nothing preposterous, nothing monstrous, and nothing irregular. If the whole

A. M. cir. 3401. B. C. cir. 603. Ol. XLIV. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 14.

18 Now at the end of the days that the king had said he should bring them in, then the prince of the eunuchs brought them in before Nebuchadnezzar.

19 And the king communed with them; and among them all was found none like Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah: therefore [x] stood they before the king.

20 [y] And in all matters of [z] wisdom and understanding, that the king inquired of them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and astrologers that were in all his realm.

A. M. cir. 3401. B. C. cir. 603. Ol. XLIV. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 14.

21 [a] And Daniel continued even unto the first year of king Cyrus.

[x] Gen. xli. 46; ver. 5.——[y] 1 Kings x. 1.——[z] Heb. wisdom of understanding.——[a] Chap. vi. 28; x. 1. He lived to see that glorious time of the return of his people from the Babylonian captivity, though he did not die then; so till is used, Psa. cx. 1; cxii. 8.

order and consequences of the things be preserved in them, from beginning to end, then we may presume they are supernatural. In such dreams Daniel had understanding.

Verse 18. Now at the end of the days] That is, at the end of three years, ver. 5.

Verse 19. And among them all] All the young noble captives from different nations.

Therefore stood they before the king.] It appears that only four were wanting.

Verse 20. Magicians and astrologers] Probably the same as philosophers and astronomers among us.

Verse 21. The first year of king Cyrus.] That is, to the end of the Chaldean empire. And we find Daniel alive in the third year of Cyrus, see chap. x. 1.

CHAPTER II.

Nebuchadnezzar, in the second year of his reign, (or in the fourth, according to the Jewish account, which takes in the first two years in which he reigned conjointly with his father,) had a dream which greatly troubled him; but of which nothing remained in the morning but the uneasy impression. Hence the diviners, when brought in before the king, could give no interpretation, as they were not in possession of the dream, 1–13. Daniel then, having obtained favour from God, is made acquainted with the dream, and its interpretation, 14–19; for which he blesses God in a lofty and beautiful ode, 20–23; and reveals both unto the king, telling him first the particulars of the dream, 24–35, and then interpreting it of the four great monarchies. The then existing Chaldean empire, represented by the head of gold, is the first; the next is the Medo-Persian; the third, the Macedonian or Grecian; the fourth, the Roman, which should break every other kingdom in pieces, but which, in its last stage, should be divided into ten kingdoms, represented by the ten toes of the image, as they are in another vision (chap. vii.) by the ten horns of the fourth beast. He likewise informs the king that in the time of this last monarchy, viz., the Roman, God would set up the kingdom of the Messiah; which, though small in its commencement, should ultimately be extended over the whole earth, 36–45. Daniel and his three friends, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, (named by the prince of the eunuchs, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego,) are then promoted by the king to great honour, 46–49.

A. M. 3401. B. C. 603. Ol. XLIV. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 14.

AND in the second year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar, Nebuchadnezzar dreamed dreams, [a] wherewith his spirit was troubled, and [b] his sleep brake from him.

A. M. 3401. B. C. 603. Ol. XLIV. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 14.

2 [c] Then the king commanded to call the magicians, and the

[a] Gen. xli. 8; chap. iv. 5.——[b] Esth. vi. 1; chap. vi. 18.

[c] Gen. xli. 8; Exod. vii. 11; chap. v. 7.

NOTES ON CHAP. II.

Verse 1. The second year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar] That is, the second year of his reigning alone, for he was king two years before his father's death. See the notes on chap. i. 1. This was therefore the fifth year of his reign, and the fourth of the captivity of Daniel.

Nebuchadnezzar dreamed dreams wherewith his spirit was troubled] The dream had made a deep and solemn impression upon his mind; and, having forgotten all but general circumstances, his mind was distressed.

Verse 2. The magicians] חרטמים chartummim. See the note on Gen. xli. 8.

The astrologers] אשפים ashshaphim. Perhaps from נשף nashaph, to breathe, because they laid claim to Divine inspiration; but probably the persons in question were the philosophers and astronomers among the Babylonians.

The sorcerers] מכשפים mechashshephim. See the note on Deut. xviii. 10, and on Exod. xxii. 18, and Lev. xix. 31, where several of these arts are explained.

The Chaldeans] Who these were is difficult to be ascertained. They might be a college of learned men, where all arts and sciences were professed and taught. The Chaldeans were the most ancient philosophers of the world; they might have been originally inhabitants of the Babylonian Irak; and still astrologers, and the sorcerers, and the Chaldeans, for to show the king his dreams. So they came and stood before the king.

A. M. 3401. B. C. 603. Ol. XLIV. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 14.

3 And the king said unto them, I have dreamed a dream, and my spirit was troubled to know the dream.

4 Then spake the Chaldeans to the king in Syriac, [d] O king, live for ever: tell thy servants the dream, and we will show the interpretation.

5 The king answered and said to the Chaldeans, The thing is gone from me: if ye will not make known unto me the dream, with the interpretation thereof, ye shall be [e] cut [f] in pieces, and your houses shall be made a dunghill.

6 [g] But if ye show the dream, and the interpretation thereof, ye shall receive of me gifts and [h] rewards and great honour: therefore show me the dream, and the interpretation thereof.

7 They answered again and said, Let the king tell his servants the dream, and we will show the interpretation of it.

8 The king answered and said, I know of certainty that ye would [i] gain the time, because ye see the thing is gone from me.

9 But if ye will not make known unto me the dream, [k] there is but one decree for you: for ye have prepared [l] lying and corrupt words to speak before me, till the time be changed: therefore tell me the dream, and I shall know that ye can show me the interpretation thereof.

A. M. 3401. B. C. 603. Ol. XLIV. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 14.

10 The Chaldeans answered before the king, and said, There is not a man upon the earth that can show the king's matter: therefore there is no king, lord, nor ruler, that asked such things at any magician, or astrologer, or Chaldean.

11 And it is a rare thing that the king requireth, and there is none other that can show it before the king, [m] except the gods, whose dwelling is not with flesh.

12 For this cause the king was angry and very furious, and commanded to destroy all the wise men of Babylon.

13 And the decree went forth that the wise men should be slain; and they sought Daniel and his fellows to be slain.

14 Then Daniel [n] answered with counsel and wisdom to Arioch the [o] captain [p] of the king's guard, which was gone forth to slay the wise men of Babylon:

[d] 1 Kings i. 31; chap. iii. 9; v. 10; vi. 6, 21.——[e] Ezra vi. 11; 2 Kings x. 27; chap. iii. 29.——[f] Chald. made pieces.——[g] Chap. v. 16.——[h] Or, fee; chap. v. 17; ver. 48.——[i] Chald. buy; Eph. v. 16.

[k] Esth. iii. 15; iv. 11; ix. 14.——[l] Prov. vi. 17; xii. 19; xxi. 6 xxvi. 28.——[m] Ver. 28; chap. v. 11.——[n] Chald. returned.——[o] Or chief marshal.——[p] Chald. chief of the executioners, or slaughtermen; Gen. xxxvii. 36.

have preserved to themselves exclusively the name of Chaldeans, to distinguish themselves from other nations and peoples who inhabited the one hundred and twenty provinces of which the Babylonish government was composed.

Verse 4. Then spake the Chaldeans to the king in Syriac] ארמית aramith, the language of Aram or Syria. What has been generally called the Chaldee.

O king, live for ever] מלכא לעלמין חי Malca leolmin cheyi. With these words the Chaldee part of Daniel commences; and continues to the end of the seventh chapter. These kinds of compliments are still in use in the East Indies. A superior gives a blessing to an inferior by saying to him, when the latter is in the act of doing him reverence, "Long life to thee." A poor man, going into the presence of a king to solicit a favour, uses the same kind of address: O father, thou art the support of the destitute; mayest thou live to old age!—Ward's Customs.

Verse 5. Ye shall be cut in pieces] This was arbitrary and tyrannical in the extreme; but, in the order of God's providence, it was overruled to serve the most important purpose.

Verse 8. That ye would gain the time] The king means either that they wished to prolong the time that he might recollect it, or get indifferent about it; or that they might invent something in the place of it; or make their escape to save their lives, after having packed up their valuables. See ver. 9.

Verse 10. There is not a man upon the earth] The thing is utterly impossible to man. This was their decision: and when Daniel gave the dream, with its interpretation, they knew that the spirit of the holy gods was in him. So, even according to their own theology, he was immeasurably greater than the wisest in Babylon or in the world.

Verse 13. They sought Daniel and his fellows] As the decree stated that all the wise men of Babylon should be slain, the four young Hebrews, being reputed among the wisest, were considered as sentenced to death also.

Verse 14. Captain of the king's guard] Chief of the king's executioners or slaughter men. Margin. רב תבחיא rab tabachaiya, chief of the butchers, he that took off the heads of those whom the king ordered to be slain, because they had in any case displeased him. "Go and bring me the head of Giaffer." The honourable butcher went and brought the head in a bag on a

A. M. 3401. B. C. 603. Ol. XLIV. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 14.

15 He answered and said to Arioch the king's captain, Why is the decree so hasty from the king? Then Arioch made the thing known to Daniel.

16 Then Daniel went in, and desired of the king that he would give him time, and that he would show the king the interpretation.

17 Then Daniel went to his house, and made the thing known to Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, his companions:

18 [q] That they would desire mercies [r] of the God of heaven concerning this secret; [s] that Daniel and his fellows should not perish with the rest of the wise men of Babylon.

19 Then was the secret revealed unto Daniel [t] in a night vision. Then Daniel blessed the God of heaven.

20 Daniel answered and said, [u] Blessed be the name of God for ever and ever: [v] for wisdom and might are his:

21 And he changeth [w] the times and the seasons: [x] he removeth kings, and setteth up kings: [y] he giveth wisdom unto the wise, and knowledge to them that know understanding:

22 [z] He revealeth the deep and secret things: [a] he knoweth what is in the darkness, and [b] the light dwelleth with him.

A. M. 3401. B. C. 603. Ol. XLIV. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 14.

23 I thank thee, and praise thee, O thou God of my fathers, who hast given me wisdom and might, and hast made known unto me now what we [c] desired of thee: for thou hast now made known unto us the king's matter.

24 Therefore Daniel went in unto Arioch, whom the king had ordained to destroy the wise men of Babylon: he went and said thus unto him: Destroy not the wise men of Babylon: bring me in before the king, and I will show unto the king the interpretation.

25 Then Arioch brought in Daniel before the king in haste, and said thus unto him, [d] I have found a man of the [e] captives of Judah, that will make known unto the king the interpretation.

26 The king answered and said to Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, Art thou able to make known unto me the dream which I have seen, and the interpretation thereof?

27 Daniel answered in the presence of the king, and said, The secret which the king hath demanded cannot the wise men, the astrologers, the magicians, the soothsayers, show unto the king;

[q] Matt. xviii. 12.——[r] Chald. from before God.——[s] Or, that they should not destroy Daniel, &c.——[t] Num. xii. 6; Job xxxiii. 15, 16.——[u] Psa. cxiii. 2; cxv. 18.——[v] Jer. xxxii. 19.——[w] Esth. i. 13; 1 Chron. xxix. 30; chap. vii. 25; xi. 6.——[x] Job xii. 18; Psa. lxxv. 6, 7; Jer. xxvii. 5; chap. iv. 17.——[y] James i. 5.

[z] Job. xii. 22; Psa. xxv. 14; ver. 28, 29.——[a] Psa. cxxxix. 11, 12; Heb. iv. 13.——[b] Chap. v. 11, 14; James i. 17.——[c] Ver. 18. [d] Chald. That I have found.——[e] Chald. children of the captivity of Judah.

dish. It was Herod's chief butcher that brought the head of John the Baptist in a dish to the delicate daughter of Herodias. This was the custom of the country. No law, no judge, no jury. The will or caprice of the king governed all things. Happy England! know and value thy excellent privileges!

Verse 16. That he would give him time] That is, that he might seek unto God for a revelation of the thing. The Chaldeans dared not even to promise this; they would only pledge themselves for the interpretation, provided the king would furnish the dream. Daniel engages both to find the lost dream, and to give the proper interpretation.

Verse 18. That they would desire mercies] For this Daniel had requested a little time; and doubtless both he and his three companions prayed incessantly till God gave the wished for revelation; but whether it was given that same night, we do not know.

Verse 19. Then was the secret revealed—in a night vision.] Daniel either dreamed it, or it was represented to his mind by an immediate inspiration.

Verse 20. Wisdom and might are his] He knows all things, and can do all things.

Verse 21. He changeth the times] Time, duration, succession are his, and under his dominion. It is in the course of his providence that one king is put down, and another raised up; and therefore he can distinctly tell what he has purposed to do in the great empires of the earth.

Verse 23. I thank thee and praise thee] No wonder he should feel gratitude, when God by this merciful interference had saved both the life of him and his fellows; and was about to reflect the highest credit on the God of the Jews, and on the people themselves.

Verse 24. Destroy not the wise men] The decree was suspended till it should be seen whether Daniel could tell the dream, and give its interpretation.

Verse 27. Cannot the wise men] Cannot your own able men, aided by your gods, tell you the secret? This question was necessary in order that the king might see the foolishness of depending on the one, or worshipping the other.

The soothsayers] One of our old words: "The tellers of truth:" but גזרין gazerin is the name of another class of those curious artists, unless we suppose it to mean the same as the CHALDEANS, ver. 2. They are supposed to be persons who divined by numbers, amulets, &c. There are many conjectures about them, which, whatever learning they show, cast little light upon this place.

A. M. 3401. B. C. 603. Ol. XLIV. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 14.

28 [f] But there is a God in heaven that revealeth secrets, and [g] maketh known to the king Nebuchadnezzar [h] what shall be in the latter days. Thy dream, and the visions of thy head upon thy bed, are these;

29 As for thee, O king, thy thoughts [i] came into thy mind upon thy bed, what should come to pass hereafter: [k] and he that revealeth secrets maketh known unto thee what shall come to pass.

30 [l] But as for me, this secret is not revealed to me for any wisdom that I have more than any living, [m] but for their sakes that shall make known the interpretation to the king, [n] and that thou mightest know the thoughts of thy heart.

31 Thou, O king, [o] sawest, and behold a great image. This great image, whose brightness was excellent, stood before thee; and the form thereof was terrible.

32 [p] This image's head was of fine gold, his breast and his arms of silver, his belly and his [q] thighs of brass, 33 His legs of iron, his feet part of iron and part of clay.

34 Thou sawest till that a stone was cut out [r] without [s] hands, which smote the image upon his feet that were of iron and clay, and brake them to pieces.

35 Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold, broken to pieces together, and became [t] like the chaff of the summer threshing-floors; and the wind carried them away, that [u] no place was found for them: and the stone that smote the image [v] became a great mountain, [w] and filled the whole earth.

A. M. 3401. B. C. 603. Ol. XLIV. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 14.

36 This is the dream; and we will tell the interpretation thereof before the king.

37 [x] Thou, O king, art a king of kings: [y] for the God of heaven hath given thee a kingdom, power, and strength, and glory.

38 [z] And wheresoever the children of men dwell, the beasts of the field and the fowls of the heaven hath he given into thine hand, and hath made thee ruler over them all. [a] Thou art this head of gold.

39 And after thee shall arise [b] another kingdom [c] inferior to thee, and another third kingdom of brass, [d] which shall bear rule over all the earth.

40 And [e] the fourth kingdom shall be strong as iron: forasmuch as iron breaketh in pieces, and subdueth all things: and as iron that breaketh all these, shall it break in pieces and bruise.

41 And whereas thou sawest [f] the feet and toes, part of potters' clay, and part of iron,

[f] Gen. xl. 8; xli. 16; ver. 18, 47; Amos iv. 13.——[g] Chald. hath made known.——[h] Gen. xlix. 1.——[i] Chald. came up.——[k] Ver. 22, 28.——[l] So Gen. xli. 16; Acts iii. 12.——[m] Or, but for the intent that the interpretation may be made known to the king.——[n] Ver. 47.——[o] Chald. wast seeing.——[p] See ver. 38, &c.——[q] Or, sides.
[r] Or, which was not in hands; as ver. 45.

[s] Chap. viii. 25; Zech. iv. 6; 2 Cor. v. 1; Heb. ix. 24.
[t] Psa. i. 4; Hos. xiii. 3.——[u] Psa. xxxvii. 10, 36.——[v] Isa. ii. 2, 3.——[w] Psa. lxxx. 9.——[x] Ezra vii. 12; Isa. xlvii. 5; Jer. xxvii. 6, 7; Ezek. xxvi. 7; Hos. viii. 10.——[y] Ezra i. 2.——[z] Chap. iv. 21, 22; Jer. xxvii. 6.——[a] Ver. 32.——[b] Chap. v. 28, 31.
[c] Ver. 32.——[d] 1 Mac. i. 3.——[e] Chap. vii. 7, 23.——[f] Ver. 33.

Verse 28. There is a God in heaven] To distinguish him from those idols, the works of men's hands; and from the false gods in which the Chaldeans trusted.

In the latter days.] A phrase which, in the prophets, generally means the times of the Messiah. God is about to show what shall take place from this time to the latest ages of the world. And the vision most certainly contains a very extensive and consecutive prophecy; which I shall treat more largely at the close of the chapter, giving in the mean time a short exposition.

Verse 31. A great image] Representing the four great monarchies.

Verse 32. Head was of fine gold] The Babylonish empire, the first and greatest.

Breast and his arms of silver] The Medo-Persian empire, under Cyrus, &c.

His belly and his thighs of brass] The Macedonian empire, under Alexander the Great, and his successors.

Verse 33. His legs of iron] The Roman government.

His feet part of iron and part of clay.] The same, mixed with the barbaric nations, and divided into ten kingdoms. See at the end of the chapter.

Verse 34. A stone was cut out] The fifth monarchy; the spiritual kingdom of the Lord Jesus, which is to last for ever, and diffuse itself over the whole earth.

Verse 35. The stone—became a great mountain] There is the kingdom אֶבֶן eben, of the stone, and the kingdom of the mountain. See at the end of the chapter.

Verse 37. The God of heaven] Not given by thy own gods, nor acquired by thy own skill and prowess; it is a Divine gift.

Power] To rule this kingdom.

And strength] To defend it against all foes.

And glory.] Great honour and dignity.

Verse 38. Thou art this head of gold] See on ver. 31–34, and at the end.

A. M. 3401. B. C. 603. Ol. XLIV. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., 14.

the kingdom shall be divided; but there shall be in it of the strength of the iron, forasmuch as thou sawest the iron mixed with miry clay.

42 And as the toes of the feet were part of iron, and part of clay, so the kingdom shall be partly strong, and partly [g] broken.

43 And whereas thou sawest iron mixed with miry clay, they shall mingle themselves with the seed of men: but they shall not cleave [h] one to another, even as iron is not mixed with clay.

44 And in [i] the days of these kings [k] shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, [l] which shall never be destroyed: and the [m] kingdom shall not be left to other people, [n] but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever.

45 [o] Forasmuch as thou sawest that the stone was cut out of the mountain [p] without hands, and that it brake in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver, and the gold; the great God hath made known to the king what shall come to pass [q] hereafter: and the dream is certain, and the interpretation thereof sure.

A. M. 3401. B. C. 603. Ol. XLIV. 2. Anno Tarquinii Prisci R. Roman., 14.

46 [r] Then the king Nebuchadnezzar fell upon his face, and worshipped Daniel, and commanded that they should offer an oblation [s] and sweet odours unto him.

47 The king answered unto Daniel, and said, Of a truth it is, that your God is a God of gods, and a Lord of kings, [t] and a revealer of secrets, seeing thou couldest reveal this secret.

48 Then the king made Daniel a great man, [u] and gave him many great gifts, and made him ruler over the whole province of Babylon, and [v] chief of the governors over all the wise men of Babylon.

49 Then Daniel requested of the king, [w] and he set Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego over the affairs of the province of Babylon but Daniel [x] sat in the gate of the king.

[g] Or, brittle.——[h] Chald. this with this.——[i] Chald. their days. [k] Ver. 28.——[l] Chap. iv. 3, 34; vi. 26; vii. 14, 27; Mic. iv. 7; Luke i. 32, 33.——[m] Chald. kingdom thereof.——[n] Psa. ii. 9; Isa. lx. 12; 1 Cor. xv. 24.

[o] Ver. 35; Isa. xxviii. 16.——[p] Or, which was not in hand. [q] Chald. after this.——[r] See Acts x. 25; xiv. 13; xxviii. 6. [s] Ezra vi. 10.——[t] Ver. 28.——[u] Ver. 6.——[v] Chap. iv. 9; v. 11 [w] Chap. iii. 12.——[x] Esth. ii. 19, 21; iii. 2.

Verse 44. A kingdom which shall never be destroyed] The extensive and extending empire of Christ.

Shall not be left to other people] All the preceding empires have swallowed up each other successively; but this shall remain to the end of the world.

Verse 45. The dream is certain] It contains a just representation of things as they shall be.

And the interpretation thereof sure.] The parts of the dream being truly explained.

Verse 46. The king—fell upon his face] Prostrated himself: this was the fullest act of adoration among the ancients.

Worshipped Daniel] Supposing him to be a god, or Divine being. No doubt Daniel forbade him; for to receive this would have been gross idolatry.

Verse 47. Your God is a God of gods] He is greater than all others.

And a Lord of kings] He governs both in heaven and earth.

Verse 48. Made Daniel a great man] By, 1. Giving him many rich gifts. 2. By making him governor over the whole province of Babylon. And, 3. By making him the chief or president over all the wise men.

Verse 49. Daniel requested of the king, and he set Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego over the affairs of the province of Babylon] He wished his three companions promoted, who had shared his anxieties, and helped him by their prayers. They all had places of trust, in which they could do much good, and prevent much evil.

Daniel sat in the gate of the king.] That is, was the chief officer in the palace; and the greatest confidant and counsellor of the king. But whatever his influence and that of his friends was, it extended only over the province of Babylon; not through the empire.

A DISCOURSE ON NEBUCHADNEZZAR'S DREAM, chap. ii. 41–45.

I shall now consider this most important vision more at large, and connect it with a portion of the previous history of the Jewish people.

The kingdoms of Israel and Judah after a series of the most unparalleled ingratitude and rebellion, against displays of mercy and benevolence, only equalled by their rebellions, were at last, according to repeated threatenings, given over into the hands of their enemies. The inhabitants of the former country were subdued and carried away captives by the Assyrians; and those of the latter, by the Chaldeans.

The people of Israel never recovered their ancient territories; and were so disposed of by their conquerors, that they either became amalgamated with the heathen nations, so as to be utterly undistinguishable; or they were transported to some foreign and recluse place of settlement, that the land of their residence though repeatedly sought for and guessed at, has for more than two thousand years been totally unknown.

Judah, after having been harassed by the Chaldeans Egyptians, and others, was at last invaded by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon; Jerusalem besieged and taken; and Jehoiachin the king, who had before become tributary to the Babylonians, with his mother, wives, officers of state, and chief military commanders, princes, and mighty men of valour, to the amount of ten thousand; and all the artificers, smiths, &c., to the number of one thousand, with all that were fit for war, he carried captives to Babylon; leaving only the poorest of the people behind, under the government of Mattaniah, son of the late king Josiah, and uncle to Jehoiachin; and, having changed his name to Zedekiah, gave him a nominal authority as king over the wretched remains of the people. Zedekiah, after having reigned nine years, rebelled against Nebuchadnezzar, who, coming against Jerusalem with all his forces, besieged it; and having reduced it to the last extremity by famine, and made a breach in the walls, took the city, pillaged and destroyed the temple by fire, slew the sons of Zedekiah before his face, then put out his eyes, and carried him bound in brazen fetters to Babylon, 2 Kings, chap. xxiv. and xxv. Thus, the temple of GOD, the most glorious building ever laid on the face of the earth, was profaned, pillaged, and burnt, with the king's palace, and all the houses of the Jewish nobility, in the eleventh year of Zedekiah,—the nineteenth of Nebuchadnezzar,—the first of the forty-eighth Olympiad,—the one hundred and sixtieth current year of the era of Nabonassar,—four hundred and twenty-four years, three months, and eight days from the time in which Solomon laid its foundation stone!

In the same month in which the city was taken, and the temple burnt, Nebuzar-adan, commander in chief of the Babylonish forces, carried off the spoils of the temple, with the Jewish treasures, and the principal part of the residue of the people; and brought them also to Babylon. And thus Judah was carried away out of her own land, four hundred and sixty-eight years after David began to reign over it; from the division under Rehoboam, three hundred and eighty-eight years; from the destruction of the kingdom of Israel, one hundred and thirty-four years; in the year of the world, three thousand four hundred and sixteen; and before the nativity of our Lord, five hundred and eighty-eight.

In the fourth year of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, A. M. 3397, B. C. 607, Nebuchadnezzar, having besieged Jerusalem, and made its king tributary, carried away a number of captives; and among them was the Prophet Daniel, then in his youth, who became, for his wisdom, and knowledge of future events, very eminent at Babylon; and, with some other Jewish captives, great favourites of Nebuchadnezzar the king; who made Daniel president of all the wise men of his city. It was in the second year of the reign of this king, that a circumstance occurred which, though at first it threatened the destruction of the prophet, finally issued in the increase of his reputation and celebrity.

As prophecy is one of the strongest proofs of the authenticity of what professes to be a Divine revelation, God endued this man with a large portion of his Spirit, so that he clearly predicted some of the most astonishing political occurrences and changes which have ever taken place on the earth: no less than the rise, distinguishing characteristics, and termination of the FOUR great monarchies or empires, which have been so celebrated in all the histories of the world. And as the Babylonian, under which he then lived, was one of these monarchies, and was shortly to be absorbed by the Medo-Persian, which was to succeed it, he made Nebuchadnezzar, the then reigning monarch, by means of a most singular dream, the particulars of which he had forgotten, the instrument that appeared to give birth to a prediction, in which the ruin of his own empire was foretold; as well as other mighty changes which should take place in the political state of the world, for at least the term of one thousand years next ensuing. Nor did the prophetic Spirit in this eminent man limit his predictions to these; but showed at the same time the origin and nature of that FIFTH monarchy, which, under the great King of kings, should be administered and prevail to the end of time.

The dream itself, with its interpretation, and the exact and impressive manner in which the predictions relative to the four great monarchies have been fulfilled, and those which regard the fifth monarchy are in the course of being accomplished, are the subjects to which I wish to call the reader's most serious and deliberate attention.

This image, so circumstantially described from the thirty-eighth to the forty-fourth verse, was, as we learn from the prophet's general solution, intended to point out the rise and fall of four different empires and states; and the final prevalence and establishment of a fifth empire, that shall never have an end, and which shall commence in the last days, ver. 28; a phrase commonly used in the prophets to signify the times of the Messiah, and in the New Testament, his advent to judge the world.

Before we proceed to particular parts, we may remark in general, that the whole account strongly indicates:—

1. The especial providence of God in behalf of the Jews at that time. For, although suffering grievously because of their sins, being deprived of both their political and personal liberty, God shows them that he has not abandoned them; and the existence of a prophet among them is a proof of his fatherly care and unremitted attention to their eternal welfare.

2. The particular interference of God to manifest the superiority of his truth, to wean an idolatrous nation from their vanity and superstition, and lead them to that God who is the fountain of truth, the revealer of secrets, and the governor of all things.

And, 3. The direct inspiration of God immediately teaching his servant things which could be known only to God himself, and thus showing the Babylonians that his prophets had spoken by an unerring Spirit; that the Jews were the depositaries of the true religion; that HE was the only true God; and as he was omniscient, so he was omnipotent; and the things which his wisdom had predicted, his power could and would accomplish.

The sum of the account given in this chapter is the following:—

1. Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, in the second year of his reign, about A. M. 3401, and B. C. 603 had a remarkable dream, which, although it made a deep impression on his mind, yet, on his awaking, he found it impossible to recollect; the general impression only remaining.

2. He summoned his wise men, astrologers, &c., told them that he had a dream or vision, which he had forgotten; and commanded them to tell him the dream, and give its interpretation.

3. They request the king to tell them the dream; and promise, then, to make known the meaning. This he could not do, having forgotten it; yet he insists on their compliance on pain of death.

4. To tell the king his dream they find impossible; and a decree for the destruction of the wise men of Babylon is issued, in which Daniel and his fellows are included.

5. Daniel, hearing of it, speaks to Arioch, captain of the king's guard or the royal executioner; desires to be brought before the king; and promises to tell the dream, &c.

6. He is introduced; and immediately tells the king what he had dreamed, and shows him its interpretation.

THE DREAM.

A vast image, exceedingly luminous, of terrible form, and composed of different substances, appears in a night vision to the king, of which the following is the description:—

I. Its head was of fine gold.

II. Its breast and arms of silver.

III. Its belly and thighs of brass.

IV. Its legs of iron, and its feet and toes of iron and clay. While gazing on this image he sees,—

V. A stone cut out of a mountain without hands, which smites the image on its feet, and dashes it all to pieces; and the gold, and silver, brass, iron, and clay become as small and as light as chaff.

VI. A wind carries the whole away, so that no place is found for them.

VII. The stone becomes a great mountain, and fills the earth.

In order to explain this, certain DATA must be laid down.

1. This image is considered a political representation of as many different governments, as it was composed of materials; and as all these materials are successively inferior to each other, so are the governments in a descending ratio.

2. The human figure has been used, both by historians and geographers, to represent the rise, progress, establishment, and decay of empires, as well as the relative situation and importance of the different parts of the government. Thus Florus, in the proœmium to his Roman history, represents the Romans under the form of a human being, in its different stages, from infancy to old age, viz.

Si quis ergo populum Romanum quasi hominem consideret, totamque ejus ætatem perceuseat, ut CŒPERIT, utque ADOLEVERIT, ut quasi ad quemdam JUVENTÆ florem pervenerit; ut postea velut CONSENUERIT, quatuor gradus progressusque ejus inveniet.

1. Prima ætas sub Regibus fuit, prope ducentos quinquaginta per annos, quibus circum ipsam matrem suam cum finitimis luctatus est. Hæc erit ejus INFANTIA.

2. Sequens a Bruto, Collatinoque consulibus, in Appium Claudium, Quinctiumque Fulvium consules, ducentos quinquaginta annos habet, quibus Italiam subegit. Hoc fuit tempus viris armisque exercitatissimum! ideo quis ADOLESCENTIAM dixerit.

3. Dehinc ad Cæsarem Augustum, ducenti quinquaginta anni, quibus totum orbem pacavit. Hic jam ipsa JUVENTA Imperii, et quasi quædam robusta MATURITAS.

4. A Cæsare Augusto in sæculum, nostrum, sunt non multo minus anni ducenti, quibus inertia Cæsarum quasi CONSENUIT atque DECOXIT. L. An. Flori PROŒM

1. INFANCY; first stage—under KINGS, from Romulus to Tarquinius Superbus; about two hundred and fifty years.

2. YOUTH; second stage—under CONSULS, from Brutus and Collatinus to Appius Claudius and M. Fulvius; about two hundred and fifty years.

3. MANHOOD; third stage—the empire from the conquest of Italy to Cæsar Augustus; about two hundred and fifty years.

4. OLD AGE; fourth stage—from Augustus, through the twelve Cæsars, down to A. D. 200; about two hundred years.

Geographers have made similar representations. The Germanic empire, in the totality of its dependent states, has been represented by a map in the form of a man; different parts being pointed out by head, breast, arms, belly, thighs, legs, feet, &c., according to their geographical and political relation to the empire in general.

3. Different metals are used to express different degrees of political strength, excellence, durability, &c.

4. Clay, earth, dust, are emblems of weakness, instability, &c.

5. Mountains express, in Scripture, mighty empires, kingdoms, and states.

6. Stone signifies Jesus Christ, Gen. xlix. 24: "From thence" (of the posterity of Jacob) "is the Shepherd, the Stone of Israel." That our blessed Lord, "the good shepherd," John x. 11–17, is here intended, will appear most plainly from the following passages; Isa. viii. 14: "And he shall be for a sanctuary; but for a STONE of stumbling and for a ROCK of offence to both the houses of Israel." Isa. xxviii. 16: "Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation a STONE, a tried STONE, a precious corner STONE, a sure foundation; he that believeth shall not make haste." 1 Peter ii. 4, 6, 8. Collate these with Psa. cxviii. 22: "The STONE which the builders refused is become the head STONE of the corner." Matt. xxi. 42; Mark xii. 10; Luke xx. 17; Acts iv. 11; in which latter quotations the whole is positively applied to Christ; as also 1 Peter ii. 4–8: "To whom coming as unto a living STONE," &c.; who seems to have all the preceding passages in view. See also Isa. ii. 2: "The mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains," &c.

7. This stone is said to be cut out without hands, ver. 34. Without hands signifies that which is spiritual. So 2 Cor. v. 1. a house not made with hands means a spiritual building.

EXPLANATION.

The Chaldean empire, called the Assyrian in its commencement, the Chaldean from the country, the Babylonish from its chief city.

I. HEAD OF GOLD. This was the first monarchy, begun by Nimrod, A. M. 1771, B. C. 2233, and ending with the death of Belshazzar, A. M. 3466, B. C. 538, after having lasted nearly seventeen hundred years. In the time of Nebuchadnezzar it extended over Chaldea, Assyria, Arabia, Syria, and Palestine. HE, Nebuchadnezzar, was the head of gold.

II. BREASTS AND ARMS OF SILVER. The Medo-Persian empire; which properly began under Darius the Mede, allowing him to be the same with Cyaxares, son of Astyages, and uncle to Cyrus the great, son of Cambyses. He first fought under his uncle Cyaxares; defeated Neriglissar, king of the Assyrians, and Crœsus, king of the Lydians; and, by the capture of Babylon, B. C. 538, terminated the Chaldean empire. On the death of his father Cambyses, and his uncle Cyaxares, B. C. 536, he became sole governor of the Medes and Persians, and thus established a potent empire on the ruins of that of the Chaldeans.

III. BELLY AND THIGHS OF BRASS. The Macedonian or Greek empire, founded by Alexander the Great. He subdued Greece, penetrated into Asia, took Tyre, reduced Egypt, overthrew Darius Codomanus at Arbela, Oct. 2, A. M. 3673, B. C. 331, and thus terminated the Persian monarchy. He crossed the Caucasus, subdued Hyrcania, and penetrated India as far as the Ganges; and having conquered all the countries that lay between the Adriatic sea and this river, the Ganges, he died A. M. 3681, B. C. 323; and after his death his empire became divided among his generals, Cassander, Lysimachus, Ptolemy, and Seleucus. CASSANDER had Macedon and Greece; LYSIMACHUS had Thrace, and those parts of Asia which lay on the Hellespont and Bosphorus; PTOLEMY had Egypt, Lybia, Arabia, Palestine, and Cœlesyria; SELEUCUS had Babylon, Media, Susiana, Persia, Assyria, Bactria, Hyrcania, and all other provinces, even to the Ganges. Thus this empire, founded on the ruin of that of the Persians, "had rule over all the earth."

IV. LEGS OF IRON, AND FEET AND TOES OF IRON AND CLAY. I think this means, in the first place, the kingdom of the LAGIDÆ, in Egypt; and the kingdom of the SELEUCIDÆ, in Syria. And, secondly, the ROMAN empire, which was properly composed of them.

1. PTOLEMY LAGUS, one of Alexander's generals, began the new kingdom of Egypt, A. M. 3692, B. C. 312, which was continued through a long race of sovereigns, till A. M. 3974, B. C. 30; when Octavius Cæsar took Alexandria, having in the preceding year defeated Anthony and Cleopatra at the battle of Actium, and so Egypt became a Roman province. Thus ended the kingdom of the Lagidæ, after it had lasted two hundred and eighty-two years.

2. SELEUCUS NICATOR, another of Alexander's generals, began the new kingdom of Syria, A. M. 3692, B. C. 312, which continued through a long race of sovereigns, till A. M. 3939, B. C. 65, when Pompey dethroned Antiochus Asiaticus, and Syria became a Roman province after it had lasted two hundred and forty-seven years.

That the two legs of iron meant the kingdom of the Lagidæ and that of the Seleucidæ, seems strongly intimated by the characters given in the text. "And the fourth kingdom shall be strong as iron. Forasmuch as iron breaketh in pieces and subdueth all things; and as iron that breaketh all these, shall it break in pieces and bruise," ver. 40. 1. The iron here not only marks the strength of these kingdoms, but also their violence and cruelty towards the people of God. History is full of the miseries which the kings of Egypt and Syria inflicted on the Jews. 2. It is said that these legs should break in pieces and bruise. How many generals and princes were destroyed by Seleucus Nicator, and by Ptolemy, son of Lagus! Seleucus, particularly, could not consider himself secure on his throne till he had destroyed Antigonus, Nicanor, and Demetrius; and Ptolemy endeavoured to secure himself by the ruin of Perdiccas, and the rest of his enemies. 3. The dividing of the kingdom, the iron and clayey mixture of the feet, point out the continual divisions which prevailed in those empires; and the mixture of the good and evil qualities which appeared in the successors of Seleucus and Ptolemy; none of them possessing the good qualities of the founders of those monarchies; neither their valour, wisdom, nor prudence. 4. The efforts which these princes made to strengthen their respective governments by alliances, which all proved not only useless but injurious, are here pointed out by their mingling themselves with the seed of men. "But they shall not cleave one to another," ver. 43. Antiochus Theos, king of Syria, married both Laodice and Berenice, daughters of Ptolemy Philadelphus, king of Egypt. Antiochus Magnus, king of Syria, gave his daughter Cleopatra to Ptolemy Epiphanes, king of Egypt; but these marriages, instead of being the means of consolidating the union between those kingdoms, contributed more than any thing else to divide them, and excite the most bloody and destructive wars.

In chap. vii. 7, the prophet, having the same subject in view, says, "I saw in the night visions, and behold a fourth beast, dreadful and terrible, and strong exceedingly; and it had great iron teeth: it devoured and brake in pieces, and stamped the residue with the feet of it;" and in chap. viii. 22: "Now that being broken," the horn of the rough goat, the Grecian monarchy, "whereas four stood up for it, four kingdoms shall stand up out of the nation, but not in his power." These and other declarations point out those peculiar circumstances that distinctly mark the kingdom of the Seleucidæ, and that of the Lagidæ; both of which rose out of the Macedonian or Grecian empire, and both terminated in that of the Romans.

2. These TWO LEGS OF IRON became absorbed in the Roman government, which also partook of the iron nature; strong, military, and extensive in its victories; and by its various conquests united to and amalgamated with itself various nations, some strong, and some weak, so as to be fitly represented in the symbolical image by feet and toes, partly of iron and partly of clay. Thus, as the Lagidæ and Seleucidæ arose out of the wreck of the Grecian empire; so the Roman empire arose out of their ruin. But the empire became weakened by its conquests; and although, by mingling themselves with the seed of men, that is, by strong leagues, and matrimonial alliances, as mentioned above, they endeavoured to secure a perpetual sovereignty, yet they did not cleave to each other, and they also were swallowed up by the barbarous northern nations; and thus terminated those four most powerful monarchies.

V. "A stone cut out of the mountain without hands."

1. That Jesus Christ has been represented by a stone, we have already seen; but this stone refers chiefly to his Church, which is represented as a spiritual building, which he supports as a foundation stone, connects and strengthens as a corner stone, and finishes and adorns as a top stone. He is called a stone also in reference to the prejudice conceived against him by his countrymen. Because he did not come in worldly pomp they therefore refused to receive him; and to them he is represented as a stone of stumbling, and rock of offence.

2. But here he is represented under another notion, viz., that of a stone projected from a catapult, or some military engine, which smote the image on its feet; that is, it smote the then existing government at its foundation, or principles of support; and by destroying these, brought the whole into ruin.

3. By this stroke the clay, the iron, the brass, the silver, and the gold were broken to pieces, and became like chaff which the wind carried away. Now we have already seen that the Roman empire, which had absorbed the kingdoms of the Lagidæ and Seleucidæ, was represented by the legs of iron, and feet and toes of iron and clay; but as we find that not only the iron and clay, but also the brass, silver, and gold were confounded and destroyed by that stroke, it follows that there was then remaining in and compacted with the Roman government, something of the distinguishing marks and principles of all the preceding empires; not only as to their territorial possessions, but also as to their distinctive characteristics. There were at the time here referred to in the Roman empire, the splendour of the CHALDEANS, the riches of the PERSIANS, the discipline of the GREEKS, and the strength of the EGYPTIAN and SYRIAN governments, mingled with the incoherence and imbecility of those empires, kingdoms, and states which the Romans had subdued. In short, with every political excellence, it contains the principles of its own destruction, and its persecution of the Church of Christ accelerated its ruin.

4. As the stone represents Christ and his governing influence, it is here said to be a kingdom, that is, a state of prevailing rule and government; and was to arise in the days of those kings or kingdoms, ver. 44. And this is literally true; for its rise was when the Roman government, partaking of all the characteristics of the preceding empires, was at its zenith of imperial splendour, military glory, legislative authority, and literary eminence. It took place a few years after the battle of Actium, and when Rome was at peace with the whole world, September 2, B. C. 31.

5. This stone or government was cut out of the mountain, arose in and under the Roman government, Judea being, at the time of the birth of Christ, a Roman province.

6. It was cut out without hands; probably alluding to the miraculous birth of our Lord, but particularly to the spiritual nature of his kingdom and government, in which no worldly policy, human maxims, or military force were employed; for it was not by might nor power, but by the Spirit of the Lord of hosts.

Two things may be here distinguished: 1. The government or kingdom of the STONE. 2. The government or kingdom of the MOUNTAIN.

1. The kingdom of the STONE smites, breaks to pieces, and destroys all the other kingdoms, till no vestige of them remains, and till the whole earth is subdued by it.

2. The kingdom of the MOUNTAIN fills, and continues to govern, all that has been thus subdued, maintaining endless peace and righteousness in the earth.

First, The stone began to strike the image, when the apostles went out into every part of the Roman empire, pulling down idolatry, and founding Christian Churches.

Secondly, But the great blow was given to the heathen Roman empire by the conversion of Constantine, just at the time when it was an epitome of the four great monarchies, being under the government of FOUR EMPERORS at once, A. D. 308: CONSTANTIUS, who governed Gaul, Spain, and Britain; GALERIUS, who had Illyricum, Thrace, and Asia; SEVERUS, who had Italy and Africa; and MAXIMIN, who had the East and Egypt.

1. The conversion of Constantine took place while he was in Gaul, A. D. 312, by the appearance of a luminous cross in the sky above the sun, a little after noon-day, with this inscription, Εν τουτῳ νικα, "By this conquer;" Euseb. De Vit. Const. lib. i. cap. 28. In A. D. 324 he totally defeated Licinius, who had shared the empire with him, and became sole emperor. He terminated the reign of idolatry in A. D. 331, by an edict ordering the destruction of all the heathen temples. This made CHRISTIANITY the religion of the empire.

2. The stroke which thus destroyed idolatry in the Roman empire is continual in its effects; and must be so till idolatry be destroyed over the face of the earth, and the universe filled with the knowledge of Christ.

3. This smiting has been continued by all the means which God in his providence and mercy has used for the dissemination of Christianity, from the time of Constantine to the present: and particularly now, by means of the British and Foreign Bible Society, and its countless ramifications, and by the numerous missionaries sent by Christian societies to almost every part of the globe. Thus far the kingdom of the stone.

In ver. 44, the kingdom of the stone, grown into a great mountain and filling the whole earth, is particularly described by various characters.

1. It is a kingdom which the God of heaven sets up. That this means the whole dispensation of the Gospel, and the moral effects produced by it in the souls of men and in the world, needs little proof; for our Lord, referring to this and other prophecies in this book, calls its influence and his Gospel the kingdom of God, and the kingdom of heaven; showing thereby that it is a kingdom not of this world—not raised by human ambition, the lust of rule, or military conquest; but a spiritual kingdom, raised and maintained by the grace of God himself, in which he himself lives and rules, governing by his own laws, influencing and directing by his own Spirit; producing, not wars and contentions, but glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace and good will among men.

2. This is called the kingdom of heaven, because it is to be a counterpart of the kingdom of glory. The kingdom of God, says the apostle, is righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost, (Rom. xiv. 17;) righteousness, without any sin; peace, without inward disturbance; joy, without any mental unhappiness. An eternity of righteousness, peace, and spiritual joy constitutes HEAVEN; nor can we conceive in that state any thing higher or more excellent than these.

3. This kingdom shall never be destroyed: it is the everlasting Gospel, and the work of the everlasting GOD. As it neither originates in nor is dependent on the passions of men, it cannot be destroyed. All other governments, from the imperfection of their nature, contain in them the seeds of their own destruction. Kings die, ministers change, subjects are not permanent; new relations arise, and with them new measures, new passions, and new projects; and these produce political changes, and often political ruin. But this government, being the government of GOD, cannot be affected by the changes and chances to which mortal things are exposed.

4. This kingdom shall not be left to other people. Every dispensation of God, prior to Christianity, supposed another by which it was to be succeeded. 1. Holy patriarchs and their families were the first people among whom the kingdom of God was found. 2. Hebrews, in Egypt and in the wilderness, were the next. 3. Jews, in the promised land, were a third denomination. 4. And after the division of the kingdoms, captivity, and dispersion of the Jews, the Israel of God became a fourth denomination. 5. Under the Gospel, CHRISTIAN is the name of the people of this kingdom. Every thing in the construction of the Gospel system, as well as its own declarations, shows that it is not to be succeeded by any other dispensation: its name can never be changed; and CHRISTIAN will be the only denomination of the people of God while sun and moon endure. All former empires have changed, and the very names of the people have changed with them. The Assyrians were lost in the Chaldeans and Babylonians; the Babylonians were lost in the Medes; the Medes in the Persians; the Persians in the Greeks; and the Greeks in the Syrians and Egyptians; these in the Romans; and the Romans in the Goths, and a variety of other nations. Nor does the name of those ancient governments, nor the people who lived under them, remain on the face of the earth in the present day! They are only found in the page of history. This spiritual kingdom shall never be transferred, and the name of its subjects shall never be changed.

5. It shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms; that is, the preaching and influence of Christianity shall destroy idolatry universally. They did so in the Roman empire, which was the epitome of all the rest. But this was not done by the sword, nor by any secular influence. Christians wage no wars for the propagation of Christianity; for the religion of Christ breathes nothing but love to God, and peace and good will to all mankind. The sum of the Gospel is contained in these words of Christ: "God so loved the world that he gave his only-begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life;—for the Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save."

For his own cause, God fights in the course of his providence. He depresses one, and exalts another; but permits not his own people to join with him in the infliction of judgments. It is by his own Spirit and energy that his kingdom is propagated and maintained in the world; and by the same his enemies are confounded. All false religions, as well as falsified and corrupted systems of Christianity, have had recourse to the sword, because they were conscious they had NO GOD, no influence but what was merely human.

6. The kingdom of Christ breaks in pieces and consumes all other kingdoms; that is, it destroys every thing in every earthly government where it is received, that is opposed to the glory of God and the peace and happiness of men, and yet in such a way as to leave all political governments unchanged. No law or principle in Christianity is directed against the political code of any country. Britain is Christian without the alteration of her Magna Charta or her constitution. All the other empires, kingdoms, and states on the face of the earth, may become Christian and preserve their characteristic forms of political government. If there be in them any thing hostile to Christianity, and the peace and happiness of the subject, the WIND of God—the Divine Spirit, will fan or winnow it away, so that no more place shall be found for it. But this he will do in the way of his ordinary providence; and by his influence on their hearts, dispose truly Christianized rulers to alter or abrogate whatever their laws contain inimical to the mild sway of the sceptre of Christ.

7. And it shall stand for ever. This is its final characteristic. It shall prevail over the whole world; it shall pervade every government; it shall be the basis of every code of laws; it shall be professed by every people of the earth: "The Gentiles shall come to its light, and kings to the brightness of its rising." The whole earth shall be subdued by its influence, and the whole earth filled with its glory.

8. The actual constitution, establishment, and maintenance of this kingdom belong to the LORD; yet he will use human means in the whole administration of his government. His WORD must be distributed, and that word must be PREACHED. Hence, under God, BIBLES and MISSIONARIES are the grand means to be employed in things concerning his kingdom. BIBLES must be printed, sent out, and dispersed; MISSIONARIES, called of God to the work, and filled with the Divine Spirit, must be equipped, sent out, and maintained; therefore expenses must necessarily be incurred. Here the people now of the kingdom must be helpers. It is the duty, therefore, of every soul professing Christianity to lend a helping hand to send forth the Bible; and wherever the Bible is sent, to send a missionary, full of faith and of the Holy Ghost, to enforce its truths.

9. The duration of the kingdom of the mountain upon earth. The world has now lasted nearly six thousand years, and a very ancient tradition has predicted its termination at the close of that period. Its duration has been divided into three grand periods, each comprising two thousand years, which should be closed by a period without terminating limits; and these have been supposed to have their types in the six days' work of the creation, and the seventh day, called Sabbath or rest.

1. There have been two thousand years from the creation without any written revelation from God; this was called the patriarchal dispensation.

2. There have been two thousand years under the law, where there has been a written revelation, a succession of prophets, and a Divine ecclesiastical establishment. This has been termed the Mosaic dispensation.

3. One thousand eight hundred and twenty-nine years have passed since the true epoch of the nativity of our blessed Lord; and this is called the Gospel or Christian dispensation, which is now within one hundred and seventy-one years of closing its two thousand!

According to the ancient tradition there were, 1. Two thousand years void; that is, without the law. 2. Two thousand years under the law. And, 3. Two thousand years under the Messiah. And at the termination of the third the endless Sabbath should commence. The comments on this ancient tradition go on to state, that at the termination of each day's work of the creation it was said, The evening and the morning were the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, and sixth day; but when the Sabbath is introduced, and God is said to rest from his work, and to have hallowed this day, there is no mention of the evening and the morning being the seventh day. That is left without termination; and therefore a proper type of the eternal Sabbath, that rest which remains for the people of God.

And are we indeed so near that time when the elements of all things shall be dissolved by fervent heat; when the heavens shall be shrivelled up like a scroll, and the earth and all it contains be burned up? Is the fifth empire, the kingdom of the stone and the kingdom of the mountain, so near its termination! Are all vision and prophecy about to be sealed up, and the whole earth to be illuminated with the bright beams of the Sun of righteousness? Are the finally incorrigible and impenitent about to be swept off the face of the earth by the besom of destruction, while the righteous shall be able to lift up their heads with ineffable joy, knowing their final redemption is at hand! Are we so near the eve of that period when "they who turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars for ever and ever!" What sort of persons should we then be in all holy conversation and godliness! Where is our zeal for God! Where the sounding of our bowels over the perishing nations who have not yet come under the yoke of the Gospel! Multitudes of whom are not under the yoke, because they have never heard of it; and they have not heard of it, because those who enjoy the blessings of the Gospel of Jesus have not felt (or have not obeyed the feeling) the imperious duty of dividing their heavenly bread with those who are famishing with hunger, and giving the water of life to those who are dying of thirst. How shall they appear in that great day when the conquests of the Lion of the tribe of Judah are ended; when the mediatorial kingdom is delivered up unto the Father, and the Judge of quick and dead sits on the great white throne, and to those on his left hand says, "I was hungry, and ye gave me no meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink." I say, How shall they appear who have made no exertions to tell the lost nations of the earth the necessity for preparing to meet their God; and showing them the means of doing it, by affording them the blessings of the Gospel of the grace of God! Let us beware lest the stone that struck the motley image, and dashed it to pieces, fall on us, and grind us to powder.

Bibles are sent out by millions into heathen countries; but how shall they hear without a preacher; and how shall they understand the things which they read, unless those who know the things of God teach them! Let us haste, then, and send missionaries after the Bibles. God is mightily at work in the earth: let us be workers together with him, that we receive not the grace of God in vain. He that giveth to those poor (emphatically POOR, for they are without God in the world, and consequently without the true riches) lendeth unto the Lord; and let him look what he layeth out, and it shall be paid unto him again. For "he that converteth a sinner from the error of his ways shall save a soul from death, and hide a multitude of sins." God does not call on us to shake hands with all secular, social, and family comfort, and bid farewell to the whole; and go to the heathen with the glad tidings of great joy: but he loudly calls on us to assist in sending those who, in the true spirit of sacrifice, the love of Christ constraining them, say, "Here are we! O Lord, send us." Let these servants of God run to and fro; that by their ministry knowledge may be increased. Amen.

CHAPTER III.

Nebuchadnezzar, having erected an image, whose height (including probably a very high pedestal) was sixty cubits, and the breadth six, ordered a numerous assembly, which he had convened, to fall down and worship it; threatening, at the same time, that whosoever refused should be cast into a fiery furnace, 1–7; a punishment not uncommon in that country, (see Jer. xxix. 22.) Daniel's three companions, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, who were present, being observed to refrain from this idolatrous worship, were accused before the king; who, in great wrath, commanded them to comply with his orders on pain of death, 8–15. But these holy men, with the greatest composure and serenity, expressed their firm resolution not to worship his gods or his images, whatever might be the consequence, 16–18. Upon which the king, unaccustomed to have his will opposed, in the height of his wrath, ordered the furnace to be made seven times hotter than usual, and these men to be cast into it, bound by the most mighty of his army, who were killed by the flame in the execution of this service, 19–23. On this occasion God literally performed his promise by Isaiah, (chap. xliii. 2 :) "When thou walkest through the fire, thou shalt not be burnt; neither shall the flame kindle upon thee;" for an angel of God, appearing in the furnace, protected these young men, and counteracted the natural violence of the fire; which, only consuming the cords with which they were bound, left them to walk at liberty, and in perfect safety, in the midst of the furnace. The king, astonished at this prodigy, called to them to come out of the furnace, and blessed God for sending an angel to deliver his servants; and commanded all his subjects, upon pain of death, not to speak irreverently of the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, who were promoted to great power and honour, 24–30. A striking example of the interposition of Providence in favour of true and inflexible piety.

A. M. cir. 3424. B. C. cir. 580. Ol. cir. L. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 37.

NEBUCHADNEZZAR the king made [a] an image of gold, whose height was threescore cubits, and the breadth thereof six cubits: he set it up in the plain of Dura, in the [b] province of Babylon.

2 Then Nebuchadnezzar the king sent to gather together the princes, the governors, and the captains, the judges, the treasurers, the counsellors, the sheriffs, and all the rulers of the provinces, to come to the dedication of the image which Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up.

A. M. cir. 3424. B. C. cir. 580. Ol. cir. L. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 37.

[a] Ver. 5, 7, 10, 12, 14.

[b] Chap. ii. 48.

NOTES ON CHAP. III.

Verse 1. Nebuchadnezzar the king made an image of gold] It is supposed that the history given here did not occur till the close, or near the end, of Nebuchadnezzar's reign. For it was after his insanity, as we see chap. iv. 33–36, and this happened near the close of his reign. The authorized version, which is followed in the margin, fixes the date of this event seventeen years earlier, and ten years before the king's insanity. A few observations on this image may be necessary :—

1. It is not likely that this image was in human form—the dimensions show the improbability of this; for what proportion is there between sixty cubits (ninety feet) in length, and six cubits (nine feet) in breadth?

2. It is not likely that this image was all of gold; for this would have required more of this precious metal than the whole province of Babylon could produce; for as I suppose the sixty cubits apply to the perpendicular altitude, so I take it for granted that the six cubits intend the diameter. Now a column of gold of this height in diameter, upon the supposition that the pillar was circular, contains five thousand seven hundred and twenty-five and a half cubic feet; and as there are nineteen thousand avoirdupois ounces in a cubic foot, the weight of the whole pillar would be eight millions two hundred and sixty-two thousand eight hundred and six pounds ten ounces of gold.

3. It might have been a pillar on which an image of the god Bel was erected. The image itself might be of gold, or more probably gilt, that is, covered with thin plates of gold, and on this account it might be called the golden image; and most probably the height of the image may be confounded with the height of the pillar. Or perhaps it was no more than a pillar, on the sides of which their gods and sacred emblems were engraven, surmounted with Bel on the top.

The plain of Dura] The situation of this place is not exactly known; there was a town or city called Dura, or Doura, in Mesopotamia, near the Tigris.

Verse 2. Sent to gather together the princes] It is not easy to show what these different offices were, as it is difficult to ascertain the meaning of the Chaldee words. Parkhurst analyzes them thus :—

The PRINCES] אחשדרפניא achashdarpenaiya, from אחש achash, great or eminent, and דר dar, "to go about freely," and פנים panim, "the presence." Satraps or privy counsellors who had free access to the presence of the king.

The GOVERNORS] סגניא signaiya, lieutenants or viceroys, for סגן sagan, among the Hebrews, was the name of the high priest's deputy.

The CAPTAINS] פחותא pachavatha, from פח pach, to extend, because set over those provinces that had been annexed to the kingdom by conquest. Pashas—This word and office are still in use in Asiatic countries. By corruption we pronounce bashaw.

The JUDGES] אדרגזריא adargazeraiya, from אדר adar, noble or magnificent, and גזר gazar, to decree. The nobles, the assistants to the king in making laws, statutes, &c. The same probably in Babylon, as the House of Lords in England.

The TREASURERS] גדבריא gedaberaiya, from גנז ganaz, (the ז zain being changed into ד daleth, according to the custom of the Chaldee,) to treasure up, and בר bar, pure. Those who kept the current coin, or were over the mint; the treasurers of the exchequer in Babylon.

The COUNSELLORS] דתבריא dethaberaiya, from דת dath, a statute, and בר bar, "to declare the meaning of the law:" for in all ages and countries there has been what is termed the glorious uncertainty of the law; and therefore there must be a class of men whose business it is to explain it. What a pity that law cannot be tendered to the people as other sciences are, in plain, unsophisticated, and intelligible terms, and by persons whose business it is to show what is just and right, and not pervert truth, righteousness, and judgment.

The SHERIFFS] תפתיא tiphtaye, from תפת taphath, in Hebrew, שפת shaphath, "to set in order." Probably civil magistrates.

And all the rulers of the provinces] All other state

A. M. cir. 3424. B. C. cir. 580. Ol. cir. L. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 37.

3 Then the princes, the governors, and captains, the judges, the treasurers, the counsellors, the sheriffs, and all the rulers of the provinces, were gathered together unto the dedication of the image that Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up; and they stood before the image that Nebuchadnezzar had set up.

4 Then a herald cried [c] aloud, To you [d] it is commanded, [e] O people, nations, and languages,

5 That at what time ye hear the sound of the cornet, flute, harp, sackbut, psaltery, [f] dulcimer, [g] and all kinds of music, ye fall down and worship the golden image that Nebuchadnezzar the king hath set up:

6 And whoso falleth not down and worshippeth shall the same hour [h] be cast into the midst of a burning fiery furnace.

7 Therefore at that time, when all the people heard the sound of the cornet, flute, harp, sackbut, psaltery, and all kinds of music, all the people, the nations, and the languages, fell down and worshipped the golden image that Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up.

8 Wherefore at that time certain Chaldeans [i] came near, and accused the Jews.

A. M. cir. 3424. B. C. cir. 580. Ol. cir. L. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 37.

9 They spake and said to the king Nebuchadnezzar, [k] O king, live for ever.

10 Thou, O king, hast made a decree, that every man that shall hear the sound of the cornet, flute, harp, sackbut, psaltery, and dulcimer, and all kinds of music, shall fall down and worship the golden image:

11 And whoso falleth not down and worshippeth, that he should be cast into the midst of a burning fiery furnace.

12 [l] There are certain Jews whom thou hast set over the affairs of the province of Babylon, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego; these men, O king, [m] have not regarded thee: they serve not thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up.

13 Then Nebuchadnezzar in his rage and fury commanded to bring Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego. Then they brought these men before the king.

14 Nebuchadnezzar spake and said unto

[c] Chald. with might.——[d] Chald. they command.——[e] Chap. iv. 1; vi. 25.——[f] Or, singing.——[g] Chald. symphony.——[h] Jer. xxix. 22; Rev. xiii. 15.

[i] Chap. vi. 12.——[k] Chap. ii. 4; v. 10; vi. 6, 21.——[l] Chap. ii. 49.——[m] Chald. have set no regard upon thee.

or civil officers, not only to grace the solemnity, but to maintain order. My old Bible renders them: Satrapijs, or wyse men. Magistratis. Jugis. Duykis, Tyrauntis, or stronge men. Prefectis, and alle the Princes of Countreese.

Verse 4. Then a herald cried aloud] כרוזא קרא בחיל caroza kara bechayil, "a crier called with might." A bedel cried mightili.—Old MS. Bible.

Verse 5. The sound of the CORNET] There is not less difficulty in ascertaining the precise meaning of these musical instruments than there is in the offices in ver. 2. קרנא karna, here translated cornet, is the common blowing horn, which makes a deep and hollow sound, as well as one shrill and piercing.

FLUTE] משרוקיתא mashrokitha, from שרק sharak, to whistle, shriek. A wind instrument which made a strong and shrill noise, such as the hautbois or clarionet.

HARP] קיתרס kithros, cytharus; κιθαρα. Some kind of stringed instrument. It seems to be formed from the Greek word.

SACKBUT] סבכא sabbecha. The Greek has it σαμβυκη, from which our word sackbut, from סבך sabach, to interweave; probably on account of the number of chords, for it seems to have been a species of harp.

PSALTERY] פסנתרין pesanterin; Greek, ψαλτηριον. A stringed instrument, struck with a plectrum; that called santeer in Egypt is probably the same. Dr. Russel says: "It is a large triangle, and has two bottoms two inches from each other, with about twenty catguts of different sizes." It was the ancient psalterium, and most probably the same as David's harp.

DULCIMER] כיתפניה sumponeyah; Greek, συμφωνια. Probably a kind of tamboor, tambourine, or tomtom drum. It does not mean the same as the Greek symphonia, which signifies a concert or harmony of many instruments, for here one kind of instrument only is intended.

All kinds of music] כל זני זמרא col zency zemara, the whole stock, or band, of music; the preceding being the chief, the most common, and the most sonorous. My old MS. Bible has, Trumpe, and Pipe, and Harpe: Sambuke, Santrie, and Symfonye, and al kynde of musykes.

Verse 6. Shall the same hour] This is the first place in the Old Testament where we find the division of time into hours. The Greeks say that Anaximander was the inventor. He had it probably from the Chaldeans, among whom this division was in use long before Anaximander was born.

Be cast into the midst of a burning fiery furnace.] This was an ancient mode of punishment among the Chaldeans, if we may credit the tradition that Abram was cast into such a fire by this idolatrous people because he would not worship their idols.

Verse 8. Accused the Jews.] That is, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego. The other Jews were left unnoticed; and probably at this time Daniel was too them, Is it [n] true, O Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, do not ye serve my gods, nor worship the golden image which I have set up?

A. M. cir. 3424. B. C. cir. 580. Ol. cir. L. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 37.

15 Now if ye be ready that at what time ye hear the sound of the cornet, flute, harp, sackbut, psaltery, and dulcimer, and all kinds of music, ye fall down and worship the image which I have made; [o] well: but if ye worship not, ye shall be cast the same hour into the midst of a burning fiery furnace: [p] and who is that God that shall deliver you out of my hands?

16 Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, answered and said to the king, O Nebuchadnezzar, [q] we are not careful to answer thee in this matter.

17 If it be so, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he will deliver us out of thine hand, O king.

18 [r] But if not, be it known unto thee, O king, that we will not serve thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up.

A. M. cir. 3424. B. C. cir. 580. Ol. cir. L. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 37.

19 Then was Nebuchadnezzar [s] full of fury, and the form of his visage was changed against Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego: therefore he spake, and commanded that they should heat the furnace one seven times more than it was wont to be heated.

20 And he commanded the [t] most mighty men that were in his army to bind Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, and to cast them into the burning fiery furnace.

21 Then these men were bound in their [u] coats, their hosen, and their [v] hats, and their other garments, and were cast into the midst of the burning fiery furnace.

22 Therefore because the king's [w] command ment was urgent, and the furnace exceeding hot, the [x] flame of the fire slew those men that took up Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego.

23 And these three men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, fell down bound into the midst of the burning fiery furnace.

[n] Or, of purpose, as Exod. xxi. 13.——[o] As Exod. xxxii. 32; Luke xiii. 9.——[p] Exod. v. 2; 2 Kings xviii. 35.——[q] Matt. x. 19.

[r] 2 Mac. vii. 2.——[s] Chald. filled.——[t] Chald. mighty of strength.
[u] Or, mantles.——[v] Or, turbans.——[w] Chald. word.——[x] Or, sparks high to be touched; but we may rest assured that he was not found among these idolaters, see ver. 12.

Verse 16. We are not careful] We have no need to put thee to any farther trouble; we have made up our minds on this subject, and have our answer ready: Be it known unto thee, WE WILL NOT SERVE THY GODS. This was as honest as it was decisive.

Verse 17. If it be so] Thou mayest cast us into the furnace; the terror of it has no effect on our minds to induce us to alter the resolution we have taken, nor shall the fire change our purpose. We serve a God who is able to deliver us. Should he not, we are equally determined; but we are satisfied that in some way or other he will deliver us out of thy hand. Thy power cannot affect us in the kingdom of our God to which we shall ascend from thy furnace, should he permit the fire to kindle upon us. "Render to Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's," is a maxim of Jesus Christ; but when Cæsar arrogates to himself the things that are the Lord's, then, and in such cases, his authority is to be resisted. God does not desire Cæsar's things; Cæsar must not have the things of God.

Verse 19. Then was Nebuchadnezzar full of fury] How strange is this, after having had so many proofs of the supremacy of Jehovah! He had seen how God poured contempt upon his authority in the case of the three Hebrews, and yet he will try his strength once more! How infatuated is man!

Seven times more] As hot as it could be made. Seven expresses the great intensity of the heat.

Verse 20. The most mighty men] The generals, or chief officers of his army; not strong men; there was no need of such.

Verse 21. Their hats] This word, hat, is found only in this place in the Old Testament. The word סרבל sarbal properly means an outer garment. Herodotus, who lived about one hundred years after Daniel, says, "the dress of the Babylonians consisted of a tunic of linen reaching down to the feet; over this a tunic of woollen; and over all a white short cloak or mantle, χλανιδιον; and on their heads they wore turbans, μιτρησι." Following this, Mr. Parkhurst translates the verse thus: "Then these three men were bound [בכרבליהון besarbaleyhon] in their CLOAKS, [פטישיהון patesheyhon] their TURBANS, [וכרבלתהון vecharbelathehon] and in their UPPER (woollen) TUNICS, [ולבושיהון ulebushehon] and their UNDER (linen) TUNICS." And as, according to this interpretation, their סרבלי sarbaley were their outermost garments, we see the propriety with which it is observed at ver. 27 that these were not changed by the fire.

Verse 23. And these three men—fell down bound] There is a most evident want of connexion between this and the following verse; and it is between these verses that the apocryphal Song of the Three Children, as it is called, has been inserted by St. Jerome and others; but with this note: Quæ sequuntur in Hebræis voluminibus non reperi; "What follows I have not found in the Hebrew books." And then begins, "They walked in the midst of the flame, praising God, and blessing the Lord." The Septuagint and Arabic read the twenty-fourth verse thus: "Then Nebuchad-

A. M. cir. 3424. B. C. cir. 580. Ol. cir. I. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 37.

24 Then Nebuchadnezzar the king was astonied, and rose up in haste, and spake, and said unto his [y] counsellors, Did not we cast three men bound into the midst of the fire? They answered and said unto the king, True, O king.

25 He answered and said, Lo, I see four men loose, [z] walking in the midst of the fire, and [a] they have no hurt; and the form of the fourth is like [b] the Son of God.

26 Then Nebuchadnezzar came near to the [c] mouth of the burning fiery furnace, and spake, and said, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, ye servants of the most high God, come forth, and come hither. Then Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, came forth of the midst of the fire.

27 And the princes, governors, and captains, and the king's counsellors, being gathered together, saw these men, [d] upon whose bodies the fire had no power, nor was a hair of their head singed, neither were their coats changed, nor the smell of fire had passed on them.

A. M. cir. 3424. B. C. cir. 580 Ol. cir. I. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 37.

28 Then Nebuchadnezzar spake, and said, Blessed be the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, who hath sent his angel, and delivered his servants that [e] trusted in him, and have changed the king's word, and yielded their bodies, that they might not serve nor worship any god, except their own God.

29 [f] Therefore [g] I make a decree, That every people, nation, and language, which speak [h] any thing amiss against the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, shall be [i] cut [k] in pieces, and their houses shall be made a dunghill: [l] because there is no other god that can deliver after this sort.

30 Then the king [m] promoted Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, in the province of Babylon.

[y] Or, governors.——[z] Isa. xliii. 2.——[a] Chald. there is no hurt in them.——[b] Job i. 6; xxxviii. 7; Psa. xxxiv. 7; ver. 28.——[c] Chald. door.——[d] Heb. xi. 34.——[e] Psa. xxxiv. 7, 8; Jer. xvii. 7; chap. vi. 22, 23.——[f] Chap. vi. 26.——[g] Chald. a decree is made by me. [h] Chald. error.——[i] Chap. ii. 5.——[k] Chald. made pieces.——[l] Ch. vi. 27.——[m] Chald. made to prosper.

nezzar heard them singing praise, and was astonished." To connect the two verses Houbigant adds two verses found in the Vulgate, which are the forty-ninth and the twenty-third: "But an angel of the Lord went down with Azariah and his companions into the furnace, and drove out the flame of fire from the furnace; and they walked in the midst of the furnace." This verse (the forty-ninth) has been added to show the reason of Nebuchadnezzar's astonishment, and also to account for the appearance of a fourth person in the furnace, as in ver. 25.

Verse 25. Is like the Son of God.] A most improper translation. What notion could this idolatrous king have of the Lord Jesus Christ? for so the place is understood by thousands. בר אלהין bar elahin signifies a son of the gods, that is, a Divine person or angel; and so the king calls him in ver. 28: "God hath sent his ANGEL, and delivered his servants." And though even from this some still contend that it was the Angel of the covenant, yet the Babylonish king knew just as much of the one as he did of the other. No other ministration was necessary; a single angel from heaven was quite sufficient to answer this purpose, as that which stopped the mouths of the lions when Daniel was cast into their den.

Verse 27. Upon whose bodies the fire had no power] The heathens boasted that their priests could walk on burning coals unhurt; and Virgil mentions this of the priests of Apollo of Soracte:—

Summe Deum, sancti custos Soractis Apollo!
Quem primi colimus, cui pineus ardor acervo
Pascitur; et medium, freti pietate, per ignem
Cultores multa premimus vestigia pruna.
VIRG. Æn. xi. 785.

O Phœbus, guardian of Soracte's woods
And shady hills; a god above the gods;
To whom our natives pay the rites divine,
And burn whole crackling groves of hallowed pine;
Walk through the fire in honour of thy name,
Unhurt, unsinged, and sacred from the flame.
PITTS.

But Varro tells us that they anointed the soles of their feet with a species of unguent that preserved them from being burnt. Very lately a female showed many feats of this kind, putting red hot iron upon her arms, breasts, &c., and passing it over her hair without the slightest inconvenience; but in the case of the three Hebrews all was supernatural, and the king and his officers well knew it.

Verse 28. Blessed be the God of Shadrach, &c.] Here is a noble testimony from a heathen. And what produced it? The intrepidly pious conduct of these three noble Jews. Had they been time-servers, the name of the true God had not been known in Babylon. What honour does the Lord put on them that are steadfast in the faith!

Verse 29. Speak any thing amiss] Though by the decree the king does not oblige the people to worship the true God, yet he obliges them to treat him with reverence.

Verse 30. Then the king promoted, &c.] He restored them to the offices which they held before the charge of disobedience and treason was brought against them.

At the end of this verse the Septuagint add, "And he advanced them to be governors over all the Jews that were in his kingdom." This may be the meaning of the latter verse. They were more likely to be set over the Jews than over the Chaldeans.

CHAPTER IV.

Nebuchadnezzar, after having subdued all the neighbouring countries, and greatly enriched and adorned his own, became so intoxicated with his prosperity, as to draw down upon himself a very remarkable judgment, of which this chapter gives a particular account, in the very words of the edict or proclamation which the Babylonish monarch issued on his restoration to the throne. This state document begins with Nebuchadnezzar's acknowledging the hand of God in his late malady, 1–3. It then gives an account of the dream of Nebuchadnezzar, which portended the loss of his kingdom and reason for seven years, on account of his pride and arrogance, 4–18. So it was explained by Daniel, 19–27, and so it was verified by the event, 28–33. It then recites how, at the end of the period fixed by the God of heaven for the duration of his malady, the Chaldean monarch became sensible of his dependence on the Supreme Being, and lifted up his eyes to heaven in devout acknowledgment of the sovereign majesty of the King of kings, the Ruler of the earth, whose dominion alone is universal, unchangeable, and everlasting, 34–37.

A. M. cir. 3434. B. C. cir. 570. Ol. cir. LII. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 9.

NEBUCHADNEZZAR the king, [a] unto all people, nations, and languages, that dwell in all the earth; Peace be multiplied unto you.

2 [b] I thought it good to show the signs and wonders [c] that the high God hath wrought toward me.

3 [d] How great are his signs! and how mighty are his wonders! his kingdom is [e] an everlasting kingdom, and his dominion is from generation to generation.

4 I Nebuchadnezzar was at rest in mine house, and flourishing in my palace:

5 I saw a dream which made me afraid, [f] and the thoughts upon my bed and the visions of my head [g] troubled me.

6 Therefore made I a decree to bring in all the wise men of Babylon before me, that they might make known unto me the interpretation of the dream.

7 [h] Then came in the magicians, the astrologers, the Chaldeans, and the soothsayers: and I told the dream before them; but they did not make known unto me the interpretation thereof.

A. M. cir. 3434. B. C. cir. 570. Ol. cir. LII. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 9.

8 But at the last Daniel came in before me, [i] whose name was Belteshazzar, according to the name of my god, [k] and in whom is the spirit of the holy gods: and before him I told the dream, saying,

9 O Belteshazzar, [l] master of the magicians, because I know that the spirit of the holy gods is in thee, and no secret troubleth thee, tell me the visions of my dream that I have seen, and the interpretation thereof.

10 Thus were the visions of mine head in my bed; [m] I saw, and behold [n] a tree in the midst of the earth, and the height thereof was great.

11 The tree grew, and was strong, and the height thereof reached unto heaven, and the sight thereof to the end of all the earth:

[a] Chap. iii. 4; vi. 25.——[b] Chald. It was seemly before me. [c] Chap. iii. 26.——[d] Chap. vi. 27.——[e] Ver. 34; chap. ii. 44; vi. 26.——[f] Chap. ii. 28, 29.——[g] Chap. ii. 1.

[h] Chap. ii. 2.——[i] Chap. i. 7.——[k] Isa. lxiii. 11; ver. 18; chap. ii. 11; v. 11, 14.——[l] Chap. ii. 48; v. 11.——[m] Chald. I was seeing.——[n] Ezek. xxxi. 3, &c.; ver. 20.

NOTES ON CHAP. IV.

Verse 1. Nebuchadnezzar the king, unto all people] This is a regular decree, and is one of the most ancient on record; and no doubt was copied from the state papers of Babylon. Daniel has preserved it in the original language.

Verse 2. I thought it good to show] A part of the decree was a recital of the wonders wrought by the hand of the true God in his kingdom and on his person.

Verse 3. How great are his signs!] There are no preternatural signs like his! His wonders—miraculous interferences, are mighty—they surpass all human power. He is the Sovereign of all kings, and his dominion is everlasting; and every generation is a proof of his all-governing influence. These are very fine sentiments, and show how deeply his mind was impressed with the majesty of God.

Verse 4. I—was at rest] I had returned to my palace in Babylon after having subdued Syria, Phœnicia, Judea, Egypt, and Arabia. It was probably these great conquests that puffed him up with pride, and brought that chastisement upon him which he afterwards describes. See the dream of the emblematical tree explained.

Verse 5. I saw a dream] See this dream circumstantially explained in the following verses.

Verse 10. I saw—a tree] This vision Nebuchadnezzar says made him afraid. What a mercy it is that God has hidden futurity from us! Were he to show every man the lot that is before him, the misery of the human race would be complete.

Great men and princes are often represented, in the language of the prophets, under the similitude of trees; see Ezek. xvii. 5, 6; xxxi. 3, &c.; Jer. xxii. 15; Psa. i. 3; xxxvii. 35.

A. M. cir. 3434. B. C. cir. 570. Ol. cir. LII. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 9.

12 The leaves thereof were fair, and the fruit thereof much, and in it was meat for all: [o] the beasts of the field had shadow under it, and the fowls of the heaven dwelt in the boughs thereof, and all flesh was fed of it.

13 I saw in the visions of my head upon my bed, and, behold, [p] a watcher and [q] a holy one came down from heaven;

14 He cried [r] aloud, and said thus, [s] Hew down the tree, and cut off his branches, shake off his leaves, and scatter his fruit: [t] let the beasts get away from under it, and the fowls from his branches.

15 Nevertheless leave the stump of his roots in the earth, even with a band of iron and brass, in the tender grass of the field; and let it be wet with the dew of heaven, and let his portion be with the beasts in the grass of the earth:

16 Let his heart be changed from man's, and let a beast's heart be given unto him; and let seven [u] times pass over him.

17 This matter is by the decree of the watchers, and the demand by the word of the holy ones: to the intent [v] that the living may know [w] that the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will, and setteth up over it the basest of men.

A. M. cir. 3434. B. C. cir. 570. Ol. cir. LII. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 9.

18 This dream I king Nebuchadnezzar have seen. Now thou, O Belteshazzar, declare the interpretation thereof, [x] forasmuch as all the wise men of my kingdom are not able to make known unto me the interpretation: but thou art able; [y] for the spirit of the holy gods is in thee.

19 Then Daniel, [z] whose name was Belteshazzar, was astonied for one hour, and his thoughts troubled him. The king spake, and said, Belteshazzar, let not the dream, or the interpretation thereof, trouble thee. Belteshazzar answered and said, My lord, [a] the dream be to them that hate thee, and the interpretation thereof to thine enemies.

20 [b] The tree that thou sawest, which grew, and was strong, whose height reached unto the heaven, and the sight thereof to all the earth;

21 Whose leaves were fair, and the fruit thereof much, and in it was meat for all; under which the beasts of the field dwelt,

[o] Ezek. xvii. 23; xxxi. 6; see Lam. iv. 20.——[p] Psa. ciii. 20; ver. 17, 23.——[q] Deut. xxxiii. 2; chap. viii. 13; Zech. xiv. 5; Jude 14.——[r] Chald. with might.——[s] Matt. iii. 10.——[t] Ezek. xxxi. 12.

[u] Chap. xi. 13; xii. 7.——[v] Psa. ix. 16.——[w] Chap. ii. 21; v. 21; ver. 25, 32.——[x] Gen. xli. 8, 15; chap. v. 8, 15.——[y] Ver. 8. [z] Ver. 8.——[a] See 2 Sam. xviii. 32; Jer. xxix. 7.——[b] Ver. 10, 11, 12.

Verse 13. A watcher and a holy one] These are both angels; but, according to the Chaldean oracles, of different orders. They appear, according to their opinions, to be a kind of judges of human actions who had the power of determining the lot of men; see ver. 17.

Verse 14. Hew down the tree] As the tree was to be cut down, the beasts are commanded to flee away from under his branches. His courtiers, officers, &c., all abandoned him as soon as his insanity appeared; but he soon fled from the society of men.

Verse 15. Leave the stump] Let him not be destroyed, nor his kingdom alienated.

Verse 16. Let his heart be changed] Let him conceive himself to be a beast, and act as such, herding among the beasts of the field.

Let seven times pass over him.] Let him continue in this state for seven years. I knew a man who was thus changed in his heart—in his imagination. He believed himself to be a bear, and would imitate the ursal growl, &c.; and the case did not appear to be hypochondriacal. Whether he ever came to sound mind, I know not.

Verse 17. This matter is by the decree of the watchers] See on ver. 13.

The Most High ruleth] He never leaves the government of the world to man, to second causes, or to fortuitous occurrences. What are thus called are his agents; they are no moving causes.

And setteth up—the basest of men.]

"Tyrants and kings from Jove proceed;
Those are permitted, these decreed."

The throne ennobles no man: to be properly filled, the man must be noble. Some of the greatest and some of the meanest of men have sat on the throne. Kings differ in education, seldom in intellect, from the common mass of men; the power and authority are from God. The king himself may be given either in mercy or in wrath. When James II. ruled this kingdom, it might well be said, God hath set up over it the basest of men. His successor was one of the best. The former nearly ruined it both in a civil and religious point of view; the latter was the means of restoring it in both these respects.

Verse 19. Daniel—was astonied for one hour] He saw the design of the dream, and he felt the great delicacy of interpreting it. He was not puzzled by the difficulties of it. He felt for the king, and for the nation; and with what force and delicacy does he express the general portent; "The dream to them that hate thee, and the interpretation thereof to thine enemies!"

Verse 20. The tree that thou sawest] The dream is so fully interpreted in the following verses that it needs no comment.

A. M. cir. 3434. B. C. cir. 570. Ol. cir. LII. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 9.

and upon whose branches the fowls of the heaven had their habitation:

22 [c] It is thou, O king, that art grown and become strong: for thy greatness is grown, and reacheth unto heaven, [d] and thy dominion to the end of the earth.

23 [e] And whereas the king saw a watcher and a holy one coming down from heaven, and saying, Hew the tree down, and destroy it; yet leave the stump of the roots thereof in the earth, even with a band of iron and brass, in the tender grass of the field; and let it be wet with the dew of heaven, [f] and let his portion be with the beasts of the field, till seven times pass over him;

24 This is the interpretation, O king, and this is the decree of the Most High, which is come upon my lord the king:

25 That they shall [g] drive thee from men, and thy dwelling shall be with the beasts of the field, and they shall make thee [h] to eat grass as oxen, and they shall wet thee with the dew of heaven, and seven times shall pass over thee, [i] till thou know that the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and [k] giveth it to whomsoever he will.

26 And whereas they commanded to leave the stump of the tree roots; thy kingdom shall be sure unto thee, after that thou shalt have known that the [l] heavens do rule.

27 Wherefore, O king, let my counsel be acceptable unto thee, and [m] break off thy sins by righteousness, and thine iniquities by showing mercy to the poor; [n] if it may be [o] a [p] lengthening of thy tranquillity.

28 All this came upon the king Nebuchadnezzar. A. M. cir. 3434. B. C. cir. 570. Ol. cir. LII. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 9.

29 At the end of twelve months he walked [q] in the palace of the kingdom of Babylon.

30 The king [r] spake, and said, Is not this great Babylon, that I have built for the house of the kingdom by the might of my power, and for the honour of my majesty?

31 [s] While the word was in the king's mouth, there fell [t] a voice from heaven, saying, O king Nebuchadnezzar, to thee it is spoken; The kingdom is departed from thee.

32 And [u] they shall drive thee from men, and thy dwelling shall be with the beasts of the field: they shall make thee to eat grass as oxen, and seven times shall pass over thee, until thou know that the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will.

33 The same hour was the thing fulfilled upon Nebuchadnezzar: and he was driven from men, and did eat grass as oxen, and his body was wet with the dew of heaven, till his hairs were grown like eagles' feathers, and his nails like birds' claws.

34 And [v] at the end of the days I Nebuchadnezzar lifted up mine eyes unto heaven, and mine understanding returned unto me, A. M. cir. 3441. B. C. cir. 563. Ol. LIV. 2. Servii Tullii, R. Roman, cir. annum 16.

and I blessed the Most High, and I praised and honoured him [w] that liveth for ever, whose dominion is [x] an everlasting dominion, and his kingdom is from generation to generation:

35 And [y] all the inhabitants of the earth are reputed as nothing: and [z] he doeth according

[c] Chap. ii. 38.——[d] Jer. xxvii. 6, 7, 8.——[e] Ver. 13.——[f] Chap. v. 21.——[g] Ver. 32; chap. v. 21, &c.——[h] Psa. cvi. 20.——[i] Ver. 17, 32; Psa. lxxxiii. 18.——[k] Jer. xxvii. 5.——[l] Matt. xxi. 25; Luke xv. 18, 21.——[m] 1 Pet. iv. 8.——[n] Psa. xli. 1, &c.——[o] Or, a healing of thine error.

[p] 1 Kings xxi. 29.——[q] Or, upon.——[r] Prov. xvi. 18; chap. v. 20.——[s] Chap. v. 5; Luke xii. 20.——[t] Ver. 24.——[u] Ver. 25.——[v] Ver. 26.——[w] Chap. xii. 7; Rev. iv. 10.——[x] Psa. x. 16; chap. ii. 44; vii. 14; Mic. iv. 7; Luke i. 33.——[y] Isa. xl. 15, 17.——[z] Psa. cxv. 3; cxxxv. 6.

Verse 26. Thy kingdom shall be sure unto thee] No new king was set up; Evil-merodach his son was regent during his father's insanity.

Verse 27. Break off thy sins by righteousness] Do justice. Thou hast been an oppressive man; show mercy to the poor, many of whom have been made such by thyself: witness the whole nation of the Jews. He was to cease from his sins—repent, and bring forth fruits meet for repentance, in order that he might find mercy at the hand of God.

Verse 30. Is not this great Babylon] Here his heart was inflated with pride; he attributed every thing to himself, and acknowledged God in nothing. The walls, hanging gardens, temple of Bel, and the royal palace, all built by Nebuchadnezzar, made it the greatest city in the world.

Verse 31. While the word was in the king's mouth] How awful to a victorious and proud king: "Thy kingdom is departed from thee!" All thy goods and gods are gone in a moment!

Verse 32. They shall make thee, &c.] Thou shalt be made to eat grass as oxen. The madness that fell upon him induced him to forsake society, and to run to the woods and deserts, where he lived like a wild beast, his hairs growing long and thick, so as to be a substitute for clothing; and his nails strong and hooked, that he might the better climb trees and grub up the ground, in order to get roots and earth-nuts. It was to his will in the army of heaven, and among the inhabitants of the earth: and [a] none can stay his hand, or say unto him, [b] What doest thou?

A. M. cir. 3441. B. C. cir. 563. Ol. LIV. 2. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 16.

36 At the same time my reason returned unto me; [c] and for the glory of my kingdom, mine honour and brightness returned unto me; and my counsellors and my lords sought unto me; and I was established in my kingdom, and excellent majesty was [d] added unto me.

A. M. cir. 3441 B. C. cir. 563. Ol. LIV. 2. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 16.

37 Now I Nebuchadnezzar praise and extol and honour the king of heaven, [e] all whose works are truth, and his ways judgment [f] and those that walk in pride he is able to abase.

[a] Job xxxiv. 29.——[b] Job ix. 12; Isa. xlv. 9; Rom. ii. 20.——[c] Ver. 26.——[d] Job xlii. 12; Prov. xxii. 4; Matt. vi. 33.

[e] Psa. xxxiii. 4; Rev. xv. 3; xvi. 7.——[f] Exod. xviii. 11; chap. v. 20.

the mercy of God that thus clothed and accoutred him. His case seems much like that of the maniac in the Gospel, whose dwelling was among the tombs and in the mountains, and who shunned the society of men.

Verse 36. My reason returned] Every thing was fulfilled that was exhibited by the dream and its interpretation. It is very likely that this unfortunate king had so concealed himself that the place of his retreat was not found out; and the providence of God had so watched over every thing, that, on his return to his palace, he found his counsellors and his lords, who received him gladly, and cleaved to and served him as they had formerly done.

Verse 37. Now I—praise and extol] It is very probable that Nebuchadnezzar was a true convert; that he relapsed no more into idolatry, and died in the faith of the God of Israel. It is supposed that he lived seventeen years after his restoration. But the authorized Version, which is followed in the margin, states the date of this decree to be B. C. 563, the year preceding Nebuchadnezzar's death.

CHAPTER V.

In the commencement of this chapter we are informed how Belshazzar, the grandson of Nebuchadnezzar, when rioting in his palace, and profaning the sacred vessels of the temple, 1–4, was suddenly terrified with the appearance of the fingers of a man's hand, which wrote a few words on the wall before him, 5, 6. The wise men and astrologers were immediately called in to show the king the interpretation; but they could not so much as read the writing, because (as Houbigant and others have conjectured) though the words are in the Chaldee tongue, yet they were written in the Samaritan or ancient Hebrew characters, with which the wise men of Babylon were very probably unacquainted, as the Jews were at that time a despised people, and the knowledge of their language not a fashionable attainment, 7–9. Daniel, who had been so highly esteemed by Nebuchadnezzar for his superior wisdom, appears to have been altogether unknown to Belshazzar, till the queen (the same who had been the wife of Nebuchadnezzar according to the general opinion, or the queen consort according to others) had informed him, 10–12. Upon the queen's recommendation, Daniel is called in, 13–16; who boldly tells this despotic king, that as he had not benefited by the judgments inflicted on his grandfather, but gave himself up to pride and profanity, and had added to his other sins an utter contempt for the God of the Jews by drinking wine out of the sacred vessels of Jehovah in honour of his idols, 17–23; the Supreme Being, the Ruler of heaven and earth, had written his condemnation in three words, MENE, TEKEL, PERES, 24, 25; the first of which is repeated in the copies containing the Chaldean original; but all the ancient Versions, except the Syriac, are without this repetition. Daniel then gives the king and his lords the fearful import of the writing, viz., that the period allotted for the duration of the Chaldean empire was now completed, (see Jer. xxv. 12–14,) and that the kingdom was about to be transferred to the Medes and Persians, 26–28. However unwelcome such an interpretation must have been to Belshazzar, yet the monarch, overwhelmed with its clearness and certainty, commanded the prophet to be honoured, 29. And that very night the prediction was fulfilled, for the king was slain, 30, and the city taken by the Medes and Persians, 31. This great event was also predicted by Isaiah and Jeremiah; and the manner in which it was accomplished is recorded by Herodotus and Xenophon.

A. M. cir. 3466. B. C. cir. 538. Ol. cir. LX. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 41.

BELSHAZZAR the king [a] made a great feast to a thousand of his lords, and drank wine before the thousand.

A. M. cir. 3466. B. C. cir. 538. Ol. cir. LX. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 41.

2 Belshazzar, whiles he tasted

[a] Esther, chap. i. 3.

NOTES ON CHAP. V.

Verse 1. Belshazzar the king made a great feast] This chapter is out of its place, and should come in after the seventh and eighth. There are difficulties in the chronology. After the death of Nebuchadnezzar, Evil-merodach his son ascended the throne of Baby-

A. M. cir. 3466. B. C. cir. 538. Ol. cir. LX. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 41.

the wine, commanded to bring the [b] golden and silver vessels [c] which his [d] father Nebuchadnezzar had [e] taken out of the temple which was in Jerusalem; that the king, and his princes, his wives, and his concubines, might drink therein.

3 Then they brought the golden vessels that were taken out of the temple of the house of God which was at Jerusalem; and the king, and his princes, his wives, and his concubines, drank in them.

4 They drank wine, [f] and praised the gods of gold, and of silver, of brass, of iron, of wood, and of stone.

5 [g] In the same hour came forth fingers of a man's hand, and wrote over against the candlestick upon the plaster of the wall of the king's palace: and the king saw the part of the hand that wrote.

A. M. cir. 3466 B. C. cir. 538. Ol. cir. LX. 3. Servii Tulli R. Roman., cir. annum 41.

6 Then the king's [h] countenance [i] was changed, and his thoughts troubled him, so that the [k] joints [l] of his loins were loosed, and his [m] knees smote one against another.

7 [n] The king cried [o] aloud to bring in [p] the astrologers, the Chaldeans, and the soothsayers. And the king spake, and said to the wise men of Babylon, Whosoever shall read this writing, and show me the interpretation

[b] 1 Chron. xxviii. 17; Ezra vi. 5; ver. 3, 23.——[c] Chap. i. 2; Jer. lii. 19.——[d] Or, grandfather; as Jer. xxvii. 7; 2 Sam. ix. 7; 2 Chron. xv. 16; ver. 11, 13.——[e] Chald. brought forth.——[f] Rev. ix. 20.——[g] Chap. iv. 31.

[h] Chald. brightnesses; ver. 9.——[i] Chald. changed it.——[k] Or, girdles; Isa. v. 27.——[l] Chald. bindings, or knots.——[m] Nah. ii. 10.——[n] Chap. ii. 2; iv. 6.——[o] Chald. with might.——[p] Isa. xlvii. 13.

lon. Having reigned about two years, he was slain by his brother-in-law, Neriglissar. He reigned four years, and was succeeded by his son Laborosoarchod, who reigned only nine months. At his death Belshazzar, the son of Evil-merodach, was raised to the throne, and reigned seventeen years, and was slain, as we read here, by Cyrus, who surprised and took the city on the night of this festivity. This is the chronology on which Archbishop Usher, and other learned chronologists, agree; but the Scripture mentions only Nebuchadnezzar, Evil-merodach, and Belshazzar, by name; and Jeremiah, chap. xxvii. 7. expressly says, "All nations shall serve him (Nebuchadnezzar,) and his son (Evil-merodach,) and his son's son (Belshazzar,) until the very time of his land come;" i. e., till the time in which the empire should be seized by Cyrus. Here there is no mention of Neriglissar nor Laborosoarchod; but as they were usurpers, they might have been purposely passed by. But there remains one difficulty still: Belshazzar is expressly called the son of Nebuchadnezzar by the queen mother, ver. 11: "There is a man in thy kingdom, in whom is the spirit of the holy gods: and in the days of THY FATHER light and understanding and wisdom, like the wisdom of the gods, was found in him: whom the king NEBUCHADNEZZAR THY FATHER, the king, I say, thy father, made master of the magicians." The solution of this difficulty is, that in Scripture the name of son is indifferently given to sons and grandsons, and even to great grandsons. And perhaps the repetition in the above verse may imply this: "The king, Nebuchadnezzar thy father, the king thy father." The king thy father's father, and consequently thy grandfather. If it have not some such meaning as this, it must be considered an idle repetition. As to the two other kings, Neriglissar and Laborosoarchod, mentioned by Josephus and Berosus, and by whom the chronology is so much puzzled, they might have been some petty kings, or viceroys, or satraps, who affected the kingdom, and produced disturbances, one for four years, and the other for nine months; and would in consequence not be acknowledged in the Babylonish chronology, nor by the sacred writers, any more than finally unsuccessful rebels are numbered among the kings of those nations which they have disturbed. I believe the only sovereigns we can acknowledge here are the following: 1. Nabopolassar; 2. Nebuchadnezzar; 3. Evil-merodach; 4. Belshazzar; and with this last the Chaldean empire ended.

To a thousand of his lords] Perhaps this means lords or satraps, that were each over one thousand men. But we learn from antiquity that the Persian kings were very profuse in their entertainments; but it does not follow that the Chaldeans were so too. Besides, one thousand lords and their appropriate attendants would have been very inconvenient in a nocturnal assembly. The text, however, supports the common translation. Literally, "Belshazzar the king made bread for his lords a thousand; and against the thousand he drank wine." That is, say some, he was a very great drinker.

Verse 2. Whiles he tasted the wine] He relished it, got heated by it, and when WINE got fully in, WIT went wholly out; and in consequence he acted the profane part of which we immediately read.

Verse 4. And praised the gods of gold] They had gods of all sorts, and of all metals; with wooden gods, and stone gods, beside!

Verse 5. Fingers of a man's hand] The fingers were collected about the style or pen as in the act of writing.

Verse 6. The king's countenance was changed] Here is a very natural description of fear and terror. 1. The face grows pale; 2. The mind becomes greatly agitated; 3. Pains seize on the lower part of the back and kidneys; 4. A universal tremor takes place, so that the knees smite against each other; 5. And lastly, either a syncope takes place, or the cry of distress is uttered, ver. 7: "The king cried."

Verse 7. Whosoever shall read this writing] He knew it must be some awful portent, and wished to know what.

A. M. cir. 3466. B. C. cir. 538. Ol. cir. LX. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 41.

thereof, shall be clothed with [q] scarlet, and have a chain of gold about his neck, [r] and shall be the third ruler in the kingdom.

8 Then came in all the king's wise men: [s] but they could not read the writing, nor make known to the king the interpretation thereof.

9 Then was king Belshazzar greatly [t] troubled, and his [u] countenance was changed in him, and his lords were astonied.

10 Now the queen by reason of the words of the king and his lords came into the banquet house: and the queen spake and said, [v] O king, live for ever: let not thy thoughts trouble thee, nor let thy countenance be changed:

11 [w] There is a man in thy kingdom, in whom is the spirit of the holy gods; and in the days of thy [x] father light and understanding and wisdom, like the wisdom of the gods, was found in him; whom the king Nebuchadnezzar thy [y] father, the king, I say, thy father, made [z] master of the magicians, astrologers, Chaldeans, and soothsayers;

12 [a] Forasmuch as an excellent spirit, and knowledge, and understanding, [b] interpreting of dreams, and showing of hard sentences, and [c] dissolving of [d] doubts, were found in the same Daniel, [e] whom the king named Belteshazzar: now let Daniel be called, and he will show the interpretation.

13 Then was Daniel brought in before the king. And the king spake and said unto Daniel, Art thou that Daniel, which art of the children of the captivity of Judah, whom the king my [f] father brought out of Jewry?

A. M. cir. 3466 B. C. cir. 538. Ol. cir. LX. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 41.

14 I have even heard of thee, that [g] the spirit of the gods is in thee, and that light and understanding and excellent wisdom is found in thee.

15 And now [h] the wise men, the astrologers, have been brought in before me, that they should read this writing, and make known unto me the interpretation thereof: but they could not show the interpretation of the thing:

16 And I have heard of thee, that thou canst [i] make interpretations, and dissolve doubts [k] now if thou canst read the writing, and make known to me the interpretation thereof, thou shalt be clothed with scarlet, and have a chain of gold about thy neck, and shalt be the third ruler in the kingdom.

17 Then Daniel answered and said before the king, Let thy gifts be to thyself, and give thy [l] rewards to another; yet I will read the writing unto the king, and make known to him the interpretation.

18 O thou king, [m] the most high God gave Nebuchadnezzar thy father a kingdom, and majesty, and glory, and honour:

19 And for the majesty that he gave him, [n] all people, nations, and languages, trembled and feared before him: whom he would he slew; and whom he would he kept alive; and whom he would he set up; and whom he would he put down.

20 [o] But when his heart was lifted up, and his mind hardened [p] in pride, he was [q] deposed

[q] Or, purple.——[r] Chap. vi. 2.——[s] Chap. ii. 27; iv. 7.——[t] Ch. ii. 1.——[u] Chald. brightnesses; ver. 6.——[v] Chap. ii. 4; iii. 9. [w] Chap. ii. 48; iv. 8, 9, 18.——[x] Or, grandfather; ver. 2.——[y] Or, grandfather; ver. 2.——[z] Chap. iv. 9.——[a] Chap. vi. 3.——[b] Or, of an interpreter, &c.——[c] Or, of a dissolver.

[d] Chald. knots.——[e] Chap. i. 7.——[f] Or, grandfather.——[g] Ver. 11, 12.——[h] Ver. 7, 8.——[i] Chald. interpret.——[k] Ver. 7.——[l] Or, fee, as chap. ii. 6.——[m] Chap. ii. 37, 38; iv. 17, 22, 25.——[n] Jer. xxvii. 7; chap. iii. 4.——[o] Chap. iv. 30, 37.——[p] Or, to deal proudly; Exod. xviii. 11.——[q] Chald. made to come down.

Verse 8. They could not read the writing] Because it was in the pure Hebrew, not the Chaldean, character. See below.

Verse 10. The queen—came] This is generally allowed to have been the widow of Nebuchadnezzar; if so, she was the queen Amiyt, daughter of Astyages, sister of Darius the Mede, and aunt of Cyrus, according to Polyhistor, cited by Cedrenus. See Calmet. Others think that Nitoeris was the person who is said to be queen when Cyrus took the city; and is stated to have been a lady of eminent wisdom and discretion, and to have had the chief direction of the public affairs. She was the mother of Labynithus; and, if this be the same as Belshazzar, she must be the person here introduced.

Verse 11. Nebuchadnezzar thy father] See the note on ver. 1.

Verse 16. Dissolve doubts] Untie knots—unbind what is bound. An expression used in the east to signify a judge of eminent wisdom and skill.

Verse 17. Let thy gifts be to thyself] They could be of little use to any, as the city was in a few hours to be taken and pillaged.

Verse 18. Nebuchadnezzar thy father.] Or grandfather, as the margin reads, ver. 2. See the notes on ver. 1.

Verse 19. Whom he would he slew] The genuine character of a despot, whose will is the only rule of his conduct.

Verse 20. He was deposed from his kingly throne]

A. M. cir. 3466. B. C. cir. 538. Ol. cir. LX. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 41.

from his kingly throne, and they took his glory from him:

21 And he was [r] driven from the sons of men; and [s] his heart was made like the beasts, and his dwelling was with the wild asses: they fed him with grass like oxen, and his body was wet with the dew of heaven; [t] till he knew that the most high God ruled in the kingdom of men, and that he appointeth over it whomsoever he will.

22 And thou his son, O Belshazzar, [u] hast not humbled thine heart, though thou knewest all this;

23 [v] But hast lifted up thyself against the Lord of heaven; and they have brought the vessels of his house before thee, and thou, and thy lords, thy wives, and thy concubines, have drunk wine in them; and thou hast praised the gods of silver, and gold, of brass, iron, wood, and stone, [w] which see not, nor hear, nor know: and the God in whose hand thy breath is, [x] and whose are all thy ways, hast thou not glorified:

24 Then was the part of the hand sent from him; and this writing was written.

A. M. cir. 3466 B. C. cir. 538. Ol. cir. LX. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 41.

25 And this is the writing that was written, MENE, MENE, TEKEL, UPHARSIN.

26 This is the interpretation of the thing: MENE; God hath numbered thy kingdom, and finished it.

27 TEKEL; [y] Thou art weighed in the balances, and art found wanting.

28 PERES; Thy kingdom is divided, and given to the [z] Medes and [a] Persians.

29 Then commanded Belshazzar, and they clothed Daniel with scarlet, and put a chain of gold about his neck, and made a proclamation concerning him, [b] that he should be the third ruler in the kingdom.

30 [c] In that night was Belshazzar the king of the Chaldeans slain.

31 [d] And Darius the Median took the kingdom, [e] being [f] about threescore and two years old.

[r] Chap. iv. 32, &c.——[s] Or, he made his heart equal, &c. [t] Ch. iv. 17, 25.——[u] 2 Chron. xxxiii. 23; xxxvi. 12.——[v] Ver. 3, 4. [w] Psa. cxv. 5, 6.——[x] Jer. x. 23.——[y] Job xxxi. 6; Psa. lxii. 9; Jer. vi. 30.——[z] Foretold, Isa. xxi. 2; ver. 31; chap. ix. 1.——[a] Ch. vi. 28.——[b] Ver. 7.——[c] Jer. li. 31, 39, 57.——[d] Chap. vi. 1, 6, 9, 25, 28; ix. 1, 2; xi. 1.——[e] Chald. he as the son of, &c.——[f] Or, now.

Became insane; and the reins of government were taken out of his hands.

Verse 22. Hast not humbled thine heart] These judgments and mercies have had no good effect upon thee.

Verse 23. But hast lifted up thyself against the Lord] And the highest evidence of this rebellion was, the profaning the sacred vessels of the Lord's house.

Verse 24. Then was the part of the hand sent] This was the filling up of the cup of thy iniquity; this last act made thee ripe for destruction.

Verse 25. And this is the writing] Had the words been written in the Chaldean character, every wise man there, every one that could read the alphabet of his own language, could have read and interpreted them. Let it be observed,—1. That the character which we now call Hebrew is the Chaldean character. 2. That the true Hebrew character is that which we call the Samaritan. 3. Daniel could easily read this, for it was the character used by the Jews previously to the Babylonish captivity. 4. It appears that it was simply on account of the strangeness of the character that the Chaldeans could not read it.

I shall set down the words in both characters, by which the least learned reader may see that it was quite possible that one might be well known, while the other might be unintelligible.

Hebrew.

מנא מנא תקל ופרסין

Samaritan.

In ancient times, no doubt, these letters differed more from each other than they appear to do now; for we know that the Samaritan on ancient coins, though radically the same, differs very much from that now used in printing.

It should be observed, that each word stands for a short sentence; מנא mene signifies NUMERATION; תקל tekel, WEIGHING; and פרס peres, DIVISION. And so the Arabic translates them. مقيس mokeeson, measured; موزون mcwzonon, weighed; مقسوم mokesoomon, divided. All the ancient Versions, except the Syriac, read the words simply Mene, Tekel, Phares, as they are explained in the following verses; without the repetition of Mene, and without the conjunction ו vau, and plural termination, ין in, in Peres.

Verse 29. Clothed Daniel with scarlet] ארגונא argevana, more probably with purple. The gold chain about the neck was an emblem of magisterial authority. It is often thus mentioned in Scripture.

Verse 30. In that night was Belshazzar—slain.] Xenophon says, he was despatched by two lords, Gadatas and Gobrias, who went over to Cyrus, to avenge themselves of certain wrongs which Belshazzar had done them. We have already seen that Cyrus entered the city by the bed of the Euphrates, which he had emptied, by cutting a channel for the waters, and directing them into the marshy country.

Verse 31. Darius the Median took the kingdom] This is supposed to be the same as Cyaxares, son of Astyages and maternal uncle of Cyrus, to whom he gave the throne of Babylon, after himself had had the honour of taking the city.

Daniel speaks nothing of the war that raged between the Babylonians and the Medes; but Isaiah speaks particularly of it, chap. xiii., xiv., xlv., xlvi., xlvii.; and so does Jeremiah, chap. l., li. I need not add, that it is largely spoken of by profane authors. The Medes and Persians were confederates in the war; the former under Darius, the latter under Cyrus. Both princes are supposed to have been present at the tak ing of this city. Mandane, daughter of Astyages was mother of Cyrus, and sister to Cyaxares

CHAPTER VI.

Darius the Median, who succeeded Belshazzar in the kingdom of Babylon, having heard of Daniel's extraordinary wisdom and understanding, constitutes him the chief of the three presidents who were over the whole empire, and purposed also to make him prime minister or viceroy, 1–3. This great partiality of the king towards a stranger of Jewish extraction, and who had been carried captive into Chaldea, raised up a great many enemies to Daniel; and a scheme was even contrived by the presidents and princes to ruin him, 4–15; which succeeded so far that he was cast into a den of lions, but was miraculously delivered, 16–23. Darius, who was greatly displeased with himself for having been entrapped by the governors of the provinces to the prejudice of his faithful minister, is pleased and astonished at this deliverance; punished Daniel's enemies with the same kind of death which they had designed for the prophet; and made a decree that, throughout his dominions, the God of Daniel should be had in the greatest veneration, 24–38.

A. M. cir. 3466. B. C. cir. 538. Ol. cir. LX. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 41.

IT pleased Darius to set [a] over the kingdom a hundred and twenty princes, which should be over the whole kingdom;

2 And over these three presidents; of whom Daniel was first: that the princes might give accounts unto them, and the king should have no damage.

3 Then this Daniel was preferred above the presidents and princes, [b] because an excellent spirit was in him; and the king thought to set him over the whole realm.

A. M. cir. 3467. B. C. cir. 537. Ol. cir. LX. 4. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 42.

4 [c] Then the presidents and princes sought to find occasion against Daniel concerning the kingdom; but they could find none occasion nor fault; forasmuch as he was faithful, neither was there any error or fault found in him.

5 Then said these men, We shall not find any occasion against this Daniel, except we find it against him concerning the law of his God.

6 Then these presidents and princes [d] assembled together to the king, and said thus unto him, [e] King Darius, live for ever.

7 All the presidents of the kingdom, the governors, and the princes, the counsellors, and the captains, have consulted together to establish a royal statute, and to make a firm [f] decree, that whosoever shall ask a petition of any god or man for thirty days, save of thee, O king, he shall be cast into the den of lions.

8 Now, O king, establish the decree, and [a] Esth. i. 1. — [b] Chap. v. 12. — [c] Eccles. iv. 4. — [d] Or, came tumultuously. — [e] Nehemiah ii. 3; verse 21; chapter ii. 4. — [f] Or, interdict.

NOTES ON CHAP. VI.

Verse 1. A hundred and twenty princes] A chief or satrap over every province which belonged to the Medo-Persian empire. Afterwards we find it enlarged to one hundred and twenty-seven provinces, by the victories of Cambyses and Darius Hystaspes. See Esth. i. 1. Josephus reckons three hundred and sixty satrapies or lordships; but this is most probably an exaggeration or mistake.

Verse 2. Three presidents] Each having forty of these presidents accountable to him for their administration.

Daniel was first] As being established over that part where was the seat of government. He was confirmed in his offices by Darius.

Verse 3. The king thought to set him over the whole realm] Intended to make him grand vizier or emir ul amrim. This partiality of the king made Daniel the object of the envy of the other presidents, and the grandees of the kingdom.

Verse 4. Sought to find occasion against Daniel] But they found no blemish in his administration, for he was faithful to his king: this was a virtue. But he was also faithful to his God: this they hoped to construe into a crime, and make it the cause of his ruin.

Verse 7. Whosoever shall ask a petition] What pretence could they urge for so silly an ordinance? Probably to flatter the ambition of the king, they pretend to make him a god for thirty days; so that the whole empire should make prayer and supplication to him, and pay him Divine honours! This was the bait; but their real object was to destroy Daniel.

Verse 8. According to the law of the Medes and Persians] I do not think that this is to be understood so as to imply that whatever laws or ordinances the Medes or Persians once enacted, they never changed sign the writing, that it be not changed, according to the [g] law of the Medes and Persians, which [h] altereth not.

A. M. cir. 3467. B. C. cir. 537. Ol. cir. LX. 4. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 42.

9 Wherefore king Darius signed the writing and the decree.

10 Now when Daniel knew that the writing was signed, he went into his house; and his windows being open in his chamber [i] toward Jerusalem, he kneeled upon his knees [k] three times a day, and prayed, and gave thanks before his God, as he did aforetime.

11 Then these men assembled, and found Daniel praying and making supplication before his God.

12 [l] Then they came near, and spake before the king concerning the king's decree; Hast thou not signed a decree, that every man that shall ask a petition of any god or man within thirty days, save of thee, O king, shall be cast into the den of lions? The king answered and said, The thing is true, [m] according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which altereth not.

13 Then answered they and said before the king, That Daniel, [n] which is of the children of the captivity of Judah, [o] regardeth not thee, O king, nor the decree that thou hast signed, but maketh his petition three times a day.

A. M. cir. 3467. B. C. cir. 537. Ol. cir. LX. 4. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 42.

14 Then the king, when he heard these words, [p] was sore displeased with himself, and set his heart on Daniel to deliver him: and he laboured till the going down of the sun to deliver him.

15 Then these men assembled unto the king, and said unto the king, Know, O king, that [q] the law of the Medes and Persians is, That no decree nor statute which the king establisheth may be changed.

16 Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the den of lions. Now the king spake and said unto Daniel, Thy God, whom thou servest continually, he will deliver thee.

17 [r] And a stone was brought, and laid upon the mouth of the den; [s] and the king sealed it with his own signet, and with the signet of his

[g] Esth. i. 19; viii. 8; ver. 12, 15.——[h] Chald. passeth not. [i] 1 Kings viii. 44, 48; Psa. v. 7; Jonah ii. 4.——[k] Psa. lv. 17; Acts ii. 1, 2, 15; iii. 1; x. 9.

[l] Chap. iii. 8.——[m] Ver. 8.——[n] Chap. i. 6; v. 13.——[o] Chap. iii. 12.——[p] So Mark vi. 26.——[q] Ver. 8.——[r] Lam. iii. 53. [s] So Matt. xxvii. 66.

them. This would argue extreme folly in legislators in any country. Nothing more appears to be meant than that the decree should be enacted, written, and registered, according to the legal forms among the Medes and Persians; and this one to be made absolute for thirty days. The laws were such among this people, that, when once passed with the usual formalities, the king could not change them at his own will. This is the utmost that can be meant by the law of the Medes and Persians that could not be changed.

Verse 10. Now when Daniel knew that the writing was signed] He saw what was designed, and he knew whom he served.

His windows being open] He would not shut them to conceal himself, but "kneeled down with his face turned toward Jerusalem, and prayed thrice each day, giving thanks to God as usual." When the Jews were in distant countries, in prayer they turned their faces towards Jerusalem; and when in Jerusalem, they turned their faces towards the temple. Solomon, in his prayer at the dedication of the temple, 1 Kings viii. 48, had entreated God to hear the prayers of those who might be in strange lands, or in captivity, when they should turn their faces towards their own land, which God gave unto their fathers; and towards the city which he had chosen, and the house which was dedicated to his name. It was in reference to this that Daniel turned his face towards Jerusalem when he prayed.

Verse 12. Shall be cast into the den of lions] Either this was the royal menagerie, like that place in the Tower of London, where wild beasts are kept for the king's pleasure, and the public amusement; or they were kept for the purpose of devouring certain criminals, which the laws might consign to that kind of death. This is most likely, from the case before us.

Verse 14. The king—was sore displeased with himself] And well he might, when through his excessive folly he passed a law that, for its ostensible object, would have been a disgrace almost to an idiot.

And set his heart on Daniel] He strove by every means to get the law annulled. He had no doubt spoken to several of his lords in private, and had gone from one to another till the going down of the sun.

Verse 15. Then these men assembled] Having got favourable answers, as we may presume, from many individuals, he called a parliament; but they now collectively joined to urge the execution of the law, not its repeal.

Verse 16. Then the king commanded] With a heavy heart he was obliged to warrant this murderous conspiracy. But when passing sentence his last words were affecting: "Thy God, whom thou servest continually, he will deliver thee." He is thy God; thou servest him, not occasionally, but continually; therefore "he will deliver thee." Daniel had now the same kind of opportunity of showing his fidelity to God, as his three Hebrew companions before. The lions were not less terrible than the fiery furnace.

Verse 17. A stone was brought] All this precaution served the purposes of the Divine Providence. There could be no trick nor collusion here; if Daniel be lords; that the purpose might not be changed concerning Daniel.

A. M. cir. 3467. B. C. cir. 537. Ol. cir. LX. 4. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 42.

18 Then the king went to his palace and passed the night fasting: neither were [t] instruments of music brought before him: [u] and his sleep went from him.

19 Then the king arose very early in the morning, and went in haste unto the den of lions.

20 And when he came to the den, he cried with a lamentable voice unto Daniel: and the king spake and said to Daniel, O Daniel, servant of the living God, [v] is thy God, whom thou servest continually, able to deliver thee from the lions?

21 Then said Daniel unto the king, [w] O king, live for ever.

22 [x] My God hath sent his angel, and hath [y] shut the lions' mouths, that they have not hurt me: forasmuch as before him innocency was found in me; and also before thee, O king, have I done no hurt.

23 Then was the king exceeding glad for him, and commanded that they should take Daniel up out of the den. So Daniel was taken up out of the den, and no manner of hurt was found upon him, [z] because he believed in his God.

A. M. cir. 3467. B. C. cir. 537. Ol. cir. LX. 4. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 42.

24 And the king commanded, [a] and they brought those men which had accused Daniel, and they cast them into the den of lions, them, [b] their children, and their wives; and the lions had the mastery of them, and brake all their bones in pieces or ever they came at the bottom of the den.

25 [c] Then king Darius wrote unto all people, nations, and languages, that dwell in all the earth; Peace be multiplied unto you.

26 [d] I make a decree, That in every dominion of my kingdom men [e] tremble and fear before the God of Daniel: [f] for he is the living God, and steadfast for ever, and his kingdom that which shall not be [g] destroyed, and his dominion shall be even unto the end.

27 He delivereth and rescueth, [h] and he worketh signs and wonders in heaven and in earth, who hath delivered Daniel from the [i] power of the lions.

28 So this Daniel prospered in the reign of Darius, [k] and in the reign of [l] Cyrus the Persian.

[t] Or, table.——[u] Chap. ii. 1.——[v] Chap. iii. 15.——[w] Chap. ii. 4. [x] Chap. iii. 28.——[y] Heb. xi. 33.——[z] Heb. xi. 33.——[a] Deut. xix. 19.——[b] Esth. ix. 10; see Deut. xxiv. 16; 2 Kings xiv. 6.

[c] Chap. iv. 1.——[d] Chap. iii. 29.——[e] Psa. xcix. 1.——[f] Chap. iv. 34.——[g] Chap. ii. 44; iv. 3, 34; vii. 14, 27; Luke i. 33. [h] Chap. iv. 3.——[i] Heb. hand.——[k] Chap. i. 21.——[l] Ezra i. 1, 2.

preserved, it must be by the power of the Supreme God. The same precaution was taken by the Jews, in the case of the burial of our blessed Lord; and this very thing has served as one of the strongest proofs of the certainty of his resurrection and their unmixed wickedness.

Verse 18. Passed the night fasting] He neither ate nor drank, had no music to solace, nor sweet odours burnt or brought before him, and he passed the night without sleep. All this points out his great sincerity; and when it is considered that Darius could not be less than sixty-two or sixty-three years of age at this time, it shows more fully the depth of his concern.

Verse 19. The king arose very early] By the break of day.

Verse 20. He cried with a lamentable voice] His heart, full of grief, affected his speech.

Servant of the living God] The king was convinced that, unless his God saved him, his destruction was inevitable.

Verse 22. My God hath sent his angel] Such a one as that who attended Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, in the fiery furnace, and blew aside the flames, so that they could not hurt them.

Before him innocency was found in me] Because I was innocent God has preserved me; and now that I am preserved, my innocence is fully proved.

Verse 23. No manner of hurt was found upon him] And why? Because he believed in his God. How mighty is faith! It interests that power in the behalf of the believer by which the sea is dried up, the mountains removed, the dead raised to life, sin forgiven, the heart purified, Satan vanquished, death conquered, and God himself delighted and glorified! See Heb. xi.

Verse 24. They brought those men] It was perfectly just that they should suffer that death to which they had endeavoured to subject the innocent; but it was savage cruelty to destroy the women and children who had no part in the transgression.

Verse 25. Then king Darius wrote] And the substance of this decree, which was made by a heathen king, was to point out the perfections of the true God, and the fidelity of his devoted servant.

Verse 26. I make a decree that—men tremble and fear before the God of Daniel] As in the case of the three Hebrews, chap. iii. 29. The true God was known by his servants, and by the deliverances he wrought for them. See his characters in this decree. 1. He is the living God, the Author and Giver of life; all others are dead gods. 2. He is steadfast for ever. All things change; but he is unchangeable. 3. He has a kingdom; for as he made all things, so he governs all things. 4. His kingdom shall not be destroyed. No human power can prevail against it, because it is upheld by his omnipotence. 5. His do- minion is without end. It is an everlasting dominion, under an everlasting rule, by an everlasting God. 6. He delivereth them that are in danger and bondage. 7. He rescueth those who have fallen into the hands of their enemies, and implore his succour. 8. He worketh signs in the heavens. 9. And wonders upon earth; showing that both are under his sway, and are parts of his dominion. 10. And to complete all, He hath delivered Daniel. Before our own eyes he has given the fullest proof of his power and goodness, in rescuing his faithful servant from the teeth of the lions. What a fine eulogium on the great God and his faithful servant!

Verse 28. So this Daniel prospered] He had served five kings: Nebuchadnezzar, Evil-merodach Belshazzar, Darius, and Cyrus. Few courtiers have had so long a reign, served so many masters without flattering any, been more successful in their management of public affairs, been so useful to the states where they were in office, or have been more owned of God, or have left such an example to posterity.

Where shall we find ministers like Samuel and Daniel? None so wise, so holy, so disinterested, so useful, have ever since appeared in the nations of the earth.

CHAPTER VII.

The prophet having, in the preceding chapters of this book, related some remarkable events concerning himself and his brethren in the captivity, and given proof of his being enabled, by Divine assistance, to interpret the dreams of others, enters now into a detail of his own visions, returning to a period prior to the transactions recorded in the last chapter. The first in order of the prophet's visions is that of the four beasts, which arose out of a very tempestuous ocean, 1–9; and of one like the Son of man who annihilated the dominion of the fourth beast, because of the proud and blasphemous words of one of its horns, 9–14. An angel deciphers the hieroglyphics contained in this chapter, declaring that the FOUR beasts, diverse one from another, represent the FOUR PARAMOUNT empires of the habitable globe, which should succeed each other; and are evidently the same which were shadowed forth to Nebuchadnezzar by another set of hieroglyphics, (see the second chapter,) 15–26. But for the consolation of the people of God, it is added that, at the time appointed in the counsel of Jehovah, "the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall by given to the saints of the Most High;" and that this kingdom shall never be destroyed or transferred to another people, as all the preceding dominations have been, but shall itself stand for ever, 27, 28. It will be proper to remark that the period of a time, times, and a half, mentioned in the twenty-fifth verse as the duration of the dominion of the little horn that made war with the saints, (generally supposed to be a symbolical representation of the papal power,) had most probably its commencement in A. D. 755 or 756, when Pepin, king of France, invested the pope with temporal power. This hypothesis will bring the conclusion of the period to about the year of Christ 2000, a time fixed by Jews and Christians for some remarkable revolution; when the world, as they suppose, will be renewed, the wicked cease from troubling the Church, and the saints of the Most High have dominion over the whole habitable globe. But this is all hypothesis.

A. M. cir. 3449. B. C. cir. 555. Ol. cir. LVI. 2. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

IN the first year of Belshazzar king of Babylon [a] Daniel [b] had a dream and [c] visions of his head upon his bed: then he wrote the dream, and told the sum of the [d] matters.

2 Daniel spake and said, I saw in my vision by night, and, behold, the four winds of the heaven strove upon the great sea.

A. M. cir. 3449 B. C. cir. 555. Ol. cir. LVI. 2 Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

3 And four great beasts [e] came up from [a] Num. xii. 6; Amos iii. 7.——[b] Chald. saw.

[c] Chald. ii. 28.——[d] Or, words.——[e] Rev. xiii. 1.

NOTES ON CHAP. VII.

Verse 1. In the first year of Belshazzar] This is the same Belshazzar who was slain at the taking of Babylon, as we have seen at the conclusion of chap. v. That chapter should have followed both this and the succeeding. The reason why the fifth chapter was put in an improper place was, that all the historic parts might be together, and the prophetic be by themselves; and, accordingly, the former end with the preceding chapter, and the latter with this. The division therefore is not chronological, but merely artificial.

Told the sum of the matters.] That he might not forget this extraordinary dream, he wrote down the leading particulars when he arose.

Verse 2. The four winds of the heaven strove upon the great sea] The idea of strife is taken here from the effects that must be produced, were the east, the west, the north, and the south winds to rise tempestuously, and meet on the surface of the sea. By the great sea, the Mediterranean is meant; and is so called to distinguish it from those lakes called seas by the Hebrews; such as the Sea of Galilee, Dead Sea, Sea of Tiberias, &c.; but even that may refer to Asia, the scene of all these contentions. This dream is the same in meaning, under different emblems, as that of Nebuchadnezzar's metallic image; but in Daniel's dream several circumstances are added. It is supposed that Daniel had this dream about forty-eight years after Nebuchadnezzar had the vision of the great image.

Verse 3. Four great beasts came up from the sea]

A. M. cir. 3449. B. C. cir. 555. Ol. cir. LVI. 2. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

the sea, diverse one from another.

4 The first was [f] like a lion, and had eagle's wings: I beheld till the wings thereof were plucked, [g] and it was lifted up from the earth, and made stand upon the feet as a man, and a man's heart was given to it.

A. M. cir. 3449. B. C. cir. 555. Ol. cir. LVI. 2. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

5 [h] And behold another beast, a second, like to a bear, and [i] it raised up itself on one side, and it had three ribs in the mouth of it between the teeth of it:

[f] Deut. xxviii. 49; 2 Sam. i. 23; Jer. iv. 7, 13; xlviii. 40; Ezek. xvii. 3; Hab. i. 8.

[g] Or, wherewith.——[h] Chap. ii. 39.——[i] Or, it raised up one dominion.

The term sea, in Hebrew ים yam, from הכה hamah, to be tumultuous, agitated, &c., seems to be used here to point out the then known terraqueous globe, because of its generally agitated state; and the four winds striving, point out those predatory wars that prevailed almost universally among men, from the days of Nimrod, the founder of the Assyrian or Babylonish monarchy, down to that time, and in the end gave birth to the four great monarchies which are the subject of this vision.

Diverse one from another.] The people were different; the laws and customs different; and the administration of each differently executed.

Verse 4. The first was like a lion, and had eagle's wings] Bp. Newton well remarks, that these great beasts, as explained by the angel, ver. 17, are kingdoms. They arise out of a stormy and tempestuous sea; that is, out of the wars and commotions of the world; and they are called great in comparison of other states and kingdoms, and are denominated beasts for their tyrannical and cruel oppression.

These four beasts are indeed monstrous productions; a lion with eagle's wings; a bear with three ribs in its mouth; a leopard with four wings, and four heads; and a beast with ten horns. But such emblems and hieroglyphics were usual among the eastern nations, as may be seen in the monuments of antiquity. A winged lion, and such-like fictitious animals, may be seen in many parts of the ruins of Persepolis. Horns are attributed to beasts which naturally have none, being used in hieroglyphic writings for symbols of strength and power. And such figures are supposed to be the symbols of different nations; and are not more strange than many that are still used in heraldry. I believe the science of heraldry arose out of the knowledge gained from the symbols used in the Sacred Writings; and the little acquaintance anciently obtained of the meaning of some of the Egyptian hieroglyphics. Hence our wiverons, griffins, unicorns, with a congeries of natural and unnatural things, split eagles, two-headed swans, &c., &c., &c.

The beast like a lion is the kingdom of the Babylonians; and the king of Babylon is compared to a lion, Jer. iv. 7; Isa. v. 29; and is said to fly as an eagle, Jer. xlviii. 40; Ezek. xvii. 3, 7. The lion is considered the king of the beasts, and the eagle the king of the birds; and therefore the kingdom of Babylon, which was signified by the golden head of the great image, was the first and noblest of all the kingdoms; and was the greatest then in being. The wings of the eagle denote the rapidity with which the lion—Nebuchadnezzar, made his conquests; for in a few years, by his own arms, he brought his empire to such an extent, and raised it to such a degree of eminence, as was truly surprising; and all tended to show with what propriety this eagle-winged lion is here made his emblem.

The wings thereof were plucked] Lydia, Media, and Persia, which had been provinces of the Babylonish empire, cast off the yoke, and put themselves under kings of their own. Besides, the rapidity of its conquests was stopped by its wars with the Medes and Persians; by whom it was at last conquered, and divided between Darius the Mede and Cyrus the Persian.

And it was lifted up from the earth] That is, the wings were plucked, rendered unfit for farther flight, by which it had before been lifted up from the earth; making its conquests almost with the rapidity of an eagle's flight. In what a short time did Nebuchadnezzar, who is here chiefly intended, conquer Syria, Phœnicia, Judea, Egypt, Arabia, &c.! But on his death the wings were plucked; and no farther extension of the empire took place under Evil-merodach or Belshazzar, till it was lost by the latter, and became divided as we have seen above.

And made stand upon the feet as a man] This I think refers to the taming of Nebuchadnezzar's pride. He had acted like a fierce and ravening lion. God struck him with insanity; he then lived the life of a beast, and had a beast's heart—disposition, and habits. At last God restored him.

And a man's heart was given to it.] He became humane, humble, and pious; and in this state he appears to have died.

Verse 5. Another beast—like to a bear] This was the Medo-Persian empire, represented here under the symbol of the bear, as the largest species of these animals was found in Media, a mountainous, cold, and rough country, covered with woods. The Medes and Persians are compared to a bear on account of their cruelty and thirst after blood, a bear being a most voracious and cruel animal; the bear is termed by Aristotle an all-devouring animal; and the Medo-Persians are known to have been great robbers and spoilers. See Jer. li. 48–56. The Persians were notorious for the cruelty of their punishments. See Calmet.

Raised up itself on one side] Cyrus arose on the borders of Chaldea, and thus the bear appeared to put itself in the position to attack the lion.

It had three ribs in the mouth of it] As if it had just finished its repast on some animal that it had seized. Some think three tusks, curved like ribs, are meant; others three throats, שלשה גלגין shillin, by which it (Cyrus) had absorbed the three empires of the Babylonians, Medes, and Persians; for these symbolic animals do not so much denote four empires, as four kings. See ver. 17. Others think three rows of teeth and they said thus unto it, Arise, devour much flesh.

A. M. cir. 3449. B. C. cir. 555. Ol. cir. LVI. 2. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

6 After this I beheld, and lo another, like a leopard, which had upon the back of it four wings of a fowl; the beast had also [k] four heads; and dominion was given to it.

7 After this I saw in the night visions, and behold [l] a fourth beast, dreadful and terrible, and strong exceedingly; and it had great iron teeth: it devoured and brake in pieces, and stamped the residue with the feet of it: and it was diverse from all the beasts that were before it; [m] and it had ten horns.

A. M. cir. 3449 B. C. cir. 555. Ol. cir. LVI. 2. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

8 I considered the horns, and, behold, [n] there came up among them another little horn, before whom there were three of the first horns plucked are meant, to denote the triple power of the Medes, Persians, and Babylonians, conjoined. Or the east, north, and south, which were subdued by the Persians. But the ribs being between the teeth of the bear may show how Babylon, Lydia, and Egypt were ground and oppressed by the bear—the Persians; though, as ribs strengthen the body, they were a powerful support to their conquerors.

[k] Chap. viii. 8, 22.——[l] Chap. ii. 40; ver. 19, 23.

[m] Chap. ii. 41; Rev. xiii. 1.——[n] Ver. 20, 21, 24; chap. viii. 9.

Verse 6. Another, like a leopard—four wings—four heads] This was the Macedonian or Greek empire; and Alexander the Great its king. Alexander and his subjects are fitly compared to a leopard. 1. The leopard is remarkable for its swiftness. Alexander and the Macedonians were very rapid in their conquests. 2. The leopard is a spotted animal; a proper emblem of the various nations, with their various customs and languages, which constituted the Macedonian empire. It may refer to the character of Alexander himself, sometimes mild, at others cruel; sober and drunken; continent and lecherous; having a great power of self-government, and at other times being a slave to his passions. 3. The leopard, though small, is not afraid to attack the lion.

Four wings of a fowl] The Babylonian empire was represented with two wings; and they sufficiently marked the rapidity of Nebuchadnezzar's conquests; but the Macedonian has here four wings; for nothing, in the history of the world, was equal to the conquests of Alexander, who ran through all the countries from Illyricum and the Adriatic Sea to the Indian Ocean and the River Ganges; and in twelve years subdued part of Europe, and all Asia.

The beast had also four heads] Signifying the empire after the death of Alexander, divided between his four generals. Cassander reigning over Macedon and Greece; Lysimachus, over Thrace and Bithynia; Ptolemy, over Egypt; and Seleucus, over Syria.

Dominion was given to it.] It was not owing to the skill, courage, or valour of Alexander and his troops, that he made those wondrous conquests; the nations were given to him. For, as Bishop Newton says, had he not been assisted by the mighty power of God, how could he, with only thirty thousand men, have overcome Darius with six hundred thousand; and in so short a time have brought the countries from Greece as far as India into subjection?

Verse 7. I saw—a fourth beast—it had great iron teeth] This is allowed, on all hands, to be the Roman empire. It was dreadful, terrible, and exceeding strong: it devoured, and brake in pieces, and stamped the residue, that is, the remains of the former kingdoms, with its feet. It reduced Macedon into a Roman province about one hundred and sixty-eight years before Christ; the kingdom of Pergamos about one hundred and thirty-three years; Syria about sixty-five; and Egypt about thirty years before Christ. And, besides the remains of the Macedonian empire, it subdued many other provinces and kingdoms; so that it might, by a very usual figure, be said to devour the whole earth, to tread it down, and break it to pieces; and became in effect, what the Roman writers delight to call it, the empire of the whole world.

It (the fourth beast) was diverse from all the beasts that were before it.] Not only in its republican form of government, but also in power and greatness, extent of dominion, and length of duration.

It had ten horns] The ten kingdoms into which the Roman empire was afterwards divided. Calmet says, ten Syrian kings: and he finds them thus:—1. Seleucus Nicator. 2. Antiochus Soter. 3. Antiochus Theos. 4. Antiochus Callinicus. 5. Seleucus Ceraunus. 6. Antiochus the Great. 7. Seleucus, surnamed Philopater, brother of Antiochus Epiphanes. 8. Laomedon of Mitylene, to whom Syria and Phœnicia had been intrusted. 9. Antigone. And, 10. His son Demetrius, who possessed those provinces, with the title of kings. This is too much like forced work. There are different opinions concerning these ten kings; or rather which they were that constituted this division of the Roman empire. They are reckoned thus:—1. The Roman senate. 2. The Greeks, in Ravenna. 3. The Lombards in Lombardy. 4. The Huns in Hungary. 5. The Alemans, in Germany. 6. The Franks in France. 7. The Burgundians in Burgundy. 8. The Saracens in Africa, and a part of Spain. 9. The Goths, in other parts of Spain. 10 And the Saxons, in Britain.

Verse 8. Another little horn] Among Protestant writers this is considered to be the popedom.

Before whom there were three of the first horns plucked up] These were probably, 1. The exarchate of Ravenna. 2. The kingdom of the Lombards. And, 3. The state of Rome. The first was given to the Pope, Stephen II., by Pepin, king of France, A. D. 755; and this constituted the pope's temporal princes. The second was given to St. Peter by Charlemagne, in 774. The third, the state of Rome, was vested in the pope, both in spirituals and temporals, and confirmed to him by Lewis the pious. These are the three horns which were plucked up from the roots before the little horn.

Were eyes like the eyes of a man] Intimating eun-

A. M. cir. 3449. B. C. cir. 555. Ol. cir. LVI. 2. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

up by the roots: and, behold, in this horn were eyes like the eyes [o] of man, [p] and a mouth speaking great things.

9 [q] I beheld till the thrones were cast down, and [r] the Ancient of days did sit, [s] whose garment was white as snow, and the hair of his head like the pure wool: his throne was like the fiery flame, [t] and his wheels as burning fire.

10 [u] A fiery stream issued and came forth from before him: [v] thousand thousands ministered unto him, and ten thousand times ten thousand stood before him: [w] the judgment was set, and the books were opened.

11 I beheld then because of the voice of the great words which the horn spake: [x] I beheld even till the beast was slain, and his body destroyed, and given to the burning flame.

12 As concerning the rest of the beasts, they had their dominion taken away: yet [y] their lives were prolonged for a season and time.

13 I saw in the night visions, and, behold, [z] one like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to [a] the Ancient of days, and they brought him near before him.

A. M. cir. 3449 B. C. cir. 555. Ol. cir. LVI. 2. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

14 [b] And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all [c] people, nations, and languages, should serve him: his dominion is [d] an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed.

15 I Daniel [e] was grieved in my spirit in the midst of my [f] body, and the visions of my head troubled me.

16 I came near unto one of them that stood by, and asked him the truth of all this. So he told me, and made me know the interpretation of the things.

17 [g] These great beasts, which are four, are four kings, which shall arise out of the earth.

---

[o] Rev. ix. 7.——[p] Psa. xii. 3; ver. 25; Rev. xiii. 5.——[q] Rev. xx. 4.——[r] Psa. xc. 2; ver. 13, 22.——[s] Psa. civ. 2; Rev. i. 14. [t] Ezek. i. 15, 16.——[u] Psa. l. 3; xcvii. 3; Isa. xxx. 33; lxvi. 15. [v] 1 Kings xxii. 19; Psa. lxviii. 17; Heb. xii. 22; Rev. v. 11. [w] Rev. xx. 4, 12.——[x] Rev. xix. 20.——[y] Chald. a prolonging in life was given them.

[z] Ezek. iv. 26; Matt. xxiv. 30; xxvi. 64; Rev. i. 7, 13; xiv. 14.——[a] Ver. 9.——[b] Psa. ii. 6, 7, 8; viii. 6; cx. 1, 2; Matt. xi. 27; xxviii. 18; John iii. 35; 1 Cor. xv. 27; Eph. i. 22.——[c] Ch. iii. 4.——[d] Psa. cxlv. 13; chap. ii. 44; ver. 27; Mic. iv. 7; Luke i. 33; John xii. 34; Heb. xii. 28.——[e] Ver. 28.——[f] Chald. sheath.——[g] Ver. 3.

---

ning and superintendence; for the pope calls himself Episcopus episcoporum, the Overseer of overseers.

And a mouth speaking great things.] Full of boasting; pretending to unlimited jurisdiction; binding and loosing at pleasure; promising to absolve from all sins, present, past, and future; and threatening to send to everlasting destruction all kings, kingdoms, and individuals, who would dare to dispute his power and authority.

Verse 9. The thrones were cast down] כמיו might be translated erected; so the Vulgate, positi sunt, and so all the versions; but that ours is a proper translation, is sufficiently evident from chap. iii. 6, 15, 20; vi. 17, &c.; where the original word can be used in no other sense than that of throwing or casting down. There is a reference here to preparations made for a general assize, or to the convocation of the sanhedrin, where the father of the consistory sat with his assessors on each side in the form of a semicircle, and the people stood before them.

The Ancient of days] God Almighty; and this is he only place in the sacred writings where God the Father is represented in a human form.

Verse 10. A fiery stream issued] This is not spoken of the final judgment; but of that which he was to execute upon this fourth beast, the Roman empire; and the little boasting horn, which is a part of the fourth beast, and must fall when the other falls.

Verse 11. I beheld then because of the voice (or, the beast will be destroyed because) of the great words which the horn spake—his body destroyed] When the dominion was taken from the rest of the beasts, their bodies were not destroyed, but suffered to continue still in being; but when the dominion shall be taken away from this beast, his body shall be totally destroyed; because other kingdoms succeeded to those, but no other earthly kingdom shall succeed to this.—Bishop Newton.

Verse 13. One like the Son of man come with the clouds of heaven] This most certainly points out the Lord Jesus, בר אנש bar enosh, the Son of miserable man; who took our nature upon him that he might redeem us unto himself. To prove himself to be the Messiah he applies, before the high priests, these words of the Prophet Daniel to himself, Matt. xxiv. 30.

Near before him.] The Ancient of days.

Verse 14. And there was given him dominion] This also is applied to our Lord Jesus by himself, after his resurrection, Matt. xxviii. 18.

His dominion is an everlasting dominion] Christianity shall increase, and prevail to the end of the world. See the parallel passages in the margin.

Verse 15. I Daniel was grieved, &c.] The words in the original are uncommonly emphatic. My spirit was grieved, or sickened, בגו גרנה bego nidneh, within its sheath or scabbard. Which I think proves, 1. That the human spirit is different from the body. 2. That it has a proper subsistence independently of the body, which is only its sheath for a certain time. 3. That the spirit may exist independently of its body, as the sword does independently of its sheath.

Verse 17. These great beasts—are four kings] See the preceding verses, where the following explanations are inserted and illustrated.

A. M. cir. 3449. B. C. cir. 555. Ol. cir. LVI. 2. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

18 But [h] the saints of the [i] Most High shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom for ever, even for ever and ever.

19 Then I would know the truth of [k] the fourth beast, which was diverse [l] from all the others, exceeding dreadful, whose teeth were of iron, and his nails of brass; which devoured, brake in pieces, and stamped the residue with his feet;

20 And of the ten horns that were in his head, and of the other which came up, and before whom three fell; even of that horn that had eyes, and a mouth that spake very great things, whose look was more stout than his fellows.

21 I beheld, [m] and the same horn made war with the saints, and prevailed against them;

22 [n] Until the Ancient of days came, [o] and judgment was given to the saints of the Most High; and the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom.

A. M. cir. 3449 B. C. cir. 555. Ol. cir. LVI. [p] Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

23 Thus he said, The fourth beast shall be [p] the fourth kingdom upon earth, which shall be diverse from all kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and shall tread it down, and break it in pieces.

24 [q] And the ten horns out of this kingdom are ten kings that shall arise: and another shall rise after them; and he shall be diverse from the first, and he shall subdue three kings.

25 [r] And he shall speak great words against the Most High, and shall [s] wear out the saints of the Most High, and [t] think to change times and laws: and [u] they shall be given into his hand [v] until a time and times and the dividing of time.

[h] Isa. lx. 12, 13, 14; ver. 22, 27; 2 Tim. ii. 11, 12; Rev. ii. 26, 27; iii. 21; xx. 4.——[i] Chald. high ones, that is, things or places.——[k] Ver. 7.——[l] Chald. from all those.——[m] Chap. viii. 12, 24; xi. 31; Rev. xi. 7; xiii. 7; xvii. 14; xix. 19. [n] Ver. 9.

[o] Ver. 18; 1 Cor. vi. 2; Rev. i. 6; v. 10; xx. 4.——[p] Chap. ii. 40.——[q] Ver. 7, 8, 20; Rev. xvii. 12.——[r] Isa. xxxvii. 23; chap. viii. 24, 25; xi. 28. 30, 31, 36; 1 Mac. i. 46; Rev. xiii. 5, 6. [s] Rev. xvii. 6; xviii. 24.——[t] Chap. ii. 21.——[u] Rev. xiii. 7 [v] Chap. xii. 7; Rev. xii. 14.

Verse 18. But the saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom] I doubt whether this be the true sense of the original Chaldee, ויקבלון מלכותא קדישי עליונין vikabbelun malcutha kaddishey elyonin, "But the supreme holy ones shall receive the kingdom;" or, "they shall receive the kingdom of the supreme saints." Properly translated by Montanus, Et suscipient regnum sanctorum altissimorum. Whatever we may think of the patriarchs and the Jews in their best times, there has never been so much holiness of heart possessed, and so much righteousness practised, as by the genuine disciples of Christ. Christianity alone has provided a full redemption for man. They are the chief saints, and to them God gives the kingdom: and this Gospel dispensation, called often the kingdom of God, and the kingdom of heaven, shall last for ever, during the whole lapse of time; and for ever and ever—throughout eternity, shall they and its blessings endure.

Verse 19. His nails of brass] This is not mentioned in the seventh verse, where the description of the beast is given. It might be added, for the first time, by the person who is now explaining the fourth beast. Houbigant thinks it has been lost out of the text: but such loss is not intimated by any MS.; nor does any of the ancient Versions acknowledge this addition in the seventh verse.

Verse 21. The same horn made war with the saints, and prevailed against them.] Those who make Antiochus the little horn, make the saints the Jewish people. Those who understand the popedom by it, see this as referring to the cruel persecutions of the popes of Rome against the Waldenses and Albigenses, and the Protestant Church in general.

Verse 22. Saints of the Most High] To the supereminent saints; see the note on ver. 18.

Verse 25. He shall speak great words against the Most High] Sermones quasi Deus loquetur; "He shall speak as if he were God." So St. Jerome quotes from Symmachus. To none can this apply so well or so fully as to the popes of Rome. They have assumed infallibility, which belongs only to God. They profess to forgive sins, which belongs only to God. They profess to open and shut heaven, which belongs only to God. They profess to be higher than all the kings of the earth, which belongs only to God. And they go beyond God in pretending to loose whole nations from their oath of allegiance to their kings, when such kings do not please them! And they go against God when they give indulgences for sin. This is the worst of all blasphemies!

And shall wear out the saints] By wars, crusades, massacres, inquisitions, and persecutions of all kinds. What in this way have they not done against all those who have protested against their innovations, and refused to submit to their idolatrous worship? Witness the exterminating crusades published against the Waldenses and Albigenses. Witness John Huss, and Jerome of Prague. Witness the Smithfield fires in England! Witness God and man against this bloody, persecuting, ruthless, and impure Church!

And think to change times and laws] Appointing fasts and feasts; canonizing persons whom he chooses to call saints; granting pardons and indulgences for sins; instituting new modes of worship utterly unknown to the Christian Church; new articles of faith; new rules of practice; and reversing, with pleasure, the laws both of God and man.—Dodd.

A. M. cir. 3449. B. C. cir. 555. Ol. cir. LVI. 2. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

26 [w] But the judgment shall sit, and they shall take away his dominion, to consume and to destroy it unto the end.

27 And the [x] kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, [y] whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, [z] and all [a] dominions shall serve and obey him.

A. M. cir. 3449. B. C. cir. 555. Ol. cir. LVI. 2. Servii Tullii. R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

28 Hitherto is the end of the matter. As for me Daniel, [b] my cogitations much troubled me, and my countenance changed in me: but I [c] kept the matter in my heart.

[w] Ver. 10, 22.——[x] Ver. 14, 18, 22; chap. ii. 42; Obad. 21; Matt. xxv. 34; Mark xi. 10; Luke xii. 32.——[y] Chap. ii. 44; Luke i. 33; John xii. 34; Rev. xi. 15.——[z] Isa. lx. 12.——[a] Or, rulers.——[b] Ver. 15; chap. viii. 27; x. 8, 16.——[c] Luke ii. 19, 51

Until a time and times and the dividing of time.] In prophetic language a time signifies a year; and a prophetic year has a year for each day. Three years and a half (a day standing for a year, as in chap. ix. 24) will amount to one thousand two hundred and sixty years, if we reckon thirty days to each month, as the Jews do.

If we knew precisely when the papal power began to exert itself in the antichristian way, then we could at once fix the time of its destruction. The end is probably not very distant; it has already been grievously shaken by the French. In 1798 the French republican army under General Berthier took possession of the city of Rome, and entirely superseded the whole papal power. This was a deadly wound, though at present it appears to be healed; but it is but skinned over, and a dreadful cicatrice remains. The Jesuits, not Jesus, are now the Church's doctors.

If the papal power, as a horn or temporal power, be intended here, which is most likely, (and we know that that power was given in 755 to Pope Stephen II. by Pepin, king of France,) counting one thousand two hundred and sixty years from that, we are brought to A. D. 2015, about one hundred and ninety years from the present [A. D. 1825.] But I neither lay stress upon nor draw conclusions from these dates. If the Church of Rome will reform itself, it will then be the true Christian Church, and will never be destroyed. Let it throw aside all that is ritually Jewish; all that is heathen; all that which pretends to be of God, and which is only of man; all doctrines that are not in the Bible; and all rites and ceremonies which are not of the appointment of Christ and his apostles; and then, all hail the once Roman, but now, after such a change, the HOLY, Catholic Church! Every true Protestant would wish rather the reform than the extinction of this Church.

Verse 27. The kingdom and dominion] The people of the saints of the Most High, or the people who are the supereminent saints, shall have the kingdom. Whatever name they may be distinguished by among men, these are the people, and theirs is the Church, that no lapse of time shall injure, and no power be able to destroy; but shall last as long as time shall endure.

Verse 28. The end of the matter.] So said the expounding angel; and he said so because the purpose of God had determined it. In considering these things, and looking at the evils that shall come upon the world before those auspicious times can take place, I may say, with Daniel, My cogitations much troubled me, and my countenance changed in me: but I keep the matter of my conjectures and consequent feelings in my own heart.

CHAPTER VIII.

This chapter contains Daniel's vision of the ram and he-goat, 1–14; referring, as explained by the angel, to the Persian and Grecian monarchies, 15–26. The little horn mentioned in the ninth verse, (or fierce king, as interpreted in the twenty-third,) is supposed by some to denote Antiochus Epiphanes; but seems more properly to apply to the Roman power in general, by which the polity and temple of the Jews were destroyed, on account of the great transgressions of these ancient people of God; and particularly because of their very obstinate and unaccountable rejection of the glorious doctrines of Christianity, which had been preached among them by Jesus Christ and his apostles, and the truth of which God had attested "by signs and wonders, and by divers miracles and gifts of the Holy Ghost." Daniel is then informed of the two thousand and three hundred prophetic days (that is, years) which must elapse before the sanctuary be cleansed; or, in other words, before righteousness shall prevail over the whole earth. This period is supposed, with considerable probability, to have had its commencement when Alexander the Great invaded Asia, in the year before Christ 334. This will bring the close of it to about the end of the SIXTH chiliad of the world; when, as already observed, some astonishing changes are expected to take place in the moral condition of the human race; when the power of Antichrist, both Papal and Mohammedan, shall be totally annihilated, and universal dominion given to the saints of the Most High. The chapter concludes with the distress of Daniel on account of the fearful judgments with which his country should be visited in after ages, 27.

A. M. cir. 3451. B. C. cir. 553. Ol. cir. LVI. 4. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

IN the third year of the reign of king Belshazzar a vision appeared unto me, even unto me Daniel, after that which appeared unto me [a] at the first.

2 And I saw in a vision; and it came to pass, when I saw, that I was at [b] Shushan in the palace, which is in the province of Elam; and I saw in a vision, and I was by the river of Ulai.

3 Then I lifted up mine eyes, and saw, and behold, there stood before the river a ram which had two horns: and the two horns were high; but one was higher than [c] the other, and the higher came up last.

A. M. cir. 3451. B. C. cir. 553. Ol. cir. LVI. 4. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

4 I saw the ram pushing westward, and northward, and southward; so that no beasts might stand before him, neither was there any that could deliver out of his hand; [d] but he did according to his will, and became great.

5 And as I was considering, behold, a he goat came from the west on the face of the whole earth, and [e] touched not the ground: and the goat had [f] a [g] notable horn between his eyes.

[a] Chap. vii. 1.——[b] Esth. i. 2.——[c] Heb. the second.——[d] Chap. v. 19; xi. 3, 16.

[e] Or, none touched him in the earth.——[f] Heb. a horn of sight. [g] Ver. 21.

NOTES ON CHAP. VIII.

Verse 1. In the third year of the reign of—Belshazzar] We now come once more to the Hebrew, the Chaldee part of the book being finished. As the Chaldeans had a particular interest both in the history and prophecies from chap. ii. 4 to the end of chap. vii., the whole is written in Chaldee; but as the prophecies which remain concern times posterior to the Chaldean monarchy, and principally relate to the Church and people of God generally, they are written in the Hebrew language, this being the tongue in which God chose to reveal all his counsels given under the Old Testament relative to the New.

Verse 2. I saw in a vision] Daniel was at this time in Shushan, which appears to have been a strong place, where the kings of Persia had their summer residence. It was the capital of the province of Elam or the Elymais; which province was most probably added to the Chaldean territories by Nebuchadnezzar; see Jer. xlix. 34, 35. Here was Daniel's ordinary residence; and though here at this time, he, in vision, saw himself on the banks of the river Ulai. This is the same as the river Euleus, which divided Shushan or Susiana from Elymais.

Verse 3. A ram which had two horns] In the former vision there were four beasts, pointing out four empires; in this we have but two, as only two empires are concerned here, viz., the Grecian and the Persian. The Babylonish empire is not mentioned; its fate was before decided, and it was now at its close.

By the ram, the empire of the Medes and Persians was pointed out, as explained by the angel Gabriel, ver. 20; and particularly Cyrus, who was the founder of that empire. Cyrus was the son of Cambyses, king of Persia; and grandson of Astyages, king of Media, by his daughter Mandane, who had been given in marriage to Cambyses. Cyrus, marrying Roxana, the daughter and only child of his uncle Cyaxares, called in Scripture Ahasuerus, succeeded to both crowns, and thus united Media and Persia. A ram was the symbol of the Persians; and a ram's head with two horns, one higher than the other, appears as such in different parts of the ruins of Persepolis. See the plates of these ruins in the supplement to the seventh volume of the ancient part of the Universal History.

This ram had two horns; that is, two kingdoms, viz., Media and Persia; but one was higher than the other; and the higher came up last. Media, signified by the shorter horn, was the more ancient of the two kingdoms. Persia, the higher horn, had come up but lately, and was of little historic or political consequence till the time of Cyrus; but in the reigns of this prince and his immediate successors, Persia attained a political consequence greatly superior to that possessed at any time by the kingdom of Media; therefore, it is said to have been the higher, and to have come up last.

Verse 4. I saw the ram pushing westward] The Persians, who are signified by the ram, as well as their founder Cyrus, pushed their conquests west, north, and south. The principal theatre of their wars, says Calmet, was against the SCYTHIANS, northward; against the GREEKS, westward; and against the EGYPTIANS, southward.

He did according to his will] There was no other nation at that time that could stay the progress of the Persian arms.

Verse 5. Behold, a he-goat] This was Alexander the Great; and a goat was a very proper symbol of the Grecian or Macedonian people. Bp. Newton very properly observes that, two hundred years before the time of Daniel, they were called Ægeadæ, the goats' people; the origin of which name is said to be as follows: Caranus, their first king, going with a multitude of Greeks to seek a new habitation in Macedonia, was advised by an oracle to take the goats for his guides; and afterwards, seeing a herd of goats flying from a violent storm, he followed them to Edessa, and there fixed the seat of his empire, and made the goats his ensigns or standards; and called the place Ægæ or Ægeo, the goats' town; and the people Ægeadæ, the goats' people; names which are derived from αιξ, αιγος, a goat. The city Ægæ or Ægea, was the usual burying-place of the Macedonian kings; and, in reference to this origin, Alexander called his son by Roxana, Alexander Ægus, Alexander the goat. All this shows the very great propriety of the symbol here used.

Came from the west] Europe lies westward of Asia.

On the face of the whole earth] Carrying every thing before him.

A. M. cir. 3451. B. C. cir. 553. Ol. cir. LVI. 4. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

6 And he came to the ram that had two horns, which I had seen standing before the river, and ran unto him in the fury of his power.

7 And I saw him come close unto the ram, and he was moved with choler against him, and smote the ram, and brake his two horns: and there was no power in the ram to stand before him, but he cast him down to the ground, and stamped upon him: and there was none that could deliver the ram out of his hand.

8 Therefore the he-goat waxed very great: and when he was strong, the great horn was broken; and for it came up [h] four notable ones toward the four winds of heaven.

A. M. cir. 3451. B. C. cir. 553. Ol. cir. LVI. 4. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

9 [i] And out of one of them came forth a little horn, which waxed exceeding great, [k] toward the south, and toward the east, and toward the [l] pleasant land.

10 [m] And it waxed great, even [n] to [o] the host of heaven; and [p] it cast down some of the [h] Chap. vii. 6; xi. 4; ver. 22.——[i] Chap. vii. 8; xi. 21.——[k] Ch. xi. 25; 1 Mac. i. 16–19.——[l] Psa. xlviii. 2; Ezek. xx. 6, 15; chap. xi. 16, 41, 45.——[m] Chap. xi. 28.——[n] Or, against the host. [o] So Isa. xiv. 13.——[p] Rev. xii. 4.

Touched not the ground] Seemed to fly from conquest to conquest. By the time Alexander was thirty years of age he had conquered all Asia: and, because of the rapidity of his conquests, he is represented as a leopard with four wings, in the preceding vision.

A notable horn between his eyes.] This, says the angel, is the first king, ver. 21, that is, the first kingdom of the Greeks in Asia, which was erected by Alexander; and continued some years in his brother Philip Aridæus, and in his two young sons, Alexander Ægus and Hercules. See Newton.

Verse 6. And he came to the ram.] This and the following verse give an account of the overthrow of the Persian empire by Alexander.

And ran unto him in the fury of his power] The conflicts between the Greeks and the Persians were excessively severe. Alexander first vanquished the generals of Darius, at the river Granicus, in Phrygia; he next attacked and totally routed Darius, at the straits of Issus, in Cilicia; and afterwards at the plains of Arbela, in Assyria. One can hardly read these words, says Bp. Newton, "the ram—which I had seen standing by the river, ran unto him in the fury of his power," without having the image of Darius' army standing and guarding the river Granicus; and of Alexander on the other side, with his forces plunging in, swimming across the stream, and rushing on the enemy, with all the fire and fury that can be conceived.

Verse 7. And brake his two horns] Subdued Persia and Media; sacked and burnt the royal city of Persepolis, the capital of the Persian empire, and, even in its ruins, one of the wonders of the world to the present day. This he did because "he was moved with choler" against Darius, who had endeavoured to draw off his captains with bribes, and had laboured to induce some of his friends to assassinate him. Alexander, finding this, would listen to no proposals of peace; and was determined never to rest till he had destroyed Darius and his whole empire. In Media, Darius was seized and made prisoner by some of his own treacherous subjects, and afterwards basely murdered.

There was no power in the ram to stand before him] Alexander's victories over the Persians were as easy as they were rapid and decisive.

He cast him down to the ground, and stamped upon him] Totally destroyed the family, and overturned the whole monarchy.

Verse 8. The he-goat waxed very strong] He had subdued nearly the whole of the then known world.

The great horn was broken] Alexander died in the height of his conquests, when he was but about thirty-three years of age. His natural brother, Philip Aridæus, and his two sons, Alexander Ægus and Hercules, kept up the show and name of the Macedonian kingdom for a time; but they were all murdered within fifteen years; and thus the great horn, the Macedonian kingdom, was broken, Alexander's family being now cut off.

And for it came up four notable ones] The regal family being all dead, the governors of provinces usurped the title of kings; and Antigonus, one of them, being slain at the battle of Ipsus, they were reduced to four, as we have already seen. 1. Seleucus, who had Syria and Babylon, from whom came the Seleucidæ, famous in history. 2. Lysimachus, who had Asia Minor. 3. Ptolemy, son of Lagus, who had Egypt, from whom sprang the Lagidæ. And, 4. Cassander, who had Greece and the neighbouring countries. These held dominion towards the four winds of heaven. Cassander had the western parts, Lysimachus had the northern regions, Ptolemy possessed the southern countries, and Seleucus had the eastern provinces.

Verse 9. Out of one of them came forth a little horn] Some think that Antiochus Epiphanes is meant; but Bp. Newton contends that it is the Roman government that is intended; and although very great at its zenith, yet very little in its rising.

Waxed—great toward the south] The Romans made Egypt a province of their empire, and it continued such for some centuries.

Toward the east] They conquered Syria, and made it a province.

Toward the pleasant land.] Judea, so called Psa. cvi. 24; Jer. iii. 19; Dan. xi. 16, 41. It is well known that they took Judea, and made it a province; and afterwards burnt the city and the temple, and scattered the Jews over the face of the earth.

Verse 10. The host of heaven] The Jewish hierarchy. The stars, the priests and Levites. The host and of the stars to the ground, and stamped upon them.

A. M. cir. 3451. B. C. cir. 553. Ol. cir. LVI. 4. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

11 Yea, [q] he magnified himself even [r] to [s] the prince of the host, and [n] by him [v] the daily sacrifice was taken away, and the place of his sanctuary was cast down.

12 And [w] a [x] host was given him against the daily sacrifice [y] by reason of transgression, and it cast down [z] the truth to the ground; and [a] it practised, and prospered.

13 Then I heard [b] one saint speaking, and another saint said unto [c] that [d] certain saint which spake, How long shall be the vision concerning the daily sacrifice, and the transgression of [e] desolation, to give both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot?

14 And he said unto me, Unto two thousand and three hundred [f] days; [g] then shall the sanctuary be [h] cleansed.

15 And it came to pass, when I, even I Daniel, had seen the vision, and [i] sought for the meaning, then, behold, there stood before me [k] as the appearance of a man.

16 And I heard a man's voice [l] between the banks of Ulai, which called, and said, [m] Gabriel, make this man to understand the vision.

A. M. cir. 3451. B. C. cir. 553. Ol. cir. LVI. 4. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

17 So he came near where I stood: and when he came, I was afraid, and [n] fell upon my face: but he said unto me, Understand, O son of man, for at the time of the end shall be the vision.

18 [o] Now as he was speaking with me, I was in a deep sleep on my face toward the ground: [p] but he touched me, and [q] set me upright.

19 And he said, Behold, I will make thee know what shall be in the last end of the indignation; [r] for at the time appointed the end shall be.

20 [s] The ram which thou sawest having two horns are the kings of Media and Persia.

21 [t] And the rough goat is the king of Grecia: and the great horn that is between his eyes [u] is the first king.

22 [v] Now that being broken, whereas four stood up for it, four kingdoms shall stand up out of the nation, but not in his power.

23 And in the latter time of their kingdom, [w] when the transgressors [x] are come to the full, a king [y] of fierce countenance, and understanding dark sentences, [z] shall stand up.

[q] Jer. xlviii. 26, 42; chap. xi. 36; ver. 25.——[r] Or, against. [s] Josh. v. 14.——[t] Chap. xi. 31; xii. 11; 1 Mac. i. 44-64.——[u] Or, from him.——[v] Exod. xxix. 38; Num. xxviii. 3; Ezek. xlvi. 13. [w] Chap. xi. 31.——[x] Or, the host was given over for the transgression against the daily sacrifice.——[y] 1 Mac. i. 11, &c.; 2 Mac. iv. 13, 17.——[z] Psa. cxix. 43, 142; Isa. lix. 14.——[a] Ver. 4; ch. xi. 28, 36.——[b] Chap. iv. 13; xii. 6; 1 Pet. i. 12.——[c] Or, the numberer of secrets, or the wonderful numberer.——[d] Hebrew, Palmoni.

[e] Or, making desolate; chap. xi. 31; xii. 11; 1 Mac. i. 54. [f] Heb. evening morning.——[g] 1 Mac. iv. 36, &c.——[h] Heb. justified.——[i] See chap. xii. 8; 1 Pet. i. 10, 11.——[k] Ezek. i. 26. [l] Chap. xii. 6, 7.——[m] Chap. ix. 21; Luke i. 19, 26.——[n] Ezek. i. 28; Rev. i. 17.——[o] Chap. x. 9, 10; Luke ix. 32.——[p] Ezek. ii. 2. [q] Heb. made me stand upon my standing.——[r] Chap. ix. 27; xi. 27, 35, 36; xii. 7; Hab. ii. 3.——[s] Ver. 3.——[t] Ver. 5.——[u] Chap xi. 3.——[v] Ver. 8; chap. xi. 4.——[w] 1 Mac. i. 11, &c.; ii. 15. [x] Heb. are accomplished.——[y] Deut. xxviii. 50.——[z] Ver. 6.

powers or host of heaven are probably intended by our Lord, Matt. xxiv. 29, to signify the whole Jewish hierarchy.

Verse 11. Even to the prince of the host] They seemed, in this case, to fight against God himself.

The daily sacrifice was taken away] By the destruction of the city and temple; and has never been restored from that day until now.

Verse 12. And a host was given him] That is, power; or perhaps the host of heaven—the priesthood—the whole sacrificial system, by reason of transgression. They had filled up the measure of their iniquities, in rejecting the Lord that bought them; and the daily sacrifice, being no longer of use, was given up with the rest to destruction.

Cast down the truth] Probably the whole Jewish ritual and religion.

Practised, and prospered.] Prosperity or success followed all their acts.

Verse 13. One saint speaking, and another saint said] One angel asked another how long the sanctuary was to be trodden down?

Verse 14. Unto two thousand and three hundred days] Though literally it be two thousand three hundred evenings and mornings, yet I think the prophetic day should be understood here, as in other parts of this prophet, and must signify so many years. If we date these years from the vision of the he-goat, (Alexander's invading Asia,) this was A. M. 3670, B. C. 334; and two thousand three hundred years from that time will reach to A. D. 1966, or one hundred and forty-one years from the present A. D. 1825. This will bring it near to the time mentioned chap. vii. 25, where see the note.

Verse 15. As the appearance of a man.] Supposed to be the Messiah.

Verse 17. At the time of the end shall be the vision.] Or, as Houbigant, "The vision shall have an end at the proper time."

Verse 20. The ram which thou sawest] See this explained under the vision itself, ver. 3, &c.

Verse 22. But not in his power.] The four kingdoms which shall arise out of the Macedonian empire shall not be of Alexander's power or family, nor have his strength and dignity.

Verse 23. When the transgressors are come to the full] When the utmost degradation has taken place, by the buying and selling of the high priesthood; for

A. M. cir. 3451. B. C. cir. 553. Ol. cir. LVI. 4. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

24 And his power shall be mighty, [a] but not by his own power: and he shall destroy wonderfully, [b] and shall prosper, and practise, [c] and shall destroy the mighty and the [d] holy people.

25 And [e] through his policy also he shall cause craft to prosper in his hand; [f] and he shall magnify himself in his heart, [g] and by [h] peace shall destroy many: [i] he shall also stand up against the Prince of princes; but he shall be [k] broken without hand.

A. M. cir. 3451. B. C. cir. 553. Ol. cir. LVI. 4. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

26 [l] And the vision of the evening and the morning which was told is true: [m] wherefore shut thou up the vision; for it shall be for many days.

27 [n] And I Daniel fainted, and was sick certain days; afterward I rose up, [o] and did the king's business; and I was astonished at the vision, [p] but none understood it.

[a] Rev. xvii. 13, 17. — [b] Ver. 12; chap. xi. 36. — [c] Ver. 10; chap. vii. 25. — [d] Heb. people of the holy ones. — [e] Chap. xi. 21, 23, 24. — [f] Ver. 11; chap. xi. 36; 2 Mac. ix. 4, 7, 8, 11. [g] 1 Mac. i. 30, &c. — [h] Or, prosperity.

[i] Ver. 11; chap. xi. 36. — [k] Job xxxiv. 20; Lam. iv. 6; chap. ii. 34, 45; 1 Mac. vi. 8–13; 2 Mac. ix. 9, &c. — [l] Chap. x. 1. — [m] Ezek. xii. 27; chap. x. 14; xii. 4, 9; Rev. xxii. 10. [n] Chap. vii. 28; x. 8, 16. — [o] Chap. vi. 2, 3. — [p] See ver. 16.

Onias was ejected for a sum of money, to make room for wicked Jason; and Jason again was supplanted for a greater sum by a worse man, if possible, than himself, Menelaus; and the golden vessels of the temple were sold to pay for this sacrilegious purchase. Thus transgressions were come to the full, before the Romans had commission to destroy Jerusalem and its temple, &c.

A king of fierce countenance] The Roman government, as before; for king is often taken for kingdom or empire.

Understanding dark sentences] Very learned and skilful in all things relating to government and its intrigues. The learning of Rome is proverbial to the present time.

Verse 24. But not by his own power] The strength of the other kingdoms consisted in themselves; but the Roman empire, as a horn or kingdom of the goat, was not mighty by its own power—was not strong by virtue of the goat, but drew its nourishment and strength from Rome and Italy. There grew the trunk and body of the tree; though the branches extended over Greece, Asia, Syria, and Egypt.—Bp. Newton.

Shall destroy wonderfully] In the taking of Jerusalem by the Romans ninety-seven thousand Jews were made captives, and eleven hundred thousand were slain. So they destroyed this once mighty and holy people!

Verse 25. He shall cause craft to prosper] They subdued as many by their diplomatic skill and political intrigues as they did by the sword.

He shall also stand up against the Prince of princes] Against Christ; for it was by the Roman authority that he was condemned to death and crucified; and their persecutions had nearly destroyed the Christian religion; but the house was founded on a rock.

But he shall be broken without hand.] The tide was turned by the invisible hand of God; and thus heathen Rome was overcome, and converted to Christianity.

Verse 26. The vision of the evening and the morning which was told is true] That mentioned in ver. 14.

For it shall be for many days.] Not less than two thousand three hundred years!

Verse 27. Daniel fainted] To foresee the desolations that were coming on the land, the city, the temple, and the people.

Did the king's business] Transacted the affairs of state that belonged to my department, after having been sick for certain days through the effects of this vision. He had a pious and feeling heart; and he was distressed for the desolations that were coming upon his people.

CHAPTER IX.

Daniel, understanding from the prophecies of Jeremiah that the seventy years' captivity was now terminating, pours out his soul in fervent prayer to God, and earnestly supplicates pardon and restoration for his captive people, 1–12. When thus supplicating God in behalf of Israel, the angel Gabriel is sent to inform him of the seventy prophetic weeks, or four hundred and ninety natural years, which should elapse from the date of the edict to rebuild Jerusalem and the temple to the death of the Messiah, 20–27; a prophecy most exactly fulfilled by the event, according to the computation of the best chronologers. Dean Prideaux states the commencement of these seventy prophetic weeks to have been in the month Nisan, in the year of the Julian period 4256, which corresponds with A. M. 3546, B. C. 458, according to the Usherian account. How awfully are the Jews blinded, who, in contradiction to so clear a prophecy, still expect the Messiah who was cut off, and, after suffering, is entered into his glory!

A. M. cir. 3466. B. C. cir. 538. Ol. cir. LX. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 41.

IN the first year [a] of Darius the son of Ahasuerus, of the seed of the Medes, [b] which was made king over the realm of the Chaldeans;

2 In the first year of his reign I Daniel understood by books the number of the years, whereof the word of the LORD came to [c] Jeremiah the prophet, that he would accomplish seventy years in the desolations of Jerusalem.

3 [d] And I set my face unto the Lord GOD, to seek by prayer and supplications, with fasting, and sackcloth, and ashes:

4 And I prayed unto the LORD my God, and made my confession, and said, O [e] Lord, the great and dreadful God, keeping the covenant and mercy to them that love him, and to them that keep his commandments;

5 [f] We have sinned, and have committed iniquity, and have done wickedly, and have rebelled, even by departing from thy precepts and from thy judgments:

6 [g] Neither have we hearkened unto thy servants the prophets, which spake in thy name to our kings, our princes, and our fathers, and to all the people of the land.

7 O Lord, [h] righteousness [i] belongeth unto thee, but unto us confusion of faces, as at this day; to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and unto all Israel, that are near, and that are far off, through all the countries whither thou hast driven them, because of their trespass that they have trespassed against thee.

A. M. cir. 3466. B. C. cir. 538. Ol. cir. LX. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 41.

8 O Lord, to us belongeth [k] confusion of face, to our kings, to our princes, and to our fathers, because we have sinned against thee.

9 [l] To the Lord our God belong mercies and forgivenesses, though we have rebelled against him;

10 [m] Neither have we obeyed the voice of the LORD our God, to walk in his laws, which he set before us by his servants the prophets.

11 Yea, [n] all Israel have transgressed thy law, even by departing, that they might not obey thy voice; therefore the curse is poured upon us, and the oath that is written in the [o] law of Moses the servant of God, because we have sinned against him.

12 And he hath [p] confirmed his words, which he spake against us, and against our judges that judged us, by bringing upon us a great evil: [q] for under the whole heaven hath not been done as hath been done upon Jerusalem.

13 [r] As it is written in the law of Moses, all this evil is come upon us: [s] yet [t] made we not our prayer before the LORD our God, that we might turn from our iniquities, and understand thy truth.

[a] Chap. i. 21; v. 31; vi. 28.——[b] Or, in which he, &c. [c] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 21; Jer. xxv. 11, 12; xxix. 10.——[d] Neh. i. 4; chap. vi. 10: Jer. xxix. 12, 13; James iv. 8, 9, 10.——[e] Exod. xx. 6; Deut. vii. 9; Neh. i. 5; ix. 32.——[f] 1 Kings viii. 47, 48; Neh. i. 6, 7; ix. 33, 34; Psa. cvi. 6; Isa. lxiv. 5, 6, 7; Jer. xiv. 7; ver. 15; Bar. i. 17, 18.——[g] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 15, 16; ver. 10.——[h] Neh. ix. 33; Bar. i. 15.——[i] Or, thou hast, &c.

[k] Ver. 7; Bar. i. 15.——[l] Neh. ix. 17; Psa. cxxx. 4, 7.——[m] Ver. 6.——[n] Isa. i. 4, 5, 6; Jer. viii. 5, 10.——[o] Lev. xxvi. 14, &c.; Deut. xxvii. 15, &c.; xxviii. 15, &c.; xxix. 20, &c.; xxx. 17, 18; xxxi. 17, &c.; xxxii. 19, &c.; Lam. ii. 17.——[p] Zech. i. 6. [q] Lam. i. 12; ii. 13; Ezek. v. 9; Amos iii. 2.——[r] Lev. xxvi. 14, &c.; Deut. xxviii. 15; Lam. ii. 17.——[s] Isa. ix. 13; Jer. ii. 30; v. 3; Hos. vii. 7, 10.——[t] Heb. intreated we not the face of the, &c.

NOTES ON CHAP. IX.

Verse 1. In the first year of Darius] This is the same Darius the Mede, spoken of before, who succeeded Belshazzar, king of the Chaldeans. See chap. v. 31.

Verse 2. I Daniel understood by books] The prophecy referred to here is found Jer. xxv. 12; xxix. 10. The people must have been satisfied of the Divine inspiration of Jeremiah, or his prophecies would not have been so speedily collected nor so carefully preserved. It appears that there was a copy of them then in Daniel's hands.

Verse 3. I set my face—to seek by prayer] He found that the time of the promised deliverance could not be at any great distance; and as he saw nothing that indicated a speedy termination of their oppressive captivity, he was very much afflicted, and earnestly besought God to put a speedy end to it; and how earnestly he seeks, his own words show. He prayed, he supplicated, he fasted, he put sackcloth upon his body, and he put ashes upon his head. He uses that kind of prayer prescribed by Solomon in his prayer at the dedication of the temple. See 1 Kings viii. 47, 48.

Verse 4. Keeping the covenant] Fidelity and truth are characteristics of God. He had never yet broken his engagements to his followers, and was ever showing mercy to men.

Verse 7. All Israel, that are near, and that are far off] He prays both for Judah and Israel. The latter were more dispersed, and had been much longer in captivity.

Verse 9. Mercies and forgivenesses] From God's goodness flow God's mercies; from his mercies, forgivenesses.

Verse 11. Therefore the curse is poured upon us] It is probable that he alludes here to the punishment of certain criminals by pouring melted metal upon them; therefore he uses the word תהך tittach, it is poured out, like melted metal, for this is the proper meaning of the root נתך nathach.

A. M. cir. 3466. B. C. cir. 538. Ol. cir. LX. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 41.

14 Therefore hath the LORD [u] watched upon the evil, and brought it upon us: for [v] the LORD our God is righteous in all his works which he doeth: [w] for we obeyed not his voice.

15 And now, O Lord our God, [x] that hast brought thy people forth out of the land of Egypt with a mighty hand, and hast [y] gotten thee [z] renown, as at this day; [a] we have sinned, we have done wickedly.

16 O Lord, [b] according to all thy righteousness, I beseech thee, let thine anger and thy fury be turned away from thy city Jerusalem, [c] thy holy mountain: because for our sins, [d] and for the iniquities of our fathers, [e] Jerusalem and thy people [f] are become a reproach to all that are about us.

17 Now therefore, O our God, hear the prayer of thy servant, and his supplications, [g] and cause thy face to shine upon thy sanctuary [h] that is desolate, [i] for the Lord's sake.

18 [k] O my God, incline thine ear, and hear; open thine eyes, [l] and behold our desolations, and the city [m] which [n] is called by thy name: for we do not [o] present our supplications before thee for our righteousnesses, but for thy great mercies.

19 O Lord, hear; O Lord, forgive; O Lord, hearken and do; defer not, [p] for thine own sake, O my God: for thy city and thy people are called by thy name.

A. M. cir. 3466. B. C. cir. 538. Ol. cir. LX. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 41.

20 [q] And whiles I was speaking, and praying, and confessing my sin and the sin of my people Israel, and presenting my supplication before the LORD my God for the holy mountain of my God;

21 Yea, whiles I was speaking in prayer, even the man [r] Gabriel, whom I had seen in the vision at the beginning, being caused to fly [s] swiftly, [t] touched me [u] about the time of the evening oblation.

22 And he informed me, and talked with me, and said, O Daniel, I am now come forth [v] to give thee skill and understanding.

23 At the beginning of thy supplications the [w] commandment came forth, and [x] I am come to show thee; [y] for thou art [z] greatly beloved: therefore [a] understand the matter, and consider the vision.

24 Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people and upon thy holy city, [b] to finish the transgression, and [c] to make an end of sins, [d] and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up the vision [e] and [f] prophecy, [g] and to anoint the Most Holy.

---

[n] Jer. xxxi. 28; xliv. 27. — [v] Neh. ix. 33; ver. 7. — [w] Ver. 10. — [x] Exod. vi. 1, 6; xxxii. 11; 1 Kings viii. 51; Neh. i. 10. Jer. xxxii. 21. — [y] Heb. made thee a name. — [z] Exod. xiv. 18; Neh. ix. 10; Jer. xxxii. 20. — [a] Ver. 5. — [b] 1 Sam. xii. 7; Psa. xxxi. 1; lxvi. 2; Mic. vi. 4, 5. — [c] Ver. 20; Zech. viii. 3. [d] Exod. xx. 5. — [e] Lam. ii. 15, 16. — [f] Psa. xliv. 13, 14; lxxix. 4. — [g] Num. vi. 25; Psa. lxvii. 1; lxxx. 3, 7, 19. — [h] Lam. v. 18. — [i] Ver. 19; John xvi. 24. — [k] Isa. xxxvii. 17. — [l] Exod. iii. 7; Psa. lxxx. 14, &c. — [m] Jer. xxv. 29. — [n] Heb. whereupon thy name is called.

[o] Heb. cause to fall; Jer. xxxvi. 7. — [p] Psa. lxxix. 9, 10; cii. 15, 16. — [q] Psa. xxxii. 5; Isa. lxv. 24. — [r] Chap. viii. 16. [s] Heb. with weariness, or flight. — [t] Chap. viii. 18; x. 10, 16. [u] 1 Kings xviii. 36. — [v] Heb. to make thee skilful of understanding. [w] Heb. word. — [x] Chap. x. 12. — [y] Chap. x. 11, 19. — [z] Heb. a man of desires. — [a] Matt. xxiv. 15. — [b] Or, to restrain [c] Or, to seal up; Lam. iv. 22. — [d] Isa. liii. 10. — [e] Isa. liii. 11; Jer. xxiii. 5, 6; Heb. ix. 12; Rev. xiv. 6. — [f] Heb. prophet. — [g] Psalm xlv. 7; Luke i. 35; John i. 41; Hebrews ix. 11.

Verse 14. The Lord watched upon the evil] In consequence of our manifold rebellions he hath now watched for an opportunity to bring these calamities upon us.

Verse 17. And cause thy face to shine] Give us proof that thou art reconciled to us.

Verse 19. Thy city and thy people are called by thy name.] The holy city, the city of the great King. I think it scarcely possible for any serious man to read these impressive and pleading words without feeling a measure of the prophet's earnestness.

Verse 21. The man Gabriel] Or the angel Gabriel, who had appeared to me as a man. אישׁ ish is the same here as person—the person Gabriel.

Being caused to fly swiftly] God hears with delight such earnest, humble, urgent prayers; and sends the speediest answer. Gabriel himself was ordered on this occasion to make more than usual speed.

Verse 24. Seventy weeks are determined] This is a most important prophecy, and has given rise to a variety of opinions relative to the proper mode of explanation; but the chief difficulty, if not the only one, is to find out the time from which these seventy weeks should be dated. What is here said by the angel is not a direct answer to Daniel's prayer. He prays to know when the seventy weeks of the captivity are to end. Gabriel shows him that there are seventy weeks determined relative to a redemption from another sort of captivity, which shall commence with the going forth of the edict to restore and rebuild Jerusalem, and shall terminate with the death of Messiah the Prince, and the total abolition of the Jewish sacrifices. In the four following verses he enters into the particulars of this most important determination, and leaves them with Daniel for his comfort, who has left them to the Church of God for the confirmation of its faith, and a testimony to the truth of Divine revelation. They contain the fullest confirmation of Christianity,

A. M. cir. 3466. B. C. cir. 538. Ol. cir. LX. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 41.

25 [h] Know therefore and understand, that [i] from the going forth of the commandment [k] to restore and to build Jerusalem unto [l] the Messiah [m] the Prince shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks: the street [n] shall be built again, and the [o] wall, [p] even [q] in troublous times.

A. M. cir. 3466. B. C. cir. 538. Ol. cir. LX. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 41.

[h] Ver. 23; Matt. xxiv. 15.——[i] Ezra iv. 24; vi. 1, 15; vii. 1; Neh. ii. 1, 3, 5, 6, 8.——[k] Or, to build again Jerusalem; as 2 Sam. xv. 25; Psa. lxxi. 20.

[l] John i. 41; iv. 25.——[m] Isa. lv. 4.——[n] Heb. shall return and be builded.——[o] Or, breach, or ditch.——[p] Neh. iv. 8, 16, 17, 18. [q] Heb. in strait of times; Neh. vi. 15.

and a complete refutation of the Jewish cavils and blasphemies on this subject.

Of all the writers I have consulted on this most noble prophecy, Dean Prideaux appears to me the most clear and satisfactory. I shall therefore follow his method in my explanation, and often borrow his words.

Seventy weeks are determined—The Jews had Sabbatic years, Lev. xxv. 8, by which their years were divided into weeks of years, as in this important prophecy, each week containing seven years. The seventy weeks therefore here spoken of amount to four hundred and ninety years.

In ver. 24 there are six events mentioned which should be the consequences of the incarnation of our Lord:—

I. To finish (לכלא lechalle, to restrain) the transgression; which was effected by the preaching of the Gospel, and pouring out of the Holy Ghost among men.

II. To make an end of sins; rather ולהתם חטאות ulehathem chalaoth, "to make an end of sin-offerings;" which our Lord did when he offered his spotless soul and body on the cross once for all.

III. To make reconciliation (ולכפר ulechapper, "to make atonement or expiation") for iniquity; which he did by the once offering up of himself.

IV. To bring in everlasting righteousness, צדק עלמים tsedek olamim, that is, "the righteousness, or righteous ONE, of ages;" that person who had been the object of the faith of mankind, and the subject of the predictions of the prophets through all the ages of the world.

V. To seal up (ולחתם velachtom, "to finish or complete") the vision and prophecy; that is, to put an end to the necessity of any farther revelations, by completing the canon of Scripture, and fulfilling the prophecies which related to his person, sacrifice, and the glory that should follow.

VI. And to anoint the Most Holy, קדש קדשים kodesh kodashim, "the Holy of holies." משח mashach, to anoint, (from which comes משיח mashiach, the Messiah, the anointed one,) signifies in general, to consecrate or appoint to some special office. Here it means the consecration or appointment of our blessed Lord, the Holy One of Israel, to be the Prophet, Priest, and King of mankind.

Verse 25. From the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem] The foregoing events being all accomplished by Jesus Christ, they of course determine the prophecy to him. And if we reckon back four hundred and ninety years, we shall find the time of the going forth of this command.

Most learned men agree that the death of Christ happened at the passover in the month Nisan, in the four thousand seven hundred and forty-sixth year of the Julian period. Four hundred and ninety years, reckoned back from the above year, leads us directly to the month Nisan in the four thousand two hundred and fifty-sixth year of the same period; the very month and year in which Ezra had his commission from Artaxerxes Longimanus, king of Persia, (see Ezra vii. 9,) to restore and rebuild Jerusalem. See the commission in Ezra, chap. vii. 11–26, and Prideaux's Connexions, vol. ii. p. 380.

The above seventy weeks, or four hundred and ninety years, are divided, in ver. 25, into three distinct periods, to each of which particular events are assigned. The three periods are,—

I. Seven weeks, that is, forty-nine years.

II. Sixty-two weeks, that is, four hundred and thirty-four years.

III. One week, that is, seven years.

To the first period of seven weeks the restoration and repairing of Jerusalem are referred; and so long were Ezra and Nehemiah employed in restoring the sacred constitutions and civil establishments of the Jews, for this work lasted forty-nine years after the commission was given by Artaxerxes.

From the above seven weeks the second period of sixty-two weeks, or four hundred and thirty-four years more, commences, at the end of which the prophecy says, Messiah the Prince should come, that is, seven weeks, or forty-nine years, should be allowed for the restoration of the Jewish state; from which time till the public entrance of the Messiah on the work of the ministry should be sixty-two weeks, or four hundred and thirty-four years, in all four hundred and eighty-three years.

From the coming of our Lord, the third period is to be dated, viz., "He shall confirm the covenant with many for one week," that is, seven years, ver. 27.

This confirmation of the covenant must take in the ministry of John the Baptist with that of our Lord, comprehending the term of seven years, during the whole of which he might be well said to confirm or ratify the new covenant with mankind. Our Lord says, "The law was until John;" but from his first public preaching the kingdom of God, or Gospel dispensation, commenced.

These seven years, added to the four hundred and eighty-three, complete the four hundred and ninety years, or seventy prophetic weeks; so that the whole of this prophecy, from the times and corresponding events, has been fulfilled to the very letter.

Some imagine that the half of the last seven years is to be referred to the total destruction of the Jews by Titus, when the daily sacrifice for ever ceased to be offered; and that the intermediate space of thirty-

A. M. cir. 3466. B. C. cir. 538. Ol. cir. LX. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 41.

26 And after threescore and two weeks [r] shall Messiah be cut off, [s] but [t] not for himself: [u] and [v] the people of the prince that shall come [w] shall destroy the city [x] and the sanctuary; [y] and the end thereof shall be [z] with a flood, and unto the end of the war [a] desolations are determined.

27 And he shall confirm [b] the [c] covenant with [d] many for one week: and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease, [e] and for the overspreading of [f] abominations he shall make it desolate, [g] even until the consummation, and that determined shall be poured [h] upon the desolate

A. M. cir. 3466. B. C. cir. 538. Ol. cir. LX. 3. Servii Tullii, R. Roman., cir. annum 41

[r] Isa. liii. 8; Mark ix. 12; Luke xxiv. 26, 46.——[s] 1 Pet. ii. 21; iii. 18.——[t] Or, and shall have nothing; John xiv. 30.——[u] Or, and [the Jews] they shall be no more his people; chap. xi. 17, or, and the Prince's [Messiah's, ver. 25] future people.——[v] Matt. xxii. 7.——[w] Luke xix. 44.——[x] Matt. xxiv. 2.——[y] Matt. xxiv. 6, 14. [z] Isa. viii. 7, 8; chap. xi. 10, 22; Nah. i. 8.

[a] Or, it shall be cut off by desolations.——[b] Or, a.——[c] Isa. xlii. 6; lv. 3; Jer. xxxi. 31; Ezek. xvi. 60, 61, 62.——[d] Isa. liii. 11; Matt. xxvi. 28; Rom. v. 15, 19; Heb. ix. 28.——[e] Or, and upon the battlements shall be the idols of the desolator.——[f] Matt. xxiv. 15; Mark xiii. 14; Luke xxi. 20.——[g] See Isa. x. 22, 23; xxviii. 22, chap. xi. 36; Luke xxi. 24; Rom. xi. 26.——[h] Or, upon the desolator.

seven years, from our Lord's death till the destruction of the city, is passed over as being of no account in relation to the prophecy, and that it was on this account that the last seven years are divided. But Dean Prideaux thinks that the whole refers to our Lord's preaching connected with that of the Baptist. וחצי vachatsi, says he, signifies in the half part of the week; that is, in the latter three years and a half in which he exercised himself in the public ministry, he caused, by the sacrifice of himself, all other sacrifices and oblations to cease, which were instituted to signify his.

In the latter parts of ver. 26 and 27 we find the THIRD PART of this great prophecy, which refers to what should be done after the completion of these seventy weeks.

Verse 26. And the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary] By the "prince" Titus, the son of Vespasian, is plainly intended; and "the people of that prince" are no other than the Romans, who, according to the prophecy, destroyed the sanctuary, הקדש hakkodesh, the holy place or temple, and, as a flood, swept away all, till the total destruction of that obstinate people finished the war.

Verse 27. And for the overspreading of abominations he shall make it desolate] This clause is remarkably obscure. כנף שקוצים משמם kenaph shikkutsim meshomem, "And upon the wing of abominations causing amazement." This is a literal translation of the place; but still there is no determinate sense. A Hebrew MS., written in the thirteenth century, has preserved a very remarkable reading here, which frees the place from all embarrassment. Instead of the above reading, this valuable MS. has ובהיכל יהיה שיקוין ubeheyehal yihyey shikkuts; that is, "And in the temple (of the Lord) there shall be abomination." This makes the passage plain, and is strictly conformable to the facts themselves, for the temple was profaned; and it agrees with the prediction of our Lord, who said that the abomination that maketh desolate should stand in the holy place, Matt. xxiv. 15, and quotes the words as spoken δια Δανιηλ του προφητου, by Daniel the prophet. That the above reading gives the true sense, there can be little doubt, because it is countenanced by the most eminent ancient versions.

The Vulgate reads, Et erit in templo abominatio, "And in the temple there shall be abomination."

The Septuagint, Και επι το ιερον βδελυγμα των ερημωσεων, "And upon the temple there shall be the abomination of desolation."

The Arabic, "And upon the sanctuary there shall be the abomination of ruin."

The above reading is celebrated by J. D. Michaelis, Epist. De Ebdom. Dan., p. 120: Vix insignius exemplum reperiri posse autumem, ostensuro in codicibus Hebræis latere lectiones dignissimas quæ eruantur, &c. "A more illustrious example can, I think, hardly be found, to show that various readings lie hid in Hebrew MSS., which are most worthy of being exhibited." Vid. Bib. Heb. KENNICOTT, Dis. Gen.

I have only to add that this mode of reckoning years and periods by weeks is not solely Jewish. Macrobius, in his book on Scipio's dream, has these remarkable words: Sed a sexta usque ad septimam septimanam fit quidem diminutio, sed occulta, et quæ detrimentum suum aperta defectione non prodat: ideo nonnullarum rerumpublicarum hic mos est, ut post sextam ad militiam nemo cogatur; Somn. Scip., lib. i. c. vi., in fine. "From the sixth to the seventh week, there is a diminution of strength; but it is hidden, and does not manifest itself by any outward defect. Hence it was the custom in some republics not to oblige a man to go to the wars after the sixth week, i. e., after forty-two years of age."

Having now gone through the whole of this important prophecy, and given that interpretation which the original seemed best to warrant, I shall next proceed to notice the principal various readings found in the Collections of Kennicott and De Rossi, with those from my own MSS., which the reader may collate with the words of the common printed text.

Verse 24. שבעים שבעים נחתך על עמך ועל עיר קדשך
לכלא הפשע ולחתם חטאות
ולכפר עון ולהביא צדק עלמים
ולחתם חזון ונביא ולמשח קדש קדשים:

Verse 25. והדע והשכל
מן מצא דבר להשיב ולבנות ירושלם
עד משיח נגיד שבעים שבעה
ושבעים ששים ושנים תשוב
ונבנתה רחוב וחרוץ ובצוק העתים

Verse 26. ואחרי השבעים ששים ושנים
יכרת משיח ואין לו.

והעיר והקדש ישחית עם נגיר הבא
וקצו בשטף.
ועד קץ מלחמה נחרצת שממות:
Verse 27. והגביר ברית לרבים שבוע אחד.
והצי השבוע ישבית זבח ומנחה.
ועל כנף שקוצים משמם.
ועד כלה ונחרצה תתך על שומם:

Of the whole passage Houbigant gives the following translation:—

Verse 24. Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people, and the city of thy sanctuary:
That sin may be restrained, and transgressions have an end;
That iniquity may be expiated, and an everlasting righteousness brought in;
That visions and prophecies may be sealed up, and the Holy of holies anointed.
Verse 25. Know therefore and understand:—
From the edict which shall be promulgated, to return and rebuild Jerusalem, there shall be seven weeks.
Then it shall be fully rebuilt, with anxiety, in difficult times.
Thence, to the Prince Messiah, there shall be sixty-two weeks.
Verse 26. And after sixty-two weeks the Messiah shall be slain, and have no justice.
Afterwards he shall waste the city and the sanctuary, by the prince that is to come.
And his end shall be in straits; and to the end of the war desolation is appointed.
Verse 27. And for one week he shall confirm a covenant with many;
And in the middle of the week he shall abrogate sacrifice and offering;
And in the temple there shall be the abomination of desolation,
Until the ruin which is decreed rush on after the desolation.

In this translation there are some peculiarities.

Instead of "the street shall be built again, and the wall," ver. 25, he translates רחוב וחרוץ (with the prefix ב beth instead of ו vau in the latter word,) "it shall be fully (the city and all its walls) rebuilt with anxiety."

Instead of ואין לו "but not for himself," he translates, "Nor shall justice be done him;" supposing that דין "justice" was originally in the verse.

Instead of "the people of the prince," ver. 26, he translates "by the prince," using עם im as a preposition, instead of עם am, "the people."

Instead of "and for the overspreading," he translates ועל כנף "in the temple;" following the Septuagint, και επι το ἱερον. This rendering is at least as good as ours: but see the marginal readings here, and the preceding notes.

Houbigant contends also that the arrangement of the several members in these passages is confused. He proposes one alteration, which is important, viz., From the promulgation of the decree to rebuild Jerusalem shall be seven weeks; and unto Messiah the prince, sixty-two weeks. All these alterations he vindicates in his notes at the end of this chapter. In the text I have inserted Houbigant's dots, or marks of distinction between the different members of the verses Various Readings.

Verse 24. שבעים, שבועים weeks written full, so as to prevent mistakes, in thirteen of Kennicott's, four of De Rossi's, and one ancient of my own.

שבעים Seventy-one of Kennicott's, and one of De Rossi's, have שבועים "weeks, weeks, weeks;" that is, "many weeks:" but this is a mere mistake.

לכלא "to restrain." לכלה "to consume," is the reading of twenty-nine of Kennicott's, thirteen of De Rossi's, and one ancient of my own.

ולחתם "and to seal up." Forty-three of Kennicott's, twelve of De Rossi's, and one of my own, have ולהתם "to make an end." One reads ולחתום, more full.

חטאות "sins." חטאת "sin," in the singular, is the reading of twenty-six of De Rossi's; and so, in the second instance where this word occurs, two of my MSS.

עלמים "everlasting." Two of my oldest MSS. read שלמים, and so in the next instance.

ונביא "and the prophet." The conjunction is omitted by two of Kennicott's.

והשכל "and understand." One of my MSS. has והשכיל

Verse 25. כן מוצא "from the publication." One MS. of De Rossi's omits the מן "from," and instead of either, one of my oldest MSS. has למוצא "to the publication."

כישיח "Messiah." Nine MSS. read the word with the point shcva, which makes it read, in regimine, "the anointed of the prince." But this is evidently the effect of carelessness, or rather design.

שבעה "seven." Two MSS. add the conjunction ו vau, "and."

ולבנות "and to build." One of mine omits the conjunction.

שבעים שבעה "seven weeks." One of Kennicott's has שבעים שנה "seventy years."

ושבעים "and weeks." One of Kennicott's has ושבוע "and a week."

ששים "sixty." A few add the conjunction ו vau, "and sixty;" and another has ששה "six;" and another שבעים "seventy." Wherever this word signifies weeks, two of my oldest MSS. write it full, שבועים. In one of my MSS. השבועים ששים are omitted in the text, but added by a later hand in the margin.

וחרוץ "and the ditch." One MS. has העיר "the city." And for רחב "street," one of mine has רחוב of the same meaning, but more full.

ובצוק "and in straits," or anxiety. One MS. without and, as the Vulgate and Septuagint.

Verse 26. והקדש "and the holy place or sanctuary." But two of my most ancient MSS., and four of Kennicott's, leave out the ו vau, and read יהעיר הקדש "and the holy city," or "city of holiness," instead of "the city and sanctuary." In one MS. ו is omitted in והעיר.

וקצו "and its end." One MS. omits the conjunction ו and; one omits the following קץ "the end;" reading thus: "and unto the war." But a more singular reading is that of one of my own MSS written about A. D. 1136, which has וקיצו "and its summer."

ששים "sixty." But one of Kennicott's MSS. has ששים שבעים "sixty weeks;" and another adds the conjunction, AND sixty.

ישחית "shall destroy." But one of De Rossi's has ישחת "shall be destroyed."

עם "the people." עם im, "with," is the reading of one of Kennicott's, with the Septuagint, Theodotion, Syriac Hexapla, Vulgate, and Arabic.

בשטף "with a flood." One MS. has השטף "the flood."

ועל בנף "and upon the wing." Nearly twenty MSS. have ועד "and unto," &c.

Verse 27. ועד קץ "and unto the end." ערד "to the end;" and one has ועל "and upon."

קץ "the end." One has עת "the time;" and another both, עת קץ "the time of the end."

ועל כנף שקוצים "and upon the wing (or battlement) abomination." Instead of this, one of the Parisian MSS. numbered three hundred and thirteen in Kennicott's, has ובהיכל יהיה שיקוץ "and in the temple there shall be abomination." See the preceding notes. This is a similar reading to Theodotion, the Vulgate, Septuagint, Syriac Hexapla, and the Arabic; and is countenanced by our Lord, Matt. xxiv. 15. After all that has been said on this reading, (which may be genuine, but is less liable to suspicion, as the MS. appears to be the work of some Christian; it is written from the left to the right hand, and is accompanied by the Vulgate Latin,) if this be an attempt to accommodate the Hebrew to the Vulgate, it should be stated that they who have examined this MS. closely, have asserted that there is no evidence that the writer has endeavoured to conform the Hebrew to the Latin text, unless this be accounted such. The ancient versions give this reading great credit.

שקוץ ם "abominations." One of mine has less fully שקצים.

כשמם "desolation." One of mine has more fully כשומם.

ועד "and unto," is wanting in one of mine; ועל "and upon" is the reading in one other.

על שוכם "until the desolation." שוכם "the desolation." One of mine has שכם without the ו vau. על is wanting; but is added in the margin, by a later hand, in another of these ancient MSS.

I have thus set down almost all the variations mentioned by Kennicott and De Rossi, and those furnished by three ancient MSS. of my own, that the learned reader may avail himself of every help to examine thoroughly this important propheey. Upwards of thirty various readings in the compass of four verses, and several of them of great moment.

CHAPTER X.

This and the two following chapters give an account of Daniel's last vision, wherein the succession of the Persian and Grecian monarchies is described, together with the wars that should take place between Syria and Egypt under the latter monarchy. The last part of the vision (from chap. xi. 36) seems to relate chiefly to the persecutions of the Church in the times of Antichrist, till it be purified from all its pollutions; after which will follow that glorious kingdom of the saints spoken of in the seventh and eighth chapters. This chapter begins with an account of Daniel's fasting and humiliation, 1–3. Then we have a description of the Divine person who appeared to the prophet, not unlike him who appeared to the apostle in the isle of Patmos, 4–21. See Rev. i. 10–16.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Ol. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

IN the third year of Cyrus king of Persia a thing was revealed unto Daniel, [a] whose name was called Belteshazzar; [b] and the thing was true, [c] but the time appointed was [d] long; and [e] he understood the thing, and had understanding of the vision.

2 In those days I Daniel was mourning three [f] full weeks.

3 I ate no [g] pleasant bread, neither came flesh nor wine in my mouth, [h] neither did I anoint myself at all, till three whole weeks were fulfilled.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Ol. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

4 And in the four and twentieth day of the first month, as I was by the side of the great river, which is [i] Hiddekel;

5 Then [k] I lifted up mine eyes, and looked,

[a] Chap. i. 7. — [b] Chap. viii. 26; Rev. xix. 9. — [c] Ver. 14. [d] Heb. great. — [e] Chap. i. 17; viii. 16.

[f] Heb. weeks of days. — [g] Heb. bread of desires. — [h] Matt. vi. 17. [i] Gen. ii. 14. — [k] Josh. v. 13.

NOTES ON CHAP. X.

Verse 1. In the third year of Cyrus] Which answers to the first year of Darius the Mede.

The time appointed was long] וצבא גדול vetsaba gadol, but the warfare long; there will be many contentions and wars before these things can be accomplished.

Verse 2. I—was mourning three full weeks.] The weeks are most probably dated from the time of the termination of the last vision. Calmet proves this by several reasons.

Verse 3. I ate no pleasant bread] This fast was rather a general abstinence; living all the while on coarse and unsavoury food; drinking nothing but water; not using the bath, and most probably wearing haircloth next the skin, during the whole of the time.

Verse 4. By the side of—Hiddekel] The same as

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Ol. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

and [l] behold [m] a certain man clothed in linen, whose loins were [n] girded with [o] fine gold of Uphaz:

6 His body also was [p] like the beryl, and his face [q] as the appearance of lightning, [r] and his eyes as lamps of fire, and his arms [s] and his feet like in colour to polished brass, [t] and the voice of his words like the voice of a multitude.

7 And I Daniel [u] alone saw the vision: for the men that were with me saw not the vision; but a great quaking fell upon them, so that they fled to hide themselves.

8 Therefore I was left alone, and saw this great vision, [v] and there remained no strength in me: for my [w] comeliness [x] was turned in me into corruption, and I retained no strength.

9 Yet heard I the voice of his words: [y] and when I heard the voice of his words, then was I in a deep sleep on my face, and my face toward the ground.

10 [z] And, behold, a hand touched me, which [a] set me upon my knees and upon the palms of my hands.

11 And he said unto me, O Daniel, [b] a [c] man greatly beloved, understand the words that I speak unto thee, and [d] stand upright: for unto thee am I now sent. And when he had spoken this word unto me, I stood trembling.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Ol. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

12 Then said he unto me, [e] Fear not, Daniel: for from the first day that thou didst set thine heart to understand, and to chasten thyself before thy God, [f] thy words were heard, and I am come for thy words.

13 [g] But the prince of the kingdom of Persia withstood me one and twenty days: but, lo, [h] Michael, [i] one of the chief princes, came to help me; and I remained there with the kings of Persia.

14 Now I am come to make thee understand what shall befall thy people [k] in the latter days: [l] for yet the vision is for many days.

15 And when he had spoken such words unto me, [m] I set my face toward the ground, and I became dumb.

16 And, behold, [n] one like the similitude of the sons of men [o] touched my lips: then I

[l] Chap. xii. 6, 7.——[m] Heb. one man.——[n] Rev. i. 13, 14, 15; xv. 6.——[o] Jer. x. 9.——[p] Ezek. i. 16.——[q] Ezek. i. 14.——[r] Rev. i. 14; xix. 12.——[s] Ezek. i. 7; Rev. i. 15.——[t] Ezek. i. 24; Rev. i. 15.——[u] 2 Kings vi. 17; Acts ix. 7.——[v] Chap. viii. 27.——[w] Or, vigour.——[x] Chap. vii. 28.——[y] Chap. viii. 18.——[z] Jer. i 9; ch. ix. 21; Rev. i. 17.——[a] Heb. moved.

[b] Chap. ix. 23.——[c] Heb. a man of desires.——[d] Heb. stand upon thy standing.——[e] Rev. i. 17.——[f] Chap. ix. 3, 4, 22, 23; Acts x. 4.——[g] Ver. 20.——[h] Ver. 21; chap. xii. 1; Jude 9; Rev. xii. 7.——[i] Or, the first.——[k] Gen. xlix. 1; chap. ii. 28.——[l] Chap. viii. 26; ver. 1; Hab. ii. 3.——[m] Ver. 9; chap. viii. 18.——[n] Chap. viii. 15.——[o] Ver. 10; Jer. i. 9.

the Tigris, the great river of Assyria; as the Euphrates of Syria, and the Nile of Egypt.

Verse 5. Clothed in linen] The description is intended to point out the splendour of the garments.

Gold of Uphaz] The same as Ophir.

Verse 6. His body also was like the beryl] The description of this person is very similar to that of our Lord in Rev. i. 13–15.

Verse 7. The men that were with me saw not the vision] An exactly parallel case with what occurred at the conversion of Saul of Tarsus, Acts ix. 7. There was a Divine influence which they all felt, but only Daniel saw the corporeal appearance.

Verse 9. Was I in a deep sleep] I fell into a swoon.

Verse 10. A hand touched me] Nothing was apparent or palpable but a hand. A hand had written Belshazzar's fate upon the wall; and the hand is frequently mentioned when the power or majesty of God is intended. Perhaps by hand God himself may be meant. It is remarkable that in a very ancient MS. of the Septuagint, more than a thousand years old, now in the imperial library of Vienna, adorned with paintings which have been engraved for the catalogue of Lambechius, and transferred to that of Nesselius, all the appearances of God are represented by a hand in the clouds.

Verse 12. I am come for thy words] On account of thy prayers I am sent to comfort and instruct thee.

Verse 13. But the prince of the kingdom of Persia withstood me] I think it would go far to make a legend or a precarious tale of this important place to endeavour to maintain that either a good or evil ANGEL is intended here. Cyrus alone was the prince of Persia, and God had destined him to be the deliverer of his people; but there were some matters, of which we are not informed, that caused him to hesitate for some time. Fearing, probably, the greatness of the work, and not being fully satisfied of his ability to execute it, he therefore for a time resisted the secret inspirations which God had sent him. The opposition might be in reference to the building of the temple.

But lo, Michael] Gabriel, who speaks, did not leave Cyrus till Michael came to take his place. Michael, he who is like God, sometimes appears to signify the Messiah, at other times the highest or chief archangel. Indeed there is no archangel mentioned in the whole Scripture but this one. See Jude 9; Rev. xii. 7.

Verse 14. For yet the vision is for many days.] There are many things which remain yet to be revealed, and the time of their accomplishment is very distant.

Verse 15. I set my face toward the ground] He was standing upright, ver. 11, and he now bent his body in reverence, and looked down upon the ground.

And became dumb.] Found himself unable to speak.

Verse 16. Like the similitude of the sons of men]

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., I.

opened my mouth, and spake, and said unto him that stood before me, O my lord, by the vision [p] my sorrows are turned upon me, and I have retained no strength.

17 For how can [q] the servant of this my lord talk with this my lord? for as for me, straightway there remained no strength in me, neither is there breath left in me.

18 Then there came again and touched me one like the appearance of a man, and he strengthened me, 19 [r] And said, O man greatly beloved, [s] fear not: peace be unto thee, be strong, yea, be strong. And when he had spoken unto me, I was strengthened, and said, Let my lord speak, for thou hast strengthened me.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., I.

20 Then said he, Knowest thou wherefore I come unto thee? and now will I return to fight [t] with the king of Persia: and when I am gone forth, lo, the prince of Grecia shall come.

21 But I will show thee that which is noted in the scripture of truth: and there is none that [u] holdeth with me in these things, [v] but Michael your prince.

[p] Ver. 8.——[q] Or, this servant of my lord.——[r] Ver. 11.——[s] Judg. vi. 23.

[t] Ver. 13.——[u] Heb. strengtheneth himself.——[v] Ver. 13; Jude 9; Rev. xii. 7.

I think Gabriel is here meant, who appeared to Daniel in a human form; and so in ver. 18, and see also chap. ix. 21.

Touched my lips] Before this he was unable to speak.

By the vision] The vision that I have already had, and of which I have not a proper knowledge, has greatly afflicted me, because I see it intimates grievous calamities to my people. See chap. ix. 26.

Verse 17. Neither is there breath] He could not breathe freely; he was almost suffocated with sorrow.

Verse 19. O man, greatly beloved] איש חמדות ish chamudoth, man of delights; the most amiable of men.

Let my lord speak] I am now so strengthened and encouraged, that I shall be able to bear any revelation that thou mayest make.

Verse 20. Knowest thou wherefore I come] So high art thou in the favour of God, that he hath sent me unto thee to give thee farther satisfaction; though I was elsewhere employed upon a most important mission, and I must speedily return to accomplish it, viz.:—

To fight with the king of Persia] To remove all the scruples of Cyrus, and to excite him to do all that God designs him to do for the restoration of my people, and the rebuilding of the city and temple of Jerusalem. Nothing less than a supernatural agency in the mind of Cyrus can account for his decree in favour of the Jews. He had no natural, no political inclination to it; and his reluctance to obey the heavenly motions is here represented as a fight between him and the angel.

The prince of Grecia shall come.] I believe this refers to Alexander the Great, who was to destroy the Persian empire. See the second and third verses of the following chapter.

Verse 21. Noted in the scripture of truth] Perhaps this refers to what he had already written down. See the preceding visions, which Daniel did not fully understand, though a general impression from them had filled his heart with sorrow.

Michael your prince.] The archangel mentioned before, ver. 13, and who has been always supposed to be appointed by God as the guardian of the Jewish nation. It appears that God chose to make use of the ministry of angels in this work; that angels, as they could be only in one place at one time, could not produce influence where they were not; and that, to carry on the operation on the mind of the Persian king, it was necessary that either Gabriel or Michael should be present with him, and when one went on another commission another took his place; see ver. 13. But we know so little of the invisible world that we cannot safely affirm any thing positively.

CHAPTER XI.

This chapter gives a more particular explanation of those events which were predicted in the eighth chapter. The prophet had foretold the partition of Alexander's kingdom into four parts. Two of these, in which were included Egypt and Syria, the one to the north, the other to the south, in respect of Judea, appear to take up the chief attention of the prophet, as his people were particularly concerned in their fate; these being the countries in which by far the greatest number of the Jews were, and still are, dispersed. Of these countries he treats (according to the views of the most enlightened expositors) down to the conquest of Macedon, A. M. 3836, B. C. 168, when he begins to speak of the Romans, 1–30; and then of the Church under that power, 31–35. This leads him to speak of Antichrist, who was to spring up in that quarter, 36–39; and of those powers which at the TIME of the end, or the latter days of the Roman monarchy, (as this term is generally understood,) were to push at it, and overthrow many countries, 40–43. By the king of the SOUTH in the fortieth verse, the dominion of the Saracens, or Arabs, is supposed to be intended, which was an exceeding great plague to the Roman empire in the east, and also to several papistical countries, for the space of one hundred and fifty years, i. e. from A. D. 612, when Mohammed and his followers first began their depredations, to A. D. 762, when Bagdad was built, and made the capital of the caliphs of the house of Abbas; from which epoch the Saracens became a more settled people. By the king of the NORTH in the same verse the prophet is supposed by some to design that great scourge of eastern Christendom, the Ottoman or Othman empire, by which, after about a hundred and fifty years of almost uninterrupted hostilities, the Roman empire in the east was completely overturned, A. D. 1453. The chapter concludes with a prediction of the final overthrow of this northern power, and of the manner in which this great event shall be accomplished, 44, 45. But it should be observed that, notwithstanding the very learned observations of Bishop Newton and others upon this chapter, their scheme of interpretation presents very great and insurmountable difficulties; among which the very lengthy detail of events in the Syrian and Egyptian histories, comprising a period of less than two hundred years, and the rather uncouth transition to the incomparably greater transactions in Antichristian times, and of much longer duration, which are passed over with unaccountable brevity, are not the least. On all these subjects, however, the reader must judge for himself. See the notes.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

ALSO I, [a] in the first year of [b] Darius the Mede, even I, stood to confirm and to strengthen him.

2 And now will I show thee the truth. Behold, there shall stand up yet three kings in Persia; and the fourth shall be far richer than they all: and by his strength through his riches he shall stir up all against the realm of Grecia.

3 And [c] a mighty king shall stand up, that shall rule with great dominion, and [d] do according to his will.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

4 And when he shall stand up, [e] his kingdom shall be broken, and shall be divided toward the four winds of heaven, and not to his posterity, [f] nor according to his dominion which he ruled: for his kingdom shall be plucked up, even for others beside those.

[a] Chap. ix. 1.——[b] Chap. v. 31.——[c] Chap. vii. 6; viii. 5.——[d] Chap. viii. 4; ver. 16, 36.——[e] Chap. viii. 8.——[f] Chap. viii. 22.

NOTES ON CHAP. XI.

Verse 1. In the first year of Darius the Mede] This is a continuation of the preceding discourse. Bp. Newton, who is ever judicious and instructing, remarks: It is the usual method of the Holy Spirit to make the latter prophecies explanatory of the former; and thus revelation "is a shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day." The four great empires shown to Nebuchadnezzar, under the symbol of a great image, were again more particularly represented to Daniel under the forms of four great wild beasts. In like manner, the memorable events that were revealed to Daniel in the vision of the ram and he-goat, are here more clearly revealed in this last vision by an angel; so that this latter prophecy may not improperly be said to be a comment on the former. It comprehends many signal events. The types, figures, and symbols of the things are not exhibited in this, as in most other visions, and then expounded by the angel; but the angel relates the whole: and, not by way of vision, but by narration, informs Daniel of that which is noted in the Scripture of truth, chap. x. 21.

Verse 2. There shall stand up yet three kings] Gabriel had already spoken of Cyrus, who was now reigning; and after him three others should arise. These were, 1. Cambyses, the son of Cyrus. 2. Smerdis, the Magian, who was an impostor, who pretended to be another son of Cyrus. And, 3. Darius, the son of Hystaspes, who married Mandane, the daughter of Cyrus.

Cambyses reigned seven years and five months; Smerdis reigned only seven months; and Darius Hystaspes reigned thirty-six years.

The fourth shall be far richer than they all] This was Xerxes, the son of Darius, of whom Justin says: "He had so great an abundance of riches in his kingdom, that although rivers were dried up by his numerous armies, yet his wealth remained unexhausted."

He shall stir up all against the realm of Grecia.] His military strength was such, that Herodotus, who lived in that time, informs us that his army amounted to five millions, two hundred and eighty-three thousand, two hundred and twenty men. Besides these, the Carthaginians furnished him with an army of three hundred thousand men, and a fleet of two hundred ships. He led an army against the Greeks of eight hundred thousand men, and twelve hundred and seven ships, with three banks of rowers each. As he marched along, he obliged all the people of the countries through which he passed to join him.

Verse 3. A mighty king shall stand up] This was Alexander the Great. It is not said that this mighty king shall stand up against Xerxes, for he was not born till one hundred years after that monarch; but simply that he should stand up, i. e., that he should reign in Greece.

Verse 4. His kingdom shall be broken] Shall, after his death, be divided among his four chief generals, as we have seen before. See chap. viii. 22.

And not to his posterity] The family of Alexander had a most tragical end: 1. His wife Statira was murdered soon after his death by his other wife Roxana. 2. His brother Aridæus, who succeeded him, was killed, together with his wife Euridice, by command of Olympias, Alexander's mother, after he had been king about six years and some months. 3. Olympias herself was killed by the soldiers in revenge. 4. Alexander Ægus, his son, together with his mother Roxana, was slain by order of Cassander. 5. Two years after, his other son Hercules, with his mother Barsine, was privately murdered by Polysperchon; so

A. M. 3470. B. C. 531. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

5 And the king of the south shall be strong, and one of his princes; and he shall be strong above him, and have dominion; his dominion shall be a great dominion.

6 And in the end of years they [g] shall join themselves together: for the king's daughter of the south shall come to the king of the north to make [h] an agreement: but she shall not retain the power of the arm; neither shall he stand, nor his arm: but she shall be given up, and they that brought her, and [i] he that begat her, and he that strengthened her in these times.

7 But out of a branch of her roots shall one stand up [k] in his estate, which shall come with an army, and shall enter into the fortress of the king of the north, and shall deal against them, and shall prevail:

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

8 And shall also carry captives into Egypt their gods, with their princes, and with [l] their precious vessels of silver and of gold; and he shall continue more years than the king of the north.

9 So the king of the south shall come into his kingdom, and shall return into his own land.

10 But his sons [m] shall be stirred up, and shall assemble a multitude of great forces:

[g] Heb. shall associate themselves.——[h] Heb. rights.——[i] Or, whom she brought forth

[k] Or, in his place, or office; ver. 20.——[l] Heb. vessels of their desire.——[m] Or, shall war.

that in fifteen years after his death not one of his family or posterity remained alive!

"Blood calls for blood." He (Alexander) was the great butcher of men. He was either poisoned, or killed himself by immoderate drinking, when he was only thirty-two years and eight months old: and a retributive Providence destroyed all his posterity, so that neither root nor branch of them was left on the face of the earth. Thus ended Alexander, the great butcher; and thus ended his family and posterity.

Verse 5. The king of the south] This was Ptolemy Lagus, one of his generals, who had the government of Egypt, Libya, &c., which are on the south of Judea. He was strong, for he had added Cyprus, Phœnicia, Caria, &c., to his kingdom of Egypt.

And one of his princes—shall be strong above him] This was Seleucus Nicator, who possessed Syria, Babylon, Media, and the neighbouring countries. This was the king of the north, for his dominions lay north of Judea.

Verse 6. In the end of years] Several historical circumstances are here passed by.

The king's daughter of the south] Berenice, daughter of Ptolemy Philadelphus, king of Egypt, was married to Antiochus Theos, king of Syria. These two sovereigns had a bloody war for some years; and they agreed to terminate it by the above marriage, on condition that Antiochus would put away his wife Laodice and her children, which he did: and Berenice having brought an immense fortune to her husband, all things appeared to go on well for a time.

But she shall not retain the power of the arm] זרע zaro, her posterity, shall not reign in that kingdom.

But she shall be given up] Antiochus recalled his former wife Laodice and her children; and she, fearing that he might recall Berenice, caused him to be poisoned and her to be murdered, and set her son Callinicus upon the throne.

And they that brought her] Her Egyptian women, striving to defend their mistress, were many of them killed.

And he that begat her] Or, as the margin, "he whom she brought forth;" the son being murdered, as well as the mother, by order of Laodice.

And he that strengthened her] Probably her father Ptolemy, who was excessively fond of her, and who had died a few years before.

Verse 7. But out of a branch of her roots] A branch from the same root from which she sprang. This was Ptolemy Euergetes, her brother, who, to avenge his sister's death, marched with a great army against Seleucus Callinicus, took some of his best places, indeed all Asia, from Mount Taurus to India, and returned to Egypt with an immense booty, forty thousand talents of silver, precious vessels, and images of their gods two thousand five hundred, without Callinicus daring to offer him battle. I can but touch on these historic facts, for fear of extending these notes to an immoderate length.

Verse 8. He shall continue more years] Seleucus Callinicus died (an exile) by a fall from his horse; and Ptolemy Euergetes survived him four or five years. —Bp. Newton.

Verse 9. So the king of the south] Ptolemy Euergetes—

Shall come into his kingdom] That of Seleucus Callinicus.

And shall return] Having heard that a sedition had taken place in Egypt, Ptolemy Euergetes was obliged to return speedily in order to repress it; else he had wholly destroyed the kingdom of Callinicus.

Verse 10. But his sons shall be stirred up] That is, the sons of Callinicus, who were Seleucus Ceraunus and Antiochus, afterwards called the Great.

Shall assemble a multitude] Seleucus Ceraunus did assemble a multitude of forces in order to recover his father's dominions; but, not having money to pay them, they became mutinous, and he was poisoned by two of his own generals. His brother Antiochus was then proclaimed king; so that one only of the sons did certainly come, and overflow, and pass through; he retook Seleucia, and regained Syria. He then returned, and overcame Nicolaus the Egyptian general; and seemed disposed to invade Egypt, and one shall certainly come, [n] and overflow, and pass through: [o] then shall he return, and be stirred up, [p] even to his fortress.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

11 And the king of the south shall be moved with choler, and shall come forth and fight with him, even with the king of the north: and he shall set forth a great multitude; but the multitude shall be given into his hand.

12 And when he hath taken away the multitude, his heart shall be lifted up; and he shall cast down many ten thousands: but he shall not be strengthened by it.

13 For the king of the north shall return, and shall set forth a multitude greater than the former, and shall certainly come [q] after certain years with a great army and with much riches.

14 And in those times there shall many stand up against the king of the south: also [r] the robbers of thy people shall exalt themselves to establish the vision; but they shall fall.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

15 So the king of the north shall come, and cast up a mount, and take [s] the most fenced cities: and the arms of the south shall not withstand, neither [t] his chosen people, neither shall there be any strength to withstand.

16 But he that cometh against him [u] shall do according to his own will, and [v] none shall stand before him: and he shall stand in the [w] glorious [x] land, which by his hand shall be consumed.

17 He shall also [y] set his face to enter with the strength of his whole kingdom, and [z] up-

[n] Isa. viii. 8; chap. ix. 26.——[o] Or, then shall he be stirred up again.——[p] Ver. 7.——[q] Heb. at the end of times, even years; chap. iv. 16; xii. 7.——[r] Heb. the children of robbers.——[s] Heb. the city of munitions.

[t] Heb. the people of his choices.——[u] Chap. viii. 4, 7; ver. 3, 36. [v] Josh. i. 5.——[w] Or, goodly land; chap. viii. 9; ver. 41, 45. [x] Heb. the land of ornoment.——[y] 2 Chron. xx. 3.——[z] Or, much uprightness, or equal conditions.

as he came even to his fortress, to the frontiers of Egypt.

Verse 11. The king of the south] Ptolemy Philopater, who succeeded his father Euergetes.

Shall come forth and fight with him] He did come forth to Raphia, where he was met by Antiochus, when a terrible battle was fought between these two kings.

And he (Antiochus, the king of the north) shall set forth a great multitude] Amounting to sixty-two thousand foot, six thousand horse, and one hundred and two elephants; but yet the multitude was given into his hand, the hand of the king of the south; for Ptolemy gained a complete victory. Raphia, and other neighbouring towns, declared for the victor; and Antiochus was obliged to retreat with his scattered army to Antioch, from which he sent to solicit a peace. See 3 Macc. i. 1–6, and Polybius, lib. v.

Verse 12. His heart shall be lifted up] Had Ptolemy improved his victory, he might have dispossessed Antiochus of his whole empire; but giving way to pride, and a criminally sensual life, he made peace on dishonourable terms; and though he had gained a great victory, yet his kingdom was not strengthened by it, for his subjects were displeased, and rebelled against him, or at least became considerably disaffected.

Verse 13. The king of the north shall return—after certain years] In about fourteen years Antiochus did return, Philopater being dead, and his son Ptolemy Epiphanes being then a minor. He brought a much larger army and more riches; these he had collected in a late eastern expedition.

Verse 14. Many stand up against the king of the south] Antiochus, and Philip king of Macedon, united together to overrun Egypt.

Also the robbers of thy people] The Jews, who revolted from their religion, and joined Ptolemy, under Scopas,— Shall exalt themselves to establish the vision] That is, to build a temple like that of Jerusalem, in Egypt, hoping thereby to fulfil a prediction of Isaiah, chap. xxx. 18–25, which seemed to intimate that the Jews and the Egyptians should be one people. They now revolted from Ptolemy, and joined Antiochus; and this was the means of contributing greatly to the accomplishment of prophecies that foretold the calamities that should fall upon the Jews.

But they shall fall.] For Scopas came with a great army from Ptolemy; and, while Antiochus was engaged in other parts, reduced Cœlesyria and Palestine, subdued the Jews, placed guards on the coasts of Jerusalem, and returned with great spoils to Egypt.

Verse 15. So the king of the north] Antiochus came to recover Judea. Scopas was sent by Ptolemy to oppose him; but he was defeated near the fountains of Jordan, and was obliged to take refuge in Sidon with ten thousand men. Antiochus pursued and besieged him; and he was obliged by famine to surrender at discretion, and their lives only were spared. Antiochus afterwards besieged several of the fenced cities, and took them; in short, carried all before him; so that the king of the south, Ptolemy, and his chosen people, his ablest generals, were not able to oppose him.

Verse 16. He shall stand in the glorious land] Judea. For he reduced Palestine; and the Jews supplied him with provisions, and assisted him to reduce the garrison that Scopas had left in the citadel of Jerusalem.

Which by his hand shall be consumed] Or, which shall be perfected in his hand. For Antiochus showed the Jews great favour: he brought back those that were dispersed, and re-established them in the land; freed the priests and Levites from all tribute, &c.

Verse 17. He shall also set his face to enter] Antiochus purposed to have marched his army into Egypt; but he thought it best to proceed by fraudulence; and right ones with him; thus shall he do: and he shall give him the daughter of women, [a] corrupting her: but she shall not stand on his side, [b] neither be for him.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

18 After this shall he turn his face unto the isles, and shall take many: but a prince [c] for his own behalf shall cause [d] the reproach offered by him to cease; without his own reproach he shall cause it to turn upon him.

19 Then he shall turn his face toward the fort of his own land: but he shall stumble and fall, [e] and not be found.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

20 Then shall stand up [f] in his estate [g] a raiser of taxes in the glory of the kingdom: but within few days he shall be destroyed, neither in [h] anger, nor in battle.

21 And [i] in his estate [k] shall stand up a vile person, to whom they shall not give the honour of the kingdom: but he shall come in peaceably, and obtain the kingdom by flatteries.

[a] Heb. to corrupt.——[b] Chap. ix. 26.——[c] Heb. for him. [d] Heb. his reproach.——[e] Job xx. 8; Psa. xxxvii. 36; Ezek xxvi. 21.——[f] Or, in his place; ver. 7.

[g] Heb. one that causeth an exactor to pass over.——[h] Heb. angers.——[i] Or, in his place.——[k] Chap. vii. 8; viii. 9, 23, 25.

therefore proposed a treaty of marriage between him and his daughter Cleopatra, called here the daughter of women, because of her great beauty and accomplishments. And this he appeared to do, having "upright ones with him." Or, as the Septuagint have it, και ευθεια παντα μετ' αυτου ποιησει, "and he will make all things straight with him;" that is, he acted as if he were influenced by nothing but the most upright views. But he intended his daughter to be a snare to Ptolemy, and therefore purposed to corrupt her that she might betray her husband.

But she shall not stand on his side] On the contrary, her husband's interests became more dear to her than her father's; and by her means Ptolemy was put upon his guard against the intentions of Antiochus.

Verse 18. Shall he turn his face unto the isles] Antiochus had fitted out a great fleet of one hundred large ships and two hundred smaller, and with this fleet subdued most of the maritime places on the coast of the Mediterranean, and took many of the isles, Rhodes, Samos, Eubœa, Colophon, and others.

But a prince for his own behalf] Or, a captain. The consul Acilius Glabrio caused the reproach to cease; beat and routed his army at the straits of Thermopylæ, and expelled him from Greece. So he obliged him to pay the tribute which he hoped to impose on others; for he would grant him peace only on condition of paying the expense of the war, fifteen thousand talents; five hundred on the spot,—two thousand five hundred when the peace should be ratified by the senate,—and the remaining twelve thousand in twelve years, each year one thousand. See Polybius in his Legations, and Appian in the Wars of Syria. And thus,— Without his own reproach] Without losing a battle, or taking a false step, Acilius caused the reproach which he was bringing upon the Romans to turn upon himself.

Verse 19. He shall turn his face toward the fort of his own land] After this shameful defeat, Antiochus fled to Sardis, thence to Apamea, and the next day got into Syria, and to Antioch, his own fort, whence he sent ambassadors to treat for peace; and was obliged to engage to pay the immense sum of money mentioned above.

But he shall stumble and fall] Being under the greatest difficulties how to raise the stipulated sums, he marched into his eastern provinces to exact the arrears of taxes; and, attempting to plunder the temple of Jupiter Belus at Elymais, he was opposed by the populace, and he and his attendants slain. This is the account that Diodorus Siculus, Strabo, and Justin give of his death. But it is variously related by others; some saying that he was assassinated by some of his own people whom he had punished for being drunk at a feast.—So Aurelius Victor. St. Jerome says he lost his life in a battle against the inhabitants of Elymais. In short, the manner of his death is uncertain; and perhaps even this circumstance is referred to by the prophet, when he says, "He shall stumble and fall, and NOT BE FOUND."

Verse 20. Then shall stand up in his estate a raiser of taxes] Seleucus Philopater succeeded his father Antiochus. He sent his treasurer Heliodorus to seize the money deposited in the temple of Jerusalem, which is here called the glory of the kingdom, see 2 Macc. ix. 23. He was so cramped to pay the annual tax to the Romans, that he was obliged to burden his subjects with continual taxes.

He shall be destroyed, neither in anger—fighting against an enemy, nor in battle—at the head of his troops; but basely and treacherously, by the hand of Heliodorus his treasurer, who hoped to reign in his stead.

Verse 21. In his estate shall stand up a vile person] This was Antiochus, surnamed Epiphanes—the Illustrious. They did not give him the honour of the kingdom: he was at Athens, on his way from Rome, when his father died; and Heliodorus had declared himself king, as had several others. But Antiochus came in peaceably, for he obtained the kingdom by flatteries. He flattered Eumenes, king of Pergamus, and Attalus his brother, and got their assistance. He flattered the Romans, and sent ambassadors to court their favour, and pay them the arrears of the tribute. He flattered the Syrians, and gained their concurrence; and as he flattered the Syrians, so they flattered him, giving him the epithet of Epiphanes—the Illustrious. But that he was what the prophet here calls him, a vile person, is fully evident from what Polybius says of him, from Athenæus, lib. v.: "He

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Ol. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

22 [l] And with the arms of a flood shall they be overflown from before him, and shall be broken; [m] yea, also the prince of the covenant.

23 And after the league made with him [n] he shall work deceitfully: for he shall come up, and shall become strong with a small people.

24 He shall enter [o] peaceably even upon the fattest places of the province; and he shall do that which his fathers have not done, nor his fathers' fathers; [p] he shall scatter among them the prey, and spoil, and riches: yea, and he shall [q] forecast his devices against the strong holds, even for a time.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

25 And he shall stir up his power and his courage against the king of the south with a great army; and the king of the south shall be stirred up to battle with a very great and mighty army; but he shall not stand: for they shall forecast devices against him.

26 Yea, they that feed of the portion of his meat shall destroy him, and his army shall [r] overflow: and many shall fall down slain.

27 And both these kings' [s] hearts shall be to [l] Ver. 10.——[m] Chap. viii. 10, 11, 25.——[n] Chap. viii. 25.——[o] Or, into the peaceable and fat, &c.

[p] 1 Mac. iii. 28, &c.——[q] Heb. think his thoughts.——[r] Ver. 10, 22.——[s] Heb. their hearts.

was every man's companion: he resorted to the common shops, and prattled with the workmen: he frequented the common taverns, and ate and drank with the meanest fellows, singing debauched songs," &c., &c. On this account a contemporary writer, and others after him, instead of Epiphanes, called him Epimanes—the Madman.

Verse 22. And with the arms of a flood] The arms which were overflown before him were his competitors for the crown. They were vanquished by the forces of Eumenes and Attalus; and were dissipated by the arrival of Antiochus from Athens, whose presence disconcerted all their measures.

The prince of the covenant] This was Onias, the high priest, whom he removed, and put Jason in his place, who had given him a great sum of money; and then put wicked Menelaus in his room, who had offered him a larger sum. Thus he acted deceitfully in the league made with Jason.

Verse 23. He shall come up] From Rome, where he had been a hostage for the payment of the tax laid on his father.

Shall become strong with a small people.] At first he had but few to espouse his cause when he arrived at Antioch, the people having been greatly divided by the many claimants of the crown; but being supported by Eumenes and Attalus, his few people increased, and he became strong.

Verse 24. He shall enter peaceably even upon the fattest places] The very richest provinces—Cœlesyria and Palestine.

He shall do that which his fathers have not done, nor his fathers' fathers] He became profuse in his liberalities, and scattered among them the prey of his enemies, the spoil of temples, and the riches of his friends, as well as his own revenues. He spent much in public shows, and bestowed largesses among the people. We are told in 1 Macc. iii. 30, that "in the liberal giving of gifts he abounded above all the kings that went before him." These are nearly the words of the prophet; and perhaps without any design to copy them on the part of the apocryphal writer. He would sometimes go into the streets, and throw about a handful of money, crying out, "Let him take it, to whom Fortune sends it."

He shall forecast his devices] As Eulæus and Lenæus, who were the guardians of the young Egyptian king Ptolemy Philometer, demanded from Antiochus the restitution of Cœlesyria and Palestine, which he refused, he foresaw that he might have a war with that kingdom; and therefore he forecast devices—fixed a variety of plans to prevent this; visited the strong holds and frontier places to see that they were in a state of defence. And this he did for a time—he employed some years in hostile preparations against Egypt.

Verse 25. He shall stir up his power] Antiochus marched against Ptolemy, the king of the south, (Egypt,) with a great army; and the Egyptian generals had raised a mighty force.

Stirred up to battle] The two armies met between Pelusium and Mount Casius; but he (the king of the south) could not stand—the Egyptian army was defeated. The next campaign he had greater success; he routed the Egyptian army, took Memphis, and made himself master of all Egypt, except Alexandria, see 1 Macc. i. 16–19. And all these advantages he gained by forecasting devices; probably by corrupting his ministers and captains. Ptolemy Macron gave up Cyprus to Antiochus; and the Alexandrians were led to renounce their allegiance to Ptolemy Philometer, and took Euergetes, or Physcon his younger brother, and made him king in his stead. All this was doubtless by the corruptions of Antiochus. See below.

Verse 26. Yea, they that feed of the portion of his meat] This is the proof of what has been last noted, that the intrigues of Antiochus, corrupting the ministers and officers of Ptolemy, were the cause of all the disasters that fell on the Egyptian king. They that fed of the portion of his meat—who were in his confidence and pay, and possessed the secrets of the state, betrayed him; and these were the means of destroying him and his army, so that he was defeated, as was before observed.

Verse 27. And both these kings' hearts shall be to do mischief] That is, Antiochus, and Ptolemy Philometer, who was nephew to the former, and whose interest he now pretended to have much at heart, since the Alexandrians had renounced their allegiance do mischief, and they shall speak lies at one table; but it shall not prosper: for [t] yet the end shall be at the time appointed.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi. R. Roman., I.

28 Then shall he return into his land [u] with great riches; and [v] his heart shall be against the holy covenant; and he shall do exploits, and return to his own land.

29 At the time appointed he shall return, and come toward the south; [w] but it shall not be as the former, [x] or as the latter.

30 [y] For the ships of Chittim shall come against him: therefore he shall be grieved, and return, and have indignation [z] against the holy covenant: so shall he do; he shall even [t] Ver. 29, 35, 40; chap. viii. 19.——[u] 1 Mac. i. 19.——[v] Ver. 22; 1 Mac. i. 20, &c.; 2 Mac. v. 11, 14, &c.——[w] Ver. 23.

[x] Ver. 25.——[y] Num. xxiv. 24; Jer. ii. 10.——[z] Ver. 28; 1 Mac. i. 30, 44, &c.; 2 Mac. v. 24, &c.

to him, and set his younger brother Euergetes upon the throne. When Antiochus came to Memphis, he and Philometer had frequent conferences at the same table; and at these times they spoke lies to each other, Antiochus professing great friendship to his nephew and concern for his interests, yet in his heart designing to ruin the kingdom, by fomenting the discords which already subsisted between the two brothers. On the other hand, Philometer professed much gratitude to his uncle for the interest he took in his affairs, and laid the blame of the war upon his minister Eulæus; while at the same time he spoke lies, determining as soon as possible to accommodate matters with his brother, and join all their strength against their deceitful uncle.

But it shall not prosper] Neither succeeded in his object; for the end of the appointed time was not yet come.

Verse 28. Then shall he return into his land with great riches] Antiochus did return, laden with riches, from the spoils that he took in Egypt; see 1 Macc. i. 19, 20. And hearing that there had been a report of his death, at which the citizens of Jerusalem had made great rejoicings,—

His heart shall be against the holy covenant] He was determined to take a severe revenge, and he had an ostensible pretext for it; for Jason, who had been deprived of the high priesthood, hearing the report of the death of Antiochus, raised forces, marched against Jerusalem, took it, and obliged Menelaus, the high priest, to shut himself up in the castle. Antiochus brought a great army against Jerusalem; took it by storm; slew forty thousand of the inhabitants; sold as many more for slaves; boiled swine's flesh, and sprinkled the temple and the altar with the broth; broke into the holy of holies; took away the golden vessels and other sacred treasures, to the value of one thousand eight hundred talents; restored Menelaus to his office; and made one Philip, a Phrygian, governor of Judea, 1 Macc. i. 24; 2 Macc. v. 21. Prideaux and Newton. These are what we term exploits; which having finished, he returned to his own land.

Verse 29. At the time appointed he shall return] Finding that his treachery was detected, and that the two brothers had united their counsel and strength for their mutual support, he threw off the mask; and having collected a great army early in the spring, he passed through Cœlesyria; entered Egypt; and the inhabitants of Memphis having submitted to him, he came by easy marches to Alexandria. But, says the prophet, "it shall not be as the former or as the latter:" he had not the same success as the former, when he overthrew the Egyptian army at Pelusium; nor as the latter, when he took Memphis, and subdued all Egypt, except Alexandria. See the reason.

Verse 30. For the ships of Chittim shall come against him] Chittim is well known to mean the Roman empire. Antiochus, being now in full march to besiege Alexandria, and within seven miles of that city, heard that ships were arrived there from Rome, with legates from the senate. He went to salute them. They delivered to him the letters of the senate, in which he was commanded, on pain of the displeasure of the Roman people, to put an end to the war against his nephews. Antiochus said he would go and consult his friends; on which Popilius, one of the legates, took his staff, and instantly drew a circle round Antiochus on the sand where he stood, and commanded him not to pass that circle till he had given a definitive answer. Antiochus, intimidated, said, he would do whatever the senate enjoined; and in a few days after began his march, and returned to Syria. This is confirmed by Polybius, Livy, Velleius, Paterculus, Valerius Maximus, and Justin.

Therefore he shall be grieved] "Grieving and groaning," says Polybius; both mortified, humbled, and disappointed.

Have indignation against the holy covenant] For he vented his rage against the Jews; and he sent his general, Apollonius, with twenty-two thousand men against Jerusalem, plundered and set fire to the city, pulled down the houses round about it, slew much of the people, and built a castle on an eminence that commanded the temple, and slew multitudes of the poor people who had come up to worship, polluted every place, so that the temple service was totally abandoned, and all the people fled from the city. And when he returned to Antioch he published a decree that all should conform to the Grecian worship; and the Jewish worship was totally abrogated, and the temple itself consecrated to Jupiter Olympius. How great must the wickedness of the people have been when God could tolerate this!

In the transacting of these matters he had intelligence with them that forsake the holy covenant; with wicked Menelaus the high priest; and the apostate Jews united with him, who gave from time to time such information to Antiochus as excited him against Jerusalem, the temple, and the people. See 1 Macc. i. 41, 62; 2 Macc. vi. 1–9; confirmed by Josephus, War, book i. chap. 1, s. 1. The concluding reflection of Bp. Newton here is excellent:— return, [a] and have intelligence with them that forsake the holy covenant.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

31 And arms shall stand on his part, [b] and they shall pollute the sanctuary of strength, and shall take away the daily sacrifice, [c] and they shall place the abomination that [d] maketh desolate.

32 [e] And such as do wickedly against the covenant shall he [f] corrupt by flatteries: [g] but the people that do know their God shall be strong, and do exploits.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3 Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

33 [h] And they that understand among the people shall instruct many: [i] yet they shall fall by the sword, and by flame, by captivity, and by spoil, many days.

34 Now when they shall fall, they [k] shall be holpen with a little help: [l] but many shall cleave to them with flatteries.

35 And some of them of understanding shall

[a] 1 Mac. i. 43, 52; 2 Mac. v. 15, 23.——[b] Chap. viii. 11; xii. 11; 1 Mac. i. 37, 39, 41, 45, 46.——[c] 1 Mac. i. 54, 59; iv. 38.——[d] Or, astonisheth.——[e] 1 Mac. i. 43, 52; 2 Mac. iv. 13, 14; v. 15.

[f] Or, cause to dissemble.——[g] 1 Mac. i. 62; ii. 41, 42, 43; 2 Mac. v. 27; vi. 19, 20; vii. 1, &c.——[h] Mal. ii. 7.——[i] Heb. xi. 35, &c.——[k] 1 Mac. iii. 2; 2 Mac. viii. 1.——[l] 2 Mac. xii. 40 xiii. 21.

"It may be proper to stand a little here, and reflect how particular and circumstantial this prophecy is, concerning Egypt and Syria, from the death of Alexander to the time of Antiochus Epiphanes. There is not so concise, comprehensive, and regular an account of their kings and affairs to be found in any authors of those times. The prophecy is really more perfect than any history, and is so wonderfully exact, not only to the time of Antiochus Epiphanes, but likewise equally so beyond that time, that we may conclude in the words of the inspired writer, 'No one could thus declare the times and seasons, but he who hath them in his own power.'"

Verse 31. And arms shall stand on his part] After Antiochus, arms, that is, the Romans, shall stand up: for arms in this prophecy every where denote military power; and standing up, the power in activity and conquering. Both Sir Isaac Newton and Bp. Newton agree, that what follows is spoken of the Romans. Hitherto Daniel has described the actions of the kings of the north and of the south, that of the kings of Syria and Egypt; but, upon the conquest of Macedon by the Romans, he has left off describing the actions of the Greeks, and begun to describe those of the Romans in Greece, who conquered Macedon, Illyricum, and Epirus, in the year of the era of Nabonassar, 580. Thirty-five years after, by the will of Attalus, they inherited all Asia westward of Mount Taurus; sixty-five years after they conquered the kingdom of Syria, and reduced it into a province; and thirty-four years after they did the same to Egypt. By all these steps the Roman arms stood up over the Greeks; and after ninety-five years more, by making war upon the Jews, they polluted the sanctuary of strength,—the temple, (so called by reason of its fortifications,) and took away the daily sacrifice and placed the abomination that maketh desolate, or of the desolator; for that this abomination was thus placed after the time of Christ, appears from Matt. xxiv. 15.

In the sixteenth year of the Emperor Adrian, A. D. 132, they placed this abomination by building a temple to Jupiter Capitolinus, where the temple of God in Jerusalem stood; upon which the Jews, under Barchocab, ruse up against the Romans. But in this war they had fifty cities demolished, nine hundred and fifty of their best towns destroyed, and eighty thousand men were slain by the eword; and in the end of the war, A. D. 136, were banished Judea on pain of death; and thenceforth the land became desolate. See Observations on Daniel, and Bp. Newton on the Prophecies.

Verse 32. Such as do wickedly against the covenant] This is understood of the Christian Jews; for the NEW had now succeeded to the OLD, the whole of the Jewish ritual having been abolished, and Jerusalem filled with heathen temples. And he—the Roman power. did all he could by flatteries, as well as threats, to corrupt the Christians, and cause them to sacrifice to the statues of the emperors.

But the people that do know their God] The genuine Christians.

Shall be strong] Shall be strengthened by his grace and Spirit.

And do exploits.] Continue steadfast in all temptations, hold fast their faith, and enjoy a good conscience.

Verse 33. And they that understand] The apostles and primitive Christians in general, who understood from the prophets, and his own actions, that JESUS was the true MESSIAH.

Instruct many] Preach the Gospel every where, and convert multitudes to the faith.

Yet they shall fall by the sword, and by flame, by captivity, and by spoil, many days.] They were exposed to the malice and fury of their enemies, during TEN STATE PERSECUTIONS, and suffered all kinds of tortures, with but little intermission, for three hundred years.—Newton.

Verse 34. Now when they shall fall] When the storm of the tenth persecution under Diocletian, which lasted ten years, fell upon them, they were sorely oppressed.

They shall be holpen with a little help] By Constantine: who, while he removed all persecution, and promoted the temporal prosperity of the Christian Church, yet added little to its spiritual perfection and strength. For many, now seeing the Christians in prosperity,— Cleave to them with flatteries.] Became Christions BECAUSE the EMPEROR was such.

Verse 35. And some of them of understanding] Disputes on certain points of religion soon agitated the Christian Church; and now, having no outward persecution, they began to persecute each other. And fall, [m] to try [n] them, and to purge, and to make them white, [o] even to the time of the end: [p] because it is yet for a time appointed.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

36 And the king [q] shall do according to his will; and he shall [r] exalt himself, and magnify himself above every god, and shall speak marvellous things [s] against the God of gods, and shall prosper [t] till the indignation be accomplished: for that that is determined shall be done.

37 Neither shall he regard the God of his fathers, [u] nor the desire of women, [v] nor regard any god: for he shall magnify himself above all.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

38 [w] But [x] in his estate shall he honour the god of [y] forces: [z] and a god whom his fathers knew not shall he honour with gold, and silver, and with precious stones, and [a] pleasant things.

39 Thus shall he do in the [b] most strong holds with a strange god, whom he shall ac-

[m] Chap. xii. 10; 1 Pet. i. 7.——[n] Or, by them.——[o] Chap. viii. 17, 19; ver. 40.——[p] Ver. 29.——[q] Ver. 16.——[r] Chap. vii. 8, 25; viii. 25; 2 Thess. ii. 4; Rev. xiii. 5, 6.——[s] Chap. viii. 11, 24, 25.——[t] Chap. ix. 27.——[u] 1 Tim. iv. 3.——[v] Isa. xiv. 13; 2 Thess. ii. 4.

[w] Or, But in his stead.——[x] Heb. as for the Almighty God, in his seat he shall honour, yea, he shall honour a god, whom, &c. [y] Or, munitions.——[z] Hebrew, Mauzzim, or gods protectors. [a] Heb. things desired; Isa. xliv. 9.——[b] Hebrew, fortresses of munitions.

many excellent men, men of understanding, fell victims because they would not embrace erroneous doctrines, when professed by the state. But this was permitted,—

To try them, and to purge, and to make them white] To bring all to the pure profession, possession, and practice of Christianity.

To the time of the end] To the time that God shall cause pure and undefiled religion every where to prevail. But when is the time appointed for this?

Verse 36. And the king shall do according to his will] This may apply to Antiochus, who exalted himself above every god, called himself a god, sported with all religion, profaned the temple, &c., &c. But others think an antichristian power in the Church is intended; for in the language of this prophecy king is taken for power, a kingdom, &c. That such a power did spring up in the Church that acted in an arbitrary manner against all laws, human and Divine, is well known. This power showed itself in the Greek emperors in the east, and in the bishops of Rome in the west. And this is to continue.

Till the indignation be accomplished: for that that is determined shall be done.] This is the same as what was called in chap. viii. 19, the last end of the indignation; and chap. ix. 27, the consummation; and means the end or consummation of God's indignation against the Jews. And this seems more clearly expressed, chap. xii. 7: "When he shall have accomplished to scatter the power of the holy people." We see this still subsisting in the Church of Rome; and it was a saying of Rabbi David Kimchi, "When Rome shall be laid waste, then shall be redemption for Israel." For the destruction of Rome and the restoration of the Jews shall fall out about the same time.—Bp. Newton.

Verse 37. Neither shall he regard the God of his fathers] That God who sent the evangelists and apostles to preach the pure doctrine. These true fathers of the Christian Church, and their God, this Church has not regarded, but put councils, and traditions, and apocryphal writings in their place.

Nor the desire of women] Both the Greek and Latin Church, in their antichristian enactments, have discouraged, and in several cases proscribed, marriage, under the pretence of greater chastity, to the discredit of God's ordinance, and Christianity itself.

Nor regard any god] For the mandates and decrees of that Church have been often in defiance of God and his word; for it has magnified itself above all power and authority in heaven and on earth. It professes to hold the keys, and to open and shut heaven at pleasure, both to states and individuals.

Verse 38. Shall he honour the god of forces] מעזים mauzzim, or gods protectors, as in the margin; worshipping saints and angels as guardians, and protectors, and mediators; leaving out, in general, the true God, and the only Mediator, Jesus Christ.

And a god whom his fathers knew not] For these gods guardians, the Virgin Mary, saints, and angels, were utterly unknown as mediators and invocable guardians in the primitive apostolic Church.

Shall he honour with gold, and silver, and with precious stones] How literally does this apply to the Church of Rome! See the house of our lady at Loretto; the shrines of saints; the decorated images, costly apparel, gold, jewels, &c., profusely used about images of saints, angels, and the blessed virgin, in different popish churches. This superstition began to prevail in the fourth century, and was established in 787, by the seventh general council; for in that the worship of images was enacted.

Verse 39. In the most strong holds with a strange god] Bishop Newton proposed the following translation, after justly finding fault with our common Version: "Thus shall he do to the defenders of Mauzzim, together with the strange god whom he shall acknowledge: he shall multiply honour, and he shall cause him to rule over many; and the earth he shall divide for a reward." The defenders of Mauzzim, these saint and angel gods protectors, were the monks, priests, and bishops; of whom it may be truly said, "They were increased with honour, ruled over many, and divided the land for gain." They have been honoured and revereneed almost to adoration; their jurisdiction was extended over the purses and consciences of men; they have been enriched with the noblest buildings and largest endowments, and the choicest lands have been appropriated for Church lands. These are points of such public notoriety, that they require no proof.—Newton.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

knowledge and increase with glory: and he shall cause them to rule over many, and shall divide the land for [c] gain.

40 [d] And at the time of the end shall the king of the south push at him: and the king of the north shall come against him [e] like a whirlwind, with chariots, [f] and with horsemen, and with many ships; and he shall enter into the countries, [g] and shall overflow and pass over.

41 He shall enter also into the [h] glorious [i] land, and many countries shall be overthrown: but these shall escape out of his hands, [k] even Edom, and Moab, and the chief of the children of Ammon.

42 He shall [l] stretch forth his hand also upon the countries: and the land of Egypt shall not escape.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

43 But he shall have power over the treasures of gold and of silver, and over all the precious things of Egypt: and the Libyans and the Ethiopians shall be [m] at his steps.

44 But tidings out of the east and out of the north shall trouble him: therefore he shall go forth with great fury to destroy, and utterly to make away many.

45 And he shall plant the tabernacles of his palaces between the seas in [n] the [o] glorious [p] holy mountain; [q] yet he shall come to his end, and none shall help him.

[c] Heb. a price.——[d] Ver. 35.——[e] Psa. lviii. 9; Prov. i. 27; x. 25; Isa. xxi. 1; xl. 24; xli. 16; lxvi. 15; Zech. ix. 14.——[f] Ezek. xxxviii. 4, 15; Rev. ix. 16.——[g] Ver. 10, 22.——[h] Or, goodly land; ver. 16.——[i] Heb. land of delight, or ornament.

[k] Isa. xi. 14.——[l] Heb. send forth.——[m] Exod. xi. 8; Judg. iv. 10.——[n] Psa. xlviii. 2; ver. 16, 41; 2 Thess. ii. 4.——[o] Or, goodly.——[p] Heb. mountain of delight of holiness.——[q] 1 Mac. vi. 8–16 2 Thess. ii. 8; Rev. xix. 20.

Verse 40. At the time of the end shall the king of the south push at him] These kings are to be understood in reference to the times of which the prophet speaks. While the kingdoms of Egypt and Syria were subsisting, the king of the south and the north applied to them exclusively: but they did not exist at the time of which the prophet speaks; therefore other southern and northern powers must be sought. These we may find in the Saracens, who were of the Arabians, who came from the south, headed by the false prophet Mohammed, who pushed at him—made war on the Greek emperor Heraclius, and with amazing rapidity deprived him of Egypt, Syria, and many of his finest provinces.

And the king of the north] The Turks, who were originally Scythions, seized on the remains of the Greek empire; and in process of time rendered themselves masters of the whole. They are represented as coming like a whirlwind, with chariots, and with horsemen; their armies being chiefly composed of cavalry.

And with many ships] With these they got possession of many islands and maritime countries; and were so powerful in their fleets, that they entirely defeated the Venetians; and at last their fleets became of the utmost consequence to them in besieging, and afterwards taking, Constantinople, A. D. 1453, which they hold to the present day. So they entered into the countries, and overflowed, rendering themselves masters of all Asia Minor and Greece.

Verse 41. He shall enter also into the glorious land] Entirely subdue Judea.

And many countries shall be overthrown] Aleppo, Damascus, Gaza, and many other cities were forced to submit to them; and they hold them still.

But these shall escape—Edom and Moab, and the chief of the children of Ammon.] These and other Arabians they have never been able to subdue. They still occupy the deserts; and receive a yearly pension of forty thousand crowns of gold from the Ottoman emperors, to permit the caravans, with the pilgrims for Mecca, to have a free passage.

Verse 42. He shall stretch forth his hand] He—the Ottoman emperors, have stretched forth the hand, not only on European, but also upon Asiatic and African countries. Egypt has not escaped; it is a province of the Turkish government, as are also Fez, Morocco, Algiers, and many other African countries. And as the prophecy says they "got power over the silver and gold, and the precious things of Egypt," so it was; for when Selim conquered Egypt, A. D. 1517, he took all its spoils; and the immense sums drawn from it to the present day, and the wretchedness of the land in consequence, are almost incredible.

The Libyans and the Ethiopians] The Cushim—unconquered Arabs, all sought their friendship; and many of them are tributary to the present time.

Verse 44. But tidings out of the east and out of the north shall trouble him] This part of the prophecy is allowed to be yet unfulfilled; and what is portended, the course of prophetic events will show. Were we to understand it as applying to Antiochus, then the news might be of the preparations which he heard, that the provinces of the east, and Artaxerxes, king of Armenia, on the north, were intending to rise up against him. But if the Turkish power be understood, as in the preceding verses, it may mean that the Persians on the east, and the Russians on the north, will at some time greatly embarrass the Ottoman government. And how completely has this been fulfilled; first, by the total destruction of the Egyptian fleet, by the combined fleets of England, France, and Russia, in the Bay of Navarino; and, secondly, by the total overthrow of the Turkish army by the Russians, in the years 1828 and 1829, when the sultan was obliged to accept any conditions that the emperor of Russia was pleased to give! [N.B.—The former part of this note was written for the first edition of this work, printed in 1825.]

Verse 45. He shall plant the tabernacles] He shall make a last stand in Judea, and there shall his power be smitten.

He shall come to his end, and none shall help him.] All his confederate and tributary kingdoms, states, and provinces shall desert him, and leave that government to come to a shameful end.

In the interpretation of this chapter I have generally followed Bp. Newton, in his most excellent Dissertations on the Prophecies, consulting other eminent authors occasionally. From the beginning of the chapter to the end of ver. 30 all is very clear and plain, relative to the Grecian, Syrian, and Egyptian histories; from the thirty-first verse to the end, the mode of interpretation is not so satisfactory, in its application to the times since Christ. Yet possibly these alone may be intended; though the whole might be, with considerable ease, applied to the remaining part of the Syrian and Egyptian history. It is a wonderful piece of prophecy, and of great utility to the cause of Divine revelation.

CHAPTER XII.

The proper conclusion to the great revolutions predicted in this and the following chapters is the general resurrection, of which the beginning of this chapter (if to be literally understood) gives some intimation, 1–3. Daniel is then commanded to shut up the words and to seal the book to the time of the end, 4; and is informed of the three grand symbolical periods of a time, times, and a half, twelve hundred and ninety days, and thirteen hundred and thirty-five days, 4–12; at the end of the last of which Daniel shall rest and stand in his lot, 13. It is generally thought by commentators that the termination of the last period is the epoch of the FIRST resurrection. See Rev. xx. 4, 5.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

AND at that time shall [a] Michael stand up, the great prince which standeth for the children of thy people: [b] and there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time: and at that time thy people [c] shall be delivered, every one that shall be found [d] written in the book.

2 And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, [e] some to everlasting life, and some to shame [f] and everlasting contempt.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

3 And [g] they that be [h] wise shall shine [i] as the brightness of the firmament; [k] and they that turn many to righteousness [l] as the stars for ever and ever.

4 [m] But thou, O Daniel, [n] shut up the words, and seal the book, even to [o] the time of the end: many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased.

[a] Ch. x. 13, 21.——[b] Isa. xxvi. 20, 21; Jer. xxx. 7; Matt. xxiv. 21; Rev. xvi. 18.——[c] Rom. xi. 26.——[d] Exod. xxxii. 32; Psa. lvi. 8; lxix. 28; Ezek. xiii. 9; Luke. x. 20; Phil. iv. 3; Rev. iii. 5; xiii. 8.——[e] Matt. xxv. 46; John v. 28, 29; Acts xxiv. 15.——[f] Isaiah lxvi. 24; Rom. ix. 21.——[g] Chap. xi. 33, 35. [h] Or, teachers.——[i] Prov. iv. 18; Wisd. iii. 7; Matt. xiii. 43. [k] James v. 20.——[l] 1 Cor. xv. 41, 42.——[m] Ch. viii. 26; ver. 9. [n] Rev. x. 4; xxii. 10.——[o] Ch. x. 1; ver. 9.

NOTES ON CHAP. XII.

Verse 1. And at that time Michael shall stand up] Michael the archangel, as has already been observed, was ever reputed the guardian of the Jewish people.

Every one that shall be found written in the book] All that truly fear, love, and obey the Lord. On the phrase, "written in the book, the book of life," &c., see the passages in the margin, and the notes on those passages.

Verse 2. Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth] This prophecy has been referred to the future restoration of the Jews. It will be also true of the state of mankind at the general judgment.

Verse 3. And they that be wise] Those who are thoroughly instructed in Christ's word and doctrine, shall shine—shall be eminently distinguished in the Christian Church by the holiness of their lives, and the purity of their creed.

And they that turn many to righteousness] They who, by preaching Christ crucified among their brethren, shall be the means of converting them to the Christian faith; shall be as the stars—bright luminaries in the Gospel kingdom of Jesus Christ. This also may be applied to the case of holy and useful men, particularly the faithful ministers of the Gospel, in the day of judgment. See the parallel texts in the margin, and the notes on them.

Verse 4. Shut up the words, and seal the book] When a prophet received a prediction concerning what was at a considerable distance of time, he shut his book, did not communicate his revelation for some time after. This Daniel was commanded to do, chap. viii. 26. See also Isa. xxix. 10, 11; Rev. xxii. 10. Among the ancients, those were said to seal, who in the course of their reading stamped the places of which they were yet doubtful, in order to keep them in memory, that they might refer to them again, as not yet fully understood. This custom Salmasius, in his book De modo Usurarum, p. 446, proves from Hesychius.

Many shall run to and fro] Many shall endeavour to search out the sense; and knowledge shall be increased by these means; though the meaning shall not be fully known till the events take place: THEN

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

5 Then I Daniel looked, and, behold, there stood other two, the one on this side of the [p] bank of the river, and the other on that side of the bank [q] of the river.

6 And one said to [r] the man clothed in linen, which was [s] upon the waters of the river, [t] How long shall it be to the end of these wonders?

7 And I heard the man clothed in linen, which was upon the waters of the river, when he [u] held up his right hand and his left hand unto heaven, and sware by him [v] that liveth for ever [w] that it shall be for a time, times, and [x] a half; [y] and when he shall have accomplished to scatter the power of [z] the holy people, all these things shall be finished.

8 And I heard, but I understood not: then said I, O my Lord, what shall be the end of these things?

9 And he said, Go thy way, Daniel: for the words are closed up and sealed [a] till the time of the end.

A. M. 3470. B. C. 534. Olymp. LXI. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 1.

10 [b] Many shall be purified, and made white, and tried; [c] but the wicked shall do wickedly: and none of the wicked shall understand; but [d] the wise shall understand.

11 And from the time [e] that the daily sacrifice shall be taken away, and [f] the abomination that [g] maketh desolate set up, there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days.

12 Blessed is he that waiteth, and cometh to the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days.

13 But [h] go thou thy way till the end be: [i] for [k] thou shalt rest, [l] and stand in thy lot at the end of the days.

[p] Heb. lip.——[q] Chap. x. 4.——[r] Chap. x. 5.——[s] Or, from above.——[t] Chap. viii. 13.——[u] Deut. xxxii. 40; Rev. x. 5, 6. [v] Chap. iv. 34.——[w] Chap. vii. 25; xi. 13; Rev. xii. 14. [x] Or, part.——[y] Luke xxi. 24; Rev. x. 7.——[z] Chap. viii. 24. [a] Verse 4.——[b] Chap. xi. 35; Zech. xiii. 9.——[c] Hos. xiv. 9; Rev. ix. 20; xxii. 11.——[d] Chapter xi. 33, 35; John vii. 17; viii. 47; xviii. 37.——[e] Chapter viii. 11; xi. 31.——[f] Hebrew, to set up the abomination, &c.——[g] Or, astonisheth.——[h] Verse 9.——[i] Or, and thou, &c.——[k] Isa. lvii. 2; Rev. xiv. 13. [l] Psa. i. 5.

the seal shall be broken, and the sense become plain. This seems to be the meaning of this verse, though another has been put on it, viz., "Many shall run to and fro preaching the Gospel of Christ, and therefore religious knowledge and true wisdom shall be increased." This is true in itself; but it is not the meaning of the prophet's words.

Verse 5. Behold, there stood other two] Probably two angels. We know no more of them, unless they be the same as those called saints, chap. viii. 13, which see. The river was most likely the Tigris.

Verse 6. The man clothed in linen] Gabriel, in a human form. Thus he is represented, chap. x. 5.

Verse 7. Which was upon the waters] By this description, he was standing on the water. This is very similar to the description of the angel, Rev. x. 5, 6, and in the seventh verse there seems to be a reference to this prophecy, "a time, times, and a half." See the note on chap. vii. 25.

Verse 8. I heard, but I understood not] Could not comprehend what the time, times, and half time should refer to. These make three years and a half of prophetic time, answering to one thousand two hundred and sixty years.

Verse 9. The words are closed up] The prophecy shall not be understood, but in its accomplishment; and then the depth of the wisdom and providence of God will be clearly seen in these matters. See on ver. 4. We must wait "till the time of the end;" and this, it appears from the following calculations, will not arrive before the TWENTIETH CENTURY. We here see the reason why these prophecies are at present so imperfectly understood. God has sealed them.

Verse 10. Many shall be purified] During the interim, the great work of God's providence and grace shall be carried on in the salvation of men; who, in the midst of trials, temptations, and difficulties, shall be purified and made white—be fully saved from their sins.

None of the wicked shall understand] Because they are wicked, and will continue in their sins, the eyes of their understanding shall be closed, and their hearts hardened; so that they shall not see the light of the glorious Gospel.

But the wise] Those who open their hearts to God, that he may pour in his light, shall understand the things that make for their peace.

Verse 11. From the time that the daily sacrifice shall be taken away] See the notes on chap. xi. 25–27.

The abomination that maketh desolate set up] I believe, with Bp. Newton, that this is a proverbial phrase; and may be applied to any thing substituted in the place of, or set up in opposition to, the ordinances of God, his worship, his truth, &c. Adrian's temple, built in the place of God's temple at Jerusalem, the church of St. Sophia turned into a Mohammedan mosque, &c., &c., may be termed abominations that make desolate. Perhaps Mohammedanism may be the abomination; which sprang up A. D. 612. If we reckon one thousand two hundred and ninety years, ver. 11, from that time, it will bring us down to A. D. 1902, when we might presume from this calculation, that the religion of the FALSE PROPHET will cease to prevail in the world; which from the present year, 1825, is distant only seventy-seven years.

Verse 12. Blessed is he that waiteth] He who implicitly depends on God, expecting, as his truth cannot fail, that these predictions shall be accomplished in due time.

And cometh to the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days.] This is seventy-five days more than what is included in the three years and a half, or the time, times, and a half in the seventh verse; and as we have met with so many instances of prophetical days and years, this undoubtedly is another instance; and as a day stands for a year, this must mean a period of one thousand three hundred and thirty-five years, which period is to bring all these wonders to an end, ver. 6. But we are left totally in the dark relative to the time from which these one thousand three hundred and thirty-five years are to be reckoned. If, however, we reckon them from the above epoch, A. D. 612, when Mohammedanism arose, they lead us to A. D. 1947, when the fulness of the Gentiles shall be brought in; and thus a final closure of vision and prophecy be made, as then all the great events relative to the salvation of men shall have taken place. Wars and contentions will probably then cease over the whole world; Jews and Gentiles become one fold, under one Shepherd and Bishop of souls; and the triune God be properly worshipped and glorified, from generation to generation, over the face of the whole earth. But all these conjectures may be founded in darkness. We have not chronological data; and "the times and seasons God has reserved in his own power."

Verse 13. But go thou thy way till the end be] Here is proper advice for every man. 1. Thou hast a way—a walk in life, which God has assigned thee; walk in that way, it is thy way. 2. There will be an end to thee of all earthly things. Death is at the door, and eternity is at hand; go on to the end—be faithful unto death. 3. There is a rest provided for the people of God. Thou shalt rest; thy body, in the grave; thy soul, in the Divine favour here, and finally in paradise. 4. As in the promised land there was a lot for each of God's people, so in heaven there is a lot for thee. Do not lose it, do not sell it, do not let thy enemy rob thee of it. Be determined to stand in thy own lot at the end of the days. See that thou keep the faith; die in the Lord Jesus, that thou mayest rise and reign with him to all eternity. Amen.

MASORETIC NOTES.

Number of verses in this book, 357.

Middle verse, chap. v. 30.

Masoretic sections, 7.

Finished correcting for the press, March 1st, 1831.—A. C.

INTRODUCTION TO THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET HOSEA.

HOSEA, the son of Beeri, is the first of the minor prophets. Epiphanius says that he was of the town of Belemoth, in the tribe of Issachar; which is no other, in all probability, than Beelmeon, towards Esdraelon, in this tribe. The rabbins say that Bura was his father, who is mentioned in the Chronicles, and was prince of the tribe of Reuben at the time when Tiglath-pileser carried some of the tribes of Israel into captivity. But if it be so, Hosea must be said to be of the tribe of Reuben; and a native of Beelmeon, beyond Jordan. This prophet lived in the kingdom of Samaria; and his prophecies for the most part have a view to this state, though there are likewise some particular things which concern the kingdom of Judah.

We read, in the introduction to his prophecy, that he prophesied under the kings of Judah, Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, and under Jeroboam II., king of Israel. If he prophesied in the reign of all these princes, he must have lived a very long time; for there are a hundred and twelve years from the beginning of Uzziah's reign to the end of Hezekiah's reign. Uzziah began to reign A. M. 3194, and Hezekiah's reign ended in 3306. Add, if you please, twenty or five and twenty years, which might be the age of Hosea when he began to prophesy; and this will make one hundred and thirty-two, or one hundred and thirty-seven years. And if we were to take ten years from Uzziah, and as many from Hezekiah, during which Hosea might not have prophesied, there will still remain one hundred and twelve, or one hundred and fifteen years.

In the whole collection of Hosea's prophecies, we find nothing which proves that he prophesied so long. And, besides, why should his prophecies be dated in the title by the reigns of the kings of Judah, when he did not live under their dominion? It is therefore very probable that this title is not Hosea's, but some ancient transcriber's; and that the true beginning of this prophet's work is at these words: "The beginning of the word of the Lord by Hosea." It is our opinion that he began about the end of Jeroboam's reign, who was the second king of Israel of this name. See Calmet.

St. Jerome and many others believe Hosea to be the oldest prophet, whose writings are in our possession; and that he was witness to the first captivity of the four tribes carried away by Tiglath-pileser, and the extinction of the kingdom of Samaria by Shalmaneser. St. Jerome will have it that he prophesied even afterwards. The first verses of chap. i. have a view to the death of Zechariah, king of Israel, and son of Jeroboam II. From the sixth verse of the first chapter to the third chapter, is a prediction of the captivity of Israel: but after he has foretold this captivity, he declares the return and end of it. He inveighs strongly against the disorders which prevailed in the kingdom of the ten tribes. It appears that in his time there were idols; not only at Dan, Beth-el, and Samaria, but likewise at Gilgal, upon Tabor, at Sichem, Beer-sheba, and upon the mountains of Gilead. He speaks of the Israelites as of a people entirely corrupted, and the measure of whose sins was filled up; he foretells that their golden calves should be pulled down, cast upon the ground, and carried into Assyria.

He reflects, with the same severity, upon the irregularities which reigned in Judah. He stands up against those who went to worship false gods at Gilgal. He speaks of Sennacherib's invading the territories of Judah. He foretells that the people of Judah should still continue some time in their country after the captivity of the ten tribes; but that after this they themselves should likewise be carried captives beyond the Euphrates, from whence the Lord would bring them back after a certain number of years. The style of Hosea is obscure, and his expressions often dubious and perplexed. The things whereof he speaks contribute farther to his obscurity, by reason of their distance, and our ignorance of the history of those times.

In the beginning of Hosea's prophecy, we read that the Lord directed him "to take unto him a wife of whoredoms, and children of whoredoms;" that is, to marry a woman who, before her marriage, had lived a debauched life, but who, after her marriage, should retire from all bad conversation, and whose children should be legitimate, notwithstanding that, by reason of the blemish which their mother had contracted by her former life, they were called the children of whoredoms. This prostitute woman, and the children who were to be born of her, were a figure and a kind of real prophecy which described the idolatry and infidelity of Samaria and the ten tribes, formerly the Lord's spouse, but who afterwards became idolatrous and corrupt.

The children of this faithless woman are children of prostitution, since they imitate the idolatry of their mother. God gives these children the names of Jezreel, God will disperse; Lo-rechamah, or Without mercy; and Lo-ammi, Thou art no longer my people; to show,— 1. That God was going to revenge upon the house of Jehu, king of Israel, the sins which he had committed at Jezreel, when he usurped the kingdom of the ten tribes. 2. That the Lord would treat his idolatrous and sinful people without mercy. 3. That he would reject them, and no more look upon them as his people.

Hosea is concise, sententious, and abrupt. It is his manner to omit the connexive and adversative particles; an observation which we should recollect when we observe them occasionally supplied by versions or manuscripts. These are among the causes of that obscurity for which he is remarkable: but the greatest difficulties arise from the corrupt readings which deform the printed text. He chiefly addresses Israel; but introduces frequent mention of Judah. He not only inveighs against the vices of the people, but sharply arraigns the conduct of their kings, princes, and priests.

Like many of the Hebrew prophets, he tempers denunciations of God's vengeance against an idolatrous and vicious people, with promises of abundant mercies in store for them; and his transitions from one of these subjects to the other are rapid and unexpected. He abounds with short and lively comparisons; and, like the best Greek and Roman writers, often omits the particle of similitude. These comparisons he sometimes accumulates in the spirit of that poetry which is most admired. See chap. vi. 3, 4, ix. 10, xi. 11, xiii. 3, xiv. 5, 6, 7. He has often a GREAT FORCE OF EXPRESSION. See chap. i. 7, ii. 3, 18, 21, 22, iv. 2, vi. 5, xi. 4, l. 1, xii. 1, l. 1. He is sometimes HIGHLY ANIMATED. See chap. iv. 14, v. 8, viii. 1, ix. 5, 14, xiii. 10, 14. Many BEAUTIFUL PASSAGES occur in this prophet, as in the SIMILES throughout; in the ALLEGORIES, chap. ii. 2, 20, vii. 11, 12, viii. 7, l. 2, 3, 4, x. 11, 12, 13, xiii. 15; in the PATHOS, chap. xi. 3, l. 1, 2, and ver. 8, 9; in the FIGURES, chap. xiii. 12, xiv. 2, l. 5. There are also some parts which are truly SUBLIME, as chap. v. 14, 15, viii. 7, l. 1, x. 8, l. 2, 3, xiii. 7, 8.

I have already, at the beginning of Isaiah, given a table of the chronological succession of all the prophets: that of Archbishop Newcome on the twelve minor prophets I subjoin here, because it contains some differences from the preceding.

ORDER AND TIME IN WHICH THE TWELVE MINOR PROPHETS FLOURISHED.

1. JONAH prophesied between 823 B. C. and 783 B. C. in the reign of Jeroboam II., king of Israel. See 2 Kings xiv. 25.

2. AMOS prophesied from about 823 B. C. to about 785 B. C. in the reign of Uzziah, king of Judah, and in that of Jeroboam II., king of Israel. See Amos i. 1.

3. Hosea flourished from about 809 B. C. to about 698 B. C., in the reigns of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, and in that of Jeroboam II., king of Israel. See Hos. i. 1. [But see the observations in the preceding page.]

4. Micah flourished between 757 B. C. and 698 B. C., in the reigns of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah. See Mic. i. 1.

5. Nahum is supposed to have prophesied between 720 B. C. and 698 B. C., in the reign of Hezekiah.

6. Joel is supposed to have prophesied between 697 B. C. and 660 B. C., in the reign of Manasseh.

7. Zephaniah prophesied between 640 B. C. and 609 B. C., in the reign of Josiah. See Zeph. i. 1.

8. Habakkuk is thought to have prophesied between 606 B. C. and 598 B. C., in the reign of Jehoiakim.

9. Obadiah prophesied soon after 587 B. C., between the taking of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar, and the destruction of the Edomites by the same prince.

10. Haggai prophesied about 520 B. C. after the return from Babylon. See Haggai i. 1.

11. Zechariah prophesied from 520 B. C. to about 518 B. C.; and was contemporary with Haggai. See Zech. i. 1.

12 Malachi is generally believed to have prophesied about 436 B C.

THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET HOSEA.

Chronological Notes relative to the commencement of Hosea's prophesying, upon the supposition that this event took place in the last year of the reign of Jeroboam II., king of Israel.

Year of the world, according to the Usherian account, 3219.—Year of the Julian period, 3929.—Year since the Flood, 1563. Year from the vocation of Abram, 1136.—Year from the foundation of Solomon's temple, 227.—Year before the First Olympiad, 9.—Year before the building of Rome, 32.—Year before the vulgar era of Christ's nativity, 785.—Cycle of the Sun, 9.—Cycle of the Moon, 15.—Second year of Cœnus, the second king of Macedon; which was the thirtieth from the foundation of the monarchy.—Thirteenth year of Agamestor, perpetual archon of the Athenians.—Thirteenth year of Ardysus, king of Lydia.—Twelfth year of Amulius Sylvius, king of the Albans.—Twenty-fifth year of Charilaus, king of the Lacedæmonians.—Forty-first year of Jeroboam II., king of Israel.—Twenty-sixth year of Uzziah, king of Judah.

CHAPTER I.

Under the figure of a wife proving false to her marriage vows, and bearing children that would follow her example, the prophet represents the shameful idolatry of the ten tribes, which provoked God to cast them off. The whole passage is information by action instead of words. The names of the children are all emblematical. The first is intended to put Israel in mind of their unrepented guilt, and the acts of cruelty committed in their palace of Jezreel, (1 Kings xxi. 1.) The second and third, signifying not finding mercy, and not my people, denote that, in consequence of their guilt, they were to be rejected of God, 1–9. God promises, however, to repair the loss to his Church by calling in the Gentiles, 10; and by uniting all the children of God under one head, the Messiah, in the latter days, 11.

A. M. cir. 3219. B. C. cir. 785. Ante U. C. 32. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 12.

THE word of the LORD that came unto Hosea, the son of Beeri, in the days of [a] Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, and in the days of [b] Jeroboam the son of Joash, king of Israel.

A. M. cir. 3219. B. C. cir. 785. Ante U. C. 32. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 12.

2 The beginning of the word of the LORD by Hosea. And the LORD said to Hosea, [c] Go, take unto thee a

[a] Isa. i. 1.——[b] 2 Kings xiv. 23.

[c] So chap. iii. 1.

NOTES ON CHAP. I.

Verse 1. Hosea, the son of Beeri] See the preceding account of this prophet.

In the days of Uzziah, &c.] If we suppose, says Bp. Newcome, that Hosea prophesied during the course of sixty-six years, and place him from the year 790 before Christ to the year 724, he will have exercised his office eight years in the reign of Jeroboam the second, thirty-three years in the reign of Uzziah, the whole reigns of Jotham and Ahaz, and three years in the reign of Hezekiah; but will not have survived the taking of Samaria. But see the preceding account of this prophet.

I think the first verse to be a title to this book added by the compiler of his prophecies, and that it relates more to facts which took place in those reigns, and had been predicted by Hosea, who would only be said to have prophesied under all those kings, by his predictions, which were consecutively fulfilled under them. By those, though dead, he continued to speak. The prophet's work properly begins at ver. 2; hence called, "The beginning of the word of the Lord by Hosea."

Verse 2. A wife of whoredoms] That is, says Newcome, a wife from among the Israelites, who were remarkable for spiritual fornication, or idolatry. God calls himself the husband of Israel; and this chosen nation owed him the fidelity of a wife. See Exod. xxxiv. 15; Deut. xxxi. 16; Judg. ii. 17; Isa. liv. 5; Jer. iii. 14; xxxi. 32; Ezek. xvi. 17; xxiii. 5, 27; Hos. 2, 5; Rev. xvii. 1, 2. He therefore says, with indignation, Go join thyself in marriage to one of those wife of whoredoms, and children of whoredoms: for [d] the land hath committed great whoredom, departing from the LORD.

A. M. cir. 3219. B. C. cir. 785. Ante U. C. 32. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 12.

3 So he went and took Gomer the daughter of Diblaim; which conceived, and bare him a son.

4 And the LORD said unto him, Call his name Jezreel; for yet a little while, [e] and I will [f] avenge the blood of Jezreel upon the house of Jehu, [g] and will cause to cease the kingdom of the house of Israel.

5 [h] And it shall come to pass at that day, that I will break the bow of Israel in the valley of Jezreel.

6 And she conceived again, and bare a daughter. And God said unto him, Call her name [i] Lo-ruhamah: [k] for [l] I will no more have mercy upon the house of Israel; [m] but I will utterly take them away.

A. M. cir. 3219. B. C. cir. 785. Ante U. C. 32. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 12.

7 [n] But I will have mercy upon the house of Judah, and will save them by the LORD their God, and [o] will not save them by bow, nor by sword, nor by battle, by horses, nor by horsemen.

8 Now when she had weaned Lo-ruhamah, she conceived, and bare a son.

9 Then said God, call his name [p] Lo-ammi: for ye are not my people, and I will not be your God.

10 Yet [q] the number of the children of Israel

[d] Deut. xxxi. 16; Psa. lxxiii. 27; Jer. ii. 13; Ezek. xxiii. 3, &c.——[e] 2 Kings x. 11.——[f] Heb. visit.——[g] 2 Kings xv. 10, 12.——[h] 2 Kings xv. 29.——[i] That is, Not having obtained mercy. [k] 2 Kings xvii. 6, 23.

[l] Heb. I will not add any more to.——[m] Or, that I should altogether pardon them.——[n] 2 Kings xix. 35.——[o] Zech. iv. 6; ix. 10.——[p] That is, Not my people.——[q] Gen. xxxii. 12; Romans ix. 27, 28.

who have committed fornication against me, and raise up children who, by the power of example, will themselves swerve to idolatry. See chap. v. 7. And thus show them that they are radically depraved.

Verse 3. He went and took Gomer] All this appears to be a real transaction, though having a typical meaning. If he took an Israelite, he must necessarily have taken an idolatress; one who had worshipped the calves of Jeroboam at Dan or at Bethel.

Verse 4. Call his name Jezreel] יזרעאל that is, God will disperse. This seems to intimate that a dispersion or sowing of Israel shall take place; which happened under Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, 2 Kings xvii. 5, 6. But the word refers also to the name of a city, where Jehu slew Jezebel and all the children of Ahab. 2 Kings ix. 10, 36, and x. 6.

This was one of those prophetic names which we so often meet with in the Scriptures; e. g., Japheth, Abraham, Israel, Judah, Joshua, Zerubbabel, Solomon, Sheer-jashub, &c.

The blood of Jezreel] Not Jehu's vengeance on Ahab's family, but his acts of cruelty while he resided at Jezreel, a city in the tribe of Issachar, Josh. xix. 18, where the kings of Israel had a palace, 1 Kings xxi. 1.

Will cause to cease the kingdom] Either relating to the cutting off of the kingdom of Israel by the Assyrians, see ver. 6, or to the ceasing of the kingdom of Israel from the house of Jehu, 2 Kings x. 30, and which was fulfilled, 2 Kings xv. 10.—Newcome.

Verse 5. In the valley of Jezreel] This also is supposed to relate either to some signal defeat of the Israelites by the Assyrians, which took place in the valley of Jezreel; or to the death of Zechariah, the fourth lineal descendant of Jehu, which may have happened here. See 2 Kings xv. 10.—Newcome.

Verse 6. Call her Lo-ruhamah] לא רחמה "Not having obtained mercy." This also was a prophetic or typical name; and the reason of its imposition is immediately given:

For I will no more have mercy] כי לא אוסיף עוד ארחם ki lo osiph od arachem, "For I will no more add to have mercy upon the house of Israel." This refers to the total destruction of that kingdom.

Verse. 7. But I will have mercy upon the house of Judah] I will spare them as a kingdom after Israel has been carried away into captivity by the Assyrians.

And will save them by the Lord their God] Remarkably fulfilled in the supernatural defeat of the army of the Assyrians, see 2 Kings xix. 35; and so they were saved not by bow, nor by sword, nor by battle, nor by horses, nor by horsemen. The former expression may mean, not in war by horses, i. e., yoked to war chariots, nor by horsemen—nor by cavalry, however efficient such troops might have then been deemed.

Verse 9. Call his name Lo-ammi] לא עמי Lo-ammi, "Not my people;" for which the reason is immediately given:

Ye are not my people, and I will not be your God.] The word GOD is not added here by any of the ancient versions or MSS.; and yet the construction absolutely requires it, as Houbigant properly observes, who thinks the present reading לא אהיה לכם lo eheyeh lachem, "I will not be to you," a corruption of the word אלהיכם cloheychem, "your God." It is strange that no various reading occurs on this verse in any MS. yet discovered. In two of the oldest of mine there is a blank of half a line left after the last word; and so it is in the Masoretic Bibles, though the sense is not complete; for it is evidently continued in the following verse. Probably God refers to the words, Exod. iii. 14: אהיה אשר אהיה I am that I am. I am, אהיה cheyeh,—I shall be, hath sent me unto you. I will not be your cheyeh, i. e., I will not be your God.

Verse 10. Yet the number of the children of Israel] God had promised that the children of Israel should be as the sand of the sea. See Gen. xxxii. 12; Rom. ix. 25, 26. And though for their iniquities he had shall be as the sand of the sea, which cannot be measured nor numbered; [r] and it shall come to pass, that [s] in the place where it was said unto them, [t] Ye are not my people, there it shall be said unto them, Ye are [u] the sons of the living God.

A. M. cir. 3219. B. C. cir. 785. Ante U. C. 32. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 12.

A. M. cir. 3219. B. C. cir. 785. Ante U. C. 32. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 12.

11 [v] Then shall the children of Judah and the children of Israel be gathered together, and appoint themselves one head, and they shall come up out of the land: for great shall be the day of Jezreel.

[r] Rom. ix. 25, 26; 1 Pet. ii. 10.——[s] Or, instead of that.——[t] Ch. ii. 23.

[u] John i. 12; 1 John iii. 1.——[v] Isa. xi. 12, 13; Jer. iii. 18; Ezek. xxxiv. 23; xxxvii. 16–24.

thinned and scattered them, yet the spirit and design of his promise and covenant shall be fulfilled. An Israel there shall be. In the place of the reprobated people, who were now no longer his people, there shall be found an Israel that shall be the children of the living God. See the above scriptures, and 1 Pet. ii. 10. This must mean either the Israelites after their conversion to Christianity, or even the Gentiles themselves converted to God, and now become the true Israel.

Verse 11. The children of Judah and the children of Israel] After the return from Babylon, the distinction between Israel and Judah was entirely destroyed; and those of them that did return were all included under one denomination, Jews; and the one head may refer to Zerubbabel their leader, and afterwards under Ezra and Nehemiah. In the more extensive view of the prophet the one Head may mean Jesus Christ, under whom the true Israel, Jews and Gentiles, shall be finally gathered together; so that there shall be one flock, and one Shepherd over that flock.

They shall come up out of the land] Assyria and Chaldea in particular; but also from the various places of their dispersions in general.

Great shall be the day of Jezreel.] He alludes to the meaning of the word, the seed of God. God who has dispersed—sown, them in different lands, shall gather them together; and that day of God's power shall be great and glorious. It was a wonderful seed time in the Divine justice; it shall then be a wonderful harvest in the Divine mercy. He sowed them among the nations in his wrath; he shall reap them and gather them in his bounty.

CHAPTER II.

The prophet exhorts his people to speak and to act as became those who obtained mercy of God; and to remonstrate strongly against the conduct of their mother, (Samaria,) whose captivity is threatened on account of her forsaking God, and ascribing her prosperity to idols, 1–5. As an amplification of this threatening, the prophet enumerates a series of afflictions which were to befall her to bring her to a sense of her duty to God; and of her folly in seeking after idols, and falsely ascribing to them the blessings of Providence, 6–13. After these corrections, however, God promises to conduct Israel safely to their own land; perhaps alluding to their restoration from the Babylonish captivity, for this prophecy is supposed to have been delivered about two hundred and fifty years prior to this event, 14, 15. He farther engages to deal with them as a tender husband, and not as a severe master, as were the idols which they served, 16, 17. The rest of the chapter promises the people of God, the true Israel, security from every evil, with the possession of every blessing, under a new covenant; and that in terms full of beauty, energy, and consolation. Heaven and earth, and whatever they contain; all nature, and the God of nature, are represented as uniting to make the people of God happy; so that if they only breathe a wish, one part of nature, animate or inanimate, echoes it to another, and all join in sweet harmony to transmit it to the ear of the Almighty. "I will hear, saith the LORD, I will hear the heavens, and they shall hear the earth; and the earth shall hear the corn, and the wine, and the oil; and they shall hear Jezreel."

A. M. cir. 3219. B. C. cir. 785. Ante U. C. 32. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum. 12.

SAY ye unto your brethren, [a] Ammi; and to your sisters, [b] Ruhamah.

2 Plead with your mother, plead: for [c] she is not my wife, neither am I her husband: let her therefore put away her [d] whoredoms out of her sight, and her adulteries from between her breasts;

A. M. cir 3219. B. C. cir. 785. Ante U. C. 32. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 12.

[a] That is, My people.——[b] That is, Having obtained mercy.

[c] Isa. l. 1.——[d] Ezek. xvi. 25.

NOTES ON CHAP. II.

Verse 1. Say ye unto your brethren, Ammi] I prefer the interpretation of these proper names. Say ye unto your brethren, MY PEOPLE; and to your sisters, who have OBTAINED MERCY.

Verse 2. Plead with your mother] People of Judah, accuse your mother, (Jerusalem,) who has abandoned my worship, and is become idolatrous; convince her of her folly and wickedness, and let her return to him from whom she has so deeply revolted.

A. M. cir. 3219. B. C. cir. 785. Ante U. C. 32. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 12.

3 Lest [e] I strip her naked, and set her as in the day that she was [f] born, and make her [g] as a wilderness, and set her like a dry land, and slay her with [h] thirst.

4 And I will not have mercy upon her children; for they be the [i] children of whoredoms.

5 [k] For their mother hath played the harlot: she that conceived them hath done shamefully: for she said, I will go after my lovers, [l] that give me my bread and my water, my wool and my flax, mine oil and my [m] drink.

6 Therefore, behold, [n] I will hedge up thy way with thorns, and [o] make a wall, that she shall not find her paths.

7 And she shall follow after her lovers, but she shall not overtake them; and she shall seek them, but shall not find them: then shall she say, [p] I will go and return to my [q] first husband; for then was it better with me than now.

8 For she did not [r] know that [s] I gave her corn, and [t] wine, and oil, and multiplied her silver and gold, [u] which they prepared for Baal.

A. M. cir. 3219. B. C. cir. 785. Ante U. C. 32. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 12.

9 Therefore will I return, and [v] take away my corn in the time thereof, and my wine in the season thereof, and will [w] recover my wool and my flax given to cover her nakedness.

10 And now [x] will I discover her [y] lewdness in the sight of her lovers, and none shall deliver her out of mine hand.

11 [z] I will also cause all her mirth to cease, her [a] feast days, her new moons, and her Sabbaths, and all her solemn feasts.

12 And I will [b] destroy her vines and her fig-trees, [c] whereof she hath said, These are my rewards that my lovers have given me: and [d] I will make them a forest, and the beasts of the field shall eat them.

13 And I will visit upon her the days of Baalim, wherein she burned incense to them, [e] Jer. xiii. 22, 26; Ezekiel xvi. 37, 39.——[f] Ezekiel xvi. 4. [g] Ezek. xix. 13.——[h] Amos viii. 11, 13.——[i] John viii. 41.——[k] Isa. i. 21; Jer. iii. 1, 6, 8, 9; Ezek. xvi. 15, 16, &c.——[l] Ver. 8, 12; Jer. xliv. 17.——[m] Heb. drinks.——[n] Job iii. 23; xix. 8; Lam. iii. 7, 9.——[o] Heb. wall a wall.——[p] Chapter v. 15; Luke xv. 18.

[q] Ezek. xvi. 8.——[r] Isa. i. 3.——[s] Ezek. xvi. 17, 18, 19.——[t] Heb. new wine.——[u] Or, wherewith they made Baal; chapter viii. 4. [v] Ver. 3.——[w] Or, take away.——[x] Ezek. xvi. 37; xxiii. 29. [y] Heb. folly or villany.——[z] Amos viii. 10.——[a] 1 Kings xii. 32; Amos viii. 5.——[b] Heb. make desolate.——[c] Verse 5.——[d] Psalm lxxx. 12, 13; Isa. v. 5.

Verse 3. Lest I strip her naked] Lest I expose her to infamy, want, and punishment. The punishment of an adulteress among the ancient Germans was this: "They shaved off her hair, stripped her naked in the presence of her relatives, and in this state drove her from the house of her husband." See on Isa. iii. 17; and see also Ezek. xvi. 39; xxiii. 26. However reproachful this might be to such delinquents, it had no tendency to promote their moral reformation.

And set her like a dry land] The Israelites, if obedient, were promised a land flowing with milk and honey; but, should they be disobedient, the reverse. And this is what God here threatens against disobedient Israel.

Verse 4. They be the children of whoredoms.] They are all idolaters; and have been consecrated to idols, whose marks they bear.

Verse 5. That give me my bread] See the note on Jer. xliv. 17, 18, where nearly the same words are found and illustrated.

Verse 6. I will hedge up thy way with thorns] I will put it out of your power to escape the judgments I have threatened; and, in spite of all your attachment to your idols, you shall find that they can give you neither bread, nor water, nor wool, nor flax, nor oil, nor drink. And ye shall be brought into such circumstances, that the pursuit of your expensive idolatry shall be impossible. And she shall be led so deep into captivity, as never to find the road back to her own land. And this is the fact; for those who were carried away into Assyria have been lost among the nations, few of them having ever returned to Judea. And, if in being, where they are now is utterly unknown.

Verse 8. For she did not know that I gave her corn] How often are the gifts of God's immediate bounty attributed to fortuitous causes—to any cause but the right one!

Which they prepared for Baal.] And how often are the gifts of God's bounty perverted into means of dishonouring him! God gives us wisdom, strength, and property; and we use them to sin against him with the greater skill, power, and effect! Were the goods those of the enemy, in whose service they are employed, the crime would be the less. But the crime is deeply engrained, when God's property is made the instrument to dishonour himself.

Verse 9. Therefore will I return, and take away] In the course of my providence, I will withhold those benefits which she has prostituted to her idolatrous services. And I will neither give the land rain, nor fruitful seasons.

Verse 10. In the sight of her lovers] Her idols, and her faithful or faithless allies.

Verse 11. Her feast days] Jerusalem shall be pillaged and destroyed; and therefore all her joyous assemblies, and religious feasts, &c., shall cease.

Verse 12. These are my rewards] They attributed all the blessings of Providence as rewards received from the idols which they worshipped.

Verse 13. Days of Baalim] To visit signifies to inflict punishment; the days are taken for the acts of idolatrous worship committed on them; and Baalim

A. M. cir. 3219. B. C. cir. 785. Ante U. C. 32. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 12.

and she [e] decked herself with her earrings and her jewels, and she went after her lovers, and forgat me, saith the LORD.

14 Therefore, behold, I will allure her, and [f] bring her into the wilderness, and speak [g] comfortably [h] unto her.

15 And I will give her vineyards from thence, and [i] the valley of Achor for a door of hope: and she shall sing there, as in [k] the days of her youth, and [l] as in the day when she came up out of the land of Egypt.

16 And it shall be at that day, saith the LORD, that thou shalt call me [m] Ishi; and shalt call me no more [n] Baali.

17 For [o] I will take away the names of Baalim out of her mouth, and they shall no more be remembered by their name.

A. M. cir. 3219. B. C. cir. 785. Ante U. C. 32. Amulii Sylvii R. Alban., cir. annum 12.

18 And in that day will I make a [p] covenant for them with the beasts of the field, and with the fowls of heaven, and with the creeping things of the ground: and [q] I will break the bow and the sword, and the battle out of the earth, and will make them to [r] lie down safely.

19 And I will betroth thee unto me for ever; yea, I will betroth thee unto me in righteousness, and in judgment, and in lovingkindness, and in mercies.

20 I will even betroth thee unto me in faithfulness; and [s] thou shalt know the LORD.

21 And it shall come to pass in that day, I will hear, saith the LORD, I will hear the hea-

[e] Ezek. xxiii. 40, 42.——[f] Ezek. xx. 35.——[g] Or, friendly. [h] Heb. to her heart.——[i] Josh. vii. 26; Isa. lxv. 10.——[k] Jer. ii. 2; Ezek. xvi. 8, 22, 60.——[l] Exod. xv. 1.——[m] That is, My husband.——[n] That is, My lord.

[o] Exod. xxiii. 13; Josh. xxiii. 7; Psa. xvi. 4; Zech. xiii. 2. [p] Job v. 23; Isa. xi. 6–9; Ezek. xxxiv. 25.——[q] Psa. xlvi. 9; Isa. ii. 4; Ezek. xxxix. 9, 10; Zech. ix. 10.——[r] Lev. xxvi. 5; Jer. xxiii. 6.——[s] Jer. xxxi. 33, 34; John xvii. 3.——[t] Zech. viii. 12.

means the multitude of false gods worshipped by them. Baal was a general name for a male idol, as Astarte was for a female. Baalim includes all the male idols, as Ashtaroth all those that were female. But the species of idol was often designated by some adjunct; as Baal-Zebub, Baal-Peor, Baal-Zephon, Baal-Berith, &c.

Her earrings] נזמה nizmah, signifies rather a nose jewel. These are worn by females in the East to the present day, in great abundance.

And her jewels] וחליה vechelyatah, rings, armlets, bracelets, ankle-rings, and ornaments of this kind.

Verse 14. I will allure her, and bring her into the wilderness, and speak comfortably unto her.] After inflicting many judgments upon her, I will restore her again. I will deal with her as a very affectionate husband would do to an unfaithful wife. Instead of making her a public example, he takes her in private, talks to and reasons with her; puts her on her good behaviour; promises to pass by all, and forgive all, if she will now amend her ways. In the meantime he provides what is necessary for her wants and comfortable support; and thus, opening a door of hope for her, she may be fully reconciled; rejoice as at the beginning, when he first took her by the hand, and she became his bride. This is most probably the simple meaning of the above metaphorical expressions. The valley of Achor was very fruitful; it lay to the north of Jericho, not far from Gilgal. See Isa. lxv. 10.

Verse 15. She shall sing there] There she shall sing the responsive song, as on high festival occasions, and in marriage ceremonies. The Book of Canticles is of this sort.

Verse 16. Thou shalt call me Ishi] That is, my man, or my husband; a title of love and affection; and not BAALI, my master, a title exciting fear and apprehension; which, howsoever good in itself, was now rendered improper to be applied to Jehovah, having been prostituted to false gods. This intimated that they should scrupulously avoid idolatry; and they had such a full proof of the inefficacy of their idolatrous worship that, after their captivity, they never more served idols.

Verse 18. Will I make a covenant for them] I will make an agreement between them and the birds, beasts, and reptiles, so that they shall not be injured by those; their flocks shall not be destroyed, nor their crops spoiled. I will also prevent every species of war, that they may no more have the calamities that arise from that source. They shall also be safe from robbers and nightly alarms; for I will make them to lie down in safety.

Verse 19. I will betroth thee unto me] The people are always considered under the emblem of a wife unfaithful to her husband.

In righteousness] According to law, reason, and equity.

In judgment] According to what is fit and becoming.

In lovingkindness] Having the utmost affection and love for thee.

In mercies.] Forgiving and blotting out all past miscarriages. Or there may be an allusion here to the dowry given by the husband to his wife: "I will give righteousness," &c., as a dowry.

Verse 20. In faithfulness] Thou shalt no more prostitute thyself to idols, but be faithful to him who calls himself thy husband.

Thou shalt know the Lord.] There shall be no more infidelity on thy part nor divorce on mine; and thou shalt experience me to be the sole, present, and eternal good of thy immortal spirit: and when this conviction is fully rooted, then there can be no more idolatry, for it shall be seen that an idol is nothing in the world.

Verse 21. I will hear, saith the Lord] The sentence is repeated, to show how fully the thing was

A. M. cir. 3219. B. C. cir. 785. Ante U. C. 32. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum. 12.

vens, and they shall hear the earth;

22 And the earth shall hear the corn, and the wine, and the oil; [u] and they shall hear Jezreel.

23 And [v] I will sow her unto me in the earth, [w] and I will have mercy upon her that had not obtained mercy; and I [x] will say to them which were not my people, Thou art my people; and they shall say, Thou art my God.

[u] Chap. i. 4.——[v] Jer. xxxi. 27; Zech. x. 9.——[w] Chap. i. 6.

[x] Chap. i. 10; Zech. xiii. 9; Rom. ix. 26; 1 Pet. ii. 10.

determined by the Almighty, and how implicitly they might depend on the Divine promise.

I will hear the heavens] The visible heavens, the atmosphere, where vapours are collected. The clouds, when they wish to deposit their fertilizing showers upon the earth.

They shall hear the earth] When it seems to supplicate for rain.

Verse 22. Shall hear the corn, and the wine] When they seem to express a desire to supply the wants of man.

And they shall hear Jezreel.] The destitute people who are in want of the necessaries of life.

This most elegant gradation in the exertion of the influences of nature, for the supply of the wants of man, may be considered thus:—

1. There is a concord, harmony, and mutual influence, which God has established in the parts of created nature, in reference to the support and preservation of the human race.

2. God alone is the author of all this; and unless he give his command, communicate his energetic influence to the different parts of nature, these effects will not, cannot be produced.

3. Jezreel, the people who have been dispersed for their iniquities, and now about to be sown or planted in their own land, will require the most fostering care. See on ver. 23.

4. They are heard in desiring oil, wine, and corn. These are necessary to the support and comfort of life; and to those the desire of animal life naturally aspires.

5. These products are looked for from the EARTH. On it, and by it, grass grows for the cattle, and corn for the service of man.

6. The seeds or germs, whence proceed corn, wine, and oil, live and grow in the earth; but cannot come to perfection, unless the earth be impregnated with the dews and rains from the clouds. They are therefore represented as imploring the heavens to collect their clouds, to pour down their fructifying moisture upon it.

7. The clouds, or materials of which they are composed, not being able to arrange themselves, nor aggregate themselves so as to meet those demands, prevent drought, and maintain an effective vegetation, are represented as calling upon the heavens to form, arrange, and supply them with the requisite quantity of moisture.

8. God, who is the author of all being and all bounty, dependent on nothing, comes forward and says, I will hear the heavens, the clouds which are gathered in the atmosphere; he will arrange the particles, saturate those that are light, till they become sufficiently impregnated with the necessary fluid; and then direct them in his providence where to deposit their contents. And,

9. When brought to the proper place, he will shake them with his winds, or strike them with his thunder, so as to cause them to fall down in drops to fertilize the earth with their showers.

Thus then—

1. God works upon the heavens.

2. In them the clouds are collected.

3. The clouds drop their moisture upon the earth.

4. The earth exerts its vegetative influence upon the germs which it contains.

5. They expand, increase, and become matured, under the genial influences of the heavens, sun, air, water, from the clouds, &c.

6. Man receives and applies those bounties of Providence, and variously prepares them for the support and comfort of life.

Take all this in still fewer words:—

As Jezreel or the Israelites are here considered as perishing for want of food, all inanimate nature is represented as invoking God in their behalf.

1. The heavens have prayed that they be stored with clouds, that they may drop down fatness upon the earth.

2. The Lord answers the heavens, and clouds are formed.

3. The earth invokes the clouds, that they may drop down their fatness into its bosom.

4. The bottles of heaven are, consequently, unstopped for this purpose.

5. Then the corn, vine, and olive, implore the earth to put forth its vegetative energy.

6. The earth answers; and corn, wine, and oil are produced.

7. Jezreel cries for the necessaries of life, and the abundance of the above supplies all his wants.

All these are dependent on each other, as the links are which constitute a chain; and God has the government of the whole; and he manages all for the benefit of man. How wondrous is this providence! How gracious is this GOD!

Here is a series of prosopopœias together. Corn, wine, oil, the earth, the clouds and their contents, the heavens, sun, moon, &c., are all represented as intelligent beings, speaking to and influencing each other. GOD is at one end of the chain, and MAN at the other; and by means of the intermediate links the latter is kept in a state of continued dependence upon the former for life, breath, and all things.

Verse 23. I will sow her] Alluding to the import of the name Jezreel, the seed of God. Then shall it appear that God has shown mercy to them that had not obtained mercy. Then the covenant of God will be renewed; for he will call them his people who were not his people; and they shall call Jehovah their God, who before had him not for the object of their worship. It does not appear that these promises have had their fulfilment among the Jews. They must either be understood of the blessings experienced by the Gentiles on their conversion to God by the preaching of the Gospel, or are yet to be fulfilled to the Jews on their embracing the Gospel, and being brought back to their own land.

The sentences in the latter part of this verse are very abrupt, but exceedingly expressive; leaving out those words supplied by the translators, and which unnerve the passage, it stands thus: I will say to NOT MY PEOPLE, THOU MY PEOPLE; and they shall say, MY GOD.

CHAPTER III.

By the prophet's taking back his wife, for whom he (her friend or husband) still retained his affection, though she had proved unfaithful; by his entering into a new contract with her; and by his giving her hopes of reconciliation, after she should for some time prove, as in a state of widowhood, the sincerity of her repentance; is represented the gracious manner in which God will restore the Jews from the Babylonish captivity, 1–4. It is also very strongly intimated that the whole house of Israel will be added to the Church of Christ in the latter days, 5.

A. M. cir. 3219. B. C. cir. 785. Ante U. C. 32. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban, cir. annum 12.

THEN said the LORD unto me, [a] Go yet, love a woman beloved of her [b] friend, yet an adulteress, according to the love of the LORD toward the children of Israel, who look to other gods, and love flagons [c] of wine.

2 So I bought her to me for fifteen pieces of silver, and for a homer of barley, and a [d] half homer of barley:

A. M. cir. 3219. B. C. cir. 785. Ante U. C. 32. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 12.

3 And I said unto her, Thou shalt [e] abide for me many days; thou shalt not play the harlot, and thou shalt not be for another man: so will I also be for thee.

4 For the children of Israel shall abide many

[a] Chap. i. 2.——[b] Jer. iii. 20.——[c] Heb. of grapes.

[d] Heb. lethech.——[e] Deut. xxi. 13.

NOTES ON CHAP. III.

Verse 1. Go yet, love a woman] This is a different command from that mentioned in the first chapter. That denoted the infidelity of the kingdom of Israel, and God's divorce of them. He gave them up to their enemies, and caused them to be carried into captivity. The woman mentioned here represents one who was a lawful wife joining herself to a paramour; then divorced by her husband; afterwards repenting, and desirous to be joined to her spouse; ceasing from her adulterous commerce, but not yet reconciled to him. This was the state and disposition of the Jews under the Babylonish captivity. Though separated from their own idols, they continued separated from their God. He is still represented as having affectionate feelings towards them; awaiting their full repentance and contrition, in order to renew the marriage covenant. These things are pointed out by the symbolical actions of the prophet.

Beloved of her friend] Or, a lover of evil; or, loving another: for the Hebrew words אהבת רע mean one who loves evil or a friend: because רע signifies a friend, or evil, according as it is pointed. The former seems to be its best sense here; רע rea is a friend; רע ra is evil.

According to the love of the Lord] This woman, who had proved false to her husband, was still beloved by him, though he could not acknowledge her; as the Israelites were beloved by the Lord, while they were looking after other gods. The flagons of wine were probably such as were used for libations, or drunk in idol feasts. Others think that the words should be translated cakes of dried grapes, sweet cakes, consecrated wafers.

Verse 2. Fifteen pieces of silver] If they were shekels, the price of this woman was about two pounds five shillings.

A homer of barley] As the homer was about eight bushels, or something more, the homer and half was about twelve or thirteen bushels.

Verse 3. Thou shalt abide for me many days] He did not take her home, but made a contract with her that, if she would abstain from her evil ways, he would take her to himself after a sufficient trial. In the meantime he gave her the money and the barley to subsist upon, that she might not be under the temptation of becoming again unfaithful.

So will I also be for thee.] That is, if thou, Israel, wilt keep thyself separate from thy idolatry, and give me proof, by thy total abstinence from idols, that thou wilt be my faithful worshipper, I will receive thee again, and in the meantime support thee with the necessaries of life while thou art in the land of thy captivity. This is farther illustrated in the following verses.

Verse 4. Many days without a king] Hitherto this prophecy has been literally fulfilled. Since the destruction of the temple by the Romans they have neither had king nor prince, nor any civil government of their own, but have lived in different nations of the earth as mere exiles. They have neither priests nor sacrifices, nor urim nor thummim; no prophet, no oracle, no communication of any kind from God.

Without an image—ephod—teraphim] The Septuagint read, Ουδε ουσης θυσιας, ουδε οντος θυσιαστηριου, ουδε ιερατειας, ουδε δηλων: "Without a sacrifice, without an altar, without a priesthood, and without oracles;" that is, the urim and thummim. The Vulgate, Arabic, and Syriac read nearly the same. Instead of כצבה days [f] without a king, and without a prince, and without sacrifice, and without [g] an image, and without an [h] ephod, and without [i] teraphim:

A. M. cir. 3219. B. C. cir. 785. Ante U. C. 32. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir annum 12.

5 Afterward shall the children of Israel return, and [k] seek the LORD their God, and [l] David their king; and shall fear the LORD and his goodness in the [m] latter days.

A. M. cir. 3219. B. C. cir. 785. Ante U. C. 32. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 12.

[f] Chap. x. 3; Song of the three children, ver. 15.——[g] Heb. a standing, or statue, or pillar; Isa. xix. 19.——[h] Exod. xxviii. 6. [i] Judg. xvii. 5.

[k] Jer. l. 4, 5; Chap. v. 6.——[l] Jer. xxx. 9; Ezek. xxxiv. 23, 24; xxxvii. 22, 24.——[m] Isa. ii. 2; Jer. xxx. 24; Ezek. xxxviii. 8, 16; Dan. ii. 28; Mic. iv. 1.

matstsebah, an image, they have evidently read מזבח mizbeach, an altar; the letters of these words being very similar, and easily mistaken for each other. But instead of either, one, if not two, of Kennicott's MSS. has מנחה minchah, an oblation.

What is called image may signify any kind of pillar, such as God forbade them to erect, Lev. xxvi. 1, lest it should be an incitement to idolatry.

The ephod was the high priest's garment of ceremony; the teraphim were some kind of amulets, telesms, or idolatrous images; the urim and thummim belonged to the breast-plate, which was attached to the ephod.

Instead of teraphim some would read seraphim, changing the ת tau into ש sin; these are an order of the celestial hierarchy. In short, all the time that the Israelites were in captivity in Babylon, they seem to have been as wholly without forms of idolatrous worship as they were without the worship of God; and this may be what the prophet designs: they were totally without any kind of public worship, whether true or false. As well without images and teraphim, as they were without sacrifice and ephod, though still idolaters in their hearts. They were in a state of the most miserable darkness, which was to continue many days; and it has continued now nearly eighteen hundred years, and must continue yet longer, till they acknowledge him as their Saviour whom they crucified as a blasphemer.

Verse 5. Afterward shall the children of Israel return] Shall repent of their iniquities, and seek the Lord; lay aside their mock worship, and serve the true God in spirit and in truth.

And David their king] Or as the Targum, "They shall obey the Messiah, the Son of David, their King;" and thus look believingly upon him whom they have pierced, and mourn. And then shall their long spiritual darkness and dismal captivity have an end; but not before. The Messiah, as David, is promised in Jer. xxx. 9; Ezek. xxxiv. 23: xxxvii. 22, 24, 25, (where see the notes,) and in this place of Hosea. Some think that the family of David is intended; but if we go to the rigour of the letter, the house of Israel was scarcely ever perfectly submissive to David. And we know that after the death of Solomon they never acknowledged the house of David till they were all carried away captive; and certainly never since. And to say that Zerubbabel is here meant, is not supportable, as the very short and imperfect obedience of the Jews to Zerubbabel can never comport with the high terms of this and similar prochecies. We are obliged, therefore, from the evidence of these prophecies, from the evidence of the above facts, from the evidence of the rabbins themselves, and from the evidence of the New Testament, to consider these texts as applying solely to JESUS CHRIST, the promised MESSIAH, who has been a light to lighten the Gentiles, and will yet be the glory of his people Israel. There is a strange propensity in some men to deny these evidences of Christianity, while they profess to believe its doctrines.

CHAPTER IV.

The prophet charges his people with their enormous sins, 1, 2; in consequence of which they are threatened with heavy judgments, 3–5. God himself is then introduced complaining of the ignorance and obstinacy of Israel; and as their priests had a large share in the common guilt, it is declared that they shall be visited with a proportionable share of the common ruin, 6–11. The sins of idolatry and divination are then particularly reproved, 12–14; and Judah admonished to beware of these sins, which would leave her rebellious sister Israel helpless and desolate as a lamb in a desert, 15, 16. In the remaining verses the style is varied, but the subject is the same. Ephraim is given up to idolatry, and the necessary consequence declared to be a bitter draught! Immediately we see him bound in the wings of a mighty tempest, and driven as chaff before the wind, either to destruction or captivity, 17–19.

A. M. cir. 3224. B. C. cir. 780. Ante U. C. 27. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 17.

HEAR the word of the LORD, ye children of Israel: for the LORD hath a [a] controversy with the inhabitants of the land, because there is no truth, nor mercy, nor [b] knowledge of God in the land.

2 By swearing, and lying, and

A. M. cir. 3224. B. C. cir. 780. Ante U. C. 27. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 17.

[a] Isa. i. 18; iii. 13, 14; Jer. xxv. 31; Chap. xii. 2; Mic. vi. 2.

[b] Jer. iv. 22; v. 4.

NOTES ON CHAP. IV.

Verse 1. The Lord hath a controversy] ריב rib, what we should call a lawsuit, in which God is plaintiff, and the Israelites defendants. It is Jehovah versus Israel and Judah.

But when has God a controversy with any land!—

A. M. cir. 3224. B. C. cir. 780. Ante U. C. 27. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban. cir. annum 17.

killing, and stealing, and committing adultery, they break out, and [c] blood toucheth blood.

3 Therefore [d] shall the land mourn, and [e] every one that dwelleth therein shall languish, with the beasts of the field, and with the fowls of heaven; yea, the fishes of the sea also shall be taken away.

4 Yet let no man strive, nor reprove another: for thy people are as they [f] that strive with the priest.

5 Therefore shall thou fall [g] in the day, and the prophet also shall fall with thee in the night, and I will [h] destroy thy mother.

A. M. cir. 3224. B. C. cir. 780. Ante U. C. 27. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 17.

6 [i] My people are [k] destroyed for lack of knowledge: because thou hast rejected knowledge, I will also reject thee, that thou shalt be no priest to me: seeing thou hast forgotten the law of thy God, I will also forget thy children.

[c] Heb. bloods.——[d] Jer. iv. 28; xii. 4; Amos v. 16; viii. 8. [e] Zeph. i. 3.

[f] Deut. xvii. 12.——[g] See Jer. vi. 4, 5; xx. 8.——[h] Heb. cut off. [i] Isa. v. 13.——[k] Heb. cut off.

Answer. When there is no truth, nor mercy, nor knowledge of God in the land. These refer to the minds of the people. But wherever these righteous principles are wanting, there will soon be a vicious practice; hence it is added, Verse 2. By swearing, and lying] Where there is no truth there will be lies and perjury; for false swearing is brought in to confirm lying statements. And when there is no mercy, killing, slaying, and murders, will be frequent. And where there is no knowledge of God, no conviction of his omnipresence and omniscience, private offences, such as stealing, adulteries, &c., will prevail. These, sooner or later, break out, become a flood, and carry all before them. Private stealing will assume the form of a public robbery, and adulteries become fashionable, especially among the higher orders; and suits of crim. con. render them more public, scandalous, and corrupting. By the examination of witnesses, and reading of infamous letters in a court of justice, people are taught the wiles and stratagems to be used to accomplish these ends, and prevent detection; and also how to avoid those circumstances which have led to the detection of others. Every report of such matters is an experimental lecture on successful debauchery.

Blood toucheth blood.] Murders are not only frequent, but assassinations are mutual. Men go out to kill each other; as in our duels, the frenzy of cowards; and as there is no law regarded, and no justice in the land, the nearest akin slays the murderer. Even in our land, where duels are so frequent, if a man kill his antagonist, it is murder; and so generally brought in by an honest coroner and his jury. It is then brought into court; but who is hanged for it! The very murder is considered as an affair of honour, though it began in a dispute about a prostitute; and it is directed to be brought in manslaughter; and the murderer is slightly fined for having hurried his neighbour, perhaps once his friend, into the eternal world, with all his imperfections on his head! No wonder that a land mourns where these prevail; and that God should have a controversy with it. Such crimes as these are sufficient to bring God's curse upon any land. And how does God show his displeasure? See the following verse.

Verse 3. Therefore shall the land mourn] Fruitful seasons shall be denied.

That dwelleth therein shall languish] Endemic and epidemic disorders shall prevail, and multitudes shall die; so that mourning shall be found in all quarters.

The beasts of the field, and with the fowls] There is a death of cattle and domestic animals, in consequence of the badness of the season.

The fishes of the sea also shall be taken away.] Those immense shoals which at certain seasons frequent the coasts, which are caught in millions, and become a very useful home supply, and a branch of most profitable traffic, they shall be directed by the unseen influence of God to avoid our coasts, as has frequently been the case with herrings, mackerel, pilchards, &c.; and so this source of supply and wealth has been shut up, because of the iniquities of the land.

Verse 4. Yet let no man strive] Or, no man contendeth. All these evils stalk abroad unreproved, for all are guilty. None can say, "Let me pluck the mote out of thy eye," because he knows that "there is a beam in his own."

For thy people are] The people and the priest are alike rebels against the Lord; the priests having become idolaters, as well as the people. Bp. Newcome renders this clause, "And as is the provocation of the priest, so is that of my people." The whole clause in the original is ועמך כמריבי כהן veammecha kimeribey cohen, "and thy people as the rebellions of the priest." But one of my oldest MSS. omits כהן cohen, "priest;" and then the text may be read, And thy people are as rebels. In this MS. כהן cohen is added in the margin by a much later hand.

Verse 5. Therefore shalt thou fall in the day] In the most open and public manner, without snare or ambush.

And the prophet also shall fall—in the night] The false prophet, when employed in taking prognostications from stars, meteors, &c.

And I will destroy thy mother.] The metropolis or mother city. Jerusalem or Samaria is meant.

Verse 6. My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge] They have not the knowledge of God, nor of sacred things, nor of their own interest, nor of the danger to which they are exposed. They walk on blindly, and perish.

Because thou hast rejected knowledge] So they might have become wise, had they not rejected the means of improvement.

Thou shalt be no priest to me] If this be the true reading, there must be reference to some particular

A. M. cir. 3224. B. C. cir 780. Ante U. C. 27. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 17.

7 [l] As they were increased, so they sinned against me: [m] therefore will I change their glory into shame.

8 They eat up the sin of my people, and they [n] set their heart on their iniquity.

9 And there shall be, [o] like people, like priest: and I will [p] punish them for their ways, and [q] reward them their doings.

10 For [r] they shall eat, and not have enough: they shall commit whoredom, and shall not increase: because they have left off to take heed to the LORD.

11 Whoredom and wine and new wine [s] take away the heart.

12 My people ask counsel at their [t] stocks, and their staff declareth unto them: for [u] the spirit of whoredoms hath caused them to err, and they have gone a whoring from under their God.

13 [v] They sacrifice upon the tops of the mountains, and burn incense upon the hills, under oaks and poplars and elms, because the shadow thereof is good: [w] therefore your daughters shall commit whoredom, and your spouses shall commit adultery.

A. M. cir. 3224. B. C. cir. 780. Ante U. C. 27. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 17.

14 [x] I will not punish your daughters when they commit whoredom, nor your spouses when they commit adultery: for themselves are separated with whores, and they sacrifice with harlots: therefore the people that [y] doth not understand shall [z] fall.

15 Though thou, Israel, play the harlot, yet let not Judah offend; [a] and come not ye unto Gilgal, neither go ye up to [b] Beth-aven, [c] nor swear, The LORD liveth.

16 For Israel [d] slideth back as a backsliding

[l] Chap. xiii. 6.——[m] 1 Sam. ii. 30; Mal. ii. 9; Phil. iii. 19. [n] Heb. lift up their soul to their iniquity.——[o] Isa. xxiv. 2; Jer. v. 31.——[p] Heb. visit upon.——[q] Heb. cause to return.——[r] Lev. xxvi. 26; Mic. vi. 14; Hag. i. 6.——[s] Isa. xxviii. 7; See Eccles. vii. 7.——[t] Jer. ii. 27; Hab. ii. 19.

[u] Isa. xliv. 20; Chap. v. 4.——[v] Isa. i. 29; lvii. 5, 7; Ezek. vi. 13; xx. 28.——[w] Amos vii. 17; Rom. i. 28.——[x] Or, Shall I not, &c.——[y] Ver. 1, 6.——[z] Or, be punished.——[a] Ch. ix. 15; xii. 11; Amos iv. 4; v. 5.——[b] 1 Kings xii. 29; Ch. x. 5.——[c] Amos viii. 14; Zeph. i. 5.——[d] Jer. iii. 6; vii. 24; viii. 5; Zech. vii. 11 priest, well known, to whom these words are personally addressed; unless by priest the whole priesthood is meant, and then it may apply to the priests of Jeroboam's calves.

Verse 7. Will I change their glory into shame.] As the idolaters at Dan and Bethel have changed my glory into the similitude of an ox that eateth grass, (Rom. i. 23,) so will I change their glory into shame or ignominy. In the day of my wrath, their calf-gods shall not deliver them.

Verse 8. They eat up the sin of my people] חטאת chattath, the sin-offering, though it be offered contrary to the law; for their hearts are set on iniquity, they wish to do whatever is contrary to God.

Verse 9. Like people, like priest]

"The priest a wanderer from the narrow way;
The silly sheep, no wonder that they stray."

I will punish them] Both priest and people; both equally bad.

Verse 10. They shall eat, and not have enough] Whatever means they may use to satisfy or gratify themselves shall be ineffectual.

Verse 11. Whoredom and wine] These debaucheries go generally together.

Take away the heart.] Darken the understanding, deprave the judgment, pervert the will, debase all the passions, &c.

Verse 12. At their stocks] They consult their wooden gods.

And their staff declareth] They use divination by rods; see the note on Ezek. xxi., where this sort of divination (rabdomancy) is explained.

Verse 13. Under oaks] אלון allon, from אלל alal, he was strong. Hence, the oak, in Latin, is called robur; which word means also, strength, the oak being the strongest of all the trees of the forest.

The shadow thereof is good] Their "daughters committed whoredom, and their spouses committed adultery." 1. Their deities were worshipped by prostitution. 2. They drank much in their idol worship, ver. 11, and thus their passions became inflamed. 3. The thick groves were favourable to the whoredoms and adulteries mentioned here. In imitation of these, some nations have their public gardens.

Verse 14. I will not punish] Why should you be stricken any more; ye will revolt more and more. When God, in judgment, removes his judgments, the case of that people is desperate. While there is hope, there is correction.

Themselves are separated] There is a reference here to certain debaucheries which should not be described. The state of the people at this time must have been abominable beyond all precedent; animal, sensual, bestial, diabolical: women consecrating themselves to serve their idols by public prostitution; boys dismembered like the Galli or priests of Cybele; men and women acting unnaturally; and all conjoining to act diabolically.

Verse 15. Let not Judah offend] Israel was totally dissolute; Judah was not so. Here she is exhorted to maintain her integrity. If the former will go to what was once Beth-el, the house of God, now Beth-aven, the house of iniquity, because Jeroboam has set up his calves there, let not Judah imitate them. Gilgal was the place where the covenant of circumcision was renewed when the people passed over Jordan; but was rendered infamous by the worship of idols, after Jeroboam had set up his idolatry.

Verse 16. Israel slideth back] They are untractable, like an unbroken heifer or steer, that pulls back, rather than draw in the yoke.

Will feed them as a lamb in a large place.] A species

A. M. cir. 3224. B. C. cir. 780. Ante U. C. 27. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 17.

heifer: now the LORD will feed them as a lamb in a large place.

17 Ephraim is joined to idols: [c] let him alone.

18 Their drink [f] is sour: they have committed whoredom continually: [g] her [h] rulers with shame do love, Give ye.

19 [i] The wind hath bound her up in her wings, and [k] they shall be ashamed because of their sacrifices.

A. M. cir. 3224. B. C. cir. 780. Ante U. C. 27. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 17.

[c] Matt. xv. 14.—[f] Heb. is gone.—[g] Mic. iii. 11; vii. 3.—[h] Heb. shields; Psa. lxxiv. 9.

[i] Psa. i. 4; lxxxiii. 13; Isa. xi. 15; xli. 16; lvii. 13; Jer. iv. 11, 12; li. 1.—[k] Isa. i. 29; Jer. ii. 26.

of irony. Ye shall go to Assyria, and be scattered among the nations; ye may sport yourselves in the extensive empire, whither ye shall be carried captives.

Verse 17. Ephraim] The ten tribes.

Is joined to idols] Is become incorporated with false gods.

Let him alone.] They are irreclaimable, leave them to the consequences of their vicious conduct.

Verse 18. Their drink is sour] Or rather, he is gone after their wine. The enticements of idolatry have carried them away.

Her rulers with shame do love] Rather, have loved shame; they glory in their abominations.

Give ye.] Perhaps it would be better to read, Her rulers have committed, &c. They have loved gifts. What a shame! These were their rulers, literally, their shields. Justice and judgment were perverted.

Verse 19. The wind hath bound her] A parching wind has blasted them in their wings—coasts, borders; or they are carried away into captivity, as with the most rapid blight. These two last verses are very obscure.

CHAPTER V.

This chapter begins with threatening the Israelites for ensnaring the people to idolatry by their sacrifices and other rites on Mizpah and Tabor, 1–5. Their sacrifices, however costly, are declared to be unacceptable, 6; and their substance is devoted to the locust, 7. Nor is judgment to stop here. The cities of Judah are called upon, in a very animated manner, to prepare for the approach of enemies. Benjamin is to be pursued; Ephraim is to be desolate; and all this is intimated to Israel, that they may by repentance avert the judgment, 8, 9. The following verses contain farther denunciations, 10–13, expressed in terms equally terrible and sublime, 14. The Lord afflicts not willingly the children of men; he visits them with temporal calamities that he may heal their spiritual malady, 15.

A. M. cir. 3224. B. C. cir. 780. Ante U. C. 27. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 17.

HEAR ye this, O priests; and hearken, ye house of Israel; and give ye ear, O house of the king; for judgment is toward you, because [a] ye have been a snare on Mizpah, and a net spread upon Tabor.

2 And the revolters are [b] profound to make slaughter, [c] though I have been [d] a Rebuker of them all.

3 [e] I know Ephraim, and Israel is not hid from me: for now, O Ephraim, [f] thou committest whoredom, and Israel is defiled.

4 [g] They [h] will not frame their doings to turn unto their God: for [i] the spirit of whoredoms is in the midst of them, and they have not known the LORD.

A. M. cir. 3224. B. C. cir. 780. Ante U. C. 27. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 17.

[a] Chap. vi. 9.—[b] Isa. xxix. 15.—[c] Or, and, &c.—[d] Heb. a correction.—[e] Amos iii. 2.

[f] Ezek. xxiii. 5, &c.; chap. iv. 17.—[g] Heb. They will not give. [h] Or, Their doings will not suffer them.—[i] Chap. iv. 12.

NOTES ON CHAP. V.

Verse 1. Hear ye this, O priests] A process is instituted against the priests, the Israelites, and the house of the king; and they are called on to appear and defend themselves. The accusation is, that they have ensnared the people, caused them to practise idolatry, both at Mizpah and Tabor. Mizpah was situated beyond Jordan, in the mountains of Gilead; see Judg. xi. 29. And Tabor was a beautiful mountain in the tribe of Zebulun. Both these places are said to be eminent for hunting, &c.; and hence the natural occurrence of the words snare and net, in speaking of them.

Verse 2. The revolters are profound to make slaughter] Here may be a reference to the practice of hunters, making deep pits in the ground, and lightly covering them over, that the beasts, not discovering them, might fall in, and become a prey.

Though I have been a Rebuker] "I will bring chastisement on them all." As they have made victims of others to their idolatry, I will make victims of them to my justice. Some have thought that as many as wished to depart from the idolatrous worship set up by Jeroboam, were slaughtered; and thus Jeroboam the son of Nebat MADE Israel to sin.

Verse 3. I know Ephraim] I know the whole to be idolaters.

Verse 4. They will not frame their doings] They

A. M. cir. 3224. B. C. cir. 780. Ante U. C. 27. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 17.

5 And [k] the pride of Israel doth testify to his face: therefore shall Israel and Ephraim fall in their iniquity: Judah also shall fall with them.

6 [l] They shall go with their flocks and with their herds to seek the LORD; but they shall not find him; he hath withdrawn himself from them.

7 They have [m] dealt treacherously against the LORD: for they have begotten strange children: now shall [n] a month devour them with their portions.

8 [o] Blow ye the cornet in Gibeah, and the trumpet in Ramah: [p] cry aloud at [q] Beth-aven, [r] after thee, O Benjamin.

9 Ephraim shall be desolate in the day of rebuke: among the tribes of Israel have I made known that which shall surely be.

10 The princes of Judah were like them that [s] remove the bound: therefore I will pour out my wrath upon them like water.

A. M. cir. 3224 B. C. cir. 780. Ante U. C. 27. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 17.

11 Ephraim is [t] oppressed and broken in judgment, because he willingly walked after [u] the commandment.

12 Therefore will I be unto Ephraim as a moth, and to the house of Judah [v] as [w] rottenness.

13 When Ephraim saw his sickness, and Judah saw his [x] wound, then went Ephraim [y] to the Assyrian, [z] and sent [a] to King Jareb: yet could he not heal you, nor cure you of your wound.

14 For [b] I will be unto Ephraim as a lion, and as a [c] young lion to the house of Judah: I, even I, will tear and go away; I will take away, [d] and none shall rescue him.

15 I will go and return to my place, [e] till [f] they acknowledge their offence, and seek my face: [g] in their affliction they will seek me early.

[k] Chap. vii. 10.——[l] Prov. i. 28; Isa. i. 15; Jer. xi. 11; Ezek. viii. 18; Mic. iii. 4; John vii. 34.——[m] Isa. xlviii. 8; Jer. iii. 20; v. 11; Chap. vi. 7; Mal. ii. 11.——[n] Zech. xi. 8.——[o] Chap. viii. 1; Joel ii. 1.——[p] Isa. x. 30.——[q] Josh. vii. 2; chap. iv. 15.——[r] Judg. v. 14.——[s] Deut. xix. 14; xxvii. 17.——[t] Deut. xxviii. 33.——[u] 1 Kings xii. 28; Mic. vi. 16.

[v] Prov. xii. 4.——[w] Or, a worm.——[x] Jer. xxx. 12.——[y] 2 Kings xv. 19; chap. vii. 11; xii. 1.——[z] Chap. x. 6.——[a] Or, to the king of Jareb; or, to the king that should plead.——[b] Lam. iii. 10; chap. xiii. 7, 8.——[c] Isa. xxx. 6.——[d] Psa. l. 22.——[e] Heb. till they be guilty.——[f] Lev. xxvi. 40, 41; Jer. xxix. 12, 13; Ezek. vi. 9; xx. 43; xxxvi. 31.——[g] Psa. lxxviii. 34.

never purpose to turn to God, they have fully imbibed the spirit of idolatry.

Verse 5. The pride of Israel doth testify to his face] The effrontery with which they practise idolatry manifests, not only their insolence, but the deep depravity of their heart; but their pride and arrogance shall be humbled.

Verse 6. They shall go with their flocks] They shall offer many sacrifices, professing to seek and be reconciled to the Lord; but they shall not find him. As they still retain the spirit of their idolatry, he has withdrawn himself from them.

Verse 7. Now shall a month devour them] In a month's time the king of Assyria shall be upon them, and oblige them to purchase their lives and liberties by a grievous tax of fifty shekels per head. This Menahem, king of Israel, gave to Pul, king of Assyria, 2 Kings xv. 16–20. Instead of month, some translate the original locust. "The locusts shall devour them."

Verse 8. Blow ye the cornet in Gibeah] Gibeah and Ramah were cities of Judah, in the tribe of Benjamin.

After thee, O Benjamin] An abrupt call of warning. "Benjamin, fly for thy life! The enemy is just behind thee!" This is a prediction of the invasion of the Assyrians, and the captivity of the ten tribes.

Verse 9. Among the tribes of Israel have I made known] They have got sufficient warning; it is their own fault that they have not taken it.

Verse 10. Like them that remove the bound] As execrable as they who remove the land-mark. They have leaped over law's inclosure, and scaled all the walls of right; they have despised and broken all laws, human and Divine.

Verse 11. Walked after the commandment.] Jeroboam's commandment to worship his calves at Dan and Beth-el. Many of them were not forced to do this; they did it willingly.

Verse 12. Unto Ephraim as a moth] I will consume them by little and little, as a moth frets a garment.

Verse 13. When Ephraim saw his sickness] When both Israel and Judah felt their own weakness to resist their enemies, instead of calling upon and trusting in me, they sought sinful alliances, and trusted in their idols.

King Joreb] This name occurs nowhere in Scripture but here and in chap. x. 6. The Vulgate and Targum render יָרֵב yareb, an avenger, a person whom they thought able to save them from their enemies. It is well known that Menahem, king of Israel, sought alliance with Pul and Tiglath-pileser, kings of Assyria, and Ahaz, king of Judah. These were the protectors that Ephraim sought after. See 2 Kings xv. and xvi. But far from healing them by making them tributary, the Assyrians made their wound more dangerous.

Verse 14. I will be—as a lion] כְּשָׁחַל cashshachel, as a panther or lioness.

Verse 15. I will go and return to my place] I will abandon them till they acknowledge their offences. This had the wished-for effect, as we shall see in the following chapter; for they repented and turned to God, and he had mercy upon them. These two verses are considered as instances of the true sublime.

CHAPTER VI.

The prophet earnestly exhorts to repentance, 1–3. God is then introduced as very tenderly and pathetically remonstrating against the backslidings of Ephraim and Judah, 4–11.

A. M. cir. 3224. B. C. cir. 780. Ante U. C. 27. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 17.

COME, and let us return unto the LORD: for [a] he hath torn, and [b] he will heal us; he hath smitten, and he will bind us up.

2 [c] After two days will he revive us: in the third day he will raise us up, and we shall live in his sight.

3 [d] Then shall we know, if we follow on to know the LORD: his going forth is prepared [e] as the morning; and [f] he shall come unto us [g] as the rain, as the latter and former rain unto the earth.

A. M. cir. 3224. B. C. cir. 780. Ante U. C. 27. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 17.

4 [h] O Ephraim, what shall I do unto thee? O Judah, what shall I do unto thee? for your [i] goodness is [k] as a morning cloud, and as the early dew it goeth away.

5 Therefore have I hewed them [l] by the

[a] Deut. xxxii. 39; 1 Sam. ii. 6; Job v. 18; Chap. v. 14. [b] Jer. xxx. 17. —— [c] 1 Cor. xv. 4. —— [d] Isa. liv. 13. —— [e] 2 Sam. xxiii. 4. —— [f] Psa. lxxii. 6. —— [g] Job xxix. 23. —— [h] Chap. xi. 8. [i] Or, mercy, or kindness. —— [k] Chap. xiii. 3. —— [l] Jer. i. 10; v. 14.

NOTES ON CHAP. VI.

Verse 1. Come, and let us return unto the Lord] When God had purposed to abandon them, and they found that he had returned to his place—to his temple, where alone he could be successfully sought; they, feeling their weakness, and the fickleness, weakness, and unfaithfulness of their idols and allies, now resolve to "return to the Lord;" and, referring to what he said, chap. v. 14: "I will tear and go away;" they say, he "hath torn, but he will heal us;" their allies had torn, but they gave them no healing. While, therefore, they acknowledge the justice of God in their punishment, they depend on his well-known mercy and compassion for restoration to life and health.

Verse 2. After two days will he revive] Such is his power that in two or three days he can restore us. He can realize all our hopes, and give us the strongest token for good.

In the third day he will raise us up] In so short a time can he give us complete deliverance. These words are supposed to refer to the death and resurrection of our Lord; and it is thought that the apostle refers to them, 1 Cor. xv. 4: "Christ rose again the third day, according to the Scriptures;" and this is the only place in the Scriptures, i. e., of the Old Testament, where his resurrection on the third day seems to be hinted at. The original, יקימנו yekimenu, has been translated, he will raise him up. Then they who trusted in him could believe that they should be quickened together with him.

And we shall live in his sight.] His resurrection being a proof of theirs.

Verse 3. Then shall we know] We shall have the fullest evidence that we have not believed in vain.

If we follow on to know the Lord] If we continue to be as much in earnest as we now are.

His going forth] The manifestation of his mercy to our souls is as certain as the rising of the sun at the appointed time.

And he shall come unto us as the rain] As surely as the early and the latter rain come. The first, to prepare the earth for the seed; this fell in autumn: the second, to prepare the full ear for the harvest; this fell in spring. Here is strong confidence; but not misplaced, however worthless the persons were. As surely as the sun, who is now set, is running his course to arise on us in the morning, and make a glorious day after a dreary night; so surely shall the Lord come again from his place, and the Sun of righteousness shall arise on our souls with healing in his wings. He is already on his way to save us.

Verse 4. O Ephraim, what shall I do unto thee?] This is the answer of the Lord to the above pious resolutions; sincere while they lasted, but frequently forgotten, because the people were fickle. Their goodness (for goodness it was while it endured) was like the morning cloud that fadeth away before the rising sun, or like the early dew which is speedily evaporated by heat. Ephraim and Judah had too much goodness in them to admit of their total rejection, and too much evil to admit of their being placed among the children. Speaking after the manner of men, the justice and mercy of God seem puzzled how to act toward them. When justice was about to destroy them for their iniquity, it was prevented by their repentance and contrition: when mercy was about to pour upon them as penitents its choicest blessings, it was prevented by their fickleness and relapse! These things induce the just and merciful God to exclaim, "O Ephraim, what shall I do unto thee? O Judah, what shall I do unto thee?" The only thing that could be done in such a case was that which God did.

Verse 5. Therefore have I hewed them by the prophets] I have sent my prophets to testify against their fickleness. They have smitten them with the most solemn and awful threatenings; they have, as it were, slain them by the words of my mouth. But to what purpose?

Thy judgments are as the light that goeth forth] Instead of ומשפטיך אור יצא umispatcycha or yetse, "and thy judgments a light that goeth forth," the versions in general have read ומשפטי באור umishpati keor, "and my judgment is as the light." The final ך caph in the common reading has by mistake been taken from אור aur, and joined to משפטי mishpati; and thus turned it from the singular to the plural number, with the postfix ך cha. The proper prophets; I have slain them by [m] the words of my mouth: [n] and thy judgments are as the light that goeth forth.

A. M. cir. 3224. B. C. cir. 780. Ante U. C. 27. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum. 17.

6 For I desired [o] mercy, and [p] not sacrifice; and the [q] knowledge of God more than burnt offerings.

7 But they [r] like men [s] have transgressed the covenant: there [t] have they dealt treacherously against me.

8 [u] Gilead is a city of them that work iniquity, and is [v] polluted with blood.

9 And as troops of robbers wait for a man, so [w] the company of priests murder in the way [x] by consent: for they commit [y] lewdness.

A. M. cir. 3224. B. C. cir. 780. Ante U. C. 27. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban. cir. annum 17

10 I have seen [z] a horrible thing in the house of Israel: there is [a] the whoredom of Ephraim, Israel is defiled.

11 Also, O Judah, [b] he hath set a harvest for thee, [c] when I returned the captivity of my people.

[m] Jer. xxiii. 29; Heb. iv. 12.——[n] Or, that thy judgments might be, &c.——[o] 1 Sam. xv. 22; Eccles. v. 1; Mic. vi. 8; Matt. ix. 13; xii. 7.——[p] Psalm l. 8, 9; Proverbs xxi. 3; Isaiah i. 11. [q] Jer. xxii. 16; John xvii. 3.——[r] Or, like Adam; Job xxxi. 33. [s] Chap. viii. 1.

[t] Chap. v. 7.——[u] Chap. xii. 11.——[v] Or, cunning for blood. [w] Jer. xi. 9; Ezek. xxii. 25; Chap. v. 1, 2.——[x] Heb. with one shoulder, or to Shechem.——[y] Or, enormity.——[z] Jer. v. 31. [a] Chap. iv. 12, 13, 17.——[b] Jer. li. 33; Joel iii. 13; Rev. xiv. 15. [c] Isa. cxxvi. 1.

reading is, most probably, "And my judgment is as the light going forth." It shall be both evident and swift; alluding both to the velocity and splendour of light.

Verse 6. I desired mercy, and not sacrifice] I taught them righteousness by my prophets; for I desired mercy. I was more willing to save than to destroy; and would rather see them full of penitent and holy resolutions, than behold them offering the best and most numerous victims upon my altar. See Matt. ix. 13.

Verse 7. But they like men (כאדם kcadam, "like Adam") have transgressed the covenant] They have sinned against light and knowledge as he did. This is sense, the other is scarcely so. There was a striking similarity in the two cases. Adam, in Paradise, transgressed the commandment, and I cast him out: Israel, in possession of the promised land, transgressed my covenant, and I cast them out, and sent them into captivity.

Verse 8. Gilead is a city of them that work iniquity] In this place Jacob and Laban made their covenant, and set up a heap of stones, which was called Galeed, the heap of testimony; and most probably idolatry was set up here. Perhaps the very heap became the object of superstitious adoration.

Verse 9. As troops of robbers] What a sad picture is this of the state of the priesthood! The country of Gilead was infamous for its robberies and murders. The idolatrous priests there formed themselves into companies, and kept possession of the roads and passes; and if they found any person going to Jerusalem to worship the true God, they put him to death. The reason is given:—

For they commit lewdness.] They are gross idolaters.

Verse 10. I have seen a horrible thing] That is, the idolatry that prevailed in Israel to such a degree that the whole land was defiled.

Verse 11. O Judah, he hath set a harvest for thee] Thou also hast transgressed; thy harvest will come; thou shalt be reaped down and sent into captivity. The sickle is already thrust in. That which thou hast sowed shalt thou reap. They who sow unto the flesh shall reap corruption.

When I returned the captivity of my people.] Bp. Newcome translates, "Among those who lead away the captivity of my people." There is thy harvest; they who have led Israel into captivity shall lead thee also into the same. The Assyrians and Babylonians were the same kind of people; equally idolatrous, equally oppressive, equally cruel. From the common reading some suppose this to be a promise of return from captivity. It is true that Judah was gathered together again and brought back to their own land; but the majority of the Israelites did not return, and are not now to be found.

CHAPTER VII.

Here God complains that though he had employed every means for reforming Israel, they still persisted in their iniquity, without fearing the consequences, 1, 2; that those who ought to check their crimes were pleased with them, 3; and that they all burned with adultery, as an oven when fully heated, and ready to receive the kneaded dough, 4. The fifth verse alludes to some recent enormities; the sixth charges them with dividing their time between inactivity and iniquity; the seventh alludes to their civil broils and conspiracies; (see 2 Kings xv. 10, 14, 25;) the eighth to their joining themselves with idolatrous nations; and the ninth describes the sad consequence. The tenth verse reproves their pride and open contempt of God's worship; the eleventh reproves their foolish conduct in applying for aid to their enemies; (see 2 Kings xv. 19, and xvii. 4;) the twelfth and thirteenth threaten them with punishments; the fourteenth charges them with hypocrisy in their acts of humiliation; the fifteenth with ingratitude; and the image of the deceitful bow, in the sixteenth verse, is highly expressive of their frequent apostasies; and their hard speeches against God shall be visited upon them by their becoming a reproach in the land of their enemies.

A. M. cir. 3224. B. C. cir. 780. Ante U. C. 27. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 17.

WHEN I would have healed Israel, then the iniquity of Ephraim was discovered, and the [a] wickedness of Samaria: for [b] they commit falsehood; and the thief cometh in, and the troop of robbers [c] spoileth without.

2 And they [d] consider not in their hearts that I [e] remember all their wickedness: now [f] their own doings have beset them about; they are [g] before my face.

3 They make the king glad with their wickedness, and the princes [h] with their lies.

4 [i] They are all adulterers, as an oven heated by the baker, [k] who ceaseth [l] from raising after he hath kneaded the dough, until it be leavened.

5 In the day of our king the princes have made him sick [m] with bottles of wine; he stretched out his hand with scorners.

A. M. cir. 3224. B. C. cir. 780. Ante U. C. 27. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 17.

6 For they have [n] made ready their heart like an oven, whiles they lie in wait: their baker sleepeth all the night; in the morning it burneth as a flaming fire.

7 They are all hot as an oven, and have devoured their judges; [o] all their kings [p] are fallen: [q] there is none among them that calleth unto me.

8 Ephraim, he [r] hath mixed himself among the people; Ephraim is a cake not turned.

9 [s] Strangers have devoured his strength, and he knoweth it not: yea, gray hairs are [t] here

[a] Heb. evils.——[b] Chap. v. 1; vi. 10.——[c] Hebrew, strippeth. [d] Heb. say not to.——[e] Jer. xvii. 1.——[f] Psa. ix. 16; Prov. v. 22.——[g] Psa. xc. 8.——[h] Rom. i. 32.——[i] Jer. ix. 2.——[k] Or, the raiser will cease.

[l] Or, from waking.——[m] Or, with heat through wine.——[n] Or, applied.——[o] Chapter viii. 4.——[p] 2 Kings xv. 10, 14, 25, 30. [q] Isa. lxiv. 7.——[r] Psa. cvi. 35.——[s] Chap. viii. 7.——[t] Hebrew, sprinkled.

NOTES ON CHAP. VII.

Verse 1. When I would have healed Israel] As soon as one wound was healed, another was discovered. Scarcely was one sin blotted out till another was committed.

The thief cometh in] Their own princes spoil them.

The troop of robbers spoileth without.] The Assyrians, under different leaders, waste and plunder the country.

Verse 2. They consider not in their hearts] They do not consider that my eye is upon all their ways; they do not think that I record all their wickedness; and they know not their own evil doings are as a host of enemies encompassing them about.

Verse 3. They make the king glad] They pleased Jeroboam by coming readily into his measures, and heartily joining with him in his idolatry. And they professed to be perfectly happy in their change, and to be greatly advantaged by their new gods; and that the religion of the state now was better than that of Jehovah. Thus, they made all their rulers "glad with their lies."

Verse 4. As an oven heated by the baker] Calmet's paraphrase on this and the following verses expresses pretty nearly the sense: Hosea makes a twofold comparison of the Israelites; to an oven, and to dough. Jeroboam set fire to his own oven—his kingdom—and put the leaven in his dough; and afterwards went to rest, that the fire might have time to heat his oven, and the leaven to raise his dough, that the false principles which he introduced might infect the whole population. This prince, purposing to make his subjects relinquish their ancient religion, put, in a certain sense, the fire to his own oven, and mixed his dough with leaven. At first he used no violence; but was satisfied with exhorting them, and proclaiming a feast. This fire spread very rapidly, and the dough was very soon impregnated by the leaven. All Israel was seen running to this feast, and partaking in these innovations. But what shall become of the oven—the kingdom; and the bread—the people? The oven shall be consumed by these flames; the king, the princes, and the people shall be enveloped in the burning, ver. 7. Israel was put under the ashes, as a loaf well kneaded and leavened; but not being carefully turned, it was burnt on one side before those who prepared it could eat of it; and enemies and strangers came and carried off the loaf. See ver. 8 and 9. Their lasting captivity was the consequence of their wickedness and their apostasy from the religion of their fathers. On this explication verses 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9, may be easily understood.

Verse 7. All their kings are fallen] There was a pitiful slaughter among the idolatrous kings of Israel; four of them had fallen in the time of this prophet. Zechariah was slain by Shallum; Shallum, by Menahem; Pekahiah, by Pekah; and Pekah, by Hoshea, 2 Kings xv. All were idolaters, and all came to an untimely death.

Verse 8. A cake not turned.] In the East, having heated the hearth, they sweep one corner, put the cake upon it, and cover it with embers; in a short time they turn it, cover it again, and continue this several times, till they find it sufficiently baked. All travellers into Asiatic countries have noted this.

Verse 9. Gray hairs are here and there upon him, yet he knoweth not.] The kingdom is grown old in iniquity; the time of their captivity is at hand, and they are apprehensive of no danger. They are in the state of a silly old man, who through age and infirmities is become nearly bald, and the few remaining hairs on his head are quite gray. But he does not consider his latter end; is making no provision for that eternity on the brink of which he is constantly standing; does not apply to the sovereign Physician to heal his spiritual diseases; but calls in the doctors to cure him of old age and death! This miserable state and preposterous conduct we witness every day.

A. M. cir. 3224
B. C. cir. 780.
Ante U. C. 27.
Amulii Sylvii.
R. Alban.,
cir. annum 17.

and there upon him, yet he knoweth not.

10 And the [u] pride of Israel testifieth to his face: and [v] they do not return to the LORD their God, nor seek him for all this.

11 [w] Ephraim also is like a silly dove without heart: [x] they call to Egypt, they go to Assyria.

12 When they shall go, [y] I will spread my net upon them; I will bring them down as the fowls of the heaven; I will chastise them, [z] as their congregation hath heard.

13 Wo unto them! for they have fled from me: [a] destruction unto them! because they have transgressed against me: though [b] I have redeemed them, yet they have spoken lies against me.

A. M. cir. 3224.
B. C. cir. 780.
Ante U. C. 27.
Amulii Sylvii,
R. Alban.,
cir. annum 17.

14 [c] And they have not cried unto me with their heart, when they howled upon their beds: they assemble themselves for corn and wine, and they rebel against me.

15 Though I [d] have bound and strengthened their arms, yet do they imagine mischief against me.

16 [e] They return, but not to the Most High: [f] they are like a deceitful bow: their princes shall fall by the sword for the [g] rage of their tongue: this shall be their derision [h] in the land of Egypt.

---

[u] Chap. v. 5.——[v] Isa. ix. 13.——[w] Chap. xi. 11.——[x] See 2 Kings xv. 19; xvii. 4; chap. v. 13; ix. 3; xii. 1.——[y] Ezek. xii. 13.——[z] Lev. xxvi. 14, &c.; Deut. xxviii. 15, &c.; 2 Kings xvii. 13, 18.

[a] Heb. spoil.——[b] Mic. vi. 4.——[c] Job xxxv. 9, 10; Psa. lxxviii 36; Jer. iii. 10; Zech. vii. 5.——[d] Or, chastened.——[e] Chap xi. 7.——[f] Psalm lxxvii. 57.——[g] Psalm lxxiii. 9.——[h] Chapter ix. 3, 6.

O how fast does the human being cling to his native earth! Reader, hear the voice of an old man:—

O my coevals! remnants of yourselves,
Shall our pale wither'd hands be still stretch'd out?
Trembling at once with cagerness and age;
With avarice and ambition grasping—fast
Grasping at air! For what hath earth beside?
We want but little; nor THAT LITTLE long.

Verse 10. The pride of Israel] The same words as at chap. v. 5, where see the note.

Verse 11. Ephraim also is like a silly dove without heart] A bird that has little understanding; that is easily snared and taken; that is careless about its own young, and seems to live without any kind of thought. It has been made, by those who, like itself, are without heart, the symbol of conjugal affection. Nothing worse could have been chosen, for the dove and its mate are continually quarrelling.

They call to Egypt, they go to Assyria.] They strive to make these their allies and friends; but in this they showed that they were without heart, had not a sound understanding; for these were rival nations, and Israel could not attach itself to the one without incurring the jealousy and displeasure of the other. Thus, like the silly dove, they were constantly falling into snares; sometimes of the Egyptians, at others of the Assyrians. By the former they were betrayed; by the latter, ruined.

Verse 12. When they shall go] To those nations for help—

I will spread my net upon them] I will cause them to be taken by those in whom they trusted.

I will bring them down] They shall no sooner set off to seek this foreign help, than my net shall bring them down to the earth. The allusion to the dove, and to the mode of taking the fowls of heaven, is still carried on.

As their congregation hath heard.] As in their solemn assemblies they before have heard; in the reading of my law, and the denunciation of my wrath against idolaters.

Bishop Newcome translates: "I will chastise them when they hearken to their assembly." That is, when they take the counsel of their elders to go down to Egypt for help, and trust in the arm of the Assyrians for succour.

Verse 13. Wo unto them!] They shall have wo, because they have fled from me. They shall have destruction, because they have transgressed against me.

Though I have redeemed them] Out of Egypt; and given them the fullest proof of my love and power.

Yet they have spoken lies against me.] They have represented me as rigorous and cruel; and my service as painful and unprofitable.

Verse 14. They have not cried unto me with their heart] They say they have sought me, but could not find me; that they have cried unto me, but I did not answer. I know they have cried, yea, howled; but could I hear them when all was forced and hypocritical, not one sigh coming from their heart?

They assemble themselves for corn and wine] In dearth and famine they call and howl: but they assemble themselves, not to seek ME, but to invoke their false gods for corn and wine.

Verse 15. Though I have bound and strengthened their arms] Whether I dealt with them in judgment or mercy, it was all one; in all circumstances they rebelled against me.

Verse 16. They return, but not to the Most High] They go to their idols.

They are like a deceitful bow] Which, when it is reflexed, in order to be strung, suddenly springs back into its quiescent curve; for the eastern bows stand in their quiescent state in a curve, something like ⊂; and in order to be strung must be bended back in the opposite direction. This bending of the bow requires both strength and skill; and if not properly done, it will fly back, and regain its former position; and in this recoil endanger the archer—may even break an arm. I have been in this danger myself in bending the Asiatic bow. For want of this knowledge not one commentator has hit the meaning of the passage.

Shall fall by the sword] Their tongue has been enraged against ME; the sword shall be enraged against them. They have mocked me, (ver. 5,) and their fall is now a subject of derision in the land of Egypt. What they have sown, that do they now reap.

CHAPTER VIII.

This chapter begins with threatening some hostile invasion in short and broken sentences, full of rapidity, and expressive of sudden danger and alarm: "The trumpet to thy mouth; he cometh as an eagle," 1. And why? For their hypocrisy, 2; iniquity, 3; treason (see 2 Kings xv. 13, 17) and idolatry, 4; particularly the worshipping of the calves of Dan and Beth-el, 5, 6. The folly and unprofitableness of pursuing evil courses is then set forth in brief but very emphatic terms. The labour of the wicked is vain, like sowing of the wind; and the fruit of it destructive as the whirlwind. Like corn blighted in the bud, their toil shall have no recompense; or if it should have a little, their enemies shall devour it, 7. They themselves, too, shall suffer the same fate, and shall be treated by the nations of Assyria and Egypt as the vile sherds of a broken vessel, 8, 9. Their incorrigible idolatry is again declared to be the cause of their approaching captivity under the king of Assyria. And as they delighted in idolatrous altars, there they shall have these in abundance, 10–14. The last words contain a prediction of the destruction of the fenced cities of Judah, because the people trusted in these for deliverance, and not in the Lord their God.

A. M. cir. 3244. B. C. cir. 760. Ante U. C. 7. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 37.

SET [a] the trumpet to [b] thy mouth. He shall come [c] as an eagle against the house of the LORD, because [d] they have transgressed my covenant, and trespassed against my law.

2 [e] Israel shall cry unto me, My God, [f] we know thee.

3 Israel hath cast off the thing that is good: the enemy shall pursue him.

4 [g] They have set up kings, but not by me: they have made princes, and I knew it not: [h] of their silver and their gold have they made them idols, that they may be cut off

A. M. cir. 3244. B. C. cir. 760. Ante U. C. 7. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 37.

5 Thy calf, O Samaria, hath cast thee off; mine anger is kindled against them: [i] how long will it be ere they attain to innocency?

6 For from Israel was it also: the workman made it; therefore it is not God; but

[a] Chap. v. 8.——[b] Heb. the roof of thy mouth.——[c] Deut. xxviii. 49; Jer. iv. 13; Hab. i. 8.——[d] Chap. vi. 7.——[e] Psa. lxxviii. 34; chap. v. 15.——[f] Tit. i. 16.——[g] 2 Kings xv. 13, 17, 25, Shallum, Menahem, Pekahiah.——[h] Chap. ii. 8; xiii. 2.——[i] Jer. xiii. 27.

NOTES ON CHAP. VIII.

Verse 1. Set the trumpet to thy mouth] Sound another alarm. Let them know that an enemy is fast approaching.

As an eagle against the house of the Lord] If this be a prophecy against Judah, as some have supposed, then by the eagle Nebuchadnezzar is meant, who is often compared to this king of birds. See Ezek. xvii. 3; Jer. xlviii. 40; xlix. 22; Dan. vii. 4.

But if the prophecy be against Israel, which is the most likely, then Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, is intended, who, for his rapidity, avarice, rapacity, and strength, is fitly compared to this royal bird. He is represented here as hovering over the house of God, as the eagle does over the prey which he has just espied, and on which he is immediately to pounce.

Verse 2. Israel shall cry] The rapidity of the eagle's flight is well imitated in the rapidity of the sentences in this place.

My God, we know thee.] The same sentiment, from the same sort of persons, under the same feelings, as that in the Gospel of St. Matthew, chap. vii. 22: "Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name! and in thy name have cast out devils? Then will I profess unto them, I never KNEW YOU."

Verse 4. They have set up kings, but not by me] Properly speaking, not one of the kings of Israel, from the defection of the ten tribes from the house of David, was the anointed of the Lord.

I knew it not] It had not my approbation. In this sense the word know is frequently understood.

That they may be cut off.] That is, They shall be cut off in consequence of their idolatry.

Verse 5. Thy calf, O Samaria, hath cast thee off] Bishop Newcome translates: "Remove far from thee thy calf, O Samaria!" Abandon thy idolatry; for my anger is kindled against thee.

How long will it be ere they attain to innocency?] How long will ye continue your guilty practices? When shall it be said that ye are free from these vices? The calf or ox, which was the object of the idolatrous worship of the Israelites, was a supreme deity in Egypt; and it was there they learned this idolatry. A white ox was worshipped under the name of Apis, at Memphis; and another ox under the name of Mnevis, was worshipped at On, or Heliopolis. To Osiris the males of this genus were consecrated, and the females to Isis. It is a most ancient superstition, and still prevails in the East. The cow is a most sacred animal among the Hindoos.

Verse 6. The workman made it; therefore it is not God] As God signifies the supreme eternal Good, the Creator and Upholder of all things, therefore the workman cannot make Him who made all things.

A. M. cir. 3244. B. C. cir. 760. Ante U. C. 7. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 37.

the calf of Samaria shall be broken in pieces.

7 For [k] they have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind: it hath no [l] stalk: the bud shall yield no meal: if so be it yield, [m] the strangers shall swallow it up.

8 [n] Israel is swallowed up: now shall they be among the Gentiles [o] as a vessel wherein is no pleasure.

9 For [p] they are gone up to Assyria, [q] a wild ass alone by himself: Ephraim [r] hath hired [s] lovers.

10 Yea, though they have hired among the nations, now [t] will I gather them, and they shall [u] sorrow [v] a little for the burden of [w] the king of princes.

11 Because Ephraim hath made [x] many altars to sin, altars shall be unto him to sin.

A. M. cir. 3244. B. C. cir. 760. Ante U. C. 7. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 37.

12 I have written to him [y] the great things of my law, but they were counted as a strange thing.

13 [z] They [a] sacrifice flesh for the sacrifices of mine offerings, and eat it; [b] but the LORD accepteth them not; [c] now will he remember their iniquity, and visit their sins: [d] they shall return to Egypt.

14 [e] For Israel hath forgotten [f] his Maker, and [g] buildeth temples: and Judah hath multiplied fenced cities: but [h] I will send a fire upon his cities, and it shall devour the palaces thereof.

---

[k] Prov. xxii. 8; Chap. x. 12, 13.——[l] Or, standing corn. [m] Chap. vii. 9.——[n] 2 Kings xvii. 6.——[o] Jer. xxii. 28; xlviii. 38.——[p] 2 Kings xv. 19.——[q] Jer. ii. 24.——[r] Isa. xxx. 6; Ezek. xvi. 33, 34.——[s] Heb. loves.——[t] Ezek. xvi. 37; Chap. x. 10. [u] Or, begin.——[v] Or, in a little while, as Hag. ii. 6.——[w] Isa. x. 8; Ezek. xxvi. 7; Dan. ii. 37.——[x] Chap. xii. 11.

[y] Deut. iv. 6, 8; Psa. cxix. 18; cxlvii. 19, 20.——[z] Jer. vii. 21 Zech. vii. 6.——[a] Or, in the sacrifices of mine offerings they, &c [b] Jer. xiv. 10, 12; Chap. v. 6; ix. 4; Amos v. 22.——[c] Chap. ix 9; Amos viii. 7.——[d] Deut. xxviii. 68; Chap. ix. 3, 6; xi. 5 [e] Deut. xxxii. 18.——[f] Isa. xxix. 23; Eph. ii. 10.——[g] 1 Kings xii. 31.——[h] Jer. xvii. 27; Amos ii. 5.

This is an overwhelming argument against all idols. Nothing need be added. The workman has made them; therefore they are not God.

Verse 7. They have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind] As the husbandman reaps the same kind of grain which he has sown, but in far greater abundance, thirty, sixty, or one hundred fold; so he who sows the wind shall have a whirlwind to reap. The vental seed shall be multiplied into a tempest; so they who sow the seed of unrighteousness shall reap a harvest of judgment. This is a fine, bold, and energetic metaphor.

It hath no stalk] Nothing that can yield a blossom. If it have a blossom, that blossom shall not yield fruit; if there be fruit, the sower shall not enjoy it, for strangers shall eat it. The meaning is, the labours of this people shall be utterly unprofitable and vain.

Verse 8. Now shall they be among the Gentiles] They shall be carried into captivity, and there be as a vessel wherein there is no pleasure; one soiled, unclean, infectious, to be despised, abhorred, not used. The allusion is to a rotten, corrupted skin-bottle; a bottle made of goat, deer, or calf hide, still commonly used in Asia and Africa. Some of them are splendidly ornamented. This is the case with one now before me made of a goat's skin well dressed, variously painted, and ornamented with leather fringes, tassels, &c. In such a bottle there might be pleasure; but the Israelites are compared to such a bottle, rough, ill-dressed, not ornamented, old, musty, and putrid. This shows the force of the comparison.

Verse 9. They are gone up to Assyria] For succour.

A wild ass alone by himself] Like that animal, jealous of its liberty, and suffering no rival. If we may credit Pliny and others, one male wild ass will keep a whole flock of females to himself, suffer no other to approach them, and even bite off the genitals of the colts, lest in process of time they should become his rivals. "Mares singuli fæminarum gregibus imperitant; timent libidinis æmulos, et ideo gravidas custodiunt, morsuque natos mares castrant."—Hist. Nat., lib. viii., c. 30. The Israelites, with all this selfishness and love of liberty, took no step that did not necessarily lead to their thraldom and destruction.

Ephraim hath hired lovers.] Hath subsidized the neighbouring heathen states.

Verse 10. For the burden of the king of princes] The exactions of the Assyrian king, and the princes of the provinces.

Verse 11. Many altars to sin] Though it does not appear that the Jews in Babylon were obliged to worship the idols of the country, except in the case mentioned by Daniel, yet it was far otherwise with the Israelites in Assyria, and the other countries of their dispersion. Because they had made many altars to sin while they were in their own land, they were obliged to continue in the land of their captivity a similar system of idolatry against their will. Thus they felt and saw the evil of their idolatry, without power to help themselves.

Verse 12. I have written to him the great things of my law] I have as it were inscribed my laws to them, and they have treated them as matters in which they had no interest.

Verse 13. They sacrifice flesh] Bp. Newcome translates thus: "They sacrifice gifts appointed unto me, and eat flesh." They offer to their idols the things which belong to Jehovah; or, while pretending to offer unto the Lord, they eat and drink idolatrously; and therefore the Lord will not accept them.

They shall return to Egypt.] Many of them did return to Egypt after the conquest of Palestine by Shalmaneser, and many after the ruin of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar; but they had in effect returned to Egypt by setting up the worship of the golden calves, which were in imitation of the Egyptian Apis.

Verse 14. Israel hath forgotten his Maker] And therefore built temples to other gods. Judah had lost all confidence in the Divine protection, and therefore built many fenced cities. But the fire of God's anger burnt up both the temples and the fortified cities

CHAPTER IX.

The prophet reproves the Israelites for their sacrifices and rejoicings on their corn-floors, by which they ascribed to idols, as the heathen did, the praise of all their plenty, 1. For which reason they are threatened with famine and exile, 2, 3, in a land where they should be polluted, and want the means of worshipping the God of their fathers, or observing the solemnities of his appointment, 4, 5. Nay more; they shall speedily fall before the destroyer, be buried in Egypt, and leave their own pleasant places desolate, 6–9. God is then introduced declaring his early favour for his people, and the delight he took in their obedience; but now they had so deeply revolted, all their glory will take wing, God will forsake them, and their offspring be devoted to destruction, 10–16.

A. M. cir. 3244. B. C. cir. 760. Ante. U. C. 7. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 37.

REJOICE not, O Israel, for joy, as other people: for thou [a] hast gone a whoring from thy God, thou hast loved a [b] reward [c] upon every corn-floor.

2 [d] The floor and the [e] wine-press shall not feed them, and the new wine shall fail in her.

3 They shall not dwell in [f] the LORD's land; [g] but Ephraim shall return to Egypt, and [h] they shall eat unclean things [i] in Assyria.

4 [k] They shall not offer wine offerings to the LORD, [l] neither shall they be pleasing unto him: [m] their sacrifices shall be unto them as the bread of mourners; all that eat thereof shall be polluted: for their bread [n] for their soul shall not come into the house of the LORD.

A. M. cir. 3244. B. C. cir. 760. Ante U. C. 7. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 37.

5 What will ye do in [o] the solemn day, and in the day of the feast of the LORD?

6 For, lo, they are gone because of [p] destruction: [q] Egypt shall gather them up, Memphis shall bury them: [r] the [s] pleasant places for their silver, [t] nettles shall possess them: thorns shall be in their tabernacles.

7 The days of visitation are come, the days of recompense are come; Israel shall know

[a] Chap. iv. 12; v. 4, 7.——[b] Jer. xlv. 17; chap. ii. 12.——[c] Or, in, &c.——[d] Chap. ii. 9, 12.——[e] Or, wine-fat.——[f] Lev. xxv. 23; Jer. ii. 7; xvi. 18.——[g] Chap. viii. 13; xi. 5; not into Egypt itself, but into another bondage as bad as that.——[h] Ezek. iv. 13; Dan. i. 8.——[i] 2 Kings xvii. 6; chap. xi. 11.

[k] Chap. iii. 4.——[l] Jer. vi. 20; chap. viii. 13.——[m] Deut. xxvi. 14.——[n] Lev. xvii. 11.——[o] Chap. ii. 11.——[p] Hebrew, spoil. [q] Chap. vii. 16; ver. 3.——[r] Or, their silver shall be desired, the nettle, &c.——[s] Heb. the desire.——[t] Isa. v. 6; xxxii. 13; xxxiv. 13; chap. x. 8.

NOTES ON CHAP. IX.

Verse 1. Rejoice not] Do not imitate the heathens, nor serve their idols. Do not prostitute thy soul and body in practising their impurities. Hitherto thou hast acted as a common harlot, who goes even to the common threshing places; connects herself with the meanest, in order to get a hire even of the grain there threshed out.

Verse 3. But Ephraim shall return to Egypt] See on chap. viii. 12.

Verse 4. As the bread of mourners] By the law, a dead body, and every thing that related to it, the house where it lay, and the persons who touched it, were all polluted and unclean, and whatever they touched was considered as defiled. See Deut. xxvi. 14; Num. xix. 11, 13, 14.

For their bread for their soul] The bread for the common support of life shall not be sanctified to them by having the first-fruits presented at the temple.

Verse 5. What will ye do in the solemn day] When ye shall be despoiled of every thing by the Assyrians; for the Israelites who remained in the land after its subjection to the Assyrians did worship the true God, and offer unto him the sacrifices appointed by the law, though in an imperfect and schismatic manner; and it was a great mortification to them to be deprived of their religious festivals in a land of strangers. See Calmet.

Verse 6. For, lo, they are gone] Many of them fled to Egypt to avoid the destruction; but they went there only to die.

Memphis] Now Cairo, or Kahira, found them graves.

The pleasant places for their silver] The fine estates or villas which they had purchased by their money, being now neglected and uninhabited, are covered with nettles; and even in their tabernacles, thorns and brambles of different kinds grew. These are the fullest marks of utter desolation.

Verse 7. The days of visitation] Of punishment are come.

The prophet is a fool] Who has pretended to foretell, on Divine authority, peace and plenty; for behold all is desolation.

A. M. cir. 3244. B. C. cir. 760. Ante U. C. 7. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 37.

it: the prophet is a fool, [u] the [v] spiritual man is mad, for the multitude of thine iniquity, and the great hatred.

8 The [w] watchman of Ephraim was with my God: but the prophet is a snare of a fowler in all his ways, and hatred [x] in the house of his God.

9 [y] They have deeply corrupted themselves, as in the days of [z] Gibeah: [a] therefore he will remember their iniquity, he will visit their sins.

10 I found Israel like grapes in the wilderness; I saw your fathers as the [b] first ripe in the fig tree [c] at her first time: but they went to [d] Baal-peor, and [e] separated themselves [f] unto that shame; [g] and their abominations were according as they loved.

11 As for Ephraim, their glory shall fly away like a bird, from the birth, and from the womb, and from the conception.

A. M. cir. 3244. B. C. cir. 760. Ante U. C. 7. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 37.

12 [h] Though they bring up their children, yet [i] will I bereave them, that there shall not be a man left: yea, [k] wo also to them when I [l] depart from them!

13 Ephraim, [m] as I saw Tyrus, is planted in a pleasant place; [n] but Ephraim shall bring forth his children to the murderer.

14 Give them, O LORD: what wilt thou give? give them [o] a [p] miscarrying womb and dry breasts.

15 All their wickedness [q] is in Gilgal: for [u] Heb. man of the spirit.——[v] Ezek. xiii. 3, &c.; Mic. ii. 11; Zeph. iii. 4.——[w] Jer. vi. 17; xxxi. 6; Ezek. iii. 17; xxxiii. 7. [x] Or, against.——[y] Isa. xxxi. 6; chap. x. 9.——[z] Judges xix. 22. [a] Chap. viii. 13.——[b] Isa. xxviii. 4; Mic. vii. 1.——[c] See chap. ii. 15.——[d] Num. xxv. 3; Psa. cvi. 28.——[e] Chap. iv. 14. [f] Jer. xi. 13; see Judg. vi. 32.

[g] Psa. lxxxi. 12; Ezek. xx. 8; Amos iv. 5.——[h] Job xxvii. 14.——[i] Deut. xxviii. 41, 62.——[k] Deut. xxxi. 17; 2 Kings xvii. 18; chap. v. 6.——[l] See 1 Sam. xxviii. 15, 16.——[m] See Ezek. xxvi., xxvii., xxviii.——[n] Ver. 16; chap. xiii. 16.——[o] Luke xxiii. 29.——[p] Heb. that casteth the fruit.——[q] Chap. iv. 15; xii. 11.

The spiritual man] איש הרוח ish haruach, the man of spirit, who was ever pretending to be under a Divine afflatus.

Is mad] He is now enraged to see every thing falling out contrary to his prediction.

Verse 8. The watchman of Ephraim] The true prophet, was with—faithful to, God.

The prophet] The false prophet is the snare of a fowler; is continually deceiving the people, and leading them into snares, and infusing into their hearts deep hatred against God and his worship.

Verse 9. They have deeply corrupted themselves, as in the days of Gibeah] This relates to that shocking rape and murder of the Levite's wife, mentioned Judg. xix. 16, &c.

Verse 10. I found Israel like grapes in the wilderness] While they were faithful, they were as acceptable to me as ripe grapes would be to a thirsty traveller in the desert.

I saw your fathers] Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Moses, Joshua, Caleb, Samuel, &c.

As the first ripe] Those grapes, whose bud having come first, and being exposed most to the sun, have been the first ripe upon the tree; which tree was now in the vigour of youth, and bore fruit for the first time. A metaphor of the rising prosperity of the Jewish state.

But they went to Baal-peor] The same as the Roman Priapus, and worshipped with the most impure rites.

And their abominations were according as they loved.] Or, "they became as abominable as the object of their love." So Bp. Newcome. And this was superlatively abominable.

Verse 11. Their glory shall fly away] It shall suddenly spring away from them, and return no more.

From the birth] "So that there shall be no birth, no carrying in the womb, no conception."—Newcome. They shall cease to glory in their numbers; for no children shall be born, no woman shall be pregnant, for none shall conceive. Here judgment blasts the very germs of population.

Verse 12. Though they bring up their children] And were they even to have children, I would bereave them of them; for, when I depart from them, they shall have all manner of wretchedness and wo.

Verse 13. Ephraim, as I saw Tyrus] Tyre was strongly situated on a rock in the sea; Samaria was on a mountain, both strong and pleasant. But the strength and beauty of those cities shall not save them from destruction.

Ephraim shall bring forth his children to the murderer.] The people shall be destroyed, or led into captivity by the Assyrians. Of the grandeur, wealth, power, &c., of Tyre, see the notes on Ezekiel, chap. xxvii. and xxviii.

Verse 14. Give them, O Lord: what wilt thou give?] There is an uncommon beauty in these words. The prophet, seeing the evils that were likely to fall upon his countrymen, begins to make intercession for them; but when he had formed the first part of his petition, "Give them, O Lord!" the prophetic light discovered to him that the petition would not be answered, and that God was about to give them something widely different. Then changing his petition, which the Divine Spirit had interrupted, by signifying that he must not proceed in his request, he asks the question, then, "What wilt thou give them?" and the answer is, "Give them a miscarrying womb, and dry breasts." And this he is commanded to announce It is probable that the Israelites had prided themselves in the fruitfulness of their families, and the numerous population of their country. God now tells them that this shall be no more; their wives shall be barren, and their land cursed.

Verse 15. All their wickedness is in Gilgal] Though we are not directly informed of the fact, yet we have

A. M. cir. 3244. B. C. cir. 760. Ante U. C. 7. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 37.

there I hated them; [r] for the wickedness of their doings I will drive them out of mine house, I will love them no more: [s] all their princes are revolters.

16 Ephraim is smitten, their root is dried up, they shall bear no fruit: yea, [t] though they bring forth, yet will I slay even [u] the beloved fruit of their womb.

A. M. cir. 3244. B. C. cir. 760. Ante U. C. 7. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 37.

17 My God will cast them away, because they did not hearken unto him: and they shall be [v] wanderers among the nations.

[r] Chap. i. 6.——[s] Isa. i. 23.——[t] Ver. 13.

[u] Heb. the desires; Ezek. xxiv. 21.——[v] Deut. xxviii. 64, 65.

reason to believe they had been guilty of some scandalous practices of idolatry in Gilgal. See chap. iv. 15.

For there I hated them] And therefore he determined, "for the wickedness of their doings, to drive them out of his house," so that they should cease to be a part of the heavenly family, either as sons or servants; for he would "love them no more," and bear with them no longer.

Verse 16. Ephraim is smitten] The thing being determined, it is considered as already done.

Their root is dried up] They shall never more be a kingdom. And they never had any political form from their captivity by the Assyrians to the present day.

Yea, though they bring forth] See the note on ver. 11, 12.

Verse 17. My God will cast them away] Here the prophet seems to apologize for the severity of these denunciations; and to vindicate the Divine justice, from which they proceeded. It is—

Because they did not hearken unto him] That "my God," the fountain of mercy and kindness, "will cast them away."

And they shall be wanderers among the nations.] And where they have wandered to, who can tell? and in what nations to be found, no man knows. Wanderers they are; and perhaps even now unknown to themselves. Some have thought they have found them in one country; some, in another; and a very pious writer, in a book entitled, The Star in the West, thinks he has found their descendants in the American Indians; among whom he has discovered many customs, apparently the same with those of the ancient Jews, and commanded in the Law. He even thinks that the word Je-ho-vah is found in their solemn festal cry, Ye-ho-wa-he. If they be this long lost people, they are utterly unknown to themselves; their origin being lost in a very remote antiquity.

CHAPTER X.

This chapter treats of the same subject, but elegantly varied. It begins with comparing Israel to a fruitful vine, but corrupted by too much prosperity, 1. It next reproves and threatens them for their idolatry, 2; anarchy, 3; and breach of covenant, 4. Their idolatry is then enlarged on; and its fatal consequences declared in terms full of sublimity and pathos, 5–8. God is now introduced complaining of their excessive guilt; and threatening them with captivity in terms that bear a manifest allusion to their favourite idolatry, the worshipping the similitude of a calf or heifer, 9–11. Upon which the prophet, in a beautiful allegory suggested by the preceding metaphors, exhorts them to repentance; and warns them of the dreadful consequences of their evil courses, if obstinately persisted in, 12–15.

A. M. cir. 3264. B. C. cir. 740. A. U. C. cir. 14. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 14.

ISRAEL is [a] an [b] empty vine, he bringeth forth fruit unto himself: according to the multitude of his fruit [c] he hath increased the altars; according to the goodness of his land [d] they have made goodly [e] images.

A. M. cir. 3264. B. C. cir. 740. A. U. C. cir. 14. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 14.

[a] Nah. ii. 2.——[b] Or, a vine emptying the fruit which it giveth.

[c] Chap. viii. 11; xii. 11.——[d] Chap. viii. 4.——[e] Heb. statues, or standing images.

NOTES ON CHAP. X.

Verse 1. Israel is an empty vine] Or, a vine that casteth its grapes.

He bringeth forth fruit] Or, he laid up fruit for himself. He abused the blessings of God to the purposes of idolatry. He was prosperous; but his prosperity corrupted his heart.

According to the multitude of his fruit] He became idolatrous in proportion to his prosperity; and in proportion to their wealth was the costliness of their images, and the expensiveness of their idol worship. True is the homely saying of old Quarles:—

"So God's best gifts, usurp'd by wicked ones,
To poison turn, by their con-ta-gi-ons."

Another poet, of a higher order, but worse school, says:—

Effodiuntur opes, irritamenta malorum.—Ovid.

Of which the words of St. Paul are nearly a literal rendering,—

Ῥιζα γαρ παντων των κακων εστιν ἡ φιλαργυρια.

"For the love of money is the root of all these evils." 1 Tim. vi. 10. Pity that this beautiful metal, on

A. M. cir. 3264. B. C. cir. 740. A. U. C. cir. 14. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 14.

2 [f] Their heart is [g] divided; now shall they be found faulty: he shall [h] break down their altars, he shall spoil their images.

3 [i] For now they shall say, We have no king, because we feared not the LORD; what then should a king do to us?

4 They have spoken words, swearing falsely in making a covenant: thus judgment springeth up [k] as hemlock in the furrows of the field.

5 The inhabitants of Samaria shall fear because of [l] the calves of [m] Beth-aven: for the people thereof shall mourn over it, and [n] the priests thereof that rejoiced on it, [o] for the glory thereof, because it is departed from it.

A. M. cir. 3264. B. C. cir. 740. A. U. C. cir. 14. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 14.

6 It shall be also carried unto Assyria for a present to [p] King Jareb: Ephraim shall receive shame, and Israel shall be ashamed [q] of his own counsel.

7 [r] As for Samaria, her king is cut off as the foam upon [s] the water.

8 [t] The high places also of Aven, [u] the sin of Israel, shall be destroyed: [v] the thorn and the thistle shall come up on their altars; [w] and they shall say to the mountains, Cover us; and to the hills, Fall on us.

[f] Or, He hath divided their heart.——[g] 1 Kings xviii. 21; Matt. vi. 24.——[h] Heb. behead.——[i] Chap. iii. 4; xi. 5; Mic. iv. 9; ver. 7.——[k] See Deut. xxix. 18; Amos v. 7; vi. 12; Acts viii. 23; Heb. xii. 15.——[l] 1 Kings xii. 28, 29; chap. viii. 5, 6. [m] Chap. iv. 15.

[n] Or, Chemarim; 2 Kings xxiii. 5; Zeph. i. 4.——[o] 1 Sam. iv. 21, 22; chap. ix. 11.——[p] Chap. v. 13.——[q] Chap. xi. 6. [r] Ver. 3, 15.——[s] Heb. the face of the water.——[t] Chap. iv. 15. [u] Deut. ix. 21; 1 Kings xii. 30.——[v] Chap. ix. 6.——[w] Isa. ii. 19; Luke xxiii. 30; Rev. vi. 16; ix. 6.

which God has bestowed such a large portion of mineral perfection, and then hid in the earth, should, on its being digged up by man, become the incentive to so many vices, and draw away his heart from the Creator of all things, and the fountain of ineffable perfection and goodness.

Verse 2. Their heart is divided] They wish to serve God and Mammon, Jehovah and Baal: but this is impossible. Now GOD will do in judgment what they should have done in contrition, "break down their altars, and spoil their images."

Verse 3. We have no king] We have rejected the King of kings; and had we any king, he would be of no service to us in this state, as he would be a captive like ourselves; nor could we have the approbation of God, as we now justly lie under his displeasure.

Verse 4. They have spoken words] Vain, empty, deceitful words.

Swearing falsely] This refers to the alliances made with strange powers, to whom they promised fidelity without intending to be faithful; and from whom they promised themselves protection and support, notwithstanding God was against them, and they knew it. All their words were vain, and in the end as bitter as gall.

Judgment springeth up as hemlock] As our land lies without cultivation, so that we have nothing but noxious weeds instead of crops; so we have no administration of justice. What is done in this way is a perversion of law, and is as hurtful to society as hemlock would be to animal life. All this may refer to the anarchy that was in the kingdom of Israel before Hoshea's reign, and which lasted, according to Archbishop Usher, nine years. They then, literally, "had no king."

Verse 5. The inhabitants of Samaria shall fear] According to Calmet, shall worship the calves of Beth-aven; those set up by Jeroboam, at Beth-el. Fear is often taken for religious reverence.

The people thereof shall mourn] On seeing the object of their worship carried into captivity, as well as themselves.

And the priests thereof] כמרים kemarim. The priests of Samaria, says Calmet, are here called kemarim, that is, black coats, or shouters, because they made loud cries in their sacrifices. Instead of ינילו yagilu, "they shall rejoice;" learned men propose ילילו yalilu, "shall howl," which is likely to be the true reading: but it is not supported by any of the MSS. yet discovered. But the exigentia loci, the necessity of the place, requires some such word.

Verse 6. A present to King Jareb] See on chap. v. 13. If this be a proper name, the person intended is not known in history: but it is most likely that Pul, king of Assyria, is intended, to whom Menahem, king of Israel, appears to have given one of the golden calves, to insure his assistance.

Verse 7. Her king is cut off as the foam] As lightly as a puff of wind blows off the foam that is formed below by a fall of water, so shall the kings of Israel be cut off. We have already seen that not less than four of them died by assassination in a very short time. See on chap. vii. 7.

Verse 8. The high places] Idol temples.

Of Aven] Beth-aven.

The thorn and the thistle shall come up on their altars] Owing to the uncultivated and unfrequented state of the land, and of their places of idol worship, the people being all carried away into captivity.

"And they shall say to the mountains, Cover us,
And to the hills, Fall on us."

"This sublime description of fear and distress our Lord had in view, Luke xxiii. 30, which may be a reference, and not a quotation. However, the Septuagint, in the Codex Alexandrinus, has the same order of words as occurs in the evangelist. The parallelism makes the passages more beautiful than Rev. vi. 16; and Isa. ii. 19 wants the animated dramatic form That there is a reference to the caverns that abounded

A. M. cir. 3264. B. C. cir. 740. A. U. C. cir. 14. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 14.

9 [x] O Israel, thou hast sinned from the days of Gibeah: there they stood: [y] the battle in Gibeah against the children of iniquity did not overtake them.

10 [z] It is in my desire that I should chastise them; and [a] the people shall be gathered against them, [b] when they shall bind themselves in their two furrows.

11 And Ephraim is as [c] a heifer that is taught and loveth to tread out the corn; but I passed over upon [d] her fair neck: I will make Ephraim to ride; Judah shall plough, and Jacob shall break his clods.

12 [e] Sow to yourselves in righteousness, reap in mercy; [f] break up your fallow ground: for it is time to seek the LORD, till he come and rain righteousness upon you.

A. M. cir. 3264. B. C. cir. 740. A. U. C. cir. 14. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 14.

13 [g] Ye have ploughed wickedness, ye have reaped iniquity; ye have eaten the fruit of lies: because thou didst trust in thy way, in the multitude of thy mighty men.

14 [h] Therefore shall a tumult arise among thy people, and all thy fortresses shall be spoiled, as Shalman spoiled [i] Beth-arbel in the day of battle: [k] the mother was dashed in pieces upon her children.

15 So shall Beth-el do unto you because of [l] your great wickedness: in a morning [m] shall the king of Israel utterly be cut off.

[x] Chap. ix. 9. —— [y] See Judg. xx. —— [z] Deut. xxviii. 63. —— [a] Jer. xvi. 16; Ezek. xxiii. 46, 47; chap. viii. 10. —— [d] Or, when I shall bind them for their two transgressions, or in their two habitations. —— [c] Jer. l. 11; Mic. iv. 13.

[d] Heb. the beauty of her neck. —— [e] Prov. xviii. 21. —— [f] Jer. iv. 3. [g] Job. iv. 8; Prov. xxii. 8; chap. viii. 7; Gal. vi. 7, 8. —— [h] Ch. xiii. 16. —— [i] 2 Kings xviii. 31; xix. 13. —— [k] Chap. xiii. 16. [l] Heb. the evil of your evil. —— [m] Ver. 7.

in the mountainous countries of Palestine, see the note on Isa. ii. 19."—Newcome.

Verse 9. Thou hast sinned from the days of Gibeah] This is another reference to the horrible rape and murder of the Levite's wife, Judg. xix. 13, 14.

There they stood] Only one tribe was nearly destroyed, viz., that of Benjamin. They were the criminals, the children of iniquity; the others were faultless, and stood only for the rights of justice and mercy.

Verse 10. When they shall bind themselves in their two furrows.] "When they are chastised for their two iniquities," i. e., the calves in Dan and Beth-el.—Newcome. But this double iniquity may refer to what Jeremiah says, chap. xi. 13: "My people have committed two evils."—1. They have forsaken me. 2. They have joined themselves to idols.

Verse 11. Ephraim is as a heifer that is taught] One thoroughly broken in to the yoke.

And loveth to tread out] Goes peaceably in the yoke; and is pleased because, not being muzzled, she eats of the corn.

I passed over upon her fair neck] I brought the yoke upon it, that she should not tread out the corn merely, but draw the plough and drag the harrow. These operations of husbandry are all referred to here, with some others. Ephraim shall tread out the corn, that there may be seed for the fields.

Judah shall plough] That the furrows may receive it.

Jacob shall break his clods.] Harrow—that the seed may be covered with the mould.

Israel very frequently made great depredations on Judah; and as this heifer loved to tread out the corn, and not plough, it is therefore added that he should be made to plough, be put under the yoke, namely, that of the Assyrians. What is added, "Judah and Jacob shall plough for themselves," means, that Judah should not now plough for Israel, but for himself; as Israel shall no more make depredations upon him.—Dodd.

Verse 12. Sow to yourselves in righteousness] Let the seed you sow be of the best kind, and in just measure.

Reap in mercy] By the blessing of God on this ploughing, sowing, and harrowing, you may expect a good crop in harvest.

Break up your fallow ground] Do not be satisfied with a slight furrow; let the land that was fallowed (slightly ploughed) be broken up again with a deep furrow.

For it is time to seek the Lord] This should be immediately done: the season is passing; and if you do not get the seed in the ground, the early rain will be past, and your fields will be unfruitful.

Rain righteousness upon you.] God will give you the early rain in due time, and in proper measure. Here are the metaphors, and the application cannot be difficult. Here are ploughing, fallowing, sowing, harrowing, watering, reaping, threshing, and feeding on the produce of well-directed labour. All may be applied to the human heart, and the work of God upon it. Correction, contrition, conversion, receiving the grace of Christ, bringing forth fruit, &c.

Verse 13. Ye have ploughed wickedness] Ye have laboured sinfully.

Ye have reaped iniquity] The punishment due to your iniquity.

Ye have eaten the fruit of lies] Your false worship and your false gods have brought you into captivity and misery.

Because thou didst trust in thy way] Didst confide in thy own counsels, and in thy mighty men, and not in the God who made you.

Verse 14. Shall a tumult arise] The enemy shall soon fall upon thy people, and take all thy fortified places.

As Shalman spoiled Beth-arbel] Some think that this refers to Jerubbaal, or Gideon's victory over Zalmunna, general of the Midianites; see Judg. vii., viii. Others think that an allusion is made here to the de struction of Arbela, a city of Armenia, by Shalmaneser, here called Shalman; and this while he was only general of the Assyrian forces, and not yet king. I think the history to which this refers is unknown. It seems that it was distinguished by some remarkable ferocities.

The mother was dashed in pieces upon her children.] But when, where, how, and by whom, still remain unknown. Conjecture in such a case must be useless.

Verse 15. So shall Beth-el do unto you] This shall be the consequence of your idolatry.

In a morning shall the king of Israel utterly be cut off.] Suddenly, unexpectedly. Hoshea, the king of Israel, shall be cut off by the Assyrians. There are some allusions to facts in this chapter, which cannot be easily verified, as we have not sufficient acquaintance with the history of those times.

CHAPTER XI.

This chapter gives a very pathetic representation of God's tender and affectionate regard for Israel, by metaphors chiefly borrowed from the conduct of mothers toward their tender offspring. From this, occasion is taken to reflect on their ungrateful return to the Divine goodness, and to denounce against them the judgments of the Almighty, 1–7. But suddenly and unexpectedly the prospect changes. Beams of mercy break from the clouds just now fraught with vengeance. God, to speak in the language of men, feels the relentings of a tender parent; his bowels yearn; his mercy triumphs; his rebellious child shall yet be pardoned. As the lion of the tribe of Judah, he will employ his power to save his people, he will call his children from the land of their captivity; and, as doves, they will fly to him, a faithful and a holy people, 8–12.

A. M. cir. 3264. B. C. cir. 740. A. U. C. cir. 14. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 14.

WHEN [a] Israel was a child, then I loved him, and [b] called my [c] son out of Egypt.

2 As they called them, so they went from them: [d] they sacrificed unto Baalim, and burned incense to graven images.

3 [e] I taught Ephraim also to go, taking them by their arms; but they knew not that [f] I healed them.

4 I drew them with cords of a man, with bands of love: and [g] I was to them as they that [h] take off the yoke on their jaws, and [i] I laid meat unto them.

A. M. cir. 3264. B. C. cir. 740. A. U. C. cir. 14. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 14.

5 [k] He shall not return into the land of Egypt, but the Assyrian shall be his king, [l] because they refused to return.

6 And the sword shall abide on his cities, and shall consume his branches, and devour them [m] because of their own counsels.

[a] Chap. ii. 15.——[b] Matt. ii. 15.——[c] Exod. iv. 22. 23. [d] 2 Kings xvii. 16; chap. ii. 13; xiii. 2.——[e] Deut. i. 31; xxxii. 10, 11, 12; Isa. xlvi. 3.——[f] Exod. xv. 26.

[g] Lev. xxvi. 13.——[h] Heb. lift up.——[i] Psa. lxxviii. 25; chap. ii. 8.——[k] See chap. viii. 13; ix. 3.——[l] 2 Kings xvii. 13, 14; Cir. 728, they became tributaries to Salmanasser.——[m] Ch. x. 6.

NOTES ON CHAP. XI.

Verse 1. When Israel was a child] In the infancy of his political existence.

I loved him, and called my son out of Egypt.] Where he was greatly oppressed; and in this I gave the proof of my love. I preserved my people in their affliction there, and brought them safely out of it.

Verse 3. I taught Ephraim also to go] An allusion to a mother or nurse teaching a child to walk, directing it how to lift and lay its feet, and supporting it in the meantime by the arms, that it may use its feet with the greater ease. This is a passage truly pathetic.

Verse 4. I drew them with cords of a man] This is a reference to leading strings, one end of which is held by the child, the other by the nurse, by which the little one, feeling some support, and gaining confidence, endeavours to walk. God, their heavenly Father, made use of every means and method to teach them to walk in the right and only safe path; for, as the Targum says, "As beloved children are drawn, I drew them by the strength of love."

That take off the yoke on their jaws] I did every thing that mercy could suggest, and justice permit, to make their duty their delight and profit. There appears to be here an allusion to the moving and pulling forward the collar or yoke of beasts which have been hard at work, to let in the cool air between it and their neck, so as to refresh them, and prevent that heat, which with the sweat would scald their necks, and take off not only the hair, but the skin. I have often done this at the land ends, in ploughing, when at the turnings the cattle were permitted a few moments to draw their breath after the hard pull that terminated the furrow at either end of the field:—

And I laid meat unto them] Giving them at the same time a bite of grass or hay, to encourage them to go on afresh. The metaphor is strong and expressive; and he who ever had or saw the management of cattle in the plough or cart must admire it. Thus God acted with the people on whose necks was the yoke of his law. How many privileges, advantages, and comforts did he mingle with his precepts, to make them at once a righteous and happy people!

Verse 5. He shall not return into—Egypt] I have brought them thence already, with the design that the nation should never return thither again; but as they have sinned, and forfeited my favour and protection, they shall go to Assyria; and this because they refused to return to me. This view of the verse removes every difficulty.

Verse 6. The sword shall abide on his cities] Israel was agitated with external and intestine wars from

A. M. cir. 3261. B. C. cir. 740. A. U. C. cir. 14. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 14.

7 And my people are bent to [n] backsliding from me: [o] though they called them to the Most High, [p] none at all would exalt him.

8 [q] How shall I give thee up, Ephraim? how shall I deliver thee, Israel? how shall I make thee as [r] Admah? how shall I set thee as Zeboim? [s] mine heart is turned within me, my repentings are kindled together.

9 I will not execute the fierceness of mine anger, I will not return to destroy Ephraim: [t] for I am God, and not man; the Holy One in the midst of thee: and I will not enter into the city.

A. M. cir. 3261. B. C. cir. 740. A. U. C. cir. 14. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 14.

10 They shall walk after the LORD: [u] he shall roar like a lion: when he shall roar, then the children shall tremble [v] from the west.

11 They shall tremble as a bird out of Egypt, [w] and as a dove out of the land of Assyria: [x] and I will place them in their houses, saith the LORD.

12 [y] Ephraim compasseth me about with lies, and the house of Israel with deceit: but Judah yet ruleth with God, and is faithful [z] with the saints.

[n] Jer. iii. 6, &c.; viii. 5; chap. iv. 16.——[o] Chap. vii. 16. [p] Heb. together they exalted not.——[q] Jer. ix. 7; chap. vi. 4. [r] Gen. xiv. 8; xix. 24, 25; Deut. xxix. 23; Amos iv. 11. [s] Deut. xxxii. 36; Isa. lxiii. 15; Jer. xxxi. 20.

[t] Num. xxiii. 19; Isa. lv. 8, 9; Mal. iii. 6.——[u] Isa. xxxi. 4; Joel iii. 16; Amos i. 2.——[v] Zech. viii. 7.——[w] Isa. lx. 8; chap. vii. 11.——[x] Ezek. xxviii. 25, 26; xxxvii. 21, 25.——[y] Ch. xii. 1.——[z] Or, with the most holy.

the time of Jeroboam the Second Although Zechariah his son reigned twelve years, yet it was in continual troubles; and he was at last slain by the rebel Shallum, who, having reigned one month, was slain by Menahem. Pekahiah succeeded his father Menahem, and reigned two years, and was killed by Pekah, son of Remaliah. He joined Rezin, king of Syria, and made an irruption into the land of Judah; but Ahaz having obtained succour from Tiglath-Pileser, king of Assyria, Pekah was defeated, and the tribes of Reuben, Gad, Naphtali, and the half-tribe of Manasseh, were carried away captives by the Assyrian king; and in a short time after. Hosea, son of Elah, slew Pekah, and usurped the kingdom, which he could not possess without the assistance of Shalmaneser, who for his services imposed a tribute on the Israelitish king. Wishing to rid himself of this yoke, he applied to the king of Egypt; but this being known to Shalmaneser, he came against Samaria, and after a three years' siege took and destroyed it. Thus the sword rested on their cities; it continued in the land till all was ruined. See Calmet.

Verse 7. Though they called them to the Most High] Newcome is better: "And though they call on him together because of the yoke, he will not raise it. He shall receive no refreshment." See the metaphor, ver. 4.

Verse 8. How shall I give thee up] See the notes on chap. vi. 4, where we have similar words from similar feeling.

Mine heart is turned within me] Justice demands thy punishment; Mercy pleads for thy life. As thou changest, Justice resolves to destroy, or Mercy to save. My heart is oppressed, and I am weary with repenting—with so frequently changing my purpose. All this, though spoken after the manner of men, shows how merciful, compassionate, and loath to punish, the God of heaven is. What sinner or saint upon earth has not been a subject of these gracious operations?

Verse 9. I will not execute] Here is the issue of this conflict in the Divine mind. Mercy triumphs over Judgment; Ephraim shall be spared. He is God, and not man. He cannot be affected by human caprices. They are now penitent, and implore mercy; he will not, as man would do, punish them for former offences, when they have fallen into his hand. The holy place is in Ephraim, and God is in this holy place; and he will not go into the cities, as he did into Sodom and Gomorrah, to destroy them. Judgment is his strange work. How exceedingly affecting are these two verses!

Verse 10. They shall walk after the Lord] They shall discern the operations of his providence, when,

He shall roar like a lion] When he shall utter his majestic voice, Cyrus shall make his decree. The people shall tremble—be in a state of commotion; every one hurrying to avail himself of the opportunity to return to his own land.

Verse 11. They shall tremble as a bird] Those of them that are in Egypt shall also be called thence, and shall speed hither as a bird. Those in Assyria shall also be called to return, and they shall flee as doves to their windows. All shall, in the fulness of time, return to their own land. And,

I will place them in their houses, saith the Lord.] They shall have their temple once more, and all their holy ordinances.

Verse 12. Ephraim compasseth me about with lies] I think this verse does not well unite with the above; it belongs to another subject, and should begin the following chapter, as in the Hebrew.

Judah yet ruleth with God] There is an allusion here to Gen. xxxii. 24, where Jacob, having "wrestled with the Angel," had his name changed to Israel, one that rules with God. That glory the Israelites had lost by their idolatry; but Judah still retained the true worship, and alone deserved the name of Israel.

Bp. Newcome translates this clause thus:—

"But hereafter they shall come down a people of God, Even a faithful people of saints."

Even allowing this to be the most correct view of the original, I do not see what we gain by this change.

CHAPTER XII.

The prophet, in very pointed terms, describes the unprofitableness and destruction attending vicious courses; particularly such as Ephraim pursued, who forsook God, and courted the alliance of idolatrous princes, 1. Judah is also reproved, 2. He is reminded of the extraordinary favour of God to his father Jacob, in giving him the birthright; and exhorted, after his example, to wrestle with God (the Angel of the covenant, the same unchangeable Jehovah) for a blessing; and to love mercy and execute justice, 3–6. Ephraim is accused of pursuing practices that are deceitful, although pretending to integrity, 7, 8. God then threatens to deprive this people of their possessions, 9, as they had rejected every means of reformation, 10, and given themselves up to gross impieties, 11. And, as an aggravation of their guilt, they are reminded from what humble beginnings they had been raised, 12, 13. The Divine judgments about to fall upon Israel are declared to be the result of great provocation, 14.

A. M. cir. 3279. B. C. cir. 725. A. U. C. cir. 29. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

EPHRAIM [a] feedeth on wind, and followeth after the east wind: he daily increaseth lies and desolation; [b] and they do make a covenant with the Assyrians, and [c] oil is carried into Egypt.

2 [d] The LORD hath also a controversy with Judah, and will [e] punish Jacob according to his ways; according to his doings will he recompense him.

3 He took his brother [f] by the heel in the womb, and by his strength he [g] had [h] power with God:

4 Yea, he had power over the Angel, and prevailed: he wept, and made supplication unto him: he found him in [i] Beth-el, and there he spake with us;

A. M. cir. 3279. B. C. cir. 725. A. U. C. cir. 29. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

5 Even the LORD God of hosts; the LORD is his [k] memorial.

6 [l] Therefore turn thou to thy God: keep mercy and judgment, and [m] wait on thy God continually.

7 He is [n] a merchant, [o] the balances of deceit are in his hand: he loveth to [p] oppress.

8 And Ephraim said, [q] Yet I am become

[a] Chap. viii. 7.——[b] 2 Kings xvii. 4; chap. v. 13; chap. vii. 11. [c] Isa. xxx. 6; lvii. 9.——[d] Chap. iv. 1; Mic. vi. 2.——[e] Heb. visit upon.——[f] Gen. xxv. 26.——[g] Heb. was a prince or behaved himself princely.——[h] Gen. xxxii. 24, &c.

[i] Gen. xxviii. 12, 19; xxxv. 9, 10, 15.——[k] Exod. iii. 15.——[l] Ch. xiv. 1; Mic. vi. 8.——[m] Psa. xxxvii. 7.——[n] Or, Canaan: see Ezek. xvi. 3.——[o] Prov. xi. 1; Amos viii. 5.——[p] Or, deceive. [q] Zech. xi. 5; Rev. iii. 17.

NOTES ON CHAP. XII.

Verse 1. Ephraim feedeth on wind] He forms and follows empty and unstable counsels.

Followeth after the east wind] They are not only empty, but dangerous and destructive. The east wind was, and still is, in all countries, a parching, wasting, injurious wind.

He daily increaseth lies] He promises himself safety from foreign alliances. He "made a covenant with the Assyrians," and sent a subsidy of "oil to Egypt." The latter abandoned him; the former oppressed him.

Verse 2. The Lord hath also a controversy with Judah] The rest of the prophecy belongs both to Judah and Israel. He reproaches both with their ingratitude, and threatens them with God's anger. In order to make their infidelity the more hateful, and their malice the more sensible, he opposes to them the righteousness, obedience, and piety of their father Jacob. He recalls to their minds the benefits they had received since they returned from Egypt. He speaks afterwards of their kings; and how, in their ingratitude, they refused to have him for their monarch. Having mentioned this fact, he subjoins reflections, exhortations, invectives, and threatenings; and continues this subject in this and the two following chapters. —Calmet.

Verse 3. He took his brother by the heel] See on Gen. xxv. 26, and xxxii. 24, &c.

Verse 4. He had power over the Angel] Who represented the invisible Jehovah.

He wept, and made supplication] He entreated with tears that God would bless him; and he prevailed. The circumstance of his weeping is not mentioned in Genesis.

He found him in Beth-el] It was there that God made those glorious promises to Jacob relative to his posterity. See Gen. xxviii. 13–15.

Verse 5. The Lord is his memorial.] He is the same God as when Jacob so successfully wrestled with him.

Verse 6. Therefore turn thou to thy God] Because he is the same, and cannot change. Seek him as faithfully and as fervently as Jacob did, and you will find him the same merciful and compassionate Being.

Verse 7. He is a merchant] Or a Canaanite; referring to the Phœnicians, famous for their traffic. Ephraim is as corrupt as those heathenish traffickers were. He kept, as many in all ages have done, a weight and a weight; a heavy one to buy with, and a light one to sell by.

Verse 8. I am become rich] They boasted in their riches, notwithstanding the unjust manner in which they were acquired.

In all my labours they shall find none iniquity in me] This is frequently the language of merchants, tradesmen, &c. None are so full of professions of equity and justice, while all the time they are endeavouring rich, I have found me out substance: [r] in all my labours they shall find none iniquity in me [s] that were sin.

A. M. cir. 3279. B. C. cir. 725. A. U. C. cir. 29. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

9 And [t] I that am the LORD thy God from the land of Egypt [u] will yet make thee to dwell in tabernacles, as in the days of the solemn feasts.

10 [v] I have also spoken by the prophets, and I have multiplied visions, and used similitudes, [w] by the ministry of the prophets.

11 [x] Is there iniquity in Gilead? surely they are vanity: they sacrifice bullocks in [y] Gilgal; yea, their [z] altars are as heaps in the furrows of the fields.

A. M. cir. 3279. B. C. cir. 725. A. U. C. cir. 29. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

12 And Jacob [a] fled into the country of Syria, and Israel [b] served for a wife, and for a wife he kept sheep.

13 [c] And by a prophet the LORD brought Israel out of Egypt, and by a prophet was he preserved.

14 [d] Ephraim provoked him to anger [e] most bitterly: therefore shall he leave his [f] blood upon him, [g] and his [h] reproach shall his Lord return unto him.

[r] Or, all my labours suffice me not: he shall have punishment of iniquity in whom is sin.——[s] Heb. which.——[t] Chapter xiii. 4.——[u] Lev. xxiii. 42, 43; Neh. viii. 17; Zech. xiv. 16.——[v] 2 Kings xvii. 13.——[w] Heb. by the hand.——[x] Chap. v. 1; vi. 8.——[y] Chap. iv. 15; ix. 15; Amos iv. 4; v. 5.——[z] Chap. viii. 11; x. 1.

[a] Gen. xxviii. 5; Deut. xxvi. 5.——[b] Gen. xxix. 20, 28.——[c] Exod. xii. 50, 51; xiii. 3; Psa. lxxvii. 20; Isa. lxiii. 11; Mic. vi. 4.——[d] 2 Kings xvii. 11–18.——[e] Heb. with bitterness.——[f] Heb. bloods; see Ezek. xviii. 13; xix. 10; xxiv. 7, 8.——[g] Dan. xi. 18.——[h] Deut. xxviii. 37; Lam. iii. 61–66.

to overreach, both in buying and selling. "Sir, I cannot afford it at that price." "It is not mine for that money." "I assure you that it cost me more than you offer." "I am sorry I cannot take your money; but if I did, I should lose by the article," &c., &c., &c. I have heard such language over and over, when I knew every word was false. Truth is a sacred thing in the sight of God; but who regards it as he should? There are, however, many noble exceptions among merchants and tradesmen. Bp. Newcome gives another turn to the subject, by translating:—

"All his labours shall not be found profitable unto him,
For the iniquity wherewith he hath sinned."

Verse 9. And I—the Lord thy God] I who brought thee out of the land of Egypt, will again make thee to dwell in tabernacles. This appears to be a threatening. I will reduce you to as miserable a state in the land of your captivity, as you often were through your transgressions in the wilderness. This was the opinion of some of the ancients on this verse; and the context requires it to be understood in this way. I do not think that the feast of tabernacles is referred to.

Verse 10. I have also spoken] I have used every means, and employed every method, to instruct and save you. I have sent prophets, who spake plainly, exhorting, warning, and beseeching you to return to me. They have had Divine visions, which they have declared and interpreted. They have used similitudes, symbols, metaphors, allegories, &c., in order to fix your attention, and bring you back to your duty and interest. And, alas! all is in vain; you have not profited by my condescension. This text St. Paul seems to have had full in view, when he wrote, Heb. i. 1: "God who, at SUNDRY TIMES and in DIVERS MANNERS, spake in time past unto the FATHERS by the PROPHETS." See the note on the above.

Dr. Dodd supposes that there are three distinct kinds of prophecy mentioned here: 1. Immediate inspiration, when God declares the very words. 2. Vision; a representation of external objects to the mind, in as lively a manner as if they were conveyed by the senses. 3. Parables and apt resemblances.

Verse 11. Iniquity in Gilead] Gilgal and Gilead are equally iniquitous, and equally idolatrous. Gilead, which was beyond Jordan, had already been brought under subjection by Tiglath-Pileser. Gilgal, which was on this side Jordan, shall share the same fate; because it is now as idolatrous as the other.

Their altars are as heaps] They occur everywhere. The whole land is given to idolatry.

Verse 12. Served for a wife] Seven years for Rachel.

For a wife he kept sheep.] Seven years for Leah; having been cheated by Laban, who gave him first Leah, instead of Rachel; and afterwards made him serve seven years more before he would confirm his first engagement. Critics complain of want of connection here. Why is this isolated fact predicted? Thus, in a detached sentence, the prophet speaks of the low estate of their ancestors, and how amply the providence of God had preserved and provided for them. This is all the connection the place requires.

Verse 13. By a prophet (Moses) the Lord brought Israel out of Egypt, and by a prophet (Joshua) was he preserved.] Joshua succeeded Moses, and brought the Israelites into the promised land; and when they passed the Jordan at Gilgal, he received the covenant of circumcision; and yet this same place was now made by them the seat of idolatry! How blind and how ungrateful!

Verse 14. Therefore shall he leave his blood upon him] He will not remove his guilt. These are similar to our Lord's words, John iii. 36, ix. 41: "He that believeth not on the Son of God, shall not see life, for the wrath of God ABIDETH ON HIM"—shall not be removed by any remission, as he rejects the only way in which he can be saved. Because ye say, We see; therefore, YOUR SIN REMAINETH, i. e., it still stands charged against you. Your miseries and destruction are of your own procuring; your perdition is of yourselves. God is as merciful as he is just.

CHAPTER XIII.

This chapter begins with observing that the fear of God leads to prosperity, but sin to ruin; a truth most visibly exemplified in the sin and punishment of Ephraim, 1–3. As an aggravation of their guilt, God reminds them of his former favours, 4, 5; which they had shamefully abused, 6; and which now expose them to dreadful punishments, 7, 8. He, however, tempers these awful threatenings with gracious promises; and, on their repentance, engages to save them, when no other could protect them, 9–11. But, alas! instead of repenting, Ephraim is filling up the measure of his iniquity, 12, 13. Notwithstanding this, God promises to put forth his almighty power in behalf of his people, and, as it were, raise them from the dead, 14; although, in the meantime, they must be visited with great national calamities, compared first to the noxious and parching east wind, 15, and described immediately after in the plainest terms, 16.

A. M. cir. 3279. B. C. cir. 725. A. U. C. cir. 29. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

WHEN Ephraim spake trembling, he exalted himself in Israel: but [a] when he offended in Baal, he died.

2 And now [b] they sin more and more, and [c] have made them molten images of their silver, and idols according to their own understanding, all of it the work of the craftsmen: they say of them, Let [d] the men that sacrifice [e] kiss the calves.

3 Therefore they shall be [f] as the morning cloud, and as the early dew that passeth away, [g] as the chaff that is driven with the whirlwind out of the floor, and as the smoke out of the chimney.

A. M. cir. 3279. B. C. cir. 725. A. U. C. cir. 29. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

4 Yet [h] I am the LORD thy God from the land of Egypt, and thou shalt know no god but me: for [i] there is no saviour beside me.

5 [k] I did know thee in the wilderness, [l] in the land of [m] great drought.

6 [n] According to their pasture, so were they filled; they were filled, and their heart was exalted; therefore [o] have they forgotten me

7 Therefore [p] I will be unto them as a lion as [q] a leopard by the way will I observe them:

[a] 2 Kings xvii. 16, 18; chap. xi. 2.——[b] Heb. they add to sin. [c] Chap. ii. 8; viii. 4.——[d] Or, the sacrifices of men.——[e] 1 Kings xix. 18.——[f] Chap. vi. 4.——[g] Dan. ii. 35.——[h] Isa. xliii. 11; chap. xii. 9.

[i] Isa. xliii. 11; xlv. 21.——[k] Deut. ii. 7; xxxii. 10.——[l] Deut. viii. 15; xxxii. 10.——[m] Heb. droughts.——[n] Deut. viii. 12, 14; xxxii. 15.——[o] Chap. viii. 14.——[p] Lam. iii. 10; chap. v. 14. [q] Jer. v. 6.

NOTES ON CHAP. XIII.

Verse 1. When Ephraim spake trembling] When he was meek and humble, of a broken heart and contrite spirit.

He exalted himself in Israel] He became great in God's sight; he rose in the Divine esteem in proportion as he sank in his own. But this did not continue.

He offended in Baal] He became an idolater.

He died.] The sentence of death from the Divine justice went out against him.

This has been differently understood: "As soon as Ephraim spake (To your tents, O Israel!) there was a trembling or commotion: then the kingdom was exalted in Israel." Thus taken, it refers to the division of the ten tribes from Rehoboam, son of Solomon, 1 Kings xii. 16, &c., and the establishment of the kingdom of Israel under Jeroboam in opposition to that of Judah; which breach was never healed.

Verse 2. And now they sin more and more] They increase in every kind of vice, having abandoned the great Inspirer of virtue.

Let the men that sacrifice kiss the calves.] This was the test. If there be a Jew that pretends to sacrifice, and whose conversion is dubious, let him come openly and kiss the calves. This will show what he is; no real Jew will do this. If he be an idolater, he will not scruple. This was the ancient method of adoration. 1. They kissed the idol. 2. When the statue was too high or too far off, they presented the hand, in token of alliance. 3. They brought that hand respectfully to their mouths, and kissed it. This was the genuine act of adoration; from ad, to, and os, oris, the mouth. So PLINY, Hist. Nat., lib. xxviii., c. 1. Adorando, dexteram ad oscula referimus.

And APULEIUS, Asin., lib. iv.: Admoventes oribus suis dexteram, ut ipsam prorsus deam religiosis adorationibus venerabantur. See Calmet, and see the note on Job xxxi. 17.

Verse 3. Therefore they shall be as the morning CLOUD—as the early DEW—as the CHAFF—as the SMOKE] Four things, most easy to be driven about and dissipated, are employed here to show how they should be scattered among the nations, and dissipated by captivity.

Verse 4. I am the Lord thy God] This was the first discovery I made of myself to you, and the first commandment I gave; and I showed you that besides me there was no Saviour. There is a remarkable addition in the Septuagint here: "But I am Jehovah thy God, who stretched out the heavens and created the earth. And I showed them not to thee, that thou shouldst walk after them. And I brought thee up out of the land of Egypt," &c. This might have been once in the Hebrew text.

Verse 5. I did know thee] I approved of thee; I loved thee; and by miraculously providing for thee in that land of drought, I demonstrated my love.

Verse 6. According to their pasture] They had a rich pasture, and were amply supplied with every good. They became exalted in their heart, forgat their God, and became a prey to their enemies. "He that exalteth himself shall be abased."

Verse 7. I will be unto them as a lion] שחל shachal

A. M. cir. 3279. B. C. cir. 725. A. U. C. cir. 29. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

8 I will meet them [r] as a bear that is bereaved of her whelps, and will rend the caul of their heart, and there will I devour them like a lion: [s] the wild beast shall tear them.

9 O Israel, [t] thou hast destroyed thyself; [u] but in me [v] is thine help.

10 [w] I will be thy king: [x] where is any other that may save thee in all thy cities? and thy judges of whom [y] thou saidst, Give me a king and princes?

11 [z] I gave thee a king in mine anger, and took him away in my wrath.

A. M. cir. 3279. B. C. cir. 725. A. U. C. cir. 29. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

12 [a] The iniquity of Ephraim is bound up; his sin is hid.

13 [b] The sorrows of a travailing woman shall come upon him: he is [c] an unwise son; for he should not [d] stay [e] long in the place of the breaking forth of children.

14 [f] I will ransom them from [g] the power of the grave; I will redeem them from death;

---

[r] 2 Sam. xvii. 8; Prov. xvii. 12.——[s] Heb. the beast of the field. [t] Prov. vi. 32; chap. xiv. 1; Mal. i. 9.——[u] Ver. 4.——[v] Heb. in thy help.——[w] Rather, Where is thy king? King Hoshea being then in prison; 2 Kings xvii. 4.——[x] Deut. xxxii. 38; chap. x. 3; ver. 4.

[y] 1 Sam. viii. 5, 19.——[z] 1 Sam. viii. 7; x. 19; xv. 22, 23; xvi. 1; chap. x. 3.——[a] Deut. xxxii. 34; Job xiv. 17.——[b] Isa. xxi. 3; Jer. xxx. 6.——[c] Prov. xxii. 3.——[d] 2 Kings xix. 3. [e] Heb. a time.——[f] Isa. xxv. 8; Ezek. xxxvii. 12.——[g] Hebrew, the hand.

---

is supposed to mean here the black lion, frequent in Ethiopia.

As a leopard] נמר namar, so termed from its spotted skin, for to be spotted is the signification of the root.

Will I observe them] The leopard, tiger, and panther will hide themselves in thick bush-wood, near where they expect any prey to pass; and as soon as it comes near, spring suddenly upon it. To this is the allusion in the text: "By the way will I observe them;" watch for them as the leopard does. They shall be greatly harassed even on their way to Assyria, when going into captivity.

Verse 8. As a bear—bereaved] This is a figure to denote excessive ferocity. See the note on 2 Sam. xvii. 8, where a remarkable instance is given.

And will rend the caul of their heart] Every savage beast goes first to the seat of the blood when it has seized its prey; as in this fluid they delight more than in the most delicate parts of the flesh.

There will I devour them like a lion] לביא labi, the old strong lion; drinking the blood, tearing the flesh, and breaking the bones to extract the marrow.

The wild beast shall tear them] Probably this refers to the chakal or jackal, who frequently hunts down the prey, which the lion takes the liberty to devour, while the jackal stands by, and afterwards picks the bones. Hence he has been called the lion's PROVIDER, and the lion's waiting-man.

Verse 9. O Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself] These evils come not by my immediate infliction; they are the consequences of thy own crimes. In the above terrifying figures of the ferocious beasts, the prophet only shows what they would meet with from the hand of the Assyrians in the war, the famine, and the captivity; God being represented as doing what he only permits to be done.

But in me is thine help.] "Though thou hast destroyed thyself, yet in me alone can thy help be found."—Newcome. And others read, And who will help thee? reading כי mi, who, for בי bi, in me. Though this is countenanced by the Syriac, yet there is no evidence of it in any of the MSS. yet collated, nor do I think it to be the true reading.

Verse 10. Give me a king and princes?] Referring to the time in which they cast off the Divine theocracy and chose Saul in the place of Jehovah.

Verse 11. I gave thee a king in mine anger] Such was Saul; for they highly offended God when they clamoured to have a king like the heathen nations that were around them.

Took him away in my wrath.] Permitted him and the Israelites to fall before the Philistines. Others think that Shalmaneser was the king thus given, and Hoshea the king thus taken away.

Verse 12. The iniquity of Ephraim is bound up] It is registered in my court of justice; the death warrant is in store, and will be produced in due time. Though there be not at present the judgment inflicted which such glaring transgressions demand, yet it will surely come. Such crimes cannot go unpunished.

Verse 13. The sorrows of a travailing woman] These judgments shall come suddenly and unavoidably.

The place of the breaking forth of children.] As there is a critical time in parturition in which the mother in hard labour may by skilful assistants be eased of her burden, which, if neglected, may endanger the life both of parent and child; so there was a time in which Ephraim might have returned to God, but they would not; therefore they are now in danger of being finally destroyed. And, speaking after the manner of men, he must be deemed an unwise son, who, if he had power and consideration, would prolong his stay in the porch of life, where he must necessarily be suffocated; so is Ephraim, who, though warned of his danger, having yet power to escape, continued in his sin, and is now come to destruction. I could illustrate the allusion in the text farther, and show the accurate propriety of the original; but the subject forbids it.

Verse 14. I will ransom them from the power of the grave] In their captivity they are represented as dead and buried, which is a similar view to that taken of the Jews in the Babylonish captivity by Ezekiel in his vision of the valley of dry bones. They are now lost as to the purpose for which they were made, for which God had wrought so many miracles for them and for their ancestors; but the gracious purpose of God shall not be utterly defeated. He will bring them out of that grave, and ransom them from that death; for

A. M. cir. 3279. B. C. cir. 725. A. U. C. cir. 29. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

[h] O death, I will be thy plagues; O grave, I will be thy destruction; [i] repentance shall be hid from mine eyes.

15 Though [k] he be fruitful among his brethren, [l] an east wind shall come, the wind of the LORD shall come up from the wilderness, and his spring shall become dry, and his fountain shall be dried up: he shall spoil the treasure of all [m] pleasant vessels.

A. M. cir. 3279. B. C. cir. 725. A. U. C. cir. 29. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

16 [n] Samaria shall become desolate; [o] for she hath rebelled against her God: [p] they shall fall by the sword: their infants shall be dashed in pieces, and their women with child shall be ripped up.

[h] 1 Cor. xv. 54, 55.——[i] Jer. xv. 6; Rom. xi. 29.——[k] See Gen. xli. 52; xlviii. 19.——[l] Jer. iv. 11; Ezek. xvii. 10; xix. 12; Chap. iv. 19.——[m] Heb. vessels of desire; Nah. ii. 9.

[n] Fulfilled, cir. 721; 2 Kings xvii. 6.——[o] 2 Kings xviii. 12. [p] 2 Kings viii. 12; xv. 16; Isa. xiii. 16; chap. x. 14, 15; Amos i. 13; Nah. iii. 10.

as they have deserved that death and disgraceful burial, they must be redeemed and ransomed from it, or still lie under it. And who can do this but God himself? And he will do it. In the prospect of this the prophet exclaims, in the person of the universal Redeemer, "O death, I will be thy plagues;" I will bring into thy reign the principle of its destruction. The Prince of life shall lie for a time under thy power, that he may destroy that power.

O grave, I will be thy destruction] I will put an end to thy dreary domination by rising from the dead, and bringing life and immortality to life by my Gospel, and by finally raising from death the whole human race in the day of the general resurrection.

שאול sheol, which we translate grave, is the state of the dead. מות maveth, which we translate death, is the principle of corruption that renders the body unfit to be longer the tenement of the soul, and finally decomposes it. Sheol shall be destroyed, for it must deliver up all its dead. Maveth shall be annihilated, for the body shall be raised incorruptible. See the use which the apostle makes of this passage, 1 Cor. xv. 54, 55; but he does not quote from the Hebrew, nor from any of the ancient versions. He had to apply the subject anew; and the Spirit, which had originally given the words, chose to adapt them to the subject then in hand, which was the resurrection of the dead in the last day. Instead of דבריך debareycha, thy plagues, one of my oldest MSS., ninety-six of Kennicott's, and thirty-two of De Rossi's, have דברך debarcha, thy plague, that which shall carry thee off, as the plague does them who are affected by it. To carry off, carry away, is one of the regular meanings of the verb דבר dabar.

Repentance shall be hid from mine eyes.] On these points I will not change my purpose; this is the signification of repentance when attributed to God.

Verse 15. Though he be fruitful] יפריא yaphri; a paronomasia on the word אפרים ephrayim, which comes from the same root פרה parah, to be fruitful, to sprout, to bud.

An east wind shall come] As the east wind parches and blasts all vegetation, so shall Shalmaneser blast and destroy the Israelitish state.

Verse 16. Samaria shall become desolate] This was the capital of the Israelitish kingdom. What follows is a simple prophetic declaration of the cruelties which should be exercised upon this hapless people by the Assyrians in the sackage of the city.

CHAPTER XIV.

By the terrible denunciation of vengeance which concludes the preceding chapter, the prophet is led to exhort Israel to repentance, furnishing them with a beautiful form of prayer, very suitable to the occasion, 1–3. Upon which God, ever ready to pardon the penitent, is introduced making large promises of blessings, in allusion to those copious dews which refresh the green herbs, and which frequently denote, not only temporal salvation, but also the rich and refreshing comforts of the Gospel, 4–7. Their reformation from idolatry is foretold, and their consequent prosperity, under the emblem of a green flourishing fir tree, 8; but these promises are confined to those who may bring forth the fruits of righteousness, and the wicked are declared to have no share in them, 9.

A. M. cir. 3279. B. C. cir. 725. A. U. C. cir. 29. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

O ISRAEL, [a] return unto the LORD thy God; [b] for thou hast fallen by thine iniquity.

2 Take with you words, and turn to the LORD: say unto him, Take away all iniquity, and [c] receive us graciously: so will we render [d] the calves of our lips.

A. M. cir. 3279. B. C. cir. 725. A. U. C. cir. 29. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

[a] Chap. xii. 6; Joel ii. 13.——[b] Chap. xiii. 9.

[c] Or, give good.——[d] Heb. xiii. 15.

NOTES ON CHAP. XIV.

Verse 1. O Israel, return unto the Lord] These words may be considered as addressed to the people now in captivity; suffering much, but having still much more to suffer if they did not repent. But it seems all these evils might yet be prevented, though so positively predicted, if the people would repent and return; and the very exhortation to this repentance

A. M. cir. 3279. B. C. cir. 725. A. U. C. cir. 29. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

3 [e] Asshur shall not save us; [f] we will not ride upon horses: [g] neither will we say any more to the work of our hands, Ye are our gods: [h] for in thee the fatherless findeth mercy.

4 I will heal [i] their backsliding, I will love them [k] freely: for mine anger is turned away from him.

A. M. cir. 3279. B. C. cir. 725. A. U. C. cir. 29. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

5 I will be as [l] the dew unto Israel: he shall [m] grow as the lily, and [n] cast forth his roots as Lebanon.

6 His branches [o] shall spread, and [p] his

[e] Jer. xxxi. 18, &c.; chap. v. 13; xii. 1.——[f] Deut. xvii. 16; Psa. xxxiii. 17; Isa. xxx. 2, 16; xxxi. 1.——[g] Chap. ii. 17; ver. 8.——[h] Psa. x. 14; lxviii. 5.

[i] Jer. v. 6; xiv. 7; chap. xi. 7.——[k] Eph. i. 6.——[l] Job. xxix. 19; Prov. xix. 12.——[m] Or, blossom.——[n] Heb. strike.——[o] Heb. shall go.——[p] Psa. lii. 8; cxxviii. 3; Eccles. l. 10.

shows that they still had power to repent, and that God was ready to save them and avert all these evils. All this is easily accounted for on the doctrine of the contingency of events, i. e., the poising a multitude of events on the possibility of being and not being, and leaving the will of man to turn the scale; and that God will not foreknow a thing as absolutely certain, which his will has determined to make contingent. A doctrine against which some solemn men have blasphemed, and philosophic infidels declaimed; but without which fate and dire necessity must be the universal governors, prayer be a useless meddling, and Providence nothing but the ineluctable adamantine chain of unchangeable events; all virtue is vice, and vice virtue; or there is no distinction between them, each being eternally determined and unalterably fixed by a sovereign and uncontrollable will and unvarying necessity, from the operation of which no soul of man can escape, and no occurrence in the universe be otherwise than it is. From such blasphemy, and from the monthly publications which avouch it, good Lord, deliver us!

Verse 2. Take with you words] And you may be assured that you pray aright, when you use the words which God himself has put in your mouths. On this very ground there is a potency in the LORD'S PRAYER, when offered up believingly, beyond what can be found in any human composition. And it may be presumed that it was this consideration that induced our reformers to introduce it so frequently in the public liturgy.

See the order of God's directions here:—

1. Hearing these merciful invitations, believe them to be true.

2. Cast aside your idols; and return to God as your Maker, King, and Saviour.

3. Take with you the words by which you have been encouraged, and plead them before God.

4. Remember your iniquity, deeply deplore it, and beg of God to take it all away.

5. Let faith be in exercise to receive what God waits to impart. "Receive us graciously;" וקח טוב vekach tob, receive, or let us receive good; when thou hast emptied us of evil, fill us with goodness.

6. Be then determined, through grace, to live to his glory, "so shall we render thee the calves" (פרים parim, for which the versions in general read פרי peri, fruits, omitting the ם mem) "of our lips;" the sacrifices of praise, thanksgiving, gratitude, and the hearty obedience which our lips have often promised.

7. Having thus determined, specify your resolutions to depend on God alone for all that can make you wise, useful, holy, and happy. The resolutions are,—

1. Asshur shall not save us—We will neither trust in, nor fear, this rich and powerful king. We will not look either to riches or power for true rest and peace of mind.

2. We will not ride upon horses—We shall no more fix our hopes on the proud Egyptian cavalry, to deliver us out of the hands of enemies to whom thy Divine justice has delivered us. We will expect no rest nor happiness in the elegances of life, and gratification of our senses.

3. Neither will we say any more to the work of our hands, Ye are our gods—We will not trust in any thing without us; nor even in any good thing we are able to do through thy grace; knowing we have nothing but what we have received. We will trust in thy infinite mercy for our final salvation.

4. And we will do all this from the conviction, that in thee the fatherless findeth mercy; for we are all alike helpless, desolate, perishing orphans, till translated into thy family.

Verse 4. I will heal their backsliding] Here is the answer of God to these prayers and resolutions. See its parts:—

1. Ye have backslidden and fallen, and are grievously and mortally wounded by that fall; but I, who am the Author of life, and who redeem from death, will heal all these wounds and spiritual diseases.

2. I will love them freely—נדבה nedabah, after a liberal, princely manner. I will love them so as to do them incessant good. It shall not be a love of affection merely, but shall be a beneficial love. A love that not only feels delight in itself, but fills them with delight who are its objects, by making them unutterably and supremely happy.

3. For mine anger is turned away from him—Because he has turned back to me. Thus God and man become friends.

Verse 5. I will be as the dew unto Israel] On these metaphors I gladly avail myself of the elegant and just observations of Bp. Lowth. "These verses (5, 6, 7) contain gracious promises of God's favour and blessings upon Israel's conversion. In the fifth verse, it is described by that refreshment which copious dews give to the grass in summer. If we consider the nature of the climate, and the necessity of dews in so hot a country, not only to refresh, but likewise to preserve life; if we consider also the beauty of the oriental lilies, the fragrance of the cedars which grow upon Lebanon, the beauteous appearance which the beauty shall be as the olive tree, and [q] his smell as Lebanon.

A. M. cir. 3279. B. C. cir. 725. A. U. C. cir. 29. Romuli, R. Roman, cir. annum 29.

7 [r] They that dwell under his shadow shall return; they shall revive as the corn, and [s] grow as the vine: the [t] scent thereof shall be as the wine of Lebanon.

8 Ephraim shall say, [u] What have I to do any more with idols? [v] I have heard him, and observed him: I am like a green fir tree. [w] From me is thy fruit found.

A. M. cir. 3279. B. C. cir. 725. A. U. C. cir. 29. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 29.

9 [x] Who is wise, and he shall understand these things? prudent, and he shall know them? for [y] the ways of the LORD are right, and the just shall walk in them: but the transgressors shall fall therein.

[q] Gen. xxvii. 27; Cant. iv. 11.——[r] Psa. xci. 1.——[s] Or, blossom.——[t] Or, memorial.——[u] Ver. 3.——[v] Jer. xxxi. 18.——[w] James i. 17.

[x] Psa. cvii. 43; Jer. ix. 12; Dan. xii. 10; Ecclus. xxxix. 24 27; John viii. 47; xviii. 37.——[y] Psa. cxix. 14, 27, 33; cxlv. 17; Prov. x. 29; Luke ii. 34; 2 Cor. ii. 16; 1 Pet. ii. 7, 8.

spreading olive trees afforded, the exhilarating coolness caused by the shade of such trees, and the aromatic smell exhaled by the cedars; we shall then partly understand the force of the metaphors here employed by the prophet; but their full energy no one can conceive, till he feels both the want, and enjoys the advantage, of the particulars referred to in that climate where the prophet wrote."—Lowth's twelfth and nineteenth prelection; and Dodd on the place.

What a glorious prophecy! What a wonderful prophet! How sublime, how energetic, how just! The great master prophet, Isaiah, alone could have done this better. And these promises are not for Israel merely after the flesh; they are for all the people of God. We have a lot and portion in the matter; God also places his love upon us. Here the reader must feel some such sentiment as the shepherd in Virgil, when enraptured with the elegy which his associate had composed on their departed friend. The phraseology and metaphors are strikingly similar; and therefore I shall produce it.

Tale tuum carmen nobis, divine poeta,
Quale sopor fessis in gramine, quale per æstum
Dulcis aquæ saliente sitim restinguere rivo.
Nec calamis solum æquiparas, sed voce magistrum.
Fortunate puer! tu nunc eris alter ab illo.
Nos tamen hæc quocunque modo tibi nostra vicissim
Dicemus, Daphninque tuum tollemus ad astra:
Daphnin ad astra feremus: amavit nos quoque Daphnis.
VIRGIL, Ecl. v., ver. 45.

"O heavenly poet, such thy verse appears,
So sweet, so charming to my ravish'd ears,
As to the weary swain with cares oppress'd,
Beneath the sylvan shade, refreshing rest;
As to the feverish traveller, when first
He finds a crystal stream to quench his thirst.
In singing, as in piping, you excel;
And scarce your master could perform so well.
O fortunate young man! at least your lays
Are next to his, and claim the second praise.
Such as they are, my rural songs I join
To raise your Daphnis to the powers divine;
For Daphnis was my friend, as well as thine."

Verse 7. They that dwell under his shadow shall return] The Targum is curious: "They shall be gathered together from the midst of their captivity; they shall dwell under the shadow of his CHRIST, and the dead shall revive."

They shall revive as the corn] The justness and beauty of this metaphor is not generally perceived. After the corn has been a short time above the earth, in a single spike, the blades begin to separate, and the stalk to spring out of the centre. The side leaves turn back to make way for the protruding stalk; and fall bending down to the earth, assuming a withered appearance, though still attached to the plant. To look at the corn in this state, no one, unacquainted with the circumstance, could entertain any sanguine hope of a copious harvest. In a short time other leaves spring out; the former freshen, and begin to stand erect; and the whole seems to revive from a vegetative death. This is the circumstance to which the prophet refers; "they shall revive as the corn.' Of this a prudent and profitable use may be made.

1. When a soul is first "drawn by the cords of love," chap. xi. 4, every thing seems to it promising, comfortable, and delightful, like the corn in its first state.

2. But when the Spirit of judgment brings to the light of conscience the hidden things of iniquity, and repentance is deepened into contrition, the broken and the contrite heart groans, and thinks that all is lost: deep distress takes place, and discouragement succeeds discouragement. This answers to the corn in its second state.

3. By and by the pardon comes, and God's love is shed abroad in the heart by the Holy Ghost; every hope is revived and realized, the full corn in the ear becomes manifest; and this answers to the corn in its third state. "They shall revive as the corn." Glory be to God for his unspeakable gift!

Verse 8. What have I to do any more with idols?] The conversion of Ephraim is now as complete as it was sincere. God hears and observes this.

I am like a green fir tree.] Perhaps these words should be joined to the preceding, as Newcome has done, and be a part of God's speech to Ephraim. "I have heard him; and I have seen him as a flourishing fir tree." He is become strong and vigorous; and from his present appearance of healthiness, his future increase and prosperity may be safely anticipated.

From me is thy fruit found.] All thy goodness springs from the principle of grace which I have planted in thy soul; for as the earth cannot bring forth fruit without the blessing of God, sending the dews and rains, with the genial rays of the sun; so neither can the soul of man, even of the most pious bear fruit, without a continual influence from the Most High. Without the former, neither grass could grow for cattle, nor corn for the service of man; without the latter, no seeds of righteousness could take root, no stalk of promise could grow, no fruit of grace could be produced. And the unclean spirit, which was cast out, would soon return; and, finding his former house empty, swept, and garnished, would re-enter with seven demons of greater power and worse influence; and the latter end of that man would be worse than the first. Reader, ever consider that all thy good must be derived from God; and all that good must be preserved in thee by his continued influence of light, love, and power upon thy soul.

Verse 9. Who is wise, and he shall understand these things!] What things! Those which relate to the backslidings, iniquity, and punishment of Israel; and to the mercy and kindness of God in their promised restoration. The things which belong to the work of sin in the heart; the things which belong to the work of grace in the soul; and particularly the things mentioned in this wonderful chapter.

Prudent, and he shall know them?] He who endeavours to understand them, who lays his heart to them, such a person shall understand them.

For the ways of the Lord are right] This is the conclusion which the prophet makes from the whole. All God's conduct, both in the dispensation of justice and mercy, is right: all as it should be, all as it must be; because he is too wise to err, too good to be unkind.

The just shall walk in them] This is a truth which he will always acknowledge; and illustrate it by a righteous and godly life.

But the transgressors shall fall therein.] Howsoever good they might have been before, if they do not consider the necessity of depending upon God; of receiving all their light, life, power, and love from him; ever evidencing that faith which worketh by love; maintaining an obedient conduct, and having respect to all God's precepts; they shall fall, even in the "way of righteousness." When still using the Divine ordinances, and associating with God's people, they shall perish from the way; and be like Ephraim, who once "spoke trembling," and "was exalted in Israel," who was "God's beloved son," and "called out of Egypt;" yet, by "offending in Baal," giving way to "the idols of his heart," fell from God, fell into the hands of his enemies, and became a wretched thrall in a heathen land.

"Whoso is wise, let him understand these things!
Whoso is prudent, let him know them!"——

He who is well instructed will make a proper application of what he has here read; will tremble at the threatenings, and embrace the promises, of his God.

The Targum is worthy the most serious attention.

"The ways of the Lord are right, and the just who walk in them shall live for ever; but the ungodly, because they have not walked in them, shall be delivered into hell."

How instructive, how convincing, how awakening, and yet how consolatory, are the words of this propheey! Reader, lay them to heart. A godly mind cannot consider them in vain; such shall know them, and know that the ways of the Lord are right.

INTRODUCTION TO THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET JOEL.

JOEL, the son of Pethuel, the second of the twelve minor prophets, was, as is said, of the tribe of Reuben, and city of Bethoran; or rather Betharan, for Bethoran was on this side Jordan, in the tribe of Ephraim, and Betharan was on the other side of the river, in the tribe of Reuben. Joel prophesied in the kingdom of Judah; and it is the opinion of some critics that he did not appear there till after the removal of the ten tribes and the destruction of the kingdom of Israel. We do not know distinctly the year wherein he began to prophesy, nor that in which he died. He speaks of a great famine, and an inundation of locusts, which ravaged Judea; but as these are evils not uncommon in that country, and all sorts of events have not been registered in history, we can infer nothing from thence towards fixing the particular period of Joel's prophecy.

St. Jerome, followed by many others, both ancients and moderns, believed Joel to have been contemporary with Hosea, according to this rule laid down by him, that when there is no certain proof of the time wherein any prophet lived, we are to be directed in our conjectures by the time of the preceding prophet, whose epoch is better known. But this rule is not always certain, and should not hinder us from following another system, if we have good reason for doing so. The Hebrews maintain that Joel prophesied under Manasseh; and as collateral circumstances seem to preponderate in favour of this hypothesis, it has been accordingly followed in the margin. Under the idea of an enemy's army, the prophet represents a cloud of locusts, which in his time fell upon Judea, and caused great desolation. This, together with the caterpillars, and the drought, brought a terrible famine upon the land. God, being moved with the calamities and prayers of his people, scattered the locusts, and the wind blew them into the sea. These misfortunes were succeeded by plenty and fertility. After this, the prophet foretold the day of the Lord, and the vengeance he was to exercise in the valley of Jezreel. He speaks of the teacher of righteousness, whom God was to send; and of the Holy Spirit, which was to descend upon all flesh. He says that Jerusalem will be inhabited for ever; that salvation will come out from thence; and that whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved. All this relates to the new covenant, and the time of the Messiah. See Calmet.

Bishop Lowth observes that "the style of Joel differs much from that of Hosea; but, though of a different kind, is equally poetical. It is elegant, perspicuous, clear, diffusive, and flowing; and, at the same time, very sublime, nervous, and animated. He displays the whole power of poetic description in the first and second chapters; and, at the same time, his fondness for metaphors, comparisons, and allegories; nor is the connection of his subjects less remarkable than the graces of his diction. It is not to be denied that in some places he is very obscure; which every attentive reader will perceive, especially in the end of this prophecy." Præl. xxi.; and see Dodd. The two first chapters are inimitably beautiful; and the language, in force, and often in sound, well adapted to the subject. See the note on ver. 1.

THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET JOEL.

Chronological Notes relative to the commencement of Joel's prophesying, upon the supposition that this event took place about six hundred and ninety years before the commencement of the Christian era.

Year from the Creation, according to Archbisop Usher, 3314.—Year of the Julian Period, 4024.—Year since the Flood, 1658.—Year from the foundation of Solomon's temple, 322.—Year since the division of Solomon's monarchy into the kingdoms of Israel and Judah, 285.—Year since the extinction of the kingdom of Israel by Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, 31.—Third year of the twenty-second Olympiad.—Year from the building of Rome, according to the Varronian computation, 64.—Year before the vulgar era of Christ's nativity, 690.—Cycle of the Sun, 20.—Cycle of the Moon, 15.—Third year of Eryxias, the last decennial archon of the Athenians.—First year of Anaxidamus, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Proclidæ.—Thirty-fifth year of Eurycrates I., king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Eurysthenidæ.—Eleventh year of Deioces, the first king of the Medes.—Fortieth year of Perdiccas I., king of Macedon.—Twenty-ninth year of Gyges, king of Lydia.—Ninth year of Manasseh, king of Judah

CHAPTER I.

This and the beginning of the next chapter contain a double prophecy, applicable in its primary sense to a plague of locusts which was to devour the land, and to be accompanied with a severe drought and famine; and in its secondary sense it denotes the Chaldean invasion. Both senses must be admitted: for some of the expressions will apply only to the dearth by insects; others to the desolation by war. The contexture of both is beautiful and well conducted. In this chapter the distress of every order of people is strongly painted; and not only does the face of nature languish when the God of nature is displeased, 1–19; but the very beasts of the field, by a bold figure, are represented as supplicating God in their distress, and reproaching the stupidity of man, 20.

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

THE word of the LORD that came to Joel the son of Pethuel.

2 Hear this, ye old men, and give ear, all ye inhabitants of the land. [a] Hath this been in your days, or even in the days of your fathers?

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

[a] Joel, chap. ii. 2.

NOTES ON CHAP. I.

Verse 1. The word of the Lord that came to Joel] See the introduction for some account of this prophet, whose history is very obscure. Bishop Newcome thinks that he prophesied while the kingdom of Judah subsisted, and refers to chap. ii. 1, 15, (see also chap. i. 14, and the note there,) but not long before its subversion; as his words, chap. iii. 1, seem to imply that its captivity was approaching. See 2 Kings xxi. 10–15. He therefore favours the conjecture of Drusius, that this prophet lived under Manasseh, and before his conversion, 2 Chron. xxxiii. 13; that is, some time from before Christ 697 to (suppose) 660.

Verse 2. Ye old men] Instead of הזקנים hazzekenim, old men, a few MSS. have הכהנים haccohanim, ye priests, but improperly.

Hath this been in your days] He begins very abruptly; and before he proposes his subject, excites attention and alarm by intimating that he is about to announce disastrous events, such as the oldest man among them has never seen, nor any of them learn from the histories of ancient times.

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

3 [b] Tell ye your children of it, and let your children tell their children, and their children another generation.

4 [c] That [d] which the palmerworm hath left hath the locust eaten: and that which the locust hath left hath the cankerworm eaten; and that which the cankerworm hath left hath the caterpillar eaten.

5 Awake, ye drunkards, and weep; and howl, all ye drinkers of wine, because of the new wine; [e] for it is cut off from your mouth.

6 For [f] a nation is come up upon my land, strong, and without number, [g] whose teeth are the teeth of a lion, and he hath the cheek-teeth of a great lion.

7 He hath [h] laid my vine waste, and [i] barked my fig tree: he hath made it clean bare, and cast it away; the branches thereof are made white.

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26

8 [k] Lament like a virgin girded with sack cloth for [l] the husband of her youth.

9 [m] The meat-offering and the drink-offering is cut off from the house of the LORD; the priests, the LORD's ministers, mourn.

10 The field is wasted, [n] the land mourneth; for the corn is wasted: [o] the new wine is [p] dried up, the oil languisheth.

11 [q] Be ye ashamed, O ye husbandmen; howl, O ye vine-dressers, for the wheat and for the barley; because the harvest of the field is perished.

[b] Psa. lxxviii. 4.——[c] Deut. xxviii. 38; chap. ii. 25.——[d] Heb. The residue of the palmerworm.——[e] Isa. xxxii. 10.——[f] So Prov. xxx. 25, 26, 27; chap. ii. 2, 11, 25.——[g] Rev. ix. 8. [h] Isa. v. 6.

[i] Heb. laid my fig tree for a barking.——[k] Isa. xxii. 12.——[l] Prov. ii. 17; Jer. iii. 4.——[m] Ver. 13; chap. ii. 14.——[n] Jer. xii. 11; xiv. 2.——[o] Isa. xxiv. 7; ver. 12.——[p] Or, ashamed.——[q] Jer. xiv. 3, 4.

Verse 3. Tell ye your children of it] To heighten the effect, he still conceals the subject, and informs them that it is such as should be handed down from father to son through all generations.

Verse 4. That which the palmerworm hath left] Here he begins to open his message, and the words he chooses show that he is going to announce a devastation of the land by locusts, and a famine consequent on their depredations. What the different insects may be which he specifies is not easy to determine. I shall give the words of the original, with their etymology.

The palmerworm, גזם gazam, from the same root, to cut short; probably the caterpillar, or some such blight, from its cutting the leaves of the trees into pieces for its nourishment.

The locust, ארבה arbeh, from רבה rabah, to multiply, from the immense increase and multitude of this insect.

Cankerworm, ילק yelek, from לק lak, to lick or lap with the tongue; the reference is uncertain.

Caterpillar, חסיל chasil, from חסל chasal, to consume, to eat up; the consumer. Bishop Newcome translates the first, grasshopper; the second, locust; the third, devouring locust; and the fourth, consuming locust. After all that has been said by interpreters concerning these four animals, I am fully of opinion that the arbeh, or locust himself, is the gazam, the yelek, and the chasil; and that these different names are used here by the prophet to point out the locust in its different states, or progress from embryo to full growth. See the note on chap. ii. 2.

Verse 5. Awake, ye drunkards] The general destruction of vegetation by these devouring creatures has totally prevented both harvest and vintage; so that there shall not be wine even for necessary uses, much less for the purposes of debauchery. It is well known that the ruin among the vines by locusts prevents the vintage for several years after.

Verse 6. A nation is come up upon my land] That real locusts are intended there can be little doubt; but it is thought that this may be a double prophecy, and that the destruction by the Chaldeans may also be intended, and that the four kinds of locust mentioned above may mean the four several attacks made on Judea by them. The first in the last year of Nabonassar, (father of Nebuchadnezzar,) which was the third of Jehoiakim; the second when Jehoiakim was taken prisoner in the eleventh year of his reign; the third in the ninth year of Zedekiah; and the fourth three years after, when Jerusalem was destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar. Others say that they mean four powers which have been enemies of the Jews: 1. The palmerworm, the Assyrians and Chaldeans. 2. The locust, the Persians and Medes. 3. The cankerworm, the Greeks, and particularly Antiochus Epiphanes. 4. The caterpillar, the Romans. Others make them four kings; Tiglath-pileser, Shalmaneser, Sennacherib, and Nebuchadnezzar. But of such similitudes there is no end; and the best of them is arbitrary and precarious.

Verse 7. He hath laid my vine waste] The locusts have eaten off both leaves and bark. חשף חשפה chasoph chasaphah, he hath made it clean bare; שדד שדה suddad sadeh, the field is laid waste, ver. 10; and כשד כשדי kesod mishshaddai, a destruction from the Almighty, ver. 15; are all paronomasias in which this prophet seems to delight.

Verse 8. Lament like a virgin—for the husband of her youth.] Virgin is a very improper version here. The original is בתולה bethulah, which signifies a young woman or bride; not a virgin, the proper Hebrew for which is עלמה almah. See the notes on Isa. vii. 14, and Matt. i. 23.

Verse 9. The meat-offering and the drink-offering is cut off] The crops and the vines being destroyed by the locusts, the total devastation in plants, trees, corn, &c., is referred to and described with a striking

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

12 [r] The vine is dried up, and the fig tree languisheth, the pomegranate tree, the palm tree also, and the apple tree, even all the trees of the field, are withered: because [s] joy is withered away from the sons of men.

13 [t] Gird yourselves, and lament, ye priests: howl, ye ministers of the altar; come, lie all night in sackcloth, ye ministers of my God: for [u] the meat-offering and the drink-offering is withholden from the house of your God.

14 [v] Sanctify ye a fast, call [w] a [x] solemn assembly, gather the elders and [y] all the inhabitants of the land into the house of the LORD your God, and cry unto the LORD.

15 [z] Alas for the day! for [a] the day of the LORD is at hand, and as a destruction from the Almighty shall it come.

16 Is not the meat cut off before our eyes, yea, [b] joy and gladness from the house of our God?

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

17 The [c] seed is rotten under their clods, the garners are laid desolate, the barns are broken down; for the corn is withered.

18 How do [d] the beasts groan! the herd of cattle are perplexed, because they have no pasture; yea, the flocks of sheep are made desolate.

19 O LORD, [e] to thee will I cry: for [f] the fire hath devoured the [g] pastures of the wilderness, and the flame hath burned all the trees of the field.

20 The beasts of the field [h] cry also unto thee: for [i] the rivers of waters are dried up, and the fire hath devoured the pastures of the wilderness.

[r] Ver. 10.——[s] Isa. xxiv. 11; Jer. xlviii. 33; see Psa. iv. 7; Isa. ix. 3.——[t] Ver. 8; Jer. iv. 8.——[u] Ver. 9.——[v] 2 Chron. xx. 3, 4; chap. ii. 15, 16.——[w] Lev. xxiii. 36.——[x] Or, day of restraint. [y] 2 Chron. xx. 13.——[z] Jer. xxx. 7.

[a] Isa. xiii. 6, 9; chap. ii. 1.——[b] See Deut. xii. 6, 7; xvi. 11, 14, 15.——[c] Heb. grains.——[d] Hos. iv. 3.——[e] Psa. l. 15. [f] Jer. ix. 10; chap. ii. 3.——[g] Or, habitations.——[h] Job xxxviii. 41; Psa. civ. 21; cxlv. 15.——[i] 1 Kings xvii. 7; xviii. 5.

variety of expression in this and the following verses.

Verse 12. The vine is dried up] Dr. Shaw observes that in Barbary, in the month of June, the locusts collect themselves into compact bodies a furlong or more square, and march on, eating up every thing that is green or juicy, and letting nothing escape them, whether vegetables or trees.

They destroy the pomegranate, the palm, the apple, (תפוח tappuach, the citron tree,) the vine, the fig, and every tree of the field. See the note on chap. ii. 2.

Verse 14. Call a solemn assembly] עצרה atsarah signifies a time of restraint, as the margin has it. The clause should be translated—consecrate a fast, proclaim a time of restraint; that is, of total abstinence from food, and from all secular employment. All the elders of the land and the representatives of the people were to be collected at the temple to cry unto the Lord, to confess their sins, and pray for mercy. The temple was not yet destroyed. This prophecy was delivered before the captivity of Judah.

Verse 15. Alas for the day!] The Syriac repeats this; the Vulgate, Septuagint, and Arabic, thrice: "Alas, alas, alas, for the day!"

As a destruction from the Almighty] The destruction that is now coming is no ordinary calamity; it is as a signal judgment immediately inflicted by the Almighty.

Verse 17. The seed is rotten under their clods] When the sprout was cut off as low as possible by the locusts, there was no farther germination. The seed rotted away.

Verse 18. How do the beasts groan!] I really think that the neighing of horses, or braying of asses, is wonderfully expressed by the sound of the original: מה נאנחה בהמה mah NEENCHAH behemah, how do the horses neigh! how do the asses bray! בהמה behemah is a collective name for all domestic cattle, and those used in husbandry.

Cattle are perplexed] They are looking everywhere, and wandering about to find some grass, and know not which way to run.

Verse 19. O Lord, to thee will I cry] Let this calamity come as it may, we have sinned, and should humble ourselves before God; and it is such a calamity as God alone can remove, therefore unto him must we cry.

The fire hath devoured the pastures] This may either refer to a drought, or to the effects of the locusts; as the ground, after they have passed over it, everywhere appears as if a sheet of flame had not only scorched, but consumed every thing.

Verse 20. The beasts of the field cry also unto thee] Even the cattle, wild and tame, are represented as supplicating God to have mercy upon them, and send them provender! There is a similar affecting description of the effects of a drought in Jeremiah, chap. xiv. 6.

The rivers of waters are dried up] There must have been a drought as well as a host of locusts; as some of these expressions seem to apply to the effects of intense heat.

For המדבר hammidbar, "the wilderness," one of my oldest MSS. reads מדבר midbar, "wilderness" simply, as in ver. 19. Eight or ten of Dr. Kennicott's have the same reading.

CHAPTER II.

The prophet sounds the alarm of a dreadful calamity, the description of which is most terribly worked up, 1–11. Exhortation to repentance, fasting, and prayer, that the Divine judgments may be averted, 12–17. God will in due time take vengeance on all the enemies of pure and undefiled religion, 18–20. Great prosperity of the Jews subsequent to their return from the Babylonish captivity, 21–27. Joel then makes an elegant transition to the outpouring of the Holy Ghost on the day of pentecost, 28–30; for so these verses are explained by one of the twelve apostles of the Lamb. See Acts ii. 16–21. Prophecy concerning the destruction of Jerusalem, which was shortly to follow the opening of the Gospel dispensation, 31. Promises of safety to the faithful and penitent; promises afterwards remarkably fulfilled to the Christians in their escape to Pella from the desolating sword of the Roman army, 32.

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

BLOW [a] ye the [b] trumpet in Zion, and [c] sound an alarm in my holy mountain: let all the inhabitants of the land tremble: for [d] the day of the LORD cometh, for it is nigh at hand;

2 [e] A day of darkness and of gloominess, a day of clouds and of thick darkness, as the morning spread upon the mountains: [f] a great people and a strong; [g] there hath not been ever the like, neither shall be any

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3, Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

[a] Jer. iv. 5; Ver. 15.——[b] Or, cornet.——[c] Numbers x. 5, 9. [d] Chap. i. 15; Obad. 15; Zeph. i. 14, 15.

[e] Amos v. 18, 20.——[f] Ver. 5, 11, 25; Chap. i. 6.——[g] Exod. x. 14.

NOTES ON CHAP. II.

Verse 1. Blow ye the trumpet in Zion] This verse also shows that the temple was still standing. All assemblies of the people were collected by the sound of the trumpet.

The day of the Lord cometh] This phrase generally means a day of judgment or punishment.

Verse 2. A day of darkness, &c.] The depredations of the locusts are described from the second to the eleventh verse, and their destruction in the twentieth. Dr. Shaw, who saw locusts in Barbary in 1724 and 1725, thus describes them:—

"I never observed the mantes, bald locusts, to be gregarious. But the locusts, properly so called, which are so frequently mentioned by sacred as well as profane writers, are sometimes so beyond expression. Those which I saw in 1724 and 1725 were much bigger than our common grasshoppers; and had brown spotted wings, with legs and bodies of a bright yellow. Their first appearance was toward the latter end of March, the wind having been for some time south. In the middle of April their numbers were so vastly increased that, in the heat of the day, they formed themselves into large and numerous swarms; flew in the air like a succession of clouds; and, as the prophet Joel expresses it, (ii. 10,) they darkened the sun. When the wind blew briskly, so that these swarms were crowed by others, or thrown one upon another, we had a lively idea of that comparison of the psalmist, (Psa. cix. 23,) of being "tossed up and down as the locust." In the month of May, when the ovaries of those insects were ripe and turgid, each of these swarms began gradually to disappear; and retired into the Mettijiah, and other adjacent plains, where they deposited their eggs. These were no sooner hatched in June, than each of these broods collected itself into a compact body of a furlong or more in square; and, marching immediately forward in the direction of the sea, they let nothing escape them; eating up every thing that was green and juicy, not only the lesser kinds of vegetables, but the vine likewise; the fig tree, the pomegranate, the palm, and the apple tree, even all the trees of the field, Joel i. 12; in doing which they kept their ranks like men of war; climbing over, as they advanced, every tree or wall that was in their way. Nay, they entered into our very houses and bedchambers, like so many thieves. The inhabitants, to stop their progress, made a variety of pits and trenches all over their fields and gardens, which they filled with water; or else they heaped up in them heath, stubble, and such like combustible matter, which were severally set on fire upon the approach of the locusts. But this was all to no purpose, for the trenches were quickly filled up, and the fires extinguished, by infinite swarms succeeding one another; while the front was regardless of danger, and the rear pressed on so close, that a retreat was altogether impossible. A day or two after one of these broods was in motion, others were already hatched to march and glean after them; gnawing off the very bark, and the young branches, of such trees as had before escaped with the loss only of their fruit and foliage. So justly have they been compared by the prophet Joel (chap. ii. 3) to a great army; who further observes, that "the land is as the garden of Eden before them, and behind them a desolate wilderness."

"Having lived near a month in this manner (like a μυριοστομον ξιφος, or sword with ten thousand edges, to which they have been compared,) upon the ruin and destruction of every vegetable substance which came in their way, they arrived at their full growth, and threw off their nympha state by casting their outward skin. To prepare themselves for this change, they clung by their hinder feet to some bush, twig, or corner of a stone; and immediately, by using an undulating motion, their heads would first break out, and then the rest of their bodies. The whole transformation was performed in seven or eight minutes, after which they lay for a short time in a torpid and seemingly languishing condition: but as soon as the sun and air had hardened their wings, by drying up the moisture which remained upon them, after casting their sloughs, they more after it, even to the years [h] of many generations.

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

3 [i] A fire devoureth before them; and behind them a flame burneth: the land is as [k] the garden of Eden before them, [l] and behind them a desolate wilderness; yea, and nothing shall escape them.

4 [m] The appearance of them is as the appearance of horses; and as horsemen, so shall they run.

5 [n] Like the noise of chariots on the tops of mountains shall they leap, like the noise of a flame of fire that devoureth the stubble, [o] as a strong people set in battle array.

6 Before their face the people shall be much pained: [p] all faces shall gather [q] blackness.

7 They shall run like mighty men; they shall climb the wall like men of war; and they shall march every one on his ways, and they shall not break their ranks.

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum. 26.

8 Neither shall one thrust another; they shall walk every one in his path: and when they fall upon the [r] sword, they shall not be wounded.

9 They shall run to and fro in the city; they shall run upon the wall, they shall climb up upon the houses: they shall [s] enter in at the windows [t] like a thief.

10 [u] The earth shall quake before them, the heavens shall tremble: [v] the sun and the moon shall be dark, and the stars shall withdraw their shining:

[h] Heb. of generation and generation.—[i] Ch. i. 19, 20.—[k] Gen. ii. 8; xiii. 10; Isa. li. 3.—[l] Zech. vii. 14.—[m] Rev. ix. 7. [n] Rev. ix. 9.—[o] Ver. 2.—[p] Jer. viii. 21; Lam. iv. 8; Nah. ii. 10.—[q] Heb. pot.—[r] Or, dart.—[s] Jer. ix. 21.—[t] John x. 1. [u] Psa. xviii. 7.—[v] Isa. xiii. 10; Ezek. xxxii. 7; Ver. 31; chap. iii. 15; Matt. xxiv. 29.

reassumed their former voracity, with an addition both of strength and agility. Yet they did not continue long in this state before they were entirely dispersed, as their parents were before, after they had laid their eggs; and as the direction of the marches and flights of them both was always to the northward, and not having strength, as they have sometimes had, to reach the opposite shores of Italy, France, or Spain, it is probable they perished in the sea, a grave which, according to these people, they have in common with other winged creatures."—Travels, 4to. edition, pp. 187, 188.

A day of darkness] They sometimes obscure the sun. And Thuanus observes of an immense crowd, that "they darkened the sun at mid-day."

As the morning spread upon the mountains] They appeared suddenly: as the sun, in rising behind the mountains, shoots his rays over them. Adanson, in his voyage to Senegal, says: "Suddenly there came over our heads a thick cloud which darkened the air, and deprived us of the rays of the sun. We soon found that it was owing to a cloud of locusts." Some clouds of them are said to have darkened the sun for a mile, and others for the space of twelve miles! See on ver. 10.

Verse 3. A fire devoureth before them] They consume like a general conflagration. "They destroy the ground, not only for the time, but burn trees for two years after." Sir Hans Sloane, Nat. Hist. of Jamaica, vol. i., p. 29.

Behind them a flame burneth] "Wherever they feed," says Ludolf, in his History of Ethiopia, "their leavings seem as if parched with fire."

Nothing shall escape them.] "After devouring the herbage," says Adanson, "with the fruits and leaves of trees, they attacked even the buds and the very bark; they did not so much as spare the reeds with which the huts were thatched."

Verse 4. The appearance of horses] The head of the locust is remarkably like that of the horse; and so Ray on Insects describes them: Caput oblongum, equi instar, prona spectans—"They have an oblong head, like to that of a horse, bending downward." On this account, the Italians call them cavaletta, cavalry. Bochart remarks, from an Arabic writer, that the locusts resemble ten different kinds of animals: 1. The HORSE in its head. 2. The ELEPHANT in its eyes. 3. The BULL in its neck. 4. The STAG in its horns. 5. The LION in its breast. 6. The SCORPION in its belly. 7. The EAGLE in its wings. 8. The CAMEL in its thighs. 9. The OSTRICH in its feet. And 10. The SERPENT in its tail. Vid. Hieroz., vol. ii., p. 475, edit. 1692. But its most prominent resemblance is to the horse, which the prophet mentions; and which the Arabic writer puts in the first place, as being the chief.

Verse 5. Like the noise of chariots] Bochart also remarks:—"The locusts fly with a great noise, so as to be heard six miles off, and while they are eating the fruits of the earth, the sound of them is like that of a flame driven by the wind."—Ibid., p. 478.

Verse 6. All faces shall gather blackness.] Universal mourning shall take place, because they know that such a plague is irresistible.

Verse 7. Like mighty men—like men of war (and as horsemen, ver. 4)] The prophet does not say they are such, but they resemble. They are locusts; but in their operations they are LIKE the above.

They shall not break their ranks] See the account on ver. 2, from Dr. Shaw.

Verse 8. They shall not be wounded.] They have hard scales like a coat of mail; but the expression refers to the utter uselessness of all means to prevent their depredations. See Shaw's account above.

Verse 10. The earth shall quake—the heavens shall tremble] Poetical expressions, to point out universal consternation and distress. The earth quaked to see

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

11 [w] And the LORD shall utter his voice before [x] his army: for his camp is very great: [y] for he is strong that executeth his word: for the [z] day of the LORD is great and very terrible; and [a] who can abide it?

12 Therefore also now, saith the LORD, [b] turn ye even unto me with all your heart, and with fasting, and with weeping, and with mourning:

13 And [c] rend your heart, and not [d] your garments, and turn unto the LORD your God: for he is [e] gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and repenteth him of the evil.

14 [f] Who knoweth if he will return and repent, and leave [g] a blessing behind him; even [h] a meat-offering and a drink-offering unto the LORD your God?

15 [i] Blow the trumpet in Zion, [k] sanctify a fast, call a solemn assembly:

16 Gather the people, [l] sanctify the congregation, [m] assemble the elders, [n] gather the children, and those that suck the breasts: [o] let the bridegroom go forth of his chamber, and the bride out of her closet.

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

17 Let the priests, the ministers of the LORD, weep [p] between the porch and the altar, and let them say, [q] Spare thy people, O LORD, and give not thine heritage to reproach, that the heathen should [r] rule over them: [s] wherefore should they say among the people, Where is their God?

18 Then will the LORD [t] be jealous for his land, [u] and pity his people.

19 Yea, the LORD will answer and say unto his people, Behold, I will send you [v] corn, and wine, and oil, and ye shall be satisfied therewith: and I will no more make you a reproach among the heathen:

[w] Jer. xxv. 30; chap. iii. 16; Amos i. 2. — [x] Ver. 25. — [y] Jer. l. 34; Rev. xviii. 8. — [z] Jer. xxx. 7; Amos v. 18; Zeph. i. 15. — [a] Num. xxiv. 23; Mal. iii. 2. — [b] Jer. iv. 1; Hos. xii. 6; xiv. 1. — [c] Psa. xxxiv. 18; li. 17. — [d] Gen. xxxvii. 34; 2 Sam. i. 11; Job i. 20. — [e] Exod. xxxiv. 6; Psa. lxxxvi. 5, 15; Jonah iv. 2. — [f] Josh. xiv. 12; 2 Sam. xii. 22; 2 Kings xix. 4; Amos v. 15; Jonah iii. 9; Zeph. ii. 3.

[g] Isa. lxv. 8; Hag. ii. 19. — [h] Chap. i. 9, 13. — [i] Num. x. 3; ver. 1. — [k] Chap. i. 14. — [l] Exod. xix. 10, 22. — [m] Chap. i. 14. — [n] 2 Chron. xx. 13. — [o] 1 Cor. vii. 5. — [p] Ezek. viii. 16; Matt. xxiii. 35. — [q] Exod. xxxii. 11, 12; Deut. ix. 26–29. [r] Or, use a by-word against them. — [s] Psa. xlii. 10; lxxix. 10; cxv. 2; Mic. vii. 10. — [t] Zech. i. 14; viii. 2. — [u] Deut. xxxii. 36; Isa. lx. 10. — [v] See chap. i. 10; Mal. iii. 10, 11, 12.

itself deprived of its verdure; the heavens trembled to find themselves deprived of their light.

The sun and the moon shall be dark] Bochart relates that "their multitude is sometimes so immense as to obscure the heavens for the space of twelve miles!" —Ibid. p. 479.

Verse 11. The Lord shall utter his voice] Such a mighty force seems as if summoned by the Almighty, and the noise they make in coming announces their approach, while yet afar off.

Verse 12 Turn ye even to me] Three means of turning are recommended: Fasting, weeping, mourning, i. e., continued sorrow.

Verse 13. Rend your heart] Let it not be merely a rending of your garments, but let your hearts be truly contrite. Merely external worship and hypocritical pretensions will only increase the evil, and cause God to meet you with heavier judgments.

For he is gracious] Good and benevolent in his own nature.

Merciful] Pitying and forgiving, as the effect of goodness and benevolence.

Slow to anger] He is not easily provoked to punish, because he is gracious and merciful.

Of great kindness] Exuberant goodness to all them that return to him.

And repenteth him of the evil.] Is ever ready to change his purpose to destroy, when he finds the culprit willing to be saved. See the notes on Exod. xxxiv. 6, 7.

Verse 14. Who knoweth if he will return] He may yet interpose and turn aside the calamity threatened, and so far preserve the land from these ravagers, that there will be food for men and cattle, and a sufficiency of offerings for the temple service. Therefore—

Verse 15. Blow the trumpet] Let no time be lost, let the alarm be sounded.

Verse 16. Gather the children] Let all share in the humiliation, for all must feel the judgment, should it come. Let no state nor condition among the people be exempted. The elders, the young persons, the infants, the bridegroom, and the bride; let all leave their houses, and go to the temple of God.

Verse 17. Let the priests—weep between the porch and the altar] The altar of burnt-offerings stood before the porch of the temple, 2 Chron. viii. 12, and between them there was an open space of fifteen or twenty cubits. It was there that the priests prostrated themselves on such occasions. It was into this place that the priests brought the sacrifice or victim of atonement; and where the high priest laid his hands on the head of the victim confessing his sins.

Let them say] The following was the form to be used on this occasion, "Spare thy people," &c. And if this be done with a rent heart, &c., "then will the Lord be jealous for his land, and pity his people," ver. 18. He will surely save, if ye seriously return to and penitently seek him.

Verse 19. Yea, the Lord will answer] It is not a peradventure; it will surely be done; if ye seek God as commanded, ye will find him as promised.

I will send you corn and wine] He will either prevent the total ravaging of the land, or so bless it with extraordinary vegetable strength, that ye shall have plentiful crops.

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

20 But [w] I will remove far off from you [x] the northern army, and will drive him into a land barren and desolate, with his face [y] toward the east sea, and his hinder part [z] toward the utmost sea, and his stink shall come up, and his ill savour shall come up, because [a] he hath done great things.

21 Fear not, O land; be glad and rejoice: for the LORD will do great things.

22 Be not afraid, [b] ye beasts of the field: for [c] the pastures of the wilderness do spring, for the tree beareth her fruit, the fig tree and the vine do yield their strength.

23 Be glad then, ye children of Zion, and [d] rejoice in the LORD your God: for he hath given you [e] the former rain [f] moderately, and he [g] will cause to come down for you [h] the rain, the former rain, and the latter rain in the first month.

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

24 And the floors shall be full of wheat, and the fats shall overflow with wine and oil.

25 And I will restore to you the years [i] that the locust hath eaten, the cankerworm, and the caterpillar, and the palmerworm, [k] my great army which I sent among you.

26 And ye shall [l] eat in plenty, and be satisfied, and praise the name of the LORD your God, that hath dealt wondrously with you: and my people shall never be ashamed.

27 [m] And ye shall know that I am [n] in the midst of Israel, and that [o] I am the LORD your God, and none else: and my people shall never be ashamed.

28 [p] And it shall come to pass afterward,

[w] See Exod. x. 19.——[x] Jer. i. 14.——[y] Ezek. xlvii. 18; Zech. xiv. 8.——[z] Deut. xi. 24.——[a] Heb. he hath magnified to do. [b] Chap. i. 18, 20.——[c] Zech. viii. 12; See chap. i. 19.——[d] Isa. xli. 16; lxi. 10; Hab. iii. 18; Zech. x. 7.——[e] Or, a teacher of righteousness.——[f] Heb. according to righteousness.——[g] Lev. xxvi. 4; Deut. xi. 14; xxviii. 12.——[h] James v. 7.——[i] Chap. i. 4. [k] Ver. 11.——[l] Lev. xxvi. 5; Psa. xxii. 26; see Lev. xxvi. 26 Mic. vi. 14.——[m] Chap. iii. 17.——[n] Lev. xxvi. 11, 12; Ezek. xxxvii. 26, 27, 28.——[o] Isa. xlv. 5, 21, 22; Ezek. xxxix. 22, 28. [p] Isa. xliv. 3; Ezek. xxxix. 29; Acts. ii. 17.

Verse 20. I will remove far off from you the northern army] "That is, the locusts; which might enter Judea by the north, as Circassia and Mingrelia abound with them. Or the locusts may be thus called, because they spread terror like the Assyrian armies, which entered Judea by the north. See Zeph. ii. 13."—Newcome. Syria, which was northward of Judea, was infested with them; and it must have been a northern wind that brought them into Judea, in the time of Joel; as God promises to change this wind, and carry them into a barren and desolate land, Arabia Deserta. "And his face toward the east sea," i. e., the Dead Sea, which lay eastward of Jerusalem. "His hinder part toward the utmost sea, the western sea, i. e., the Mediterranean.

And his stink shall come up] After having been drowned by millions in the Mediterranean, the reflux of the tide has often brought them back, and thrown them in heaps upon the shore, where they putrefied in such a manner as to infect the air and produce pestilence, by which both men and cattle have died in great multitudes. See Bochart, Hieroz., vol. ii., p. 481.

Livy, and St. Augustine after him, relate that there was such an immense crowd of locusts in Africa that, having eaten up every green thing, a wind arose that carried them into the sea, where they perished; but being cast upon the shore, they putrefied, and bred such a pestilence, that eighty thousand men died of it in the kingdom of Massinissa, and thirty thousand in the garrison of Utica, in which only ten remained alive. See Calmet and Livy, lib. xc., and August. De Civitate Dei, lib. iv., c. 31. We have many testimonies of a similar kind.

Because he hath done great things] Or, כי ki, although he have done great things, or, after he has done them, i. e., in almost destroying the whole country.

Verse 21. Fear not—for the Lord will do great things.] The words are repeated from the preceding verse; Jehovah will do great things in driving them away, and supernaturally restoring the land to fertility

Verse 23. The former rain moderately] המורה לצדקה hammoreh litsedakah, "the former rain in righteousness," that is, in due time and in just proportion This rain fell after autumn, the other in spring. See Hosea vi. 3.

In the first month.] בראשון barishon, "as aforetime." So Bp. Newcome. In the month Nisan.—Syriac.

Verse 25. I will restore—the years] It has already been remarked that the locusts not only destroyed the produce of that year, but so completely ate up all buds and barked the trees, that they did not recover for some years. Here God promises that he would either prevent or remedy that evil; for he would restore the years that the locust, cankerworm, caterpillar, and palmerworm had eaten.

Verse 26. Praise the name of the Lord your God, that hath dealt wondrously with you] In so destroying this formidable enemy; and so miraculously restoring the land to fertility, after so great a devastation.

Verse 28. Shall come to pass afterward] אחרי כן acharey ken, "after this;" the same, says Kimchi, as in the latter days, which always refers to the days of the Messiah; and thus this prophecy is to be interpreted: and we have the testimony of St. Peter, Acts ii. 17, that this prophecy relates to that mighty effusion of the Holy Spirit which took place after the day of pentecost. Nor is there any evidence that such an effusion took place, nor such effects were produced, from the days of this prophet till the day of pentecost. And the Spirit was poured out then upon all flesh, that is, on people of different countries, speaking the lan-that I [q] will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh; [r] and your sons and [s] your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions:

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

29 And also upon [t] the servants and upon the handmaids in those days will I pour out my Spirit.

30 And [u] I will show wonders in the heavens and in the earth, blood, and fire, and pillars of smoke.

31 [v] The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, [w] before the great and the terrible day of the LORD come.

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

32 And it shall come to pass, that [x] whosoever shall call on the name of the LORD shall be delivered: for [y] in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem shall be deliverance, as the LORD hath said, and in [z] the remnant whom the LORD shall call.

[q] Zech. xii. 10; John vii. 39.——[r] Isa. liv. 13.——[s] Acts xxi. 9.——[t] 1 Cor. xii. 13; Gal. iii. 28; Col. iii. 11.——[u] Matt. xxiv. 29; Mark xiii. 24; Luke xxi. 11, 25.——[v] Verse 10; Isaiah xiii. 9, 10; chap. iii. 1, 15; Matthew xxiv. 29; Mark xiii. 24; Luke xxi. 25; Rev. vi. 12.——[w] Malachi iv. 5.——[x] Romans x. 13.——[y] Isa. xlvi. 13; lix. 20; Obad. 17; Romans xi. 26. [z] Isa. xi. 11, 16; Jer. xxxi. 7; Mic. iv. 7; v. 3, 7, 8; Rom. ix. 27; xi. 5, 7.

guages of almost all the people of the earth; which intimated that these were the first-fruits of the conversion of all the nations of the world. For there was scarcely a tongue in the universe that was not to be found among the Parthians, Medes, Elamites, Mesopotamians, Jews, Cappadocians, people of Pontus, of Asia, Phrygia, Pamphylia, Egypt, Libya, Cyrene, Rome, Crete, and Arabia, who were residents at Jerusalem at that time; and on whom this mighty gift was poured out, each hearing and apprehending the truths of the Gospel, in his own language wherein he was born. Thus we have Divine authority for saying, that was the fulfilment of this prophecy by Joel. And the mighty and rapid spread of the Gospel of Christ in the present day, by means of the translation of the Scriptures into almost all the regular languages of the world, and the sending missionaries to all nations, who preach the Gospel in those tongues, are farther proofs that the great promise is in the fullest progress to be speedily fulfilled, even in the utmost sense of the words.

Your sons and your daughters shall prophesy] Shall preach—exhort, pray, and instruct, so as to benefit the Church.

Your old men shall dream dreams] Have my will represented to them in this way, as the others by direct inspiration.

Your young men shall see visions] Have true representations of Divine things made upon their imaginations by the power of God; that they shall have as full an evidence of them as they could have of any thing that came to the mind through the medium of the senses.

Verse 29. And also upon the servants and upon the handmaids] The gifts of teaching and instructing men shall not be restricted to any one class or order of people. He shall call and qualify the men of his own choice; and shall take such out of all ranks, orders, degrees, and offices in society. And he will pour out his Spirit upon them; and they shall be endowed with all the gifts and graces necessary to convert sinners, and ould up the Church of Christ on its most holy faith.

And this God has done, and is still doing. He left the line of Aaron, and took his apostles indiscriminately from any tribe. He passed by the regular order of the priesthood, and the public schools of the most celebrated doctors, and took his evangelists from among fishermen, tent-makers, and even the Roman tax-gatherers. And he, lastly, passed by the Jewish tribes, and took the Gentile converts, and made them preachers of righteousness to the inhabitants of the whole earth. The same practice he continues to the present day; yet he did not then pass by a man brought up at the feet of Gamaliel, no more than he would now a man brought up in a celebrated seminary of learning. He is ever free to use his own gifts, in his own way; and when learning is sanctified, by being devoted to the service of God, and the possessor is humble and pious, and has those natural gifts necessary for a public teacher, perhaps we might safely say, God would in many cases prefer such: but he will have others, as intimated in the prophecy, that we may see the conversion of men is not by human might, nor power, but by the Spirit of the Lord of hosts. The learned man can do nothing without his Spirit; the unlearned must have his gifts and graces, without which both their labours would be unprofitable; and thus the excellency of the power is of God, and no flesh can glory in his presence. See my sermon on this passage.

Verse 30. Wonders in the heavens and in the earth] This refers to those dreadful sights, dreadful portents, and destructive commotion, by which the Jewish polity was finally overthrown, and the Christian religion established in the Roman empire. See how our Lord applies this prophecy, Matt. xxiv. 29, and the parallel texts.

Verse 31. The sun shall be turned into darkness] The Jewish polity, civil and ecclesiastical, shall be entirely destroyed.

Before the great and the terrible day of the Lord come.] In the taking and sacking of Jerusalem, and burning of the temple, by the Romans, under Titus, the son of Vespasian. This was, perhaps, the greatest and most terrible day of God's vengeance ever shown to the world, or that ever will be shown, till the great day of the general judgment. For a full view of this subject, I wish to refer the reader to the notes on Matt. xxiv.

Verse 32. Whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord] כל אשר יקרא בשם יהוה col asher yikra beshem

Yehovah, "All who shall invoke in the name of Jehovah." That CHRIST is the Jehovah here mentioned appears plain from Rom. x. 15, where the reader had better consult the notes. "This refers," says Bp. Newcome, "to the safety of the Christians during the Jewish and the Roman war." It may: but it has a much more extensive meaning, as the use of it by St. Paul, as above, evidently shows. Every man who invokes Jehovah for mercy and salvation by or in the name, JESUS—that very name given under heaven among men for this purpose—shall be saved. Nor is there salvation in any other; and those who reject him had better lay these things to heart before it be too late.

For in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem] Our blessed Lord first began to preach the Gospel in Mount Zion, in the temple, and throughout Jerusalem. There he formed his Church, and thence he sent his apostles and evangelists to every part of the globe: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature." Of the Jews there was but a remnant, a very small number, that received the doctrine of the Gospel, here termed the remnant that the Lord should call; קרא kore, whom he calleth. Many were called who would not obey: but those who obeyed the call were saved; and still he delivers those who call upon him; and he is still calling on men to come to him that they may be saved.

CHAPTER III.

The prophecy in this chapter is thought by some to relate to the latter times of the world, when God shall finally deliver his people from all their adversaries; and it must be confessed, that the figures employed are so lofty as to render it impossible to restrain the whole of their import to any events prior to the commencement of the Christian era. The whole prophecy is delivered in a very beautiful strain of poetry: but what particular events are referred to is at present very uncertain, 1–21.

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

FOR, behold, [a] in those days, and in that time, when I shall bring again the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem,

2 [b] I will also gather all nations, and will bring them down into [c] the valley of Jehoshaphat, and [d] will plead with them there for my people and for my heritage Israel, whom they have scattered among the nations, and parted my land.

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

[a] Jer. xxx. 3; Ezek. xxxviii. 14.——[b] Zech. xiv. 2, 3, 4.

[c] 2 Chron. xx. 26; ver. 42.——[d] Isa. lxvi. 16; Ezek. xxxviii. 22.

NOTES ON CHAP. III.

Verse 1. For, behold, in those days] According to the preceding prophecy, these days should refer to Gospel times, or to such as should immediately precede them. But this is a part of the prophecy which is difficult to be understood. All interpreters are at variance upon it; some applying its principal parts to Cambyses; his unfortunate expedition to Egypt; the destruction of fifty thousand of his troops (by the moving pillars of sand) whom he had sent across the desert to plunder the rich temple of Jupiter Ammon; his return to Judea, and dying of a wound which he received from his own sword, in mounting his horse, which happened at Ecbatane, at the foot of Mount Carmel. On which his army, composed of different nations, seeing themselves without a head, fell out, and fought against each other, till the whole were destroyed. And this is supposed to be what Ezekiel means by Gog and Magog, and the destruction of the former. See Ezek. xxxviii. and xxxix.

Others apply this to the victories gained by the Maccabees, and to the destruction brought upon the enemies of their country; while several consider the whole as a figurative prediction of the success of the Gospel among the nations of the earth. It may refer to those times in which the Jews shall be brought in with the fulness of the Gentiles, and be re-established in their own land. Or there may be portions in this prophecy that refer to all the events; and to others that have not fallen yet within the range of human conjecture, and will be only known when the time of fulfilment shall take place. In this painful uncertainty, rendered still more so by the discordant opinions of many wise and learned men, it appears to be my province, as I have nothing in the form of a new conjecture to offer, to confine myself to an explanation of the phraseology of the chapter; and then leave the reader to apply it as may seem best to his own judgment.

I shall bring again the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem.] This may refer to the return from the Babylonish captivity; extending also to the restoration of Israel, or the ten tribes.

Verse 2. The valley of Jehoshaphat] There is no such valley in the land of Judea; and hence the word must be symbolical. It signifies the judgment of God, or Jehovah judgeth; and may mean some place (as Bp. Newcome imagines) where Nebuchadnezzar should gain a great battle, which would utterly discomfit the ancient enemies of the Jews, and resemble the victory which Jehoshaphat gained over the Ammonites, Moabites, and Edomites, 2 Chron. xx. 22–26.

And parted my land.] The above nations had frequently entered into the territories of Israel; and divided among themselves the lands they had thus overrun.

While the Jews were in captivity, much of the land of Israel was seized on, and occupied by the Philistines, and other nations that bordered on Judea.

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

3 And they have [e] cast lots for my people; and have given a boy for a harlot, and sold a girl for wine, that they might drink.

4 Yea, and what have ye to do with me, [f] O Tyre, and Zidon, and all the coasts of Palestine? [g] will ye render me a recompense? and if ye recompense me, swiftly and speedily will I return your recompense upon your own head;

5 Because ye have taken my silver and my gold, and have carried into your temples my goodly [h] pleasant things:

6 The children also of Judah and the children of Jerusalem have ye sold unto [i] the Grecians, that ye might remove them far from their border.

7 Behold, [k] I will raise them out of the place whither ye have sold them, and will return your recompense upon your own head:

8 And I will sell your sons and your daughters into the hand of the children of Judah, and they shall sell them to the [l] Sabeans, to a people [m] far off; for the LORD hath spoken it.

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

9 [n] Proclaim ye this among the Gentiles; [o] Prepare war, wake up the mighty men, let all the men of war draw near; let them come up.

10 [p] Beat yout ploughshares into swords, and your [q] pruning hooks into spears: [r] let the weak say, I am strong.

11 [s] Assemble yourselves, and come, all ye heathen, and gather yourselves together round about: thither [t] cause [u] thy mighty ones to come down, O Lord.

12 Let the heathen be wakened, [v] and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat: for there will I sit to [w] judge all the heathen round about.

13 [x] Put ye in the sickle, for [y] the harvest is

[e] Obad. 11; Nah. iii. 10.——[f] Amos i. 6, 9.——[g] Ezek. xxv. 15, 16, 17.——[h] Heb. desirable; Dan. xi. 38.——[i] Heb. the sons of the Grecians.——[k] Isa. xliii. 5, 6; xlix. 12; Jer. xxiii. 8. [l] Ezek. xxiii. 42.——[m] Jer. vi. 20.——[n] See Isa. viii. 9, 10; Jer. xlvi. 3, 4; Ezek. xxxviii. 7.——[o] Heb. sanctify.

[p] See Isa. ii. 4; Mic. iv. 3.——[q] Or, scythes.——[r] Zech. xii. 8. [s] Ver. 2.——[t] Or, the LORD shall bring down.——[u] Psa. ciii. 20; Isa. xiii. 3.——[v] Ver. 2.——[w] Psa. xcvi. 13; xcviii. 9; cx. 6; Isa. ii. 4; iii. 13; Mic. iv. 3.——[x] Matt. xiii. 39; Rev. xiv. 15, 18.——[y] Jer. li. 33; Hos. vi. 11.

Verse 3. Have given a boy for a harlot] To such wretched circumstances were the poor Jews reduced in their captivity, that their children were sold by their oppressors; and both males and females used for the basest purposes. And they were often bartered for the necessaries or luxuries of life. Or this may refer to the issue of the Chaldean war in Judea, where the captives were divided among the victors. And being set in companies, they cast lots for them: and those to whom they fell sold them for various purposes; the boys to be slaves and catamites, the girls to be prostitutes; and in return for them they got wine and such things. I think this is the meaning of the text.

Verse 4. What have ye to do with me] Why have the Tyrians and Sidonians joined their other enemies to oppress my people? for they who touch my people touch me.

Will ye render me a recompense?] Do you think by this to avenge yourselves upon the Almighty? to retaliate upon God! Proceed, and speedily will I return your recompense; I will retaliate.

Verse 5. Ye have taken my silver and my gold] The Chaldeans had spoiled the temple, and carried away the sacred vessels, and put them in the temple of their own god in Babylon.

Verse 6. Sold unto the Grecians] These were the descendants of Javan, Gen. x. 2–5. And with them the Tyrians trafficked, Ezek. xxvii. 19.

That ye might remove them far from their border.] Intending to send them as far off as possible, that it might be impossible for them to get back to reclaim the land of which you had dispossessed them.

Verse 7. I will raise them] I shall find means to bring them back from the place whither ye have sold them, and they shall retaliate upon you the injuries they have sustained. It is said that Alexander and his successors set at liberty many Jews that had been sold into Greece. And it is likely that many returned from different lands, on the publication of the edict of Cyrus.—Newcome.

Verse 8. I will sell your sons] When Alexander took Tyre, he reduced into slavery all the lower people, and the women. Arrian, lib. ii., says that thirty thousand of them were sold. Artaxerxes Ochus destroyed Sidon, and subdued the other cities of Phœnicia. In all these wars, says Calmet, the Jews, who obeyed the Persians, did not neglect to purchase Phœnician slaves, whom they sold again to the Sabeans, or Arabs.

Verse 9. Prepare war] Let all the enemies of God and of his people join together; let them even call all the tillers of the ground to their assistance, instead of labouring in the field; let every peasant become a soldier. Let them turn their agricultural implements into offensive weapons, so that the weak, being well armed, may confidently say, I am strong: yet, when thus collected and armed, Jehovah will bring down thy mighty ones; for so the clause in ver. 11 should be rendered.

Verse 12. Let the heathen be wakened] The heathen shall be wakened.

The valley of Jehoshaphat] Any place where God may choose to display his judgments against his enemies.

Verse 13. Put ye in the sickle] The destruction of his enemies is represented here under the metaphor of ripe: come, get you down; for the [z] press is full, the fats overflow; for their wickedness is great.

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

14 Multitudes, multitudes in [a] the valley of [b] decision: for [c] the day of the LORD is near in the valley of decision.

15 The [d] sun and the moon shall be darkened, and the stars shall withdraw their shining.

16 The LORD also shall [e] roar out of Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem; and [f] the heavens and the earth shall shake: [g] but the LORD will be the [h] hope of his people, and the strength of the children of Israel.

17 So [i] shall ye know that I am the LORD your God dwelling in Zion, [k] my holy mountain: then shall Jerusalem be [l] holy, and there shall [m] no strangers pass through her any more.

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

18 And it shall come to pass in that day, that the mountains shall [n] drop down new wine, and the hills shall flow with milk, [o] and all the rivers of Judah shall [p] flow with waters, and [q] a fountain shall come forth of the house of the LORD, and shall water [r] the valley of Shittim.

[z] Isa. lxiii. 3; Lam. i. 15; Rev. xiv. 19, 20.——[a] Ver. 2.
[b] Or, concision, or threshing.——[c] Chap. ii. 1.——[d] Chap. ii. 10, 31.——[e] Jer. xxv. 30; chap. ii. 11; Amos i. 2.——[f] Hag. ii. 6.——[g] Isa. li. 5, 6.——[h] Heb. place of repair, or harbour.
[i] Chap. ii. 27.
[k] Dan. xi. 45; Obad. 16; Zech. viii. 3.——[l] Heb. holiness.
[m] Isa. xxxv. 8; hi. 1; Nah. i. 15; Zech. xiv. 21; Rev. xxi. 27.——[o] Amos ix. 13.——[o] Psa. xxx. 25.——[p] Heb. go.——[q] Psa. xlvi. 4; Ezek. xlvii. 1; Zech. xiv. 8; Rev. xxii. 1.——[r] Num. xxv. 1.

reaping down the harvest; and of gathering the grapes, and treading them in the wine-presses.

Verse 14. Multitudes, multitudes] המנים המנים hamonim, hamonim, crowds upon crowds, in the valley of decision, or excision: the same as the valley of Jehoshaphat, the place where God is to execute judgment on his enemies.

Verse 15. The sun and the moon shall be darkened] High and mighty states shall be eclipsed, and brought to ruin, and the stars—petty states, princes, and governors—shall withdraw their shining; withhold their influence and tribute from the kingdoms to which they have belonged, and set up themselves as independent governors.

Verse 16. The Lord also shall roar out of Zion] His temple and worship shall be re-established there, and he will thence denounce his judgments against the nations. "The heavens and the earth shall shake." There shall be great commotions in powerful empires and their dependencies; but in all these things his own people shall be unmoved, for God shall be their hope and strength.

Verse 17. So shall ye know] By the judgments I execute on your enemies, and the support I give to yourselves, that I am the all-conquering Jehovah; and that I have again taken up my residence in Jerusalem. All this may refer, ultimately, to the restoration of the Jews to their own land; when holiness to the Lord shall be their motto; and no strange god, nor impure people, shall be permitted to enter the city, or even pass through it; they shall have neither civil nor religious connections with any who do not worship the true God in spirit and in truth. This, I think, must refer to Gospel times. It is a promise not yet fulfilled.

Verse 18. In that day] After their return from their captivities.

The mountains shall drop down new wine] A poetic expression for great fertility. Happy times: peace and plenty. The vines shall grow luxuriantly on the sides of the mountains; and the hills shall produce such rich pastures that the flocks shall yield abundance of milk.

And all the rivers of Judah] Far from being generally dry in the summer, shall have their channels always full of water.

And a fountain shall come forth of the house of the Lord] See the account of the typical waters in Ezekiel, chap. xlvii., to which this seems to have a reference; at least the subject is the same, and seems to point out the grace of the Gospel, the waters of salvation, that shall flow from Jerusalem, and water the valley of Shittim. Shittim was in the plains of Moab beyond Jordan; Num. xxxiii. 49; Josh. iii. 1; but as no stream of water could flow from the temple, pass across Jordan, or reach this plain, the valley of Shittim must be considered symbolical, as the valley of Jehoshaphat. But as Shittim may signify thorns, it may figuratively represent the most uncultivated and ferocious inhabitants of the earth receiving the Gospel of Christ, and being civilized and saved by it. We know that briers and thorns are emblems of bad men; see Ezek. ii. 6. Thus all the figures in this verse will point out the happy times of the Gospel: the mountains shall drop down new wine; the hills flow with milk; the thorny valleys become fertile, &c. Similar to those almost parallel words of the prince of poets:—

Mistaque ridenti colocasia fundet acantho.—
Ipsæ lacte domum referent destenta capellæ
Ubera: nec magnos metuent armenta leones.—
Molli paullatim flavescet campus arista,
Incultisque rubens pendebit sentibus uva:
Et duræ quercus sudabunt roscida mella.
VIRG. Ecl. iv. 20.

Unbidden earth shall wreathing ivy bring,
And fragrant herbs the promises of spring.
The goats with streaming dugs shall homeward speed;
And lowing herds, secure from lions, feed.
Unlabour'd harvests shall the fields adorn,
And cluster'd grapes shall grow on every thorn:
The knotted oaks shall showers of honey weep.
DRYDEN

A. M. cir. 3314. B. C. cir. 690. Ol. Cir. XXII. 3. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 26.

19 [s] Egypt shall be a desolation, and [t] Edom shall be a desolate wilderness, for the violence against the children of Judah, because they have shed innocent blood in their land.

20 But Judah shall [u] dwell [v] for ever, and Jerusalem from generation to generation.

21 For I will [w] cleanse their blood that I have not cleansed: [x] for [y] the LORD dwelleth in Zion.

[s] Isa. xix. 1, &c.——[t] Jer. xlix. 17; Ezek. xxv. 12, 13; Amos i. 11; Obad. 10.——[u] Or, abide.——[v] Amos ix. 15.——[w] Isa. iv. 4.——[x] Ezek. xlviii. 35; ver. 17; Rev. xxi. 3.——[y] Or, even I the LORD that dwelleth in Zion.

Verse 19. Egypt shall be a desolation] While peace, plenty, and prosperity of every kind, shall crown my people, all their enemies shall be as a wilderness; and those who have used violence against the saints of God, and shed the blood of innocents (of the holy MARTYRS) in their land, when they had political power; these and all such shall fall under the just judgments of God.

Verse 20. But Judah shall dwell for ever] The true Church of Christ shall be supported, while all false and persecuting Churches shall be annihilated. The promise may also belong to the full and final restoration of the Jews, when they shall dwell at Jerusalem as a distinct people professing the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Verse 21. For I will cleanse their blood] נקיתי nikeythi, I will avenge the slaughter and martyrdom of my people, which I have not yet avenged. Persecuting nations and persecuting Churches shall all come, sooner or later, under the stroke of vindictive justice.

For the Lord dwelleth in Zion.] He shall be the life, soul, spirit, and defence of his Church for ever.

THIS prophet, who has many things similar to Ezekiel, ends his prophecy nearly in the same way:

Ezekiel says of the glory of the Church, יהוה שמה Yehovah shammah, THE LORD IS THERE.

Joel says, יהוה שכן בציון Yehovah shochen betsiyon, THE LORD DWELLETH IN ZION.

Both point out the continued indwelling of Christ among his people.

INTRODUCTION TO THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET AMOS

AMOS, the third of the minor prophets, was, it is said, of the little town of Tekoa, in the tribe of Judah, about four leagues southward of Jerusalem. There is no good proof, however, that he was a native of this place; but only that he retired thither when he was driven from Beth-el, which was in the kingdom of the ten tribes. It is very probable that he was born within the territories of Israel, and that his mission was directed principally to this kingdom.

As he was prophesying in Beth-el, where the golden calves were, in the reign of Jeroboam the second, about the year of the world 3217; before the birth of Jesus Christ, 783; before the vulgar era, 787; Amaziah, the high priest of Beth-el, accused him before King Jeroboam, saying, "Amos hath conspired against thee in the midst of the house of Israel: the land is not able to bear all his words. For thus Amos saith, Jeroboam shall die by the sword, and Israel shall surely be led away captive out of their own land." Amaziah said therefore unto Amos, "O thou seer, go, flee thee away into the land of Judah, and there eat bread, and prophesy there: but prophesy not again any more at Beth-el; for it is the king's chapel, and it is the king's court."

Amos answered Amaziah, "I was no prophet, neither was I a prophet's son; but I was a herdman, and a gatherer of sycamore fruit. And the Lord took me as I followed the flock; and the Lord said unto me, Go, prophesy unto my people Israel. Now, therefore, hear thou the word of the Lord; Thou sayest, Prophesy not against Israel, and drop not thy word against the house of Isaac. Therefore thus saith the Lord, Thy wife shall be a harlot in the city, and thy sons and thy daughters shall fall by the sword, and thy land shall be divided by line; and thou shalt die in a polluted land, and Israel shall surely go into captivity forth of his land."

After this the prophet retired into the kingdom of Judah, and dwelt in the town of Tekoa, where he continued to prophesy. He complains in many places of the violence offered him by endeavouring to oblige him to silence, and bitterly exclaims against the disorders of Israel.

He began to prophesy the second year before the earthquake, which happened in the reign of King Uzziah; and which Josephus, with most of the ancient and modern commentators, refers to this prince's usurpation of the priest's office, when he attempted to offer incense to the Lord.

The first of his prophecies, in order of time, are those of the seventh chapter. The others he pronounced in the town of Tekoa, whither he retired. His two first chapters are against Damascus, the Philistines, Tyrians, Edomites, Ammonites, Moabites, the kingdom of Judah, and that of the ten tribes. The evils with which he threatens them refer to the times of Shalmaneser, Tiglath-pileser, Sennacherib, and Nebuchadnezzar, who did so much mischief to these provinces, and at last led the Israelites into captivity.

He foretold the misfortunes into which the kingdom of Israel should fall after the death of Jeroboam the Second, who was then living. He foretold the death of King Zechariah; the invasion of the lands belonging to Israel by Pul and Tiglath-pileser, kings of Assyria; and speaks of the captivity of the ten tribes, and of their return into their own country. He makes sharp invectives against the sins of Israel; against their effeminacy and avarice, their harshness to the poor, the splendour of their buildings, and the delicacy of their tables. He reproves the people of Israel for going to Beth-el, Dan, Gilgal, and Beer-sheba, which were the most famous pilgrimages of the country; and for swearing by the gods of these places.

The time and manner of his death are not known. Some old authors relate that Amaziah, priest of Beth-el, whom we have spoken of, provoked by the discourses of the prophet, had his teeth broken in order to silence him. Others say that Hosea, or Uzziah, the son of Amaziah, struck him with a stake upon the temples, and knocked him down, and almost killed him; that in this condition he was carried to Tekoa, where he died, and was buried with his fathers. This is the account these authors give us. On the contrary, it is the opinion of others, that he prophesied a long time at Tekoa after the adventure he had with Amaziah: and the prophet taking no notice of the ill treatment which he is said to have received from Uzziah, his silence is no argument that he suffered nothing from him.

St. Jerome observes, that there is nothing great and sublime in the style of Amos. He applies these words of St. Paul to him, rude in speech, though not in knowledge. He says farther, that as every one chooses to speak of his own art, Amos generally makes use of comparisons taken from the country life wherein he had been brought up. St. Austin shows that there was a certain kind of eloquence in the sacred writers, directed by the spirit of wisdom, and so proportioned to the nature of the things they treated of, that even they who accuse them of rusticity and unpoliteness in their way of writing, could not choose a style more suitable, were they to have spoken on the same subject, to the same persons, and in the same circumstances.

Bishop Lowth is not satisfied with the judgment of St. Jerome. His authority, says the learned prelate, has occasioned many commentators to represent this prophet as entirely rude, void of eloquence, and wanting in all the embellishments of style; whereas any one who reads him with due attention will find him, though a herdsman, not a whit behind the very chiefest prophets; almost equal to the greatest in the loftiness of his sentiments; and not inferior to any in the splendour of his diction, and the elegance of his composition. And it is well observed, that the same heavenly Spirit which inspired Isaiah and Daniel in the palace, inspired David and Amos in their shepherds' tents; always choosing proper interpreters of his will, and sometimes perfecting praise even out of the mouths of babes: at one time using the eloquence of some; at another, making others eloquent to subserve his great purposes. See Calmet and Dodd.

Archbishop Newcome speaks also justly of this prophet: "Amos borrows many images from the scenes in which he was engaged; but he introduces them with skill, and gives them tone and dignity by the eloquence and grandeur of his manner. We shall find in him many affecting and pathetic, many elegant and sublime, passages. No prophet has more magnificently described the Deity; or more gravely rebuked the luxurious: or reproved injustice and oppression with greater warmth, and a more generous indignation. He is a prophet on whose model a preacher may safely form his style and manner in luxurious and profligate times."

THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET AMOS.

Chronological Notes relative to this Book.

Year from the Creation, according to Archbisop Usher, 3217.—Year of the Julian Period, 3927.—Year since the Flood, 1561.—Year from the foundation of Solomon's temple, 225.—Year since the division of Solomon's monarchy into the kingdoms of Israel and Judah, 188.—Year since the first Olympic games were celebrated in Elis by the Idæi Dactyli, 667.—Year since the restoration of the Olympic games at Elis by Lycurgus, Iphitus, and Cleosthenes, 97.—Year before the conquest of Corœbus at Olympia, vulgarly called the first Olympiad, 11.—Year before the building of Rome, according to the Varronian computation, 34.—Year before the birth of Christ, 783.—Year before the vulgar era of Christ's nativity, 787.—Cycle of the Sun, 7.—Cycle of the Moon, 13.—Twenty-eighth and last year of Caranus, the founder of the kingdom of Macedon.—Twenty-third year of Nicander, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Proclidæ.—Twenty-seventh year of Alcamenes, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Eurysthenidæ.—Eleventh year of Ardysus, king of Lydia.—Eleventh year of Agamestor, perpetual archon of the Athenians.—Tenth year of Amulius Sylvius, king of the Albans.—Fifth year of Telestus, monarch of Corinth.—Sixth year of Sosarmus, king of the Medes, according to some chronologers.—Thirty-ninth year of Jeroboam II., king of Israel.—Twenty-fourth year of Uzziah, king of Judah.

CHAPTER I.

This chapter denounces judgments against the nations bordering on Palestine, enemies to the Jews, viz., the Syrians, 1–5; Philistines, 6–8; Tyrians, 9, 10; Edomites, 11, 12; and Ammonites, 13–15. The same judgments were predicted by other prophets, and fulfilled, partly by the kings of Assyria, and partly by those of Babylon; though, like many other prophecies, they had their accomplishment by degrees, and at different periods. The prophecy against the Syrians, whose capital was Damascus, was fulfilled by Tiglath-pileser, king of Assyria; see 2 Kings xvi. 9. The prophecy against Gaza of the Philistines was accomplished by Hezekiah, 2 Kings xviii. 8; by Pharaoh, Jer. xlvii. 1; and by Alexander the Great; see Quintius Curtius, lib. iv. c. 6. The prophecy against Ashdod was fulfilled by Uzziah, 2 Chron. xxvi. 6; and that against Ashkelon by Pharaoh, Jer. xlvii. 5. All Syria was also subdued by Pharaoh-necho; and again by Nebuchadnezzar, who also took Tyre, as did afterwards Alexander. Nebuchadnezzar also subdued the Edomites, Jer. xxv. 9, 21, and xxvii. 3, 6. Judas Maccabeus routed the remains of them, 1 Macc. v. 3; and Hyrcanus brought them under entire subjection. The Ammonites were likewise conquered by Nebuchadnezzar. The earthquake, which the prophet takes for his era, is perhaps referred to in Zech. xiv. 5, and also in Isa. v. 25. Josephus ascribes it to Uzziah's invasion of the priestly office; see 2 Chron. xxvi. 16.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

THE words of Amos, [a] who was among the herdmen of [b] Tekoa, which he saw concerning Israel [c] in the days of Uzziah king of Judah, and in the days of [d] Jeroboam the son of Joash king of Israel, two years before the [e] earthquake.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

[a] Chap. vii. 14.——[b] 2 Sam. xiv. 2; 2 Chron. xx. 20.

[c] Hos. i. 1.——[d] Chap. vii. 10.——[e] Zech. xiv. 5.

NOTES ON CHAP. I.

Verse 1. The words of Amos] This person and the father of Isaiah, though named alike in our translation, were as different in their names as in their persons. The father of Isaiah, אמוץ Amots; the prophet before us, עמוס Amos. The first, aleph, mem, vau,

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

2 And he said, The LORD will [f] roar from Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem; and the habitations of the shepherds shall mourn, and the top of [g] Carmel shall wither.

3 Thus saith the LORD; For three transgressions of [h] Damascus, [i] and for four, I will not [k] turn away the punishment thereof; [l] because they have threshed Gilead with threshing instruments of iron:

4 [m] But I will send a fire into the house of Hazael, which shall devour the palaces of Ben-hadad.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

5 I will break also the [n] bar of Damascus, and cut off the inhabitant from [o] the plain of Aven, and him that holdeth the sceptre from [p] the house of Eden: and [q] the people of Syria shall go into captivity [r] unto Kir, saith the LORD.

[f] Jer. xxv. 30; Joel iii. 16.——[g] 1 Sam. xxv. 2; Isa. xxxiii. 9.——[h] Isa. viii. 4; xvii. 1; Jer. xlix. 23; Zech. ix. 1.——[i] Or, yea, for four.——[k] Or, convert it, or let it be quiet: and so verse 6, &c.

[l] 2 Kings x. 33; xiii. 7.——[m] Jer. xvii. 27; xlix. 27; verse 7, 10, 12; chap. ii. 2, 5.——[n] Jer. li. 30; Lam. ii. 9.——[o] Or, Bikath-aven.——[p] Or, Beth-eden.——[q] Fulfilled, 2 Kings xvi. 9. [r] Chap. ix. 7.

tsaddi; the second, ain, mem, vau, samech. For some account of this prophet see the introduction.

Among the herdmen] He seems to have been among the very lowest orders of life, a herdsman, one who tended the flocks of others in the open fields, and a gatherer of sycamore fruit. Of whatever species this was, whether a kind of fig, it is evident that it was wild fruit; and he probably collected it for his own subsistence, or to dispose of either for the service of his employer, or to increase his scanty wages.

Before the earthquake.] Probably the same as that referred to Zech. xiv. 5, if רעש haraash do not mean some popular tumult.

Verse 2. The Lord will roar from Zion] It is a pity that our translators had not followed the hemistich form of the Hebrew:—

Jehovah from Zion shall roar,
And from Jerusalem shall give forth his voice;
And the pleasant dwellings of the shepherds shall mourn,
And the top of mount Carmel shall wither.

Carmel was a very fruitful mountain in the tribe of Judah, Josh. xv. 55; Isa. xxxv. 2.

This introduction was natural in the mouth of a herdsman who was familiar with the roaring of lions, the bellowing of bulls, and the lowing of kine. The roaring of the lion in the forest is one of the most terrific sounds in nature; when near, it strikes terror into the heart both of man and beast.

Verse 3. For three transgressions of Damascus, and for four] These expressions of three and four, so often repeated in this chapter, mean repetition, abundance, and any thing that goes towards excess. Very, very exceedingly; and so it was used among the ancient Greek and Latin poets. See the passionate exclamation of Ulysses, in the storm, Odyss., lib. v., ver. 306.—

Τρις μακαρες Δαναοι και τετρακις, οἱ τοτ' ολοντο
Τροιῃ εν ευρειῃ, χαριν Ατρειδῃσι φεροντες.

"Thrice happy Greeks! and four times who were slain
In Atreus' cause, upon the Trojan plain."

Which words Virgil translates, and puts in the mouth of his hero in similar circumstances, Æn. i. 93.

Extemplo Æneæ solvuntur frigore membra:
Ingemit; et, duplicis tendens ad sidera palmas,
Talia voce refert: O terque quaterque beati!
Queis ante ora patrum Trojæ sub mœnibus altis Contigit oppetere.

"Struck with unusual fright, the Trojan chief
With lifted hands and eyes invokes relief.
And thrice, and four times happy those, he cried,
That under Ilion's walls before their parents died."
DRYDEN.

On the words, O terque quaterque, SERVIUS makes this remark, "Hoc est sæpius; finitus numerous pro infinito." "O thrice and four times, that is, very often, a finite number for an infinite." Other poets use the same form of expression. So SENECA in Hippolyt., Act. ii. 694.

O ter quaterque prospero fato dati,
Quos hausit, et peremit, et leto dedit
Odium dolusque!

"O thrice and four times happy were the men
Whom hate devoured, and fraud, hard pressing on,
Gave as a prey to death."

And so the ancient oracle quoted by Pausanias, Achaic., lib. vii., c. 6: Τρις μακαρες κεινοι και τετρακις ανδρες εσονται; "Those men shall be thrice and four times happy."

These quotations are sufficient to show that this form of speech is neither unfrequent nor inelegant, being employed by the most correct writers of antiquity.

Damascus was the capital of Syria.

Verse 4. Ben-hadad.] He was son and successor of Hazael. See the cruelties which they exercised upon the Israelites, 2 Kings x. 32;, xiii. 7, &c.; and see especially 2 Kings viii. 12, where these cruelties are predicted.

The fire threatened here is the war so successfully carried on against the Syrians by Jeroboam II., in which he took Damascus and Hamath, and reconquered all the ancient possessions of Israel. See 2 Kings xiv. 25, 26, 28.

Verse 5. The bar of Damascus] The gates, whose long transverse bars, running from wall to wall, were their strength. I will throw it open; and the gates were forced, and the city taken, as above.

The plain of Aven—the house of Eden] These are names, says Bochart, of the valley of Damascus. The plain of Aven, or Birkath-Aven, Calmet says, is a city

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir annum 10.

6 Thus saith the LORD; For three transgressions of [s] Gaza, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because they [t] carried away captive the whole captivity, [u] to deliver them up to Edom:

7 [v] But I will send a fire on the wall of Gaza, which shall devour the palaces thereof:

8 And I will cut off the inhabitant [w] from Ashdod, and him that holdeth the sceptre from Ashkelon, and I will [x] turn mine hand against Ekron: and [y] the remnant of the Philistines shall perish, saith the Lord GOD.

9 Thus saith the LORD; For three transgressions of [z] Tyrus, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; [a] because they delivered up the whole captivity to Edom, and remembered not [b] the brotherly covenant:

10 [c] But I will send a fire on the wall of Tyrus, which shall devour the palaces thereof.

11 Thus saith the LORD; For three transgressions of [d] Edom, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because he did pursue [e] his brother [f] with the sword, and [g] did cast off all pity, [h] and his anger did tear perpetually, and he kept his wrath for ever:

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

12 But [i] I will send a fire upon Teman which shall devour the palaces of Bozrah.

13 Thus saith the LORD; For three transgressions of [k] the children of Ammon, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because they have [l] ripped [m] up the women with child of Gilead, [n] that they might enlarge their border:

14 But I will kindle a fire in the wall of [o] Rabbah, and it shall devour the palaces thereof, [p] with shouting in the day of battle, with a tempest in the day of the whirlwind:

15 And [q] their king shall go into captivity, he and his princes together, saith the LORD.

[s] 2 Chron. xxviii. 18; Isa. xiv. 29; Jer. xlvii. 4, 5; Ezek. xxv. 15; Zeph. ii. 4.——[t] Or, carried them away with an entire captivity; 2 Chron. xxi. 16, 17; Joel iii. 6.——[u] Ver. 9.——[v] Jer. xlvii. 1.——[w] Zeph. ii. 4; Zech. ix. 5, 6.——[x] Psa. lxxxi. 14.——[y] Jer. xlvii. 4; Ezek. xxv. 16.——[z] Isa. xxiii. 1; Jer. xlvii. 4; Ezek. xxvi., xxvii., xxviii.; Joel iii. 4, 5.——[a] Ver. 6.——[b] Heb. the covenant of brethren; 2 Sam. v. 11; 1 Kings v. 1; ix. 11–14. [c] Ver. 4, 7, &c.

[d] Isa. xxi. 11; xxxiv. 5; Jer. xlix. 8, &c.; Ezek. xxv. 12, 13, 14; xxxv. 2, &c.; Joel iii. 19; Obad. 1, &c.; Mal. i. 4. [e] Gen. xxvii. 41; Deut. xxiii. 7; Mal. i. 2.——[f] 2 Chron. xxiii. 17.——[g] Heb. corrupted his compassions.——[h] Ezek. xxxv. 5. [i] Obad. 9, 10.——[k] Jer. xlix. 1, 2; Ezek. xxv. 2; Zeph. ii. 9. [l] Or, divided the mountains.——[m] Hos. xiii. 16.——[n] Jer. xlix. 1. [o] Deut. iii. 11; 2 Sam. xii. 26; Jer. xlix. 2; Ezek. xxv. 5. [p] Chap. ii. 2.——[q] Jer. xlix. 3.

of Syria, at present called Baal-Bek, and by the Greeks Heliopolis; and is situated at the end of that long valley which extends from south to north, between Libanus and Anti-Libanus.

The people of Syria shall go into captivity unto Kir] KIR is supposed to be the country of Cyrene in Albania, on the river Cyrus, which empties itself into the Caspian Sea. The fulfilment of this prophecy may be seen in 2 Kings xvi. 1–9.

Verse 6. They carried away captive] Gaza is well known to have been one of the five lordships of the Philistines; it lay on the coast of the Mediterranean Sea, near to Egypt. Ekron, Ashdod, and Ashkelon, were other seignories of the same people, which are here equally threatened with Gaza. The captivity mentioned here may refer to inroads and incursions made by the Philistines in times of peace. See 2 Chron. xxi. 16. The margin reads, an entire captivity. They took all away; none of them afterwards returned.

Verse 9. Tyrus] See an ample description of this place, and of its desolation and final ruin, in the notes on Ezek. xxvi., xxvii., and xxviii.

The brotherly covenant] This possibly refers to the very friendly league made between Solomon and Hiram, king of Tyre, 1 Kings v. 12; but some contend that the brotherly covenant refers to the consanguinity between the Jews and Edomites. The Tyrians, in exercising cruelties upon these, did it, in effect, on the Jews, with whom they were connected by the most intimate ties of kindred; the two people having descended from the two brothers, Jacob and Esau. See Calmet.

Verse 10. I will send a fire on the wall of Tyrus] The destructive fire or siege by Nebuchadnezzar, which lasted thirteen years, and ended in the destruction of this ancient city; see on Ezekiel, chap. xxvi. 7–14, as above. It was finally ruined by Alexander, and is now only a place for a few poor fishermen to spread their nets upon.

Verse 11. For three transgressions of Edom] That the Edomites (notwithstanding what Calmet observes above of the brotherly covenant) were always implacable enemies of the Jews, is well known; but most probably that which the prophet has in view was the part they took in distressing the Jews when Jerusalem was besieged, and finally taken, by the Chaldeans. See Obad. 11–14; Ezek. xxv. 12; xxxv. 5; Psa. cxxxvii. 7.

Verse 12. Teman—Bozrah.] Principal cities of Idumea.

Verse 13. The children of Ammon] The country of the Ammonites lay to the east of Jordan, in the neighbourhood of Gilead. Rabbah was its capital.

Because they have ripped up] This refers to some barbarous transaction well known in the time of this prophet, but of which we have no distinct mention in the sacred historians.

Verse 14. With shouting in the day of battle] They shall be totally subdued. This was done by Nebuchadnezzar. See Jer. xxvii. 3, 6.

Verse 15. Their king shall go into captivity] Probably מלכם malcham should be Milcom, who was a chief god of the Ammonites; and the following words, he and his princes, may refer to the body of his priesthood. See 1 Kings xi. 33, and the notes there. All these countries were subdued by Nebuchadnezzar.

CHAPTER II.

The prophet goes on to declare the judgments of God against Moab, 1–3; against Judah, 4, 5; and then against Israel, the particular object of his mission. He enumerates some of their sins, 6–8, aggravated by God's distinguishing regard to Israel, 9–12; and they are in consequence threatened with dreadful punishments, 13–16. See 2 Kings xv. 19, and xvii. 6.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante. U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

THUS saith the LORD; For three transgressions of [a] Moab, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because he [b] burned the bones of the king of Edom into lime:

2 But I will send a fire upon Moab, and it shall devour the palaces of [c] Kirioth: and Moab shall die with tumult, [d] with shouting, and with the sound of the trumpet:

3 And I will cut off [e] the judge from the midst thereof, and will slay all the princes thereof with him, saith the LORD.

4 Thus saith the LORD; For three transgressions of Judah, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; [f] because they have despised the law of the LORD, and have not kept his commandments, and [g] their lies caused them to err, [h] after the which their fathers have walked:

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

5 [i] But I will send a fire upon Judah, and it shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem.

6 Thus saith the LORD; For three transgressions of Israel, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because [k] they sold the righteous for silver, and the poor for a pair of shoes;

7 That pant after the dust of the earth on the head of the poor, and [l] turn aside the way of the meek: [m] and a man and his father will go in unto the same [n] maid, [o] to profane my holy name:

8 And they lay themselves down upon

[a] Isa. xv., xvi. Jer. xlviii.; Ezek. xxv. 8; Zeph. ii. 8. [b] 2 Kings iii. 27. —— [c] Jer. xlviii. 41. —— [d] Chap. i. 14. —— [e] Num. xxiv. 17; Jer. xlviii. 7. —— [f] Lev. xxvi. 14, 15; Neh. i. 7; Dan. ix. 11. —— [g] Isa. xxviii. 15; Jer. xvi. 19, 20; Rom. i. 25. [h] Ezek. xx. 13, 16, 18, 24, 40. —— [i] Jer. xvii. 27; Hos. viii. 14. —— [k] Isa. xxix. 21; chap. viii. 6. —— [l] Isa. x. 2; chap. v. 12. [m] Ezek. xxii. 11. —— [n] Or, young woman. —— [o] Lev. xx. 3; Ezek. xxxvi. 20; Rom. ii. 24.

NOTES ON CHAP. II.

Verse 1. For three transgressions of Moab, and for four] See an explanation of this form, chap. i. 2. The land of the Moabites lay to the east of the Dead Sea. For the origin of this people, see Gen. xix. 37.

He burned the bones of the king of Edom into lime] Possibly referring to some brutality; such as opening the grave of one of the Idumean kings, and calcining his bones. It is supposed by some to refer to the fact mentioned 2 Kings iii. 26, when the kings of Judah, Israel, and Idumea, joined together to destroy Moab. The king of it, despairing to save his city, took seven hundred men, and made a desperate sortie on the quarter where the king of Edom was; and, though not successful, took prisoner the son of the king of Edom; and, on their return into the city, offered him as a burnt-offering upon the wall, so as to terrify the besieging armies, and cause them to raise the siege. Others understand the son that was sacrificed to be the king of Moab's own son.

Verse 2. The palaces of Kirioth] This was one of the principal cities of the Moabites.

Moab shall die with tumult] All these expressions seem to refer to this city's being taken by storm, which was followed by a total slaughter of its inhabitants.

Verse 3. I will cut off the judge] It shall be so destroyed, that it shall never more have any form of government. The judge here, שופט shophet, may signify the chief magistrate. The chief magistrates of the Carthaginians were called suffetes; probably taken from the Hebrew JUDGES, שופטים shophetim.

Verse 4. For three transgressions of Judah] We may take the three and four here to any latitude; for this people lived in continual hostility to their God, from the days of David to the time of Uzziah, under whom Amos prophesied. Their iniquities are summed up under three general heads: 1. They despised, or rejected the law of the Lord. 2. They kept not his statutes. 3. They followed lies, were idolaters, and followed false prophets rather than those sent by Jehovah.

Verse 5. I will send a fire upon Judah] This fire was the war made upon the Jews by Nebuchadnezzar, which terminated with the sackage and burning of Jerusalem and its palace the temple.

Verses 6–8. For three transgressions of Israel, &c.] To be satisfied of the exceeding delinquency of this people, we have only to open the historical and prophetic books in any part; for the whole history of the Israelites is one tissue of transgression against God.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

clothes [p] laid to pledge [q] by every altar, and they drink the wine of [r] the condemned in the house of their god.

9 Yet destroyed I the [s] Amorite before them, whose height was like the height of the cedars, and he was strong as the oaks; yet I [u] destroyed his fruit from above, and his roots from beneath.

10 Also [v] I brought you up from the land of Egypt, and [w] led you forty years through the wilderness, to possess the land of the Amorite.

11 And I raised up of your sons for prophets, and of your young men for [x] Nazarites. Is it not even thus, O ye children of Israel? saith the LORD.

12 But ye gave the Nazarites wine to drink; and commanded the prophets, [y] saying, Prophesy not.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

13 [z] Behold, [a] I am pressed under you, as a cart is pressed that is full of sheaves.

14 [b] Therefore the flight shall perish from the swift, and the strong shall not strengthen his force, [c] neither shall the mighty deliver [d] himself.

15 Neither shall he stand that handleth the bow; and he that is swift of foot shall not deliver himself: [e] neither shall he that rideth the horse deliver himself.

16 And he that is [f] courageous among the mighty shall flee away naked in that day, saith the LORD.

---

[p] Exod. xxii. 26.——[q] Ezek. xxiii. 41; 1 Cor. viii. 10; x. 21. [r] Or, such as have fined, or mulcted.——[s] Num. xxi. 24; Deut. ii. 31, Josh. xxiv. 8.——[t] Num. xiii. 28, 32, 33.——[u] Isa. v. 24; Mal. iv. 1.——[v] Exod. xii. 51; Mic. vi. 4.——[w] Deut. ii. 7; viii. 2.——[x] Num. vi. 2; Judg. xiii. 5.

[y] Isa. xxx. 10; Jer. xi. 21; chap. vii. 12, 13; Mic. ii. 6. [z] Isa. i. 14.——[a] Or, I will press your place, as a cart full of sheaves presseth.——[b] Chap. ix. 1, &c.; Jer. ix. 23.——[c] Psa. xxxiii. 16.——[d] Heb. his soul, or life.——[e] Psa. xxxiii. 17.——[f] Heb. strong of his heart.

Their crimes are enumerated under the following heads:—

1. Their judges were mercenary and corrupt. They took bribes to condemn the righteous; and even for articles of clothing, such as a pair of shoes, they condemned the poor man, and delivered him into the hands of his adversary.

2. They were unmerciful to the poor generally. They pant after the dust of the earth on the head of the poor; or, to put it on the head of the poor; or, they bruise the head of the poor against the dust of the earth. Howsoever the clause is understood, it shows them to have been general oppressors of the poor, showing them neither justice nor mercy.

3. They turn aside the way of the meek. They are peculiarly oppressive to the weak and afflicted.

4. They were licentious to the uttermost abomination; for in their idol feasts, where young women prostituted themselves publicly in honour of Astarte, the father and son entered into impure connections with the same female.

5. They were cruel in their oppressions of the poor; for the garments or beds which the poor had pledged they retained contrary to the law, Exod. xxii. 7–26, which required that such things should be restored before the setting of the sun.

6. They punished the people by unjust and oppressive fines, and served their tables with wine bought by such fines. Or it may be understood of their appropriating to themselves that wine which was allowed to criminals to mitigate their sufferings in the article of death; which was the excess of inhumanity and cruelty.

Verse 9. Yet destroyed I the Amarite] Here follow general heads of God's mercies to them, and the great things he had done for them. 1. Bringing them out of Egypt. 2. Miraculously sustaining them in the wilderness forty years. 3. Driving out the Canaanites before them, and giving them possession of the promised land. 4. Raising up prophets among them to declare the Divine will. 5. And forming the holy institution of the Nazarites among them, to show the spiritual nature of his holy religion, ver. 9–11.

Verse 12. But ye gave the Nazarites wine] This was expressly forbidden in the laws of their institution. See Num. vi. 1–3.

Prophesy not.] They would not worship God, and they would not hear the voice of his prophets.

Verse 13. Behold, I am pressed under you] The marginal reading is better: "Behold, I will press your place, as a cart full of sheaves presseth." I will bring over you the wheel of destruction; and it shall grind your place—your city and temple, as the wheel of a cart laden with sheaves presses down the ground, gravel, and stones over which it rolls.

Verse 14. The flight shall perish from the swift] The swiftest shall not be able to save himself from a swifter destruction. None, by might, by counsel, or by fleetness, shall be able to escape from the impending ruin. In a word, God has so fully determined to avenge the quarrel of his broken covenant, that all attempts to escape from his judgments shall be useless.

Verse 15. Neither shall he that rideth the horse deliver himself.] I believe all these sayings, from verse 13 to 16 inclusive, are proverbs, to show the inutility of all attempts, even in the best circumstances, to escape the doom now decreed, because the cup of their iniquity was full.

Verse 16. Shall flee away naked] In some cases the alarm shall be in the night; and even the most heroic shall start from his bed, and through terror not wait to put on his clothes.

CHAPTER III.

This chapter begins with reproving the twelve tribes in general, 1, 2 ; and then particularly the kingdom of Israel, whose capital was Samaria. The prophet assures them that, while they were at variance with God, it would be unreasonable in them to expect his presence or favour, 3–8. Other neighbouring nations are then called upon to take warning from the judgments about to be inflicted upon the house of Israel, which would be so general that only a small remnant should escape them, 9–15. The image used by the prophet on this occasion, (see verse 12,) and borrowed from his former calling, is very natural and significant, and not a little dignified by the inspired writer's lofty air and manner.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

HEAR this word that the LORD hath spoken against you, O children of Israel, against the whole family which I brought up from the land of Egypt, saying,

2 [a] You only have I known of all the families of the earth : [b] therefore I will [c] punish you for all your iniquities.

3 Can two walk together, except they be agreed ?

4 Will a lion roar in the forest, when he hath no prey ? will a young lion [d] cry out of his den, if he have taken nothing ?

A. M. cir. 3217 B. C. cir. 787 Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

5 Can a bird fall in a snare upon the earth, where no gin is for him ? shall one take up a snare from the earth, and have taken nothing at all ?

6 Shall a trumpet be blown in the city, and the people [e] not be afraid ? [f] shall there be evil in a city, [g] and the LORD hath not done it ?

7 Surely the Lord GOD will do nothing, but

[a] Deut. vii. 6; x. 15; Psa. cxlvii. 19, 20.——[b] See Dan. ix. 12; Matt. xi. 22; Luke xii. 47; Rom. ii. 9; 1 Pet. iv. 17.——[c] Heb. visit upon.——[d] Heb. give forth his voice.——[e] Or, not run together. [f] Isa. xlv. 7.——[g] Or, and shall not the LORD do somewhat ?

NOTES ON CHAP. III.

Verse 1. Against the whole family] That is, all, both the kingdoms of Israel and Judah. In this all the twelve tribes are included.

Verse 2. You only have I known] I have taken no other people to be my own people. I have approved of you, loved you, fed, sustained, and defended you ; but because you have forsaken me, have become idolatrous and polluted, therefore will I punish you. And the punishment shall be in proportion to the privileges you have enjoyed, and the grace you have abused.

Verse 3. Can two walk together] While ye loved and served me, I dwelt in you and walked among you. Now ye are become alienated from me, your nature and mine are totally opposite. I am holy, ye are unholy. We are no longer agreed, and can no longer walk together. I can no longer hold communion with you. I must cast you out. The similes in this and the three following verses are all chosen to express the same thing, viz., that no calamities or judgments can fall upon any people but by the express will of God, on account of their iniquities ; and that whatever his prophets have foretold, they have done it by direct revelation from their Maker ; and that God has the highest and most cogent reason for inflicting the threatened calamities. This correctness of the prophets' predictions shows that they and I are in communion.

Verse 4. Will a lion roar] Should I threaten such judgment without cause ?

Verse 5. Can a bird fall in a snare] Can ye, as a sinful people, fall into calamities which I have not appointed ?

Shall one take up a snare—and have taken nothing] Will the snare be removed before it has caught the expected prey ?—shall I remove my judgments till they are fully accomplished ? This is a curious passage, and deserves farther consideration. The original, literally translated, is nearly as follows : "Shall the trap arise from the ground ; and catching, shall it not catch ?" Here is a plain allusion to such traps as we employ to catch rats, foxes, &c. The jaws of the trap opening backward, press strongly upon a spring so as to keep it down ; and a key passing over one jaw, and hooking on a table in the centre, the trap continues with expanded jaws, till any thing touch the table, when the key, by the motion of the table, being loosened, the spring recovers all its elastic power, and throws up the jaws of the trap, and their serrated edges either close in each other, or on the prey that has moved the table of the trap. Will then the jaws of such a trap suddenly spring up from the ground, on which before they were lying flat, and catch nothing ? Shall they let the prey that was within them escape ? Certainly not. So my trap is laid for these offenders ; and when it springs up, (and they themselves will soon by their transgressions free the key,) shall not the whole family of Israel be inclosed in it ? Most certainly they shall. This is a singular and very remarkable passage, and, when properly understood, is beautifully expressive.

Verse 6. Shall a trumpet be blown] The sign of alarm and invasion.

And the people not be afraid ?] Not take the alarm, and provide for their defence and safety ?

Shall there be evil in a city] Shall there be any public calamity on the wicked, that is not an effect of my displeasure ? The word does not mean moral evil, but punishment for sin ; calamities falling on the workers of iniquity. Natural evil is the punishment of moral evil : God sends the former when the latter is persisted in.

Verse 7. Surely the Lord God will do nothing] In

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii. Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

[h] he revealeth his secret unto his servants the prophets.

8 [i] The lion hath roared, who will not fear? the Lord GOD hath spoken, [k] who can but prophesy?

9 Publish in the palaces at Ashdod, and in the palaces in the land of Egypt, and say, Assemble yourselves upon the mountains of Samaria, and behold the great tumults in the midst thereof, and the [l] oppressed in the midst thereof.

10 For they [m] know not to do right, saith the LORD, who store up violence and [n] robbery in their palaces.

11 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; [o] An adversary there shall be even round about the land; and he shall bring down thy strength from thee, and thy palaces shall be spoiled.

12 Thus saith the LORD; As the shepherd [p] taketh out of the mouth of the lion two legs, or a piece of an ear; so shall the children of Israel be taken out that dwell in Samaria in the corner of a bed, and [q] in Damascus in a couch.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

13 Hear ye, and testify in the house of Jacob, saith the Lord GOD, the God of hosts.

14 That in the day that I shall [r] visit the transgressions of Israel upon him I will also visit the altars of Beth-el: and the horns of the altar shall be cut off, and fall to the ground.

15 And I will smite [s] the winter house with [t] the summer house; and [u] the houses of ivory shall perish, and the great houses shall have an end, saith the LORD.

[h] Gen. vi. 13; xviii. 17; Psa. xxv. 14; John xv. 15.——[i] Chap. i. 2.——[k] Acts iv. 20; v. 20, 29; 1 Cor. ix. 16.——[l] Or, oppressions.——[m] Jer. iv. 22.——[n] Or, spoil.

[o] 2 Kings xvii. 3, 6; xviii. 9, 10, 11.——[p] Heb. delivereth. [q] Or, on the bed's feet.——[r] Or, punish Israel for.——[s] Jer. xxxvi. 22.——[t] Judg. iii. 20.——[u] 1 Kings xxii. 39.

reference to the punishment, correction, or blessing of his people—

But he revealeth his secret unto his servants the prophets.] They are in strict correspondence with him, and he shows them things to come. Such secrets of God are revealed to them, that they may inform the people: that, by repentance and conversion, they may avoid the evil, and, by walking closely with God, secure the continuance of his favour.

Verse 8. The lion hath roared] God hath sent forth a terrible alarm, Who will not fear? Can any hear such denunciations of Divine wrath and not tremble!

The Lord God hath spoken] And those only who are in communion with him have heard the speech. Who can but prophesy? Who can help proclaiming at large the judgment threatened against the nation?

But I think נבא naba, here, is to be taken in its natural and ideal signification, to pray, supplicate, or deprecate vengeance. The Lord hath spoken of punishment—who can help supplicating his mercy, that his judgments may be averted!

Verse 9. Publish in the palaces] The housetops or flat roofs were the places from which public declarations were made. See on Isa. xxi. 1, and on Matt. x. 27. See whether in those places there be not tumults, oppressions, and rapine sufficient to excite my wrath against them.

Verse 10. For they know not to do right] So we may naturally say that they who are doing wrong, and to their own prejudice and ruin, must certainly be ignorant of what is right, and what is their own interest. But we say again, "There are none so blind as those who will not see." Their eyes, saith the Lord, they have closed.

Verse 11. An adversary, round about the land] Ye shall not be able to escape; wherever ye turn, ye shall meet a foe.

Verse 12. As the shepherd taketh out of the mouth of the lion] Scarcely any of you shall escape; and those that do shall do so with extreme difficulty, just as a shepherd, of a whole sheep carried away by a lion, can recover no more than two of its legs, or a piece of its ear, just enough to prove by the marks on those parts, that they belonged to a sheep which was his own.

So shall the children of Israel be taken out] Those of them that escape these judgments shall escape with as great difficulty, and be of as little worth, as the two legs and piece of an ear that shall be snatched out of the lion's mouth. We know that when the Babylonians carried away the people into Chaldea they left behind only a few, and those the refuse of the land.

In the corner of a bed] As the corner is the most honourable place in the East, and a couch in the corner of a room is the place of the greatest distinction; so the words in the text may mean, that even the metropolitan cities, which are in the corner—in the most honourable place—of the land, whether Samaria in Israel, or Damascus in Syria, shall not escape these judgments; and if any of the distinguished persons who dwell in them escape, it must be with as great difficulty as the fragments above-mentioned have been recovered from a lion. The passage is obscure. Mr. Harmer has taken great pains to illustrate it; but I fear with but little success. A general sense is all we can arrive at.

Verse 13. Hear ye] This is an address to the prophet.

Verse 14. In the day that I shall visit] When Josiah made a reformation in the land he destroyed idolatry, pulled down the temples and altars that had been consecrated to idol worship, and even burnt the bones of the priests of Baal and the golden calves upon their own altars. See 2 Kings xxiii. 15, 16, &c.

Verse 15. I will smite the winter house with the summerhouse] I will not only destroy the poor habitations and villages in the country, but I will destroy those of the nobility and gentry; as well the lofty palaces in the fortified cities in which they dwell in the winter season, as those light and elegant seats in which they spend the summer season. Dr. Shaw observes that "the hills and valleys round about Algiers are all over beautified with gardens and country seats, whither the inhabitants of better fashion retire during the heats of the summer season. They are little white houses, shaded with a variety of fruit trees and evergreens, which beside shade and retirement, afford a gay and delightful prospect toward the sea. The gardens are all well stocked with melons, fruits, and pot herbs of all kinds; and (which is chiefly regarded in these hot countries) each of them enjoys a great command of water."

And the houses of ivory] Those remarkable for their magnificence and their ornaments, not built of ivory, but in which ivory vessels, ornaments, and inlaying abounded. Thus, then, the winter houses and the summer houses, the great houses and the houses of uncommon splendour, shall all perish. There should be a total desolation in the land. No kind of house should be a refuge, and no kind of habitation should be spared. Ahab had at Samaria a house that was called the ivory house, 1 Kings xxii. 39. This may be particularly referred to in this place. We cannot suppose that a house constructed entirely of ivory can be intended.

CHAPTER IV.

Israel reproved for their oppression, 1–3; idolatry, 4, 5; and for their impenitence under the chastising hand of God, 6–11. The omniscience and uncontrollable power of God, 12, 13.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

HEAR this word, ye [a] kine of Bashan, that are in the mountain of Samaria, which oppress the poor, which crush the needy, which say to their masters, Bring, and let us drink.

2 [b] The Lord God hath sworn by his holiness, that, lo, the days shall come upon you, that he will take you away [c] with hooks, and your posterity with fishhooks.

3 And [d] ye shall go out at the breaches, every cow at that which is before her; and [e] ye shall cast them into the palace, saith the Lord.

4 [f] Come to Beth-el, and transgress; at [g] Gilgal multiply transgression; and [h] bring your sacrifices every morning, [i] and

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

[a] Psalm xxii. 12; Ezekiel xxxix. 18.——[b] Psalm lxxxix. 35.——[c] Jeremiah xvi. 16; Habakkuk i. 15.——[d] Ezekiel xii. 5, 12.

[e] Or, ye shall cast away the things of the palace.——[f] Ezek. xx. 39.——[g] Hos. iv. 15; xii. 11; chap. v. 5.——[h] Num. xxviii 3, 4. [i] Deut. xiv. 28.

NOTES ON CHAP. IV.

Verse 1. Hear this word, ye kine of Bashan] Such an address was quite natural from the herdsman of Tekoa. Bashan was famous for the fertility of its soil, and its flocks and herds; and the prophet here represents the iniquitous, opulent, idle, lazy drones, whether men or women, under the idea of fatted bullocks, which were shortly to be led out to the slaughter.

Verse 2. He will take you away with hooks] Two modes of fishing are here alluded to: 1. Angling with rod, line, and baited hook. 2. That with the gaff, eel-spear, harpoon, or such like; the first used in catching small fish, by which the common people may be here represented; the second, for catching large fish, such as leave the sea, and come up the rivers to deposit their spawn; or such as are caught in the sea, as sharks, whales, dolphins, and even the hippopotamus, to which the more powerful and opulent inhabitants may be likened. But as the words in the text are generally feminine, it has been supposed that the prophecy is against the proud, powerful, voluptuous women. I rather think that the prophet speaks catachrestically; and means men of effeminate manners and idle lives. They are not the bulls of Bashan, but the cows; having little of the manly character remaining. Some understand the latter word as meaning a sort of basket or wicker fish-nets.

Verse 3. And ye shall go out at the breaches] Probably the metaphor is here kept up. They shall be caught by the hooks, or by the nets; and though they may make breaches in the latter by their flouncing when caught, they shall be taken out at these very breaches; and cast, not into the palace, but into a reservoir, to be kept awhile, and afterwards be taken out to be destroyed. Samaria itself is the net; your adversaries shall besiege it, and make breaches in its walls. At those breaches ye shall endeavour to make your escape, but ye shall be caught and led into captivity, where most of you shall be destroyed. See Houbigant on this passage.

Verse 4. Come to Beth-el and transgress] Spoken ironically. Go on to worship your calves at Beth-el; and multiply your transgressions at Gilgal; the very place where I rolled away the reproach of your fathers, by admitting them there into my covenant by circumcision. A place that should have ever been sacred to me; but you have now desecrated it by enormous idolatries. Let your morning and evening sacrifices be offered still to your senseless gods; and continue to your tithes after [k] three years:

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 31. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

5 [l] And [m] offer a sacrifice of thanksgiving with leaven, and proclaim and publish [n] the free offerings: [o] for [p] this liketh you, O ye children of Israel, saith the Lord GOD.

6 And I also have given you cleanness of teeth in all your cities, and want of bread in all your places: [q] yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the LORD.

7 And also I have withholden the rain from you, when there were yet three months to the harvest: and I caused it to rain upon one city, and caused it not to rain upon another city: one piece was rained upon, and the piece whereupon it rained not withered.

8 So two or three cities wandered unto one city, to drink water; but they were not satisfied: [r] yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the LORD.

A. M. cir. 3217 B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 31. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

9 [s] I have smitten you with blasting and mildew: [t] when your gardens and your vineyards and your fig trees and your olive trees increased, [u] the palmerworm devoured them: yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the LORD.

10 I have sent among you the pestilence [v] after [w] the manner of Egypt: your young men have I slain with the sword, [x] and have taken away your horses; and I have made the stink of your camps to come up unto your nostrils: [y] yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the LORD.

11 I have overthrown some of you, as God overthrew [z] Sodom and Gomorrah, [a] and ye were as a firebrand plucked out of the burn-

[k] Heb. three years of days.——[l] Lev. vii. 13; xxiii. 17. [m] Heb. offer by burning.——[n] Lev. xxii. 18, 21; Deut. xii. 6. [o] Psa. lxxxi. 12.——[p] Heb. so ye love.——[q] Isa. xxvi. 11; Jer. v. 3; Hag. ii. 17; ver. 8, 9.——[r] Ver. 6, 10, 11.——[s] Deut. xxviii. 22; Hag. ii. 17.——[t] Or, the multitude of your gardens, &c., did the palmerworm, &c.——[u] Joel i. 4; ii. 25.——[v] Or, in the way. [w] Exod. ix. 3, 6; xii. 29; Deut. xxviii. 27, 60; Psa. lxxviii. 50.——[x] Heb. with the captivity of your horses; 2 Kings xiii. 7. [y] Ver. 6.——[z] Gen. xix. 24, 25; Isa. xiii. 19; Jer. xlix. 18. [a] Zech. iii. 2; Jude 23.

support your present vicious priesthood by the regular triennial tithes which should have been employed in my service; and,

Verse 5. Offer a sacrifice of thanksgiving] To the senseless metal, and the unfeeling stock and stone images, from which ye never did, and never could receive any help. Proceed yet farther, and bring free-will offerings; testify superabundant gratitude to your wooden and metallic gods, to whom ye are under such immense imaginary obligations! Proclaim and publish these offerings, and set forth the perfections of the objects of your worship; and see what they can do for you, when I, Jehovah, shall send drought, and blasting, and famine, and pestilence, and the sword among you.

Verse 6. Cleanness of teeth] Scarcity of bread, as immediately explained. Ye shall have no trouble in cleaning your teeth, for ye shall have nothing to eat.

Yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the Lord.] This reprehension is repeated five times in this chapter; and in it are strongly implied God's long suffering, his various modes of fatherly chastisement, the ingratitude of the people, and their obstinate wickedness. The famine mentioned here is supposed to be that which is spoken of 2 Kings viii. 1; but it is most likely to have been that mentioned by Joel, chaps. i. and ii.

Verse 7. When there were yet three months to the harvest] St. Jerome says, from the end of April, when the latter rain falls, until harvest, there are three months, May, June, and July, in which no rain falls in Judea. The rain, therefore, that God had withheld from them, was that which was usual in the spring months, particularly in April.

I caused it to rain upon one city] To prove to them that this rain did not come fortuitously or of necessity, God was pleased to make these most evident distinctions. One city had rain, and could fill all its tanks or cisterns, while a neighbouring city had none. One farm or field was well watered, and abundant in its crops, while one contiguous to it had not a shower. In these instances a particular providence was most evident. "And yet, they did not return to the Lord."

Verse 9. I have smitten you with blasting and mildew] He sent blasting and mildew on the crops, and the locust on the gardens, vineyards, and fields; and this in such a way as to show it was a Divine judgment. They saw this; "yet they did not return to the Lord!"

Verse 10. I have sent—the pestilence] After the blasting and the mildew, the pestilence came; and it acted among them as one of the plagues of Egypt. Besides this, he had suffered their enemies to attack and prevail against them; alluding to the time in which the Syrians besieged Samaria, and reduced it to the most extreme necessity, when the head of an ass was sold for eighty pieces of silver, and the fourth part of a cab of dove's dung for five; and mothers ate the flesh of their children that had died through hunger, 2 Kings vi. 25. And the people were miraculously relieved by the total slaughter of the Syrians by the unseen hand of God, 2 Kings vii. 1, &c. And yet, after all those signal judgments, and singular mercies, "they did not return unto the Lord!"

Verse 11. I have overthrown some of you] In the destruction of your cities I have shown my judgments as signally as I did in the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah; and those of you that did escape were as "brands plucked out of the fire;" if not consumed, yet much scorched. And as the judgment was evidently from my hand, so was the deliverance; "and yet ye have not returned unto me, saith the Lord."

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

ing: [b] yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the LORD.

12 Therefore thus will I do unto thee, O Israel: and because I will do this unto thee, [c] prepare to meet thy God, O Israel.

13 For, lo, he that formeth the mountains, and createth the [d] wind, [e] and declareth unto man what is his thought, [f] that maketh the morning darkness, [g] and treadeth upon the high places of the earth, [h] The LORD, The God of hosts, is his name.

A. M. cir. 3217 B. C. cir. 787 Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

[b] Ver. 6.——[c] See Ezek. xiii. 5; xxii. 30; Luke xiv. 31, 32. [d] Or, spirit.——[e] Psa. cxxxix. 2; Dan. ii. 28.

[f] Chap. v. 8; viii. 9.——[g] Deut. xxxii. 13; xxxiii. 29; Mic. i. 3. [h] Isa. xlvii. 4; Jer. x. 16; chap. v. 8; ix. 6.

Verse 12. Therefore thus will I do unto thee] I will continue my judgments, I will fight against you; and, because I am thus determined,—

Prepare to meet thy God, O Israel.] This is a military phrase, and is to be understood as a challenge to come out to battle. As if the Lord had said, I will attack you immediately. Throw yourselves into a posture of defence, summon your idols to your help: and try how far your strength, and that of your gods, will avail you against the unconquerable arm of the Lord of hosts! This verse has been often painfully misapplied by public teachers; it has no particular relation to the day of judgment, nor to the hour of death. These constructions are impositions on the text.

Verse 13. He that formeth the mountains] Here is a powerful description of the majesty of God. He formed the earth; he created the wind; he knows the inmost thoughts of the heart; he is the Creator of darkness and light; he steps from mountain to mountain, and has all things under his feet! Who is he who hath done and can do all these things? JEHOVAH ELOHIM TSEBAOTH, that is his name. 1. The self-existing, eternal, and independent Being. 2. The God who is in covenant with mankind. 3. The universal Commander of all the hosts of earth and heaven. This name is farther illustrated in the following chapter. These words are full of instruction, and may be a subject of profitable meditation to every serious mind.

CHAPTER V.

This chapter opens with a tender and pathetic lamentation, in the style of a funeral song, over the house of Israel, 1, 2. The prophet then glances at the awful threatenings denounced against them, 3; earnestly exhorting them to renounce their idols, and seek Jehovah, of whom he gives a very magnificent description, 4–9. He then reproves their injustice and oppression with great warmth and indignation; exhorts them again to repentance; and enforces his exhortation with the most awful threatenings, delivered with great majesty and authority, and in images full of beauty and grandeur, 10–24. The chapter concludes with observing that their idolatry was of long standing, that they increased the national guilt, by adding to the sins of their fathers; and that their punishment, therefore, should be great in proportion, 25–27. Formerly numbers of them were brought captive to Damascus, 2 Kings x. 32, 33; but now they must go beyond it to Assyria, 2 Kings xv. 29; xvii. 6.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

HEAR ye this word which I [a] take up against you, even a lamentation, O house of Israel.

2 The virgin of Israel is fallen; she shall no more rise: she is forsaken upon her land; there is none to raise her up.

3 For thus saith the Lord GOD; The city that went out by a thousand shall leave a hundred, and that which went forth by a hundred shall leave ten, to the house of Israel.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

4 For thus saith the LORD unto the house of Israel, [b] Seek ye me, [c] and ye shall live:

5 But seek not [d] Beth-el, nor enter into Gilgal, and pass not to [e] Beer-sheba: for Gilgal

[a] Jer. vii. 29; Ezek. xix. 1; xxvii. 2.——[b] 2 Chron. xv. 2; Jer. xxix. 13; ver. 6.——[c] Isa. lv. 3.——[d] Chap. iv. 4.——[e] Chap. viii. 14.

NOTES ON CHAP. V.

Verse 1. Hear ye this word] Attend to this doleful song which I make for the house of Israel.

Verse 2. The virgin of Israel] The kingdom of Israel, or the ten tribes, which were carried into captivity; and are now totally lost in the nations of the earth.

Verse 3. The city that went out by a thousand] The city that could easily have furnished, on any emergency, a thousand fighting men, can now produce scarcely one hundred—one in ten of the former number; and now of the hundred scarcely ten remain: so reduced was Israel when Shalmaneser besieged and took Samaria, and carried the residue into captivity.

Verse 4. Seek ye me, and ye shall live] Cease your rebellion against me; return to me with all your heart; and though consigned to death, ye shall be rescued and live. Deplorable as your case is, it is not utterly desperate.

Verse 5. But seek not Beth-el] There was one of

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

shall surely go into captivity, and [f] Beth-el shall come to naught.

6 [g] Seek the LORD, and ye shall live; lest he break out like fire [n] the house of Joseph and devour it, and there be none to quench it in Beth-el.

7 Ye who [h] turn judgment to wormwood, and leave off righteousness in the earth,

8 Seek him that maketh the [i] seven stars and Orion, and turneth the shadow of death into the morning, [k] and maketh the day dark with night: that [l] calleth for the waters of the sea, and poureth them out upon the face of the earth: [m] The LORD is his name:

9 That strengtheneth the [n] spoiled against the strong, so that the spoiled shall come against the fortress.

10 [o] They hate him that rebuketh in the gate, and they [p] abhor him that speaketh uprightly.

11 Forasmuch therefore as your treading is upon the poor, and ye take from him burdens of wheat: [q] ye have built houses of hewn stone, but ye shall not dwell in them; ye have planted [r] pleasant vineyards, but ye shall not drink wine of them.

12 For I know your manifold transgressions, and your mighty sins: [s] they afflict the just, they take [t] a bribe, and they [u] turn aside the poor in the gate from their right.

13 Therefore [v] the prudent shall keep silence in that time; for it is an evil time.

14 Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live: and so the LORD, the God of hosts, shall be with you, [w] as ye have spoken.

15 [x] Hate the evil, and love the good, and establish judgment in the gate: [y] it may be that the LORD God of hosts will be gracious unto the remnant of Joseph.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

[f] Hos. iv. 15; x. 3.——[g] Ver. 4.——[h] Chap. vi. 12.——[i] Job ix. 9; xxxviii. 31.——[k] Psa. civ. 20.——[l] Job xxxviii. 34; chap. ix. 6.——[m] Chap. iv. 13.——[n] Heb. spoil.——[o] Isa. xxix. 21. [p] 1 Kings xxii. 8.——[q] Deut. xxviii. 30, 38, 39; Mic. vi. 15; Zeph. i. 13; Hag. i. 6.——[r] Heb. vineyards of desire.——[s] Chap. ii. 26.——[t] Or, a ransom.——[u] Isa. xxix. 21; chap. ii. 7. [v] Chap. vi. 10.——[w] Mic. iii. 11.——[x] Psa. xxxiv. 14; xcvii. 10; Rom. xii. 9.——[y] Exod. xxxii. 30; 2 Kings xix. 4; Joel ii. 14.

Jeroboam's golden calves, and at Gilgal were carved images; both were places in which idolatry was triumphant. The prophet shows them that all hope from those quarters is utterly vain; for Gilgal shall go into captivity, and Beth-el be brought to naught. There is a play or paronomasia on the letters and words in this clause: הגלגל גלה יגלה ובית אל יהיה לאין haggilgal galoh yigleh, ubeith el yihcyeh leaven. "This Gilgal shall go captive into captivity; and Beth-el (the house of God) shall be for Beth-aven," (the house of iniquity.)

Verse 6. Seek the Lord, and ye shall live] Repeated from ver. 4.

In the house of Joseph] The Israelites of the ten tribes, of whom Ephraim and Manasseh, sons of Joseph, were the chief.

Verse 7. Ye who turn judgment to wormwood] Who pervert judgment; causing him who obtains his suit to mourn sorely over the expenses he has incurred in gaining his right.

Verse 8. That maketh the seven stars and Orion] Or, Hyades and Arcturus, Kimah and Kesil. See my notes on Job ix. 9, and xxxviii. 32, where the subject of this verse is largely considered.

Turneth the shadow of death into the morning] Who makes day and night, light and darkness.

Calleth for the waters of the sea] Raising them up by evaporation, and collecting them into clouds.

And poureth them out] Causing them to drop down in showers upon the face of the earth. Who has done this! JEHOVAH is his name.

Verse 9. That strengtheneth the spoiled] Who takes the part of the poor and oppressed against the oppressor; and, in the course of his providence, sets up the former, and depresses the latter.

Verse 10. They hate him that rebuketh in the gate] They cannot bear an upright magistrate, and will not have righteous laws executed.

Verse 11. Your treading is upon the poor] You tread them under your feet; they form the road on which ye walk; and yet it was by oppressing and impoverishing them that ye gained your riches.

Ye take from him burdens of wheat] Ye will have his bread for doing him justice.

Verse 12. I know your manifold transgressions] I have marked the multitude of your smaller crimes, as well as your mighty offences. Among their greater offences were, 1. Their afflicting the righteous. 2. Taking bribes to blind their eyes in judgment. And, 3. Refusing to hear the poor, who had no money to give them.

Verse 13. The prudent shall keep silence] A wise man will consider that it is useless to complain. He can have no justice without bribes; and he has no money to give: consequently, in such an evil time, it is best to keep silence.

Verse 14. Seek good, and not evil] Is there a greater mystery in the world, than that a man, instead of seeking good, will seek evil, knowing that it is evil?

And so the Lord] As God is the Fountain of good, so they who seek the supreme good seek him: and they who seek shall find him; for the Lord, the God of hosts, shall be with him.

Verse 15. Hate the evil, and love the good] What ruins you, avoid; what helps you, cleave to. And as a proof that you take this advice, purify the seats of justice; and then expect God to be gracious to the remnant of Joseph—to the posterity of the ten tribes.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

16 Therefore the LORD, the God of hosts, the Lord, saith thus; Wailing shall be in all streets; and they shall say in all the highways, Alas! alas! and they shall call the husbandman to mourning, and [z] such as are skilful of lamentation to wailing.

17 And in all vineyards shall be wailing: for [a] I will pass through thee, saith the LORD.

18 [b] Wo unto you that desire the day of the LORD! to what end is it for you? [c] the day of the LORD is darkness, and not light.

19 [d] As if a man did flee from a lion, and a bear met him; or went into the house and leaned his hand on the wall, and a serpent bit him.

20 Shall not the day of the LORD be darkness, and not light? even very dark, and no brightness in it?

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 788. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

21 [e] I hate, I despise your feast days, and [f] I will not [g] smell in your solemn assemblies.

22 [h] Though ye offer me burnt-offerings and your meat-offerings, I will not accept them: neither will I regard the [i] peace-offerings of your fat beasts.

23 Take thou away from me the noise of thy songs; for I will not hear the melody of thy viols.

24 [k] But let judgment [l] run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream.

25 [m] Have ye offered unto me sacrifices

[z] Jer. ix. 17.——[a] Exod. xii. 2; Nah. i. 12.——[b] Isa. v. 19; Jer. xvii. 15; Ezek. xii. 22, 27; 2 Pet. iii. 4.——[c] Jer. xxx. 7; Joel ii. 2; Zeph. i. 15.——[d] Jer. xlviii. 44.——[e] Prov. xxi. 27; Isa. i. 11–16; Jer. vi. 20; Hos. viii. 13.

[f] Lev. xxvi. 31.——[g] Or, smell your holy days.——[h] Isa. lxvi. 3; Mic. vi. 6, 7.——[i] Or, thank-offerings.——[k] Hos. vi. 6; Mic. vi. 8.——[l] Heb. roll.——[m] Deut. xxxii. 17; Josh. xxiv. 14; Ezek. xx. 8, 16, 24; Acts vii. 42, 43; See Isa. xliii. 23.

Verse 16. They shall call the husbandman to mourning] Because the crops have failed, and the ground has been tilled in vain.

Such as are skilful of lamentation] See the note on Jer. ix. 17.

Verse 17. And in all vineyards shall be wailing] The places where festivity especially used to prevail.

I will pass through thee] As I passed, by the ministry of the destroying angel, through Egypt, not to spare, but to destroy.

Verse 18. Wo unto you that desire the day of the Lord] The prophet had often denounced the coming of God's day, that is, of a time of judgment; and the unbelievers had said, "Let his day come, that we may see it." Now the prophet tells them that that day would be to them darkness—calamity, and not light—not prosperity.

Verse 19. As if a man did flee from a lion, and a bear met him] They shall go from one evil to another. He who escapes from the lion's mouth shall fall into the bear's paws:—

Incidit in Scyllam, cupiens vitare Charybdim.

The Israelites, under their king Menahem, wishing to avoid a civil war, called in Pul, king of Assyria, to help them. This led to a series of evils inflicted by the Syrian and Assyrian kings, till at last Israel was ravaged by Shalmaneser, and carried into captivity. Thus, in avoiding one evil they fell into another still more grievous.

Leaned his hand on a wall, and a serpent bit him.] Snakes and venomous animals are fond of taking up their lodging in walls of houses, where they can either find or make holes; and it is dangerous to sit near them or lean against them. In the East Indies they keep the faithful mongose, a species of ichneumon, in their houses, for the purpose of destroying the snakes that infest them.

Verse 21. I hate, I despise your feast days] I abominate those sacrificial festivals where there is no piety; and I despise them because they pretend to be what they are not. This may refer to the three annual festivals which were still observed in a certain way among the Israelites.

Verse 22. The peace-offerings of your fat beasts.] מריאיכם merieychem probably means buffaloes; and so Bochart.

Verse 23. The noise of thy songs—the melody of thy viols.] They had both vocal and instrumental music in those sacrificial festivals; and God hated the noise of the one and shut his ears against the melody of the other. In the first there was nothing but noise, because their hearts were not right with God; and in the latter there could be nothing but (זמרת zimrath) cutting and scraping, because there was no heart—no religious sense in the thing, and nearly as little in them that used it. See on chap. vi. 5.

Verse 24. Let judgment run down] Let the execution of justice be everywhere like the showers that fall upon the land to render it fertile; and let righteousness in heart and life be like a mighty river, or the Jordan, that shall wind its course through the whole nation, and carry every abomination into the Dead Sea. Let justice and righteousness prevail everywhere, and sweep their contraries out of the land.

Verse 25. Have ye offered unto me sacrifices] Some have been led to think that "during the forty years which the Israelites spent in the wilderness, between Egypt and the promised land, they did not offer any sacrifices, as in their circumstances it was impossible; they offered none because they had none." But such people must have forgotten that when the covenant was made at Sinai, there were burnt-offerings and peace-offerings of oxen sacrificed to the Lord, Exod. xxiv. 5; and at the setting up of the tabernacle the twelve princes of the twelve tribes offered each a young bullock, a ram, and a lamb, for a burnt-offering; a kid for a sin-offering; two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, and five lambs, for a peace-offering, Num. vii. 12, &c..

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

and offerings in the wilderness forty years, O house of Israel?

26 But ye have borne [n] the tabernacle [o] of your Moloch and Chiun your images, the star of your god, which ye made to yourselves.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir annum 10

27 Therefore will I cause you to go into captivity [p] beyond Damascus, saith the LORD, [q] whose name is The God of hosts.

[n] Or, Siccuth your king.——[o] 1 Kings xi. 33.

[p] 2 Kings xvii. 6.——[q] Chap. iv. 13.

which amounted to an immense number of victims offered in the course of the twelve days during which this feast of the dedication lasted. At the consecration of priests, bullocks and rams to a considerable number were offered, see Lev. viii. 1, &c.; but they were not offered so regularly, nor in such abundance, as they were after the settlement in the promised land. Learned men, therefore, have considered this verse as speaking thus: Did ye offer to me, during forty years in the wilderness, sacrifices in such a way as was pleasing to me? Ye did not; for your hearts were divided, and ye were generally in a spirit of insurrection or murmuring.

Verse 26. But ye have borne] The preceding verse spoke of their fathers; the present verse speaks of the Israelites then existing, who were so grievously addicted to idolatry, that they not only worshipped at stated public places the idols set up by public authority, but they carried their gods about with them everywhere.

The tabernacle of your Moloch] Probably a small portable shrine, with an image of their god in it, such as Moloch; and the star or representative of their god Chiun. For an ample exposition of this verse, see the note on Acts vii. 42; to which let me add, that from Picart's Religious Ceremonies, vol. iii. p. 199, we find that there was an idol named Choun worshipped among the Peruvians from the remotest antiquity.

Verse 27. Will I cause you to go into captivity beyond Damascus] That is, into Assyria, the way to which, from Judea, was by Damascus.

But St. Stephen says, Acts vii. 43, beyond Babylon; because the Holy Spirit that was in him chose to extend the meaning of the original text to that great and final captivity of the Jews in general, when Zedekiah, their last king, and the people of Judea, were carried into Mesopotamia, Armenia, and Media; see 2 Kings xvii. 7, 24. This captivity happened after the time of Amos.

CHAPTER VI.

The prophet reproves his people for indulging themselves in luxurious ease, and forming alliances with their powerful idolatrous neighbours, 1. He asks if their lands or their lot be better than their own, 2, that they should choose to worship the gods of the heathen, and forsake Jehovah. Then follows an amplification of the sin which the prophet reproves, 3–6; to which he annexes very awful threatenings, confirmed by the oath of Jehovah, 7, 8. He next particularly specifies the punishment of their sins by pestilence, 9–11; by famine, or a drought that should harden the earth so that it could not be tilled, 12; and by the sword of the Assyrians, 14.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

WO [a] to them that [b] are at ease in Zion, and trust in the mountain of Samaria, which are named [c] chief [d] of the nations, to whom the house of Israel came!

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

2 [e] Pass ye unto [f] Calneh, and see; and from thence go ye to [a] Luke vi. 24.——[b] Or, are secure.——[c] Exod. xix. 5.

[d] Or, first-fruits.——[e] Jer. ii. 10.——[f] Isa. x. 9; taken cir. 794.

NOTES ON CHAP. VI.

Verse 1. Wo to them that are at ease in Zion] For השאננים hashshaanannim, "who dwell at ease," it has been proposed to read השענגים hashshaanannim, "who confidently lean," the two words differing only in one letter, an ע ain for an א aleph. They leaned confidently on Zion; supposing that, notwithstanding their iniquities they should be saved for Zion's sake. Thus the former clause will agree better with the latter, "leaning upon Zion," and "trusting in the mountain of Samaria." Those that are at ease may mean those who have no concern about the threatened judgments, and who have no deep concern for the salvation of their own souls. Houbigant would read, "Wo to them who despise Zion, and trust in Samaria." So the Septuagint, reading שנאים soneim, hating, instead of שאננים shaanannim, being at rest, tranquil. Calmet first proposed this conjecture; Houbigant follows him.

Are named chief] Newcome renders, "That are named after the chief of the nations;" and observes, that the Hebrew word נקבי nekubey is an allusion to marking a name or character by punctures. See on Isa. xliv. 5. They call themselves not after their ancestors, but after the chief of the idolatrous nations with whom they intermarry contrary to the law.

Perhaps the words here rather refer to the mountains and their temples, than to the people. The mountain of Zion, and the mountain of Samaria, were considered

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

[g] Hamath the great: then go down to [h] Gath of the Philistines: [i] be they better than these kingdoms? or their border greater than your border?

3 Ye that [k] put far away the [l] evil day, [m] and cause [n] the [o] seat of violence to come near;

4 That lie upon beds of ivory, and [p] stretch themselves upon their couches, and eat the lambs out of the flock, and the calves out of the midst of the stall;

5 [q] That [r] chant to the sound of the viol, and invent to themselves instruments of music, [s] like David;

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

6 That drink [t] wine in bowls, and anoint themselves with the chief ointments: [u] but they are not grieved for the [v] affliction of Joseph.

7 Therefore now shall they go captive with the first that go captive, and the banquet of them that stretched themselves shall be removed.

8 [w] The Lord GOD hath sworn by himself,

[g] 2 Kings xviii. 34.——[h] Josh. xi. 22; 1 Sam. v. 8; 2 Chron. xxvi. 6.——[i] Nah. iii. 8.——[k] Ezek. xii. 27.——[l] Ch. v. 18; ix. 10. [m] Chap. v. 12; ver. 12.——[n] Psa. xciv. 20.——[o] Or, habitation.

[p] Or, abound with superfluities.——[q] Isa. v. 12.——[r] Or, quaver. [s] 1 Chron. xxiii. 5.——[t] Or, in bowls of wine.——[u] Gen. xxxvii. 25. [v] Heb. breach.——[w] Jer. li. 14; Heb. vi. 13, 17.

the chief or most celebrated among the nations, as the two kingdoms to which they belonged were the most distinguished on the earth.

Verse 2. Pass ye unto Calneh] This is, says Calmet, the Ctesiphon on the river Tigris.

Hamath] The same as Emesa. Hamath was a city on the Orontes, in Syria.

Gath] A well-known town, and head of one of the five seignories of the Philistines.

Be they better] You have no more reason to expect exemption from the consequences of your sins than they had. They have been punished; so shall you. Why then will ye trust in their gods, that could not save their own cities?

Verse 3. Ye that put far away the evil day] Wo to you who will not consider the day of approaching vengeance; but continue in your iniquity, and harden your hearts. Ye bring your iniquities nearer, and still suppose your punishment to be at a greater distance.

Verse 4. That lie upon beds of ivory] The word הוי hoi, wo, is understood at the beginning of each of the first, third, fourth, fifth, and sixth verses. The beds mentioned here may be either sofas to recline on at table, or beds to sleep on; and these among the ancients were ornamented with ivory inlaid. They were called lectos eburatos by Plautus, lectos eburnos by Horace, "ivory beds." Probably those ornamented with shells, or mother-of-pearl, may be intended. Several works of this kind may be still seen in Palestine and other places. I have before me a cross brought from Jerusalem, incrusted all over with mother-of-pearl, and various figures chased on it.

There must have been a great deal of luxury and effeminacy among the Israelites at this time; and, consequently, abundance of riches. This was in the time of Jeroboam the second, when the kingdom had enjoyed a long peace. The description in the fourth, fifth, and sixth verses, is that of an Asiatic court even in the present day.

Verse 5. And invent to themselves instruments of music, like David] See the note on 1 Chron. xxiii. 5; and see especially the note on 2 Chron. xxix. 25. I believe that David was not authorized by the Lord to introduce that multitude of musical instruments into the Divine worship of which we read; and I am satisfied that his conduct in this respect is most solemnly reprehended by this prophet; and I farther believe that the use of such instruments of music, in the Christian Church, is without the sanction and against the will of God; that they are subversive of the spirit of true devotion, and that they are sinful. If there was a wo to them who invented instruments of music, as did David under the law, is there no wo, no curse to them who invent them, and introduce them into the worship of God in the Christian Church? I am an old man, and an old minister; and I here declare that I never knew them productive of any good in the worship of God; and have had reason to believe that they were productive of much evil. Music, as a science, I esteem and admire: but instruments of music in the house of God I abominate and abhor. This is the abuse of music; and here I register my protest against all such corruptions in the worship of the Author of Christianity. The late venerable and most eminent divine, the Rev. John Wesley, who was a lover of music, and an elegant poet, when asked his opinion of instruments of music being introduced into the chapels of the Methodists, said, in his terse and powerful manner, "I have no objection to instruments of music in our chapels, provided they are neither HEARD nor SEEN." I say the same, though I think the expense of purchase had better be spared.

The word הפרטים happoretim, which we render chant, and the margin quaver, signifies to dance, to skip, &c. In the sight of such a text, fiddlers, drummers, waltzers, &c., may well tremble, who perform to excite detestable passions.

Verse 6. That drink wine in bowls] Perhaps the costliness of the drinking vessels, more than the quantity drank, is that which is here reprehended by the prophet. Drinking vessels of the most costly materials, and of the most exquisite workmanship, are still in use; and as to precious ointments and perfumes among the Jews, we have a proof that the contents of one small box was worth three hundred denarii, at least seven pounds ten shillings sterling. See the case in the Gospel, John xii. 5, and the note there.

Verse 7. With the first that go captive] The house of Israel shall be carried into captivity before the house of Judah.

Verse 8. The Lord God hath sworn by himself] בנפשו benaphsho, by his soul, his being, existence.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 31. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

saith the LORD the God of hosts, I abhor [x] the excellency of Jacob, and hate his palaces: therefore will I deliver up the city with all [y] that is therein.

9 And it shall come to pass, if there remain ten men in one house, that they shall die.

10 And a man's uncle shall take him up, and he that burneth him, to bring out the bones out of the house, and shall say unto him that is by the sides of the house, Is there yet any with thee? and he shall say, No. Then shall he say, [z] Hold thy tongue: [a] for [b] we may not make mention of the name of the LORD.

11 For, behold, [c] the LORD commandeth, [d] and he will smite the great house with [e] breaches, and the little house with clefts.

A. M. cir. 3217 B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban.. cir. annum 10.

12 Shall horses run upon the rock? will one plough there with oxen? for [f] ye have turned judgment into gall, and the fruit of righteousness into hemlock:

13 Ye which rejoice in a thing of naught, which say, Have we not taken to us horns by our own strength?

14 But, behold, [g] I will raise up against you a nation, O house of Israel, saith the LORD the God of hosts; and they shall afflict you from the [h] entering in of Hamath unto the [i] river of the wilderness.

[x] Psa. xlvii. 4; Ezek. xxiv. 21; chap. viii. 7.——[y] Heb. the fulness thereof.——[z] Chap. v. 13.——[a] Chap. viii. 3.——[b] Or, they will not, or have not.

[c] Isa. lv. 11.——[d] Chap. iii. 15.——[e] Or, droppings.——[f] Hos. x. 4; chap. v. 7.——[g] Jer. v. 15.——[h] Num. xxxiv. 8; 1 Kings viii. 65.——[i] Or, valley.

Verse 9. Ten men—they shall die.] ALL shall be cut off by the sword, or by captivity, or by famine.

Verse 10. A man's uncle shall take him up] Bp. Newcome says, this obscure verse seems to describe the effects of famine and pestilence during the siege of Samaria. The carcass shall be burnt; and the bones removed with no ceremony of funeral rites, and without the assistance of the nearest kinsman. Solitude shall reign in the house; and if one is left, he must be silent, (see chap. viii. 3,) and retired, lest he be plundered of his scanty provision! Burning the body, and then collecting the ashes, and putting them into an urn, was deemed the most honourable mode of burial.

Verse 11. He will smite the great house with breaches] The great and small shall equally suffer; no distinction shall be made; rich and poor shall fall together; death has received his commission, and he will spare none. Horace has a sentiment precisely like this, Carm. Lib. i., Od. iv., v. 13.

Pallida mors æquo pulsat pede pauperum TABERNAS, Regumque TURRES.

With equal pace impartial fate
Knocks at the palace as the cottage gate.

But this may refer particularly to the houses of the poor in Eastern countries; their mud walls being frequently full of clefts; the earth of which they are built seldom adhering together because of its sandiness.

Verse 12. Shall horses run upon the rock?] First, they could not do it, because they were unshod; for the shoeing of horses with iron was not then known. Secondly, If they did run on the rock, it would be useless to their owner, and hurtful to themselves. Thirdly, And it would be as useless to plough on the rock with oxen; for there it would be impossible to sow with any advantage. Fourthly, Just as useless and injurious would it be to put gall in the place of judgment, and hemlock in the place of righteousness. You have not only been labouring in vain for yourselves, but you have also been oppressive to others; and for both ye shall suffer.

Verse 13. Ye which rejoice in a thing of naught] In your idols: for an idol is nothing in the world.

Have we not taken to us horns] We have arrived to power and dignity by our strength. Horns were the symbols of power and authority. So Horace:—

Vina parant animos: tum pauper cornua sumet.

"Wine repairs our strength, and furnishes the poor with horns."

At such times they think themselves as great as the greatest.

Verse 14. I will raise up against you a nation] The Assyrians under Pul, Tiglath-pileser, and Shalmaneser, who subdued the Israelites at various times, and at last carried them away captive in the days of Hosea, the last king of Israel in Samaria.

From the entering in of Hamath (on the north) unto the river of the wilderness.] Besor, which empties itself into the sea, not far from Gaza, and was in the southern part of the tribe of Simeon.

CHAPTER VII.

In this chapter God represents to Amos, by three several visions, the judgments he is about to bring on Israel. The first is a plague of locusts, threatening to cut off the hopes of the harvest by attacking it in the time of the second growth; the first luxuriances of the crop being probably mowed for the king's horses, 1–3

The next vision threatens a judgment by fire, which would consume a great part, 4–6; and the third a total overthrow of Israel, levelling it as it were by a line, 7–9. The rest of the chapter is a denunciation of heavy judgments against Amaziah, priest of Beth-el, who had brought an accusation to the king against the prophet, 10–17.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

THUS hath the Lord GOD showed unto me; and, behold, he formed [a] grasshoppers in the beginning of the shooting up of the latter growth; and, lo, it was the latter growth after the king's mowings.

2 And it came to pass, that when they had made an end of eating the grass of the land, then I said, O Lord GOD, forgive, I beseech thee: [b] by [c] whom shall Jacob arise? for he is small.

3 [d] The LORD repented for this: It shall not be, saith the LORD.

4 Thus hath the Lord GOD showed unto me: and, behold, the Lord GOD called to contend by fire, and it devoured the great deep, and did eat up a part.

5 Then said I, O Lord GOD, cease, I beseech thee: [e] by whom shall Jacob arise? for he is small.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

6 The LORD repented for this: This also shall not be, saith the Lord GOD.

7 Thus he showed me: and, behold, the Lord stood upon a wall made by a plumbline, with a plumbline in his hand.

8 And the LORD said unto me, Amos, what seest thou? And I said, A plumbline. Then said the Lord, Behold, [f] I will set a plumbline in the midst of my people Israel: [g] I will not again pass by them any more:

9 [h] And the high places of Isaac shall be desolate, and the sanctuaries of Israel shall be laid waste; and I will rise against [i] the house of Jeroboam with the sword.

10 Then Amaziah [k] the priest of Beth-

[a] Or, green worms.——[b] Isa. li. 19; ver. 5.——[c] Or, who of or for Jacob shall stand?——[d] Deut. xxxii. 36; ver. 6; Jonah iii. 10; James v. 16.——[e] Ver. 2, 3.——[f] See 2 Kings xxi. 13; Isa. xxviii. 17; xxxiv. 11; Lam. ii. 8.——[g] Chap. viii. 2; Mic. vii. 18. [h] Beer-sheba, Gen. xxvi. 25; xlvi. 1; chap. v. 5; viii. 14. [i] 1 Kings xvi. 3.——[k] 1 Kings xii. 32.

NOTES ON CHAP. VII.

Verse 1. Behold, he formed grasshoppers] גוב gobai is generally understood here to signify locusts. See the notes on Joel i. and ii.

The shooting up of the latter growth] The early crop of grass had been already mowed and housed. The second crop or rowing, as it is called in some places, was not yet begun. By the king's mowings we may understand the first crop, a portion of which the king probably claimed as being the better hay; but the words may signify simply the prime crop, that which is the best of the whole. Houbigant thinks the shearing of the king's sheep is meant.

Verse 2. By whom shall Jacob arise?] The locusts, the symbols of the many enemies that had impoverished Jerusalem, having devoured much of the produce of the land, were proceeding, till, at the intercession of the prophet, they were removed. Then, seeing in the light of prophecy the nation in every sense brought low, he cries, "By whom shall Jacob arise? for he is small." Calmet justly remarks: "After the death of Jeroboam the second, the kingdom, so flourishing and powerful before, was reduced to such weakness that it was obliged to have recourse to strangers for support. Menahem applied to Pul, king of Assyria, whence arose the final misery of the state.

Verse 3. The Lord repented] Changed his purpose of destroying them by the locusts. See ver. 6.

Verse 4. The Lord God called to contend by fire] Permitted war, both civil and foreign, to harass the land, after the death of Jeroboam the second. These wars would have totally destroyed it, had not the prophet interceded.

It devoured the great deep, and did eat up a part.] We are here to understand the partially destructive wars which afterwards took place; for the Lord causes all these things to pass before the eyes of Amos in the vision of prophecy; and intimates that, at the intercession of his prophets, total ruin should be prevented.

Verse 7. With a plumbline in his hand.] This appears to be intended as an emblem of strict justice, and intimated that God would now visit them according to their iniquities.

Verse 8. I will set a plumbline] I will visit them by justice without any mixture of mercy.

Verse 9. And the high places of Isaac shall be desolate] Their total destruction is at hand. The high place of Isaac was Beer-sheba, where Isaac had built an altar to the Lord, Gen. xxvi. 25. This high place, which had been abused to idolatrous uses, was demolished by Josiah, king of Judah, as we read in 2 Kings xxiii. 8, for he defiled all the high places from Geba to Beer-sheba.

I will rise against the house of Jeroboam] The Lord had promised to Jehu, the ancestor of Jeroboam, that his family should sit on the throne of Israel to the fourth generation. Zechariah, the son of Jeroboam, was the fourth in order after Jehu; and on him the threatening in this verse fell; for he was murdered by Shallum after he had reigned six months, and in him the family became extinct. See 2 Kings x. 30, and xv. 8–10.

Verse 10. Amaziah the priest of Beth-el] The idolatrous priest who had been established by the king to maintain the worship of the golden el, sent to [l] Jeroboam king of Israel, saying, Amos hath conspired against thee in the midst of the house of Israel: the land is not able to bear all his words.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

11 For thus Amos saith, Jeroboam shall die by the sword, and Israel shall surely be led away captive out of their own land.

12 Also Amaziah said unto Amos, O thou seer, go, flee thee away into the land of Judah, and there eat bread, and prophesy there:

13 But [m] prophesy not again any more at Beth-el: [n] for it is the king's [o] chapel, and it is the [p] king's court.

14 Then answered Amos, and said to Amaziah, I was no prophet, neither was I [q] a prophet's son; [r] but I was a herdman, and a gatherer of [s] sycamore fruit:

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

15 And the LORD took me [t] as I followed the flock, and the LORD said unto me, Go, prophesy unto my people Israel.

16 Now therefore hear thou the word of the LORD: Thou sayest, Prophesy not against Israel, and [u] drop not thy word against the house of Isaac.

17 [v] Therefore thus saith the LORD; [w] Thy wife shall be a harlot in the city, and thy sons and thy daughters shall fall by the sword, and thy land shall be divided by line; and thou shalt die in a polluted land: and Israel shall surely go into captivity forth of his land.

[l] 2 Kings xiv. 23.——[m] Chapter ii. 12.——[n] 1 Kings xii. 32; xiii. 1.——[o] Or, sanctuary.——[p] Heb. house of the kingdom. [q] 1 Kings xx. 35; 2 Kings ii. 5; iv. 38; vi. 1.——[r] Chap. i. 1; Zechariah xiii. 5.——[s] Or, wild figs.——[t] Heb. from behind. [u] Ezek. xxi. 2; Micah ii. 6.——[v] See Jer. xxviii. 12; xxix. 21, 25, 31, 32.——[w] Isa. xiii. 16; Lam. v. 11; Hos. iv. 13; Zech. ix. 2.

calves which Jeroboam the elder had set up at this place.

Amos hath conspired against thee] This was truly a lying prophet; there is not one word of truth in this message which he sent to Jeroboam. Amos had not conspired against the king—had not said that Jeroboam should die by the sword—and had not said that Israel should be carried away captive, though this last was implied in God's threatenings, and afterwards delivered by this prophet; see ver. 17.

Verse 12. O thou seer] He pretends kindness to the prophet, and counsels him to go into Judea, and prophesy there and be safe, even in the time that he had accused him of high treason against Jeroboam. Hireling priests of this kind have ever been the great enemies of the true prophets of God; and when they could bring no charge of false doctrine or immorality against them, have accused them of conspiring against the government; and because they have preached against sin, have held them up as exciting insurrection among the people.

Verse 13. But prophesy not—at Beth-el] He must not speak against idolatry, because that was the king's religion; and he who speaks against the king's religion must be an enemy to the state. This was the doctrine held in England by popish James II. and his insidious Jesuit hireling priests, till God in his mercy put this pitiful tyrant down, and with him his false prophets, and the degrading superstition which they endeavoured to establish in these lands.

Verse 14. I was no prophet] I am an extraordinary messenger of God. I am not called to the prophetic office but for this occasion. I have no message to Judah, and therefore need not go there. I have a message to Israel alone, and I must faithfully deliver it.

For the account which Amos gives here of himself, see the introduction.

Verse 16. Now therefore hear thou the word of the Lord] While he was speaking in his own vindication, God seems to have inspired him with the awful prediction which he immediately delivers.

Verse 17. Thy wife shall be a harlot] As this was the word of the Lord, so it was fulfilled; but as we have no farther account of this idolatrous priest, so we cannot tell in what circumstances these threatenings were executed. 1. His wife was to be a public prostitute; she was probably such already privately in the temple, as the wife of an idolatrous priest. 2. His sons and daughters were to fall by the sword. 3. Their inheritance was to be taken by strangers. 4. And himself was to die a captive in a heathen land.

Israel shall surely go into captivity] He now declares fully what he had not declared before, though Amaziah had made it a subject of accusation. This particular was probably revealed at this instant, as well as those which concerned Amaziah and his family.

CHAPTER VIII.

This chapter begins with a fourth vision denoting the certainty and nearness of the destruction of Israel, 1–3. The prophet then proceeds to reprove their oppression and injustice, 4–7. Strong and beautiful figures, by which is represented the complete dissolution of the Israelitish polity, 8–10. The people threatened with a most awful judgment; a FAMINE of the word of God, 11–14.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

THUS hath the Lord GOD showed unto me: and behold a basket of summer fruit.

2 And he said, Amos, what seest thou? And I said, A basket of summer fruit. Then said the LORD unto me, [a] The end is come upon my people of Israel; [b] I will not again pass by them any more.

3 And [c] the songs of the temple [d] shall be howlings in that day, saith the Lord GOD: there shall be many dead bodies in every place; [e] they shall cast them forth [f] with silence.

4 Hear this, O ye that [g] swallow up the needy, even to make the poor of the land to fail,

5 Saying, When will the [h] new moon be gone, that we may sell corn? and [i] the Sabbath, that we may [k] set forth wheat, [l] making the ephah small, and the shekel great, and [m] falsifying the balances by deceit?

6 That we may buy the poor for [n] silver, and the needy for a pair of shoes; yea, and sell the refuse of the wheat?

7 The LORD hath sworn by [o] the excellency of Jacob, Surely [p] I will never forget any of their works.

[a] Ezek. vii. 2.——[b] Chap. vii. 8.——[c] Chap. v. 23.——[d] Heb. shall howl.——[e] Chap. vi. 9, 10.——[f] Heb. be silent.——[g] Psa. xiv. 4; Prov. xxx. 14.——[h] Or, month.

[i] Neh. xiii. 15, 16.——[k] Heb. open.——[l] Mic. vi. 10, 11. [m] Heb. perverting the balances of deceit; Hos. xii. 7.——[n] Chap. ii. 6.——[o] Chap. vi. 8.——[p] Hos. viii. 13; ix. 9.

NOTES ON CHAP. VIII.

Verse 1. A basket of summer fruit.] As summer fruit was not proper for preserving, but must be eaten as soon as gathered, so the Lord intimates by this symbol that the kingdom of Israel was now ripe for destruction, and that punishment must descend upon it without delay. Some think the prophet means the fruits at the end of autumn. And as after the autumn no fruit could be expected, so Israel's summer is gone by, her autumn is ended, and she shall yield no more fruit. Or, the autumn of her iniquity is come; the measure is filled up, and now she shall gather the fruit of her sin in the abundance of her punishment.

Verse 2. A basket of summer fruit] כלוב קיץ kelub kayits; the end is come—בא הקץ ba hakkets: here is a paronomasia or play upon the words kayits, summer fruit, and kets, the end, both coming from similar roots. See the note on Ezek. vii. 2, where there is a similar play on the same word.

I will not again pass by them any more.] I will be no longer their Guardian.

Verse 3. The songs of the temple] Instead of שירות shiroth, songs, Houbigant reads שורות shoroth, the singing women; and Newcome follows him: "And the singing women of the palace shall howl in that day." Instead of joyous songs, they shall have nothing but lamentation.

They shall cast them forth with silence.] Every place shall be filled with the dead, and a dreadful silence shall reign universally; the few that remain being afraid either to speak or complain, or even to chant a funeral dirge for the most respectable of the dead.

Verse 4. Hear this, O ye that swallow up the needy] Ye that bruise the poor; exact from them, and tread them under foot.

Verse 5. When will the new moon be gone] This was kept as a kind of holy day, not by Divine command, but by custom. The Sabbath was strictly holy; and yet so covetous were they that they grudged to give to God and their own souls this seventh portion of time! But bad and execrable as they were, they neither set forth their corn, nor their wheat, nor any other kind of merchandise, on the Sabbath. They were saints then, when compared to multitudes called Christians, who keep their shops either partially or entirely open on the Lord's day, and buy and sell without any scruples of conscience. Conscience! alas! they have none; it is seared as with a hot iron. The strong man armed, in them, is quiet, for all his goods are in peace.

Making the ephah small, and the shekel great] Giving short measure, and taking full price; or, buying with a heavy weight, and selling with one that was light.

Falsifying the balances] Having one scale light, and the other weighty; one end of the beam long, and the other short. A few months ago I detected a knave with such balances; with a slip of his finger along the beam he altered the centre, which made three ounces short weight in every pound. He did it so dexterously, that though I knew he was cheating, or, as the prophet expresses it, was falsifying the balances by deceit, it was some time before I could detect the fraud, and not till I had been several times cheated by this accomplished knave. So we find that though the knaves of ancient Israel are dead, they have left their successors behind them.

Verse 6. That we may buy the poor for silver] Buying their services for such a time, with just money enough to clear them from other creditors.

And the needy for a pair of shoes] See on chap. ii. 6.

And sell the refuse of the wheat?] Selling bad wheat and damaged flour to poor people as good, knowing that such cannot afford to prosecute them.

Verse 7. By the excellency of Jacob] By the state of eminence to which he had raised the descendants of Jacob; or, by the excellent ONE of Jacob, that is, HIMSELF. The meaning is: "As surely as I have raised you to such a state of eminence, so surely will I punish you in proportion to your advantages and your crimes."

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante. U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

8 [q] Shall not the land tremble for this, and every one mourn that dwelleth therein? and it shall rise up wholly as a flood; and it shall be cast out and drowned, [r] as by the flood of Egypt.

9 And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord GOD, [s] that I will cause the sun to go down at noon, and I will darken the earth in the clear day:

10 [t] And I will turn your feasts into mourning, and all your songs into lamentations; [u] and I will bring up sackcloth upon all loins, and baldness upon every head; [v] and I will make it as the mourning of an only son, and the end thereof as a bitter day.

11 Behold, the days come, saith the Lord GOD, that I will send a famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but [w] of hearing the words of the LORD:

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

12 And they shall wander from sea to sea, and from the north even to the east, they shall run to and fro to seek the word of the LORD, and shall not find it.

13 In that day shall the fair virgins and young men faint for thirst.

14 They that [x] swear by [y] the sin of Samaria, and say, Thy god, O Dan, liveth; and, The [z] manner [a] of Beer-sheba liveth; even they shall fall, and never rise up again.

[q] Hos. iv. 3.——[r] Chap. ix. 5.——[s] Job. v. 14; Isa. xiii. 10; lix. 9, 10; Jer. xv. 9; Mic. iii. 6.——[t] Isa. i. 14; Tob. ii. 6. [u] Isa. xv. 2, 3; Jer. xlviii. 37; Ezek. vii. 18; xxvii. 31.

[v] Jer. vi. 26; Zech. xii. 10.——[w] 1 Sam. iii. 1; Psa. lxxiv. 9; Ezek. vii. 26.——[x] Hos. iv. 15.——[y] Deut. ix. 21.——[z] Heb. way; see Acts ix. 2; xviii. 25; xix. 9, 23; xxiv. 14.——[a] Ch. v. 5.

Verse 8. Shall not the land tremble for this] It is supposed that an earthquake is here intended, and that the rising up and subsiding as a flood refers to that heaving motion that takes place in an earthquake, and which the prophet here compares to the overflowing and subsiding of the waters of the Nile. But it may refer to commotions among the people.

Verse 9. I will cause the sun to go down at noon] This may either refer to that darkness which often precedes and accompanies earthquakes, or to an eclipse. Abp. Usher has shown that about eleven years after Amos prophesied there were two great eclipses of the sun; one at the feast of tabernacles, and the other some time before the passover. The prophet may refer to the darkness occasioned by those eclipses; yet I rather think the whole may refer to the earthquake.

Verse 10. I will turn your feasts into mourning] See on ver. 3.

A bitter day.] A time of grievous calamity.

Verse 11. A famine in the land] The most grievous of all famines, a famine of the words of Jehovah; a time in which no prophet should appear, no spiritual counsellor, no faithful reprover, none any longer who would point out the way of salvation, or would assure them of the mercy of God on their repentance and return to him. This is the severest of God's judgments on this side the worm that never dieth, and the fire that is never quenched.

Verse 12. They shall wander from sea to sea] From the Mediterranean to the Dead Sea; or from west to east, and from north to south, to seek the word of the Lord; to find a prophet, or any person authorized by God to show them the end of their calamities. In this state they shall continue, because they have rejected Him who is the bread of life.

Verse 14. By the sin of Samaria] Baal, who was worshipped here.

Thy god, O Dan] The golden calf, or ox, the representative of the Egyptian god Apis, or Osiris.

The manner of Beer-sheba] The worship, or object of worship. Another of the golden calves which Jeroboam had set up there. The word דרך dereck, way, is here taken for the object and mode of worship; see Acts xix. 9, where way is taken for the creed and form of Divine worship as practised by the followers of Christ, and by which they were distinguished from the Jews. See also Acts ix. 2.

CHAPTER IX

The first part of this chapter contains another vision, in which God is represented as declaring the final ruin of the kingdom of Israel, and the general dispersion of the people, 1–10. The prophet then passes to the great blessedness of the people of God under the Gospel dispensation, 11–15. See Acts xv. 15, 16.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

I SAW the Lord standing upon the altar: and he said, Smite the [a] lintel of the door, that the posts may shake: and [b] cut [c] them in the head, all of them; and I will slay the last of them with the sword: [d] he that fleeth of them shall not flee away, and he that escapeth of them shall not be delivered.

2 [e] Though they dig into hell, thence shall mine hand take them: [f] though they climb up to heaven, thence will I bring them down:

3 And though they hide themselves in the top of Carmel, I will search and take them out thence; and though they be hid from my sight in the bottom of the sea, thence will I command the serpent, and he shall bite them:

4 And though they go into captivity before their enemies, [g] thence will I command the sword, and it shall slay them: and [h] I will set mine eyes upon them for evil, and not for good.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

5 And the Lord God of hosts is he that toucheth the land, and it shall [i] melt, [k] and all that dwell therein shall mourn: and it shall rise up wholly like a flood; and shall be drowned, as by the flood of Egypt.

6 It is he that buildeth his [l m] stories [n] in the heaven, and hath founded his [o] troop in the earth; he that [p] calleth for the waters of the sea, and poureth them out upon the face of the earth: [q] The Lord is his name.

7 Are ye not as children of the Ethiopians

[a] Or, chapiter, or knop.——[b] Or, wound them.——[c] Psa. lxviii. 21; Hab. iii. 13.——[d] Chap. ii. 14.——[e] Psa. cxxxix. 8, &c. [f] Job xx. 6; Jer. li. 53; Obad. 4.——[g] Lev. xxvi. 33; Deut. xxviii. 65; Ezek. v. 12.——[h] Lev. xvii. 10; Jer. xliv. 11.——[i] Mic. i. 4. [k] Chap. viii. 8.——[l] Or, spheres.——[m] Heb. ascensions.——[n] Psa. civ. 3, 13.——[o] Or, bundle.——[p] Chap. v. 8.——[q] Chap. iv. 13.

NOTES ON CHAP. IX.

Verse 1. I saw the Lord standing upon the altar] As this is a continuation of the preceding prophecy, the altar here may be one of those either at Dan or Beer-sheba.

Smite the lintel] Either the piece of timber that binds the wall above the door, or the upper part of the door frame, in which the cheeks, or side posts, are inserted, and which corresponds to the threshold, or lower part of the door frame.

And cut them in the head] Let all the lintels of all the doors of all those temples be thus cut, as a sign that the whole shall be thrown down and totally demolished. Or this may refer to their heads—chief men, who were principals in these transgressions. Mark their temples, their priests, their prophets, and their princes, for destruction.

He that fleeth—shall not flee away] He shall be caught before he can get out of the reach of danger.

And he that escapeth (that makes good his flight) shall not be delivered.] Captivity, famine, or sword, shall reach him even there.

Verse 2. Though they dig into hell] Though they should get into the deepest caverns; though they climb up to heaven—get to the most inaccessible heights; I will drag them up from the one, and pull them down from the other.

Verse 3. Though they hide themselves] All these are metaphorical expressions, to show the impossibility of escape.

Verse 4. I will set mine eyes upon them for evil] I will use that very providence against them which before worked for their good. Should they look upward, they shall see nothing but the terrible lightning-like eye of a sin-avenging God.

Verse 5. The Lord God of hosts is he] So powerful is he that a touch of his hand shall melt or dissolve the land, and cause all its inhabitants to mourn. Here is still a reference to the earthquake. See the note, chap. viii. 8, where the same images are used.

Verse 6. Buildeth his stories in the heaven] There is here an allusion to large houses, where there are cellars, or places dug in the ground as repositories for corn; middle apartments, or stories, for the families to live in; and the house-top for persons to take the air upon. There may be here a reference to the various systems which God has formed in illimitable space, transcending each other as the planets do in our solar system: and thus we find Solomon speaking when addressing the Most High: "The heavens and the heaven of heavens cannot contain thee, השמים ושמי השמים hashshamayim ushemey hashshamayim, 1 Kings viii. 27. Six heavens are necessarily implied in these three words. According to the points, the first and third are in the dual number, and the second is the contracted form of the plural. But how many more spheres may be intended who can tell? There may be millions of millions of stellar systems in unlimited space; and then what are all these to the VAST IMMENSITY of God!

Hath founded his troop in the earth] אגדתו agud-datho, from אגד agad, to bind or gather together, possibly meaning the seas and other collections of waters which he has gathered together and bound by his perpetual decree, that they cannot pass; yet when he calleth for these very waters, as in the general deluge, he "poureth them out upon the face of the earth."

The Lord is his name.] This points out his infinite essence. But what is that essence? and what is his nature? and what his immensity and eternity? What archangel can tell?

Verse 7. Children of the Ethiopians] Or Cushites. Cush was the son of Ham, Gen. x. 6; and his descendants inhabited a part of Arabia Petræa and Arabia Felix. All this stock was universally despised. See Bochart.

The Philistines from Caphtor] The island of Crete,

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

unto me, O children of Israel? saith the LORD. Have not I brought up Israel out of the land of Egypt? and the [r] Philistines from [s] Caphtor, and the Syrians from [t] Kir?

8 Behold, [u] the eyes of the Lord GOD are upon the sinful kingdom, and I [v] will destroy it from off the face of the earth; saving that I will not utterly destroy the house of Jacob, saith the LORD.

9 For, lo, I will command, and I will [w] sift the house of Israel among all nations, like as corn is sifted in a sieve, yet shall not the least [x] grain fall upon the earth.

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

10 All the sinners of my people shall die by the sword, [y] which say, The evil shall not overtake nor prevent us.

11 [z] In that day will I raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen, and [a] close up the breaches thereof; and I will raise up his ruins, and I will build it as in the days of old:

12 [b] That they may possess the remnant of [r] Jer. xlvii. 4.——[s] Deut. ii. 23; Jer. xlvii. 4.——[t] Chap. i. 5. [u] Ver. 4.——[v] Jer. xxx. 11; xxxi. 35, 36; Obad. 16, 17.

[w] Heb. cause to move.——[x] Heb. stone.——[y] Chap. vi. 3. [z] Acts xv. 16, 17.——[a] Heb. hedge, or wall.——[b] Obad. 19.

the people of which were the Cherethim. See 1 Sam. xxx. 14; Ezek. xxv. 16; Zeph. ii. 5.

The Syrians from Kir?] Perhaps a city of the Medes, Isa. xxii. 6. Aram, from whom Syria had its name, was the son of Shem, Gen. x. 22. Part of his descendants settled in this city, and part in Aram Naharaim, "Syria of the two rivers," viz., Mesopotamia, included between the Tigris and the Euphrates.

The meaning of the verse is this: Do not presume on my having brought you out of the land of Egypt and house of bondage, into a land flowing with milk and honey. I have brought other nations, and some of your neighbours, who are your enemies, from comparatively barren countries, into fruitful territories; such, for instance, as the Philistines from Caphtor, and the Syrians from Kir.

Verse 8. The eyes of the Lord God are upon the sinful kingdom] The kingdom of Israel, peculiarly sinful; and therefore to be signally destroyed by the Assyrians.

I will not utterly destroy the house of Jacob] The race shall not become extinct: I will reserve them as monuments of my justice, and finally of my mercy.

Verse 9. I will sift the house of Israel among all nations] I will disperse them over the face of the earth; and yet I will so order it that the good shall not be lost; for though they shall be mixed among distant nations, yet there shall be a general restoration of them to their own land.

The least grain] צרור tseror, little stone, pebble, or gravel. Not one of them, howsoever little or contemptible, when the time comes, shall be left behind. All shall be collected in Christ, and brought into their own land.

Verse 10. All the sinners of my people] Those who are the boldest and most incredulous; especially they who despise my warnings, and say the evil day shall not overtake nor prevent us; they shall die by the sword. It is no evidence of a man's safety that he is presumptuously fearless. There is a blessing to him who trembles at God's word.

Verse 11. Will I raise up the tabernacle of David] It is well known that the kingdom of Israel, the most profane and idolatrous, fell first, and that the kingdom of Judah continued long after, and enjoyed considerable prosperity under Hezekiah and Josiah. The remnant of the Israelites that were left by the Assyrians became united to the kingdom of Judah; and of the others, many afterwards joined them: but this comparatively short prosperity and respite, previously to the Babylonish captivity, could not be that, as Calmet justly observes, which is mentioned here. This could not be called closing up the breaches, raising up the ruins, and building it as in the days of old; nor has any state of this kind taken place since; and, consequently, the prophecy remains to be fulfilled. It must therefore refer to their restoration under the Gospel, when they shall receive the Lord Jesus as their Messiah, and be by him restored to their own land. See these words quoted by James, Acts xv. 17. Then indeed it is likely that they shall possess the remnant of Edom, and have the whole length and breadth of Immanuel's land, ver. 12. Nor can it be supposed that the victories gained by the Asmoneans could be that intended by the prophet, and which he describes in such lofty terms. These victories procured only a short respite, and a very imperfect re-establishment of the tabernacle of David; and could not warrant the terms of the prediction in these verses.

Verse 12. That they may possess the remnant of Edom] Bp. Newcome translates this clause as follows: "That the residue of men may seek Jehovah, and all the heathen who are called by my name. Here, instead of ארום Edom, he reads אדם Adam, men or mankind, which is the reading of the Arabic, and some MSS. of the Syriac, and of Acts xv. 17.

The Pachomian MS. of the Septuagint adds here, ὁπως εκζητησωσι με, that they may seek me. And the Arabic has الرب the Lord; and instead of יירשו yireshu, "they shall possess," the learned bishop seems to have read ידרשו yidreshu, "they may seek;" and thus the text resembles the quotation by St. James, Acts xv. 17, "That the residue of men might seek after the Lord." It is strange that not one of the MSS. collated by Kennicott and De Rossi, nor any of my own, favours or countenances any of these alterations. I am of opinion, therefore, that we must dismiss all these conjectural emendations, and take the Hebrew text as we find it. That it speaks of the conversion of the Jews in Gospel times, we have the authority of the New Testament as above to prove; and if we cannot make the words, as they stand there, entirely

A. M. cir. 3217. B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

[c] Edom, and of all the heathen, [d] which are called by my name, saith the LORD that doeth this.

13 Behold [e] the days come, saith the LORD, that the ploughman shall overtake the reaper, and the treader of grapes him that [f] soweth seed; [g] and the mountains shall drop [h] sweet wine, and all the hills shall melt.

14 [i] And I will bring again the captivity of my people of Israel, and [k] they shall build the waste cities, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and drink the wine thereof; they shall also make gardens, and eat the fruit of them.

A. M. cir. 3217 B. C. cir. 787. Ante U. C. 34. Amulii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 10.

15 And I will plant them upon their land, and [l] they shall no more be pulled up out of their land which I have given them, saith the LORD thy God.

[c] Num. xxiv. 18.——[d] Heb. upon whom my name is called. [e] Lev. xxvi. 5.——[f] Heb. draweth forth.——[g] Joel iii. 18. [h] Or, new wine.

[i] Jer. xxx. 3.——[k] Isa. lxi. 4; lxv. 21; Ezek. xxxvi. 33–36. [l] Isaiah lx. 21; Jeremiah xxxii. 41; Ezekiel xxxiv. 28; Joel iii. 20.

to agree with the words here, the subject is not affected by it. The Jews shall be converted and restored, and this text in both covenants is a proof of it.

Verse 13. The ploughman shall overtake the reaper] All the seasons shall succeed in due and natural order: but the crops shall be so copious in the fields and in the vineyards, that a long time shall be employed in gathering and disposing of them; so that the seasons of ploughing, sowing, gathering the grapes, treading the wine-press, &c., shall press on the heels of each other; so vast will be the abundance, and so long the time necessary to gather and cure the grain and fruits. We are informed by travellers in the Holy Land, Barbary, &c., that the vintage at Aleppo lasts from the fifteenth of September to the middle of November; and that the sowing season begins at the close of October, and lasts through all November. Here, then, the ploughman, sower, grape-gatherer, and operator at the wine-press, not only succeed each other, but have parts of these operations going on at the same time. But great fertility in the land, abundance in the crops, and regularity of the seasons, seem to be the things which the prophet especially predicts. These are all poetical and prophetical images, by which happy times are pointed out.

Verse 14. They shall plant vineyards, and drink the wine] When threatened with great evils, chap. v. 11, it is said, "They shall plant pleasant vineyards, but shall not drink the wine of them." Previously to their restoration, they shall labour for others; after their restoration, they shall labour for themselves.

Verse 15. I will plant them upon their land] They shall receive a permanent establishment there.

And they shall no more be pulled up] Most certainly this prophecy has never yet been fulfilled. They were pulled out by the Assyrian captivity, and by that of Babylon. Many were planted in again, and again pulled out by the Roman conquest and captivity, and were never since planted in, but are now scattered among all the nations of the earth. I conclude, as the word of God cannot fail, and this has not yet been fulfilled, it therefore follows that it will and must be fulfilled to the fulness of its spirit and intention. And this is established by the conclusion: "Saith the Lord thy God." He is JEHOVAH, and cannot fail; he is THY GOD, and will do it. He can do it, because he is JEHOVAH; and he will do it, because he is THY GOD. Amen.

THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET OBADIAH.

Chronological Notes relative to this book, upon the supposition that it was written about five hundred and eighty-seven years before the commencement of the Christian era.

Year from the Creation, according to Archbishop Usher, 3417.—Year of the Jewish era of the world, 3174.—Year since the Flood, 1761.—Year from the vocation of Abram, 1335.—Year from the foundation of Solomon's temple, 425. Year since the division of Solomon's monarchy into the kingdoms of Israel and Judah, 389.—Year of the era of Iphitus, 298.—Second year of the forty-eighth Olympiad.—Year from the building of Rome, according to the Varronian or generally received computation, 167.—Year from the building of Rome, according to the Fasti Consulares, 166.—Year from the building of Rome, according to Polybius the historian, 165.—Year from the building of Rome, according to Fabius Pictor, 161.—Year since the overthrow of the kingdom of Israel by Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, 135.—Year since the destruction of the kingdom of Judah by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, 2.—Year of the Julian Period, 4127.—Year of the era of Nabonassar, 161.—Year before the birth of Christ, 583.—Year before the vulgar era of Christ's nativity, 587.—Cycle of the Sun, 11.—Cycle of the Moon, 4.—Thirtieth year of Tarquinius Priscus, the fifth king of the Romans.—Thirty-ninth year of Cyaraxes or Cyaxares, the fourth king of Media.—Nineteenth year of Agasicles, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Proclidæ.—Twenty-first year of Leon, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Eurysthenidæ.—Thirty-third year of Alyattes II., king of Lydia.—Sixteenth year of Æropas, the seventh king of Macedon.—Eighth year of Apries, king of Egypt; the same with the celebrated Pharaoh-hophrah.—Ninth year of Baal, king of the Tyrians.—Twentieth year of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon.

OBADIAH.

God is here represented as summoning the nations against Edom, and declaring that his strongholds should not save him, 1–4; that not a remnant, not a gleaning, should be left of him, 5; that the enemy would search out his people, and totally subdue them; and that none of their allies should stand by them, 6–9 He then enlarges on their particular offence, and threatens them with a speedy recompense, 10–16. The Babylonians accordingly subdued the Edomites, and expelled them from Arabia Petræa, of which they never afterwards recovered possession. The remaining verses contain a prophecy of the restoration of the Jews from the Babylonish captivity, and of their victory over all their enemies, 17–21. Some commentators think that these last verses were fulfilled by the conquests of the Maccabees over the Edomites. See 1 Macc. v. 3–5, 65, &c.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

THE vision of Obadiah. Thus saith the Lord GOD [a] concerning Edom; [b] We have heard a rumour from the LORD, and an ambassador is sent among the heathen, Arise ye, and let us rise up against her in battle.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

[a] Isa. xxi. 11; xxxiv. 5; Ezek. xxv. 12, 13, 14; Joel iii. 19; Mal. i. 3.——[b] Jer. xlix. 14, &c.

Who was this prophet? where born? of what country? at what time did he prophesy? who were his parents? when and where did he die? are questions which have been asked from the remotest antiquity; and which, to this day, have received no answer worthy of recording. There is a multitude of opinions concerning these points; and their multitude and discrepancy are the strongest proofs of their uncertainty. All that seems probable is, that, as he prophesied concerning the destruction of Edom, he flourished a

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci R. Roman., cir. annum. 30.

2 Behold, I have made thee small among the heathen: thou art greatly despised.

3 The pride of thine heart hath deceived thee, thou that dwellest in the clefts [c] of the rock, whose habitation is high; [d] that saith in his heart, Who shall bring me down to the ground?

4 [e] Though thou exalt thyself as the eagle, and though thou [f] set thy nest among the stars, thence will I bring thee down, saith the LORD.

5 If [g] thieves came to thee, if robbers by night, (how art thou cut off!) would they not have stolen till they had enough? if the grape-gatherers came to thee, [h] would they not leave [i] some grapes?

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587 Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

6 How are the things of Esau searched out! how are his hidden things sought up!

7 All the men of thy confederacy have brought thee even to the border: [k] the [l] men that were at peace with thee have deceived thee, and prevailed against thee; [m] they that eat thy bread have laid a wound under thee: [n] there is none understanding [o] in him.

[c] 2 Kings xiv. 7.——[d] Isa. xiv. 13, 14, 15; Rev. xviii. 7. [e] Job. xx. 6; Jer. xlix. 16; li. 53; Amos ix. 2.——[f] Isa. xiv. 13; Nah. iii. 16; Hab. ii. 9.——[g] Jer. xlix. 9.

[h] Deut. xxiv. 21; Isa. xvii. 6; xxiv. 13.——[i] Or, gleanings. [k] Heb. the men of thy peace.——[l] Jer. xxxviii. 22.——[m] Heb. the men of thy bread.——[n] Isa. xix. 11, 12.——[o] Or, of it.

little before, or a little after, the taking of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar, which happened about five hundred and eighty-eight years before Christ; and the destruction of Idumea by the same monarch, which took place a short time after; probably between 588 B. C. and 575 B. C., in the interval of the thirteen years which Nebuchadnezzar employed in the siege of Tyre, which he undertook immediately after the capture of Jerusalem.

Obadiah foretells the subduction of the Idumeans by the Chaldeans, and finally by the Jews, whom they had used most cruelly when brought low by other enemies. These prophecies have been literally fulfilled; for the Idumeans, as a nation, are totally extinct.

Whoever will be at the trouble to collate this short prophecy with the forty-ninth chapter of Jeremiah, will find a remarkable similarity, not only in the sentiments and words, but also in whole verses. In the above chapter Jeremiah predicts the destruction of the Idumeans. Whether he copied Obadiah, or Obadiah copied him, cannot be determined; but it would be very strange if two prophets, unacquainted with each other, should speak of the same event precisely in the same terms. See the parallel texts in the margin, and the notes on Jer. xlix. 1, &c.

NOTES ON THE BOOK OF OBADIAH.

Verse 1. We have heard a rumour] See Jer. xlix. 14, where the same expressions are found. The prophet shows that the enemies of Idumea had confederated against it, and that Jehovah is now summoning them to march directly against it.

Verse 2. I have made thee small among the heathen] God ever attributes to himself the rise and fall of nations. If they be great and prosperous, it is by God's providence; if they be low and depressed, it is by his justice. Compared with the Assyrians, Chaldeans, Egyptians, Syrians, Arabs, and other neighbouring nations, the Idumeans were a small people.

Verse 3. The pride of thine heart] St. Jerome observes that all the southern part of Palestine, from Eleutheropolis to Petra and Ailath, was full of caverns hewn out of the rocks, and that the people had subterranean dwellings similar to ovens. Here they are said to dwell in the clefts of the rock, in reference to the caverns above mentioned. In these they conceived themselves to be safe, and thought that no power brought against them could dislodge them from those fastnesses. Some think that by סלע scla, rock, Petra, the capital of Idumea, is intended.

Verse 4. Though thou exalt thyself as the eagle] Though like this bird thou get into the highest cliff of the highest rock, it will not avail thee. To defend thee, when Jehovah has determined thy destruction, thy deepest caves and highest rocks will be equally useless. See Jer. xlix. 16.

Verse 5. If thieves came to thee] That is, if thieves entered thy dwellings, they would not have taken every thing; they would have laid hold on thy wealth; and carried off as much as they could escape with conveniently; if grape-gatherers entered thy vineyards, they would not have taken every bunch; some gleanings would have been left. But the Chaldeans have stripped thee bare; they have searched out all thy hidden things, ver. 6, they have left thee nothing. How art thou cut off! Thou art totally and irretrievably ruined! The prophet speaks of this desolation as if it had already taken place.

Verse 7. All the men of thy confederacy] The Chaldeans are here intended, to whom the Idumeans were attached, and whose agents they became in exercising cruelties upon the Jews.

Have brought thee even to the border] Have hemmed thee in on every side, and reduced thee to distress. Or, they have driven thee to thy border; cast thee out of thy own land into the hands of thine enemies.

The men that were at peace with thee] The men of thy covenant, with whom thou hadst made a league.

That eat thy bread] That professed to be thy firmest friends, have all joined together to destroy thee.

Have laid a wound] Placed a snare or trap under thee. See Newcome.

There is none understanding in him.] Private counsels and public plans are all in operation against thee; and yet thou art so foolish and infatuated as not to discern thy own danger.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

8 [p] Shall I not in that day, saith the LORD, even destroy the wise men out of Edom, and understanding out of the mount of Esau?

9 And thy [q] mighty men, O [r] Teman, shall be dismayed, to the end that every one of the mount of Esau may be cut off by slaughter.

10 For thy [s] violence against thy brother Jacob shame shall cover thee, and [t] thou shalt be cut off for ever.

11 In the day that thou stoodest on the other side, in the day that the strangers [u] carried away captive his forces, and foreigners entered into his gates, and [v] cast lots upon Jerusalem, even thou wast as one of them.

12 But [w] thou shouldest not have [x] looked on [y] the day of thy brother in the day that he became a stranger; neither shouldest thou have [z] rejoiced over the children of Judah in the day of their destruction; neither shouldest thou have [a] spoken proudly in the day of distress.

13 Thou shouldest not have entered into the gate of my people in the day of their calamity; yea, thou shouldest not have looked on their affliction in the day of their calamity, nor have laid hand on their [b] substance in the day of their calamity.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

14 Neither shouldest thou have stood in the crossway, to cut off those of his that did escape; neither shouldest thou have [c] delivered up those of his that did remain in the day of distress.

15 [d] For the day of the LORD is near upon all the heathen: [e] as thou hast done, it shall be done unto thee: thy reward shall return upon thine own head.

16 [f] For as ye have drunk upon my holy mountain, so shall all the heathen drink continually, yea, they shall drink, and they shall [g] swallow down, and they shall be as though they had not been.

17 [h] But upon Mount Zion [i] shall be [k] deliverance, and [l] there shall be holiness; and the [p] Job v. 12, 13; Isa. xxix. 14; Jer. xlix. 7.——[q] Psa. lxxvi. 5; Amos ii. 16.——[r] Jer. xlix. 7.——[s] Gen. xxvii. 11; Psa. cxxxvii. 7; Ezek. xxv. 12; xxxv. 5; Amos i. 11.——[t] Ezek. xxxv. 9; Malachi i. 4.——[u] Or, carried away his substance. [v] Joel iii. 3; Nah. iii. 10.——[w] Or, da not behold, &c.——[x] Psa. xxii. 17; liv. 7; lix. 10; Mic. iv. 11; vii. 10.——[y] Psa. xxxvii. 13; cxxxvii. 7.

[z] Job xxxi. 29; Mic. vii. 8; Prov. xvii. 5; xxiv. 17, 18. [a] Heb. magnified thy mouth.——[b] Or, forces.——[c] Or, shut up; Psa. xxxi. 8.——[d] Ezek. xxx. 3; Joel iii. 14.——[e] Ezek. xxxv. 15; Hab. ii. 8.——[f] Jer. xxv. 28, 29; xlix. 12; Joel iii. 17; 1 Pet. iv. 17.——[g] Or, sup up.——[h] Joel ii. 32.——[i] Amos ix. 8.——[k] Or, they that escape.——[l] Or, it shall be holy; Joel iii. 17.

Verse 8. Shall I not—destroy the wise men] It appears, from Jer. xlix. 7, that the Edomites were remarkable for wisdom, counsel, and prudence. See on the above place.

Verse 9. Thy mighty men, O Teman] This was one of the strongest places in Idumea; and is put here, as in Amos i. 2, and elsewhere, for Idumea itself.

Mount of Esau] Mount Seir.

Verse 10. For thy violence against thy brother Jacob] By this term the Israelites in general are understood; for the two brothers,—Jacob, from whom sprang the Jews, and Esau, from whom sprang the Idumeans or Edomites,—are here put for the whole people or descendants of both. We need not look for particular cases of the violence of the Edomites against the Jews. Esau, their founder, was not more inimical to his brother Jacob, who deprived him of his birthright, than the Edomites uniformly were to the Jews. See 2 Chron. xxviii. 17, 18. They had even stimulated the Chaldeans, when they took Jerusalem, to destroy the temple, and level it with the ground. See Psa. cxxxvii. 7.

Verse 11. Thou stoodest on the other side] Thou not only didst not help thy brother when thou mightest, but thou didst assist his foes against him.

And cast lots] When the Chaldeans cast lots on the spoils of Jerusalem, thou didst come in for a share of the booty; "thou wast as one of them."

Verse 12. Thou shouldest not have looked] It shows a malevolent heart to rejoice in the miseries of those who have acted unkindly or wickedly towards us. The Edomites triumphed when they saw the judgments of God fall upon the Jews. This the Lord severely reprehends in verses 12–15. If a man have acted cruelly towards us, and God punish him for this cruelty, and we rejoice in it, we make his crime our own; and then, as we have done, so shall it be done unto us; see ver. 15. All these verses point out the part the Edomites took against the Jews when the Chaldeans besieged and took Jerusalem, destroyed the temple, and divided the spoils.

Verse 14. Neither shouldest thou have stood in the crossway] They are represented here as having stood in the passes and defiles to prevent the poor Jews from escaping from the Chaldeans. By stopping these passes, they threw the poor fugitives back into the teeth of their enemies. They had gone so far in this systematic cruelty as to deliver up the few that had taken refuge among them.

Verse 15. The day of the Lord is near] God will not associate thee with him in the judgments which he inflicts. Thou also art guilty, and shalt have thy punishment in due course with the other sinful nations.

Verse 16. For as ye have drunk] This address is to the Jews. As ye have been visited and punished upon my holy mountain in Jerusalem, so shall other nations be punished in their respective countries. See Jer. xlix. 12.

Verse 17. But upon Mount Zion shall be deliverance] Here is a promise of the return from the Baby-house of Jacob shall possess their possessions.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

18 And the house of Jacob [m] shall be a fire, and the house of Joseph a flame, and the house of Esau for stubble, and they shall kindle in them, and devour them; and there shall not be any remaining of the house of Esau; for the LORD hath spoken it.

19 And they of the south [n] shall possess the mount of Esau; [o] and they of the plain the Philistines: and they shall possess the fields of Ephraim, and the fields of Samaria: and Benjamin shall possess Gilead.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30

20 And the captivity of this host of the children of Israel shall possess that of the Canaanites, even [p] unto Zarephath; and the captivity of Jerusalem, [q] which is in Sepharad, [r] shall possess the cities of the south.

21 And [s] saviours shall come up on Mount Zion to judge the mount of Esau; and the [t] kingdom shall be the LORD's.

[m] Isa. x. 17; Zech. xii. 6.——[n] Amos ix. 12.——[o] Zeph. ii. 7.——[p] 1 Kings xvii. 9, 10.——[q] Or, shall possess that which is in Sepharad.

[r] Jer. xxxii. 44.——[s] 1 Tim. iv. 16; James v. 20.——[t] Psa. xxii. 28; Dan. ii. 44; vii. 14, 27; Zech. xiv. 9; Luke i. 33, Rev. xi. 15; xix. 6.

lonish captivity. They shall come to Zion, and there they shall find safety; and it is remarkable that after their return they were greatly befriended by the Persian kings, and by Alexander the Great and his successors; so that, whilst they ravaged the neighbouring nations, the Jews were unmolested. See Calmet.

And there shall be holiness] They shall return to God, separate themselves from their idols, and become a better people than they were when God permitted them to be carried into captivity.

The house of Jacob shall possess] They were restored to their former possessions. But this may refer also to their future restoration under the Gospel, when they shall be truly converted, and become holiness to the Lord; for salvation and holiness shall be the characteristics of Zion—the Christian Church, for ever.

Verse 18. The house of Jacob shall be a fire] After their return from captivity, the Jews, called here the house of Jacob and the house of Joseph, did break out as a flame upon the Idumeans; they reduced them into slavery; and obliged them to receive circumcision, and practise the rites of the Jewish religion. See 1 Macc. v. 3, &c.; 2 Macc. x. 15–23; and Joseph. Antiq., lib. xiii. c. 17.

There shall not be any remaining] As a people and a nation they shall be totally destroyed. This is the meaning; it does not signify that every individual shall be destroyed.

Verse 19. They of the south] The Jews who possessed the southern part of Palestine, should render themselves masters of the mountains of Idumea which were contiguous to them.

They of the plain] From Eleutheropolis to the Mediterranean Sea. In this and the following verse the prophet shows the different districts which should be occupied by the Israelites after their return from Babylon.

The fields of Samaria] Alexander the Great gave Samaria to the Jews; and John Hyrcanus subdued the same country after his wars with the Syrians. See Josephus, contra App. lib. ii., and Antiq. lib. xiii., c. 18.

Benjamin shall possess Gilead.] Edom lay to the south; the Philistines to the west; Ephraim to the north; and Gilead to the east. Those who returned from Babylon were to extend themselves everywhere. See Newcome; and see, for the fulfilment, 1 Macc. v 9, 35, 45; and ix. 35, 36.

Verse 20. Zarephath] Sarepta, a city of the Si donians, 1 Kings xvii. 9. That is, they should pos sess the whole city of Phœnicia, called here that of the Canaanites.

Which is in Sepharad] This is a difficult word Some think the Bosphorus is meant; others, Spain, others, France; others, the Euphrates; others, some district in Chaldea; for there was a city called Siphora, in Mesopotamia, above the division of the Euphrates. Dr. Lightfoot says it was a part of Edom. Those who were captives among the Canaanites should possess the country of the Canaanites; and those whom the Edomites had enslaved should possess the cities of their masters. See Newcome and Lowth.

Verse 21. And saviours shall come up] Certain persons whom God may choose to be deliverers of his people; such as Zerubbabel, Ezra, Nehemiah, and the Maccabees.

Some think these saviours, מושיעים moshum, mean the apostles of our Lord. Several MSS. have מושיעים mushaim, the preserved; those that are saved, i. e., they who were delivered from the captivity; and those of Mount Zion shall judge, that is, shall execute judgment on the Edomites. And as the Asmonean princes joined the priesthood to the state, it might be what the prophet means when he says, "the kingdom shall be the Lord's," the high priest having both the civil and ecclesiastical power in his own hands. And these actually were masters of Edom, and judged and governed the mountain of Esau. And thus this prophecy appears to have had a very literal fulfilment.

But if we take the whole as referring to the times of the Gospel, which I believe is not its primary sense, it may signify the conversion and restoration of the Jews, and that under JESUS CHRIST the original theocracy shall be restored; and thus, once more, in the promised land, it may be said,— hammeluchah laihovah vehayethah.

יהיתה ליהוה המלוכה

"And the kingdom shall belong to Jehovah."

INTRODUCTION TO THE BOOK

THE PROPHET JONAH.

JONAH, the son of Amittai, the fifth of the minor prophets, was a Galilean, a native of Gath-hepher, which is believed to be the same as Jotapata, celebrated for the siege which Josephus the historian there maintained against the Roman army, a little before the destruction of Jerusalem. Gath-hepher was situated in the land of Zebulon, where was the canton of Ophir or Hepher. St. Jerome places it two miles from Sepphoris, in the way towards Tiberias. Some rabbins are of opinion that Jonah was the widow of Sarepta's son, restored to life by Elijah.

What we know with certainty of Jonah is, that God having commanded him to go to Nineveh, and there proclaim that the cry of the inhabitants' sins was come up to heaven, and they were threatened with approaching ruin; instead of obeying these orders, he resolved to flee away, and go to Tarsus in Cilicia. For this purpose he embarked at Joppa; but the Lord having sent a violent tempest while he was upon the sea, the mariners, with great fear, cried each of them to his god. In the meantime Jonah slept in the hold; whereupon the pilot wakened him; and they who were in the ship cast lots to know how this tempest was occasioned. The lot falling upon Jonah, they asked him who he was, and what he had done to bring upon them such a storm? He told them he was a Hebrew; that he worshipped the God of heaven; was one of his prophets; and fled from his presence to avoid going to Nineveh, whither he was sent. They asked him what was to be done to secure them from shipwreck? He replied: Throw me into the sea, and the tempest will cease.

God prepared a great fish to swallow up Jonah. This fish, according to some, was a whale; or, as others say, the lamia, canis carcharias, or the sea-dog. The prophet continued in the fish three days and three nights. He cried unto the Lord, and the Lord heard him, and commanded the fish to cast him upon the shore, as it is believed, at the foot of a mountain which projects a great way into the sea, between Berytus and Tripoli. Others think it was upon the coast of Cilicia, two leagues north from Alexandretta.

After this the word of the Lord came a second time to Jonah, and directed him to go to Nineveh. When he came into the city, which was three days' journey in extent, about twenty-five leagues in circumference, Jonah walked up and down a whole day, crying out, "In forty days Nineveh shall be destroyed." The Ninevites believed his word; they appointed a public fast to be observed; and, from the meanest of the people to the greatest, covered themselves with sackcloth. The king of Nineveh, supposed to have been Sardanapalus, known in profane authors by the name of Anacyndaraxa or Anabaxarus, descended from his throne, and covered himself with sackcloth, and sat down upon ashes. God suffered himself to be moved with their repentance, and did not execute the sentence which he had pronounced against them.

Jonah was afflicted at this; and complained to God, saying, that he had always questioned whether, as being a God of clemency and mercy, he would not be flexible to their prayers

After this, in all probability, Jonah returned from Nineveh into Judea.

The Greeks have for a long time expressed their veneration for Jonah. There was a church dedicated to this prophet in the sixth age.

We do not know when it was that Jonah foretold how Jeroboam II., king of Israel should restore the kingdom of Samaria to its former extent, from the entrance of Hamath to the Dead Sea. Whether this was before or after his going to Nineveh, we cannot tell.

Our Saviour makes frequent mention of Jonah in the Gospels. He says that the Ninevites shall one day rise in judgment against the Jews, and condemn them, because they repented at the preaching of Jonah, and the Jews would not hearken to Him who was greater than Jonah. And when the Pharisees required a sign of him to prove his mission, he said he would give them no other than that of the prophet Jonah, that is to say, of his resurrection, which would complete all his miracles, and render the Jews inexcusable in their hardness of heart For a discussion of the question concerning the three days and three nights which Jonah lay in the belly of the fish, see Matt. xii. 40, and the notes there. And for Oriental and Jewish legends and fabulous relations relative to the history of this prophet, see Calmet in his preface to this book.

That there are difficulties in this book every man must allow; and that learned men have differed greatly in their mode of interpreting the book, and explaining these difficulties, is well known. Some have considered it an allegory; referring entirely to Manasseh, and what was done before, during, and after the war with Esar-haddon, king of Assyria. Manasseh being taken prisoner by the Assyrians, and thrust into a dungeon; where, having lain three days and three nights, on his earnest prayer to God in the dungeon, he was delivered, &c. Others have thought, that instead of a fish, a ship is meant, which had the image of a whale on the stern, and might be called Κητος, or the whale. Others have thought that the whole of the account of Jonah's being swallowed by a great fish, his praying in its belly, and being cast on dry land, was a dream which he had while fast asleep in the ship. See chap. i. 5. And others state that the whole book is a parable, intending to point out God's justice and mercy, and how prevalent repentance is to turn aside the threatened stroke of Divine wrath.

There is a fable, most probably of Phœnician origin, which, bearing some similitude to the history of Jonah, may have been taken from this book. Laomedon, king of Troy, having displeased Neptune, to appease him, was required to expose his daughter Hesione to be devoured by a sea-monster. She was chained to a rock, and was awaiting her fate at the next flux of the tide. In the interim Hercules slew the sea-monster, and delivered the princess. To this Lycophron, in his Cassandra, ver. 33, &c., is supposed to allude:—

Τριεσπερου λεοντος, ὁν ποτε γναθοις
Τριτωνος ημαλαψε καρχαρος κυων.

"Of the lion the offspring of three nights, which the fierce dog of Triton swallowed down greedily."

The scholiasts explain this in the following manner: While the princess was standing chained to the rock, expecting the greedy dog (καρχαρος κυων, the shark) to come and devour her, Hercules stood by ready armed; and, when the monster came forward with open mouth, he jumped directly down his throat, and spent three days in cutting and hacking his entrails; and afterwards came out of the monster, with the loss of all the hair on his head. Cyril, in his comment, says this was occasioned by the incredible heat of the monster's stomach.

This fable might have been easily taken from the true history; though some have been ready enough to intimate that the history of the prophet was taken from the fable.

The appeal made to the main facts of this history by our Lord, proves that we are to admit of no allegorical exposition of these facts. 1. There was such a person as Jonah. 2. He was swallowed by a sea-monster, in whose belly he was miraculously preserved three days and three nights. 3. This same prophet preached to the Ninevites; and they repented, and turned from their sins, under his ministry. This testimony puts an end to all mythological, allegorical, and hypothetical interpretations of those great facts. And in its literal sense alone, I undertake the interpretation of this book

THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET JONAH.

Chronological Notes relative to this Book, upon the supposition that the repentance of the Ninevites happened in the twenty-third year of the reign of Jehu, king of Israel.

Year from the Creation, according to Archbishop Usher, 3142.—Year of the Julian Period, 3852.—Year since the Flood, 1486.—Year from the foundation of Solomon's temple, 150.—Year since the division of Solomon's monarchy into the kingdoms of Israel and Judah, 114.—Year before the first Olympiad, 86.—Year before the building of Rome, according to the Varronian computation, 109.—Year before the birth of Jesus Christ, 858.—Year before the vulgar era of Christ's nativity, 862.—Twelfth year of Charilaus, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Proclidæ.—Fifty-second year of Archelaus, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Eurysthenidæ.—Second year of Phereclus, perpetual archon of the Athenians.—Fourteenth year of Alladius Sylvius, king of the Albans.—Twenty-third year of Jehu, king of Israel.—Seventeenth year of Joash, king of Judah.

CHAPTER I.

Jonah, sent to Nineveh, flees to Tarshish, 1–3. He is overtaken by a great tempest, 4–14; thrown into the sea, 15, 16; and swallowed by a fish, in the belly of which he is miraculously preserved alive three days and three nights, 17.

A. M. cir. 3142. B. C. cir. 862. Ante U. C. 109. Alladii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 14.

NOW the word of the LORD came unto [a] Jonah [b] the son of Amittai, saying,

2 Arise, go to Nineveh, that [c] great city, and cry against it; for [d] their wickedness is come up before me.

3 But Jonah [e] rose up to flee

A. M. cir. 3142. B. C. cir. 862. Ante U. C. 109. Alladii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 14.

[a] 2 Kings xiv. 25.——[b] Called, Matt. xii. 39, Jonas.——[c] Gen. x. 11, 12; chap. iii. 2, 3; iv. 11.

[d] Gen. xviii. 20, 21; Ezra ix. 6; James v. 4; Rev. xviii. 5.

[e] Chap. iv. 2.

NOTES ON CHAP. I.

Verse 1. Now the word of the Lord came unto Jonah] All that is certainly known about this prophet has already been laid before the reader. He was of Gath-hepher, in the tribe of Zebulun, in lower Galilee, Josh. xix. 13; and he prophesied in the reigns of Jeroboam the Second, and Joash, kings of Israel. Jeroboam came to the throne eight hundred and twenty-three years before the Christian era, and reigned in Samaria forty-one years, 2 Kings xiv. 23–25. As a prophet, it is likely that he had but this one mission.

Verse 2. Go to Nineveh] This was the capital of the Assyrian empire, and one of the most ancient cities of the world, Gen. x. 10; and one of the largest, as it was three days' journey in circumference. Ancient writers represent it as oblong; being in length one hundred and fifty stadia, and ninety in breadth, the compass being four hundred and eighty stadia. Now as the stadium is allowed to have been equal to our furlong, eight of which make a mile, this amounts to fifty-four English miles: see on chap. iii. 3. But we must not suppose that all this space was covered with compact streets and buildings; it took in a considerable space of country, probably all the cultivated ground necessary to support all the inhabitants of that district. Calmet computes the measurement of the circumference to be equal to twenty-five French leagues. It is reported to have had walls one hundred feet high, and so broad that three chariots might run abreast upon them. It was situated on the Tigris, or a little to the west, or on the west side of that river. It was well peopled, and had at this time one hundred and twenty thousand persons in it reputed to be in a state of infancy, which on a moderate computation would make the whole number six hundred thousand persons. But some, supposing that persons not being able to distinguish their right hand from their left must mean children under two years of age, and reckoning one such child for every twenty persons from that age upwards, make the population amount to two millions five hun unto [f] Tarshish from the presence of the LORD, and went down to [g] Joppa; and he found a ship going to Tarshish: so he paid the fare thereof, and went down into it, to go with them unto Tarshish [h] from the presence of the LORD.

A. M. cir. 3142. B. C. cir. 862. Ante U. C. 109. Alladii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 14.

4 But [i] the LORD [k] sent out a great wind into the sea, and there was a mighty tempest in the sea, so that the ship [l] was like to be broken.

5 Then the mariners were afraid, and cried every man unto his god, and [m] cast forth the wares that were in the ship into the sea, to lighten it of them. But Jonah was gone down [n] into the sides of ship; and he lay, and was fast asleep.

A. M. cir. 3142. B. C. cir. 862. Ante U. C. 109 Alladii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 14.

6 So the shipmaster came to him, and said unto him, What meanest thou, O sleeper? arise, [o] call upon thy God, [p] if so be that God will think upon us, that we perish not.

7 And they said every one to his fellow, Come, and let us [q] cast lots, that we may know for whose cause this evil is upon us. So they cast lots, and the lot fell upon Jonah.

8 Then said they unto him, [r] Tell us, we pray thee, for whose cause this evil is upon us; What is thine occupation? and whence comest thou? what is thy country? and of what people art thou?

9 And he said unto them, I am a Hebrew, and I fear [s] the LORD, the God of heaven, [f] 1 Kings x. 22.——[g] Josh. xix. 46; 2 Chron. ii. 16; Acts ix. 36.——[h] Gen. iv. 16; Job i. 12; ii. 7.——[i] Psa. cvii. 25. [k] Heb. cast forth.——[l] Heb. thought to be broken.——[m] So Acts xxvii. 18, 19, 38.

[n] 1 Samuel xxiv. 3.——[o] Psa. cvii. 28.——[p] Joel ii. 14. [q] Joshua vii. 14, 16; 1 Samuel x. 20, 21; xiv. 41, 42; Prov. xvi. 33; Acts i. 26.——[r] Joshua vii. 19; 1 Samuel xiv. 43. [s] Or, JEHOVAH.

dred thousand. Nor can this be considered an exaggerated estimate, when we know that London, not one-tenth of the size of ancient Nineveh, contains a population of upwards of one million. But calculations of this kind, relative to matters of such remote antiquity, are generally precarious, and not very useful: and ancient authors, though the only guides, are not always safe conductors. Mosul is generally supposed to be the same as the ancient Nineveh. It is in the province of Dearbekir, on the west bank of the Tigris.

Their wickedness is come up before me.] This is a personification of evil. It ascends from earth to heaven; and stands before the Supreme Judge, to bear witness against its own delinquency, and that of the persons whom it has seduced.

Verse 3. To flee unto Tarshish] Some say Tartessus, in Spain, near the straits of Gibraltar; others, Tarsus, in Cilicia; and others, Taprobana, or the island of Ceylon, formerly called Taprobah; and Tabrobavagh in Sanscrit, to the present day.

And went down to Joppa] This place is celebrated as that where Andromeda, daughter of Cepheus, was chained to a rock, and exposed to be devoured by a sea-monster, from which she was delivered by the valour of Perseus. It is the nearest port to Jerusalem on that side of the Mediterranean.

And he found a ship] The Phœnicians carried on a considerable trade with Tartessus, Ezek. xxvii. 12; and it was probably in one of their ships that Jonah embarked.

He paid the fare thereof] He paid for his passage. This shows that there was traffic between the two places, and that each passenger paid a stated fare.

From the presence of the Lord.] He considered that God was peculiarly resident in Judea; and if he got out of that land, the Lord would most probably appoint another prophet to carry the message; for Jonah appears to have considered the enterprise as difficult and dangerous, and therefore wished to avoid it.

Verse 4. A great wind] They were overtaken with a storm, which appears from the sequel to have come by the immediate direction of God.

Like to be broken] They had nearly suffered shipwreck.

Verse 5. Cried every man unto his god] The ship's crew were all heathens; and, it is probable, heathens who had each a different object of religious worship.

Cast forth the wares] Threw the lading overboard to lighten the ship, hoping the better to ride out the storm.

Jonah was gone down] Most probably into the hold or cabin under the deck; or where they had berths for passengers in the sides of the ship; something in the manner of our packets.

Was fast asleep.] Probably quite exhausted and overcome with distress, which in many cases terminates in a deep sleep. So the disciples in the garden of Gethsemane.

Verse 6. The shipmaster] Either the captain or the pilot.

Arise, call upon thy God] He supposed that Jonah had his god, as well as they had theirs; and that, as the danger was imminent, every man should use the influence he had, as they were all equally involved in it.

Verse 7. Come, and let us cast lots] This was a very ancient mode of endeavouring to find out the mind of Divine Providence; and in this case it proves that they supposed the storm to have arisen on account of some hidden crime of some person aboard.

A philosopher being at sea in a violent storm, when the crew began to call earnestly to the gods for safety, he said, "Be silent, and cease your prayers; for should the gods know that you are here, we shall all be lost."

The lot fell upon Jonah.] In this case God directed the lot.

Verse 8. Tell us—for whose cause] A very gentle method of bringing the charge home to himself, and the several questions here asked gave the utmost latitude to make the best of his own case.

Verse 9. I fear the Lord] In this Jonah was faith-

A. M. cir. 3142. B. C. cir. 862. Ante U. C. 109. Alladii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 14.

[t] which hath made the sea and the dry land.

10 Then were the men [u] exceedingly afraid, and said unto him, Why hast thou done this? For the men knew that he fled from the presence of the LORD, because he had told them.

11 Then said they unto him, What shall we do unto thee, that the sea [v] may be calm unto us? for the sea [w] wrought, [x] and was tempestuous.

12 And he said unto them, [y] Take me up, and cast me forth into the sea; so shall the sea be calm unto you: for I know that for my sake this great tempest is upon you.

13 Nevertheless the men [z] rowed hard to bring it to the land; [a] but they could not: for the sea wrought, and was tempestuous against them.

A. M. cir. 3142. B. C. cir. 862. Ante U. C. 109. Alladii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 14.

14 Wherefore they cried unto the LORD, and said, We beseech thee, O LORD, we beseech thee, let us not perish for this man's life, and [b] lay not upon us innocent blood: for thou, O LORD, [c] hast done as it pleased thee.

15 So they took up Jonah, and cast him forth into the sea: [d] and the sea [e] ceased from her raging.

16 Then the men [f] feared the LORD exceedingly, and [g] offered a sacrifice unto the LORD, and made vows.

17 Now the LORD had prepared a great fish to swallow up Jonah. And [h] Jonah was in the [i] belly of the fish three days and three nights.

[t] Psa. cxlvi. 6; Acts xvii. 24.——[u] Heb. with great fear. [v] Heb. may be silent from us.——[w] Or, grew more and more tempestuous.——[x] Heb. went.——[y] John xi. 50.——[z] Heb. digged. [a] Prov. xxi. 30.——[b] Deut. xxi. 8.

[c] Psa. cxv. 3.——[d] Psa. lxxxix. 9; Luke viii. 24.——[e] Heb. stood.——[f] Mark iv. 41; Acts v. 11.——[g] Heb. sacrificed a sacrifice unto the LORD, and vowed vows.——[h] Matt. xii. 40; xvi. 4; Luke xi. 30.——[i] Heb. bowels.

ful. He gave an honest testimony concerning the God he served, which placed him before the eyes of the sailors as infinitely higher than the objects of their adoration; for the God of Jonah was the God of heaven, who made the sea and the dry land, and governed both. He also honestly told them that he was fleeing from the presence of this God, whose honourable call he had refused to obey.' See ver. 10.

Verse 11. What shall we do unto thee] In these poor men there was an uncommon degree of humanity and tender feeling.

Verse 12. I know that for my sake] I am not worthy to live; throw me overboard. God will not quiet the storm till I am cast out of the ship. Here was deep compunction; an honest avowal of sin; and a justification of the displeasure which God had now manifested.

Verse 13. The men rowed hard] Were very unwilling to proceed to this extremity, and thought they would risk every thing rather than cast this disobedient prophet into the great deep.

Verse 14. They cried unto the Lord] Under a conviction that he was the self-existing Being, the Maker of the heavens and the earth, and the author of the present storm, they put up their prayers to him.

Let us not perish for this man's life] They were now about to cast him overboard; but seemed to call God to witness that it was with the utmost reluctance, and only in obedience to his command. There is a parallel passage in the Argonautics, which has been quoted to illustrate this:—

Πολλα δε μερμηριζον ενι φρεσι πευκαλιμησι,
Η μεν αποφθισωσι, και ιχθυσι κυρμα βαλωσιν
Αινολεχη Μηδειαν, αποτρεψωσι δ' Ερινυν.
Ver. 1171.

"And much they doubted, in their prudent minds,
Whether to kill and cast a prey to fishes
Wretched Medea, and avert their fate."
See Newcome.

Verse 16. Offered a sacrifice] The first perhaps ever offered on board a vessel since the ark floated on the waters of the great deluge; and it is most probable that these heathens, witnessing what was done, became sincere converts to the true God.

Verse 17. Now the Lord had prepared a great fish] דג גדול dag gadol. This could not have been a whale, for the throat of that animal can scarcely admit a man's leg; but it might have been a shark, which abounds in the Mediterranean, and whose mouth and stomach are exceedingly capacious. In several cases they have been known to swallow a man when thrown overboard. See the note on Matt. xii. 40, where the whole subject of this verse is considered at large. That days and nights do not, among the Hebrews, signify complete days and nights of twenty-four hours, see Esth. iv. 16, compared with chap. v. 1; Judg. xiv. 17, 18. Our Lord lay in the grave one natural day, and part of two others; and it is most likely that this was the precise time that Jonah was in the fish's belly.

CHAPTER II.

This chapter (except the first verse and the last, which make a part of the narrative) contains a beautiful prayer or hymn, formed of those devout thoughts which Jonah had in the belly of the great fish, with a thanksgiving for his miraculous deliverance.

A. M. cir. 3142. B. C. cir. 862. Ante U. C. 109. Alladii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 14.

THEN Jonah prayed unto the LORD his God out of the fish's belly,

2 And said, I [a] cried [b] by reason of mine affliction unto the LORD, [c] and he heard me: out of the belly of [d] hell cried I, and thou heardest my voice.

3 [e] For thou hadst cast me into the deep, in the [f] midst of the seas; and the floods compassed me about: [g] all thy billows and thy waves passed over me.

4 [h] Then I said, I am cast out of thy sight; yet I will look again [i] toward thy holy temple.

5 The [k] waters compassed me about, even to the soul: the depth closed me round about, the weeds were wrapped about my head.

6 I went down to the bottoms of the mountains; the earth with her bars was about me for ever: yet hast thou brought up my life [m] from [n] corruption, O LORD my God.

A. M. cir. 3142. B. C. cir. 862. Ante U. C. 109. Alladii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 14.

7 When my soul fainted within me I remembered the LORD: [o] and my prayer came in unto thee, into thine holy temple.

8 They that observe [p] lying vanities forsake their own mercy.

9 But I will [q] sacrifice unto thee with the voice of thanksgiving; I will pay that that I have vowed. [r] Salvation is of the LORD.

10 And the LORD spake unto the fish, and it vomited out Jonah upon the dry land.

[b] Psa. cxx. 1; cxxx. 1; cxlii. 1; Lam. iii. 55, 56.——[b] Or, out of mine affliction.——[c] Psa. lxv. 2.——[d] Or, the grave; Isa. xiv. 9.——[e] Psa. lxxxviii. 6.——[f] Heb. heart.——[g] Psa. xlii. 7.——[h] Psa. xxxi. 22.——[i] 1 Kings viii. 38.

[k] Psa. lxix. 1; Lam. iii. 54.——[l] Heb. cuttings off.——[m] Psa. xvi. 10.——[n] Or, the pit.——[o] Psa. xviii. 6.——[p] 2 Kings xvii. 15; Psa. xxxi. 6; Jer. x. 8; xvi. 19.——[q] Psa, l. 14, 23; cxvi. 17, 18; Hos. xiv. 2; Heb. xiii. 15.——[r] Psa. iii. 8.

NOTES ON CHAP. II.

Verse 1. Then Jonah prayed—out of the fish's belly] This verse makes the first of the second chapter in the Hebrew text.

It may be asked, "How could Jonah either pray or breathe in the stomach of the fish?" Very easily, if God so willed it. And let the reader keep this constantly in view; the whole is a miracle, from Jonah's being swallowed by the fish till he was cast ashore by the same animal. It was God that had prepared the great fish. It was the Lord that spake to the fish, and caused it to vomit Jonah upon the dry land. ALL is miracle.

Verse 2. Out of the belly of hell] Among the Hebrews שאול sheol means the grave, any deep pit, the place of separate spirits, &c. Here the prophet represents himself as in the bottom of the sea; for so sheol must be understood in this place.

Verse 3. All thy billows and thy waves passed over me.] This may be understood literally; while the fish, in whose belly he was, sought its pleasure or sustenance in the paths of the deep, the waves and billows of the sea were rolling above. This line seems borrowed from Psa. xlii. 7.

Verse 4. I am cast out of thy sight] See Psa. xxxi. 22.

Thy holy temple.] Then Jerusalem was not yet destroyed, for the temple was standing.

Verse 5. The waters compassed me about even to the soul] So as to seem to deprive me of life. I had no hope left.

The weeds were wrapped about my head.] This may be understood literally also. He found himself in the fish's stomach, together with sea weeds, and such like marine substances, which the fish had taken for its aliment.

Verse 6. I went down to the bottoms of the mountains] This also may be literally understood. The fish followed the slanting base of the mountains, till they terminated in a plain at the bottom of the great deep.

The earth with her bars] He represents himself as a prisoner in a dungeon, closed in with bars which he could not remove, and which at first appeared to be for ever, i. e., the place where his life must terminate.

Yet hast thou brought up my life] The substance of this poetic prayer was composed while in the fish's belly; but afterwards the prophet appears to have thrown it into its present poetic form, and to have added some circumstances, such as that before us; for he now speaks of his deliverance from this imminent danger of death. "Thou hast brought up my life from corruption."

Verse 7. When my soul fainted] When I had given up all hope of life.

My prayer came in unto thee] Here prayer is personified, and is represented as a messenger going from the distressed, and entering into the temple of God, and standing before him. This is a very fine and delicate image. This clause is one of those which I suppose the prophet to have added when he penned this prayer.

Verse 8. They that observe lying vanities] They that trust in idols, follow vain predictions, permit themselves to be influenced with foolish fears, so as to induce them to leave the path of obvious duty, forsake their own mercy. In leaving that God who is the Fountain of mercy, they abandon that measure of mercy which he had treasured up for them.

Verse 9. But I will sacrifice unto thee] I will make a sincere vow, which, as soon as my circumstances will permit, I will faithfully execute; and therefore he adds, "I will pay that which I have vowed."

Salvation is of the Lord.] All deliverance from danger, preservation of life, recovery from sickness, and redemption of the soul from the power, guilt, and pollution of sin, is from Jehovah. He alone is the Saviour, he alone is the Deliverer; for all salvation is from the Lord.

Verse 10. And the Lord spake unto the fish] That is, by his influence the fish swam to shore, and cast Jonah on the dry land. So the whole was a miracle from the beginning to the end; and we need not perplex ourselves to find out literal interpretations; such as, "When Jonah was thrown overboard he swam for his life, earnestly praying God to preserve him from drowning; and by his providence he was thrown into a place of fish—a fishing cove, where he was for a time entangled among the weeds, and hardly escaped with his life; and when safe, he composed this poetic prayer, in metaphorical language, which some have wrongly interpreted, by supposing that he was swallowed by a fish; when דג dag should have been understood, as a place of fish, or fishing creek," &c. Now I say the original has no such meaning in the Bible: and this gloss is plainly contrary to the letter of the text; to all sober and rational modes of interpretation, and to the express purpose for which God appears to have wrought this miracle, and to which Jesus Christ himself applies it. For as Jonah was intended for a sign to the Jews of the resurrection of Christ, they were to have the proof of this semiosis, in his lying as long in the heart of the earth as the prophet was in the belly of the fish; and all interpretations of this kind go to deny both the sign and the thing signified. Some men, because they cannot work a miracle themselves, can hardly be persuaded that God can do it.

The text, and the use made of it by Christ, most plainly teach us that the prophet was literally swallowed by a fish, by the order of God; and that by the Divine power he was preserved alive, for what is called three days and three nights, in the stomach of the fish; and at the conclusion of the above time that same fish was led by the unseen power of God to the shore, and there compelled to eject the prey that he could neither kill nor digest. And how easy is all this to the almighty power of the Author and Sustainer of life, who has a sovereign, omnipresent, and energetic sway in the heavens and in the earth. But foolish man will affect to be wise; though, in such cases, he appears as the recently born, stupid offspring of the wild ass. It is bad to follow fancy, where there is so much at stake. Both ancients and moderns have grievously trifled with this prophet's narrative; merely because they could not rationally account for the thing, and were unwilling (and why?) to allow any miraculous interference

CHAPTER III.

Jonah is sent again to Nineveh, a city of three days' journey, (being sixty miles in circumference, according to Diodorus Siculus,) 1–4. The inhabitants, in consequence of the prophet's preaching, repent in dust and ashes, 5–9. God, seeing that they were deeply humbled on account of their sins, and that they turned away from all their iniquities, repents of the evil with which he had threatened them, 10.

A. M. cir. 3142. B. C. cir. 862. Ante U. C. 109. Alladii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 14.

AND the word of the LORD came unto Jonah the second time, saying,

2 Arise, go unto Nineveh, that great city, and preach unto it the preaching that I bid thee.

A. M. cir. 3142. B. C. cir. 862. Ante U. C. 109. Alladii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir annum 14.

3 So Jonah arose, and went unto Nineveh, according to the

NOTES ON CHAP. III.

Verse 1. And the word of the Lord] The same oracle as that before given; and which, from what he had felt and seen of the justice and mercy of the Lord, he was now prepared to obey.

Verse 2. And preach unto it the preaching] וקרא את הקריאה vekera eth hakkeriah, "And cry the cry that I bid thee." Be my herald, and faithfully deliver my message. The word κηρυξ in Greek answers to the Hebrew קורא kore: both signifying a crier, a herald, a preacher; one that makes proclamation with a loud and earnest cry. Such was John Baptist, Isa. xl. 3; such was Jesus Christ, John vii. 18–37; and such were all his apostles. And such earnestness becomes a ministry that has to do with immortal souls, asleep and dead in sin, hanging on the brink of perdition, and insensible of their state. The soft-speaking, gentle-toned, unmoved preacher, is never likely to awaken souls. As we preach, so the people hear; scarcely receiving any counsels that appear to have no importance by the manner in which they are delivered. But this earnestness is widely different from that noisy, blustering, screaming rant, that manifests more of the turbulence of disorderly passions, than of the real inspired influence of the Spirit of God.

Verse 3. Nineveh was an exceeding great city, of three days' journey.] See on chap. i. 2. Strabo says, lib. xvi., πολυ μειζων ην της Βαβυλωνος, "it was much larger than Babylon:" and Ninus, the builder, not only proposed to make it the largest city of the world, but the largest that could be built by man. See Diodor. Sic. Bib. l. ii. And as we find, from the lowest computation, that it was at least fifty-four or sixty English miles in circumference, it would take the prophet three word of the LORD. Now Nineveh was an [a] exceeding great city, of three days' journey.

A.M. cir. 3142. B. C. cir. 862. Ante U. C. 109. Alladii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 14.

4 And Jonah began to enter into the city a day's journey, and [b] he cried, and said, Yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown.

5 So the people of Nineveh [c] believed God, and proclaimed a fast, and put on sackcloth, from the greatest of them even to the least of them.

6 For word came unto the king of Nineveh, and he arose from his throne, and he laid his robe from him, and covered him with sackcloth, [d] and sat in ashes.

7 [e] And he caused it to be proclaimed and [f] published through Nineveh by the decree of the king and his [g] nobles, saying, Let neither man nor beast, herd nor flock, taste any thing: let them not feed, nor drink water:

A.M. cir. 3142. B. C. cir. 862. Ante U. C. 109. Alladii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 14.

8 But let man and beast be covered with sackcloth, and cry mightily unto God: yea, [h] let them turn every one from his evil way, and from the [i] violence that is in their hands.

9 [k] Who can tell if God will turn and repent, and turn away from his fierce anger, that we perish not?

10 [l] And God saw their works, that they turned from their evil way; and God repented of the evil, that he had said that he would do unto them; and he did it not.

[a] Heb. of God; so Gen. xxx. 8; Psa. xxxvi. 6; lxxx. 10. [b] See Deut. xviii. 62.——[c] Matt. xii. 41; Luke xi. 32.——[d] Job ii. 8.——[e] 2 Chron. xx. 3; Joel ii. 15.

[f] Heb. said.——[g] Heb. great men.——[h] Isa. lviii. 6.——[i] Isa. lix. 6.——[k] 2 Samuel xii. 22; Joel. ii. 14.——[l] Jer. xviii. 8; Amos vii. 3, 6.

days to walk round upon the walls, and announce from them the terrible message, "Yet forty days, and Nineveh will be destroyed!"

Verse 4. Yet forty days] Both the Septuagint and Arabic read three days. Probably some early copyist of the Septuagint, from whom our modern editions are derived, mistook the Greek numerals μ forty for γ three; or put the three days' journey in preaching instead of the forty days mentioned in the denunciation. One of Kennicott's MSS., instead of ארבעים arbaim, forty, has שלשים sheloshim, thirty: but the Hebrew text is undoubtedly the true reading; and it is followed by all the ancient versions, the Septuagint and Vulgate excepted. Thus God gives them time to think, reflect, take counsel, and return to him. Had they only three days' space, the denunciation would have so completely confounded them, as to excite nothing but terror, and prevent repentance and conversion.

Verse 5. The people of Nineveh believed God] They had no doubt that the threatening would be fulfilled, unless their speedy conversion prevented it; but, though not expressed, they knew that the threatening was conditional. "The promises and threatenings of God, which are merely personal, either to any particular man or number of men, are always conditional, because the wisdom of God hath thought fit to make these depend on the behaviour of men."—Dr. S. Clarke's Sermons, vol. i.

Proclaimed a fast] And never was there one so general, so deep, and so effectual. Men and women, old and young, high and low, and even the cattle themselves, all kept such a fast as the total abstinence from food implies.

Verse 6. Word came unto the king] This, some think, was Pul; others, Sardanapalus his son, king of Assyria, who flourished in the reign of Jeroboam the Second: but it seems more probable that the monarch here alluded to was a king of Assyria contemporary with Joash, king of Judah. It was by the decree of the king that the fast was instituted, and became general.

Verse 8. Let man and beast be covered] This was done that every object which they beheld might deepen the impression already made, and cause them to mourn after a godly sort. Virgil tells us that the mourning for the death of Julius Cæsar was so general, that the cattle neither ate nor drank:—

Non ulli pastos illis egere diebus
Frigida, Daphni, boves ad flumina: nulla neque amnem
Libavit quadrupes, nec graminis attigit herbam.
Ecl. v. 24.

"The swains forgot their sheep, nor near the brink
Of running waters brought their herds to drink.
The thirsty cattle of themselves abstain'd
From water, and their grassy fare disdain'd."
DRYDEN.

And that they sometimes changed or reversed the harness and ornaments of cattle, as indicative of mourning, we have a proof in Virgil's description of the funeral procession in honour of Pallas, slain by Turnus, Æn. xi. ver. 89.

Post bellator equus, positis insignibus, Æthon
It lacrymans, guttisque humectat grandibus ora.

"Stripp'd of his trappings, and his head declined,
Æthon, his generous warrior-horse, behind,
Moves with a solemn, slow, majestic pace;
And the big tears come rolling down his face."

Verse 9. Who can tell if God will turn and repent] There is at least a peradventure for our salvation. God may turn towards us, change his purpose, and save us alive. While there is life there is hope; God has no pleasure in the death of sinners; he is gracious and compassionate. Himself has prescribed repentance; if we repent, and turn to him from our iniquities, who knows then whether God will not turn, &c.

Verse 10. And God saw their works] They repented, and brought forth fruits meet for repentance; works which showed that they did most earnestly repent. He therefore changed his purpose, and the city was saved. The purpose was: If the Ninevites do not return from their evil ways, and the violence that is in their hands, within forty days, I will destroy the city. The Ninevites did return, &c., and therefore escaped the threatened judgment. Thus we see that the threatening was conditional.

CHAPTER IV.

Jonah, dreading to be thought a false prophet, repines at God's mercy in sparing the Ninevites, whose destruction he seems to have expected, from his retiring to a place without the city about the close of the forty days. But how does he glorify that mercy which he intends to blame! And what an amiable picture does he give of the compassion of God! 1–5. This attribute of the Deity is still farther illustrated by his tenderness and condescension to the prophet himself, who, with all his prophetic gifts, had much of human infirmity, 6–11.

A. M. cir. 3142. B. C. cir. 862. Ante U. C. 109. Alladii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 14.

BUT it displeased Jonah exceedingly, and he was very angry.

2 And he prayed unto the LORD, and said, I pray thee, O LORD, was not this my saying, when I was yet in my country? Therefore I [a] fled before unto Tarshish: for I knew that thou art a [b] gracious God, and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and repentest thee of the evil.

3 [c] Therefore now, O LORD, take, I beseech thee, my life from me; for [d] it is better for me to die than to live.

A. M. cir. 3142. B. C. cir. 862. Ante U. C. 109. Alladii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 14.

4 Then said the LORD, [e] Doest thou well to be angry?

5 So Jonah went out of the city, and sat on the east side of the city, and there made him a booth, and sat under it in the shadow, till he might see what would become of the city.

6 And the Lord GOD prepared a [f] gourd,[g] and made it to come up over Jonah, that it

[a] Chap. i. 3.——[b] Exod. xxxiv. 6; Psa. lxxxvi. 5; Joel ii. 13. [c] 1 Kings xix. 4.——[d] Ver. 8.

[e] Or, Art thou greatly angry?——[f] Or, palmecrist.——[g] Heb. Kikajon.

NOTES ON CHAP. IV.

Verse 1. But it displeased Jonah exceedingly] This hasty, and indeed inconsiderate prophet, was vexed because his prediction was not fulfilled. He had more respect to his high sense of his own honour than he had to the goodness and mercy of God. He appeared to care little whether six hundred and twenty thousand persons were destroyed or not, so he might not pass for a deceiver, or one that denounced a falsity.

And he was very angry.] Because the prediction was not literally fulfilled; for he totally lost sight of the condition.

Verse 2. I know that thou art a gracious God] See the note on Exod. xxxiv. 6.

Verse 3. Take, I beseech thee, my life from me] קח נא את נפשי kach na eth naphshi, "Take, I beseech thee, even my soul." Do not let me survive this disgrace. Thou hast spared this city. I thought thou wouldst do so, because thou art merciful and gracious; and it was on this account that I refused to go at first, as I knew that thou mightest change thy purpose, though thou hadst commanded me to make an absolute denunciation of judgment. God has left this example on record to show that an inconsiderate man is not fit to be employed in his work; and he chose this one example that it might serve as an endless warning to his Church to employ no man in the work of the ministry that is not scripturally acquainted with God's justice and mercy.

Verse 4. Doest thou well to be angry?] הה֣יטב הרה לך hahetib harah lac, "Is anger good for thee?" No, anger is good for no man; but an angry preacher, minister, bishop, or prophet, is an abominable man. He who, in denouncing the word of God against sinners, joins his own passions with the Divine threatenings, is a cruel and bad man, and should not be an overseer in God's house. A surly bishop, a peevish, passionate preacher, will bring neither glory to God, nor good to man. Dr. Taylor renders the clause, "Art thou very much grieved!" A man may be very much grieved that a sinner is lost; but who but he who is of a fiendish nature will be grieved because God's mercy triumphs over judgment?

Verse 5. So Jonah went out of the city] I believe this refers to what had already passed; and I therefore agree with Bp. Newcame, who translates, "Now Jonah HAD gone out of the city, and HAD sat," &c.; for there are many instances where verbs in the preterite form have this force, the ו vau here turning the future into the preterite. And the passage is here to be understood thus: When he had delivered his message he left the city, and went and made himself a tent, or got under some shelter on the east side of the city, and there he was determined to remain till he should see what would become of the city. But when the forty days had expired, and he saw no evidence of the Divine wrath, he became angry, and expostulated with God as above. The fifth verse should be read in a parenthesis, or be considered as beginning the chapter.

Verse 6. And the Lord God prepared a gourd] I believe this should be rendered in the preterpluperfect tense, The Lord HAD prepared—this plant, קיקיון kikayon. It had in the course of God's providence been planted and grown up in that place, though per might be a shadow over his head, to deliver him from his grief. So Jonah [h] was exceeding glad of the gourd.

A. M. cir. 3142. B. C. cir. 862. Ante U. C. 109. Alladii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 14.

7 But God prepared a worm when the morning rose the next day, and it smote the gourd that it withered.

8 And it came to pass, when the sun did arise, that God prepared a [i] vehement east wind; and the sun beat upon the head of Jonah, that he fainted, and wished in himself to die, and said, [k] It is better for me to die than to live.

9 And God said to Jonah, [l] Doest thou well to be angry for the gourd? And he said, [m] I do well to be angry, even unto death.

A. M. cir. 3142. B. C. cir. 862. Ante U. C. 109. Alladii Sylvii, R. Alban., cir. annum 14.

10 Then said the LORD, Thou hast [n] had pity on the gourd, for the which thou hast not laboured, neither madest it grow; which [o] came up in a night, and perished in a night:

11 And should not I spare Nineveh, [p] that great city, wherein are more than sixscore thousand persons [q] that cannot discern between their right hand, and their left hand; and also much [r] cattle?

[h] Heb. rejoiced with great joy.——[i] Or, silent.——[k] Ver. 3. [l] Or, Art thou greatly angry.——[m] Or, I am greatly angry.

[n] Or, spared.——[o] Heb. was the son of the night.——[p] Chap. i. 2; iii. 2, 3.——[q] Deut. i. 39.——[r] Psa. xxxvi. 6; cxlv. 9.

haps not yet in full leaf; and Jonah made that his tent. And its thick branches and large leaves made it an ample shelter for him; and because it was such, he rejoiced greatly on the account. But what was the kikayon? The best judges say the ricinus or palma Christi, from which we get what is vulgarly called castor oil, is meant. It is a tree as large as the olive, has leaves which are like those of the vine, and is also quick of growth. This in all probability was the plant in question, which had been already planted, though it had not attained its proper growth, and was not then in full leaf. Celsus, in his Hierobot., says it grows to the height of an olive tree; the trunk and branches are hollow like a kex, and the leaves sometimes as broad as the rim of a hat. It must be of a soft or spongy substance, for it is said to grow suprisingly fast. See Taylor under the root קיק, 1670. But it is evident there was something supernatural in the growth of this plant, for it is stated to have come up in a night; though the Chaldee understands the passage thus: "It was here last night, and is withered this night." In one night it might have blown and expanded its leaves considerably, though the plant had existed before, but not in full bloom till the time that Jonah required it for a shelter.

Verse 7. But God prepared a worm] By being eaten through the root, the plant, losing its nourishment, would soon wither; and this was the case in the present instance.

Verse 8. A vehement east wind] Which was of itself of a parching, withering nature; and the sun, in addition, made it intolerable. These winds are both scorching and suffocating in the East, for deserts of burning sand lay to the east or south-east; and the easterly winds often brought such a multitude of minute particles of sand on their wings, as to add greatly to the mischief. I believe these, and the sands they carry, are the cause of the ophthalmia which prevails so much both in Egypt and India.

Verse 9. I do well to be angry, even unto death.] Many persons suppose that the gifts of prophecy and working miracles are the highest that can be conferred on man; but they are widely mistaken, for these gifts change not the heart. Jonah had the gift of prophecy, but had not received that grace which destroys the old man and creates the soul anew in Christ Jesus. This is the love of which St. Paul speaks, which if a man have not, though he had the gift of prophecy, and could miraculously remove mountains, yet in the sight of God, and for any good himself might reap from it, it would be as sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal. Jonah was a prophet, and yet had all his old bad tempers about him, in a shameful predominancy. Balaam was of the same kind. So we find that God gave the gift of prophecy even to graceless men. But many of the prophets were sanctified in their nature before their call to the prophetic office, and were the most excellent of men.

Verse 10. Which came up in a night] St Jerome, speaking of this plant, the kikayon, assigns to it an extraordinary rapidity of growth. It delights in a sandy soil, and in a few days what was a plant grows into a large shrub. But he does not appear to have meant the ricinus; this however is the most likely. The expressions coming up in a night and perishing in a night are only metaphorical to express speedy growth and speedy decay; and so, as we have seen, the Chaldee interprets it, די בליליא הדין הוה ובליליא אוחרנא אבד "which existed this night, but in the next night perished;" and this I am satisfied is the true import of the Hebrew phrase.

Verse 11. And should not I spare Nineveh] In ver. 10 it is said, thou hast had pity on the gourd, אתה חסת attah CHASTA; and here the Lord uses the same word, ואני לא אחוס veani lo ACHUS, "And shall not I have pity upon Nineveh?" How much is the city better than the shrub? But besides this there are in it one hundred and twenty thousand persons! And shall I destroy them, rather than thy shade should be withered or thy word apparently fail? And besides, these persons are young, and have not offended, (for they knew not the difference between their right hand and their left,) and should not I feel more pity for those innocents than thou dost for the fine flowering plant which is withered in a night, being itself exceedingly short-lived? Add to all this, they have now turned from those sins which induced me to denounce judgment against them. And should I destroy them who are now fasting and afflicting their souls; and, covered with sackcloth, are lying in the dust before me, bewailing their offences and supplicating for mercy? Learn, then, from this, that it is the incorrigibly wicked on whom my judgments must fall, and against whom they are threatened. And know, that to that man will I look who is of a broken and contrite spirit, and who trembles at my word. Even the dumb beasts are objects of my compassion; I will spare them for the sake of their penitent owners; and remember with the rest, That the Lord careth for oxen.

The great number of cattle to which reference is here made were for the support of the inhabitants; and probably at this time the Ninevites gathered in their cattle from the champaign pasture, expecting that some foe coming to besiege them might seize upon them for their forage, while they within might suffer the lack of all things.

No doubt that ancient Nineveh was like ancient Babylon, of which Quintus Curtius says, the buildings were not close to the walls, there being the space of an acre left between them; and in several parts there were within the walls portions of cultivated land, that, if besieged, they might have provisions to sustain the inhabitants.

And I suppose this to be true of all large ancient cities. They were rather cantons or districts than cities such as now are, only all the different inhabitants had joined together to wall in the districts for the sake of mutual defence.

This last expostulation of God, it is to be hoped, produced its proper effect on the mind of this irritable prophet; and that he was fully convinced that in this, as in all other cases, God had done all things well.

From this short prophecy many useful lessons may be derived. The Ninevites were on the verge of destruction, but on their repentance were respited. They did not, however, continue under the influence of good resolutions. They relapsed, and about one hundred and fifty years afterwards, the Prophet Nahum was sent to predict the miraculous discomfiture of the Assyrian king under Sennacherib, an event which took place about 710 B. C.; and also the total destruction of Nineveh by Cyaxares and his allies, which happened about 606 B. C. Several of the ancients, by allegorizing this book, have made Jonah declare the divinity, humanity, death, and resurrection of Christ. These points may be found in the Gospel history, their true repository; but fancy can find them any where it pleases to seek them; but he who seeks not for them will never find them here. Jonah was a type of the resurrection of Christ; nothing farther seems revealed in this prophet relative to the mysteries of Christianity.

In conclusion: while I have done the best I could to illustrate the very difficult prophet through whose work the reader has just passed, I do not pretend to say I have removed every difficulty. I am satisfied only of one thing, that I have conscientiously endeavoured to do it, and believe that I have generally succeeded; but am still fearful that several are left behind, which, though they may be accounted for from the briefness of the narrative of a great transaction, in which so many surprising particulars are included, yet, for general apprehension, might appear to have required a more distinct and circumstantial statement. I have only to add, that as several of the facts are evidently miraculous, and by the prophet stated as such, others may be probably of the same kind. On this ground all difficulty is removed; for God can do what he pleases. As his power is unlimited, it can meet with no impossibilities. He who gave the commission to Jonah to go and preach to the Ninevites, and prepared the great fish to swallow the disobedient prophet, could maintain his life for three days and three nights in the belly of this marine monster; and cause it to eject him at the termination of the appointed time, on any sea-coast he might choose; and afterwards the Divine power could carry the deeply contrite and now faithful prophet over the intervening distance between that and Nineveh, be that distance greater or less. Whatever, therefore, cannot be accounted for on mere natural principles in this book, may be referred to this supernatural agency; and this, on the ostensible principle of the prophecy itself, is at once a mode of interpretation as easy as it is rational. God gave the commission; he raised the storm; he prepared the fish which swallowed the prophet; he caused it to cast him forth on the dry land; he gave him a fresh commission, carried him to the place of his destination, and miraculously produced the sheltering gourd, that came to perfection in a night, and withered in a night. This God therefore performed the other facts for which we cannot naturally account, as he did those already specified. This concession, for the admission of which both common sense and reason plead, at once solves all the real or seeming difficulties to be found in the Book of the Prophet Jonah.

INTRODUCTION TO THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET MICAH.

MICAH, the Morasthite, or of Moresa, a village near the city Eleutheropolis, in the southern part of Judah, is the sixth in order of the twelve minor prophets. He prophesied under Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, for about fifty years. Some have confounded him with Micaiah, son of Imlah, who lived in the kingdom of the ten tribes, under the reign of Ahab.

The spurious Dorotheus says that Micah was buried in the burying-place of the Anakim, whose habitation had been at Hebron, and round about it. This prophet appeared almost at the same time with Isaiah, and has even borrowed some expressions from him. Compare Isa. ii. 2 with Mic. iv 1, and Isa. xli. 15 with Mic. iv. 13.

The prophecy of Micah contains but seven chapters. He foretells the calamities of Samaria, which was taken by Shalmaneser, and reduced to a heap of stones. Afterwards he prophesies against Judah, and declares the troubles that Sennacherib should bring upon it under the reign of Hezekiah. Then he declaims against the iniquities of Samaria. He foretells the captivity of the ten tribes, and their return into their own country. The third chapter contains a pathetic invective against the princes of the house of Jacob, and the judges of the house of Israel; which seems levelled against the chief of the kingdom of Judah, the judges, the magistrates, the priests, the false prophets, &c. He upbraids them with their avarice, their injustice, and falsehood; and tells them they will be the occasion that Jerusalem shall be reduced to a heap of rubbish, and the mountain of the temple shall be as a forest. We are informed, Jer. xxvi. 18, 19, that this prophecy was pronounced in the reign of Hezekiah; and that it saved Jeremiah from death.

After these terrible denunciations, Micah speaks of the reign of the Messiah, and of the establishment of the Christian Church. And as the peaceable times which succeeded the return from the Babylonish captivity, and which were a figure of the reign of the Messiah, were disturbed by a tempest of a short continuance, Micah foretold it in such a manner as agrees very well with what Ezekiel says of the war of Gog against the Jews. Micah speaks in particular of the birth of the Messiah; that he was to be born at Bethlehem; and that his dominion was to extend to the utmost parts of the earth. He says that God should raise seven shepherds, who should reign by the sword over Assyria, and in the land of Nimrod; which Calmet explains of Darius, son of Hystaspes; and of the seven confederates that killed the magian, and who possessed the empire of the Persians, after the extinction of the family of Cyrus. The fifth chapter, from ver. 7 to the end, describes the flourishing estate of the Jews in their own country, from the reign of Darius, and after the Maccabees; yet in such a manner, that he mingles several things in it that can apply only to the Church of Jesus Christ.

The two last chapters of Micah contain, first, a long invective against the iniquities of Samaria: then he foretells the fall of Babylon; the re-establishment of the cities of Israel; the greatness of the country possessed by the Israelites; their happiness; the graces wherewith God will favour them; and all this in such lofty terms, that they chiefly agree with the Christian Church. St. Jerome says that Micah was buried at Morasthi, ten furlongs from Eleutheropolis; and Sozomenes says that his tomb was revealed to Zebennus, bishop of Eleutheropolis, under the reign of Theodosius the Great. He calls the place of his burial Beretsate, which is probably the same as Morasthi, ten furlongs from Eleutheropolis.

Bishop Newcome observes that Micah was of the kingdom of Judah, as he only makes mention of kings who reigned over that country. It is supposed that he prophesied farther on in the reign of Hezekiah than Hosea did; although chap. v. 5 was written before the captivity of the ten tribes, which happened in the sixth year of Hezekiah. It is plain from chap i. 1, 5, 9, 12, 13, that he was sent both to Israel and Judah. Like Amos and Hosea, he reproves and threatens, with great spirit and energy, a corrupt people. See chap. ii. 1, 2, 3, 8, 9, 10; iii. 2, 3, 4, 6, 10–16; vii. 2, 3, 4. And, like Hosea, he inveighs against the princes and prophets with the highest indignation. See chap. iii. 5–7, 9–12; vii. 3. The reader will observe that these similar topics are treated of by each prophet with remarkable variety, and copiousness of expression.

Some of his prophecies are distinct and illustrious ones, as chap. ii. 12, 13; iii. 12; iv. 1–4, 10; v. 2, 3, 4; vi. 13; vii. 8, 9, 10.

We may justly admire the elegance of his diction:—

Chap. ii. 12.—"I will surely gather, O Jacob, all of thee:
I will surely assemble the residue of Israel.
I will put them together as sheep of Bozra,
As a flock in the midst of their fold:
They shall make a tumult from the multitude of men.
13.—He that forceth a passage is come up before them:
They have forced a passage, and have passed through the gate; and are gone forth by it:
And their King passeth before them, even Jehovah at the head of them."

Chap. iv 1.—"But it shall come to pass, in the latter days,
That the mountain of the temple of Jehovah shall be Established on the top of the mountains,
And it shall be exalted above the hills;
And the people shall flow into it:
2.—And many nations shall go, and shall say,
Come, and let us go up unto the mountain of Jehovah,
And unto the temple of the God of Jacob:
That he may teach us of his ways, and that we may walk in his paths.
For from Sion shall go forth a law,
And the word of Jehovah from Jerusalem.
3.—And he shall judge between many people,
And he shall convince strong nations afar off:
And they shall beat their swords into ploughshares,
And their spears into pruninghooks:
Nation shall not lift up sword against nation,
Neither shall they any longer learn war."

His animation, chap. i. 5, lines 3, 4:—

"What is the transgression of Jacob?—is it not that of Samaria?
And what are the high places of Judah?—are they not those of Jerusalem?"

Chap. iv. 9.—"And now why dost thou cry out loudly?
Is there no king in thee?
Hath thy counsellor perished?
For pangs have seized thee, as a woman in travail."

There are few beauties of composition of which examples may not be found in this prophet. For sublimity and impressiveness in several places, he is unrivalled. The Lord's controversy, chap. vi. 1–8, is equal to any thing even in the prophet Isaiah. It has a powerful effect on every attentive reader.

His strength of expression :—

Chap. i. 6.—"Therefore will I make Samaria a heap of the field, a place for the plantings of a vineyard :
And I will pour down her stones into the valley, and I will discover her foundations."
iii. 2.—"Ye who hate good and love evil :
Who pluck their skin from off them,
And their flesh from off their bones.
3.—Who have also eaten the flesh of my people,
And have flayed their skin from off them,
And have broken their bones ;
And have divided them asunder, as flesh in the pot :
And as meat within the caldron."
vii. 1.—"Wo is me ; for I am become
As the gatherers of late figs, as the gleaners of the vintage.
There is no cluster to eat :
My soul desireth the first-ripe fig.
2.—The good man is perished from the land,
And there is none upright among men.
All of them lie in wait for blood ;
They hunt every man his brother for his destruction."

His pathos :—

Chap. i. 16.—"Make thee bald, and cut off thine hair for thy delicate children ;
Enlarge thy baldness as the eagle ;
For they are gone into captivity from thee."
ii. 4.—"In that day shall a proverb be taken up against you ;
And a grievous lamentation shall be made :
Saying, 'We are utterly laid waste :
He hath changed the portion of my people :
How hath he departed from me,
To bring again him that divided our fields !' "

His sublimity :—

Chap. i. 2.—"Hear, O ye people, all of you :
Hearken, O land, and all that are therein.
And let the Lord Jehovah be witness against you ;
Even the Lord from his holy temple.
3.—For, behold, Jehovah will go forth from his place :
And he will come down, and will tread upon the high places of the earth.
Chap. i. 4.—And the mountains shall be molten under him ;
And the valleys shall cleave asunder ;
As wax before the fire,
As waters poured down a steep place."
Chap. vi. 1.—"Hear ye now what Jehovah saith :
Arise, contend thou before the mountains ;
And let the hills hear thy voice."
vii. 15.—"The nations shall see, and shall be confounded because of their might :
They shall lay their hand upon their mouth ; their ears shall be deaf.
7.—They shall lick the dust as the serpent ;
As the creeping things upon the earth, they shall tremble from their close places :
Because of Jehovah our God, they shall stand in awe ; and they shall fear because of thee.

THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET MICAH.

Chronological Notes relative to this Book.

Year from the Creation, according to Archbishop Usher, 3254.—Year of the Julian Period, 3964.—Year since the Flood, 1598.—Year from the vocation of Abram, 1171.—Year since the first celebration of the Olympic games in Elis by the Idæi Dactyli, 704.—Year from the destruction of Troy, according to the general computation of chronologers, 434.—Year since the commencement of the kingdom of Israel, by the Divine appointment of Saul to the regal dignity, 346.—Year from the foundation of Solomon's temple, 262.—Year since the division of Solomon's monarchy into the kingdoms of Israel and Judah, 226.—Year since the restoration of the Olympic games at Elis by Lycurgus, Iphitus, and Cleosthenes, 135.—Year from the foundation of the kingdom of Macedon by Caranus, 65.—Year from the foundation of the kingdom of Lydia by Ardysus, 49.—All before this reign concerning Lydia is entirely fabulous.—Year since the conquest of Corœbus at Olympia, usually called the first Olympiad, 27.—Third year of the seventh Olympiad.—Year before the building of Rome, according to the Varronian computation, 4.—Year from the building of Rome, according to Cato and the Fasti Consulares, 3.—Year from the building of Rome, according to Polybius the historian, 2.—Year before the building of Rome, according to Fabius Pictor, 2.—Year before the commencement of the era of Nabonassar, 2.—Year before the birth of Christ, 746.—Year before the vulgar era of Christ's nativity, 750.—Cycle of the Sun, 16.—Cycle of the Moon, 12.—Twenty-first year of Theopompus, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Proclidæ.—Twenty-seventh year of Polydorus, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Eurysthenidæ.—Twelfth year of Alyattes, king of Lydia.—Fifth year of Charops, the first decennial archon of the Athenians.—Fourth year of Romulus, the first king of the Romans.—Tenth year of Pekah, king of Israel.—Ninth year of Jotham, king of Judah.

CHAPTER I.

The prophet begins with calling the attention of all people to the awful descent of Jehovah, coming to execute his judgments against the kingdoms of Israel and Judah, 1–5; first against Samaria, whose fate the prophet laments in the dress of mourners, and with the doleful cries of the fox or ostrich, 6–8; and then against Jerusalem, which is threatened with the invasion of Sennacherib. Other cities of Judah are likewise threatened; and their danger represented to be so great as to oblige them to have recourse for protection even to their enemies the Philistines, from whom they desired at first to conceal their situation. But all resources are declared to be vain; Israel and Judah must go into captivity, 9–16.

A. M. cir. 3254. B. C. cir. 750. A. U. C. cir. 4. Romuli, R. Roman. cir. annum 4.

THE word of the LORD that came to [a] Micah the Morasthite in the days of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, [b] which he saw concerning Samaria and Jerusalem.

2 [c] Hear, all ye people; [d] hearken, O earth, and [e] all

A. M. cir. 3254. B. C. cir. 750. A. U. C. cir. 4 Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 4

[a] Jer. xxvi. 18.——[b] Amos i. 1.——[c] Heb. Hear, ye people, all of them.

[d] Deuteronomy xxxii. 1; Isa. i. 2.——[e] Heb. the fulness thereof.

NOTES ON CHAP. I.

Verse 1. The word of the Lord that came to Micah the Morasthite] For all authentic particulars relative to this prophet, see the preface.

In the days of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah] These three kings reigned about threescore years; and Micah is supposed to have prophesied about forty or fifty years; but no more of his prophecies have reached posterity than what are contained in this book, nor is there any evidence that any more was written. His time appears to have been spent chiefly in preaching and exhorting; and he was directed to write those that therein is: and let the Lord GOD [f] be Witness against you, the Lord from [g] his holy temple.

A. M. cir. 3254. B. C. cir. 750. A. U. C. cir. 4. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 4.

3 For, behold, [h] the LORD cometh forth out of his [i] place, and will come down, and tread upon the [k] high places of the earth.

4 And [l] the mountains shall be molten under him, and the valleys shall be cleft, as wax before the fire, and as the waters that are poured down [m] a steep place.

5 For the transgression of Jacob is all this, and for the sins of the house of Israel. What is the transgression of Jacob? is it not Samaria? and what are the high places of Judah? are they not Jerusalem?

A. M. cir. 3254. B. C. cir. 750. A. U. C. cir. 4 Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum. 4.

6 Therefore I will make Samaria [n] as a heap of the field, and as plantings of a vineyard: and I will pour down the stones thereof into the valley, and I will [o] discover the foundations thereof.

7 And all the graven images thereof shall be beaten to pieces, and all the [p] hires thereof shall be burned with the fire, and all the idols thereof will I lay desolate: for she gathered it of the hire of a harlot, and they shall return to the hire of a harlot.

8 Therefore [q] I will wail and howl, [r] I will go stripped and naked: [s] I will make a wailing like the dragons, and mourning as the [t] owls

9 For [u] her wound is incurable; for [v] it is

[f] Psa. l. 7; Mal. iii. 5.——[g] Psa. xi. 4; Jonah ii. 7; Hab. ii. 20.——[h] Isa. xxvi. 21.——[i] Psa. cxv. 3.——[k] Deut. xxxii. 13; xxxiii. 29; Amos iv. 13.——[l] Judg. v. 5; Psa. xcvii. 5; Isa. lxiv. 1, 2, 3; Amos ix. 5; Hab. iii. 6, 10.——[m] Heb. a descent.——[n] 2 Kings xix. 25; chap. iii. 12.

[o] Ezek. xiii. 14.——[p] Hos. ii. 5, 12.——[q] Isa. xxi. 3; xxii. 4, Jer. iv. 19.——[r] Isaiah xx. 2, 3, 4.——[s] Job xxx. 29; Psa. cii. 6.——[t] Heb. daughters of the owl.——[u] Or, she is grievously sick of her wounds.——[v] 2 Kings xviii. 13; Isaiah viii. 7, 8.

parts only that were calculated to profit succeeding generations.

Verse 2. Hear, all ye people] The very commencement of this prophecy supposes preceding exhortations and predictions.

Hearken, O earth] אֶרֶץ arets, here, should be translated land, the country of the Hebrews being only intended.

And let the Lord God be Witness] Let him who has sent me with this message be witness that I have delivered it faithfully; and be a witness against you, if you take not the warning.

The Lord from his holy temple.] The place where he still remains as your King, and your Judge; and where you profess to pay your devotions. The temple was yet standing, for Jerusalem was not taken for many years after this; and these prophecies were delivered before the captivity of the ten tribes, as Micah appears to have been sent both to Israel and to Judah. See ver. 5–9, 12, 13.

Verse 3. For, behold, the Lord cometh forth] See this clause, Amos iv. 13. He represents Jehovah as a mighty conqueror, issuing from his pavilion, stepping from mountain to mountain, which rush down and fill the valleys before him; a consuming fire accompanying him, that melts and confounds every hill and dale, and blends all in universal confusion. God is here represented as doing that himself which other conquerors do by the multitude of their hosts: levelling the mountains, filling some of the valleys, and digging for waters in others, and pouring them from hills and dales for the use of the conquering armies, by pipes and aqueducts.

And why is all this mighty movement? Verse 5. "For the transgression of Jacob is all this, and for the sins of the house of Israel."

Verse 5. What is the transgression of Jacob?] Is it not something extremely grievous? Is it not that of Samaria? Samaria and Jerusalem, the chief cities, are infected with idolatry. Each has its high places, and its idol worship, in opposition to the worship of the true God. That there was idolatry practised by the elders of Israel, even in the temple of Jehovah, see Ezek. viii. 1, &c. As the royal cities in both kingdoms gave the example of gross idolatry, no wonder that it spread through the whole land, both of Israel and Judah.

Verse 6. I will make Samaria] I will bring it to desolation: and, instead of being a royal city, it shall be a place for vineyards. Newcome observes, that Samaria was situated on a hill, the right soil for a vineyard.

I will discover the foundations thereof.] I will cause its walls and fortifications to be razed to the ground.

Verse 7. All the hires thereof shall be burned] Multitudes of women gave the money they gained by their public prostitution at the temples for the support of the priesthood, the ornamenting of the walls, altars, and images. So that these things, and perhaps several of the images themselves, were literally the hire of the harlots: and God threatens here to deliver all into the hands of enemies, who should seize on this wealth, and literally spend it in the same way in which it was acquired; so that "to the hire of a harlot these things should return."

Verse 8. I will make a wailing like the dragons] Newcome translates:—

I will make a wailing like the foxes, (or jackals,)

And mourning like the daughters of the ostrich.

This beast, the jackal or shiagal, we have often met with in the prophets. Travellers inform us that its howlings by night are most lamentable; and as to the ostrich, it is remarkable for its fearful shrieking and agonizing groanings after night. Dr. Shaw says he has often heard them groan as if they were in the greatest agonies.

Verse 9. Her wound is incurable] Nothing shall come unto Judah; he is come unto the gate of my people, even to Jerusalem.

A. M. cir. 3251. B. C. cir. 750. A. U. C. cir. 4. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 4.

10 [w] Declare ye it not at Gath, weep ye not at all: in the house of [x] Aphrah [y] roll thyself in the dust.

11 Pass ye away, [z] thou [a] inhabitant of Saphir, having thy [b] shame naked: the inhabitant of [c] Zaanan came not forth in the mourning of [d] Beth-ezel; he shall receive of you his standing.

12 For the inhabitant of Maroth [e] waited carefully for good: but [f] evil came down from the LORD unto the gate of Jerusalem.

13 O thou inhabitant of [g] Lachish, bind the chariot to the swift beast: she is the beginning of the sin to the daughter of Zion: for the transgressions of Israel were found in thee.

A. M. cir. 3254. B. C. cir. 750. A. U. C. cir. 4 Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 4.

14 Therefore shalt thou [h] give presents [i] to Moresheth-gath: the houses of [k] Achzib [l] shall be a lie to the kings of Israel.

15 Yet will I bring an heir unto thee, O inhabitant of [m] Mareshah: [n] he shall come unto [o] Adullam the glory of Israel.

16 Make thee [p] bald, and poll thee for thy [q] delicate children; enlarge thy baldness as the eagle; for they are gone into captivity from thee.

[w] 2 Sam. i. 20.——[x] That is, dust.——[y] Jer. vi. 26.——[z] Or, thou that dwellest fairly.——[a] Heb. inhabitress.——[b] Isa. xx. 4; xlvii. 2, 3; Jer. xiii. 22; Nah. iii. 5.——[c] Or, the country of flocks.——[d] Or, a place near.——[e] Or, was grieved.——[f] Amos iii. 6.

[g] 2 Kings xviii. 14, 17.——[h] 2 Sam. viii. 2; 2 Kings xviii. 14, 15, 16.——[i] Or, for.——[k] That is, a lie.——[l] Josh. xv. 44. [m] Josh. xv. 44.——[n] Or, the glory of Israel shall come, &c. [o] 2 Chron. xi. 7.——[p] Job i. 20; Isa. xv. 2; xxii. 12; Jer. vii. 29; xvi. 6; xlvii. 5; xlviii. 37.——[q] Lam. iv. 5.

prevent their utter ruin, for they have filled up the measure of their iniquity.

He is come—even to Jerusalem.] The desolation and captivity of Israel shall first take place; that of Judah shall come after.

Verse 10. Declare ye it not at Gath] Do not let this prediction be known among the Philistines, else they will glory over you.

House of Aphrah] Or, Beth-aphrah. This place is mentioned Josh. xviii. 23, as in the tribe of Benjamin. There is a paronomasia, or play on words, here: בבית לעפרה עפר bebeith leaphrah aphar, "Roll thyself in the dust, in the house of dust."

Verse 11. Inhabitant of Saphir] Sapher, Sepphoris, or Sephora, was the strongest place in Galilee.—Calmet. It was a city in the tribe of Judah, between Eleutheropolis and Ascalon.—Houbigant.

Zaanan] Another city in the tribe of Judah, Josh. xv. 13.

Beth-ezel] A place near Jerusalem, Zech. xiv. 5. Some think that Jerusalem itself is intended by this word.

Verse 12. The inhabitant of Maroth] There was a city of a similar name in the tribe of Judah, Josh. xv. 59.

Verse 13. Inhabitant of Lachish] This city was in the tribe of Judah, Josh. xv. 39, and was taken by Sennacherib when he was coming against Jerusalem, 2 Kings xviii. 13, &c., and it is supposed that he wished to reduce this city first, that, possessing it, he might prevent Hezekiah's receiving any help from Egypt.

She is the beginning of the sin] This seems to intimate that Lachish was the first city in Judah which received the idolatrous worship of Israel.

Verse 14. Give presents to Moresheth-gath] Calmet says that Moresa or Morashti, and Achzib, were cities not far from Gath. It is possible that when Ahaz found himself pressed by Pekah, king of Israel, he might have sent to these places for succour, that by their assistance he might frustrate the hopes of the king of Israel; and this may be the meaning of "The houses of Achzib shall be a lie to the kings of Israel." In these verses there are several instances of the paronomasia. See ver. 10, עפר aphar, dust, and עפרה aphrah, the name of the city. Ver. 11, צאנן tsaanan, the city, and יצאה yatsah, to go out. Ver. 13, לכיש lachish, the city, and רכש rechesh, the swift beast. Ver. 14, אכזיב achzib, the city, and אכזב achzab, a lie. Such paronomasias were reputed ornaments by the prophets. They occur in Isaiah with great effect. See Isa. v. 7.

Verse 15. Yet will I bring an heir unto thee, O—Mareshah] Here is another instance, הירש haiyeresh, to bring an heir, and מרשה mareshah, the city, the name of which signifies heirship. And so of the above proper names.

Adullam the glory of Israel.] This was a fenced city in the south of Judah (see 2 Chron. xi. 7) towards the Dead Sea.

There is much obscurity in the concluding verses of this chapter. They undoubtedly refer to the captivity of Israel, and to circumstances of distress, &c., which are not mentioned in any of the historical books; and therefore their reference and meaning can only be conjectured.

Verse 16. Make thee bald] Cutting off the hair was a sign of great distress, and was practised on the death of near relatives; see Amos viii. 10. The desolation should be so great that Israel should feel it to her utmost extent; and the mourning should be like that of a mother for the death of her most delicate children.

Enlarge thy baldness as the eagle] Referring to the moulting of this bird, when in casting its feathers and breeding new ones, it is very sickly, and its strength wholly exhausted.

They are gone into captivity] This is a prediction of the captivity by Shalmaneser. Samaria, the chief city, is called on to deplore it, as then fast approaching.

CHAPTER II.

Here the prophet denounces a wo against the plotters of wickedness, the covetous and the oppressor, 1, 2. God is represented as devising their ruin, 3. An Israelite is then introduced as a mourner, personating his people, and lamenting their fate, 4. Their total expulsion is now threatened on account of their very numerous offences, 5–10. Great infatuation of the people in favour of those pretenders to Divine inspiration who prophesied to them peace and plenty, 11. The chapter concludes with a gracious promise of the restoration of the posterity of Jacob from captivity; possibly alluding to their deliverance from the Chaldean yoke, an event which was about two hundred years in futurity at the delivery of this prophecy, 12, 13.

A. M. cir. 3274. B. C. cir. 730. A. U. C. cir. 24. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum, 24.

WO to them [a] that devise iniquity, and [b] work evil upon their beds! when the morning is light, they practise it, because [c] it is in the power of their hand.

2 And they covet [d] fields, and take them by violence; and houses, and take them away: so they [e] oppress a man and his house, even a man and his heritage.

3 Therefore thus saith the LORD; Behold, against [f] this family do I devise an evil, from which ye shall not remove your necks; neither shall ye go haughtily: [g] for this time is evil.

4 In that day shall one [h] take up a parable against you, and [i] lament [k] with a doleful lamentation, and say, We be utterly spoiled: [l] he hath changed the portion of my people: how hath he removed it from me! [m] turning away he hath divided our fields.

A. M. cir. 3274. B. C. cir. 730. A. U. C. cir. 24 Romuli, R. Roman.. cir. annum 24.

5 Therefore thou shalt have none that shall cast [n] a cord by lot in the congregation of the LORD.

6 [o] [p] Prophesy [q] ye not, say they to them that prophesy: they shall not prophesy to them, that they shall not take shame.

7 O thou that art named the house of Jacob, is the Spirit of the LORD [r] straitened? are these his doings? do not my words do good to him that walketh [s] uprightly?

[a] Hos. vii. 6.——[b] Psa. xxxvi. 4.——[c] Gen. xxxi. 29.——[d] Isa. v. 8.——[e] Or, defraud.——[f] Jer. viii. 3.——[g] Amos v. 13; Eph. v. 16.——[h] Hab. ii. 6.——[i] 2 Sam. i. 17.——[k] Heb. with a lamentation of lamentations.——[l] Chap. i. 15.

[m] Or, instead of restoring.——[n] Deut. xxxii. 8, 9.——[o] Or, Prophesy not as they prophesy.——[p] Heb. drop, &c.; Ezek. xxi. 2. [q] Isa. xxx. 10; Amos ii. 12; vii. 16.——[r] Or, shortened.——[s] Heb. upright.

NOTES ON CHAP. II.

Wo to them that devise iniquity] Who lay schemes and plans for transgressions; who make it their study to find out new modes of sinning; and make these things their nocturnal meditations, that, having fixed their plan, they may begin to execute it as soon as it is light in the morning.

Because it is in the power of their hand.] They think they may do whatever they have power and opportunity to do.

Verse 2. They covet fields] These are the rich and mighty in the land; and, like Ahab, they will take the vineyard or inheritance of any poor Naboth on which they may fix their covetous eye; so that they take away even the heritage of the poor.

Verse 3. Against this family (the Israelites) do I devise an evil] You have devised the evil of plundering the upright; I will devise the evil to you of punishment for your conduct; you shall have your necks brought under the yoke of servitude. Tiglath-pileser ruined this kingdom, and transported the people to Assyria, under the reign of Hezekiah, king of Judah; and Micah lived to see this catastrophe. See on ver. 9.

Verse 4. Take up a parable against you] Your wickedness and your punishment shall be subjects of common conversation; and a funeral dirge shall be composed and sung for you as for the dead. The lamentation is that which immediately follows: We be utterly spoiled; and ends, Are these his doings? ver. 7.

Verse 5. None that shall cast a cord] You will no more have your inheritance divided to you by lot, as it was to your fathers; ye shall neither have fields nor possessions of any kind.

Verse 6. Prophesy ye not] Do not predict any more evils—we have as many as we can bear. We are utterly ruined—shame and confusion cover our faces. The original is singular, and expressive of sorrow and sobbing. Literally, "Do not cause it to rain; they will cause it to rain; they cannot make it rain sooner than this; confusion shall not depart from us." To rain, often means to preach, to prophesy; Ezek. xx. 46, xxi. 2; Amos vii. 16; Deut. xxxii. 2; Job xxix. 22; Prov. v. 3, &c.

The last line Bp. Newcome translates, "For he shall not remove from himself reproaches;" and paraphrases, "The true prophet will subject himself to public disgrace by exercising his office."

Verse 7. Is the Spirit of the Lord straitened?] This is the complaint of the Israelites, and a part of the lamentation. Doth it not speak by other persons as well as by Micah? Doth it communicate to us such influences as it did formerly? Is it true that these evils are threatened by that Spirit? Are these his doings? To which Jehovah answers, "Do not my words do good to him that walketh uprightly?" No upright man need fear any word spoken by me:

A. M. cir. 3274. B. C. cir. 730. A. U. C. cir. 24. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

8 Even [t] of late my people is risen up as an enemy: ye pull off the robe [u] with the garment from them that pass by securely as men averse from war.

9 The [v] women of my people have ye cast out from their pleasant houses; from their children have ye taken away my glory for ever.

10 Arise ye, and depart; for this is not your [w] rest: because it is [x] polluted, it shall destroy you, even with a sore destruction.

11 If a man [y] walking [z] in the spirit and falsehood do lie, saying, I will prophesy unto thee of wine and of strong drink; he shall even be the prophet of this people.

A. M. cir. 3274. B. C. cir. 730. A. U. C. cir. 24. Romuli, R. Roman., cir. annum 24.

12 [a] I will surely assemble, O Jacob, all of thee; I will surely gather the remnant of Israel; I will put them together [b] as the sheep of Bozrah, as the flock in the midst of their fold: they shall make great noise by reason of the multitude of men.

13 The breaker is come up before them: they have broken up, and have passed through the gate, and are gone out by it: [c] and [d] their king shall pass before them, [e] and the LORD on the head of them.

[t] Heb. yesterday.——[u] Heb. over against a garment.——[v] Or, wives.——[w] Deut. xii. 9.——[x] Lev. xviii. 25, 28; Jeremiah iii. 2.

[y] Or, walk with the wind, and lie falsely.——[z] Ezek. xiii. 3.
[a] Chap. iv. 6, 7.——[b] Jer. xxxi. 10.——[c] Ezek. xxxvi. 37.
[d] Hos. iii. 5.——[e] Isa. lii. 12.

my words to such yield instruction and comfort; never dismay. Were ye upright, ye would not complain of the words of my prophets. The last clause may be translated, "Walking with him that is upright." The upright man walks by the word; and the word walks with him who walks by it.

Verse 8. My people is risen up as an enemy] Ye are not only opposed to me, but ye are enemies to each other. Ye rob and spoil each other. Ye plunder the peaceable passenger; depriving him both of his upper and under garment; ye pull off the robe from those who, far from being spoilers themselves, are averse from war.

Verse 9. The women of my people] Ye are the cause of the women and their children being carried into captivity—separated from their pleasant habitations, and from my temple and ordinances—and from the blessings of the covenant, which it is my glory to give, and theirs to receive. These two verses may probably relate to the war made on Ahaz by Rezin, king of Syria, and Pekah, king of Israel. They fell suddenly upon the Jews; killed in one day one hundred and twenty thousand, and took two hundred thousand captive; and carried away much spoil. Thus, they rose up against them as enemies, when there was peace between the two kingdoms; spoiled them of their goods, carried away men, women, and children, till, at the remonstrances of the prophet Oded, they were released. See 2 Chron. xxviii. 6, &c. Micah lived in the days of Ahaz, and might have seen the barbarities which he here describes.

Verse 10. Arise ye, and depart] Prepare for your captivity; ye shall have no resting place here: the very land is polluted by your iniquities, and shall vomit you out, and it shall be destroyed; and the destruction of it shall be great and sore.

Some think this is an exhortation to the godly, to leave a land that was to be destroyed so speedily.

Verse 11. If a man walking in the spirit and falsehood] The meaning is: If a man who professes to be Divinely inspired do lie, by prophesying of plenty, &c., then such a person shall be received as a true prophet by this people. It not unfrequently happens that the Christless worldling, who has got into the priest's office for a maintenance, and who leaves the people undisturbed in their unregenerate state, is better received than the faithful pastor, who proclaims the justice of the Lord, and the necessity of repentance and forsaking sin, in order to their being made partakers of that holiness without which no man shall see God.

Verse 12. I will surely assemble] This is a promise of the restoration of Israel from captivity. He compares them to a flock of sheep rushing together to their fold, the hoofs of which make a wonderful noise or clatter. So when one hundred sheep run, eight hundred toes or divisions of these bifid animals make a clattering noise. This appears to be the image.

Verse 13. The breaker is come up] He who is to give them deliverance, and lead them out on the way of their return. He who takes down the hurdles, or makes a gap in the wall or hedge, to permit them to pass through. This may apply to those human agents that shall permit and order their return. And Jehovah being at their head, may refer to their final restoration, when the Lord Jesus shall become their leader, they having returned unto him as the shepherd and bishop of their souls; and they and the Gentiles forming one fold under one shepherd, to go no more out into captivity for ever. Lord, hasten the time!

CHAPTER III.

In this chapter the prophet inveighs with great boldness and spirit against the princes and prophets of Judah; and foretells the destruction of Jerusalem as the consequence of their iniquity, 1–12. The last verse was fulfilled to a certain extent by Nebuchadnezzar; but most fully and literally by the Romans under Titus. See Josephus.

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum. 6.

AND I said, Hear, I pray you, O heads of Jacob, and ye princes of the house of Israel; [a] Is it not for you to know judgment?

2 Who hate the good, and love the evil; who pluck off their skin from off them, and their flesh from off their bones;

3 Who also [b] eat the flesh of my people, and flay their skin from off them, and they break their bones, and chop them in pieces, as for the pot, and [c] as flesh within the caldron.

4 Then [d] shall they cry unto the LORD, but he will not hear them; he will even hide his face from them at that time, as they have behaved themselves ill in their doings.

5 Thus saith the LORD [e] concerning the prophets that make my people err, that [f] bite with their teeth, and cry, Peace; and [g] he that putteth not into their mouths, they even prepare war against him:

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

6 [h] Therefore night shall be unto you, [i] that ye shall not have a vision; and it shall be dark unto you, [k] that ye shall not divine; [l] and the sun shall go down over the prophets, and the day shall be dark over them.

7 Then shall the seers be ashamed, and the diviners confounded: yea, they shall all cover their [m] lips; [n] for there is no answer of God.

8 But truly I am full of power by the Spirit of the LORD, and of judgment, and of might, [o] to declare unto Jacob his transgression, and to Israel his sin.

9 Hear this, I pray you, ye heads of the house of Jacob, and princes of the house of Israel, that abhor judgment, and pervert all equity.

10 [p] They build up Zion with [q] blood,

[a] Jer. v. 4, 5. — [b] Psa. xiv. 4. — [c] Ezek. xi. 3, 7. — [d] Psa. xviii. 41; Prov. i. 28; Isa. i. 15; Ezek. viii. 18; Zech. vii. 13. [e] Isa. lvi. 10, 11; Ezek. xiii. 10; xxii. 25. — [f] Chap. ii. 11; Matt. xii. 15. — [g] Ezek. xiii. 18, 19. — [h] Isa. viii. 20, 22; Ezek. xiii. 23, 24; Zech. xiii. 4. — [i] Heb. from a vision. — [k] Heb. from divining. — [l] Amos vii. 9. — [m] Heb. upper lip. — [n] Psa. lxxiv. 9; Amos viii. 11. — [o] Isa. lviii. 1. — [p] Jer. xxii. 13 [q] Ezek. xxii. 27; Hab. ii. 12; Zeph. iii. 3.

NOTES ON CHAP. III.

Verse 1. Hear—O heads of Jacob] The metaphor of the flock is still carried on. The chiefs of Jacob, and the princes of Israel, instead of taking care of the flocks, defending them, and finding them pasture, oppressed them in various ways. They are like wolves, who tear the skin of the sheep, and the flesh off their bones. This applies to all unjust and oppressive rulers.

Suetonius tells us, in his life of Tiberius, that when the governors of provinces wrote to the emperor, entreating him to increase the tributes, he wrote back: "It is the property of a good shepherd to shear his sheep, not to skin them." Præsidibus onerandas tributo provincias suadentibus rescripsit: BONI PASTORIS esse TONDERE pecus, non DEGLUBERE. This is a maxim which many rulers of the earth do not seem to understand.

Verse 4. Then shall they cry] When calamity comes upon these oppressors, they shall cry for deliverance: but they shall not be heard; because, in their unjust exactions upon the people, they went on ruthlessly, and would not hear the cry of the oppressed.

Verse 5. That bite with their teeth] That eat to the full; that are well provided for, and as long as they are so, prophesy smooth things, and cry, Peace! i. e., Ye shall have nothing but peace and prosperity. Whereas the true prophet, "who putteth not into their mouths," who makes no provision for their evil propensities, "they prepare war against him." קדשו עלי מלחמה kiddeshu alaiv milchamah, "They sanctify a war against him." They call on all to help them to put down a man who is speaking evil of the Lord's people; and predicting the destruction of his temple, and Israel his inheritance.

Verse 6. Night shall be unto you] Ye shall have no spiritual light, nor will God give you any revelation of his will.

The sun shall go down over the prophets] They prospered for a while, causing the people to err; but they shall also be carried into captivity, and then the sun of their prosperity shall go down for ever, and the very day that gives light and comfort to others, shall be darkness and calamity to them.

Verse 7. Shall the seers be ashamed] For the false visions of comfort and prosperity which they pretended to see.

And the diviners confounded] Who pretended to foretell future prosperity; for they themselves are now thralled in that very captivity which the true prophets foretold, and which the false prophets said should not happen.

Verse 8. But—I am full of power] Here is the character of the true prophet. He is filled, all his soul is occupied with power, כח coach, with heavenly energy; by the Spirit of the Lord, the fountain of all truth and might; and of judgment, which enables him to make a proper discernment between the precious and the vile; and of might, גבורה geburah, prevalent power, against which vice shall not be able to prevail, and before which iniquity shall not be able to stand; but all shall fall together, and be confounded.

Verse 9. Hear this] An appeal similar to that in ver. 1.

Verse 10. They build up Zion with blood] They might cry out loudly against that butchery practised by Pekah, king of Israel, and Pul, coadjutor of Rezin, against the Jews. See on chap. ii. 9. But these were by no means clear themselves; for if they strengthened the city, or decorated the temple, it was by the produce of their exactions and oppressions of the people.

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum. 6.

[r] and Jerusalem with iniquity.

11 [s] The heads thereof judge for reward, and [t] the priests thereof teach for hire, and the prophets thereof divine for money: [u] yet will they lean upon the LORD, [v] and say, Is not the LORD among us? none evil can come upon us.

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii. R. Roman. cir. annum. 6.

12 Therefore shall Zion for your sake be [w] ploughed as a field; [x] and Jerusalem shall become heaps, and [y] the mountain of the house as the high places of the forest.

[r] Heb. bloods.——[s] Isa. i. 23; Ezek. xxii. 12; Hos. iv 18; chap. vii. 3.——[t] Jer. vi. 13.——[u] Isa. xlviii. 2; Jer. vii. 4; Rom. ii. 17.

[v] Heb. saying.——[w] Jer. xxvi. 18; chap. i. 6.——[x] Psa. lxxix. 1 [y] Chap. iv. 2.

I do not know a text more applicable than this to slave-dealers; or to any who have made their fortunes by such wrongs as affect the life of man; especially the former, who by the gains of this diabolic traffic have built houses, &c.; for, following up the prophet's metaphor, the timbers, &c., are the bones of the hapless Africans; and the mortar, the blood of the defenceless progeny of Ham. What an account must all those who have any hand in or profit from this detestable, degrading, and inhuman traffic, give to him who will shortly judge the quick and dead!

Verse 11. The heads thereof judge for reward] This does not apply to the regular law officers, who have their proper salaries for giving up their whole time and attention to the conscientious discharge of the duties of their office; but to those who take a reward, who take BRIBES, for the perversion of justice; who will decide in favour of those from whom they get the greatest reward.

The prophets—divine for money] These are evidently the false prophets; for none, professing to be sent by God, used any kind of divination.

Yet will they lean upon the Lord] They will prescribe fasts and public thanksgivings, while not one sin is repented of or forsaken, and not one public grievance is redressed.

Is not the Lord among us?] Here is his temple, here are his ordinances, and here are his people. Will he leave these? Yes, he will abandon the whole, because all are polluted.

Verse 12. Therefore shall Zion—be ploughed as a field] It shall undergo a variety of reverses and sackages, till at last there shall not be one stone left on the top of another, that shall not be pulled down; and then a plough shall be drawn along the site of the walls, to signify an irreparable and endless destruction. Of this ancient custom Horace speaks, Odar lib i Od. 16, ver. 18.

Altis urbibus ultimæ
Stetere causæ cur perirent
Funditus, imprimeretque muris
Hostile aratrum exercitus insolens

"From hence proud cities date their utter falls;
When, insolent in ruin, o'er their walls
The wrathful soldier drags the hostile plough,
That haughty mark of total overthrow."

FRANCIS.

Thus did the Romans treat Jerusalem when it was taken by Titus. Turnus Rufus, or as he is called by St. Jerome, Titus Arinius Rufus, or Terentius Rufus, according to Josephus, caused a plough to be drawn over all the courts of the temple to signify that it should never be rebuilt, and the place only serve for agricultural purposes. See the note on Matt. xxiv. 2. Thus Jerusalem became heaps, an indiscriminate mass of ruins and rubbish; and the mountain of the house, Mount Moriah, on which the temple stood, became so much neglected after the total destruction of the temple, that it soon resembled the high places of the forest. What is said here may apply also, as before hinted, to the ruin of the temple by Nebuchadnezzar in the last year of the reign of Zedekiah, the last king of the Jews.

As the Masoretes, in their division of the Bible, reckon the twelve minor prophets but as one book, they mark this verse (twelfth of chap. iii.) the MIDDLE verse of these prophets.

CHAPTER IV.

In the commencement of this chapter we have a glorious prophecy of the establishment and prosperity of the Messiah's kingdom; its peaceful character, increasing spiritual and political influence, ultimate universality, and everlasting duration, 1–4. Then breaks in a chorus of his people declaring their peculiar happiness in being members of his kingdom, 5. The prophet resumes the subject; predicts the restoration and future prosperity of Israel, 6–8; and exhorts them not to be discouraged at their approaching captivity, as they should in due time not only be delivered from it, but likewise be victorious over all their enemies, 9–13. These last verses, which evidently contain a prediction of the final triumph of Christianity over every adversary, have been applied to the conquests of the Maccabees; but the character and beneficial results of their military exploits, as far as we have any account of them, correspond but in a very faint degree to the beautiful and highly wrought terms of the prophecy. The first three verses of this chapter are very similar to the commencement of the second chapter of Isaiah; and the fourth, for beauty of imagery and elegance of expression, is not unworthy of that prophet.

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

BUT [a] in the last days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of the house of the LORD shall be established in the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and people shall flow unto it.

2 And many nations shall come, and say, Come, and let us go up to the [b] mountain of the LORD, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths; for the law shall go forth of Zion, and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.

3 And he shall judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into [c] ploughshares, and their spears into [d] pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up a sword against nation, [e] neither shall they learn war any more.

4 [f] But they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig tree; and none shall make them afraid: for the mouth of the LORD of hosts hath spoken it.

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum. 6.

5 For [g] all people will walk every one in the name of his god, and [h] we will walk in the name of the LORD our God for ever and ever.

6 In that day, saith the LORD, [i] will I assemble her that halteth, [k] and I will gather her that is driven out, and her that I have afflicted;

7 And I will make her that halted [l] a remnant, and her that was cast far off a strong nation: and the LORD [m] shall reign over them in Mount Zion from henceforth, even for ever.

8 And thou, O tower of [n] the flock, the stronghold of the daughter of Zion, unto thee shall it come, even the first dominion; the kingdom shall come to the daughter of Jerusalem.

9 Now why dost thou cry out aloud? [o] is there no king in thee? is thy counsellor perished?

[a] Isa. ii. 2, &c; Ezek. xvii. 22, 23. — [b] Isa. xiv. 25. — [c] Isa. ii. 4; Joel iii. 10. — [d] Or, scythes. — [e] Psa. lxxii. 7. — [f] 1 Kings iv. 25; Zech. iii. 10. — [g] Jer. ii. 11. — [h] Zech. x. 12. — [i] Ezek. xxxiv. 16; Zeph. iii. 19.

[k] Psa. cxlvii. 2; Ezek. xxxiv. 13; xxxvii. 21. — [l] Chap. ii 12; v. 3, 7, 8; vii. 18. — [m] Isa. ix. 6; xxiv. 23; Dan. vii. 14, 27; Luke i. 33; Rev. xi. 15. — [n] Or, Edar; Gen. xxxv. 21 [o] Jer. viii. 19.

NOTES ON CHAP. IV.

Verses 1–4. But in the last days it shall come to pass] These four verses contain, says Bp. Newcome, a prophecy that was to be fulfilled by the coming of the Messiah, when the Gentiles were to be admitted into covenant with God, and the apostles were to preach the Gospel, beginning at Jerusalem, Luke xxiv. 47; Acts ii. 14, &c.; when Christ was to be the spiritual Judge and King of many people, was to convince many nations of their errors and vices, and was to found a religion which had the strongest tendency to promote peace. Bp. Lowth thinks that "Micah took this passage from Isaiah;" or the Spirit may have inspired both prophets with this prediction; or both may have copied some common original, the words of a prophet well known at that time. The variations (few and of little importance) may be seen in the notes on the parallel passages, Isa. ii. 2, &c.; to which the reader is requested to refer.

Verse 4. Under his vine and under his fig tree] A proverbial expression, indicative of perfect peace, security, and rural comfort. See on Isa. ii. 1. This verse is an addition to the prophecy as it stands in Isaiah.

Verse 5. Every one in the name of his god] This shall be the state of the Gentile world; but after the captivity, the Jews walked in the name of Jehovah alone; and acknowledge no other object of religious worship to the present day.

Verse 6. Will I assemble her that halteth—driven out—afflicted] Under these epithets, the state of the Jews, who were to be gathered into the Christian Church, is pointed out. They halted between the true God and idols; they were driven out into captivity, because of this idolatry; and they were variously afflicted, because they would not return unto the Lord that bought them.

Verse 7. Her that halted a remnant] I will preserve them as a distinct people after their return from captivity, for the farther purposes of my grace and mercy.

And the Lord shall reign over them in Mount Zion] The Chaldee is remarkable here, and positively applies the words to the Messiah: "But thou, O Messiah, of Israel, who art hidden because of the sins of the congregation of Zion, the kingdom shall come unto thee."

Verse 8. O tower of the flock] I think the temple is meant, or Jerusalem; the place where the flock, the whole congregation of the people assembled to worship God. Newcome retains the Hebrew word עדר eder, a tower in or near Beth-lehem, Gen. xxxv. 21, or, as some think, a tower near the sheep-gate in Jerusalem. I believe Jerusalem, or the temple, or both, are meant; for these were considered the stronghold of the daughter of Zion, the fortress of the Jewish people.

Even the first dominion] What was this? The Divine theocracy under Jesus Christ; this former, this first dominion, was to be restored. Hence the angel called him Immanuel, God with us, ruling among us.

Verse 9. Is there no king in thee?] None. And why? Because thou hast rejected Jehovah thy king.

Is thy counsellor perished?] No: but thou hast rejected the words and advices of the prophets.

Pangs have taken thee] He is speaking of the desolations that should take place when the Chaldeans should come against the city; and hence he says, "Thou shalt go to Babylon;" ye shall be cast out of your own land, and sent slaves to a foreign country. He represents the people under the notion of a woman in travail.

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

for [p] pangs have taken thee as a woman in travail.

10 Be in pain, and labour to bring forth, O daughter of Zion, like a woman in travail: for now shalt thou go forth out of the city, and thou shalt dwell in the field, and thou shalt go even to Babylon; there shalt thou be delivered; there the LORD shall redeem thee from the hand of thine enemies.

11 [q] Now also many nations are gathered against thee, that say, Let her be defiled, and let our eye [r] look upon Zion.

12 But they know not [s] the thoughts of the LORD, neither understand they his counsel: for he shall gather them [t] as the sheaves into the floor.

A. M. cir. 3294 B. C. cir. 710 A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

13 [u] Arise and thresh, O daughter of Zion: for I will make thine horn iron, and I will make thy hoofs brass: and thou shalt [v] beat in pieces many people: [w] and I will consecrate their gain unto the LORD, and their substance unto [x] the LORD of the whole earth.

[p] Isa. xiii. 8; xxi. 3; Jer. xxx. 6; l. 43.——[q] Lam. ii. 16. [r] Obad. 12; chap. vii. 10.——[s] Isa. lv. 8; Rom. xi. 33.

[t] Isa. xxi. 10.——[u] Isa. xli. 15 16; Jer. li. 33.——[v] Dan. ii. 44.——[w] Isa. xviii. 7; xxiii. 18; lx. 6, 9.——[x] Zech. iv. 14; vi. 5.

Verse 10. There shalt thou be delivered] There God shall meet thee; and by redeeming thee from thy captivity, bringing thee back to thine own land, and finally converting thee unto himself, shall deliver thee from the burden of grief and wo which thou now bearest, and under which thou dost groan.

Verse 11. Many nations are gathered against thee] The Chaldeans, who were composed of many nations. And, we may add, all the surrounding nations were their enemies; and rejoiced when the Chaldean army had overthrown Jerusalem, destroyed the temple, and led the people away captive.

Let her be defiled] This was their cry and their wish: Let Jerusalem be laid as low as she can be, like a thing defiled and cast away with abhorrence; that their eyes might look upon Zion with scorn, contempt, and exultation.

Verse 12. But they know not the thoughts of the Lord] These think that God has utterly rejected his people, and they shall have a troublesome neighbour no more: but this is not his design; he will afflict them for a time; but these, the enemies of his people, he will gather as sheaves into the threshing-floor, there to be trodden, and the wheel to go over them. This is the counsel, the purpose of God, which these do not understand. The persons here referred to are not only the Chaldeans which were threshed by the Persians and Medes; but the Idumeans, Ammonites, Moabites, and Philistines, which the Jews afterwards subdued.

Verse 13. Arise and thresh, O daughter of Zion] This refers to the subject of the preceding verse. When God shall have gathered together all thy enemies, as into the threshing-floor, he will give thee commission and power to get a complete victory over them, and reduce them to servitude. And that thou mayest be able to do this, he will be on thy side as a powerful helper; here signified by the metaphors, iron horns, and brazen hoofs. Thou shalt have power, authority, and unconquerable strength; for thine enemies shall be no more against thee than the corn against oxen shod with brass, or a puny animal against the horn of a fierce bull tipped with iron.

I will consecrate their gain unto the Lord] What they have taken from thee in the way of spoil shall be restored; and again consecrated unto the service of him who will show himself to be the Lord, the Supreme Governor of the whole earth. Was not this prediction fulfilled when Cyrus gave the Jews permission to return to their own land, and gave them back the sacred vessels of the temple which Nebuchadnezzar had carried away? The Maccabees and their successors recovered much of the booty of which the neighbouring nations had deprived the Jews; and the treasure taken was devoted to Jehovah. The first verse of the next chapter should conclude this.

CHAPTER V.

This chapter begins, according to the opinion of some commentators, with a prophecy concerning the siege of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar, and the great indignities which Zedekiah should suffer from the Babylonians, 1. We have next a most famous prediction concerning the birthplace of the Messiah, "whose goings forth have been from of old, from EVERLASTING," 2. See Matt. ii. 6. The Jews obstinately persisting in their opposition to the Messiah, God will therefore give them up into the hands of their enemies till the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled: and then all the posterity of Jacob, both Israel and Judah, shall be converted to the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, and, along with the Gentiles, be brought into the large and peaceful pastures of this Great Shepherd of the sheep, 3, 4. After this illustrious prophecy, the prophet goes on to foretell the downfall of the Assyrians, by whom ere meant the enemies of the Church in general, the type being probably put for the antitype; the miraculous discomfiture of the great Assyrian army in the reign of Sennacherib strongly shadowing forth the glorious and no less miraculous triumphs of Christianity in the latter times, 5, 6. See Isa. xi. 16. Some understand this prophecy of Antiochus and the seven famous Maccabees, with their eight royal successors, from Aristobulus to Antigonus; and it is not impossible that these people may be also intended, for we have often had occasion to remark that a prophecy of the Old Testament Scriptures has frequently more than one aspect. The seventh verse was fulfilled by the Jews spreading the knowledge of the true God during their captivity, and so paving the way for the Gospel; but will be more signally fulfilled after their conversion and restoration. See Rom. xi. 12–15. The remaining verses contain a prophecy of the final overthrow of all the enemies of pure and undefiled religion, and of the thorough purification of the Church of God from the corruptions of Antichrist, 9–15

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

NOW gather thyself in troops, O daughter of troops: he hath laid siege against us: they shall [a] smite the judge of Israel, with a rod upon the cheek.

2 But thou, [b] Beth-lehem Ephratah, though thou be little [c] among the [d] thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be [e] Ruler in Israel; [f] whose goings forth have been from of old, from [g] everlasting.

3 Therefore will he give them up, until the time that [h] she which travaileth hath brought forth: then [i] the remnant of his brethren shall return unto the children of Israel.

A. M. cir. 3294 B. C. cir. 710 A. U. C. cir. 44 Numæ Pompilii R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

4 And he shall stand and [k] feed [l] in the strength of the LORD, in the majesty of the name of the LORD his God; and they shall abide: for now [m] shall he be great unto the ends of the earth.

[a] Lam. iii. 30; Matt. v. 39; xxvii. 30.——[b] Matt. ii. 6; John vii. 42.——[c] 1 Sam. xxiii. 23.——[d] Exod. xviii. 25.——[e] Gen. xlix. 10; Isa. ix. 6.——[f] Psa. xc. 2; Prov. viii. 22, 23; John i. 1.

[g] Heb. the days of eternity.——[h] Chap. iv. 10.——[i] Chap. iv 7.——[k] Or, rule.——[l] Isa. xl. 11; xlix. 10; Ezek. xxxiv. 23; chap. vii. 14.——[m] Psa. lxxii. 8; Isa. lii. 13; Zech. ix. 10; Luke i. 32.

NOTES ON CHAP. V.

Verse 1. O daughter of troops] The Chaldeans, whose armies were composed of troops from various nations.

He (Nebuchadnezzar) hath laid siege against us; (Jerusalem;) they shall smite the judge of Israel (Zedekiah) with a rod upon the cheek.] They shall offer him the greatest indignity. They slew his sons before his face; and then put out his eyes, loaded him with chains, and carried him captive to Babylon.

Verse 2. But thou, Beth-lehem Ephratah] I have considered this subject in great detail in the notes on Matt. ii. 6, to which the reader will be pleased to refer. This verse should begin this chapter; the first verse belongs to the preceding chapter.

Beth-lehem Ephratah, to distinguish it from another Beth-lehem, which was in the tribe of Zebulun, Josh. xix. 15.

Thousands of Judah] The tribes were divided into small portions called thousands; as in our country certain divisions of counties are called hundreds.

Whose goings forth have been from of old] In every age, from the foundation of the world, there has been some manifestation of the Messiah. He was the hope, as he was the salvation, of the world, from the promise to Adam in paradise, to his manifestation in the flesh four thousand years after.

From everlasting] מימי עולם miyemey olam, "From the days of all time;" from time as it came out of eternity. That is, there was no time in which he has not been going forth—coming in various ways to save men. And he that came forth the moment that time had its birth, was before that time in which he began to come forth to save the souls that he had created. He was before all things. As he is the Creator of all things, so he is the Eternal, and no part of what was created. All being but God has been created. Whatever has not been created is God. But Jesus is the Creator of all things; therefore he is God; for he cannot be a part of his own work.

Verse 3. Therefore will he give them up] Jesus Christ shall give up the disobedient and rebellious Jews into the hands of all the nations of the earth, till she who travaileth hath brought forth; that is, till the Christian Church, represented Rev. xii. 1, under the notion of a woman in travail, shall have had the fulness of the Gentiles brought in. Then the remnant of his brethren shall return; the Jews also shall be converted unto the Lord; and thus all Israel shall be saved, according to Rom. xi. 26.

Unto the children of Israel.] Taking in both families, that of Judah and that of Israel. The remnant of the ten tribes, wherever they are, shall be brought in under Christ; and though now lost among the nations of the earth, they will then not only be brought in among the fulness of the Gentiles, but most probably be distinguished as Jews.

On this verse Abp. Newcome says, "The sense is, God will not fully vindicate and exalt his people, till the virgin mother shall have brought forth her Son; and till Judah and Israel, and all the true sons of Abraham among their brethren the Gentiles, be converted to Christianity.

Verse 4. He shall stand and feed] The Messiah shall remain with his followers, supporting and governing them in the strength and majesty of the Lord, with all the miraculous interferences of his power, and all the glories of his grace.

And they shall abide] After this the Jews shall no more go astray, but shall remain one people with the Gentiles, under the one Shepherd and Bishop of all souls.

Newcome translates, "They shall be converted;" for instead of וישבו veyashebu, he reads וישובו veyashubu, which gives him the translation above. This is the reading of three MSS. of Kennicott's and De Rossi's, with the Syriac, Chaldee, and Vulgate.

For now shall he be great] The Messiah shall be great, as bringing salvation to the ends of the earth. All nations shall receive his religion, and he shall be universal King.

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

5 And this man [n] shall be the peace, when the Assyrian shall come into our land: and when he shall tread in our palaces, then shall we raise against him seven shepherds, and eight [o] principal men.

6 And they shall [p] waste the land of Assyria with the sword, and the land of [q] Nimrod [r] in the entrances thereof: thus shall he [s] deliver us from the Assyrian, when he cometh into our land, and when he treadeth within our borders.

7 And [t] the remnant of Jacob shall be in the midst of many people [u] as the dew from the LORD, as the showers upon the grass, that tarrieth not for man, nor waiteth for the sons of men.

8 And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a lion among the beasts of the forest, as a young lion among the flocks of [v] sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver.

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

9 Thine hand shall be lifted up upon thine adversaries, and all thine enemies shall be cut off.

10 [w] And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the LORD, that I will cut off thy horses out of the midst of thee, and I will destroy thy chariots:

11 And I will cut off the cities of thy land, and throw down all thy strongholds:

[n] Psa. lxxii. 7; Isa. ix. 6; Zech. ix. 10; Luke ii. 14; Eph. ii. 14.——[o] Heb. princes of men.——[p] Heb. eat up.——[q] Gen. x. 8, 10, 11.

[r] Or, with her own naked swords.——[s] Luke i. 71.——[t] Ver. 3. [u] Deut. xxxii. 2; Psa. lxxii. 6; cx. 3.——[v] Or, goats.——[w] Zech. ix. 10.

Verse 5. And this man shall be the peace] This clause should be joined to the preceding verse, as it finishes the prophecy concerning our blessed Lord, who is the Author and Prince of Israel; and shall finally give peace to all nations, by bringing them under his yoke.

When the Assyrian shall come] This is a new prophecy, and relates to the subversion of the Assyrian empire.

Then shall we raise against him seven shepherds] Supposed to mean the seven Maccabees, Mattathias and his five sons, and Hyrcanus, the son of Simon.

Eight principal men.] Eight princes, the Asmonean race; beginning with Aristobulus, and ending with Herod, who was married to Mariamne.—Sharpe. Perhaps seven and eight are a definite for an indefinite number, as Eccl. xi. 2; Job v. 19. The prophet means the chiefs of the Medes and Babylonians, the prefects of different provinces who took Nineveh, whose number may have been what is here specified.—Newcome.

Calmet considers this as referring to the invasion of Judea by Cambyses, when the Lord raised up against him the seven magi. He of them who passed for king of the Persians was the Smerdis of Herodotus, the Oropastes of Trogus, and the Artaxerxes of Ezra. These magi were put to death by seven Persian chiefs; who, having delivered the empire from them, set one of themselves, Darius, the son of Hystaspes, upon the throne.

Verse 6. The land of Nimrod] Assyria, and Nineveh its capital; and Babylon, which was also built by Nimrod, who was its first king, Gen. x. 11, 12, in the margin.

In the entrances thereof] At its posts or watergates; for it was by rendering themselves masters of the Euphrates that the Medes and Persians took the city, according to the prediction of Jeremiah, chap. li. 32, 36.

Calmet thinks that this refers to the deliverance of the land from Cambyses by his death, and the insurrection of the eight princes mentioned above, who made themselves masters of the whole Babylonian empire, &c. Perhaps it is best to refer it to the invasion of Judea by Nebuchadnezzar; and the final destruction of the Babylonish empire by Cyrus, who took Babylon, slew Belshazzar, and possessed himself of the kingdom.

Verse 7. The remnant of Jacob] From the reign of Darius Hystaspes (Ahasuerus, husband of Esther) the Jews were greatly favoured. Those who continued in Persia and Chaldea were greatly honoured under the protection of Mordecai and Esther.—Calmet. But others consider this as applying to the Maccabees.

As a dew from the Lord] Even during their captivity many of the Jews were the means of spreading the knowledge of the one true God; see Dan. ii. 47; iii. 29; iv. 34; vi. 26. This may be the dew from the Lord mentioned here. When the Messiah appeared, the Gospel was preached by them; and it shall again be propagated by their future glorious restoration, Rom. xi. 12, 25.

The grass, that tarrieth not for man] Which grass springs up without the attention and culture of man; לאיש leish, even the best and most skilful of men.

Nor waiteth for the sons of men.] לבני אדם libney adam, for the sons of Adam, the first transgressor. The dew and the showers descend on the earth and water it, in order to render it fruitful; and the grass springs up independently either of the worth or wickedness of man. All comes through God's bounty, who causes his sun to shine on the just and the unjust, and his rain to descend on the evil and the good.

Verse 8. As a lion] In this and the following verse the victories of the Maccabees are supposed to be foretold.

Verse 9. All thine enemies shall be cut off.] The Assyrians, who had destroyed Israel; and the Babylonians, who had ruined Judah.

Verse 10. I will cut off thy horses] Thou shalt have no need of cavalry in thine armies; God will fight for you.

Verse 11. I will—throw down all thy strongholds

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

12 And I will cut off witchcrafts out of thine hand; and thou shalt have no more [x] soothsayers.

13 [y] Thy graven images also will I cut off, and thy [z] standing images out of the midst of thee; and thou shalt [a] no more worship the work of thine hands.

14 And I will pluck up thy groves out of the midst of thee: so will I destroy thy [b] cities.

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii R. Roman. cir. annum 6.

15 And I will [c] execute vengeance in anger and fury upon the heathen, such as they have not heard.

[x] Isa. ii. 6.——[y] Zech. xiii. 2.——[z] Or, statues.——[a] Isa. ii. 8.

[b] Or, enemies.——[c] Psa. cxlix. 7; ver. 8; 2 Thess. i. 8.

Thou shalt have no need of fortified cities; I will be thy defence.

Verse 12. I will cut off witchcrafts] Thou shalt seek help only in Jehovah thy God. They have had neither soothsayers, images, groves, nor high places, from the captivity to the present day.

Verse 13. Thy graven images also will I cut off] Thou shalt be no more an idolatrous people.

Verse 15. I will execute vengeance—upon the heathen] And he did so; for the empires of the Assyrians, Chaldeans, and others, the sworn enemies of the Jews, have long since been utterly destroyed.

CHAPTER VI.

This chapter reproves and threatens. The manner of raising the attention by calling on man to urge his plea in the face of all nature, and on the inanimate creation to hear the expostulation of Jehovah with his people, is awakening and sublime. The words of Jehovah follow, 3–5. And God's mercies having been set forth to his people, one of them is introduced, in a beautiful dramatic form, asking what his duty is towards a God so gracious, 6, 7. The answer follows in the words of the prophet, 8; who goes on to upbraid the people of his charge with their injustice and idolatry, to which he ascribes want of success in their lawful undertakings, and those heavy calamities which are now impending, 9–15.

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

HEAR ye now what the LORD saith; Arise, contend thou [a] before the mountains, and let the hills hear thy voice.

2 [b] Hear ye, O mountains, [c] the LORD's controversy, and ye strong foundations of the earth: for [d] the LORD hath a controversy with his people, and he will plead with Israel.

3 O my people, [e] what have I done unto thee? and wherein have I wearied thee? testify against me.

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

4 [f] For I brought thee up out of the land of Egypt, and redeemed thee out of the house of servants; and I sent before thee Moses, Aaron, and Miriam.

[a] Or, with.——[b] Deut. xxxii. 1; Psa. l. 1, 4; Isa. i. 2.——[c] Hos. xii. 2.——[d] Isa. i. 18; v. 3, 4; xliii. 26; Hos. iv. 1.

[e] Jer. ii. 5, 31.——[f] Exod. xii. 51; xiv. 30; xx. 2; Deut. iv. 20; Amos ii. 10.

NOTES ON CHAP. VI.

Verse 1. Arise, contend thou] This chapter is a sort of dialogue between God and the people. GOD speaks the five first verses, and convicts the people of sin, righteousness, and judgment. The PEOPLE, convinced of their iniquity, deprecate God's judgments, in the sixth and seventh verses. In the eighth verse God prescribes the way in which they are to be saved; and then the prophet, by the command of God, goes on to remonstrate from the ninth verse to the end of the chapter.

Verse 2. Hear ye, O mountains] Micah, as God's advocate, summons this people into judgment, and makes an appeal to inanimate creation against them. He had spoken to the priests, to the princes, to the people. He had done every thing that was necessary to make them wise, and holy, and happy; they had uniformly disobeyed, and were ever ungrateful. It was not consistent with either the justice or mercy of God to permit them to go on without reprehension and punishment. He now calls them into judgment; and such was the nature of their crimes that, to heighten the effect, and show what reason he had to punish such a people, he appeals to inanimate creation. Their ingratitude and rebellion are sufficient to make the mountains, the hills, and the strong foundations of the earth to hear, tremble, and give judgment against them. This, then, is the Lord's controversy with his people, and thus he will plead with Israel.

Verse 3. O my people, what have I done unto thee?] They are called to show why God should not pronounce sentence upon them. This condescension is truly astonishing! God appears to humble himself to his creatures. You have acted basely, treacherously, and ungratefully to me; this had already been proved by the prophets. What cause have I given you for such conduct? I have required a religious service from you; but have I wearied you by a fatiguing round of difficult duties? If I have, now testify against me; and you shall be first heard, and your plea received, if it be reasonable and good. They are silent; and God proceeds, and states what he has done for them.

Verse 4. I brought thee up out of the land of Egypt] Where you were slaves, and grievously op-

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

5 O my people, remember now what [g] Balak king of Moab consulted, and what Balaam the son of Beor answered him from [h] Shittim unto Gilgal; that ye may know [i] the righteousness of the LORD.

6 Wherewith shall I come before the LORD, and bow myself before the high God? shall I come before him with burnt-offerings, with calves [k] of a year old?

7 [l] Will the LORD be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousands of [m] rivers of oil? [n] shall I give my first-born for my transgression, the fruit of my [o] body for the sin of my soul?

8 He hath [p] showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the LORD require of thee, but [q] to do justly, and to love mercy, and to [r] walk humbly with thy God?

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

[g] Num. xxii. 5; xxiii. 7; xxiv. 10, 11; Deut. xxiii. 4, 5; Josh. xxiv. 9, 10; Rev. ii. 14.——[h] Num. xxv. 1; xxxiii. 49; Josh. iv. 19; v. 10.——[i] Judg. v. 11.——[k] Heb. sons of a year? [l] Psa. l. 9; li. 16; Isa. i. 11.——[m] Job xxix. 6.

[n] 2 Kings xvi. 3; xxi. 6; xxiii. 10; Jer. vii. 31; xix. 5; Ezek. xxiii. 37.——[o] Heb. belly.——[p] Deut. x. 12; 1 Sam. xv. 22; Hos. vi. 6; xii. 6.——[q] Gen. xviii. 19; Isa. i. 17.——[r] Heb. humble thyself to walk.

pressed; from all this I redeemed you. Was this a small benefit! I sent before thee MOSES, my chosen servant, and instructed him that he might be your leader and lawgiver. I sent with him AARON, that he might be your priest, and transact all spiritual matters between myself and you, in offerings, sacrifices, and atonements. I sent MIRIAM, to whom I gave the spirit of prophecy, that she might tell you things to come, and be the director of your females. To this sense the Chaldee, "I have sent three prophets before you; Moses, that he might teach you the tradition of judgments; Aaron, that he might make atonement for the people; and Miriam, that she might instruct the females."

Verse 5. Remember now what Balak king of Moab consulted] He sent for Balaam to curse your fathers; but by my influence he was obliged to bless them. See Num. xxii. and xxiii., and the notes there, where this subject is largely considered.

From Shittim unto Gilgal] From the encampment at Shittim, Num. xxv. 1, on the way to that of Gilgal, Josh. iv. 19. Balaam gave different answers in the interval between these places. We may suppose that the encampments of Israel advanced slowly to that part of Jordan which was opposite to Gilgal. The Chaldee has, "Were there not wonderful things done in your behalf from the valley of Shittim to the house of Gilgal!" See Josh. iii. 1; iv. 20. Thus there will be a reference to the miraculous passage over Jordan. See Newcome.

That ye may know the righteousness] The just, equitable, and merciful dealing of the Most High. Recollect those things, that ye may have a proper impression of this. There are many interpretations given of this rather obscure clause; what I have proposed seems to me the most simple.

This is the sum of the address; and here the case of the plaintiff terminates, the prisoners being called to show why the sentence of the law should not be pronounced. I make no apology for using any forensic terms, as the passages before us refer to a case brought into a court to be judged, and the terms in the original are all such as are proper for a court of justice; and the thing itself is called the Lord's controversy, ריב יהוה rib Yehovah, Jehovah's suit at law. And hence it is said, He will plead, litigate, with Israel.

Verse 6. Wherewith shall I come before the Lord] Now the people, as defendants, appear; but instead of vindicating themselves, or attempting to dispute what has been alleged against them, they seem at once to plead guilty; and now anxiously inquire how they shall appease the wrath of the Judge, how they shall make atonement for the sins already committed.

Bow myself before the high God] They wish to pray, and to make supplication to their Judge; but how shall they come before him? They have no right to come into his presence. Some offering must be brought; but of what kind, or of what value? Their sin is unprecedented, and usual methods of access will not avail. They are distracted in their minds, and make a variety of proposals to themselves, some rational, some absurd and impossible, and some even sinful.

Shall I come before him with burnt-offerings] This is reasonable, and according to the law; but this will be insufficient.

Verse 7. Will the Lord be pleased with thousands of rams] These might be procured, though with difficulty; but conscience says, neither will these do.

With ten thousands of rivers of oil] This is absurd and impossible; but could even these be procured, could they all make atonement for such guilt, and ingratitude, and rebellion?

Shall I give my first-born for my transgression] This was sinful and wicked; but such offerings had been made by the Phœnicians, and their successors the Carthaginians; and this very custom was copied by the corrupt Israelites. See some cases of such offerings, 2 Kings iii. 27; Lev. xx. 27.

The fruit of my body for the sin of my soul?] This clause is an explanation of the former. Shall I make the first-born, the best and goodliest of my children, חטאת chattath, a SIN-OFFERING for my soul? And thus the original is used in a multitude of places.

When they had put all these questions to their reason and conscience, they found no satisfaction; their distraction is increased, and despair is about to take place, when Jehovah, the plaintiff, in his mercy interposes:

Verse 8. He hath showed thee, O man, what is good] All the modes of expiation which ye have proposed are, in the sight of God, unavailable; they cannot do away the evil, nor purify from the guilt of sin. He himself has shown thee what is good; that which is profitable to thee, and pleasing to himself. And what is that? Answer. Thou art—

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

9 The [s] LORD'S voice crieth unto the city, and [t] the man of wisdom shall see thy name: hear ye the rod, and who hath appointed it.

10 [u] Are there yet the treasures of wickedness in the house of the wicked, and the [v] scant measure [w] that is abominable?

11 [x] Shall I count them pure with the [y] wicked balances, and with the bag of deceitful weights?

12 For the rich men thereof are full of vio-

A. M. cir. 3294 B. C. cir. 710 A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

[s] Deut. xv. 5; xxvi. 17; xxviii. 1, 2; xxx. 10.——[t] Or, thy name shall see that which is.——[u] Or, Is there yet unto every man a house of the wicked, &c.——[v] Hebrew, measure of leanness,

Amos viii. 5.——[w] Deuteronomy xxv. 13–16; Proverbs xi. 1; xx. 10, 23.——[x] Or, Shall I be pure with, &c.——[y] Hos. xii. 7.

I. To do justly; to give to all their due.

1. To God his due; thy heart, thy body, soul, and spirit; thy wisdom, understanding, judgment. "To love him with all thy heart, soul, mind, and strength, and thy neighbour as thyself." This is God's due and right from every man.

2. Thou art to give thy neighbour his due; to do to him as thou wouldst that he should do to thee, never working ill to him.

3. Thou art to give to thyself thy due; not to deprive thy soul of what God has provided for it; to keep thy body in temperance, sobriety, and chastity; avoiding all excesses, both in action and passion.

II. Thou art to love mercy; not only to do what justice requires, but also what mercy, kindness, benevolence, and charity require.

III. But how art thou to do this? Thou art to walk humbly with thy God; הצנע hatsnea, to humble thyself to walk. This implies to acknowledge thy iniquity, and submit to be saved by his free mercy, as thou hast already found that no kind of offering or sacrifice can avail. Without this humiliation of soul there never was, there never can be, any walking with God; for without his mercy no soul can be saved; and he must be THY God before thou canst walk with him. Many, when they hear the nature of sin pointed out, and the way of salvation made plain through the blood of the Lamb, have shut their eyes both against sin and the proper sacrifice for it, and parried all exhortation, threatening, &c., with this text: "God requires nothing of us but to do justly, love mercy, and walk humbly with him." Now I ask any man, Art thou willing to stand or fall by this text? And it would cost me neither much time nor much pains to show that on this ground no soul of man can be saved. Nor does God say that this doing justly, &c., shall merit eternal glory. No. He shows that in this way all men should walk; that this is the duty of EVERY rational being: but he well knows that no fallen soul can act thus without especial assistance from him, and that it is only the regenerate man, the man who has found redemption through the blood of the cross, and has God for HIS God, that can thus act and walk. Salvation is of the mere mercy of God alone; for by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified.

The manner of raising attention, says Bp. Newcome, on ver. 1, 2, by calling on man to urge his plea in the face of all nature, and on the inanimate creation to hear the expostulation of Jehovah with his people, is truly awakening and magnificent. The words of Jehovah follow in ver. 3, 4, 5. And God's mercies having been set before the people, one of them is introduced in a beautiful dramatic form; asking what his duty is towards so gracious a God, ver. 6, 7. The answer follows in the words of the prophet, ver. 8. Some think we have a sort of dialogue between Balak and Balaam, represented to us in the prophetical way. The king of Moab speaks, ver. 6. Balaam replies by another question in the two first hemistichs of ver. 7. The king of Moab rejoins in the remaining part of the verse; and Balaam replies, ver. 8. Bps. Butler and Lowth favour this. I cannot agree.

Verse 9. The Lord's voice crieth unto the city] No man is found to hear; but the man of wisdom will hear, תושיה tushiyah; a word frequent in the writings of Solomon and Job, signifying wisdom, wealth, substance, reason, essence, happiness; any thing that is complete; or that which is substantial, in opposition to vanity, emptiness, mere show, unsubstantiality. When God speaks, the man of common sense, who has any knowledge of God or his own soul, will see thy name; but instead of יראה yireh, will see, the Septuagint, Syriac, Vulgate, and Arabic, with twelve of Kennicott's and De Rossi's MSS., have read יראי yirey, they that FEAR. The Vulgate reads:—

Et salus erit timentibus nomen tuum.

"And thou shalt be salvation to them that fear thy name."

The Septuagint—Και σωσει φοβουμενους το ονομα αυτου.

And he shall save those who fear his name.—This the Arabic copies.

The Targum has, "And the teachers shall fear the name." That is, יהוה Yehovah.

The French Bible is very strange:—

Car ton nom voit comme il va de tout.

"For thy name sees how every thing goes."

The word תושיה tushiyah, mentioned above, which occasions all the difficulty, has been read with an ע ain by the Vulgate and Septuagint, as coming from the root ישע yasha, to be saved; and it is very likely that this was the original reading. The two last letters in the word, יה, might have been easily mistaken in the MS. for the letter ע, where I may suppose the word stood thus, תושע, shall be saved; and as several MSS. read יראי yirey, they who fear, instead of יראה yireh, he shall see, the whole clause might have been just what it appears in the Vulgate and Septuagint. It is also necessary to remark that the word in dispute has various forms in some MSS., which is a strong presumption against its authenticity. See Kennicott and De Rossi.

Verse 10. Are there yet the treasures of wickedness] Such as false balances and deceitful weights. See on lence, and the inhabitants thereof have spoken lies, and [z] their tongue is deceitful in their mouth.

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

13 Therefore also will I [a] make thee sick in smiting thee, in making thee desolate because of thy sins.

14 [b] Thou shalt eat, but not be satisfied; and thy casting down shall be in the midst of thee; and thou shalt take hold, but shalt not deliver; and that which thou deliverest will I give up to the sword.

15 Thou shalt [c] sow, but thou shalt not reap; thou shalt tread the olives, but thou shalt not anoint thee with oil; and sweet wine, but shalt not drink wine.

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

16 For [d] the statutes of [e] Omri are [f] kept, and all the works of the house of [g] Ahab, and ye walk in their counsels; that I should make thee [h] a [i] desolation, and the inhabitants thereof a hissing: therefore ye shall bear the [k] reproach of my people.

[z] Jer. ix. 3, 5, 6, 8.——[a] Lev. xxvi. 16; Psa. cvii. 17, 18. [b] Lev. xxvi. 26; Hos. iv. 10.——[c] Deut. xxviii. 38, 39, 40; Amos v. 11; Zeph. i. 13; Hag. i. 6.——[d] Or, he doth much keep the, &c.

[e] 1 Kings xvi. 25, 26.——[f] Hos. v. 11.——[g] 1 Kings xvi. 30, &c.; xxi. 25, 26; 2 Kings xxi. 3.——[h] 1 Kings ix. 8; Jer. xlix. 8. [i] Or, astonishment.——[k] Isa. xxv. 8; Jer. li. 51; Lam. v. 1.

Hos. xii. 7. This shows that they were not DOING JUSTLY. They did not give to each his due.

Verse 12. For the rich men thereof are full of violence] This shows that they did not love mercy.

The inhabitants thereof have spoken lies] This shows that they did not humble themselves to walk with God.

Verse 13. Will I make thee sick in smiting thee] Perhaps better, "I also am weary with smiting thee, in making thee desolate for thy sins." They were corrected, but to no purpose; they had stroke upon stroke, but were not amended.

Verse 14. Thou shalt eat, but not be satisfied] All thy possessions are cursed, because of thy sins; and thou hast no real good in all thy enjoyments.

And thy casting down] For וישחך veyeshchacha, "thy casting down," Newcome, by transposing the ח and ש, reads ויחשך veyechshach, "and it shall be dark;" and this is probably the true reading. The Arabic and Septuagint have read the same. "There shall be calamity in the midst of thee." It shall have its seat and throne among you.

Verse 15. Thou shalt sow, but thou shalt not reap] Thou shalt labour to amass property, but thou shalt not have God's blessing; and whatever thou collectest, thy enemies shall carry away. And at last carry thyself into captivity.

Verse 16. The statutes of Omri are kept] Omri, king of Israel, the father of Ahab, was one of the worst kings the Israelites ever had; and Ahab followed in his wicked father's steps. The statutes of those kings were the very grossest idolatry. Jezebel, wife of the latter, and daughter of Ithobaal, king of Tyre, had no fellow on earth. From her Shakspeare seems to have drawn the character of Lady Macbeth; a woman, like her prototype, mixed up of tigress and fiend, without addition. Omri, Ahab, and Jezebel, were the models followed by the Israelites in the days of this prophet.

The inhabitants thereof a hissing] לשרקה lishrekah, "for a shriek;" because those who should see them should be both astonished and affrighted at them.

There are few chapters in the prophets, or in the Bible, superior to this for genuine worth and importance. The structure is as elegant as it is impressive; and it is every way worthy of the Spirit of God.

CHAPTER VII.

The prophet begins this chapter with lamenting the decay of piety and the growth of ungodliness, using a beautiful allegory to imply (as explained in verse 2) that the good man is as seldom to be met with as the early fig of best quality in the advanced season, or the cluster after the vintage, 1, 2, He then reproves and threatens in terms so expressive of great calamities as to be applied in the New Testament to times of the hottest persecution, 3–6. See Matt. x. 35, 36. Notwithstanding which a Jew is immediately introduced declaring, in the name of his captive people, the strongest faith in the mercy of God, the most submissive resignation to his will, and the firmest hope in his favour in future times, when they should triumph over their enemies, 7–10. The prophet upon this resumes the discourse, and predicts their great prosperity and increase, 11, 12; although the whole land of Israel must first be desolated on account of the great wickedness of its inhabitants, 13. The prophet intercedes in behalf of his people, 14. After which God is introduced promising, in very ample terms, their future restoration and prosperity, 15–17. And then, to conclude, a chorus of Jews is introduced, singing a beautiful hymn of thanksgiving, suggested by the gracious promises which precede, 18–20.

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

WO is me! for I am as [a] when they have gathered the summer fruits, as [b] the grape-gleanings of the vintage: there is no cluster to eat: [c] my soul desireth the first-ripe fruit.

2 The [d] good [e] man is perished out of the earth: and there is none upright among men: they all lie in wait for blood; [f] they hunt every man his brother with a net.

3 That they may do evil with both hands earnestly, [g] the prince asketh, [h] and the judge asketh for a reward; and the great man, he uttereth [i] his mischievous desire: so they wrap it up.

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

4 The best of them [k] is as a brier: the most upright is sharper than a thorn hedge: the day of thy watchmen and thy visitation cometh; now shall be their perplexity.

5 [l] Trust ye not in a friend, put ye not confidence in a guide: keep the doors of thy mouth from her that lieth in thy bosom.

[a] Heb. the gatherings of summer.——[b] Isa. xvii. 6; xxiv. 13.——[c] Isa. xxviii. 4; Hos. ix. 10.——[d] Psa. xii. 1; xiv. 1, 3; Isa. lvii. 1.——[e] Or, godly, or merciful.

[f] Hab. i. 15.——[g] Hos. iv. 18.——[h] Isa. i 23; chap. iii. 11. [i] Heb. the mischief of his soul.——[k] 2 Sam. xxiii. 6, 7; Ezek. ii. 6; see Isa. lv. 13.——[l] Jer. ix. 4.

NOTES ON CHAP. VII.

Verse 1. Wo is me!] This is a continuation of the preceding discourse. And here the prophet points out the small number of the upright to be found in the land. He himself seemed to be the only person who was on God's side; and he considers himself as a solitary grape, which had escaped the general gathering. The word קיץ kayits, which is sometimes used for summer, and summer fruits in general, is here translated late figs; and may here, says Bishop Newcome, be opposed to the early ripe fig of superior quality. See on Hos. ix. 10, and Amos viii. 1, 2. He desired to see the first-ripe fruit—distinguished and eminent piety; but he found nothing but a very imperfect or spurious kind of godliness.

Verse 2. The good man is perished out of the earth] A similar sentiment may be found, Psa. xii. 1; Isa. lvii. 1. As the early fig of excellent flavour cannot be found in the advanced season of summer, or a choice cluster of grapes after vintage, so neither can the good and upright man be discovered by searching in Israel. This comparison, says Bp. Newcome, is beautifully implied.

They hunt every man his brother with a net.] This appears to be an allusion to the ancient mode of duel between the retiarius and secutor. The former had a casting net, which he endeavoured to throw over the head of his antagonist, that he might then despatch him with his short sword. The other parried the cast; and when the retiarius missed, he was obliged to run about the field to get time to set his net in right order for another throw. While he ran, the other followed, that he might despatch him before he should be able to recover the proper position of his net; and hence the latter was called secutor, the pursuer, as the other was called retiarius, or the net man. I have explained this before on Job, and other places; but because it is rarely noticed by commentators, I explain the allusion here once more. Abp. Newcome, by not attending to this, has translated איש את אחיהו יצודו חרם ish eth achihu yatsudu cherem, "They hunt every man his brother for his destruction;" though he puts net in the margin.

Verse 3. That they may do evil with both hands] That is, earnestly, greedily, to the uttermost of their power. The Vulgate translates: Malum manuum suarum dicunt bonum; "The evil of their hands they call good."

The prince asketh] A bribe, to forward claims in his court.

The judge asketh for a reward] That he may decide the cause in favour of him who gives most money, whether the cause be good or evil. This was notoriously the case in our own country before the giving of Magna Charta; and hence that provision, Nulli vendemus justitiam aut rectum: "We will not sell justice to any man." And this was not the only country in which justice and judgment were put to sale.

The great man, he uttereth his mischievous desire] Such consider themselves above law, and they make no secret of their unjust determinations. And so they wrap it up—they all conjoin in doing evil in their several offices, and oppressing the poor; so our translators have interpreted the original ויעבתוה vayeabtuha, which the versions translate variously. Newcome has, "And they do abominably."

Verse 4. The best of them is as a brier] They are useless in themselves, and cannot be touched without wounding him that comes in contact with them. He alludes to the thick thorn hedges, still frequent in Palestine.

The day of thy watchmen] The day of vengeance, which the prophets have foreseen and proclaimed, is at hand. Now shall be their perplexity; no more wrapping up, all shall be unfolded. In that day every man will wish that he were different from what he is found to be; but he shall be judged for what he is, and for the deeds he has done.

Verse 5. Trust ye not in a friend] These times will be so evil, and the people so wicked, that all bonds will be dissolved; and even the most intimate will betray each other, when they can hope to serve themselves by it.

On this passage, in the year 1798, I find I have written as follows:—

"Trust ye not in a friend.—Several of those whom I have delighted to call by that name have deceived me.

"Put ye not confidence in a guide.—Had I followed some of these I should have gone to perdition.

"Keep the door of thy mouth from her that lieth in thy bosom.—My wife alone never deceived me."

It is now twenty-seven years since, and I find no cause to alter what I then wrote.

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

6 For [m] the son dishonoureth the father, the daughter riseth up against her mother, the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law; a man's enemies are the men of his own house.

7 Therefore [n] I will look unto the LORD: I will wait for the God of my salvation: my God will hear me.

8 [o] Rejoice not against me, O mine enemy: [p] when I fall, I shall arise; when I sit in darkness, [q] the LORD shall be a light unto me.

9 [r] I will bear the indignation of the LORD, because I have sinned against him, until he plead my cause, and execute judgment for me: [s] he will bring me forth to the light, and I shall behold his righteousness.

10 [t] Then she that is mine enemy shall see it, and [u] shame shall cover her which said unto me, [v] Where is the LORD thy God? [w] mine eyes shall behold her: now [x] shall she be trodden down [y] as the mire of the streets.

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum. 6.

11 In the day that thy [z] walls are to be built, in that day shall the decree be far removed.

12 In that day also [a] he shall come even to thee from Assyria, [b] and from the fortified cities, and from the fortress even to the river, and from sea to sea, and from mountain to mountain.

13 [c] Notwithstanding the land shall be desolate because of them that dwell therein, [d] for the fruit of their doings.

[m] Ezek. xxii. 7; Matt. x. 21, 35, 36; Luke xii. 53; xxi. 16; 2 Tim. iii. 2, 3.——[n] Isa. viii. 17.——[o] Prov. xxiv. 17; Lam. iv. 21.——[p] Psa. xxxvii. 24; Prov. xxiv. 16.——[q] Psa. xxvii. 1. [r] Lam. iii. 39.——[s] Psa. xxxvii. 6.——[t] Or, And thou wilt see her that is mine enemy, and cover her with shame.——[u] Psa. xxxv. 26. [v] Psa. xlii. 3, 10; lxxix. 10; cxv. 2; Joel ii. 17.——[w] Chap. iv. 11. [x] Heb. she shall be for a treading down.——[y] 2 Sam. xxii. 43; Zech. x. 5.——[z] Amos ix. 11, &c.——[a] Isa. xi. 16; xix. 23, &c.; xxvii. 13; Hos. xi. 11.——[b] Or, even to.——[c] Or, After that it hath been.——[d] Jer. xxi 14; chap. iii. 12.

Verse 6. For the son dishonoureth the father] See the use our Lord has made of these words, where he quotes them, Matt. x. 21, 25, 36, and the notes there.

Verse 7. Therefore I will look unto the Lord] Because things are so, I will trust in the Lord more firmly, wait for him more patiently, and more confidently expect to be supported, defended, and saved.

Verse 8. Rejoice not against me, O mine enemy] The captive Israelites are introduced as speaking here and in the preceding verse. The enemy are the Assyrians and Chaldeans; the fall is their idolatry and consequent captivity; the darkness, the calamities they suffered in that captivity; their rise and light, their restoration and consequent blessedness.

To rejoice over the fall or miseries of any man, betrays a malignant spirit. I have known several instances where people professing to hold a very pure and Christian creed, having become unfaithful and fallen into sin, their opponents, who held a very impure and unchristian creed, have exulted with "Ha, ha! So would we have it!" and have shown their malignity more fully, by giving all possible publicity and circulation to such accounts. Perhaps in the sight of God this was worse than the poor wretch's fall, in which they exulted as having taken place in one who held a creed different from their own. But these arose again from their fall, while those jesters at holiness continued in the gall of bitterness and bonds of inward corruption.

Verse 9. I will bear the indignation of the Lord] The words of the penitent captives, acknowledging their sins and praying for mercy.

Until he plead my cause] And wo to the slanderers, when God undertakes to plead for the fallen who have returned to him with deep compunction of heart, seeking redemption in the blood of the cross.

Verse 10. Then she that is mine enemy] This may refer particularly to the city of Babylon.

Shall she be trodden down] Literally fulfilled in the sackage of that city by the Persians, and its consequent total ruin. It became as mire; its walls, formed of brick kneaded with straw and baked in the sun, becoming exposed to the wet, dissolved, so that a vestige of the city remains not, except a few bricks digged from under the rubbish, several pieces of which now lie before me, and show the perishing materials of which the head of this proud empire was composed.

Verse 11. In the day that thy walls are to be built] This refers to Jerusalem; the decree, to the purpose of God to deliver the people into captivity. "This shall be far removed." God having purposed their return, I cannot think, with some commentators, that this verse contains threatenings against Jerusalem, and not promises. See the first chapter of Haggai, where the subject is similar; and the restoration of Jerusalem is certainly what the prophet describes.

Verse 12. In that day also he shall come] Bp. Newcome translates:—

"And in that day they shall come unto thee
From Assyria and the fenced cities:
And from Egypt even unto the river

Calmet translates:—

"They shall come to thee from Assyria even unto Egypt,
And from Egypt even to the river; (Euphrates;)
And from one sea to another, and from one mountain to another."

This, says he, gives an easy sense; whereas we cannot tell where to find those fortified cities spoken of by other translators. The Israelites were to return from their captivity, and re-occupy their ancient country from Assyria to Egypt; that is, from the river Euphrates to the river Nile; and from the Mediterranean Sea to the Ocean; and from Mount Libanus to the mountains of Arabia Petræa, or Mount Seir. See Amos viii. 12. This prediction was literally fulfilled under the Asmoneans. The Jewish nation was greatly extended and very powerful under Herod, at the time that our Lord was born. See Calmet.

Verse 13. Notwithstanding the land shall be deso-

A. M. cir. 3294. B. C. cir. 710. A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii. R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

14 [e] Feed thy people with thy rod, the flock of thine heritage, which dwell solitarily in [f] the wood, in the midst of Carmel: let them feed in Bashan and Gilead, as in the days of old.

15 [g] According to the days of thy coming out of the land of Egypt will I show unto him marvellous things.

16 The nations [h] shall see and be confounded at all their might: [i] they shall lay their hand upon their mouth, their ears shall be deaf.

17 They shall lick the [k] dust like a serpent, [l] they shall move out of their holes like [m] worms of the earth: [n] they shall be afraid of the LORD our God, and shall fear because of thee.

A. M. cir. 3294 B. C. cir. 710 A. U. C. cir. 44. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 6.

18 [o] Who is a God like unto thee, that [p] pardoneth iniquity, and passeth by the transgression of [q] the remnant of his heritage? [r] he retaineth not his anger for ever, because he delighteth in mercy.

19 He will turn again, he will have compassion upon us; he will subdue our iniquities; and thou wilt cast all their sins into the depths of the sea.

20 [s] Thou wilt perform the truth to Jacob, and the mercy to Abraham, [t] which thou hast sworn unto our fathers from the days of old.

[e] Or, Rule; Psa. xxviii. 9; chap. v. 4.——[f] Isa. xxxvii. 24. [g] Psa. lxviii. 22; lxxviii. 12.——[h] Isa. xxvi. 11.——[i] Job xxi. 5; xxix. 9.——[k] Psa. lxxii. 9; Isa. xlix. 23.——[l] Psa. xviii. 45.

[m] Or, creeping things.——[n] Jer. xxxiii. 9.——[o] Exod. xv. 11. [p] Exod. xxxiv. 6, 7; Jer. l. 20.——[q] Ch. iv. 7; v. 3, 7, 8.——[r] Psa. ciii. 9; Isa. lvii. 10; Jer. iii. 5.——[s] Luke i. 72, 73.——[t] Psa. cv. 9, 10.

late] This should be translated in the preter tense, "Though the land HAD been desolate;" that is, the land of Israel had been desolate during the captivity, which captivity was the "fruit of the evil doings of them that had dwelt therein."

Verse 14. Feed thy people with thy rod] בשבטך beshibtecha, "with thy crook." The shepherd's crook is most certainly designed, as the word flock immediately following shows. No rod of correction or affliction is here intended; nor does the word mean such.

Solitarily] They have been long without a shepherd or spiritual governor.

In the midst of Carmel] Very fruitful in vines.

Bashan and Gilead] Proverbially fruitful in pasturages.

Verse 15. According to the days] This is the answer to the prophet's prayer; and God says he will protect, save, defend, and work miracles for them in their restoration, such as he wrought for their fathers in their return from Egypt to the promised land.

Verse 16. The nations shall see and be confounded] Whether the words in these verses (15, 16, and 17) be applied to the return from the Babylonish captivity, or to the prosperity of the Jews under the Maccabees, they may be understood as ultimately applicable to the final restoration of this people, and their lasting prosperity under the Gospel.

Verse 18. Who is a God like unto thee, &c.] Here is a challenge to all idol worshippers, and to all those who take false views of the true God, to show his like. See his characters; they are immediately subjoined.

1. He pardoneth iniquity. This is the prerogative of God alone; of that Being who alone has power to save or to destroy.

2. He passeth by transgression. He can heal backsliding, and restore them that are fallen.

3. He retaineth not his anger for ever. Though, justly displeased because of sin, he pours out his judgments upon the wicked; yet when they return to him, he shows "that he retaineth not his anger for ever," but is indescribably ready to save them.

4. He delighteth in mercy. Judgment is his strange work: he is ever more ready to save than to destroy. Nothing can please him better than having the opportunity, from the return and repentance of the sinner, to show him that mercy without which he must perish everlastingly.

5. Because he is such a God—1. "He will turn again." His face has been long turned from us, because of our sins. 2. "He will have compassion upon us," pity our state, and feel for our sorrows. 3. "He will subdue our iniquities." Though they have been mighty, he will bring them down, and bruise them under our feet. 4. "He will cast all their sins into the depths of the sea." Will fully pardon them, and never more remember them against us. Instead of חטאתם chattotham, THEIR sins, five MSS. of Kennicott's and De Rossi's, with the Septuagint, Syriac, Vulgate, and Arabic, read חטאתינו chattotheynu, OUR sins. He will plunge them into eternal oblivion, never more to come into sight or remembrance; like a stone dropped into the "depths of the sea."

Verse 20. Thou wilt perform the truth to Jacob] The promises which he has made to Jacob and his posterity. Not one of them can ever fall to the ground. "And the mercy to Abraham, which thou hast sworn;" viz., that "in his Seed all the families of the earth should be blessed;" that the Messiah should come from ABRAHAM, through his son ISAAC, by JACOB and DAVID; be a light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of his people Israel. And this promise, and this oath, God has most signally fulfilled by the incarnation of Christ, who was sent to bless us by turning away every one of us from his iniquities; and for this purpose he was delivered for our offences, and rose again for our justification; and repentance and remission of sins are preached in his name to all nations.

The proclamation was first made at Jerusalem; and that the prophet refers to this, is evident from the use made of these words by Zacharias, the father of John the Baptist, when, under the full afflatus of the Spirit of God, he quoted this prophecy of Micah, as fulfilled in the incarnation of Christ, Luke i. 72, 73. The Chaldee paraphrases this last verse with spirit and propriety: "Thou wilt give the truth to Jacob his son, as thou hast promised by oath to him in Beth-el. And the mercy to Abraham and to his seed after him, as thou didst swear to him amidst the divisions. Thou wilt be mindful of us on account of the binding of Isaac, who was bound upon the altar before thee. And thou wilt do us that good, which, from the most ancient days, thou hast promised to our fathers by an oath." Between the divisions, refers to the covenant made between God and Abraham, Gen. xv. 9, 10, 11, 17, 18. Well might the prophet exult in his challenge to earth and hell. WHO IS A GOD LIKE UNTO THEE! Hell is speechless, earth is dumb. Infidels dare not open their mouths!!! Hallelujah! מי אל כמוך mi El camocha! JESUS is the mighty God and Saviour, pardoning iniquity, transgression, and sin, and saving to the uttermost all that come unto God through him. Blessed be God! Reader, lay this to heart.

INTRODUCTION TO THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET NAHUM.

NAHUM, the seventh of the twelve minor prophets, was a native of Elkoshai, a little village of Galilee, whose ruins were still in being in the time of St. Jerome. However there are some who think that Elkoshai is rather the name of his father, and that the place of his birth was Bethabor, or Bethabara, beyond Jordan. They used to show the tomb of the prophet at a village called Beth-gabre, now called Gibbin, near Emmaus. The Chaldee calls him Nahum of Beth-koshi, or of Beth-kitsi; but the situation of this place is as much unknown as that of Elkoshai.

The particular circumstances of the life of Nahum are altogether unknown. His prophecy consists of three chapters, which make up but one discourse, wherein he foretells the destruction of Nineveh. He describes it in so lovely and pathetic a manner, that he seems to have been upon the spot to declare to the Ninevites the destruction of their city.

Opinions are divided as to the time in which he prophesied. Josephus will have it that he foretold the fall of Nineveh one hundred and fifteen years before it happened, which will bring the time of Nahum to that of King Ahaz. The Jews say that he prophesied under Manasseh. We are inclined to be of St. Jerome's opinion, that he foretold the destruction of Nineveh in the time of Hezekiah, and after the war of Sennacherib in Egypt, mentioned by Berosus. Nahum speaks plainly of the taking of No-Ammon, a city of Egypt; of the haughtiness of Rabshakeh; of the defeat of Sennacherib; and he speaks of them as things that were past. He supposes that the Jews were still in their own country, and that they there celebrated their festivals. He speaks of the captivity, and of the dispersion of the ten tribes. All these evidences convince us that Nahum cannot be placed before the fifteenth year of Hezekiah, since the expedition of Sennacherib against this prince was in the fourteenth year of his reign.

This prophet gives us a fine description of the destruction of Nineveh. He says that this city should be ruined by a deluge of waters, which should overflow it and demolish its walls.

Diodorus Siculus and Athenæus relate, that during the time this city was besieged by Belesis and by Arbaces, under Sardanapalus, the river Tigris swelled so as to overthrow twenty furlongs of the walls of Nineveh. But as the siege mentioned by Nahum was long after the taking of Nineveh under Sardanapalus, it must needs be that the same thing happened to Nineveh at the second and last siege, under Nebuchadnezzar and Astyages. Probably the besiegers at this second siege determined the course of the waters, and brought on the same fate to the city by the same means as at the first siege. And as the walls of those ancient cities were generally formed of brick kneaded with straw and baked in the sun, a flood of waters could easily effect their dissolution. Babylon was built in the same manner; and this is the reason why scarcely any vestiges of those cities are to be found See on chap. iii. 14.

The time of the prophet's death is not known. The Greek meneologies and the Latin martyrologies place his festival on the first of December. Petrus Natalis places it on the twenty-fourth of the same month, which he says was the day of his death, without acquainting us whence he had learned this circumstance.

The conduct and imagery of this prophetical poem are truly admirable.

The exordium sets forth with grandeur the justice and power of God, tempered by lenity and goodness, chap. i. 1–8.

A sudden address to the Assyrians follows; and a prediction of their perplexity and overthrow, as devisers of evil against the true God, ver. 9–11. Jehovah himself then proclaims freedom to his people from the Assyrian yoke, and the destruction of the Assyrian idols, ver. 12–14. Upon which the prophet, in a most lively manner, turns the attention of Judah to the approach of the messenger who brings such glad tidings, and bids her celebrate her festivals and offer her thank-offerings, without fear of so powerful an adversary, ver. 15.

Chap. ii. In the next place Nineveh is called on to prepare for the approach of her enemies, as instruments in the hands of Jehovah; and the military array and muster of the Medes and Babylonians, their rapid approach to the city, the process of the siege, the capture of the place, the captivity, lamentation, and flight of the inhabitants, the sacking of the wealthy city, and the consequent desolation and terror, are described in the true spirit of Eastern poetry, and with many pathetic, vivid, and sublime images, ver. 1–10.

A grand and animated allegory succeeds this description, ver. 11, 12; which is explained and applied to the city of Nineveh in ver. 13.

Chap. iii. The prophet denounces a wo against Nineveh for her perfidy and violence, and strongly places before our eyes the number of her chariots and cavalry, her burnished arms, and the great and unrelenting slaughter which she spread around her, ver. 1–3.

He assigns her idolatries as one cause of her ignominious and unpitied fall, ver. 4–7.

He foretells that No-Ammon, (the Diospolis in the Delta,) her rival in populousness, confederacies, and situation, should share a like fate with herself, ver. 8–11; and beautifully illustrates the ease with which her strong holds should be taken, ver. 12, and her pusillanimity during the siege, ver. 13.

He pronounces that all her preparations, ver. 14, 15, her numbers, her opulence, her multitude of chief men, would be of no avail, ver. 15–17.

He foretells that her tributaries would desert her, ver. 18.

He concludes with a proper epiphonema; the topics of which are, the greatness and incurableness of her wound, and the just triumph of others over her on account of her extensive oppressions, ver. 19.

To sum up all with the decisive judgment of an eminent critic: "Not one of the minor prophets equals the sublimity, genius, and spirit of Nahum. Besides, his prophecy is a perfect poem. The exordium is exceedingly majestic. The apparatus for the destruction of Nineveh, and the description of that catastrophe, are painted in the most glowing colours, and are admirably clear and powerful." Lowth, Prælect. Heb. xxi., p. 282.

It must be farther observed, that this prophecy was highly interesting to the Jews; as the Assyrians had often ravaged their country, and I suppose had recently destroyed the kingdom of Israel. See Calmet.

THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET NAHUM.

Chronological Notes relative to this Book, upon the supposition that it was written about seven hundred and thirteen years before the commencement of the Christian era.

Year from the Creation, according to Archbishop Usher, 3291.—Year of the Julian Period, 4001.—Year since the Flood, 1635.—Year from the vocation of Abram, 1208.—Year since the first celebration of the Olympic games in Elis by the Idæi Dactyli, 741.—Year from the destruction of Troy, according to the general computation of chronologers, 471.—Year since the commencement of the kingdom of Israel, by the Divine appointment of Saul to the regal dignity, 383.—Year from the foundation of Solomon's temple, 299.—Year since the division of Solomon's monarchy into the kingdoms of Israel and Judah, 263.—Year since the restoration of the Olympic games at Elis by Lycurgus, Iphitus, and Cleosthenes, 172.—Year from the foundation of the kingdom of Macedon by Caranus, 102.—Year from the commencement of the reign of Ardysus over Lydia, 84.—Year since the conquest of Corœbus at Olympia, usually called the first Olympiad, 64.—Fourth year of the sixteenth Olympiad.—Year from the building of Rome, according to the Varronian computation, 41.—Year from the building of Rome, according to Cato and the Fasti Consulares, 40.—Year from the building of Rome, according to Polybius the historian, 39.—Year from the building of Rome, according to Fabius Pictor, 35.—Year of the era of Nabonassar, 35.—Year since the destruction of the kingdom of Israel by Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, 9.—Year before the birth of Christ, 709.—Year before the vulgar era of Christ's nativity, 713.—Cycle of the Sun, 25.—Cycle of the Moon, 11.—Eleventh year of Zeuxidamus, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Proclidæ.—Twelfth year of Eurycrates, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Eurysthenidæ.—Sixth year of Gyges, king of Lydia.—Tenth year of Hippomenes, decennial archon of the Athenians.—Second year of Cordiccas, governor of the Medes, according to some chronologers.—Seventeenth year of Perdiccas, king of Macedon.—Third year of Numa Pompilius, the second king of Rome.—Fourteenth year of Hezekiah, king of Judah.

CHAPTER I.

This chapter opens the prophecy against the Assyrians and their metropolis with a very magnificent description of the infinite justice, tender compassion, and uncontrollable power of God, 1–8. To this succeeds an address to the Assyrians; with a lively picture of their sudden overthrow, because of their evil device against Jerusalem, 9–11. Then appears Jehovah himself, proclaiming deliverance to his people from the Assyrian yoke, and the destruction of the Assyrian idols, 12–14; upon which the prophet, with great emphasis, directs the attention of Judah to the approach of the messenger who brings such glad tidings; and exultingly bids his people to celebrate their solemn feasts, and perform their vows, as a merciful Providence would not suffer these enemies of the Jewish state to prevail against them, 15.

A. M. cir. 3291. B. C. cir. 713. Ol. cir. XVI. 4. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 3.

THE burden of [a] Nineveh. The book of the vision of Nahum the Elkoshite.

2 [b] God is [c] jealous, and [d] the LORD revengeth; the LORD revengeth, and [e] is furious; the LORD will take vengeance on his adversaries, and he

A. M. cir. 3291. B. C. cir. 713. Ol. cir. XVI. 4. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 3.

[a] Zech. ii. 13.——[b] Or, The LORD is a jealous God, and a Revenger, &c.——[c] Exod. xx. 5; xxxiv. 14; Deut. iv. 24; Josh. xxiv. 19.——[d] Deut. xxxii. 35; Psa. xciv. 1; Isa. lix. 11. [e] Heb. that hath fury.

NOTES ON CHAP. I.

Verse 1. The burden of Nineveh.] משא massa not only signifies a burden, but also a thing lifted up, pronounced, or proclaimed; also a message. It is used by the prophets to signify the revelation which they have received from God to deliver to any particular people: the oracle—the prophecy. Here it signifies the declaration from God relative to the over reserveth wrath for his enemies.

A. M. cir. 3291. B. C. cir. 713. Ol. cir. XVI. 4. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 3.

3 The LORD is [f] slow to anger, and [g] great in power, and will not at all acquit the wicked; [h] the LORD hath his way in the whirlwind and in the storm, and the clouds are the dust of his feet.

4 [i] He rebuketh the sea, and maketh it dry, and drieth up all the rivers: [k] Bashan languisheth, and Carmel, and the flower of Lebanon languisheth.

5 [l] The mountains quake at him, and [m] the hills melt, and [n] the earth is burned at his presence; yea, the world, and all that dwell therein.

A. M. cir. 3291. B. C. cir. 713. Ol. cir. XVI. 4. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum. 3.

6 Who can stand before his indignation? and [o] who can [p] abide in the fierceness of his anger? [q] his fury is poured out like fire, and the rocks are thrown down by him.

7 [r] The LORD is good, a [s] strong hold in the day of trouble; and [t] he knoweth them that trust in him.

8 [u] But with an overrunning flood he will make an utter end of the place thereof, and darkness shall pursue his enemies.

9 [v] What do ye imagine against the LORD?

[f] Exod. xxxiv. 6, 7; Neh. ix. 17; Psa. ciii. 8; Jonah iv. 2.——[g] Job ix. 4.——[h] Psa. xviii. 7, &c.; xcvii. 2; Hab. iii. 5, 11, 12.——[i] Psa. cvi. 9; Isa. l. 2; Matt. viii. 26.——[k] Isa. xxxiii. 9.——[l] Psa. lxviii. 8.——[m] Judg. v. 5; Psa. xcvii. 5; Mic. i. 4.

[n] 2 Pet. iii. 10.——[o] Mal. iii. 2.——[p] Heb. stand up.——[q] Rev xvi. 1.——[r] 1 Chron. xvi. 31; Psa. c. 5; Jer. xxxiii. 11; Lam iii. 25.——[s] Or, strength.——[t] Psa. i. 6; 2 Tim. ii. 19.——[u] Dan. ix. 26; xi. 10, 22, 40.——[v] Psa. ii. 1.

throw of Nineveh, and the commission of the prophet to deliver it.

As the Assyrians under Pul, Tiglath-pileser, and Shalmaneser, three of their kings, had been employed by a just God for the chastisement of his disobedient people; the end being now accomplished by them, God is about to burn the rod wherewith he corrected Israel; and Nineveh, the capital of the Assyrian empire, is to be destroyed. This prediction appears to have been accomplished a short time after this by Nebuchadnezzar and Cyaxares, the Ahasuerus of Scripture.

Nahum, נחום Nachum, signifies comforter. The name was very suitable, as he was sent to comfort the people, by showing them that God was about to destroy their adversaries.

Verse 2. God is jealous] For his own glory.

And—revengeth] His justice; by the destruction of his enemies.

And is furious] So powerful in the manifestations of his judgments, that nothing can stand before him.

He reserveth wrath] Though they seem to prosper for a time, and God appears to have passed by their crimes without notice, yet he reserveth—treasureth up—wrath for them, which shall burst forth in due time.

Verse 3. The Lord is slow to anger] He exercises much longsuffering towards his enemies, that this may lead them to repentance. And it is because of this longsuffering that vengeance is not speedily executed on every evil work.

Great in power] Able at all times to save or to destroy.

The Lord hath his way in the whirlwind and in the storm] These are the effects of his power; and when they appear unusual, they may be considered as the immediate effects of his power: and although he be in them to punish and destroy, he is in them to direct their course, to determine their operations, and to defend his followers from being injured by their violence. The pestilential wind which slew one hundred and eighty-five thousand of the Assyrians did not injure one Israelite. See 2 Kings xix. 35.

The clouds are the dust of his feet.] This is spoken in allusion to a chariot and horses going on with extreme rapidity: they are all enveloped in a cloud of dust. So Jehovah is represented as coming through the circuit of the heavens as rapidly as lightning; the clouds surrounding him as the dust does the chariot and horses.

Verse 4. He rebuketh the sea] The Red Sea, and the rivers: probably an allusion to the passage of the Red Sea and Jordan.

The description of the coming of Jehovah, from the third to the sixth verse, is dreadfully majestic. He is represented as controlling universal nature, The sea and the rivers are dried up; the mountains tremble, the hills melt, and the earth is burnt at his presence. Bashan, Carmel, and Lebanon are withered and languish: streams of fire are poured out, and the rocks are cast down to make him a passage. If, then, the seas, the rivers, the mountains, the hills, the rocks, and the earth itself, fail before Jehovah, or flee from his presence, how shall Nineveh and the Assyrian empire stand before him?

Verse 7. The Lord is good] In the midst of judgment he remembers mercy; and among the most dreadful denunciations of wrath he mingles promises of mercy. None that trust in him need be alarmed at these dreadful threatenings; they shall be discriminated in the day of wrath, for the Lord knoweth them that trust in him.

Verse 8. But with an overrunning flood] Bishop Newcome thinks this may refer to the manner in which Nineveh was taken. The Euphrates overflowed its banks, deluged a part of the city, and overturned twenty stadia of the wall; in consequence of which the desponding king burnt himself, and his palace, with his treasures.—Diodor. Sic., Edit. Wessel., p. 140, lib. ii., s. 27.

Darkness shall pursue] Calamity. All kinds of calamity shall pursue them till they are destroyed.

Verse 9. Affliction shall not rise up the second time.] There shall be no need to repeat the judgment; with one blow God will make a full end of the business.

A. M. cir. 3291. B. C. cir. 713. Ol. cir. XVI. 4. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 3.

[w] he will make an utter end: affliction shall not rise up the second time.

10 For while they be folden together [x] as thorns, [y] and while they are drunken as drunkards, [z] they shall be devoured as stubble fully dry.

11 There is one come out of thee, [a] that imagineth evil against the LORD, [b] a wicked counsellor.

12 Thus saith the LORD; [c] Though they be quiet, and likewise many, yet thus [d] shall they be [e] cut down, when he shall [f] pass through. Though I have afflicted thee, I will afflict thee no more.

13 For now will I [g] break his yoke from off thee, and will burst thy bonds in sunder.

A. M. cir. 3291. B. C. cir. 713. Ol. cir. XVI. 4. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 3.

14 And the LORD hath given a commandment concerning thee, that no more of thy name be sown: out of the house of thy gods will I cut off the graven image and the molten image: [h] I will make thy grave; for thou art vile.

15 Behold [i] upon the mountains the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace! O Judah, [k] keep thy solemn feasts, perform thy vows: for [l] the [m] wicked shall no more pass through thee; [n] he is utterly cut off.

[w] 1 Sam. iii. 12.——[x] 2 Sam. xxiii. 6, 7.——[y] Chap. iii. 11. [z] Mal. iv. 1.——[a] 2 Kings xix. 22, 23.——[b] Heb. a counsellor of Belial.——[c] Or, If they would have been at peace, so should they have been many, and so should they have been shorn, and he should have passed away.——[d] 2 Kings xix. 35, 37.——[e] Heb. shorn. [f] Isa. viii. 8; Dan. xi. 10.——[g] Jer. ii. 20; xxx. 8.——[h] 2 Kings xix. 37.——[i] Isa. lii. 7; Rom. x. 15.——[k] Heb. feast.——[l] Heb. Belial.——[m] Ver. 11, 12.——[n] Ver. 14.

Verse 10. While they be folden together] However united their counsels may be, they shall be as drunken men—perplexed and unsteady in all their resolutions; and before God's judgments they shall be as dry thorns before a devouring fire.

Verse 11. Imagineth evil against the Lord] Such were Pul, 2 Kings xv. 10; Tiglath-pileser, 2 Kings xv. 29; Shalmaneser, 2 Kings xvii. 6; and Sennacherib, 2 Kings xviii. 17, and xix. 23.

A wicked counsellor.] Sennacherib and Rabshakeh.

Verse 12. Though they be—many] Sennacherib invaded Judea with an army of nearly two hundred thousand men.

Thus shall they be cut down] The angel of the Lord (a suffocating wind) slew of them in one night one hundred and eighty-five thousand, 2 Kings xix. 35.

Verse 13. Now will I break his yoke from off thee] This refers to the tribute which the Jews were obliged to pay to the Assyrians, 2 Kings xvii. 14.

Verse 14. No more of thy name be sown] No more of you shall be carried away into captivity.

I will make thy grave; for thou art vile] I think this is an address to the Assyrians, and especially to Sennacherib. The text is no obscure intimation of the fact. The house of his gods is to be his grave: and we know that while he was worshipping in the house of his god Nisroch, his two sons, Adrammelech and Sharezer, smote him there that he died, 2 Kings xix. 37.

Verse 15. Behold upon the mountains] Borrowed probably from Isa. lii. 7, but applied here to the messengers who brought the good tidings of the destruction of Nineveh. Judah might then keep her solemn feasts, for the wicked Assyrian should pass through the land no more; being entirely cut off, and the imperial city razed to its foundations.

CHAPTER II.

Nineveh is now called upon to prepare for the approach of her enemies, the instruments of Jehovah's vengeance, 1: and the military array and muster, the very arms and dress, of the Medes and Babylonians in the reigns of Cyaxares and Nabopolassar; their rapid approach to the city; the process of the siege, and the inundation of the river; the capture of the place; the captivity, lamentation, and flight of the inhabitants; the sacking of this immense, wealthy, and exceedingly populous city; and the consequent desolation and terror, are all described in the pathetic, vivid, and sublime imagery of Hebrew poetry, 2–10. This description is succeeded by a very beautiful and expressive allegory, 11–12; which is immediately explained, and applied to the city of Nineveh, 13. It is thought by some commentators that the metropolitan city of the Assyrian empire is also intended by the tender and beautiful simile, in the seventh verse, of a great princess led captive, with her maids of honour attending her, bewailing her and their own condition, by beating their breasts, and by other expressions of sorrow.

A. M. cir. 3291. B. C. cir. 713. Ol. cir. XVI. 4. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 3.

HE [a] that [b] dasheth in pieces is come up before thy face: [c] keep the munition, watch the way, make thy loins strong, fortify thy power mightily.

2 [d] For the LORD hath turned away [e] the excellency of Jacob, as the excellency of Israel: for [f] the emptiers have emptied them out, and marred their vine branches.

3 The shield of his mighty men is made [g] red, the valiant men are [h] in scarlet: the chariots shall be with [i] flaming torches in the day of his preparation, and the fir trees shall be terribly shaken.

4 The chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall jostle one against another in the broad ways: [k] they shall seem like torches, they shall run like the lightnings.

A. M. cir. 3291. B. C. cir. 713. Ol. cir. XVI. 4. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 3.

5 He shall recount his [l] worthies: they shall stumble in their walk; they shall make haste to the wall thereof, and the [m] defence shall be prepared.

6 The gates of the rivers shall be opened and the palace shall be [n] dissolved.

7 And [o] Huzzab shall be [p] led away captive, she shall be brought up, and her maids shall lead her as with the voice of [q] doves, tabering upon their breasts.

8 But Nineveh is [r] of old like a pool of water: yet they shall flee away. Stand, stand, shall they cry; but none shall [s] look back.

[a] Or, The disperser, or hammer.——[b] Jer. l. 23.——[c] Jer. li. 11, 12; chap. iii. 14.——[d] Isa. x. 12; Jer. xxxv. 29.——[e] Or, the pride of Jacob as the pride of Israel.——[f] Psa. lxxx. 12; Hos. x. 1.——[g] Isa. lxiii. 2, 3.——[h] Or, dyed scarlet.——[i] Or, fiery torches.

[k] Heb. their show.——[l] Or, gallants.——[m] Heb. covering, or coverer.——[n] Or, molten.——[o] Or, that which was established, or there was a stand made.——[p] Or, discovered.——[q] Isa. xxxviii. 14; lix. 11.——[r] Or, from the days that she hath been.——[s] Or, cause them to turn.

NOTES ON CHAP. II.

Verse 1. He that dasheth in pieces] Or scattereth. The Chaldeans and Medes.

Keep the munition] Guard the fenced places. From this to the end of the fifth verse, the preparations made at Nineveh to repel their enemies are described. The description is exceedingly picturesque.

Watch the way] By which the enemy is most likely to approach.

Make thy loins strong] Take courage.

Fortify thy power] Muster thy troops; call in all thy allies.

Verse 2. For the Lord hath turned away] Bishop Newcome reads, for the Lord restoreth, by a slight alteration in the text. I do not see that we gain much by this. The Lord has been opposed to Jacob, and the enemy has prevailed against him.

Emptied them out] Brought them from their own land into captivity. This was the emptying!

Verse 3. The shield of his mighty men is made red] These things may refer to the warlike preparations made by the Ninevites: they had red shields, and scarlet or purple clothing; their chariots were finely decorated, and proceeded with amazing rapidity.

The fir trees shall be terribly shaken.] This may refer to the darts, arrows, and javelins, flung with destructive power.

Verse 4. The chariots shall rage] Those of the besiegers and the besieged, meeting in the streets, producing universal confusion and carnage.

Verse 5. He shall recount his worthies] Muster up his most renowned warriors and heroes.

Shall make haste to the wall] Where they see the enemies making their most powerful attacks, in order to get possession of the city.

Verse 6. The gates of the rivers shall be opened] I have already referred to this, see the note on chap. i. 8; but it will be necessary to be more particular. The account given by Diodorus Siculus, lib. ii., is very surprising. He begins thus: Ην δ' αντῳ λογιον παραδεδομενον εκ προγονων, κ. τ. λ.—"There was a prophecy received from their forefathers, that Nineveh should not be taken till the river first became an enemy to the city. It happened in the third year of the siege, that the Euphrates [query, Tigris] being swollen with continued rains, overflowed part of the city, and threw down twenty stadia of the wall. The king then imagining that the oracle was accomplished, and that the river was now manifestly become an enemy to the city, casting aside all hope of safety, and lest he should fall into the hands of the enemy, built a large funeral pyre in the palace, (εν τοις βασιλειοις,) and having collected all his gold and silver and royal vestments, together with his concubines and eunuchs, placed himself with them in a little apartment built in the pyre; burnt them, himself, and the palace together. When the death of the king (Sardanapalus) was announced by certain deserters, the enemy entered in by the breach which the waters had made, and took the city."

Thus the prophecy of Nahum was literally fulfilled: "the gates of the river were opened, and the palace dissolved," i. e., burnt.

Verse 7. And Huzzab shall be led away captive] Perhaps Huzzab means the queen of Nineveh, who had escaped the burning mentioned above by Diodorus. As there is no account of the queen being burnt, but only of the king, the concubines, and the eunuchs, we may, therefore, naturally conclude that the queen escaped; and is represented here as brought up and delivered to the conqueror; her maids at the same time bewailing her lot. Some think Huzzab signifies Nineveh itself.

Verse 8. But Nineveh is of old like a pool of water] מימי mimey, from days. Bp. Newcome translates the line thus: "And the waters of Nineveh are a pool of waters." There may be reference here to the fact

A. M. cir. 3291. B. C. cir. 713. Ol. cir. XVI. 4. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 3.

9 Take ye the spoil of silver, take the spoil of gold: [t] for there is none end of the store and glory out of all the [u] pleasant furniture.

10 She is empty, and void, and waste: and the [v] heart melteth, and [w] the knees smite together, [x] and much pain is in all loins, and [y] the faces of them all gather blackness.

11 Where is the dwelling of [z] the lions, and the feeding place of the young lions, where the lion, even the old lion, walked, and the lion's whelp, and none made them afraid?

A. M. cir. 3291. B. C. cir. 713. Ol. cir. XVI. 4. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 3.

12 The lion did tear in pieces enough for his whelps, and strangled for his lionesses, and filled his holes with prey, and his dens with ravin.

13 [a] Behold, I am against thee, saith the LORD of hosts, and I will burn her chariots in the smoke, and the sword shall devour thy young lions: and I will cut off thy prey from the earth, and the voice of [b] thy messengers shall no more be heard.

[t] Or, and their infinite store, &c.——[u] Heb. vessels of desire.
[v] Isa. xiii. 7, 8.——[w] Dan. v. 6.——[x] Jer. xxx. 9.——[y] Joel ii. 6.
[z] Job iv. 10, 11; Ezek. xix. 2–7.——[a] Ezek. xxix. 3; xxxviii. 3; xxxix. 1; chap. iii. 5.——[b] 2 Kings xviii. 17, 19; xix. 9, 23.

given in the preceding note, the overflowing of the river by which the city was primarily destroyed.

Stand, stand] Consternation shall be at its utmost height, the people shall flee in all directions; and though quarter is offered, and they are assured of safety if they remain, yet not one looketh back.

Verse 9. Take ye the spoil] Though the king burnt his treasures, vestments, &c., he could not totally destroy the silver and the gold. Nor did he burn the riches of the city; these fell a prey to the conquerors; and there was no end of the store of glorious garments, and the most costly vessels and furniture.

Verse 10. She is empty, and void, and waste] The original is strongly emphatic: the words are of the same sound; and increase in their length as they point out great, greater, and greatest desolation.

בוקה ומבוקה ומבלקה

Bukah, umebukah, umebullakah.

She is void, empty, and desolate.

The faces of them all gather blackness.] This marks the diseased state into which the people had been brought by reason of famine, &c.; for, as Mr. Ward justly remarks, "sickness makes a great change in the countenance of the Hindoos; so that a person who was rather fair when in health, becomes nearly black by sickness." This was a general case with the Asiatics.

Verse 11. Where is the dwelling of the lions] Nineveh, the habitation of bold, strong, and ferocious men.

The feeding place of the young lions] Whither her victorious and rapacious generals frequently returned to consume the produce of their success. Here they walked at large, and none made them afraid. Wheresoever they turned their arms they were victors; and all nations were afraid of them.

Verse 12. The lion did tear] This verse gives us a striking picture of the manner in which the Assyrian conquests and depredations were carried on. How many people were spoiled to enrich his whelps—his sons, princes, and nobles! How many women were stripped and slain, whose spoils went to decorate his lionesses—his queen concubines and mistresses. And they had even more than they could consume; their holes and dens—treasure-houses, palaces, and wardrobes—were filled with ravin, the riches which they got by the plunder of towns, families, and individuals. This is a very fine allegory, and admirably well supported.

Verse 13. Behold, I am against thee] Assyria, and Nineveh its capital. I will deal with you as you have dealt with others.

The voice of thy messengers] Announcing thy splendid victories, and the vast spoils taken—shall no more be heard—thou and thy riches, and ill-got spoils, shall perish together.

CHAPTER III.

The prophet denounces a wo against Nineveh for her perfidy and violence. He musters up before our eyes the number of her chariots and cavalry; points to her burnished arms, and to the great and unrelenting slaughter which she spreads around her, 1–3. Because Nineveh is a city wholly given up to the grossest superstition, and is an instructress of other nations in her abominable rites, therefore she shall come to a most ignominious and unpitied end, 3–7. Her final ruin shall be similar to that of No, a famous city of Egypt, 8–11. The prophet then beautifully describes the great ease with which the strong holds of Nineveh should be taken, 12, and her judicial pusillanimity during the siege, 13; declares that all her preparation, her numbers, opulence, and chieftains, would be of no avail in the day of the Lord's vengeance, 14–17; and that her tributaries would desert her, 18. The whole concludes with stating the incurableness of her malady, and the dreadful destruction consequently awaiting her; and with introducing the nations which she had oppressed as exulting at her fall, 19.

A. M. cir. 3291. B. C. cir. 713. Ol. cir. XVI. 4. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 3.

WO to the [a] bloody [b] city! it is all full of lies and robbery; the prey departeth not;
2 The noise of a whip, and [c] the noise of the rattling of the wheels, and of the prancing horses, and of the jumping chariots.
3 The horseman lifteth up both [d] the bright sword and the glittering spear: and there is a multitude of slain, and a great number of carcasses; and there is none end of their corpses; they stumble upon their corpses:
4 Because of the multitude of the whoredoms of the well-favoured harlot, [e] the mistress of witchcrafts, that selleth nations through her whoredoms, and families through her witchcrafts.
5 [f] Behold, I am against thee, saith the LORD of hosts; and [g] I will discover thy skirts upon thy face, [h] and I will show the nations thy nakedness, and the kingdoms thy shame.
6 And I will cast abominable filth upon thee, and [i] make thee vile, and will set thee as [k] a gazing-stock.

A. M. cir. 3291. B. C. cir. 713. Ol. cir. XVI. Numæ Pompilii. R. Roman., cir. annum 3.

7 And it shall come to pass, that all they that look upon thee [l] shall flee from thee, and say, Nineveh is laid waste: [m] who will bemoan her? whence shall I seek comforters for thee?
8 [n] Art thou better than [o] populous [p] [q] No, that was situate among the rivers, that had the waters round about it, whose rampart was the sea, and her wall was from the sea?
9 Ethiopia and Egypt were her strength, and it was infinite; Put and Lubim were [r] thy helpers.
10 Yet was she carried away, she went into captivity: [s] her young children also were dashed in pieces [t] at the top of all the streets: and they [u] cast lots for her honourable men, and all

[a] Heb. city of bloods.——[b] Ezek. xxii. 2, 3; xxiv. 6, 9; Hab. ii. 12.——[c] Jer. xlvii. 3.——[d] Heb. the flame of the sword, and the lightning of the spear.——[e] Isa. xlvii. 9, 12; Rev. xviii. 2, 3. [f] Chap. ii. 13.——[g] Isa. xlvii. 2, 3; Jer. xiii. 22, 26; Ezek. xvi. 37; Mic. i. 11.——[h] Hab. ii. 16.

[i] Mal. ii. 9.——[k] Heb. x. 33.——[l] Rev. xviii. 10.——[m] Jer. xv. 5.——[n] Amos vi. 2.——[o] Or, nourishing.——[p] Heb. No Amon. [q] Jer. xlvi. 25, 26; Ezek. xxx. 14–16.——[r] Heb. in thy help. [s] Psa. cxxxvii. 9; Isa. xiii. 16; Hos. xiii. 16.——[t] Lam. ii. 19. [u] Joel iii. 3; Obad. 11.

NOTES ON CHAP. III.

Verse 1. Wo to the bloody city!] Nineveh: the threatenings against which are continued in a strain of invective, astonishing for its richness, variety, and energy. One may hear and see the whip crack, the horses prancing, the wheels rumbling, the chariots bounding after the galloping steeds; the reflection from the drawn and highly polished swords; and the hurled spears, like flashes of lightning, dazzling the eyes; the slain lying in heaps, and horses and chariots stumbling over them! O what a picture, and a true representation of a battle, when one side is broken, and all the cavalry of the conqueror fall in upon them, hewing them down with their swords, and trampling them to pieces under the hoofs of their horses! O! infernal war! Yet sometimes thou art the scourge of the Lord.

Verse 4. Because of the multitude of the whoredoms] Above, the Ninevites were represented under the emblem of a lion tearing all to pieces; here they are represented under the emblem of a beautiful harlot or public prostitute, enticing all men to her, inducing the nations to become idolatrous; and, by thus perverting them, rendering them also objects of the Divine wrath.

Mistress of witchcrafts, that selleth nations through her whoredoms] Using every means to excite to idolatry; and being, by menace or wiles, successful in all.

Verse 5. I will discover thy skirts upon thy face] It was an ancient, though not a laudable custom, to strip prostitutes naked, or throw their clothes over their heads, and expose them to public view, and public execration. This verse alludes to such a custom.

Verse 6. I will cast abominable filth upon thee] I will set thee as a gazing-stock. This was a punishment precisely like our pillory. They put such women in the pillory as a gazing-stock; and then, children and others threw mud, dirt, and filth of all kinds at them.

Verse 7. Who will bemoan her?] In such cases, who pities the delinquent? She has been the occasion of ruin to multitudes, and now she is deservedly exposed and punished. And so it should be thought concerning Nineveh.

Verse 8. Art thou better than populous No] No-Ammon, or Diospolis, in the Delta, on one branch of the Nile. This is supposed to be the city mentioned by Nahum; and which had been lately destroyed, probably by the Chaldeans.

The waters round about it] Being situated in the Delta, it had the fork of two branches of the Nile to defend it by land; and its barrier or wall was the sea, the Mediterranean, into which these branches emptied themselves: so that this city, and the place it stood on, were wholly surrounded by the waters.

Verse 9. Ethiopia and Egypt were her strength] The land of Cush, not far from Diospolis; for it was in Arabia, on the Red Sea.

Put and Lubim] A part of Africa and Libya, which were all within reach of forming alliances with No-Ammon or Diospolis.

Verse 10. They cast lots for her honourable men] This refers still to the city called populous No. And the custom of casting lots among the commanders, for the prisoners which they had taken, is here referred to.

A. M. cir. 3291. B. C. cir. 713. Ol. cir. XVI. 4. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 3.

her great men were bound in chains.

11 Thou also shalt be [v] drunken: thou shalt be hid, thou also shalt seek strength because of the enemy.

12 All thy strong holds shall be like [w] fig trees with the first-ripe figs: if they be shaken, they shall even fall into the mouth of the eater.

13 Behold, [x] thy people in the midst of thee are women: the gates of thy land shall be set wide open unto thine enemies: the fire shall devour thy [y] bars.

14 Draw thee waters for the siege, [z] fortify thy strong holds: go into clay, and tread the mortar, make strong the brick-kiln.

15 There shall the fire devour thee; the sword shall cut thee off, it shall eat thee up like [a] the cankerworm: make thyself many as the cankerworm, make thyself many as the locusts.

A. M. cir. 3291 B. C. cir. 713. Ol. cir. XVI. 4. Numæ Pompilii, R. Roman., cir. annum 3.

16 Thou hast multiplied thy merchants above the stars of heaven: the cankerworm [b] spoileth, and fleeth away.

17 [c] Thy crowned are as the locusts, and thy captains as the great grasshoppers, which camp in the hedges in the cold day, but when the sun ariseth they flee away, and their place is not known where they are.

18 [d] Thy shepherds slumber, O [e] king of Assyria: thy [f] nobles shall dwell in the dust: thy people is [g] scattered upon the mountains, and no man gathereth them.

19 There is no [h] healing of thy bruise; [i] thy wound is grievous: [k] all that hear the bruit of thee shall clap the hands over thee: for upon whom hath not thy wickedness passed continually?

[v] Jer. xxv. 17, 27; chap. i. 10.——[w] Rev. vi. 13.——[x] Jer. l. 37; li. 30.——[y] Psa. cxlvii. 13; Jer. li. 30.——[z] Chap. ii. 1. [a] Joel i. 4.——[b] Or, spreadeth himself.——[c] Rev. ix. 7.

[d] Exod. xv. 16; Psa. lxxvii. 6.——[e] Jer. l. 18; Ezek. xxxi. 3, &c.——[f] Or, valiant ones.——[g] 1 Kings xxii. 17.——[h] Heb. wrinkling. [i] Mic. i. 9.——[k] Lam. ii. 15; Zeph. ii. 15; see Isa. xiv. 8, &c.

Great men were bound in chains] These were reserved to grace the triumph of the victor.

Verse 12. Thy strong holds] The effects of the consternation into which the Ninevites were cast by the assault on their city are here pointed out by a very expressive metaphor; the first-ripe figs, when at full maturity, fell from the tree with the least shake; and so, at the first shake or consternation, all the fortresses of Nineveh were abandoned; and the king, in despair, burnt himself and household in his own palace.

Verse 13. Thy people—are women] They lost all courage, and made no resistance. O verè Phrygiæ, neque enim Phryges: "Verily, ye are Phrygian women, not Phrygian men." So said Numanus to the Trojans. Virg., Æn. ix.

Verse 14. Draw thee waters for the siege] The Tigris ran near to Nineveh, and here they are exhorted to lay in plenty of fresh water, lest the siege should last long, and lest the enemy should cut off this supply.

Go into clay, and tread the mortar] This refers to the manner of forming bricks anciently in those countries; they digged up the clay, kneaded it properly by treading, mixed it with straw or coarse grass, moulded the bricks, and dried them in the sun. I have now some of the identical bricks, that were brought from this country, lying before me, and they show all these appearances. They are compact and very hard, but wholly soluble in water. There were however others without straw, that seem to have been burnt in a kiln as ours are. I have also some fragments or bats of these from Babylon.

Verse 15. Make thyself many as the cankerworm] On the locusts, and their operations in their various states, see the notes on Joel ii. The multitudes, successive swarms, and devastation occasioned by locusts, is one of the most expressive similes that could be used to point out the successive armies and all-destroying influences of the enemies of Nineveh. The account of these destroyers from Dr. Shaw, inserted Joel ii., will fully illustrate the verses where allusion is made to locusts.

Verse 16. Thou hast multiplied thy merchants] Like Tyre, this city was a famous resort for merchants; but the multitudes which were there previously to the siege, like the locusts, took the alarm, and fled away.

Verse 17. Thy crowned are as the locusts] Thou hast numerous princes and numerous commanders.

Which camp in the hedges in the cold day] The locusts are said to lie in shelter about the hedges of fertile spots when the weather is cold, or during the night; but as soon as the sun shines out and is hot, they come out to their forage, or take to their wings.

Verse 18. Thy shepherds slumber] That is, the rulers and tributary princes, who, as Herodotus informs us, deserted Nineveh in the day of her distress, and came not forward to her succour.

Diodorus Siculus says, lib. ii., when the enemy shut up the king in the city, many nations revolted, each going over to the besiegers, for the sake of their liberty; that the king despatched messengers to all his subjects, requiring power from them to succour him; and that he thought himself able to endure the siege, and remained in expectation of armies which were to be raised throughout his empire, relying on the oracle that the city would not be taken till the river became its enemy. See the note on chap. ii. 6.

Verse 19. There is no healing of thy bruise] Thou shalt never be rebuilt.

All that hear the bruit of thee] The report or account.

Shall clap the hands] Shall exult in thy downfall.

For upon whom hath not thy wickedness passed]

Thou hast been a universal oppressor, and therefore all nations rejoice at thy fall and utter desolation.

Bp. Newton makes some good remarks on the fall and total ruin of Nineveh.

"What probability was there that the capital city of a great kingdom, a city which was sixty miles in compass, a city which contained so many thousand inhabitants, a city which had walls a hundred feet high, and so thick that three chariots could go abreast upon them, and which had one thousand five hundred towers, of two hundred feet in height; what probability was there that such a city should ever be totally destroyed? And yet so totally was it destroyed that the place is hardly known where it was situated. What we may suppose helped to complete its ruin and devastation, was Nebuchadnezzar's enlarging and beautifying Babylon, soon after Nineveh was taken. From that time no mention is made of Nineveh by any of the sacred writers; and the most ancient of the heathen authors, who have occasion to say any thing about it, speak of it as a city that was once great and flourishing, but now destroyed and desolate. Great as it was formerly, so little of it is remaining, that authors are not agreed even about its situation. From the general suffrage of ancient historians and geographers, it appears to have been situated upon the Tigris, though others represent it as placed upon the Euphrates. Bochart has shown that Herodotus, Diodorus Siculus, and Ammianus Marcellinus, all three speak differently of it; sometimes as if situated on the Euphrates, sometimes as if on the Tigris; to reconcile whom he supposes that there were two Ninevehs; and Sir John Marsham, that there were three; the Syrian upon the Euphrates, the Assyrian on the Tigris, and a third built afterwards upon the Tigris by the Persians, who succeeded the Parthians in the empire of the East, in the third century, and were subdued by the Saracens in the seventh century after Christ. But whether this latter was built in the same place as the old Nineveh, is a question that cannot be decided.

"There is a city at this time called Mosul, situate upon the western side of the Tigris; and on the opposite eastern shore are ruins of great extent, which are said to be those of Nineveh.

"Dr. Prideaux, following Thevenot, observes that Mosul is situated on the west side of the Tigris, where was anciently only a suburb of the old Nineveh; for the city itself stood on the east side of the river, where are to be seen some of its ruins of great extent even to this day. Even the ruins of old Nineveh, as we may say, have been long ago ruined and destroyed; such an utter end hath been made of it, and such is the truth of the Divine predictions!

"These extraordinary circumstances may strike the reader more strongly by supposing only a parallel instance. Let us then suppose that a person should come in the name of a prophet, preaching repentance to the people of this kingdom, or otherwise denouncing the destruction of the capital city within a few years. 'With an overflowing flood will God make an utter end of the place thereof; he will make an utter end: its place may be sought, but it shall never be found.' I presume we should look upon such a prophet as a madman, and show no farther attention to his message than to deride and despise it. And yet such an event would not be more strange and incredible than the destruction and devastation of Nineveh; for Nineveh was much the larger, stronger, and older city of the two. And the Assyrian empire had subsisted and flourished more ages than any form of government in this country; so there is no objecting the instability of Eastern monarchies in this case. Let us then, since this event would not be more improbable and extraordinary than the other, suppose again, that things should succeed according to the prediction; that the floods should arise, and the enemies should come; the city should be overthrown and broken down, be taken and pillaged, and destroyed so totally that even the learned could not agree about the place where it was situated. What would be said or thought in such a case? Whoever of posterity should read and compare the prophecy and event together, must they not, by such an illustrious instance, be thoroughly convinced of the providence of God, and of the truth of his prophet; and be ready to acknowledge, 'Verily, this is the word which the Lord hath spoken; verily, there is a God who judgeth the earth?'"—See Bp. Newton, vol. i., dissert. 9.

THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET HABAKKUK.

Chronological Notes relative to this Book, upon the supposition that it was written a little before the destruction of Jerusalem, about six hundred years before the commencement of the Christian era.

Year from the Creation, according to Archbishop Usher, 3404.—Year of the Julian Period, 4114.—Year since the Flood, 1748.—Year since the vocation of Abram, 1321.—Year from the foundation of Solomon's temple, 412.—Year since the division of Solomon's monarchy into the kingdoms of Israel and Judah, 376.—First year of the forty-fifth Olympiad.—Year since the destruction of the kingdom of Israel by Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, 121.—Year before the birth of Jesus Christ, 596.—Year before the vulgar era of Christ's nativity, 600.—Cycle of the Sun, 26.—Cycle of the Moon, 10.—Third year of Æropas, king of Macedon.—Twentieth year of Alyattes II., king of Lydia.—Twenty-sixth year of Cyaxares or Cyaraxes, king of Media.—Sixth year of Agasicles, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Proclidæ.—Eighth year of Leon, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Eurysthenidæ.—Seventh year of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon.—Seventeenth year of Tarquinius Priscus, king of the Romans.—Eleventh year of Jehoiakim, king of Judah.

CHAPTER I.

The prophet enters very abruptly on his subject, his spirit being greatly indignant at the rapid progress of vice and impiety, 1–4. Upon which God is introduced threatening very awful and sudden judgments to be inflicted by the ministry of the Chaldeans, 5–10. The Babylonians attribute their wonderful successes to their idols, 11. The prophet then, making a sudden transition, expostulates with God (probably personating the Jews) for permitting a nation much more wicked than themselves, as they supposed, to oppress and devour them, as fishers and fowlers do their prey, 12–17.

A. M. cir. 3404. B. C. cir. 600. Ol. XLV. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

THE [a] burden which Habakkuk the prophet did see.

2 O LORD, how long shall I cry, [b] and thou wilt not hear! even cry out unto thee of violence, and thou wilt not save!

3 Why dost thou show me iniquity, and cause me to behold

A. M. cir. 3404. B. C. cir. 600. Ol. XLV. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

[a] Zech. ix. 1; xii. 1; Mal. i. 1.

[b] Lam. iii. 8.

We know little of this prophet; for what we find in the ancients concerning him is evidently fabulous, as well as that which appears in the Apocrypha. He was probably of the tribe of Simeon, and a native of Bethzacar. It is very likely that he lived after the destruction of Nineveh, as he speaks of the Chaldeans, but makes no mention of the Assyrians. And he appears also to have prophesied before the Jewish captivity, see chap. i. 5; ii. 1; iii. 2, 16–19; and therefore Abp. Newcome thinks he may be placed in the reign of Jehoiakim, between the years 606 B. C. and 598 B. C.

As a poet, Habakkuk holds a high rank among the Hebrew prophets. The beautiful connection between the parts of his prophecy, its diction, imagery, spirit, and sublimity, cannot be too much admired; and his hymn, chap. iii., is allowed by the best judges to be a masterpiece of its kind. See Lowth's Prælect. xxi., xxviii.

NOTES ON CHAP. I.

Verse 1. The burden] משא hammassa signifies, not only the burdensome prophecy, but the prophecy or revelation itself which God presented to the mind of Habakkuk, and which he saw—clearly perceived, in the light of prophecy, and then faithfully declared, as this book shows. The word signifies an oracle or revelation in general; but chiefly, one relative to future calamities.

Verse 2. O Lord, how long shall I cry] The prophet feels himself strongly excited against the vices which he beheld; and which, it appears from this verse, grievance? for spoiling and violence are before me: and there are that raise up strife and contention.

A. M. cir. 3404. B. C. cir. 600. Ol. XLV. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

4 Therefore the law is slacked, and judgment doth never go forth: for the [e] wicked doth compass about the righteous; therefore [d] wrong judgment proceedeth.

5 [c] Behold ye among the heathen, and regard, and wonder marvellously: for I will work a work in your days, which ye will not believe, though it be told you.

6 For, lo, [f] I [g] raise up the Chaldeans, that bitter and hasty nation, which shall march through the [h] breadth of the land, to possess the dwelling-places that are not theirs.

A. M. cir. 3404. B. C. cir. 600. Ol. XLV. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

7 They are terrible and dreadful: [i] their judgment and their dignity shall proceed of themselves.

8 Their horses also are swifter than the leopards, and are more [k] fierce than the [l] evening wolves: and their horsemen shall spread themselves, and their horsemen shall come from far; [m] they shall fly as the eagle that hasteth to eat.

9 They shall come all for violence: [n] their [o] faces shall sup up as the east wind, and they

[c] Job xxi. 7; Psa. xciv. 3, &c.; Jer. xii. 1.——[d] Or, wrested. [e] Isa. xxix. 14; Acts xiii. 41.——[f] Deut. xxviii. 49, 50; Jer. v. 15——[g] Fulfilled 2 Chron. xxxvi. 6.——[h] Heb. breadths.——[i] Or, from them shall proceed the judgment of these, and the captivity of these.——[k] Heb. sharp.——[l] Ezek. xxii. 27; Jer. v. 6; Zeph. iii. 3.——[m] Jer. iv. 13.——[n] Or, the supping up of their faces, &c., or their faces shall look toward the east.——[o] Heb. the opposition of their faces toward the east.

he had often declaimed against, but in vain; the people continued in their vices, and God in his longsuffering.

Habakkuk begins his prophecy under a similar feeling, and nearly in similar words, as Juvenal did his Satires:—

Semper ego auditor tantum? Nunquamne reponam?
Vexatus toties rauci Theseide Codri! Sat. i. 1.

"Shall I always be a hearer only? Shall I never reply? So often vexed?"

Of violence] The most unlawful and outrageous acts.

Verse 3. And cause me to behold grievance] עָמָל amal, labour, toil, distress, misery, &c., the common fruits of sin.

Verse 4. The law is slacked] They pay no attention to it; it has lost all its vigour, its restraining and correcting power; it is not executed; right judgment is never pronounced; and the poor righteous man complains in vain that he is grievously oppressed by the wicked, and by those in power and authority. That the utmost depravity prevailed in the land of Judah is evident from these verses; and can we wonder, then, that God poured out such signal judgments upon them! When judgment doth not proceed from the seat of judgment upon earth, it will infallibly go forth from the throne of judgment in heaven.

Verse 5. Behold ye among the heathen] Instead of בגוים baggoyim, among the nations or heathen, some critics think we should read בגדים bogedim, transgressors; and to the same purpose the Septuagint, Syriac, and Arabic have read; and thus it is quoted by St. Paul, Acts xiii. 41. But neither this, nor any tantamount reading, is found in any of the MSS. yet collated. Newcome translates, "See, ye transgressors, and behold a wonder, and perish."

I will work a work in your days] As he is speaking of the desolation that should be produced by the Chaldeans, it follows, as Bp. Newcome has justly observed, that the Chaldeans invaded Judah whilst those were living whom the prophet addressed.

Which ye will not believe] Nor did they, after all the declarations of various prophets. They still supposed that God would not give them up into the hands of their enemies, though they continued in their abominations!

It is evident that St. Paul, in the above place, accommodates this prediction to his own purpose. And possibly this sense might have been the intention of the Divine Spirit when he first spoke the words to the prophet; for, as God works in reference to eternity, so he speaks in reference to the same; and therefore there is an infinity of meaning in his WORD. These appear to be the words of God in answer to the prophet, in which he declares he will entirely ruin this wicked people by means of the Chaldeans.

Verse 6. That bitter and hasty nation] Cruel and oppressive in their disposition; and prompt and speedy in their assaults and conquests.

Verse 7. Their judgment—shall proceed of themselves.] By revolting from the Assyrians, they have become a great nation. Thus, their judgment and excellence were the result of their own valour. Other meanings are given to this passage.

Verse 8. Their horses also are swifter than the leopards] The Chaldean cavalry are proverbial for swiftness, courage, &c. In Jeremiah, chap. iv. 13, it is said, speaking of Nebuchadnezzar, "His chariots are as a whirlwind; his horses are swifter than eagles."

Oppian, speaking of the horses bred about the Euphrates, says, "They are by nature war-horses, and so intrepid that neither the sight nor the roaring of the lion appals them; and, besides, they are astonishingly fleet."

The leopard, of all quadrupeds, is allowed to be the swiftest.

The evening wolves] The wolf is remarkable for his quick sight. Ælian says, Οξυωπεστατον εστι ζωον, και μεντοι, και νυκτος και σεληνης ουκ ουσης ὁδε ὁρᾳ; "The wolf is a very fleet animal; and, besides, it can see by night, even when there is no moonlight." Some think the hyæna is meant: it is a swift, cruel, and untameable animal. The other prophets speak of the Chaldeans in the same way. See Deut. xxviii. 49; Jer. xlviii. 40; xlix. 22; Ezek. xvii. 5; Lam. iv. 19.

Verse 9. Their faces shall sup up as the east wind]

A. M. cir. 3404. B. C. cir. 600. Ol. XLV. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

shall gather the captivity as the sand.

10 And they shall scoff at the kings, and the princes shall be a scorn unto them: they shall deride every strong hold; for they shall heap dust, and take it.

11 Then shall his mind change, and he shall pass over, and offend, [p] imputing this his power unto his god.

12 [q] Art thou not from everlasting, O LORD my God, mine Holy One? we shall not die. O LORD, [r] thou hast ordained them for judgment; and, O [s] mighty God, thou hast [t] established them for correction.

13 [u] Thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil, and canst not look on [v] iniquity: [w] wherefore lookest thou upon them that deal treacherously, and holdest thy tongue when the wicked devoureth the man that is more righteous than he?

A. M. cir. 3404. B. C. cir. 600. Ol. XLV. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

14 And makest men as the fishes of the sea, as the [x] creeping things, that have no ruler over them?

15 They [y] take up all of them with the angle they catch them in their net, and gather them in their [z] drag: therefore they rejoice and are glad.

16 Therefore [a] they sacrifice unto their net, and burn incense unto their drag; because by them their portion is fat, and their meat, [b] plenteous.[c]

17 Shall they therefore empty their net, and not spare continually to slay the nations?

[p] Dan. v. 4.——[q] Psa. xc. 2; xciii. 2; Lam. v. 19.——[r] 2 Kings xix. 25; Psa. xvii. 13; Isa. x. 5, 6, 7; Ezek. xxx. 25.——[s] Heb. rock; Deut. xxxii. 4.——[t] Heb. founded.——[u] Psa. v. 5.

[v] Or, grievance.——[w] Jer. xii. 1.——[x] Or, moving.——[y] Jer. xvi. 16; Amos iv. 2.——[z] Or, flue net.——[a] Deut. viii. 17; Isa. x. 13; xxxvii. 24, 25.——[b] Or, dainty.——[c] Heb. fat.

This may be an allusion to those electrical winds which prevail in that country. Mr. Jackson, in his overland journey from India, mentions his having bathed in the Tigris. On his coming out of the river one of those winds passed over him, and, in a moment, carried off every particle of water that was on his body and in his bathing dress. So, the Chaldeans shall leave no substance behind them; their faces, their bare appearance, is the proof that nothing good shall be left.

Shall gather the captivity as the sand.] They shall carry off innumerable captives.

Verse 10. They shall scoff at the kings] No power shall be able to stand before them. It will be only as pastime to them to take the strongest places. They will have no need to build formidable ramparts: by sweeping the dust together they shall make mounts sufficient to pass over the walls and take the city.

Verse 11. Then shall his mind change] This is thought to relate to the change which took place in Nebuchadnezzar, when "a beast's heart was given to him," and he was "driven from the dwellings of men." And this was because of his offending—his pride and arrogance; and his attributing all his success, &c., to his idols.

Verse 12. Art thou not from everlasting] The idols change, and their worshippers change and fail: but thou, Jehovah, art eternal; thou canst not change, and they who trust in thee are safe. Thou art infinite in thy mercy; therefore, "we shall not die," shall not be totally exterminated.

Thou hast ordained them for judgment] Thou hast raised up the Chaldeans to correct and punish us; but thou hast not given them a commission to destroy us totally.

Instead of לא נמות lo namuth, "we shall not die," Houbigant and other critics, with a little transposition of letters, read אל אמת El emeth, "God of truth;" and then the verse will stand thus: "Art thou not from everlasting, O Jehovah, my God, my Holy One? O Jehovah, GOD OF TRUTH, thou hast appointed them for judgment." But this emendation, however elegant, is not supported by any MS.; nor, indeed, by any of the ancient versions, though the Chaldee has something like it. The common reading makes a very good sense.

Verse 13. Thou art of purer eyes] Seeing thou art so pure, and canst not look on iniquity—it is so abominable—how canst thou bear with them who "deal treacherously, and hold thy tongue when the wicked devour the righteous?" All such questions are easily solved by a consideration of God's ineffable mercy, which leads him to suffer long and be kind. He has no pleasure in the death of a sinner.

Verse 14. Makest men as the fishes of the sea] Easily are we taken and destroyed. We have no leader to guide us, and no power to defend ourselves. Nebuchadnezzar is here represented as a fisherman, who is constantly casting his nets into the sea, and enclosing multitudes of fishes; and, being always successful, he sacrifices to his own net—attributes all his conquests to his own power and prudence; not considering that he is only like a net that, after having been used for a while, shall at last be thrown by as useless, or burnt in the fire.

Verse 16. They sacrifice unto their net] He had no God; he cared for none; and worshipped only his armour and himself. King Mezentius, one of the worst characters in the Æneid of Virgil, is represented as invoking his own right hand and his spear in battle. Æn. x. 773.

Dextra mihi Deus, et telum quod missile libro, Nunc adsint.

"My strong right hand and sword, assert my stroke.
Those only gods Mezentius will invoke."
DRYDEN.

And Capaneus, in Statius, gives us a more decisive proof of this self-idolatry. Thebaid, lib. x.

Ades, O mihi dextera tantum
Tu præses belli, et inevitabile Numen,
Te voco, te solum Superum contemptor adoro.

"Only thou, my right hand, be my aid; I contemn the gods, and adore thee as the chief in battle, and the irresistible deity." The poet tells us that, for his impiety, Jupiter slew him with thunder.

This was an ancient idolatry in this country, and has existed till within about a century. There are relics of it in different parts of Europe; for when military men bind themselves to accomplish any particular purpose, it is usual to lay their hand upon their sword: but formerly they kissed it, when swearing by it. With most heroes, the sword is both their Bible and their God. To the present day it is a custom among the Hindoos annually to worship the implements of their trades. See Ward.

Verse 17. And not spare continually to slay the nations?] They are running from conquest to conquest; burning, slaying, sacking, and slaughtering. Like the fishermen, who throw cast after cast while any fish are to be caught, so Nebuchadnezzar is destroying one nation after another. This last sentence explains the allegory of the net.

CHAPTER II.

The prophet, waiting for a return to his expostulation, is answered by God that the time for the destruction of the Jewish polity by the Chaldeans is not only fixed in the Divine counsel, but is awfully near; and he is therefore commanded to write down the vision relative to this appalling subject in the most legible characters, and in the plainest language, that all who read it with attention (those just persons who exercise an unwavering faith in the declaration of God respecting the violent irruption of the merciless Baylonians) may flee from the impending vengeance, 1–4. The fall of the Chaldeans, and of their ambitious monarch, is then predicted, 5–10; and, by a strong and bold personification, the very stone and wood of those magnificent buildings, which the Babylonish king had raised by oppression and bloodshed, pronounce his wo, and in responsive taunts upbraid him, 11, 12. The prophet then beautifully sets forth the absolute impotence of every effort, however well conducted, which is not in concert with the Divine counsel: for though the wicked rage, and threaten the utter extermination of the people of God; yet when the SET time to favour Zion is come, the destroyers of God's heritage shall themselves be destroyed, and "the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of God, as the waters cover the sea," 13, 14. See Psa. cii. 13–16. For the cup of idolatry which Babylon has given to many nations, she will receive of the Lord's hand the cup of fury by the insurrection of mighty enemies (the Medes and Persians) rushing like wild beasts to destroy her, 15. In the midst of this distress the prophet very opportunely asks in what the Babylonians had profited by their idols, exposes the absurdity of trusting in them, and calls upon the whole world to stand in awe of the everlasting Jehovah, 16–19.

A. M. cir. 3404. B. C. cir. 600. Ol. cir. XLV. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

I WILL [a] stand upon my watch, and set me upon the [b] tower, [c] and will watch to see what he will say [d] unto me, and what I shall answer [e] when [f] I am reproved.

2 And the Lord answered me, and said, [g] Write the vision, and

A. M. cir. 3404. B. C. cir. 600. Ol. cir. XLV. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

[a] Isa. xxi. 8, 11.——[b] Heb. fenced place.——[c] Psa. lxxxv. 8.
[d] Or, in me.

[e] Or, when I am argued with.——[f] Heb. upon my reproof, or arguing.——[g] Isa. viii. 1; xxx. 8.

NOTES ON CHAP. II.

Verse 1. I will stand upon my watch] The prophets are always represented as watchmen, watching constantly for the comfort, safety, and welfare of the people; and watching also to receive information from the Lord: for the prophetic influence was not always with them, but was granted only at particular times, according to the will of God. When, in doubtful cases, they wished to know what God was about to do with the country, they retired from society and gave themselves to meditation and prayer, waiting thus upon God to hear what he would say IN them.

What he will say unto me] בי bi, IN me—in my understanding and heart.

And what I shall answer when I am reproved.] What I shall say to God in behalf of the people; and what the Lord shall command me to say to the people. Some translate, "And what he will answer for my conviction." Or, "what shall be answered to my pleading."

Verse 2. Write the vision] Carefully take down all that I shall say.

Make it plain upon tables] Write it in a full, plain, legible hand.

That he may run that readeth it.] That he who attentively peruses it may speed to save his life from the irruption of the Chaldeans, by which so many shall be cut off. The prophet does not mean that the words are to be made so plain, that a man running by may easily read them, and catch their meaning. This interpretation has been frequently given; and it has been incautiously applied to the whole of the Bible: "God's book is so plain, that he that runs may read;" but it is very foolish: God never intends that his words shall be understood by the careless. He that reads, studies, meditates, and prays, shall understand every portion make it plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth it.

A. M. cir. 3404. B. C. cir. 600. Ol. cir. XLV. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

3 For [h] the vision is yet for an appointed time, but at the end it shall speak, and not lie: though it tarry, wait for it; because it will [i] surely come, it will not tarry.

4 Behold, his soul which is lifted up is not upright in him: but the [k] just shall live by his faith.

5 [l] Yea also, because he transgresseth by wine, he is a proud man, neither keepeth at home, who enlargeth his desire [m] as hell, and is as death, and cannot be satisfied, but gathereth unto him all nations, and heapeth unto him all people:

A. M. cir. 3404 B. C. cir. 600. Ol. cir. XLV. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

6 Shall not all these [n] take up a parable against him, and a taunting proverb against him, and say, [o] Wo to him that increaseth that which is not his! how long? and to him that ladeth himself with thick clay!

7 Shall they not rise up suddenly that shall bite thee, and awake that shall vex thee, and thou shalt be for booties unto them?

8 [p] Because thou hast spoiled many nations, all the remnant of the people shall spoil thee; [q] because of men's [r] blood, and for the violence of this sacred book that relates immediately to his own salvation. But no trifler can understand it. If the contents of a play-bill were to be read as many read the Bible, they would know just as much of the one as they do of the other.

[h] Dan. x. 14; xi. 27, 35. — [i] Heb. x. 37. — [k] John iii. 36; Rom. i. 17; Gal. iii. 11; Heb. x. 38. — [l] Or, How much more.

[m] Prov. xxvii. 20; xxx. 16. — [n] Mic. ii. 4. — [o] Or, Ho, he. [p] Isa. xxxiii. 1. — [q] Ver. 17. — [r] Heb. bloods.

Verse 3. The vision is yet for an appointed time] The Chaldeans, who are to ruin Judea, shall afterwards be ruined themselves: but they must do this work before they receive their wages; therefore the vision is for an appointed time. But at the end it shall speak. When his work of devastation is done, his day of retribution shall take place.

Though it tarry] Though it appear to be long, do not be impatient; it will surely come; it will not tarry longer than the prescribed time, and this time is not far distant. Wait for it.

Verse 4. Behold, his soul which is lifted up] He that presumes on his safety without any special warrant from God, is a proud man; and whatever he may profess, or think of himself, his mind is not upright in him. But he that is just by faith shall live—he that believes what God hath said relative to the Chaldeans besieging Jerusalem, shall make his escape from the place, and consequently shall save his life. The words in the New Testament are accommodated to the salvation which believers in Christ shall possess. Indeed, the just—the true Christians, who believed in Jesus Christ's words relative to the destruction of Jerusalem, when they found the Romans coming against it, left the city, and escaped to Pella in Cœlesyria, and did live—their lives were saved: while the unbelieving Jews, to a man, either perished or were made slaves. One good sense is, He that believes the promises of God, and has found life through believing, shall live by his faith.

Verse 5. Because he transgresseth by wine] From the present translation, it is not easy to see either reason or meaning in the first clause of this verse. Newcome translates, "Moreover, as a mighty man transgresseth through wine, he is proud, and remaineth not at rest." Houbigant thus: "For he, though he be a despiser, and powerful, and proud, yet shall he not have rest."

Nebuchadnezzar is here represented in his usual character, proud, haughty, and ambitious; inebriated with his successes, and determined on more extensive conquests; and, like the grave, can never have enough: yet, after the subjugation of many peoples and nations, he shall be brought down, and become so despicable that he shall be a proverb of reproach, and be taunted and scorned by all those whom he had before enslaved.

And cannot be satisfied] When he has obtained all that is within his reach, he wishes for more; and becomes miserable, because any limits are opposed to his insatiable ambition. It is said of Alexander:—

> Unus Pellæo juveni non sufficit orbis;
> Æstuat infelix angusto limite mundi.
> Juv. Sat. x. 168
>
> One world sufficed not Alexander's mind;
> Coop'd up, he seem'd on earth and seas confined.

And the poet justly ridicules him, because at last the sarcophagus was found too large for his body!

Verse 6. Shall not all these take up a parable against him] His ambition, derangement, and the final destruction of his mighty empire by the Persians, shall form the foundation of many sententious sayings among the people. "He who towered so high, behold how low he is fallen!" "He made himself a god; behold, he herds with the beasts of the field!" "The disturber of the peace of the world is now a handful of dust!"

Verse 7. Shall they not rise up suddenly] Does not this refer to the sudden and unexpected taking of Babylon by Cyrus, whose troops entered into the city through the bed of the Euphrates, whose waters they had diverted by another channel; so that the Babylonians knew nothing of the matter till they saw the Persian soldiers rise up as in a moment, in the very heart of their city?

Verse 8. For the violence of the land] Or, for the violence done to the land of Judea, and to the city of Jerusalem.

A. M. cir. 3404. B. C. cir. 600. Ol. cir. XLV. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

of the land, of the city, and of all that dwell therein.

9 Wo to him that [s] coveteth [t] an evil covetousness to his house, that he may [u] set his nest on high, that he may be delivered from the [v] power of evil!

10 Thou hast consulted shame to thy house by cutting off many people, and hast sinned against thy soul.

11 For the stone shall cry out of the wall, and the [w] beam out of the timber shall [x] answer it.

12 Wo to him that buildeth a town with [y] blood, [z] and stablisheth a city by iniquity!

13 Behold, is it not of the LORD of hosts [a] that the people shall labour in the very fire, and the people shall weary themselves [b] for very vanity?

14 For the earth shall be filled [c] with the [d] knowledge of the glory of the LORD, as the waters cover the sea.

A. M. cir. 3404. B. C. cir. 600. Ol. cir. XLV. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

15 Wo unto him that giveth his neighbour drink, that puttest thy [e] bottle to him, and makest him drunken also, that thou mayest [f] look on their nakedness!

16 Thou art filled [g] with shame for glory. [h] drink thou also and let thy foreskin be uncovered: the cup of the LORD's right hand shall be turned unto thee, and shameful spewing shall be on thy glory.

17 For the violence of Lebanon shall cover thee, and the spoil of beasts, which made them afraid, [i] because of men's blood, and for the violence of the land, of the city, and of all that dwell therein.

---

[s] Jer. xxii. 13.——[t] Or, gaineth an evil gain.——[u] Jer. xlix. 16; Obad. 4.——[v] Heb. palm of the hand.——[w] Or, piece, or fastening. [x] Or, witness against it.——[y] Jer. xxii. 13; Ezek. xxiv. 9; Mic. iii. 10; Nah. iii. 1.

[z] Heb. bloods.——[a] Jer. li. 58.——[b] Or, in vain.——[c] Or, by knowing the glory of the LORD.——[d] Isa. xi. 9.——[e] Hos. vii. 5. [f] Gen. ix. 22.——[g] Or, more with shame than with glory.——[h] Jer. xxv. 26, 27; li. 57.——[i] Ver. 8.

Verse 9. An evil covetousness to his house] Nebuchadnezzar wished to aggrandize his family, and make his empire permanent: but both family and empire were soon cut off by the death of his son Belshazzar, and the consequent destruction of the Chaldean empire.

Verse 10. Hast sinned against thy soul.] Thy life is forfeited by thy crimes.

Verse 11. The stone shall cry out of the wall, and the beam out of the timber shall answer it.] This appears to refer to the ancient mode of building walls; two or three courses of stone, and then one course of timber. See 1 Kings vi. 36: thus was the palace of Solomon built. The splendid and costly buildings of Babylon have been universally celebrated. But how were these buildings erected? By the spoils of conquered nations, and the expense of the blood of multitudes; therefore the stones and the timber are represented as calling out for vengeance against this ruthless conqueror.

Verse 12. Wo to him that buildeth a town with blood] At the expense of much slaughter. This is the answer of the beam to the stone. And these things will refer to the vast fortunes gained, and the buildings erected, by means of the slave-trade; where, to a considerate and humane mind, the walls appear as if composed of the bones of negroes, and cemented by their blood! But the towns or houses established by this iniquity soon come to ruin; and the fortunes made have, in most cases, become as chaff and dust before the whirlwind of God's indignation. But where are the dealers in the souls and bodies of men? Ask him who has them in his keeping. He can tell.

Verse 13. The people shall labour in the very fire] All these superb buildings shall be burnt down. See the parallel passage, Jer. li. 58, and the note there.

Shall weary themselves for very vanity?] For the gratification of the wishes of ambition, and in buildings which shall be brought to naught.

Verse 14. For the earth shall be filled] This is a singular and important verse. It may be first applied to Babylon. God's power and providence shall be widely displayed in the destruction of this city and empire, in the humiliation of Nebuchadnezzar, Dan. iv. 37, and in the captivity and restoration of his people. See Newcome, and see Isa. xi. 9.

Secondly. It may be applied to the glorious days of the Messiah. The land of Judea should by his preaching, and that of his disciples, be filled with the knowledge of God. God's great design fully discovered, and the scheme of salvation amply explained.

Thirdly. It may be applied to the universal spread of the Gospel over the habitable globe; when the fulness of the Gentiles should be brought in, and the Jews gathered in with that fulness. The earth cannot perish till every continent, island, and inhabitant, is illuminated with the light of the Gospel.

Verse 15. Wo unto him that giveth his neighbour drink] This has been considered as applying to Pharaoh-hophra, king of Egypt, who enticed his neighbours Jehoiachin and Zedekiah to rebel against Nebuchadnezzar, whereby the nakedness and imbecility of the poor Jews was soon discovered; for the Chaldeans soon took Jerusalem, and carried its kings, princes, and people, into captivity.

Verse 16. The cup of the Lord's right hand] Among the ancients, all drank out of the same cup; it was passed from hand to hand, and each drank as much as he chose. The Chaldeans gave to the neighbouring nations the cup of idolatry and of deceitful alliance; and in return they received from the Lord the cup of his fury. So Grotius.

Verse 17. For the violence of Lebanon] Or, the

A. M. cir. 3404. B. C. cir. 600. Ol. cir. XLV. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

18 [k] What profiteth the graven image that the maker thereof hath graven it; the molten image, and a [l] teacher of lies, that [m] the maker of his work trusteth therein, to make [n] dumb idols?

19 Wo unto him that saith to the wood, Awake; to the dumb stone, Arise, it shall teach! Behold, it is laid over with gold and silver, [o] and there is no breath at all in the midst of it.

A. M. cir. 3404. B. C. cir. 600. Ol. cir. XLV. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

20 But [p] the LORD is in his holy temple: [q] let [r] all the earth keep silence before him.

[k] Isa. xliv. 9, 10; xlvi. 2.——[l] Jer. x. 8, 14; Zech. x. 2. [m] Heb. the fashioner of his fashion.——[n] Psa. cxv. 5; 1 Cor. xii. 2.——[o] Psa. cxxxv. 17.——[p] Psa. xi. 4.——[q] Heb. be silent all the earth before him.——[r] Zeph. i. 7; Zech. ii. 13.

violence done to Lebanon; to men, to cattle, to Judea, and to Jerusalem. See the note on the parallel place, ver. 8. This may be a threatening against Egypt, as the former was against Chaldea.

Verse 18. What profiteth the graven image] This is against idolatry in general, and every species of it, as well as against those princes, priests, and people who practise it, and encourage others to do the same. See on the parallel passages in the margin.

Dumb idols?] אלילים אלמים elilim illemim, "dumb nothings." This is exactly agreeable to St. Paul, 1 Cor. viii. 4, who says, "An idol is nothing in the world." What signify the idols worshipped by the Chaldeans, Tyrians, and Egyptians? They have not been able to save their worshippers.

Verse 19. Wo unto him] How foolish and contemptible to worship a thing formed by the hand of man out of wood, stone, gold, or silver! The meanest brute is superior to them all; it breathes and lives, but they have no breath in them. However, they are said above to be teachers of lies; that is, they appeared to give out oracles: but these were lies; and were not given by the statue, but by the priest.

Verse 20. The Lord is in his holy temple] Jehovah has his temple, the place where he is to be worshipped; but there there is no image. Oracles, however, are given forth; and every word of them is truth, and is fulfilled in its season. And this temple and its worship are holy; no abomination can be practised there, and every thing in it leads to holiness of heart and life.

Let all the earth keep silence before him.] Let all be dumb. Let none of them dare to open their mouths in the presence of Jehovah. He alone is Sovereign. He alone is the arbiter of life and death. Let all hear his commands with the deepest respect, obey them with the promptest diligence, and worship him with the most profound reverence. When an Asiatic sovereign goes to the mosque on any of the eastern festivals, such as the Bairham, the deepest silence reigns among all his retinue, viziers, foreign ambassadors, &c. They all bow respectfully before him; but no word is spoken, no sound uttered. It is to this species of reverence that the prophet alludes, and with this he concludes the prophetic part of this book. What God has threatened or promised, that he will fulfil. Let every soul bow before him, and submit to his authority.

CHAPTER III.

The prophet, being apprized of the calamities which were to be brought on his country by the ministry of the Chaldeans, and the punishments which awaited the Chaldeans themselves, partly struck with terror, and partly revived with hope and confidence in the Divine mercy, beseeches God to hasten the redemption of his people, 1, 2. Such a petition would naturally lead his thoughts to the astonishing deliverance which God vouchsafed to the same people of old; and the inference from it was obvious, that he could with the same ease deliver their posterity now. But, hurried on by the fire and impetuosity of his spirit, he disdains to wait the process of connecting these ideas, and bounds at once into the midst of his subject: "God came from Teman," &c., 3. He goes on to describe the majesty and might which God displayed in conducting his people to the land of promise; selecting the most remarkable circumstances, and clothing them in the most lofty language. As he goes along, his fancy becomes more glowing, till at length he is transported to the scene of action, and becomes an eyewitness of the wonders he describes. "I beheld the tents of Cushan in affliction," 4–6. After having touched on the principal circumstances of that deliverance which he celebrates, he returns to what passed before them in Egypt; his enthusiasm having led him to begin in the midst of his subject, 7–15. And at last he ends the hymn as he began it, with expressing his awe of the Divine judgments, and his firm trust in the mercy and goodness of God while under them; and that in terms of such singular beauty, elegance, and sublimity, as to form a very proper conclusion to this admirable piece of Divinely inspired composition, 16–19. It would seem from the title, and the note appended at the end, that it was set to music, and sung in the service of the temple.

A. M. cir. 3104. B. C. cir. 600. Ol. cir. XLV. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

A PRAYER of Habakkuk the prophet [a] upon [b] Shigionoth.

2 O LORD, I have heard [c] thy speech, and was afraid: O LORD, [d] revive [e] thy work in the midst of the years, in the midst of the years make known: in wrath remember mercy.

3 God came from [f] Teman, [g] and the Holy One from Mount Paran. Selah. His glory covered the heavens, and the earth was full of his praise.

A. M. cir. 3104. B. C. cir. 600. Ol. cir. XLV. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

4 And his brightness was as the light; he had horns coming out of his hand: and there was the hiding of his power.

5 [i] Before him went the pestilence, and [k] burning [l] coals went forth at his feet.

[a] Psa. vii. title.——[b] Or, according to variable songs, or tunes, called in Hebrew, Shigionoth.——[c] Heb. thy report, or thy hearing.——[d] Or, preserve alive.——[e] Psa. lxxxv. 6.——[f] Or, the south.——[g] Deut. xxxiii. 2; Judg. v. 4; Psa. lxviii. 7.——[h] Or, bright beams out of his side.——[i] Nah. i. 3.——[k] Or, burning diseases; Deut. xxxii. 24.——[l] Psa. xviii. 8, 12; Isa. vi. 6; xlvii. 14.

NOTES ON CHAP. III.

Verse 1. A prayer of Habakkuk—upon Shigionoth.] See the note on the title of Psa. vii., where the meaning of Shiggaion is given. The Vulgate has, pro ignorantiis, for ignorances, or sins committed in ignorance; and so it is understood by the Chaldee. The Syriac has nothing but merely, A prayer of Habakkuk. And the Septuagint, instead of Shigionoth, have μετα ῳδης, with a hymn, which is copied by the Arabic.

I suspect that the title here given is of a posterior date to the prophecy. It appears to interrupt the connection between this and the termination of the preceding verse. See them together:—

Chap. ii. 20: "But the Lord is in his holy temple:
Be silent before him, all the earth.

iii. 1: O Lord, I have heard thy speech:
I have feared, O Lord, thy work.
As the years approach thou hast shown;
As the years approach thou makest known.
In wrath thou rememberest mercy."

The prophet may here refer to the speech which God had communicated to him, chap. i. 5–11, ii. 4–20, and the terror with which he was struck, because of the judgments denounced against Jerusalem. I have followed the version of Apb. Newcome in this first verse. The critical reader may consult his notes, and the various readings of Kennicott and De Rossi.

Verse 2. In the midst of the years] בקרב שנים bekereb shanim, "As the years approach." The nearer the time, the clearer and fuller is the prediction; and the signs of the times show that the complete fulfilment is at hand. But as the judgments will be heavy, (and they are not greater than we deserve,) yet, Lord, in the midst of wrath—infliction of punishment—remember mercy, and spare the souls that return unto thee with humiliation and prayer.

Verse 3. God came from Teman] Bp. Lowth observes: "This is a sudden burst of poetry, in the true spirit of the ode; the concealed connection being that God, who had formerly displayed such power in delivering the Israelites from Egyptian slavery, might succour their posterity in a like wonderful manner." Hence the prophet selects the most striking facts of that first deliverance; and to decorate and render them impressive, brings forth all the powers of his genius, in all the strength and elegance of his language. "What crowns the sublimity of this piece," says Bp. Lowth, "is the singular elegance of the close; and were it not that antiquity has here and there thrown its veil of obscurity over it, there could not be conceived a more perfect and masterly poem of its kind." See, for more particulars, his twenty-eighth Prelection.

I shall endeavour to show the facts in the deliverance from Egypt, to which the prophet refers.

Teman] Was a city, the capital of a province of Idumea, to the south of the land of Canaan. Num xx. 21; Jer. xlix. 7.

Paran] Was a city which gave its name to a province in Arabia Petræa. Gen. xxi. 21; Deut. xxxiii. 2.

Selah] This word is not well known; probably it means a pause or alteration in the music. See it in the Psalms, and its explanation there.

His glory covered the heavens] His glory when he descended on Mount Sinai, and in the pillar of fire by night.

The earth was full of his praise.] All the land was astonished at the magnificence of his works in behalf of his people. Instead of praise, some translate splendour. The whole land was illuminated by his glory.

Verse 4. He had horns coming out of his hand] קרנים karnayim, rays. His hand—his power—was manifested in a particular place, by the sudden issuing out of pencils of rays, which diverged in coruscations of light, so as to illuminate the whole hemisphere. Yet "there was the hiding of his power." His Majesty could not be seen, nor any kind of image, because of the insufferable splendour. This may either refer to the lightnings on Mount Sinai; or to the brightness which occasionally proceeded from the shechinah or glory of God between the cherubim, over the mercy-seat. See Capellus and Newcome. If lightnings are intended, the dense cloud from which they proceeded may be meant by the "hiding of his power;" for when the lightnings burst forth, his power and energy became manifest.

Probably from this the Jupiter Keraunos or Jupiter Brontes of the heathens was borrowed; who is always represented with forked or zigzag lightnings in his hand.

Verse 5. Before him went the pestilence] This plague was several times inflicted on the disobedient Israelites in the wilderness; see Num. xi. 33, xiv. 37, xvi. 46; and was always the proof that the just God was then manifesting his power among them.

A. M. cir. 3404. B. C. cir. 600. Ol. cir. XLV. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

6 He stood, and measured the earth: he beheld, and drove asunder the nations; [m] and the [n] everlasting mountains were scattered, the perpetual hills did bow: his ways are [o] everlasting.

7 I saw the tents of [p] Cushan [q] in affliction: and the curtains of the land of Midian did tremble.

8 Was the LORD displeased against the rivers? was thine anger against the rivers? was thy wrath against the sea, [r] that thou didst ride upon thine horses and [s] thy chariots of salvation?

9 Thy bow was made quite naked, according to the oaths of the tribes, even thy word. Selah. [t] Thou [u] didst cleave the earth with rivers.

[m] Nah. i. 5.——[n] Gen. xliv. 26.——[o] Psa. cxxxix. 24.——[p] Or, Æthiopia.——[q] Or, under affliction, or vanity.——[r] Deut. xxxiii. 26, 27; Psa. lxviii. 4; civ. 3; ver. 15.

[s] Or, thy chariots were salvation.——[t] Or, Thou didst cleave the rivers of the earth.——[u] Psalm lxxviii. 15, 16; cv. 41.

Burning coals went forth at his feet.] Newcome translates, "And flashes of fire went forth after him." The disobedient Israelites were consumed by a fire that went out from Jehovah; see Lev. x. 2; Num. xi. 1, xvi. 35. And the burnt-offering was consumed by a fire which came out from before Jehovah, Lev. xi. 24.

Verse 6. He stood, and measured the earth] ארץ erets, the land; he divided the promised land among the twelve tribes. This is the allusion; and this the prophet had in his eye. God not only made a general assignment of the land to the Hebrews; but he even divided it into such portions as the different families required. Here were both power and condescension. When a conqueror had subdued a country, he divided it among his soldiers. Among the Romans, those among whom the conquered lands were divided were termed beneficiarii; and the lands beneficia, as being held on the beneficence of the sovereign.

He beheld, and drove asunder the nations] The nations of Canaan, the Hittites, Hivites, Jebusites, &c., and all who opposed his people. Even his look dispersed them.

The everlasting mountains were scattered] Or, broken asunder. This may refer to the convulsions on Mount Sinai; and to the earthquake which announced the descent of the Most High. See Exod. xix. 18. "God occupied the summit of the eternal Mount Sinai; and led his people over the eternal mountains of Arabia Petræa; and this sense is preferable to the figurative one, that his ways or doings are predetermined from everlasting."—Newcome. The epithets עד ad, and עולם olam, eternal and everlasting, are applied to mountains and immense rocks, because no other parts of nature are less subject to decay or change, than these immense masses of earth and stone, and that almost indestructible stone, granite, out of which Sinai appears to be formed. A piece of the beautiful granite of this mountain now lies before me. This is a figurative description of the passage of the Israelites through the deserts of Arabia, over mountains, rocks, and through the trackless wilderness; over and through which God, by his power and providence, gave them a safe passage.

The following beautiful piece from the Fragments of Æschylus will illustrate the preceding description, and please the learned reader.

Χωριζε θνητων τον Θεον, και μη δοκει
Ομοιον αυτῳ ααρκινον καθεσταναι·
Ουκ οισθα δ' αυτον· ποτε μεν ὡς πυρ φαινεται
Απλαστον ὁρμῃ· ποτε δ' ὑδωρ, ποτε δε γνοφος.
Και θηραιν αυτος γινεται παρεμφερης,
Ανεμῳ, νεφει τε, καστραπῃ, βροντῃ, βροχῃ.
Ὑπηρετει δ' αυτῳ θαλασσα, και πετραι,
Και πασα πηγη, χ' ὑδατος συστηματα·
Τρεμει δ' ορη και γαια και πελωριος
Βυθος θαλασσης, κωρεων ὑψος μεγα,
Οταν επιβλεψῃ γοργον ομμα δεαποτου.

ÆSCHYLI Fragm.

Confound not God with man; nor madly deem
His form is mortal, and of flesh like thine.
Thou know'st him not. Sometimes like fire he glows
In wrath severe; sometimes as water flows;
In brooding darkness now his power conceals
And then in brutes that mighty power reveals.
In clouds tempestuous we the Godhead find;
He mounts the storm, and rides the winged wind;
In vivid lightnings flashes from on high;
In rattling thunders rends the lowering sky;
Fountains and rivers, seas and floods obey,
And ocean's deep abyss yields to his sway;
The mountains tremble, and the hills sink down,
Crumbled to dust by the Almighty's frown.
When God unfolds the terrors of his eye,
All things with horror quake, and in confusion lie.

J. B. B. CLARKE.

Verse 7. I saw the tents of Cushan in affliction] Cush is Arabia. The Arabians dwelt in tents, hence they were called Scenitæ. When the Lord appeared on Mount Sinai, the Arabs of the Red Sea abandoned their tents, being terror-struck; and the Midianites also were seized with fear. See the desolation wrought among this people by Phinehas, Num. xxxi. 1, &c., on account of their having enticed the Israelites to idolatry, Num. xxv. 1, &c. Either Cush and Midian lay contiguous to each other; or, these names are poetically used to express the same place.

Verse 8. Was the Lord displeased against the rivers?] Floods; here is a reference to the passage of the Red Sea. The Lord is represented as heading his troops, riding in his chariot, and commanding the sea to divide, that a free passage might be left for his army to pass over.

Verse 9. Thy bow was made quite naked] That is, it was drawn out of its case; as the arrows had their quiver, so the bows had their cases. A fine oriental bow and bow-case, with quiver and arrows, are now be-

A. M. cir. 3404. B. C. cir. 600. Ol. cir. XLV. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

10 [v]The mountains saw thee, and they trembled: the overflowing of the water passed by: the deep uttered his voice, and [w]lifted up his hands on high.

11 [x]The sun and moon stood still in their habitations; [y]at the light of thine [z]arrows they went, and at the shining of thy glittering spear.

12 Thou didst march through the land in indignation, [a]thou didst thresh the heathen in anger.

A. M. cir. 3404 B. C. cir. 600. Ol. cir XLV. 1 Tarquinii Prisci R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

13 Thou wentest forth for the salvation of thy people, even for salvation with thine anointed; [b]thou woundedst the head out of the house of the wicked, [c]by discovering the foundation unto the neck. Selah.

14 Thou didst strike through with his staves the head of his villages: they [d]came out as [v] Exod. xix. 16, 18; Judg. v. 4, 5; Psa. lxviii. 8; lxxvii. 18; cxiv. 4.——[w] Exod. xiv. 22; Josh. iii. 16.——[x] Josh. x. 12, 13. [y] Or, thine arrows walked in the light, &c.

[z] Josh. x. 11; Psa. xviii. 14; lxxvii. 17, 18.——[a] Jer. li. 33; Amos i. 3; Mic. iv. 13.——[b] Josh. x. 24; xi. 8, 12; Psa. lxviii. 21.——[c] Heb. making naked.——[d] Heb. were tempestuous.

me; they show with what propriety Jehovah is represented as taking his bow out of its case, in order to set his arrow upon the cord, to shoot at his enemies. It is not the drawing out, or making bare the arrow, that is mentioned here; but the taking the bow out of its case to prepare to shoot.

This verse appears to be an answer to the questions in the preceding: "Was the Lord displeased," &c. The answer is, All this was done "according to the oaths of the tribes;" the covenant of God, frequently repeated and renewed, which he made with the tribes, to give them the land of the Canaanites for their inheritance.

Thou didst cleave the earth with rivers.] Or, "Thou didst cleave the streams of the land." Or, "Thou cleavedst the dry land into rivers." This may be a reference to the passage of Jordan, and transactions at Arnon and the brook Jabbok. See Num. xxi. 13–15.

In this verse we have Selah again, which, as before, may signify a pause, or some alteration in the music.

Verse 10. The mountains saw thee] This is the continued answer to the questions in ver. 8. These are figures highly poetic, to show with what ease God accomplished the most arduous tasks in behalf of his people. As soon as the mountains saw him, they trembled, they were in pangs. When he appeared, the sea fled to right and left, to give him a passage. "It uttered its voice." The separation of the waters occasioned a terrible noise. "And it lifted up its hands on high." Its waters, being separated, stood in heaps on the right hand and left. These heaps or waves are poetically represented here as the hands of the sea.

Verse 11. The sun and moon stood still] This was at the prayer of Joshua, when he fought against the Amorites. See Josh. x. 11, 12, and the notes there.

At the light of thine arrows they went] I think we should translate,—

By their light, thine arrows went abroad;
By their brightness, the lightning of thy spear.

Calvin very justly remarks that the arrows and spears of the Israelites are called those of God, under whose auspices the people fought: the meaning is, that by the continuation of the light of the sun and moon, then stayed in their course, the Israelites saw how to continue the battle, till their enemies were all defeated.

Verse 12. Thou didst march through the land] This refers to the conquest of Canaan. God is represented as going at the head of his people as general-in-chief; and leading them on from conquest to conquest—which was the fact.

Thou didst thresh the heathen in anger.] Thou didst tread them down, as the oxen do the sheaves on the threshing-floor.

Verse 13. Thou wentest forth for the salvation of thy people] Their deliverance would not have been effected but through thy interference.

For salvation with thine anointed] That is, with Joshua, whom God had anointed, or solemnly appointed to fill the place of Moses, and lead the people into the promised land. If we read, with the common text, משיחך meshichecha, "thy anointed," the singular number, Joshua is undoubtedly meant, who was God's instrument to put the people in possession of Canaan: but if, with several MSS. and some copies of the Septuagint, we read משיחיך meshicheyecha, "thy anointed ones," the Israelites must be intended. They are frequently called God's anointed, or God's saints. The sense is very far-fetched when applied to Jesus Christ.

Thou woundedst the head out of the house of the wicked] This alludes to the slaying of the first-born through all the land of Egypt. These were the heads of the houses or families.

By discovering the foundation unto the neck.] The general meaning of this clause is sufficiently plain: the government of these lands should be utterly subverted; the very foundations of it should be razed. But what means unto the neck, עד צואר ad tsavvar? Several critics read עד צור ad tsur, "Unto the ROCK," that on which the house is founded: and this very intelligible reading is obtained by the omission of a single letter, א aleph, from the word צואר. This conjecture has been adopted by Newcome, though unsupported either by MS. or version. But is the conjecture necessary? I think not: read the verse as it ought to be read, and all will be plain. "Thou hast wounded the head even unto the neck, in the house of the wicked, by laying bare the foundation." The whole head, neck, and all are cut off. There was no hope left to the Egyptians, because the first-born of every family was cut off, so that the very foundation was laid bare, no first-born being left to continue the heirship of families.

Verse 14. Thou didst strike through] The Hebrew will bear this sense: "Thou hast pierced amidst their tribes the head of their troops," referring to Pharaoh and his generals, who came like a whirlwind to fall a whirlwind to scatter me: their rejoicing was as to devour the poor secretly.

A. M. cir. 3404. B. C. cir. 600. Ol. cir. XLV. 1. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

15 [e] Thou didst walk through the sea with thine horses, through the [f] heap of great waters.

16 When I heard, [g] my belly trembled; my lips quivered at the voice; rottenness entered into my bones, and I trembled in myself, that I might rest in the day of trouble: when he cometh up unto the people, he will [h] invade them with his troops.

17 Although the fig tree shall not blossom, neither shall fruit be in the vines; the labour of the olive shall [i] fail, and the fields shall yield no meat; the flock shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stalls:

18 [k] Yet I will [l] rejoice in the LORD, I will joy in the God of my salvation.

19 The Lord GOD is [m] my strength, and he will make my feet [n] like hinds' feet, and he will make me to [o] walk upon mine high places. To the chief singer on my [p] stringed instruments.

[e] Ver. 8; Psa. lxxvii. 19.——[f] Or, mud.——[g] Psa. cxix. 120; Jer. xxiii. 9.——[h] Or, cut them in pieces.——[i] Heb. lie.——[k] Job xiii. 15.

[l] Isa. lxi. 16; lxi. 10.——[m] Psa. xxvii. 1.——[n] 2 Sam. xxii. 34; Psa. xviii. 33.——[o] Deut. xxxii. 13; xxxiii. 29.——[p] Heb. neginoth; Psa. iv. title.

upon the poor Israelites, when they appeared to be hemmed in by sea, and no place for their escape. If we follow the common reading, it seems to intimate that the troops of Pharaoh, in their confusion (for God shone out upon them from the cloud) fell foul of each other; and with their staves, or weapons, slew one another: but the head of the villages or towns, i. e., Pharaoh, was drowned with his army in the Red Sea.

Verse 15. Thou didst walk through the sea] There was no occasion to hurry across; all was safe, for God had divided the waters: and his terrible cloud had removed from before, and stood behind them, so that it was between them and the Egyptians. See Exod. xiv. 19, 20.

Verse 16. When I heard, my belly trembled] The prophet, having finished his account of the wonders done by Jehovah, in bringing their fathers from Egypt into the promised land, now returns to the desolate state of his countrymen, who are shortly to be led into captivity, and suffer the most grievous afflictions; and although he had a sure word of prophecy that they should be ultimately delivered, yet the thoughts of the evils they must previously endure filled his soul with terror and dismay; so that he wishes to be removed from earth before this tribulation should come, that his eyes might not behold the desolations of his country.

When he (Nebuchadnezzar) cometh up unto the people, (the Jews,) he will invade them (overpower and carry them away captive) with his troops.

Verse 17. Although the fig tree shall not blossom] תפרח tiphrach, "shall not flourish," shall not put forth its young figs, for the fig tree does not blossom. The young figs appear as soon as the old ones are ripe, as I have often had occasion to observe.

This verse most nervously paints the desolate state of the land of Judea during the captivity. In its hemistich form, it may be translated thus:—

For the fig tree shall not flourish,
And there shall be no fruit on the vines;
The fruit of the olive shall fail,
And the fields shall supply no food:
The flocks shall be cut off from the fold,
And no herds shall be found in the stalls:
Yet in Jehovah will I exult;
I will joy in the God of my salvation.

The Vulgate has:—

Yet I in the Lord will rejoice,
And will exult in Jesus my God.

The Targum countenances this version:—

ואנא במימרא דיי אבוע veana bemeimra dayai abua, "But in the WORD of the Lord will I rejoice," i. e., the personal, substantial Word of Jehovah.

These two verses give the finest display of resignation and confidence that I have ever met with. He saw that evil was at hand, and unavoidable; he submitted to the dispensation of God, whose Spirit enabled him to paint it in all its calamitous circumstances. He knew that God was merciful and gracious. He trusted to his promise, though all appearances were against its fulfilment; for he knew that the word of Jehovah could not fail, and therefore his confidence is unshaken.

No paraphrase can add any thing to this hymn, which is full of inexpressible dignity and elegance, leaving even its unparalleled piety out of the question.

Verse 19. The Lord God is my strength] This is an imitation, if not a quotation, from Psa. xviii. 32, 33, where see the notes.

Will make me to walk upon mine high places] This last verse is spoken in the person of the people, who seem to anticipate their restoration; and that they shall once more rejoice in the hills and mountains of Judea.

To the chief singer on my stringed instruments.) This line, which is evidently a superscription, leads me to suppose that when the prophet had completed his short ode, he folded it up, with the above direction to the master singer, or leader of the choir, to be sung in the temple service. Many of the Psalms are directed in the same way. "To the master singer;" or, "chief musician:" to be sung, according to their nature, on different kinds of instruments, or with particular airs or tunes.

Neginoth, נגינות which we translate stringed instruments, means such as were struck with a plectrum, or excited by some kind of friction or pulsation; as violins and cymbals, or tambarines are. I do not think that the line makes any part of the prophecy, but merely the superscription or direction of the work when it was finished. The ending will appear much more dignified, this line being separated from it.

THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET ZEPHANIAH.

Chronological Notes relative to this book, upon the supposition that it was written in the twelfth year of the reign of Josiah, king of Judah.

Year from the Creation, according to Archbishop Usher, 3374.—Year of the Julian Period, 4084.—Year since the Flood, 1718.—Year from the vocation of Abram, 1291.—Year from the foundation of Solomon's temple, 382.—Year since the division of Solomon's monarchy into the kingdoms of Israel and Judah, 346. Year since the conquest of Corœbus at Olympia, usually called the first Olympiad, 147.—Third year of the thirty-seventh Olympiad.—Year from the building of Rome, according to the Varronian computation, 124.—Year of the era of Nabonassar, 118.—Year since the destruction of the kingdom of Israel by Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, 92.—Year before the birth of Christ, 626.—Year before the vulgar era of Christ's nativity, 630.—Cycle of the Sun, 24.—Cycle of the Moon, 18.—Eighteenth year of Phraortes, king of Media. This monarch is supposed by some to have been the same with the Arphaxad of the Apocrypha.—Eleventh year of Philip I., king of Macedon.—Twenty-second year of Archidamus, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Proclidæ.—Fifteenth year of Eurycrates II., king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Eurysthenidæ.—Twenty-ninth year of Cypselus, who had seized upon the government of Corinth.—Forty-second year of Psammitichus, king of Egypt, according to Helvicus.—Tenth year of Kiniladachus, king of Babylon, according to the same chronologer. This monarch was the immediate predecessor of Nabopolassar, the father of Nebuchadnezzar.—Second year of Sadyattes, king of Lydia.—Eleventh year of Ancus Martius, the fifth king of the Romans.—Twelfth year of Josiah, king of Judah.

CHAPTER I.

This chapter begins with denouncing God's judgments against Judah and Jerusalem, 1–3. Idolaters, and sinners of several other denominations, are then particularly threatened; and their approaching visitation enlarged on, by the enumeration of several circumstances which tend greatly to heighten its terrors, 4–18.

A. M. cir. 3374. B. C. cir. 630. Olymp. cir. XXXVII. 3. A. U. C. cir. 124.

THE word of the LORD which came unto Zephaniah the son of Cushi, the son of Gedaliah, the son of Amariah, the son of Hizkiah, in the days of Josiah the son of Amon, king of Judah.

A. M. cir. 3374. B. C. cir. 630. Olymp. cir. XXXVII. 3. A. U. C. cir. 124.

2 [a] I will utterly consume all

[a] Heb. By taking away I will make an end.

NOTES ON CHAP. I.

Verse 1. The word of the Lord which came unto Zephaniah] Though this prophet has given us so large a list of his ancestors, yet little concerning him is known, because we know nothing certain relative to the persons of the family whose names are here introduced. We have one chronological note which is of more value for the correct understanding of his prophecy than the other could have been, how circumstantially soever it had been delivered; viz., that he prophesied in the days of Josiah, son of Amon, king of Judah; and from the description which he gives of the disorders which prevailed in Judea in his time, it is evident that he must have prophesied before the reformation made by Josiah, which was in the eighteenth year of his reign. And as he predicts the destruction of Nineveh, chap. ii. 13, which, as Calmet remarks, could not have taken place before the sixteenth of Josiah, allowing with Berosus twenty-one years for the reign of Nabopolassar over the Chaldeans; we must, therefore, place this prophecy about the beginning of the reign of Josiah, or from B. C. 640 to B. C. 609. But see the chronological notes.

Verse 2. I will utterly consume all things] All being now ripe for destruction, I will shortly bring a things from off [b] the land, saith the LORD.

A. M. cir. 3374. B. C. cir. 630. Olymp. cir. XXXVII. 3. A. U. C. cir. 124.

3 [c] I will consume man and beast, I will consume the fowls of the heaven, and the fishes of the sea, and [d] the [e] stumbling-blocks with the wicked; and I will cut off man from off the land, saith the LORD.

4 I will also stretch out mine hand upon Judah, and upon all the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and [f] I will cut off the remnant of Baal from this place, and the name of [g] the Chemarims with the priests;

5 And them [h] that worship the host of heaven upon the housetops: [i] and them that worship and [k] that swear [l] by the LORD, and that swear [m] by Malcham:

6 And [n] them that are turned back from the LORD; and those that [o] have not sought the LORD, nor inquired for him.

A. M. cir. 3374. B. C. cir. 630. Olymp. cir. XXXVII. 3. A. U. C. cir. 124.

7 [p] Hold thy peace at the presence of the Lord GOD: [q] for the day of the LORD is at hand: for [r] the LORD hath prepared a sacrifice, he hath [s] bid his guests.

8 And it shall come to pass in the day of the LORD's sacrifice, that I will [t] punish [u] the princes, and the king's children, and all such as are clothed with strange apparel.

9 In the same day also will I punish all those that leap on the threshold, which fill their masters' houses with violence and deceit.

10 And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the LORD, that there shall be the noise

[b] Heb. the face of the land.——[c] Hos. iv. 3.——[d] Ezek. vii. 19; xiv. 3, 4, 7; Matt. xiii. 41.——[e] Or, idols.——[f] Fulfilled, cir. 624; 2 Kings xxiii. 4, 5.——[g] Hos. x. 5.——[h] 2 Kings xxiii. 12; Jer. xix. 13.——[i] 1 Kings xviii. 21; 2 Kings xvii. 33, 41. [k] Isa. xlviii. 1; Hos. iv. 15.

[l] Or, to the LORD.——[m] Josh. xxiii. 7; 1 Kings xi. 33 [n] Isa. i. 4; Jer. ii. 13, 17; xv. 6.——[o] Hos. vii. 7.——[p] Hab. ii. 20; Zech. ii. 13.——[q] Isa. xiii. 6.——[r] Isa. xxxiv. 6; Jer. lvi. 10; Ezek. xxxix. 17; Rev. xix. 17.——[s] Heb. sanctified, or prepared. [t] Heb. visit upon.——[u] Jer. xxxix. 6.

universal scourge upon the land. He speaks particularly of the idolaters.

Verse 3. I will consume man and beast] By war, and by pestilence. Even the waters shall be infected, and the fish destroyed; the air become contaminated, and the fowls die.

Verse 4. I will cut off the remnant of Baal] I think he refers here, partly at least, to the reformation which Josiah was to bring about. See the account, 2 Kings xxiii. 5.

The Chemarims] The black-robed priests of different idols. See the note on 2 Kings xxiii. 5. These were put down by Josiah.

Verse 5. The host of heaven] Sun, moon, planets, and stars. This worship was one of the most ancient and the most common of all species of idolatry; and it had a greater semblance of reason to recommend it. See 2 Kings xxiii. 5, 12; Jer. xix. 13, xxxii. 29.

That swear by the Lord, and that swear by Malcham] Associating the name of an idol with that of the Most High. For Malcham, see on Hos. iv. 15, and Amos v. 26.

Verse 6. Them that are turned back] Who have forsaken the true God, and become idolaters.

Nor inquired for him] Have not desired to know his will.

Verse 7. Hold thy peace at the presence of the Lord God] הס has, the same as hush, hist, among us. Remonstrances are now useless. You had time to acquaint yourselves with God; you would not: you cry now in vain; destruction is at the door.

The Lord hath prepared a sacrifice] A slaughter of the people.

He hath bid his guests] The Babylonians, to whom he has given a commission to destroy you. In all festival sacrifices, 1. The victims were offered to God, and their blood poured out before the altar. 2. The people who were invited feasted upon the sacrifice. See on Isa. xxxiv. 6.

Verse 8. I will punish the princes, and the king's children] After the death of Josiah the kingdom of Judah saw no prosperity, and every reign terminated miserably; until at last King Zedekiah and the king's children were cruelly massacred at Riblah, when Nebuchadnezzar had taken Jerusalem.

Strange apparel] I really think this refers more to their embracing idolatrous customs and heathen usages, than to their changing their dress. They acquired new habits, as we would say; customs, that they used as they did their clothing—at all times, and in every thing.

Verse 9. That leap on the threshold] Or, that leap over the threshold. It is most probable that the Philistines are here meant. After the time that Dagon fell before the ark, and his hands were broken off on the threshold of his temple, his worshippers would no more set a foot upon the threshold, but stepped or leaped over it, when they entered into his temple. The Chaldee understands this of the Philistines, without giving this reason for it. Some understand it of haughtiness and pride: others think that leaping on the threshold refers to the customs of the Arabs, who used to ride into people's houses, and take away whatever they could carry; and that this is the reason why, in several parts of the East, they have their doors made very low, to prevent those depredators from entering. In this manner, we learn the Persians have frequently oppressed the poor Armenians, going on horseback into their houses, and taking whatever they thought proper. Mr. Harmer understands it in this way.

Verse 10. A cry from the fish-gate] This gate, which is mentioned Neh. iii. 3, was opposite to

A. M. cir. 3374. B. C. cir. 630. Olymp. cir. XXXVII. 3. A. U. C. cir. 124.

of a cry from [v] the fish-gate, and a howling from the second, and the great crashing from the hills.

11 [w] Howl, ye inhabitants of Maktesh, for all the merchant people are cut down; all they that bear silver are cut off.

12 And it shall come to pass at that time, that I will search Jerusalem with candles, and punish the men that are [x] settled [y] on their lees: [z] that say in their heart, The LORD will not do good, neither will he do evil.

13 Therefore their goods shall become a booty, and their houses a desolation: they shall also build houses, but [a] not inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, but [b] not drink the wine thereof.

14 [c] The great day of the LORD is near, it is near, and hasteth greatly, even the voice of the day of the LORD: the mighty man shall cry there bitterly.

15 [d] That day is a day of wrath, a day of trouble and distress, a day of wasteness and desolation, a day of darkness and gloominess, a day of clouds and thick darkness.

A. M. cir. 3374. B. C. cir. 630. Olymp. cir. XXXVII. 3 A. U. C. cir 124.

16 A day of [e] the trumpet and alarm against the fenced cities, and against the high towers.

17 And I will bring distress upon men, that they shall [f] walk like blind men, because they have sinned against the LORD: and [g] their blood shall be poured out as dust, and their flesh [h] as the dung.

18 [i] Neither their silver nor their gold shall be able to deliver them in the day of the LORD's wrath; but the whole land shall be [k] devoured by the fire of his jealousy: for [l] he shall make even a speedy riddance of all them that dwell in the land.

---

[v] 2 Chron. xxxiii. 14.——[w] James v. 1.——[x] Heb. curded, or thickened.——[y] Jer. xlviii. 11; Amos vi. 1.——[z] Psa. xciv. 7. [a] Deut. xxviii. 30, 39; Amos. v. 11.——[b] Mic. vi. 15.——[c] Joel ii. 1, 11.

[d] Isa. xxii. 5; Jer. xxx. 7; Joel ii. 2, 11; Amos v. 18; ver. 18.——[e] Jer. iv. 19.——[f] Deut. xxviii. 29; Isa. lix. 10.——[g] Psa. lxxix. 3.——[h] Psa. lxxxiii. 10; Jer. ix. 22; xvi. 4.——[i] Prov. xi. 4; Ezek. vii. 19.——[k] Chap. iii. 8.——[l] Ver. 2, 3.

Joppa; and perhaps the way in which the news came of the irruption of the Chaldean army, the great crashing from the hills.

The second] Or second city, may here mean a part of Jerusalem, mentioned 2 Kings xxii. 14, 2 Chron. xxxiv. 22.

Verse 11. Maktesh] Calmet says this signifies a mortar, or a rock in form of a mortar, and was the name of a quarter of Jerusalem where they hulled rice, corn, &c., according to St. Jerome. Some think the city of Jerusalem is meant, where the inhabitants should be beat and pounded to death as grain is pounded in a mortar.

Newcome translates it, the lower city, and considers it the valley in Jerusalem, which divided the upper from the lower city.

They that bear silver] The merchants, money-changers, usurers, rich men.

Verse 12. I will search Jerusalem with candles] I will make a universal and thorough search.

That are settled on their lees] These who are careless, satisfied with the goods of this life; who trust in their riches, and are completely irreligious; who, while they acknowledge that there is a God, think, like the Aristotelians, that he is so supremely happy in the contemplation of his own excellences, that he feels it beneath his dignity to concern himself with the affairs of mortals.

Verse 13. Their goods (in which they trust) shall become a booty] To the Chaldeans. They shall have no profit of all their labours. The houses they have built they shall not inhabit; of the wine of the vineyards they have planted, they shall not drink. See Amos v. 11, where we find the same evils threatened.

Verse 14. The great day of the Lord is near] It commenced with the death of the good king Josiah, who was slain by Pharaoh-necho at Megiddo, and continued to the destruction of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar.

Verse 15. That day is a day of wrath] See the parallel passages in the margin, and the notes there. From the fourteenth to the sixteenth verse inclusive there is a most beautiful amplification of the disasters that were coming on Jersusalem; the invasion, incursion, attack, carnage, confusion, horrible din occasioned by the sound of the trumpet, the cries of the people, and the shrieks and groans of the dying, are pointed out with great force and mighty effect.

Verse 17. They shall walk like blind men] Be in the most perplexing doubt and uncertainty; and while in this state, have their blood poured out by the sword of their enemies, and their flesh trodden under foot.

Verse 18. Their silver nor their gold] In which they trusted, and from which they expected happiness; these shall not profit them in this awful day. And God will bring this about speedily; and a speedy riddance—a universal desolation, shall in a short time take place in every part of the land.

CHAPTER II.

The prophet, having declared the judgments which were ready to fall on his people, earnestly exhorts them to repentance, that these judgments may be averted, 1–3. He then foretells the fate of other neighbouring and hostile nations: the Philistines, 4–7; Moabites and Ammonites, 8–11; Ethiopians, 12; and Assyrians, 13. In the close of the chapter we have a prophecy against Nineveh. These predictions were accomplished chiefly by the conquests of Nebuchadnezzar.

A. M. cir. 3374. B. C. cir. 630. Olymp. cir. XXXVII. 3. A. U. C. cir. 124.

GATHER [a] yourselves together, yea, gather together, O nation [b] not desired;

2 Before the decree bring forth, before the day pass [c] as the chaff, before [d] the fierce anger of the LORD come upon you, before the day of the LORD's anger come upon you.

3 [e] Seek ye the LORD, [f] all ye meek of the earth, which have wrought his judgment, seek righteousness, seek meekness: [g] it may be ye shall be hid in the day of the LORD's anger.

4 For [h] Gaza shall be forsaken, and Ashkelon a desolation: they shall drive out Ashdod [i] at the noonday, and Ekron shall be rooted up.

5 Wo unto the inhabitants of [k] the sea-coasts, the nation of the Cherethites; the word of the LORD is against you; O [l] Canaan, the land of the Philistines, I will even destroy thee, that there shall be no inhabitant.

A. M. cir. 3374. B. C. cir. 630. Olymp. cir. XXXVII. 3. A. U. C. cir. 124.

6 And the sea-coasts shall be dwellings and cottages for shepherds, [m] and folds for flocks.

7 And the coast shall be for [n] the remnant of the house of Judah; they shall feed thereupon: in the houses of Ashkelon shall they lie down in the evening: [o] for the LORD their God shall [p] visit them, and [q] turn away their captivity.

8 [r] I have heard the reproach of Moab, and [s] the revilings of the children of Ammon, whereby they have reproached my people, and [t] magnified themselves against their border.

9 Therefore as I live, saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Surely [u] Moab shall be as Sodom, and [v] the children of Ammon as Gomorrah, [w] even the breeding of nettles, and salt-pits, and a perpetual desolation: [x] the

[a] Joel ii. 16.——[b] Or, not desirous.——[c] Job xxi. 18; Psa. i. 4; Isa. xvii. 13; Hos. xiii. 3.——[d] 2 Kings xxiii. 26. [e] Psa. cv. 4; Amos v. 6.——[f] Psa. lxxvi. 9.——[g] Joel ii. 14; Amos v. 15; Jonah iii. 9.——[h] Jer. xlvii. 4, 5; Ezek. xxv. 15; Amos i. 6, 7, 8; Zech. ix. 5, 6.——[i] Jer. vi. 4; xv. 8. [k] Ezek. xxv. 16.——[l] Josh. xiii. 3.——[m] See Isa. xvii. 2; ver. 14.

[n] Isa. xi. 11; Mic. iv. 7; v. 7, 8; Hag. i. 12; ii. 2; verse 9.——[o] Or, when, &c.——[p] Exod. iv. 31; Luke i. 68.——[q] Psa. cxxvi. 1; Jer. xxix. 14; chap. iii. 20.——[r] Jer. xlviii. 27; Ezek. xxv. 8.——[s] Ezek. xxv. 3, 6.——[t] Jer. xlix. 1.——[u] Isa. xv.; Jer. xlviii.; Ezek. xxv. 9; Amos ii. 1.——[v] Amos i. 13.——[w] Gen. xix. 25; Deut. xxix. 23; Isa. xiii. 19; xxxiv. 13; Jer. xlix. 18; l. 40.——[x] Ver. 7.

NOTES ON CHAP. II.

Verse 1. Gather yourselves] Others, sift yourselves. Separate the chaff from the wheat, before the judgments of God fall upon you. O nation not desired—unlovely, not delighted in; hated because of your sin. The Israelites are addressed.

Verse 3. Ye meek of the earth] עניי anavey, ye oppressed and humbled of the land.

It may be ye shall be hid] The sword has not a commission against you. Ask God, and he will be a refuge to you from the storm and from the tempest.

Verse 4. Gaza shall be forsaken] This prophecy is against the Philistines. They had been greatly harassed by the kings of Egypt; but were completely ruined by Nebuchadnezzar, who took all Phœnicia from the Egyptians; and about the time of his taking Tyre, devastated all the seignories of the Philistines. This ruin we have seen foretold by the other prophets, and have already remarked its exact fulfilment.

Verse 5. The sea-coasts, the nation of the Cherethites] The sea-coasts mean all the country lying on the Mediterranean coast from Egypt to Joppa and Gaza. The Cherethites—the Cretans, who were probably a colony of the Phœnicians. See on 1 Sam. xxx. 14, and Amos ix. 7.

Verse 6. And the sea-coasts shall be dwellings] Newcome considers כרת keroth as a proper name, not cottages or folds. The Septuagint have Κρητη, Crete, and so has the Syriac. Abp. Secker notes, Alibi non extat כרת, et forte notat patriam των כרתιμ. "The word כרת is not found elsewhere, and probably it is the name of the country of the Cherethim."

Verse 7. The coast shall be for the remnant] Several devastations fell on the Philistines. Gaza was ruined by the army of Alexander the Great, and the Maccabees finally accomplished all that was predicted by the prophets against this invariably wicked people. They lost their polity, and were at last obliged to receive circumcision.

Verse 8. I have heard the reproach of Moab] God punished them for the cruel part they had taken in the persecutions of the Jews; for when they lay under the displeasure of God, these nations insulted them in the most provoking manner. See on Amos i. 13, and the parallel texts in the margin.

Verse 9. The breeding of nettles] That is, their land shall become desolate, and be a place for nettles, thorns, &c., to flourish in, for want of cultivation.

A. M. cir. 3374. B. C. cir. 630. Olymp. cir. XXXVII. 3. A. U. C. cir. 124.

residue of my people shall spoil them, and the remnant of my people shall possess them.

10 This shall they have [y] for their pride, because they have reproached and magnified themselves against the people of the LORD of hosts.

11 The LORD will be terrible unto them: for he will [z] famish all the gods of the earth; [a] and men shall worship him, every one from his place, even all [b] the isles of the heathen.

12 [c] Ye Ethiopians also, ye shall be slain by [d] my sword.

13 And he will stretch out his hand against the north, and [e] destroy Assyria; and will make Nineveh a desolation, and dry like a wilderness.

A. M. cir. 3374. B. C. cir. 630. Olymp. cir. XXXVII. 3. A. U. C. cir. 121.

14 And [f] flocks shall lie down in the midst of her, all [g] the beasts of the nations: both the [h] cormorant [i] and the bittern shall lodge in the [k] upper lintels of it; their voice shall sing in the windows; desolation shall be in the thresholds: [l] for he shall uncover the [m] cedar work.

15 This is the rejoicing city [n] that dwelt carelessly, [o] that said in her heart, I am, and there is none beside me: how is she become a desolation, a place for beasts to lie down in! every one that passeth by her [p] shall hiss and [q] wag his hand.

---

[y] Isa. xvi. 6; Jer. xlviii. 29.——[z] Heb. make lean.——[a] Mal. i. 11; John iv. 21.——[b] Gen. x. 5.——[c] Isa. xviii. 1; xx. 4; Jer. xlvi. 9; Ezek. xxx. 9.——[d] Psa. xvii. 13.——[e] Isa. x. 12; Ezek. xxxi. 3; Nah. i. 2; ii. 10; iii. 15, 18.——[f] Ver. 6.

[g] Isa. xiii. 21, 22.——[h] Or, pelican.——[i] Isa. xxxiv. 11, 14.——[k] Or, knops, or chapiters.——[l] Or, when he hath uncovered.——[m] Jer. xxii. 14.——[n] Isa. xlvii. 8.——[o] Rev. xviii. 7.——[p] Job xxvii. 23; Lam. ii. 15; Ezek. xxvii. 36.——[q] Nah. iii. 19.

Verse 10. Because they have reproached] See on ver. 8.

Verse 11. He will famish all the gods of the earth] They shall have no more sacrifices; their worship shall be entirely destroyed. Idolaters supposed that their gods actually fed on the fumes and spirituous exhalations that arose from the burnt-offerings which they made unto their idols. It is in reference to this opinion that the Lord says, "He will famish all the gods of the land."

Verse 12. Ye Ethiopians also] Nebuchadnezzar subdued these. See Jer. xlvi. 2, 9; Ezek. xxx. 4, 10. See also on Amos ix. 17.

Verse 13. He will—destroy Assyria] He will overthrow the empire, and Nineveh, their metropolitan city. See on Jonah and Nahum.

Verse 14. And flocks shall lie down in the midst of her] Nineveh was so completely destroyed, that its situation is not at present even known. The present city of Mossoul is supposed to be in the vicinity of the place where this ancient city stood.

The cormorant קאת kaath; and the bittern, קפד kippod. These Newcome translates, "The pelican and the porcupine."

Their voice shall sing in the windows] The windows shall be all demolished; wild fowl shall build their nests in them, and shall be seen coming from their sills; and the fine cedar ceilings shall be exposed to the weather, and by and by crumble to dust. See the note on Isa. xxxiv. 11, 14, where nearly the same terms are used.

I have in another place introduced a remarkable couplet quoted by Sir W. Jones from a Persian poet, which speaks of desolation in nearly the same terms.

پرده داري ميكند در قصر قيصر عنكبوت
بومي نوبت ميزند بر كنگره افراسياب

"The spider holds the veil in the palace of Cæsar:
The owl stands sentinel in the watchtower of Afrasiab."

Verse 15. This is the rejoicing city] The city in which mirth, jocularity, and pleasure, reigned without interruption.

And wag his hand] Will point her out as a mark and monument of Divine displeasure

CHAPTER III.

The prophet reproves Jerusalem, and all her guides and rulers, for their obstinate perseverance in impiety, notwithstanding all the warnings and corrections which they had received from God, 1–7. They are encouraged, however, after they shall have been chastised for their idolatry, and cured of it, to look for mercy and restoration, 8–13; and excited to hymns of joy at the glorious prospect, 14–17. After which the prophet concludes with large promises of favour and prosperity in the days of the Messiah, 18–20. We take this extensive view of the concluding verses of this chapter, because an apostle has expressly assured us that in EVERY prophetical book of the Old Testament Scriptures are contained predictions relative to the Gospel dispensation. See Acts iii. 24.

A. M. cir. 3374. B. C. cir. 630. Olymp. cir. XXXVII. 3. A. U. C. cir. 124.

WO to her [b] that is filthy and polluted, to the oppressing city!

2 She [c] obeyed not the voice; she [d] received not [e] correction; she trusted not in the LORD; she drew not near to her God.

3 [f] Her princes within her are roaring lions; her judges are [g] evening wolves; they gnaw not the bones till the morrow.

4 Her [h] prophets are light and treacherous persons: her priests have polluted the sanctuary, they have done [i] violence to the law.

5 [k] The just LORD [l] is in the midst thereof; he will not do iniquity: [m] every morning doth he bring his judgment to light, he faileth not: but [n] the unjust knoweth no shame.

6 I have cut off the nations: their [o] towers are desolate; I made their streets waste, that none passeth by: their cities are destroyed, so that there is no man, that there is none inhabitant.

A. M. cir. 3374. B. C. cir. 630. Olymp. cir. XXXVII. 3 A. U. C. cir. 124.

7 [p] I said, Surely thou wilt fear me, thou wilt receive instruction; so their dwelling should not be cut off, howsoever I punished them; but they rose early, and [q] corrupted all their doings.

8 Therefore [r] wait ye upon me, saith the LORD, until the day that I rise up to the prey for my determination is to [s] gather the nations, that I may assemble the kingdoms, to pour upon them mine indignation, even all my fierce anger: for all the earth [t] shall be devoured with the fire of my jealousy.

9 For then will I turn to the people [u] a pure

[a] Or, gluttonous.——[b] Heb. craw.——[c] Jer. xxii. 21.——[d] Jer. v. 3.——[e] Or, instruction.——[f] Ezek. xxii. 27; Mic. iii. 9, 10, 11. [g] Hab. i. 8.——[h] Jer. xxiii. 11, 32; Lam. ii. 14; Hos. ix. 7. [i] Ezek. xxii. 26.——[k] Deut. xxxii. 4.

[l] Ver. 15, 17; see Mic. iii. 11.——[m] Heb. morning by morning. [n] Jer. iii. 3; vi. 15; viii. 12.——[o] Or, corners.——[p] So Jer. viii. 6.——[q] Gen. vi. 12.——[r] Psa. xxvii. 14; xxxvii. 34; Prov. xx. 22.——[s] Joel iii. 2.——[t] Chap. i. 18.——[u] Isa. xix. 18.

NOTES ON CHAP. III.

Verse 1. Wo to her that is filthy] This is a denunciation of Divine judgment against Jerusalem.

Verse 2. She obeyed not the voice] Of conscience, of God, and of his prophets.

She received not correction] Did not profit by his chastisements; was uneasy and ill-tempered under her afflictions, and derived no manner of good from these chastisements.

She trusted not in the Lord] Did not consider him as the Fountain whence all help and salvation should come; and rather sought for support from man and herself, than from God.

She drew not near to her God.] Did not worship him; did not walk in his ways; did not make prayer and supplication to him.

Verse 3. Her princes—are roaring lions] Tearing all to pieces without shadow of law, except their own despotic power.

Her judges are evening wolves] Being a little afraid of the lion-like princes, they practise their unjust dealings from evening to morning, and take the day to find their rest.

They gnaw not the bones till the morrow.] They devour the flesh in the night, and gnaw the bones and extract the marrow afterwards. They use all violence and predatory oppression, like wild beasts; they shun the light, and turn day into night by their revellings.

Verse 4. Her prophets are light and treacherous persons] They have no seriousness, no deep conviction of the awful nature of their office, no concern for the immortal souls of the people. Treacherous persons—they betray the souls of the people for the sake of worldly honour, pleasure, and profit. Even in our own enlightened country we find prophets who prefer hunting the hare or the fox, and pursuing the partridge and pheasant, to visiting the sick, and going after the strayed, lost sheep of the house of Israel. Poor souls! They know neither God nor themselves; and if they did visit the sick, they could not speak to them to exhortation, edification, or comfort. God never called them to his work; therefore they know nothing of it. But O, what an account have these pleasure-taking false prophets to render to the Shepherd of souls!

They have done violence to the law.] They have forced wrong constructions on it in order to excuse themselves, and lull the people into spiritual slumber. So we find that it was an ancient practice for men to wrest the Scriptures to their own destruction.

Verse 5. The just Lord is in the midst thereof] He sees, marks down, and will punish all these wickednesses.

Every morning doth he bring his judgment to light] The sense is, says Bp. Newcome, "Not a day passes but we see instances of his goodness to righteous men, and of his vengeance on the wicked."

Verse 6. I have cut off the nations] Syria, Israel, and those referred to, Isa. xxxvi. 18, 20.—Newcome.

Verse 7. Surely thou wilt fear me] After so many displays of my sovereign power and judgments.

But they rose early] And instead of returning to God, they practised every abomination. They were diligent to find out times and places for their iniquity. This is the worst state of man.

Verse 8. Wait ye upon me] Expect the fulfilment of all my promises and threatenings: I am God, and change not.

For all the earth] All the land of Judah.

Verse 9. Will I turn to the people] This promise must refer to the conversion of the Jews under the Gospel.

That they may all call] That the whole nation may invoke God by Christ, and serve him with one consent; not one unbeliever being found among them.

The pure language, שפה ברורה saphah berurah, may here mean the form of religious worship. They had been before idolaters: now God promises to restore

A. M. cir. 3374. B. C. cir. 630. Olymp. cir. XXXVII. 3. A. U. C. cir. 124.

[v] language, that they may all call upon the name of the LORD, to serve him with one [w] consent.

10 [x] From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia my suppliants, even the daughter of my dispersed, shall bring mine offering.

11 In that day shalt thou not be ashamed for all thy doings, wherein thou hast transgressed against me: for then I will take away out of the midst of thee them that [y] rejoice in thy pride, and thou shalt no more be haughty [z] because of my holy mountain.

12 I will also leave in the midst of thee [a] an afflicted and poor people, and they shall trust in the name of the LORD.

13 [b] The remnant of Israel [c] shall not do iniquity, [d] nor speak lies; neither shall a deceitful tongue be found in their mouth: for [e] they shall feed and lie down, and none shall make them afraid.

A. M. cir. 3374. B. C. cir. 630. Olymp. cir. XXXVII. 3. A. U. C. cir. 124.

14 [f] Sing, O daughter of Zion: shout, O Israel; be glad and rejoice with all the heart, O daughter of Jerusalem.

15 The LORD hath taken away thy judgments he hath cast out thine enemy: [g] the King of Israel, even the LORD, [h] is in the midst of thee: thou shalt not see evil any more.

16 In that day [i] it shall be said to Jerusalem, Fear thou not: and to Zion, [k] Let not thine hand be [l] slack.

17 The LORD thy God [m] in the midst of thee

[v] Heb. lip.——[w] Heb. shoulder.——[x] Psa. lxviii. 31; Isa. xviii. 1, 7; lx. 4, &c.; Mal. i. 11; Acts viii. 27.——[y] Jer. vii. 4; Mic. iii. 11; Matt. iii. 9.——[z] Heb. in my holy.——[a] Isa. xiv. 32; Zech. xi. 11; Matt. v. 3; 1 Cor. i. 27, 28; James ii. 5. [b] Mic. iv. 7; chap. ii. 7.

[c] Isa. lx. 21.——[d] Isa. lxiii. 8; Rev. xiv. 5.——[e] Ezek. xxxiv. 28; Mic. iv. 4; vii. 14.——[f] Isa. xii. 6; liv. 1; Zech. ii. 10; ix. 9.——[g] John i. 49.——[h] Ver. 5, 17; Ezek. xlviii. 35; Rev. vii. 15; xxi. 3, 4.——[i] Isa. xxxv. 3, 4.——[k] Heb. xii. 12.——[l] Or, faint.——[m] Ver. 15.

his pure worship among them. The word has certainly this meaning in Psa. lxxxi. 6; where, as God is the speaker, the words should not be rendered, "I heard a language which I understood not;" but, "I heard a religious confession, which I approved not." See Isa. xix. 18; Hos. xiv. 3; and see Joel ii. 28, where a similar promise is found.

Verse 10. From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia] This may denote both Africa and the southern Arabia. Bochart thinks that Arabia Chusæ is meant; and that the rivers are Besor, which flows into the Mediterranean; Rhinocorura, which flows into the Lake Sirbonis; Trajanus Amnis, which flows into the Red Sea; and the river Corys. Calmet thinks that these rivers mean the Nile, which by seven mouths falls into the Mediterranean. The Nile comes from Ethiopia, properly so called; and runs through all Egypt, and falls into the sea at that part of Arabia which the Scripture calls Cush or Ethiopia.

My dispersed] The Jews, scattered through different parts of the world. Shall bring mine offering. Shall acknowledge my mercy in sending them the Messiah to bless them, by turning every one of them away from their iniquities.

Verse 11. Shalt thou not be ashamed] Thy punishment shall cease, for God shall pardon thy sin.

For then I will take away out of the midst of thee] The wicked Jewish priests and scribes who blasphemed Christ, and would not come under his yoke.

Because of my holy mountain.] Thou wilt no more boast in my temple, but become meek and lowly in following him who is meek and lowly in heart, that ye may obtain rest to your souls.

Verse 12. An afflicted and poor people] In such a state will the Jews be found when they shall hear the universal call, and believe in Christ Jesus. Indeed, this is the general state of the Jews in the present day; except a few that are called Jews, who are very rich; and who believe just as much in the God of Jacob, as they do in Jesus Christ.

Verse 13. The remnant of Israel shall not do iniquity] O what a change! And then, how different shall they be from their present selves! Iniquity, lying, and deceit shall not be found among them! A Jew once said to me, "Tere are shome of you Christians who are making wonderful efforts to convert the Tshews (Jews.) Ah, dere ish none but Gott Almighty dat can convert a Tshew." Truly I believe him. Only God can convert any man; and if there be a peculiar difficulty to convert any soul, that difficulty must lie in the conversion of the Jew.

Verse 14. Sing, O daughter of Zion] Here is not only a gracious prophetic promise of their restoration from captivity, but of their conversion to God through Christ.

Verse 15. The King of Israel, even the Lord, is in the midst of thee] They have never had a king since the death of Zedekiah, and never shall have one till they have the King Messiah to reign among them; and this promise refers to that event.

Verse 16. Fear thou not] Thou shalt have no more captivities nor national afflictions.

Let not thine hands be slack.] This may refer, first, to the rebuilding of the temple of God, after the return from Babylon; and, secondly, to their diligence and zeal in the Christian Church.

Verse 17. The Lord thy God] יהוה אלהיך Yehovah Elohecycha, "The self-existent and eternal Being, who is in covenant with you;" the character of God in reference to the Jews when standing in the nearest relation to them.

Is mighty] גבור gibbor, is the prevailing One, the all-conquering Hero. The character which is given to Christ, Isa. ix. 6: "His name shall be called אל גבור El gibbor, the prevailing Almighty God."

He will save] Deliver thee from all the power,

A. M. cir. 3374. B. C. cir. 630. Olymp. cir. XXXVII. 3. A. U. C. cir. 124.

is mighty; he will save, [n] he will rejoice over thee with joy; [o] he will rest in his love, he will joy over thee with singing.

18 I will gather them that [p] are sorrowful for the solemn assembly, who are of thee, to whom [q] the reproach of it was a burden.

19 Behold, at that time I will undo all that afflict thee: and I will save her that [r] halteth, and gather her that was driven out; and [s] I will get them praise and fame in every land [t] where they have been put to shame.

A. M. cir. 3374. B. C. cir. 630. Olymp. cir. XXXVII. 3. A. U. C. cir. 124.

20 At that time [u] will I bring you again, even in the time that I gather you: for I will make you a name and a praise among all people of the earth, when I turn back your captivity before your eyes, saith the LORD.

[n] Deut. xxx. 9; Isa. lxii. 5; lxv. 19; Jer. xxxii. 41.——[o] Heb. he will be silent.——[p] Lam. ii. 6.——[q] Heb. the burden upon it was reproach.

[r] Ezek. xxxiv. 16; Mic. iv. 6, 7.——[s] Heb. I will set them for a praise.——[t] Heb. of their shame.——[u] Isa. xi. 12; xxvii. 12; lvi. 8; Ezek. xxviii. 25; xxxiv. 13; xxxvii. 21; Amos ix. 14.

from all the guilt, and from all the pollution of thy sins; and when thus saved, "he will rejoice over thee with joy," with peculiar gladness. "He will rest in his love,"—he will renew his love. He will show the same love to you that he did of old to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

He will joy over thee with singing.] The conversion of the Jews will be a subject of peculiar delight and exultation to God himself! There will be a more than ordinary joy in heaven, when the Jews return to God through Christ. This event cannot be at a great distance; they are as wretched and as ungodly as they can well be. The arms of Christians are open to receive them; and all things are now ready!

Verse 18. I will gather—sorrowful] This may refer to those who, during the captivity, mourned for their former religious assemblies; and who were reproached by their enemies, because they could not enjoy their religious solemnities. See Psa. cxxxvii.: "By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down; yea, we wept, when we remembered Zion. For there they that carried us away captive required of us a song," &c. This very circumstance may be the reference here.

Verse 19. I will undo all that afflict thee] They who have persecuted you shall be punished for it. It shows much malignity and baseness of mind, to afflict or reproach those who are lying under the chastising hand of God. This was the conduct of the Edomites, Moabites, and Ammonites, when the Jews were in adversity; and how severely did the Lord punish them for it! And he gave this as the reason for the severity of the punishment.

The first clause here is translated thus by Abp. Newcome: "Behold I will work with thee for thy sake at that time." The original is obscure; and it may bear the above sense.

I will save her that halteth] See Micah iv. 6, where there is a parallel place.

And gather her that was driven out] By captivity. The reference may be to renewing the covenant with the Jews, who were considered as an unfaithful spouse divorced by her husband. I will bring her back to my house.

I will get them praise and fame in every land] They shall become a great, a good, and a useful people. And as they are now a proverb of reproach, full of base wiles and degrading selfishness, they shall lose this character, and be totally changed; and they shall be as eminent for excellence, as they were before for baseness, in those countries where they had sojourned.

Verse 20. At that time] First, when the seventy years of the Babylonish captivity shall terminate. "I will bring you again" to your own land; and this restoration shall be a type of their redemption from sin and iniquity; and at this time, and at this only, will they have a name and praise among all the people of the earth, not only among the Jews, but the Gentiles.

Before your eyes] Some read before THEIR eyes; that is, the eyes of all people. On their conversion to Christianity, they shall become as eminent as they ever were in the most illustrious days of their history Lord, hasten the conversion of Israel! Amen

THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET HAGGAI.

Chronological Notes relative to this book

Year from the Creation, according to Archbishop Usher, 3484.—Year of the Julian Period, 4194.—Year since the Flood, 1828.—Year from the vocation of Abram, 1301.—Year since the first celebration of the Olympic games in Elis by the Idæi Dactyli, 934.—Year since the foundation of the monarchy of the Israelites by the Divine appointment of Saul to the regal dignity, 576.—Year from the foundation of the temple, 492.—Year from the division of Solomon's monarchy into the kingdoms of Israel and Judah, 456.—Year since the re-establishment of the Olympic games at Elis by Lycurgus, Iphitus, and Cleosthenes, 365.—Year since the conquest of Corœbus at Olympia, usually called the first Olympiad, 257.—First year of the sixty-fifth Olympiad.—Year from the building of Rome, according to the Varronian or generally received computation, 234.—Year from the building of Rome, according to Cato and the Fasti Consulares, 233.—Year from the building of Rome, according to Polybius the historian, 232.—Year from the building of Rome, according to Fabius Pictor, 228.—Year of the era of Nabonassar, 228.—Year since the destruction of the kingdom of Israel by Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, 202.—Year since the destruction of the kingdom of Judah by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, 68.—Year since the destruction of the Chaldean empire by the Persians, 18.—Year before the birth of Christ, 516.—Year before the vulgar era of Christ's nativity, 520.—Cycle of the Sun, 22.—Cycle of the Moon, 14.—Second year of Darius I., king of Persia.—Twenty-eighth year of Amyntas, king of Macedon.—Seventh year of Demaratus, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Proclidæ.—Eleventh year of Cleomenes, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Eurysthenidæ.—Fifteenth year of Tarquinius Superbus, the last king of the Romans.—This was about twelve years before the abolition of the regal government of the Romans by the expulsion of the Tarquins.—Confucius, the celebrated Chinese philosopher, is supposed to have flourished about this time.

CHAPTER I.

The prophet reproves the people, and particularly their ruler and high priest, for negligence and delay in rebuilding the temple; and tells them that their neglect was the cause of their having been visited with unfruitful seasons, and other marks of the Divine displeasure, 1–11. He encourages them to set about the work, and on their doing so, promises that God will be with them, 12–15.

A. M. 3484. B. C. 520. Ol. LXV. 1. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 15.

IN [a] the second year of Darius the king, in the sixth month, in the first day of the month, came the word of the LORD [b] by Haggai the prophet unto [c] Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, [d] governor of Judah, and to [e] Joshua the son of Josedech, [f] the high priest, saying, A. M. 3484. B. C. 520. Ol. LXV. 1. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 15.

[a] Ezra iv. 24; v. 1; Zech. i. 1.——[b] Heb. by the hand of Haggai.——[c] 1 Chron. iii. 17, 19; Ezra iii. 2; Matt. i. 12; Luke iii. 27.——[d] Or, captain.——[e] Ezra iii. 2; v. 2.——[f] 1 Chron. vi. 15.

We know nothing of the parentage of Haggai. He was probably born in Babylon during the captivity, and appears to have been the first prophet sent to the Jews after their return to their own land. He was sent particularly to encourage the Jews to proceed with the building of the temple, which had been interrupted for about fourteen years. Cyrus, who had published an edict empowering the Jews to return to Jerusalem and rebuild their city and temple, revoked this edict in the second year of his reign, through the evil advice of his courtiers and other enemies of the Jews. After his death Cambyses renewed the prohibition; but after the death of Cambyses, Darius, the son of Hystaspes, renewed the permission;

A. M. 3484. B. C. 520. Ol. LXV. 1. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 15.

2 Thus speaketh the LORD of hosts, saying, This people say, The time is not come, the time that the LORD's house should be built.

3 Then came the word of the LORD [g] by Haggai the prophet, saying,

4 [h] Is it time for you, O ye, to dwell in your ceiled houses, and this house lie waste?

5 Now therefore thus saith the LORD of hosts; [i] Consider [k] your ways.

6 Ye have [l] sown much, and bring in little; ye eat, but ye have not enough; ye drink, but ye are not filled with drink; ye clothe you, but there is none warm; and [m] he that earneth wages, earneth wages to put it into a bag [m] with holes.

7 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; Consider your ways.

A. M. 3484. B. C. 520. Ol. XLV. 1. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 15

8 Go up to the mountain, and bring wood, and build the house; and I will take pleasure in it, and I will be glorified, saith the LORD.

9 [o] Ye looked for much, and, lo, it came to little; and when ye brought it home, [p] I did [q] blow upon it. Why? saith the LORD of hosts. Because of mine house that is waste, and ye run every man unto his own house.

10 Therefore [r] the heaven over you is stayed from dew, and the earth is stayed from her fruit.

11 And I [s] called for a drought upon the land, and upon the mountains, and upon the corn, and upon the new wine, and upon the oil, and upon that which the ground bringeth forth, and [g] Ezra. v. 1.——[h] 2 Sam. vii. 2; Psa. cxxxii. 3, &c.——[i] Set your heart on your ways.——[k] Lam. iii. 40; ver. 7.——[l] Deut. xxviii. 38; Hos. iv. 10; Mic. vi. 14, 15; chap. ii. 16.

[m] Zech. viii. 10.——[n] Heb. pierced through.——[o] Chap. ii. 16. [p] Chap. ii. 17.——[q] Or, blow it away.——[r] Lev. xxvi. 19; Deut. xxviii. 23; 1 Kings viii. 35.——[s] 1 Kings xvii. 1; 2 Kings viii. 1.

and Haggai was sent to encourage his countrymen to proceed with the work. Darius came to the throne about the year B. C. 521, and published his edict of permission for the Jews to rebuild the city and temple in the second year of his reign, which was the sixteenth of their return from Babylon.

NOTES ON CHAP. I.

Verse 1. In the sixth month] Called Elul by the Hebrews. It was the sixth month of the ecclesiastical year, and the last of the civil year, and answered to a part of our September.

Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel] Who was son of Jeconiah, king of Judah, and of the family of David, and exercised the post of a governor among the people, but not over them, for both he and they were under the Persian government; but they were permitted to have Zerubbabel for their own governor, and Joshua for their high priest; and these regulated all matters relative to their peculiar political and ecclesiastical government. But it appears from Ezra, v. 3, that Tatnai, the governor on this side the river, had them under his cognizance. None of their own governors was absolute. The Persians permitted them to live under their own laws and civil regulations; but they always considered them as a colony, over which they had a continual superintendence.

Joshua the son of Josedech] And son of Seraiah, who was high priest in the time of Zedekiah, and was carried into captivity by Nebuchadnezzar, 1 Chron. vi. 15. But Seraiah was slain at Riblah, by order of Nebuchadnezzar, 2 Kings xxv. 18–21.

Verse 2. The time is not come] They thought that the seventy years spoken of by Jeremiah were not yet completed, and it would be useless to attempt to rebuild until that period had arrived. But Abp. Usher has shown that from the commencement of the last siege of Jerusalem unto this time, precisely sixty-nine years had been completed.

Verse 4. Is it time for you] If the time be not come to rebuild the temple, it cannot be come for you to build yourselves comfortable houses: but ye are rebuilding your houses; why then do ye not rebuild the house of the Lord? The foundation of the temple had been laid fourteen years before, and some considerable progress made in the building; and it had been lying waste in that unfinished state to the present time.

Verse 5. Consider your ways] Is it fit that you should be building yourselves elegant houses, and neglect a place for the worship of that God who has restored you from captivity?

Verse 6. Ye have sown much] God will not bless you in any labour of your hands, unless you rebuild his temple and restore his worship. This verse contains a series of proverbs; no less than five in the compass of a few lines.

Verse 8. Go up to the mountain, and bring wood] Go to Lebanon, and get timber. In the second year of the return from the captivity, they had procured cedar trees from Lebanon, and brought them to Joppa, and had hired masons and carpenters from the Tyrians and Sidonians; but that labour had been nearly lost by the long suspension of the building. Ezra iii. 7.

Verse 9. Ye looked for much] Ye made great pretensions at first; but they are come to nothing. Ye did a little in the beginning; but so scantily and unwillingly that I could not but reject it.

Ye run every man unto his own house.] To rebuild and adorn it; and God's house is neglected!

Verse 10. Therefore the heaven over you is stayed from dew] It appears from the following verse that God had sent a drought upon the land, which threatened them with scarcity and famine.

A. M. 3484. B. C. 520. Ol. LXV. 1. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 15.

upon men, and upon cattle, and [t] upon all the labour of the hands.

12 [u] Then Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, and Joshua the son of Josedech, the high priest, with all the remnant of the people, obeyed the voice of the LORD their God, and the words of Haggai the prophet, as the LORD their God had sent him, and the people did fear before the LORD.

13 Then spake Haggai the LORD's messenger in the LORD's message unto the people, saying, [v] I am with you, saith the LORD.

A. M. 3484. B. C. 520. Ol. XLV. 1. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 15.

14 And [w] the LORD stirred up the spirit of Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, [x] governor of Judah, and the spirit of Joshua the son of Josedech, the high priest, and the spirit of all the remnant of the people: [y] and they came and did work in the house of the LORD of hosts, their God.

15 In the four and twentieth day of the sixth month, in the second year of Darius the king.

[t] Chap. ii. 17.——[u] Ezra v. 2.——[v] Matt. xxviii. 20; Romans viii. 31.

[w] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 22; Ezra i. 1.——[x] Chap. ii. 21.——[y] Ezra v. 2, 8.

Verse 12. Then Zerubbabel] The threatening of Haggai had its proper effect. The civil governor, the high priest, and the whole of the people, united together to do the work. When the authority of God is acknowledged, his words will be carefully obeyed.

Verse 13. Then spake Haggai] He was the Lord's messenger, and he came with the Lord's message, and consequently he came with authority. He is called מלאך יהוה malach Yehovah, the angel of Jehovah, just as the pastors of the seven Asiatic Churches are called ANGELS of the Churches, Rev. i. 2.

I am with you, saith the Lord.] Here was high encouragement. What may not a man do when God is his helper?

Verse 14. And the Lord stirred up the spirit] It is not only necessary that the judgment should be enlightened, but the soul must be invigorated by the Spirit of God, before any good work can be effectually done.

Verse 15. In the four and twentieth day] Haggai received his commission on the first day of this month; and by the twenty-fourth day he had so completely succeeded that he had the satisfaction to see the whole people engaged heartily in the Lord's work; they left their own houses to build that of the Lord. Here was a faithful reprover, and he found obedient ears; and the Lord's work was done, for the people had a mind to work.

CHAPTER II.

When this prophecy was uttered, about four years before the temple was finished, and sixty-eight after the former one was destroyed, it appears that some old men among the Jews were greatly dispirited on account of its being so much inferior in magnificence to that of Solomon. Compare Ezra iii. 12. To raise the spirits of the people, and encourage them to proceed with the work, the prophet assures them that the glory of the second temple should be greater than that of the first, alluding perhaps to the glorious doctrines which should be preached in it by Jesus Christ and his apostles, 1–9. He then shows the people that the oblations brought by their priests could not sanctify them while they were unclean by their neglect of the temple; and to convince them that the difficult times they had experienced during that neglect proceeded from this cause, he promises fruitful seasons from that day forward, 10–19. The concluding verses contain a prediction of the mighty revolutions that should take place by the setting up of the kingdom of Christ under the type of Zerubbabel, 20–23. As the time which elapsed between the date of the prophecy and the dreadful concussion of nations is termed in ver. 6, A LITTLE WHILE, the words may likewise have reference to some temporal revolutions then near, such as the commotions of Babylon in the reign of Darius, the Macedonian conquests in Persia, and the wars between the successors of Alexander; but the aspect of the prophecy is more directly to the amazing victories of the Romans, who, in the time of Haggai and Zechariah, were on the VERY EVE of their successful career, and in the lapse of a few centuries subjugated the whole habitable globe; and therefore, in a very good sense, God may be said by these people to have shaken "the heavens, and the earth, and the sea, and the dry land;" and thus to have prepared the way for the opening of the Gospel dispensation. See Heb. xii. 25–29. Others have referred this prophecy to the period of our Lord's second advent, to which there is no doubt it is also applicable; and when it will be in the most signal manner fulfilled. That the convulsion of the nations introducing this most stupendous event will be very great and terrible, is sufficiently plain from Isaiah xxxiv., xxxv., as well as from many other passages of holy writ.

A. M. 3484. B. C. 520. Ol. LXV. 1. Anno Tarquinii Superbi., R. Roman., 15.

IN the seventh month, in the one and twentieth day of the month, came the word of the LORD [a] by the prophet Haggai, saying,

2 Speak now to Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and to Joshua the son of Josedech, the high priest, and to the residue of the people, saying,

3 [b] Who is left among you that saw this house in her first glory? and how do ye see it now? [c] is it not in your eyes in comparison of it as nothing?

4 Yet now, [d] be strong, O Zerubbabel, saith the LORD; and be strong, O Joshua, son of Josedech, the high priest; and be strong, all ye people of the land, saith the LORD, and work: for I am with you, saith the LORD of hosts:

A. M. 3484. B. C. 520. Ol. LXV. 1. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 15.

5 [e] According to the word that I covenanted with you when ye came out of Egypt, so [f] my Spirit remaineth among you: [g] fear ye not.

6 For thus saith the LORD of hosts: [h] Yet once, it is a little while, and [i] I will shake the heavens, and the earth, and the sea, and the dry land;

7 And I will shake all nations, [k] and the Desire of all nations shall come; and I will fill this house with glory, saith the LORD of hosts.

[a] Heb. by the hand of.——[b] Ezra iii. 12.——[c] Zech. iv. 10. [d] Zech. viii. 9.——[e] Exod. xxix. 45, 46.

[f] Neh. ix. 20; Isa. lxiii. 11.——[g] Isa. vii. 4.——[h] Ver. 21; Heb. xii. 26.——[i] Joel iii. 16.——[k] Gen. xlix. 10; Mal. iii. 1.

NOTES ON CHAP. II.

Verse 1. In the seventh month] This was a new message, and intended to prevent discouragement, and excite them to greater diligence in their work.

Verse 3. Who is left among you that saw this house in her first glory?] Who of you has seen the temple built by Solomon? The foundation of the present house had been laid about fifty-three years after the destruction of the temple built by Solomon; and though this prophecy was uttered fifteen years after the foundation of this second temple, yet there might still survive some of those who had seen the temple of Solomon.

Is it not in your eyes] Most certainly the Jews at this time had neither men nor means to make any such splendid building as that erected by Solomon. The present was as nothing when compared with the former.

Verse 4. Yet now be strong] Do not let this discourage you. The chief glory of the temple is not its splendid building, but my presence; and as I covenanted to be with you when ye came out of Egypt, so I will fulfil my covenant; for my Spirit remaineth among you, fear not; ver. 5. What is the most splendid cathedral, if God be not in it, influencing all by his presence and Spirit? But he will not be in it unless there be a messenger of the Lord there, and unless he deliver the Lord's message.

Verse 6. Yet once, it is a little while, and I will shake the heavens] When the law was given on Mount Sinai, there was an earthquake that shook the whole mountain, Exod. xix. 18. "The political or religious revolutions which were to be effected in the world, or both, are here," says Abp. Newcome, "referred to; compare ver. 21, 22; Matt. xxiv. 29; Heb. xii. 26–28. The political ones began in the overthrow of the Persian monarchy by Alexander, within two centuries after this prediction; and if the Messiah's kingdom be meant, which is my opinion, this was erected in somewhat more than five centuries after the second year of Darius; a short period of time when compared with that which elapsed from the creation to the giving of the law, or from the giving of the law to the coming of the Messiah's kingdom. It must be understood that the word אחת achath, once, has a clear sense, if understood of the evangelical age; for many political revolutions succeeded, as the conquest of Darius Codomanus, and the various fortunes of Alexander's successors; but only one great and final religious revolution."—Newcome.

Verse 7. And the Desire of all nations shall come] The present Hebrew text is as follows: ובאו חמדת כל הגוים. This is a difficult place if understood of a person: but חמדת chemdath, desire, cannot well agree with באו bau, they shall come. It is true that some learned men suppose that חמדות chemdoth, desirable things, may have been the original reading: but this is supported by no MS., nor is באו found in the singular number in any. It is generally understood of the desirable or valuable things which the different nations should bring into the temple; and it is certain that many rich presents were brought into this temple. All are puzzled with it. But the principal difficulty lies in the verb ובאו ubau, they shall come. If we found ובאה חמדת ubaa chemdath in the singular, then it would read as in our text, And the Desire of all nations shall come: but no such reading appears in any MS.; nor is it fairly acknowledged, except by the Vulgate, which reads, Et veniet desideratus cunctis gentibus, "And that which is desired," or the desired Person, "shall come to all nations." In ver. 7 God says he will shake or stir up all nations; that these nations shall bring their desirable things; that the house shall be filled with God's glory; that the silver and gold, which these nations are represented as bringing by way of gifts, are the Lord's; and that the glory of this latter house shall exceed the former. Bp. Chandler labours to vindicate the present translation; but he makes rash assertions, and is abandoned by the Hebrew text. The בא ba, to come, is often used in the sense of bring, and that חמדת chemdath, desire, may be considered as the plural for חמדות, having the point holem instead of the ו vau, and thus mean desirable things, will not be de

A. M. 3484. B. C. 520. Ol. LXV. 1. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 15.

8 The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, saith the LORD of hosts.

9 [l] The glory of this latter house shall be greater than of the former, saith the LORD of hosts: and in this place will I give [m] peace, saith the LORD of hosts.

10 In the four and twentieth day of the ninth month, in the second year of Darius, came the word of the LORD by Haggai the prophet, saying,

11 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; [n] Ask now the priests concerning the law, saying,

12 If one bear holy flesh in the skirt of his garment, and with his skirt do touch bread, or pottage, or wine, or oil, or any meat, shall it be holy? And the priests answered and said, No.

13 Then said Haggai, If one that is [o] unclean by a dead body touch any of these, shall it be unclean? And the priests answered and said, It shall be unclean.

A. M. 3484. B. C. 520. Ol. LXV. 1 Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 15

14 Then answered Haggai, and said, [p] So is this people, and so is this nation before me, saith the LORD; and so is every work of their hands; and that which they offer there is unclean.

15 And now, I pray you, [q] consider from this day and upward, from before a stone was laid upon a stone in the temple of the LORD:

16 Since those days were, [r] when one came to a heap of twenty measures, there were but ten: when one came to the press-fat for to draw out fifty vessels out of the press, there were but twenty.

17 [s] I smote you with blasting and with mildew and with hail [t] in all the labours of your hands; [u] yet ye turned not to me, saith the LORD.

---

[l] John i. 14.——[m] Psa. lxxxv. 8, 9; Luke ii. 14; Eph. ii. 14. [n] Lev. x. 10, 11; Deut. xxxiii. 10; Mal. ii. 7.——[o] Num. xix. 11. [p] Titus i. 15.

[q] Chap. i. 5.——[r] Chap. i. 6, 9; Zech. viii. 10.——[s] Deut. xxviii. 22; 1 Kings viii. 37; chap. i. 9; Amos iv. 9.——[t] Chap i. 11.——[u] Jer. v. 3; Amos iv. 6, 8, 9, 10, 11.

---

nied by those who are acquainted with the genius and construction of the Hebrew language. Bp. Chandler thinks that בא, he came, cannot be used of things, but of persons only. Here he is widely mistaken, for it is used of days perpetually; and of the ark, 2 Sam. vi. 9; and of mounts coming against Jerusalem, Jer. xxxii. 24; and of trees coming to adorn the temple, Isa. lx. 13; and of silver and gold coming into the temple, Josh. vi. 19; and Jer. vi. 20, Why doth incense come to me? See Abp. Secker's notes. I cannot see how the words can apply to Jesus Christ, even if the construction were less embarrassed than it is; because I cannot see how he could be called THE DESIRE OF ALL NATIONS. The whole seems to be a metaphorical description of the Church of Christ, and of his filling it with all the excellences of the Gentile world, when the fulness of the Gentiles shall be brought in.

Verse 9. And in this place will I give peace] שלום shalom, a peace-offering, as well as peace itself; or Jesus Christ, who is called the Prince of peace, through whom peace is proclaimed between God and man, between man and his fellows; and through whom peace is established in the disconsolate soul. And at this temple this peace was first promulgated and proclaimed.

But it is said that the glory of this latter house shall be greater than of the former. Now this cannot be said because Jesus Christ made his personal appearance in that temple, or rather in that built by Herod; for, though we allow that Jesus Christ is equal with God, we do not grant that he is greater. Now the first temple was the dwelling-place of God: here he manifested his glory between the cherubim, and it was his constant residence for more than four hundred years. But the glory of this latter house was greater because under it the grand scheme of human salvation was exhibited, and the redemption price paid down for a lost world. As all probably applies to the Christian Church, the real house of God, its glory was most certainly greater than any glory which was ever possessed by that of the Jews. See on ver. 22, 23.

Verse 10. In the four and twentieth day of the ninth month] Three months after they had begun to rebuild the temple, Haggai is ordered to go and put two questions to the priests. 1. If one bear holy flesh in the skirt of his garment, and he touch any thing with his skirt, is that thing made holy? The priests answered, No! ver. 12. 2. If one has touched a dead body, and thereby become unclean, does he communicate his uncleanness to whatever he may touch? And the priests answered, YES! ver. 13.

Verse 14. Then answered Haggai—So is this people] As an unclean man communicates his uncleanness to every thing he touches, so are ye unclean; and whatever ye have hitherto done is polluted in the sight of God. For your neglect of my temple has made you unclean, as if you had contracted legal pollution by touching a dead body.

Verse 16. Since those days were] I have shown my displeasure against you, by sending blasting and mildew; and so poor have been your crops that a heap of corn which should have produced twenty measures produced only ten; and that quantity of grapes which in other years would have produced fifty measures, through their poverty, smallness, &c., produced only twenty. And this has been the case ever since the first stone was laid in this temple; for your hearts

A. M. 3484. B. C. 520. Ol. LXV. 1. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 15.

18 Consider now from this day and upward, from the four and twentieth day of the ninth month, even from [v] the day that the foundation of the LORD's temple was laid, consider it.

19 [w] Is the seed yet in the barn? yea, as yet the vine, and the fig tree, and the pomegranate, and the olive tree, hath not brought forth: from this day will I bless you.

20 And again the word of the LORD came unto Haggai, in the four and twentieth day of the month, saying,

21 Speak to Zerubbabel, [x] governor of Judah, saying, [y] I will shake the heavens and the earth;

A. M. 3484. B. C. 520. Ol. LXV. 1. Anno Tarquinii Superbi., R. Roman., 15.

22 And [z] I will overthrow the throne of kingdoms, and I will destroy the strength of the kingdoms of the heathen; and [a] I will overthrow the chariots, and those that ride in them; and the horses and their riders shall come down, every one by the sword of his brother.

23 In that day, saith the LORD of hosts will I take thee, O Zerubbabel, my servant, the son of Shealtiel, saith the LORD, [b] and will make thee as a signet: for [c] I have chosen thee, saith the LORD of hosts.

[v] Zech. viii. 9.——[w] Zech. viii. 12.——[x] Chap. i. 14.——[y] Ver. 6, 7; Heb. xii. 26.——[z] Dan. ii. 44; Matt. xxiv. 7.

[a] Mic. v. 10; Zech. iv. 6; ix. 10.——[b] Cant. viii. 6; Jer. xxii. 24; Ecclus. xlix. 11.——[c] Isa. xlii. 1; xliii. 10.

were not right with me, and therefore I blasted you in all the labours of your hands; and yet ye have not turned to me, ver. 17.

Verse 18. Consider now from this day] I will now change my conduct towards you: from this day that ye have begun heartily to rebuild my temple, and restore my worship, I will bless you. Whatever you sow, whatever you plant, shall be blessed; your land shall be fruitful, and ye shall have abundant crops of all sorts.

Verse 20. Again the word of the Lord came] This was a second communication in the same day.

Verse 21. I will shake the heavens and the earth] Calmet supposes that the invasion of Cambyses, and his death, are what the prophet has in view by this shaking of the heavens and the earth: but this invasion and defeat happened three years before they had begun to work at the temple; and how could it be made a matter of interest to Zerubbabel? Calmet answers this, by translating the words in the past tense; and shows that the fact was recalled to Zerubbabel's attention, to fix his confidence in God, &c. Bp. Newcome says we may well understand this and the twenty-second verse of the calamity undergone by Babylon in the reign of Darius; of the Macedonian conquests in Persia; and of the wars which the successors of Alexander waged against each other: others understand it of the Romans.

Verse 23. In that day, saith the Lord] Some think, says this same learned writer, that Zerubbabel is put here for his people and posterity: but it may well be said that the commotions foretold began in the rebellion of Babylon, which Darius besieged and took; and exercised great cruelties upon its inhabitants.—Herod. lib. iii., sec. 220. Justin. i. 10. Prideaux places this event in the fifth year of Darius; others, with more probability, in the eighth year. Compare Zech. ii. 9.

And will make thee as a signet] I will exalt thee to high dignity, power, and trust, of which the seal was the instrument or sign in those days. Thou shalt be under my peculiar care, and shalt be to me very precious. See Jer. xxii. 24; Cant. viii. 6; and see the notes on these two places.

For I have chosen thee] He had an important and difficult work to do, and it was necessary that he should be assured of God's especial care and protection during the whole.

ON the three last verses of this prophecy a sensible and pious correspondent sends me the following illustration, which I cheerfully insert. Though in many respects different from that given above, yet I believe that the kingdom of Christ is particularly designed in this prophecy.

"I think there is an apparent difficulty in this passage, because the wars of the Persians and Babylonians were not so interesting to the rising commonwealth of the Jews as many subsequent events of less note in the world, but which were more directly levelled at their own national prosperity; and yet neither the one nor the other could be termed 'a shaking of the heavens and the earth, and an overthrow of the throne of kingdoms.'

"I know not if the following view may be admitted as an explanation of this difficult passage. I take 'the shaking of the heavens and earth' here (as in ver. 6) to have a more distant and comprehensive meaning than can belong to Zerubbabel's time, or to his immediate posterity; and that it extends not only to the overthrow of kingdoms then existing, but of the future great monarchies of the world; and not excepting even the civil and ecclesiastical establishments of the Jews themselves. For I take 'the heavens,' in the prophetic language, uniformly to denote the true Church, and never the superstitions and idols of the nations.

"What, then, are we to understand by the promise made to Zerubbabel, 'I will make thee as a signet!' In the first place, the restitution of the religious and civil polity of the people of Israel, conformably to the promises afterwards given in the four first chapters of Zechariah. And, secondly, as the royal signet is the instrument by which kings give validity to laws, and thereby unity and consistence to their empire; so Jehovah, the God and King of Israel, condescends to promise he will employ Zerubbabel as his instrument of gathering and uniting the people again as a distinguished nation; and that such should be the permanency of their political existence, that, whilst other nations and mighty empires should be overthrown, and their very name blotted out under heaven, the Jews should ever remain a distinct people, even in the wreck of their own government, and the loss of all which rendered their religion splendid and attractive.

"In confirmation of this interpretation, I would refer to the threatening denounced against Jeconiah, (called Coniah, Jer. xxii.,) the last reigning king of Judah, and the progenitor of Zerubbabel. I apprehend I may be authorized to read Jer. xxii. 24 thus: 'As I live, saith the Lord, though Coniah, the son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, be the signet upon my right hand, yet will I pluck thee thence, and I will give thee into the hand of them that seek thy life,' &c.

"If it be considered that the kings of Judah were in an especial and peculiar manner the delegates of Jehovah, governing in his name and by his authority, a peculiar propriety will appear in their being resembled to signets, or royal seals contained in rings. Compare Gen. xli. 42; Esth. iii. 10, 12, viii. 2, 8; Dan. vi. 7. And the promise to Zerubbabel will be equivalent to those which clearly predict the preservation of the Jewish people by the Divine command, see Zech. ii.; and the faithfulness of God to his covenant concerning the Messiah, who should be born of the seed of Abraham, and in the family of David, of whose throne he was the rightful Proprietor.

"According to this view, by the promise, 'In that day—I will make thee as a signet,' &c., must be understood, that the preservation of the Jews as a distinct people, when all the great empires of the heathen were overthrown, would manifest the honour now conferred on Zerubbabel as the instrument of their restoration after the Babylonish captivity. Thus the promise to Abraham, Gen. xii., 'I will make of thee a great nation—and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed,' evidently referred to a very distant future period; and the honour connected with it could not be enjoyed by Abraham during his mortal life."

M. A. B.

I think, however, that we have lived to see the spirit of this propheey fulfilled. The earth has been shaken; another shaking, and time shall be swallowed up in eternity.

INTRODUCTION TO THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET ZECHARIAH.

ZECHARIAH, the eleventh of the twelve minor prophets, was son of Berechiah, and grandson of Iddo. He returned from Babylon with Zerubbabel : and began to prophesy in the second year of the reign of Darius, son of Hystaspes, in the year of the world 3484 ; before Christ, 516 ; before the vulgar era, 520 ; in the eighth month of the holy year ; and two months after Haggai had begun to prophesy.

These two prophets, with united zeal, encouraged at the same time the people to go on with the work of the temple, which had been discontinued for some years.

The time and place of the birth of Zechariah are unknown. Some will have him to have been born at Babylon, during the captivity ; others think he was born at Jerusalem, before the tribes of Judah and Benjamin were carried away. Some maintain that he was a priest ; but others affirm that he was no priest. Many say he was the immediate son of Iddo ; others believe, with much more reason, that he was son of Berechiah, and grandson of Iddo.

He has been confounded with one Zechariah, the son of Barachiah, who lived in the time of Isaiah ; and with Zachariah, the father of John the Baptist ; which opinion is plainly incongruous. Lastly, he has been thought to be Zechariah the son of Barachiah, whom our Saviour mentions, and says he was killed between the temple and the altar ; though no such thing is anywhere said of our prophet. A tomb is shown to this day at the foot of the Mount of Olives, which, it is pretended, belongs to the prophet Zechariah. Dorotheus maintains that he was buried in a place called Bethariah, one hundred and fifty furlongs from Jerusalem.

Zechariah is the longest and the most obscure of all the twelve minor prophets. His style is interrupted, and without connection. His prophecies concerning the Messiah are more particular and express than those of the other prophets. Some modern critics, as Mede and Hammond, have been of opinion that the ninth, tenth, and eleventh chapters of this prophet were written by Jeremiah ; because in Matthew, chap. xxvii. 9, 10, under the name of Jeremiah, we find quoted Zechariah ; (chap. xi. 12 ;) and as the aforesaid chapters make but one continued discourse, they concluded from thence that all three belonged to Jeremiah. But it is much more natural to suppose that, by some unlucky mistake, the name of Jeremiah has slipped into the text of St. Matthew instead of that of Zechariah.

The prophet Zechariah exactly foretold the siege of Babylon by Darius, son of Hystaspes. This prince laid siege to that rebellious city at the beginning of the fifth year of his reign, and reduced it at the end of twenty months. The prophets Isaiah and Jeremiah had foretold this calamity, and had admonished the Jews that inhabited there to make their escape when they perceived the time draw nigh. Isaiah says to them, " Go ye forth to Babylon, flee from the Chaldeans ; with a voice of singing declare ye, tell this, utter it even to the end of the earth ; say ye, The Lord hath redeemed his servant Jacob." And Jeremiah says, " Remove out of the midst of Babylon, and go forth out of the land of the Chaldeans, and be as the he-goats before the flocks." And elsewhere, " Flee out of the midst of Babylon, and deliver every man his soul; be not cut off in her iniquity: for this is the time of the Lord's vengeance, He will render unto her a recompense." Lastly, Zechariah, a little before the time of her fall, writes thus to the Jews that were still in this city: "Ho, ho, come forth, and flee from the land of the north, saith the Lord; for I have spread you abroad as the four winds of heaven, saith the Lord. Deliver thyself, O Zion, that dwellest with the daughter of Babylon. For thus saith the Lord of hosts, after the glory hath he sent me unto the nations which spoiled you, for he that toucheth you, toucheth the apple of his eye. For, behold, I will shake mine hand upon them, and they shall be a spoil to their servants; and ye shall know that the Lord of hosts hath sent me."

It is probable that the Jews took advantage of these admonitions, and returned from Babylon into their country; or, at least, withdrew into a place of more security till the city was taken. We do not hear, either from the history or the prophecies, that they suffered any thing by this siege, or that Darius, son of Hystaspes, bore them any grudge for the revolt of Babylon; which seems to indicate that they had no part in it.

The Mohammedans do not distinguish between the prophet Zechariah, and Zachariah the father of John the Baptist. Some of them make him to be descended from David; and others, from Levi. By an anachronism that is still more insupportable, these confound Mary, the mother of Jesus Christ, with Mary or Miriam, the sister of Moses, which they derive even from the Koran itself.

The author of Tarik Montekhib relates that, when Jesus Christ was born of the virgin, the prophet Zechariah could not believe that a child could be born without a father; and that, declaring his sentiments upon this point, the Jews entertained a suspicion of him, and obliged him to betake himself to flight. He withdrew; and hid himself in a hollow oak, which the Jews sawed in two.

Such is the ignorance of the Mussulmans as regards the history both of the Old and New Testaments.

THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET ZECHARIAH.

Chronological Notes relative to this Book.

Year from the Creation, according to Archbishop Usher, 3484.—Year of the Julian Period, 4194.—Year of the Jewish era of the world, 3241.—Year from the Flood, 1828.—Year from the vocation of Abram, 1401.—Year since the first celebration of the Olympic games in Elis, by the Idæi Dactyli, 934.—Year since the destruction of Troy, according to the general account, 664.—Year since the foundation of the monarchy of the Israelites by the Divine appointment of Saul to the regal dignity, 576.—Year from the foundation of Solomon's temple, 492.—Year from the division of Solomon's monarchy into the kingdoms of Israel and Judah, 456.—Year since the re-establishment of the Olympic games in Elis by Lycurgus, Iphitus, and Cleosthenes, 365.—Year since the conquest of Corœbus at Olympia, usually called the first Olympiad, 257.—First year of the sixty-fifth Olympiad.—Year from the building of Rome, according to the Varronian or generally received computation, 234.—Year from the building of Rome, according to Cato and the Fasti Consulares, 233.—Year from the building of Rome, according to Polybius the historian, 232.—Year from the building of Rome, according to Fabius Pictor, 228.—Year of the era of Nabonassar, 228.—Year since the destruction of the kingdom of Israel by Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, 202.—Year since the destruction of the kingdom of Judah by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, 68.—Year since the destruction of the Chaldean empire by the Persians, 18.—Year before the birth of Christ, 516.—Year before the vulgar era of Christ's nativity, 520.—Cycle of the Sun, 22.—Cycle of the Moon, 14.—Second year of Darius I., king of Persia.—Twenty-eighth year of Amyntas, king of Macedon.—Seventh year of Demaratus, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Proclidæ.—Eleventh year of Cleomenes, king of Lacedæmon, of the family of the Eurysthenidæ.—Fifteenth year of Tarquinius Superbus, the last king of the Romans.—This was about twelve years before the commencement of the consular government. According to some chronologers this was the age of Confucius.

CHAPTER I.

The prophet earnestly exhorts the people to repentance, that they may escape such punishments as had been inflicted on their fathers, 1–6. The vision of the horses, with the signification, 7–11. The angel of the Lord successfully intercedes in behalf of Jerusalem, 12–17. The vision of the four horns, and of the four carpenters, 18–21.

A. M. 3484. B. C. 520. Ol. LXV. 1. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 15.

IN the eighth month, [a] in the second year of Darius, came the word of the LORD [b] unto Zechariah, the son of Berechiah, the son of Iddo the prophet, saying,

2 The LORD hath been [c] sore displeased with your fathers.

A. M. 3484. B. C. 520. Ol. LXV. 1. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 15.

3 Therefore say thou unto them, Thus saith the LORD of hosts; Turn [d] ye unto me, saith the LORD of [a] Ezra iv. 24; Hag. i. 1.—[b] Ezra v. 1; Matt. xxiii. 35. [c] Heb. with displeasure.

[d] Jer. xxv. 5; xxxv. 15; Mic. vii. 19; Mal. iii. 7; Luke xv. 20, James iv. 8.

NOTES ON CHAP. I.

Verse 1. In the eighth month, in the second year of Darius] This was Darius Hystaspes; and from this date we find that Zechariah began to prophecy just two months after Haggai.

Son of Iddo] There are a number of various readings on this name, עִדּוֹ Iddo, and עִדּוֹא Iddo, both in MSS. and in editions; but they are only different ways of writing the same name.

Verse 2. The Lord hath been sore displeased with your fathers.] For their ingratitude, idolatry, iniquity, and general rebellion.

Verse 3. Turn ye unto me] This shows that they had power to return, if they would but use it.

A. M. 3481. B. C. 520. Ol. LXV. 1. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 15.

hosts, and I will turn unto you, saith the LORD of hosts.

4 Be ye not as your fathers, [e] unto whom the former prophets have cried, saying, Thus saith the LORD of hosts; [f] Turn ye now from your evil ways, and from your evil doings: but they did not hear, nor hearken unto me, saith the LORD.

5 Your fathers, where are they? and the prophets, do they live for ever?

6 But [g] my words and my statutes, which I commanded my servants the prophets, did they not [h] take hold of your fathers? and they returned and said, [i] Like as the LORD of hosts thought to do unto us, according to our ways, and according to our doings, so hath he dealt with us.

7 Upon the four and twentieth day of the eleventh month, which is the month Sebat, in the second year of Darius, came the word of the LORD unto Zechariah, the son of Berechiah, the son of Iddo the prophet, saying,

A. M. 3484. B. C. 520. Ol. LXV. 1. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 15.

8 I saw by night, and behold [k] a man riding upon a red horse, and he stood among the myrtle trees that were in the bottom; and behind him were there [l] red horses, [m] speckled, and white.

9 Then said I, O my lord, what are these? And the angel that talked with me said unto me, I will show thee what these be

10 And the man that stood among the myrtle trees, answered and said, [n] These are they whom the LORD hath sent to walk to and fro through the earth.

11 [o] And they answered the angel of the LORD that stood among the myrtle trees, and said, We have walked to and fro through the earth, and, behold, all the earth sitteth still, and is at rest.

12 Then the angel of the LORD answered and said, [p] O LORD of hosts, how long wilt thou not have mercy on Jerusalem, and on the cities of Judah, against which thou hast had indignation [q] these threescore and ten years?

[e] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 15, 16.——[f] Isa. xxxi. 6; Jer. iii. 12; xviii. 11; Ezek. xviii. 30; Hos. xiv. 1.——[g] Isa. lv. 1.——[h] Or, overtake.——[i] Lam. i. 18; ii. 17.

[k] Josh. v. 13; Rev. vi. 4.——[l] Chap. vi. 2-7.——[m] Or, bay. [n] Heb. i. 14.——[o] Psa. ciii. 20, 21.——[p] Psa. cii. 13; Rev. vi. 10. [q] Jer. xxv. 11, 12; Dan. ix. 2; chap. vii. 5.

And I will turn unto you] I will show you mercy and grant you salvation, if you will use the grace I have already given you. Men are lost, because they turn not unto God; but no man is lost because he had not power to return. God gives this, and he will require it.

Verse 5. Your fathers, where are they?] Israel has been destroyed and ruined in the bloody wars with the Assyrians; and Judah, in those with the Chaldeans.

The prophets, do they live for ever?] They also, who spoke unto your fathers, are dead; but their predictions remain; and the events, which have taken place according to those predictions, prove that God sent them.

Verse 6. Did they not take hold of your fathers?] Every thing happened according to the predictions, and they were obliged to acknowledge this; and yet they would not turn from their evil way.

Verse 7. Upon the four and twentieth day of the eleventh month] This revelation was given about three months after the former, and two months after they had recommenced the building of the temple.

Sebat] Answers to a part of our February. See Hag. ii. 18.

Verse 8. I saw by night] The time was emblematical of the affliction under which the Jews groaned.

A man] An angel in the form of a man: supposed to have been the Lord Jesus; who seems to have appeared often in this way, as a prelude to his incarnation; see Josh. v. 13; Ezek. i. 26; Dan. vii. 13, and x. 5. The same, probably, that appeared to Joshua with a drawn sword, as the captain of the Lord's host. Josh. v. 13–15.

A red horse] An emblem of war and bloodshed.

Among the myrtle trees] This tree was an emblem of peace; intimating that all war was shortly to end. But some think these trees are emblematical of the true followers of Christ.

And behind him were there red horses] Probably pointing out the different orders of angels in the heavenly host, which are employed by Christ in the defence of his Church. The different colours may point out the gradations in power, authority, and excellence, of the angelic natures which are employed between Christ and men.

Verse 9. O my lord, what are these?] The angel here mentioned was distinct from those mentioned in the eighth verse; he who talked with the prophet, ver. 13.

Verse 10. The man that stood among the myrtle trees] The Angel of the Covenant, as above, ver. 11.

Whom the Lord hath sent] Who are constituted guardians of the land.

Verse 11. All the earth sitteth still, and is at rest.] There is general peace through the Persian empire, and other states connected with Judea; but the Jews are still in affliction; their city is not yet restored, nor their temple built.

Verse 12. Then the angel of the Lord] He who was among the myrtles—the Lord Jesus.

O Lord of hosts, how long] Jesus Christ was not only the "Lamb slain from the foundation of the world," but was always the sole Mediator and Intercessor between God and man.

These threescore and ten years?] This cannot mean the duration of the captivity, for that was nearly

A. M. 3484. B. C. 520. Ol. LXV. 1. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 15.

13 And the LORD answered the angel that talked with me with [r] good words, and comfortable words.

14 So the angel that communed with me said unto me, Cry thou, saying, Thus saith the LORD of hosts; I am [s] jealous for Jerusalem and for Zion with a great jealousy.

15 And I am very sore displeased with the heathen that are at ease: for [t] I was but a little displeased, and they helped forward the affliction.

16 Therefore thus saith the LORD; [u] I am returned to Jerusalem with mercies: my house shall be built in it, saith the LORD of hosts, and [v] a line shall be stretched forth upon Jerusalem.

17 Cry yet, saying, Thus saith the LORD of hosts; My cities through [w] prosperity shall yet be spread abroad; [x] and the LORD shall yet comfort Zion, and [y] shall yet choose Jerusalem.

A. M. 3484. B. C. 520. Ol. LXV. 1. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 15.

18 Then lifted I up mine eyes, and saw, and behold four horns.

19 And I said unto the angel that talked with me, What be these? And he answered me, [z] These are the horns which have scattered Judah, Israel, and Jerusalem.

20 And the LORD showed me four carpenters.

21 Then said I, What come these to do? And he spake, saying, These are the horns which have scattered Judah, so that no man did lift up his head: but these are come to fray them, to cast out the horns of the Gentiles, which [a] lifted up their horn over the land of Judah to scatter it.

[r] Jer. xxix. 10.——[s] Joel viii. 18; chap. viii. 2.——[t] Isa. xlvii. 6.——[u] Isa. xii. 1; chap. ii. 10; viii. 3.——[v] Chap. ii. 1, 2.

[w] Heb. good.——[x] Isa. li. 3.——[y] Isa. xiv. 1; chap. ii. 12; iii 2.——[z] Ezra. iv. 1, 4, 7; v. 3.——[a] Psa. lxxv. 4, 5.

twenty years past. It must mean simply the time that had elapsed from the destruction of the temple to the time in which the angel spoke. As the temple was destroyed in the nineteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar, and this vision took place in the second year of Darius, the term of seventy years was completed, or nearly so, between these two periods.

Verse 13. The Lord answered the angel] And the angel told the prophet that the answer was gracious and comfortable. This answer is given in the next verse.

Verse 14. I am jealous for Jerusalem] I have for them a strong affection; and indignation against their enemies.

Verse 15. I was but a little displeased] I was justly displeased with my people, and I gave their enemies a commission against them; but they carried this far beyond my design by oppression and cruelty; and now they shall suffer in their turn.

Verse 16. I am returned to Jerusalem with mercies] Before, he came to them in judgments; and the principal mercy is, the house of the Lord shall be rebuilt, and the ordinances of the Lord re-established.

And a line shall be stretched forth] The circuit shall be determined, and the city built according to the line marked out.

Verse 17. My cities—shall yet be spread abroad] The whole land of Judea shall be inhabited, and the ruined cities restored.

Verse 18. And behold four horns.] Denoting four vowers by which the Jews had been oppressed; the Assyrians, Persians, Chaldeans, and Egyptians. Or these enemies may be termed four, in reference to the four cardinal points of the heavens, whence they came:—

1. NORTH. The Assyrians and Babylonians.
2. EAST. The Moabites and Ammonites.
3. SOUTH The Egyptians.
4. WEST. The Philistines. See Martin.

Verse 20. Four carpenters.] Four other powers, who should defeat the powers intended by the horns. These are the same as the four chariots mentioned chap. vi. 1, 2, 3, 6, 7. The first was NABOPOLASSAR, father of Nebuchadnezzar, who overturned the empire of the Assyrians. The second was CYRUS, who destroyed the empire of the Chaldeans. The third was ALEXANDER the Great, who destroyed the empire of the Persians. And the fourth was PTOLEMY, who rendered himself master of Egypt. Some of these had already been cast down; the rest were to follow. Calmet gives this interpretation, and vindicates it at length.

Verse 21. These are come to fray them] To break, pound, and reduce them to powder. Fray, from the French, frayer, to rub. חרשים charashim signifies either carpenters or smiths; probably the latter are here intended, who came with hammers, files, and such like, to destroy these horns, which no doubt seemed to be of iron.

From a sensible correspondent I have received the following note:—

"The word we translate carpenters, חרשים charashim, is a root which, according to Mr. Parkhurst, denotes silent thought or attention; and in kal and hiphil, to contrive, devise secretly, or in silence; hence applied as a noun to an artificer of any kind, and to any work which disposes to silent attention. Thus, to potters' ware, Lev. vi. 28; Job ii. 8; and in many other places. So also to ploughing, Deut. xxii. 10; Prov. xx. 4, which requires constant attention to make 'the right-lined furrow.' Let it be remembered that in ancient times such works were more esteemed than the useless ones we have learned to admire. So again, in Gen. xxiv. 21, and elsewhere, it implies to be silent, as in deep thought or great attention.

"Now it is evident that the purport of this vision is the same with the gracious declarations which precede it, viz., to express the return of the protecting mercies of God to his people, delivering them from their enemies. I should therefore be inclined to render חרשים charashim here, watchers or inspectors, in the sense which our translators have rendered the Chaldee עיר ir, a watcher, in the fourth chapter of Daniel, ver. 13; understanding thereby 'spirits of the heavens, which go forth from standing before the Lord of all the earth,' Zech. vi. 5, and are described in the first vision as 'sent to walk to and fro through the earth.' This gives to the whole narrative a sublime and important sense, affording us some glimpse of the Divine government by the ministration of angels, such as Jacob was favoured with in his vision at Beth-el, and which our Saviour himself informed Nathanael constituted part of the glory of his mediatorial kingdom."

M. A B

CHAPTER II.

The vision with which this chapter opens, portended great increase and prosperity to Jerusalem. Accordingly Josephus tells us, (Wars v. iv. 2,) that "the city, overflowing with inhabitants, extended beyond its walls," as predicted in the fourth verse, and acquired much glory during the time of the Maccabees; although these promises, and particularly the sublime image in the fifth verse, has certainly a still more pointed reference to the glory and prosperity of the Christian Church in the latter days, 1–5. See Rev. xxi., xxii. In consequence of these promises, the Jews, still inhabiting Babylon and the regions round about, are called upon to hasten home, that they might not be involved in the fate of their enemies, who were destined to fall a prey to the nations which they had formerly subdued; God's great love and zeal for his people moving him to glorify them by humbling all their adversaries, 6–9. The most gracious promises of God's presence with his Church, and her consequent increase and prosperity, set forth in the remaining verses, 10–13, were to a certain extent fulfilled in the great number of proselytes made to Judaism after the return from the captivity; but shall be more fully accomplished after the restoration of the Jews to the favour of God under the Gospel. "For if the casting away of the natural Israel be the reconciling of the world, what shall the receiving of them be but life from the dead?"

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 915. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

I LIFTED up mine eyes again, and looked, and behold [a] a man with a measuring-line in his hand.

2 Then said I, Whither goest thou? And he said unto me, [b] To measure Jerusalem, to see what is the breadth thereof, and what is the length thereof.

3 And, behold, the angel that talked with me went forth, and another angel went out to meet him,

4 And said unto him, Run, speak to this young man, saying, [c] Jerusalem shall be inhabited as towns without walls for the multitude of men and cattle therein:

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 519. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

5 For I, saith the LORD, will be unto her [d] a wall of fire round about, [e] and will be the glory in the midst of her.

6 Ho, ho, come forth, and flee [f] from the land of the north, saith the LORD: for I have [g] spread you abroad as the four winds of the heaven, saith the LORD.

7 [h] Deliver thyself, O Zion, that dwellest with the daughter of Babylon.

8 For thus saith the LORD of hosts; After the glory hath he sent me unto the nations

[a] Ezek. xl. 3.——[b] Rev. xi. 1; xxi. 15, 16.——[c] Jer. xxxi. 27; Ezek. xxxvi. 10, 11.——[d] Isa. xxvi. 1; chap. ix. 8.——[e] Isa. lx. 19; Rev. xxi. 23.——[f] Isa. xlviii. 20; lii. 11; Jer. i. 14; l. 8; li. 6, 45.——[g] Deut. xxviii. 64; Ezek. xvii. 21.——[h] Rev. xviii. 4.

NOTES ON CHAP. II.

Verse 1. A man with a measuring-line in his hand.] Probably a representation of Nehemiah, who got a commission from Artaxerxes Longimanus to build up the walls of Jerusalem; for hitherto it had remained without being enclosed.

Verse 4. Run, speak to this young man] Nehemiah must have been a young man when he was ساقي sakee, or cup-bearer, to Artaxerxes.

As towns without walls] It shall be so numerously inhabited as not to be contained within its ancient limits. Josephus, speaking of this time, says, WARS v. iv. 2, "The city, overflowing with inhabitants, by degrees extended itself beyond its walls."

Verse 5. I—will be unto her a wall of fire] Her safety shall consist in my defence. I shall be as fire round about her. No adversary shall be permitted to touch her. Much of this must refer to the New Jerusalem.

Verse 6. Flee from the land of the north] From Chaldea, Persia, and Babylon, where several of the Jews still remained. See ver. 7.

Verse 8. After the glory] After your glorious deliverance from the different places of your dispersion; He hath sent me unto the nations which spoiled you, that they may fall under grievous calamities, and be punished in their turn. On Babylon a great calamity fell, when besieged and taken by the Persians.

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 519. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

which spoiled you: for he that [i] toucheth you toucheth the apple of his eye.

9 For behold, I will [k] shake mine hand upon them, and they shall be a spoil to their servants: and [l] ye shall know that the LORD of hosts hath sent me.

10 [m] Sing and rejoice, O daughter of Zion: for lo, I come, and I [n] will dwell in the midst of thee, saith the LORD.

11 [o] And many nations shall be joined to the LORD [p] in that day, and shall be [q] my people: and I will dwell in the midst of thee, and [r] thou shalt know that the LORD of hosts hath sent me unto thee.

A. M. cir. 3485. B.C. cir. 519. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

12 And the LORD shall [s] inherit Judah his portion in the holy land, and [t] shall choose Jerusalem again.

13 [u] Be silent, O all flesh, before the LORD: for he is raised up [v] out of [w] his holy habitation.

[i] Deut. xxxii. 10; Psa. xvii. 8; 2 Thess. i. 6.——[k] Isa. xi. 15; xix. 16.——[l] Chap. iv. 9.——[m] Isa. xii. 6; liv. 1; Zeph. iii. 14. [n] Lev. xxvi. 12; Ezek. xxxvii. 27; chap. viii. 3; John i. 14; 2 Cor. vi. 16.—[o] Isa. ii. 2, 3; xlix. 22; lx. 3, &c.; ch viii. 22, 23.

[p] Chap. iii. 10.——[q] Exod. xii. 49.——[r] Ezek. xxxiii. 33; ver. 9.——[s] Deut. xxxii. 9.——[t] Chap. i. 17.——[u] Hab. ii. 20; Zeph. i. 7.——[v] Psa. lxviii. 5; Isa. lvii. 15.——[w] Heb. the habitation of his holiness; Deut. xxvi. 15; Isa. lxiii. 15.

The following note I received from a sensible and pious correspondent:—

5. "For I, saith the Lord, will be unto her a wall of fire round about, and will be the glory in the midst of her.

8. "For thus saith the Lord of hosts, who hath sent me, the future glory (or the glory which is to come) unto the nations which spoiled you; for he that toucheth you toucheth the apple of his eye. Behold, I will shake mine hand upon them, and they shall be a spoil to their servants; and ye shall know that the Lord of hosts hath sent me. Sing and rejoice, O daughter of Zion; for lo, I come, and I will dwell in the midst of thee, saith the Lord. And many nations shall be joined to the Lord in that day, and shall be my people; and I will dwell in the midst of thee, and thou shalt know that the Lord of hosts hath sent me unto thee. And the Lord shall inherit Judah his portion in the holy land, and shall choose Jerusalem again.

"If in the eighth verse אחר כבוד may be rendered the future, or the glory that is to come, it will harmonize with the context as a prophecy of the Messiah, whereas in our English translation the words after the glory are unintelligible. And so the Seventy.

"It is evident the person speaking is distinguished from the Lord of hosts, as being sent by him; yet this person sent is also called Jehovah; and the nations who shall be joined to Jehovah in that day are called his people; and he (the person sent) will dwell in the midst of thee, (i. e., Zion,) and shall inherit Judah his portion, &c.

"In confirmation of my view of the eighth verse, I think Exod. xxxiii. may be compared with it. Moses besought God that he would show him his glory; upon which it was said to him, 'Whilst my glory passeth by,' I will put thee in a cleft of the rock, and will cover thee with my hand whilst I pass by; and I will take away my hand, and thou shalt see my אחר achar. Now as this was a fulfilment of Moses's request, who entreated to behold the glory, it follows that this אחר was the Divine glory, which alone he was capable of seeing.

"'No man hath seen God at any time, the only begotten Son, (the Lord Jesus Christ,) which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him.'"

M. A. B.

Toucheth the apple of his eye.] בבבת עינו bebabath eyno, the babet of his eye. This is a remarkable expression. Any person, by looking into the eye of another, will see his own image perfectly expressed, though in extreme miniature, in the pupil. Does our English word babbet or baby come from this? And does not the expression mean that the eye of God is ever on his follower, and that his person is ever impressed on the eye, the notice, attention, providence, and mercy of God?

Verse 9. I will shake mine hand upon them] I will threaten first, and then stretch out my hand of judgment against them.

A spoil to their servants] To those whom they had formerly subjected to their sway. As the Babylonians to the Medes and Persians; and so of the rest in the subversion of empires.

Verse 10. I will dwell in the midst of thee, saith the Lord] This must chiefly refer to the Christian church, in which God ever dwells by the power of his Spirit, as he had done by the symbol of his presence in the first Jewish temple.

Verse 11. Many nations shall be joined to the Lord] This most certainly belongs to the Christian church. No nation or people ever became converts to the Jewish religion; but whole nations have embraced the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Verse 12. The Lord shall inherit Judah his portion in the holy land] This is a promise of the final restoration of the Jews, and that they should be God's portion in their own land.

Verse 13. Be silent, O all flesh] Let all the nations of the world be astonished at this. God will arise, and deliver this ancient people, and bring them into the glorious liberty of the sons of God.

CHAPTER III.

While the Jews were rebuilding their temple, their adversaries endeavoured to stop the work, Ezra v. This vision is therefore calculated to give them the strongest encouragement that God, after plucking them as brands out of the fire, (or captivity of Babylon,) would not now give them up, but would continue to prosper and favour them; and that notwithstanding the interruptions they should meet with, the work should be finished under the gracious superintendence of Providence; and their high priest, clothed in his pontifical robes, would soon officiate in the holy of holies, 1–7. The subject is then, by an easy transition, applied to a much greater future deliverance and restoration, of which Joshua and his companions, delivered now, are declared to be figures or types; for that the Messiah or Branch, the great high priest typified by Joshua, would be manifested; and, like the principal stone represented in the vision, become the chief corner stone of his Church; that the all-seeing eye of God would constantly guard it; and that by his atonement he would procure for it peace and pardon, 8–10.

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 519. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

AND he showed me [a] Joshua the high priest standing before the angel of the LORD, and [b] Satan [c] standing at his right hand [d] to resist him.

2 And the LORD said unto Satan, [e] The LORD rebuke thee, O Satan; even the LORD that [f] hath chosen Jerusalem rebuke thee: [g] is not this a brand plucked out of the fire?

3 Now Joshua was clothed with [h] filthy garments, and stood before the angel.

4 And he answered and spake unto those that stood before him, saying, Take away the filthy garments from him. And unto him he said, Behold, I have caused thine iniquity to pass from thee, [i] and I will clothe thee with change of raiment.

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 519. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

5 And I said, Let them set a fair [k] mitre upon his head. So they set a fair mitre upon his head, and clothed him with garments. And the angel of the LORD stood by.

6 And the angel of the LORD protested unto Joshua, saying,

[a] Hag. i. 1.——[b] Psa. cix. 6; Rev. xii. 10.——[c] That is, an adversary.——[d] Heb. to be his adversary.——[e] Jude 9.——[f] Chap. i. 17; Rom. viii. 33.

[g] Amos iv. 11; Rom. xi. 5; Jude 23.——[h] Isa. lxiv. 6.——[i] Isa. lxi. 10; Rev. xix. 8; Luke xv. 22.——[k] Exod. xxix. 6; chap. vi. 11.

NOTES ON CHAP. III.

Verse 1. And he showed me Joshua the high priest] The Angel of the Lord is the Messiah, as we have seen before; Joshua, the high priest, may here represent the whole Jewish people; and Satan, the grand accuser of the brethren. What the subject of dispute was, we perhaps learn from Jude 9. Michael and Satan disputed about the body of Moses. This could not refer to the natural body of the Jewish lawgiver, which had been dead about one thousand years; it must therefore refer to that body of laws given to the Jews by Moses, for the breach of which Satan, who was their tempter to disobedience, now comes forward as their accuser; that, exciting the justice of God against them, they may be all brought to perdition. There is a paronomasia here:—

Satan standing at his right hand to resist him.] שטן Satan signifies an adversary. לשטנו lesiteno, to be his adversary, or accuser.

Verse 2. Is not this a brand plucked out of the fire?] The Jews were nearly destroyed because of their sins; a remnant of them is yet left, and God is determined to preserve them. He has had mercy upon them, and forgiven them their sins. Wouldst thou have them destroyed? It is God that hath justified them; who art thou that condemnest them? The Lord rebuke thee! God confound thee for what thou hast done, and for what thou desirest farther to do! It is evident that Jude 9 relates to this circumstance—the very same phraseology which occurs here. See the notes on Jude 9, where the subject is largely considered. With difficulty has this remnant escaped, and God will not permit fresh evils to fall upon them, by which they might be totally consumed. This was Satan's design, who accuses the followers of God day and night. See Rev. xii. 10.

Verse 3. Joshua was clothed with filthy garments] The Jewish people were in a most forlorn, destitute, and to all human appearance despicable, condition; and besides all, they were sinful, and the priesthood defiled by idolatry; and nothing but the mercy of God could save them.

Verse 4. Take away the filthy garments] The Jews wore sackcloth in times of public calamity; probably the filthy garments refer to this. Let their clothing be changed. I have turned again their captivity; I will fully restore them, and blot out all their iniquities.

Verse 5. A fair mitre upon his head] To signify that he had renewed to him the office of the high priesthood, which had been defiled and profaned before. The mitre was the bonnet which the high priest put on his head when he entered into the sanctuary, Exod. xxviii. 4, &c.

Clothed him with garments] Referring to the vestments of the high priest. The true high priest, who is over the house of God, will establish his office among them, when they shall acknowledge him as their Messiah, and seek redemption in the blood of the sacrifice which he has offered for their sins; and not for theirs only, but for the sins of the whole world.

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 519. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

7 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; If thou wilt walk in my ways, and if thou wilt [l] keep my [m] charge, then thou shalt also [n] judge my house, and shalt also keep my courts, and I will give thee [o] places to walk among these that [p] stand by.

8 Hear now, O Joshua the high priest, thou and thy fellows that sit before thee: for they are [q] men [r] wondered at: for behold, I will bring forth [s] my servant The [t] BRANCH.

9 For behold the stone that I have laid before Joshua; [u] upon one stone shall be [v] seven eyes: behold, I will engrave the graving thereof, saith the LORD of hosts, and [w] I will remove the iniquity of that land in one day.

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 519. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

10 [x] In that day, saith the LORD of hosts, shall ye call every man his neighbour [y] under the vine and under the fig tree.

[l] Lev. viii. 35; 1 Kings ii. 3; Ezek. xliv. 16.——[m] Or, ordinance.——[n] Deut. xvii. 9; Mal. ii. 7.——[o] Heb. walks.——[p] Chap. iv. 14; vi. 5.——[q] Psa. lxxi. 7; Isa. viii. 18; xx. 3.——[r] Heb. men of wonder, or sign, as Ezek. xii. 11; xxiv. 24.——[s] Isa. xlii. 1; xlix. 3, 5; lii. 13; liii. 11; Ezek. xxxiv. 23, 24.

[t] Isa. iv. 2; xi. 1; Jer. xxiii. 5; xxxiii. 15; chap. vi. 12. Luke i. 78.——[u] Psa. cxviii. 22; Isa. xxviii. 16.——[v] Chap. iv. 10; Rev. v. 6.——[w] Jer. xxxi. 34; l. 20; Mic. vii. 18, 19; chap. xiii. 1.——[x] Chap. ii. 11; Isa. ii. 11; xxvi. 1; xxix. 28; lii. 6. [y] 1 Kings iv. 25; Isa. xxxvi. 16; Mic. iv. 4.

Verse 7. If thou wilt walk in my ways] If ye, Israelites, priests and people, now restored to your own land, will walk in my ways, &c., ye shall be a part of my family; and have places—mansions—in eternal glory, with all them that are sanctified.

Verse 8. O Joshua—thou, and thy fellows] Thy countrymen, who have now returned from your captivity, in a very wonderful manner. אנשי מופת anshey mopheth, figurative men, men whose office and ministration prefigured the Lord Jesus Christ; and therefore it is immediately added, "I will bring forth my servant The BRANCH." Abp. Newcome thinks this means Zerubbabel, so called because he was the grandson of Jehoiakim, or Jeconiah, king of Judah, Matt. i. 12, and heir to the throne of Judah. The Chaldee has, "My servant the Messiah." See the note on Isa. iv. 2. I think the word cannot apply to Zerubbabel, except as a type of Christ; in that sense it may be understood of him. See chap. vi. 11, 12.

Verse 9. For behold the stone that I have laid] Alluding no doubt to the foundation stone of the temple: but this represented Christ Jesus: "Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation a STONE, a tried stone, a precious CORNER STONE, a SURE FOUNDATION," Isa. xxviii. 16. This means Christ, and none other; on him his whole Church rests, as a building does on its foundation.

Upon one stone shall be seven eyes] This is supposed to mean the providence of God, as under it all the work should be completed.

There may be an allusion to the seven counsellors, which stood always about the persons of the Asiatic sovereigns; and those who were the governors of provinces were termed the eyes of the king. To this there is an allusion in Rev. i. 4. In Christ there is a plentitude of wisdom, power, goodness, mercy, truth, love, and compassion, to direct, protect, save, uphold, purify, govern, and preserve all the souls that trust in him.

I will engrave the graving thereof] This is an allusion to engraving precious stones, in which the ancients greatly excelled. Heads, animals, and various devices were the subjects of those engravings. But what was this engraving? Was it not the following words? "I will remove the iniquity of that land in one day;" and was not this done when Jesus Christ expired upon the cross? This was the grand, the only atonement, satisfaction, and sacrifice for the sins of the whole world. Does not our Lord refer to this place, John vi. 27? Him hath God the Father sealed; and on the inscription there was, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." See the note on the above passage.

Verse 10. Shall ye call every man his neighbour] See on Isa. xxxvi. 16. Every one shall be inviting and encouraging another to believe on the Lord Jesus Christ; and thus taste and see that God is good. See on Isaiah ii. 2, 3. And there shall be the utmost liberty to preach, believe on, and profess the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ.

CHAPTER IV.

The prophet, overpowered by his last vision, is roused by the angel to behold another, 1; intended also to assure the Jews of the success of Joshua and Zerubbabel in building the temple, and surmounting every obstacle in the way; till at length, by the good providence of God, it should be finished, amidst the joyful acclamations of the spectators, 2–10. The angel's explanation of the golden candlestick, and of the two olive trees, 11–14.

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 519. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

AND [a] the angel that talked with me came again, and waked me, [b] as a man that is wakened out of his sleep,

2 And said unto me, What seest thou? And I said, I have looked, and behold [c] a candlestick all of gold, [d] with a bowl upon the top of it, [e] and his seven lamps thereon, and [f] seven pipes to the seven lamps, which are upon the top thereof.

3 [g] And two olive trees by it, one upon the right side of the bowl, and the other upon the left side thereof.

4 So I answered and spake to the angel that talked with me, saying, What are these, my lord?

5 Then the angel that talked with me answered and said unto me, Knowest thou not what these be? And I said, No, my lord.

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 519. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

6 Then he answered and spake unto me, saying, This is the word of the LORD unto Zerubbabel, saying, [h] Not by [i] might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the LORD of hosts.

7 Who art thou, [k] O great mountain? before Zerubbabel thou shalt become a plain: and he shall bring forth [l] the headstone thereof [m] with shoutings, crying, Grace, grace, unto it.

8 Moreover, the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

9 The hands of Zerubbabel [n] have laid the foundation of this house; his hands [o] shall also finish it; and [p] thou shalt know that the [q] LORD of hosts hath sent me unto you.

10 For who hath despised the day of [r] small

[a] Chap. ii. 3.——[b] Dan. viii. 18.——[c] Exod. xxv. 31; Rev. i. 12.——[d] Heb. with her bowl.——[e] Exod. xxv. 37; Rev. iv. 5. [f] Or, seven several pipes to the lamps, &c.——[g] Ver. 11, 12; Rev. xi. 4.

[h] Hos. i. 7.——[i] Or, army.——[k] Jer. li. 25; Matt. xxi. 21. [l] Psa. cxviii. 22.——[m] Ezra iii. 11, 13.——[n] Ezra iii. 10. [o] Ezra vi. 15.——[p] Chap. ii. 9, 11; vi. 15.——[q] Isa. xlviii. 15; chap. ii. 8.——[r] Hag. ii. 3.

NOTES ON CHAP. IV.

Verse 1. The angel—came again, and waked me] Abp. Newcome considers this vision as represented on the same night, chap. i. 8, with the preceding ones. See the latter part of ver. 10, compared with chap. iii. 9. After some interval the prophet, overpowered with the vision which had been presented to him, was awakened from his prophetic trance as from a sleep.

Verse 2. A candlestick all of gold] This candlestick is formed in some measure after that of the sanctuary, Exod. xxv. 31, 32: but in that of the sanctuary there was no bowl, nor seven pipes, nor seven lamps, nor the two olive trees. The two olive trees were to supply the bowl with oil; the bowl was to communicate the oil to the seven pipes; and the seven pipes were to supply the seven lamps. In general, the candlestick, its bowl, pipes, lamps, and olive trees, are emblems of the pure service of God, and the grace and salvation to be enjoyed by his true worshippers. The candlestick may, however, represent the whole Jewish state, ecclesiastical and civil; the oil, producing the light, the grace and mercy of God; and the two olive trees, the source of infinite love, whence that grace proceeds. The pipes may signify all means of grace; and the seven lamps, the perfection and abundance of the light and salvation provided. Some may take them in the following way:—1. The olive trees, the Divine goodness, yield the oil from the olive berry, which is its fruit. 2. From each comes a pipe to convey the oil to the bowl. 3. This oil is collected in the bowl, which is supposed to represent Jesus, the great Mediator, through whom alone all grace and mercy descend to man. 4. The seven pipes, the various means of grace—reading, hearing, prayer, sacraments, &c.—through which Christ dispenses his grace and blessing to his followers. 5. The seven lamps—the Spirit of God in its plenitude of graces, gifts, and light, dispensed to the Christian Church.

Verse 6. This is the word of the Lord unto Zerubbabel] This prince was in a trying situation, and he needed especial encouragement from God; and here it is:

Not by might, (of thy own,) nor by power, (authority from others,) but by my Spirit—the providence, authority, power, and energy of the Most High. In this way shall my temple be built; in this way shall my Church be raised and preserved. No secular arm, no human prudence, no earthly policy, no suits at law, shall ever be used for the founding, extension, and preservation of my Church. But the spirit of the world says, "These are all means to which we must have recourse; otherwise the cause of God may be ruined." Satan, thou liest!

Verse 7. O great mountain!] The hinderances which were thrown in the way; the regal prohibition to discontinue the building of the temple.

Before Zerubbabel—a plain] The sovereign power of God shall remove them. March on, Zerubbabel; all shall be made plain and smooth before thee. I have given thee the work to do, and I will remove all hinderances out of thy way.

He shall bring forth the headstone] As he has laid the foundation stone, so shall he put on the headstone: as he has begun the building, so shall he finish it!

With shoutings] The universal acclamation of the people.

Grace, grace unto it.] How beautiful is this structure! May the favour of God ever rest upon it, and be manifested in it!

Verse 10. Who hath despised the day of small things?] The poverty, weakness, and unbefriended state of the Jews. It was said, "What do these feeble things? [s] for they shall rejoice, and shall see the [t] plummet in the hand of Zerubbabel with those seven; [u] they are the eyes of the LORD, which run to and fro through the whole earth.

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 519. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom. cir. annum 16.

11 Then answered I, and said unto him, What are these [v] two olive trees upon the right side of the candlestick, and upon the left side thereof?

12 And I answered again, and said unto him, What be these two olive branches which, [w] through the two golden pipes, [x] empty [y] the golden oil out of themselves?

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 519. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

13 And he answered me and said, Knowest thou not what these be? And I said, No, my lord.

14 Then said he, [z] These are the two [a] anointed ones, [b] that stand by [c] the LORD of the whole earth.

[s] Or, since the seven eyes of the LORD shall rejoice.——[t] Heb. stone of tin.——[u] 2 Chron. xvi. 9; Prov. xv. 3; chap. iii. 9. [v] Ver. 3.——[w] Heb. by the hand.

[x] Or, empty out of themselves oil into the gold.——[y] Heb. the gold. [z] Rev. xi. 4.——[a] Heb. sons of oil.——[b] Chap. iii. 7; Luke i. 19. [c] See Josh. iii. 11, 13; chap. vi. 5.

Jews?" "Will they build," &c.? No. But God will build by them, and perfect his building too.

And shall see the plummet in the hand of Zerubbabel] He is master builder under God, the grand architect.

Those seven—are the eyes of the Lord] Either referring to his particular and especial providence; or to those ministering spirits, whom he has employed in behalf of the Jews, to dispense the blessings of that providence. See the reading in the margin.

Verse 11. What are these two olive trees] See on ver. 2.

Verse 12. What be these two olive branches] That is, two boughs laden with branches of olive berries.

Verse 14. These are the two anointed ones] Joshua, the high priest; and Zerubbabel the governor. These are anointed—appointed by the Lord; and stand by him, the one to minister in the ecclesiastical, the other in the civil state.

Probably we may not be able to comprehend the whole of this hieroglyphical vision; for even the interpreting angel does not choose to answer the questions relative to this, which were put to him by the prophet. See ver. 4 and 11. But though the particulars are hard to be understood; yet the general meaning has, I hope, been given.

CHAPTER V.

The vision of the large flying roll, with the angel's explanation, 1–4. The vision of the ephah, and of the woman sitting on it, with the signification, 5–11.

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 519. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

THEN I turned, and lifted up mine eyes, and looked, and behold a flying [a] roll.

2 And he said unto me, What seest thou? And I answered, I see a flying roll; the length thereof is twenty cubits, and the breadth thereof ten cubits.

3 Then said he unto me, This is the [b] curse that goeth forth over the face of the whole earth: for [c] every one that stealeth shall be cut off as on this side, according to it; and every one that sweareth shall be cut off as on that side, according to it.

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 519. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

4 I will bring it forth, saith the LORD of hosts, and it shall enter into the house of the thief, and into the house of [d] him that sweareth falsely by my name: and it shall remain in the midst of his house, and [e] shall consume it, with the timber thereof, and the stones thereof

[a] Ezek. ii. 9.——[b] Mal. iv. 6.——[c] Or, every one of this people that stealeth holdeth himself guiltless, as it doth.

[d] Lev. xix. 12; chapter viii. 17; Mal. iii. 5.——[e] See Lev. xiv. 45.

NOTES ON CHAP. V.

Verse 1. Behold a flying roll.] This was twenty cubits long, and ten cubits broad; the prophet saw it expanded, and flying. Itself was the catalogue of the crimes of the people, and the punishment threatened by the Lord. Some think the crimes were those of the Jews; others, those of the Chaldeans. The roll is mentioned in allusion to those large rolls on which the Jews write the Pentateuch. One now lying before me is one hundred and fifty-three feet long, by twenty-one inches wide, written on fine brown Basle goat-skin; some time since brought from Jerusalem, supposed to be four hundred years old.

Verse 3. Every one that stealeth—and every one that sweareth] It seems that the roll was written both on the front and back: stealing and swearing are supposed to be two general heads of crimes; the former, comprising sins against men; the latter, sins against God. It is supposed that the roll contained the sins and punishments of the Chaldeans.

Verse 4. Into the house of him] Babylon, the

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 519. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

5 Then the angel that talked with me went forth, and said unto me, Lift up now thine eyes, and see what is this that goeth forth.

6 And I said, What is it? And he said, This is an ephah that goeth forth. He said moreover, This is their resemblance through all the earth.

7 And, behold, there was lifted up a [f] talent of lead; and this is a woman that sitteth in the midst of the ephah.

8 And he said, This is wickedness. And he cast it into the midst of the ephah; and he cast the weight of lead upon the mouth thereof.

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 519 Ol. cir. LXV. 2 Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

9 Then lifted I up mine eyes, and looked, and, behold, there came out two women, and the wind was in their wings; for they had wings like the wings of a stork: and they lifted up the ephah between the earth and the heaven.

10 Then said I to the angel that talked with me, Whither do these bear the ephah?

11 And he said unto me, [g] To build it a house in [h] the land of Shinar: and it shall be established, and set there upon her own base.

[f] Or, weighty piece.

[g] Jer. xxix. 5, 28.——[h] Gen. x. 10.

house or city of Nebuchadnezzar, who was a public plunderer, and a most glaring idolater.

Verse 6. This is an ephah that goeth forth.] This, among the Jews, was the ordinary measure of grain. The woman in the ephah is supposed to represent Judea, which shall be visited for its sins; the talent of lead on the ephah, within which the woman was enclosed, the wrath of God, bending down this culprit nation, in the measure of its sins; for the angel said, "This is wickedness;" that is, the woman represents the mass of iniquity of this nation.

Verse 9. There came out two women] As the one woman represented the impiety of the Jewish nation; so these two women who were to carry the ephah, in which the woman INIQUITY was shut up, under the weight of a talent of lead, may mean the desperate UNBELIEF of the Jews in rejecting the Messiah; and that IMPIETY, or universal corruption of manners, which was the consequence of their unbelief, and brought down the wrath of God upon them. The strong wings, like those of a stork, may point out the power and swiftness with which Judea was carried on to fill up the measure of her iniquity, and to meet the punishment which she deserved.

Between the earth and the heaven.] Sins against GOD and MAN; sins which heaven and earth contemplated with horror.

Or the Babylonians and Romans may be intended by the two women who carried the Jewish ephah to its final punishment. The Chaldeans ruined Judea before the advent of our Lord; the Romans, shortly after.

Verse 11. To build it a house in the land of Shinar] The land of Shinar means Babylon; and Babylon means Rome, in the Apocalypse. The building the house for the woman imprisoned in the ephah may signify, that there should be a long captivity under the Romans, as there was under that of Shinar or Babylon, by which Rome may here be represented. That house remains to the present day: the Jewish woman is still in the ephah; it is set on its own base—continues still as a distinct nation; and the talent of lead—God's displeasure—is still on the top. O Lord, save thy people, the remnant of Israel!

CHAPTER VI.

The vision of the four chariots drawn by several sorts of horses, 1–8. The other vision in this chapter may refer in its primary sense to the establishment of the civil and religious polity of the Jews under Joshua and Zerubbabel; but relates, in a fuller sense, to the Messiah, and to that spiritual kingdom of which he was to be both king and high priest. In him all these types and figures were verified; in him all the promises are yea and amen, 9–15.

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 519. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

AND I turned, and lifted up mine eyes, and looked, and behold, there came four chariots out from between two mountains; and the mountains were mountains of brass.

2 In the first chariot were [a] red horses; and in the second chariot [b] black horses;

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 519. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

3 And in the third chariot [c] white horses; and in the fourth

[a] Chap. i. 8; Rev. vi. 4.

[b] Rev. vi. 5.——[c] Rev. vi. 2.

NOTES ON CHAP. VI.

Verse 1. There came four chariots] Four monarchies or empires. This is supposed to mean the same with the vision of the four horns, in chap. i.

Mountains of brass.] The strong barriers of God's purposes, which restrained those powers within the times and limits appointed by Jehovah.

Verse 2. In the first chariot were red horses] The

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 519. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

chariot grisled and [d] bay horses.

4 Then I answered [e] and said unto the angel that talked with me, What are these, my lord?

5 And the angel answered and said unto me, [f] These are the four [g] spirits of the heavens, which go forth from [h] standing before the LORD of all the earth.

6 The black horses which are therein go forth into [i] the north country; and the white go forth after them; and the grisled go forth toward the south country.

7 And the bay went forth, and sought to go, that they might [k] walk to and fro through the earth: and he said, Get you hence, walk to and fro through the earth. So they walked to and fro through the earth.

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 519. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

8 Then cried he upon me, and spake unto me, saying, Behold, these that go toward the north country have quieted my [l] spirit in the north country.

9 And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

10 Take of them of the captivity, even of Heldai, of Tobijah, and of Jedaiah, which are come from Babylon, and come thou the same day, and go into the house of Josiah the son of Zephaniah;

11 Then take silver and gold, and make [m] crowns, and set them upon the head of Joshua the son of Josedech, the high priest;

[d] Or, strong.——[e] Chap. v. 10.——[f] Psa. civ. 4; Heb. i. 7, 14. [g] Or, winds.——[h] 1 Kings xxii. 19; Dan. vii. 10; chap. iv. 14; Luke i. 19.

[i] Jer. i. 14.——[k] Gen. xiii. 17; chap. i. 10.——[l] Judg. viii. 3; Eccles. x. 4.——[m] Exod. xxiii. 36; xxix. 6; Lev. viii. 9; chap. iii. 5.

empire of the Chaldeans, which overthrew the empire of the Assyrians.

The second chariot black horses] The empire of the Persians, founded by Cyrus, which destroyed the empire of the Chaldeans.

Verse 3. The third chariot white horses] The empire of the Grecks, founded by Alexander the Great, which destroyed the empire of the Persians.

The fourth chariot grisled and bay horses.] That is party-coloured horses; or with horses, some grisled and some bay. The empire of the Romans or of the Greeks. The Greeks divided after the death of Alexander; one part pointing out the Lagidæ, who attacked and subdued Egypt; and the other, the Seleucidæ, who subdued Syria under Seleucus.

Verse 5. The four spirits of the heavens] Ministers of God's wrath against the sinful nations of the world.

Verse 6. The black horses] This refers to the second chariot; of the first the angel makes no mention, because the empire designed by it had ceased to exist. This had red horses, to show the cruelty of the Chaldeans towards the Jews, and the carnage they committed in the land of Judea.

The black] Cyrus, at the head of the Persians and Medes, bringing devastation and death among the Chaldeans, called the north in many parts of Scripture.

The white] Alexander, who was splendid in his victories, and mild towards all that he conquered.

The grisled] The Lagidæ or Ptolemies, who founded an empire in Egypt; of these some were good, some bad, some despotic, some moderate, some cruel, and some mild; represented by the party-coloured horses.

Verse 7. And the bay went forth] The Seleucidæ, who conquered Syria and the upper provinces, and who wished to extend their conquests, and "sought to go, that they might walk to and fro throughout the earth," were of unbounded ambition, and sought universal empire; such as Antiochus the Great. "So they walked to and fro," did extend their conquests; and harassed many countries by their vexatious and almost continual wars. Some think the Romans are meant, who carried their conquests hither and thither, just as the Divine providence permitted them.

Verse 8. Have quieted my spirit in the north country.] They have fulfilled my judgments on Assyria and Chaldea. Nabopolassar and Cyrus first, against the Assyrians and Chaldeans; and Alexander next, against the Persians. On this vision Abp. Newcome remarks:—

The black horses seem to denote the Persian empire; which, by subduing the Chaldeans, and being about to inflict a second heavy chastisement on Babylon, quieted God's spirit with respect to Chaldea; a country always spoken of as lying to the north of the Jews.

The white horses seem to be the Macedonian empire; which, like the Persian, overcame Chaldea.

The spotted bay horses seem to be the Roman empire. This description suits it because it was governed by kings, consuls, dictators, and emperors. It penetrated southward to Egypt and Africa. The Roman empire is mentioned twice, ver. 6, 7, under each epithet given it, ver. 3.

Verse 10. Take of them of the captivity] The names that follow were probably those to whom the silver and golden vessels of the temple were intrusted; and who might have had bullion of silver and gold, for particular purposes, about the ornaments of the temple.

The house of Josiah] Probably an artificer in silver, gold, &c.

Verse 11. Make crowns] עטרות ataroth; but seven MSS. of Kennicott's and De Rossi's, and one ancient of my own, with the Syriac and Chaldee, have עטרת

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 519. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

12 And speak unto him, saying, Thus speaketh the LORD of hosts, saying, Behold [n] the man whose name is The [o] BRANCH; and he shall [p] grow up out of his place, [q] and he shall build the temple of the LORD.

13 Even he shall build the temple of the LORD; and he [r] shall bear the glory, and shall sit and rule upon his throne; and [s] he shall be a priest upon his throne: and the counsel of peace shall be between them both.

14 And the crowns shall be to Helem, and to Tobijah, and to Jedaiah, and to Hen the son of Zephaniah, [t] for a memorial in the temple of the LORD.

A. M. cir. 3485. B. C. cir. 519. Ol. cir. LXV. 2. Tarquinii Superbi, R. Rom., cir. annum 16.

15 And [u] they that are far off shall come and build in the temple of the LORD, and [v] ye shall know that the LORD of hosts hath sent me unto you. And this shall come to pass, if ye will diligently obey the voice of the LORD your God.

[n] See Luke i. 78; John i. 45.——[o] Chap. iii. 8.——[p] Or, branch up from under him.——[q] Chap. iv 9; Matt. xvi. 18; Eph. ii. 20, 21, 22; Heb. iii. 3.

[r] Isa. xxii. 24.——[s] Psa. cx. 4; Heb. iii. 1.——[t] Exod. xii. 14; Mark xiv. 9.——[u] Isa. lvii. 19; lx. 10; Eph. ii. 13, 19. [v] Chap. ii. 9; iv. 9.

atereth, a crown, or tiara. And as Joshua the high priest is alone concerned here, I think one crown only is intended.

Verse 12. Behold the man whose name is The BRANCH!] I cannot think that Zerubbabel is here intended; indeed, he is not so much as mentioned in chap. iii. 8. Joshua and his companions are called אנשי מופת anshey mopheth, figurative or typical men; the crowning therefore of Joshua in this place, and calling him the BRANCH, was most probably in reference to that glorious person, the Messiah, of whom he was the type or figure. The Chaldee has, "whose name is my MESSIAH," or CHRIST.

And he shall grow up out of his place] That is, out of David's root, tribe, and family.

And he shall build the temple of the Lord.] This cannot refer to the building of the temple then in hand, for Zerubbabel was its builder: but to that temple, the Christian Church, that was typified by it; for Zerubbabel is not named here, and only Joshua or Jesus (the name is the same) is the person who is to be crowned and to build this spiritual temple.

Verse 13. Even he shall build the temple] Joshua, not Zerubbabel.

He shall bear the glory] Have all the honour of it; for none can do this but himself. The Messiah is still intended.

And shall sit and rule upon his throne] For the government of the Church shall be upon his shoulder.

And he shall be a priest upon his throne] He shall, as the great high priest, offer the only available offering and atonement; and so he shall be both king and priest, a royal king and a royal priest; for even the priest is here stated to sit upon his throne.

And the counsel of peace shall be between them both.] Whom! Zerubbabel and Joshua! Certainly not Zerubbabel, for he is not mentioned in all this prediction; but, as the Messiah is intended, the counsel of peace—the purpose to establish peace between heaven and earth, must be between the Father and the Son.

Verse 14. And the crowns shall be] One of my MSS. has עטרות ataroth, crowns, corrected into עטרת atereth, crown; and so the Septuagint, Syriac, and Arabic. The Chaldee has, "And praise shall be," &c. The meaning appears to be this, that the crown made for Joshua should be delivered to the persons mentioned here and in ver. 10, to be laid up in the temple of the Lord, as a memorial of this typical transaction.

Verse 15. And they that are far off shall come] The Gentiles shall come to the Saviour of the world; and build—become a part of this new temple; for they, as living stones, shall become a holy temple, a habitation of God through the Spirit.

Ye shall know that the Lord of hosts hath sent me] These predictions, relative to the regal and sacerdotal offices of the Messiah, shall be so circumstantially fulfilled, that ye, Jews, shall be obliged to acknowledge that the Lord of hosts hath sent me with this message.

And this shall come to pass] Your own temple shall be rebuilt, and God shall dwell among you now, if ye will diligently obey the voice of Jehovah your God.

CHAPTER VII.

Some Jews being sent from those who remained at Babylon to inquire of the priests and prophets at Jerusalem whether they were still bound to observe those fasts which had been appointed on occasion of the destruction of Jerusalem, and kept during the captivity, the prophet is commanded to take this opportunity of enforcing upon them the weightier matters of the law, judgment and mercy, that they might not incur such calamities as befell their fathers. He also intimates that in their former fasts they had regarded themselves more than God; and that they had rested too much on the performance of external rites, although the former prophets had largely insisted on the superior excellence of moral duties, 1–14.

A. M. 3486. B. C. 518. Ol. LXV. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 17.

AND it came to pass in the fourth year of king Darius, that the word of the LORD came unto Zechariah in the fourth day of the ninth month, even in Chisleu;

2 When they had sent unto the house of God Sherezer and Regem-melech, and their men, [a] to pray before the LORD,

3 And to [b] speak unto the priests which were in the house of the LORD of hosts, and to the prophets, saying, Should I weep in [c] the fifth month, separating myself, as I have done these so many years?

4 Then came the word of the LORD of hosts unto me, saying,

5 Speak unto all the people of the land, and to the priests, saying, When ye [d] fasted and mourned in the fifth [e] and seventh month, [f] even those seventy years, did ye at all fast [g] unto me, even to me?

6 And when ye did eat, and when ye did drink, [h] did not ye eat for yourselves, and drink for yourselves?

7 [i] Should ye not hear the words which the LORD hath cried [k] by the former prophets, when Jerusalem was inhabited and in prosperity, and the cities thereof round about her, when men inhabited [l] the south and the plain?

A. M. 3486. B. C. 518. Ol. LXV. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 17.

8 And the word of the LORD came unto Zechariah, saying,

9 Thus speaketh the LORD of hosts, saying, [m] Execute [n] true judgment, and show mercy and compassions every man to his brother:

10 And [o] oppress not the widow, nor the fatherless, the stranger, nor the poor, [p] and let none of you imagine evil against his brother in your heart.

11 But they refused to hearken, and [q] pulled [r] away the shoulder, and [s] stopped [t] their ears, that they should not hear.

12 Yea, they made their [u] hearts as an adamant stone, [v] lest they should hear the law, and the words which the LORD of hosts hath sent in his [w] Spirit by the former prophets:

[a] Heb. to entreat the face of the LORD; 1 Sam. xiii. 12; chap. viii. 21.—[b] Deut. xvii. 9, 10, 11; xxxiii. 10; Mal. ii. 7.—[c] Jer. lii. 12; chap. viii. 19.—[d] Isa. lviii. 5.—[e] Jer. iv. 1; chap. viii. 19.—[f] Chap. i. 12.—[g] See Rom. xiv. 6.—[h] Or, be not ye they that, &c.—[i] Or, Are not these the words.—[k] Heb. by the hand of, &c.—[l] Jer. xvii. 26.—[m] Isa. lviii. 6, 7; Jer. vii. 23; Mic. vi. 8; chap. viii. 16; Matt. xxiii. 23.—[n] Heb. Judge judgment of truth.—[o] Exod. xxii. 21, 22; Deut. xxiv. 17; Isa. i. 17; Jer. v. 28.—[p] Psa. xxxvi. 4; Mic. ii. 1; chap. viii. 17.—[q] Neh. ix. 29; Jer. vii. 24; Hos. iv. 16.—[r] Heb. they gave a backsliding shoulder.—[s] Heb. made heavy.—[t] Acts vii. 57.—[u] Ezek. xi. 19; xxxvi. 26.—[v] Neh. ix. 29, 30.—[w] Heb. by the hand of.

NOTES ON CHAP. VII.

Verse 1. The fourth year of King Darius] Two years after they began to rebuild the temple, see chap. i. 1, A. M. 3486.

The ninth month, even in Chisleu] This answers to a part of our November and December. The names of the month appear only under and after the captivity.

Verse 2. When they had sent—Sherezer and Regem-melech] To inquire whether the fasts should be continued, which they had hitherto observed on account of their ruined temple; and the reason why they inquired was, that they were rebuilding that temple, and were likely to bring it to a joyful issue.

Verse 5. *When ye fasted and mourned in the fifth—*month] This they did in the remembrance of the burning of the temple, on the tenth day of that month; and on the seventh month, on the third of which month they observed a fast for the murder of Gedaliah, and the dispersion of the remnant of the people which were with him. See Jer. xli. 1, and 2 Kings xxv. 25.

Verse 6. And when ye did eat] They had not observed those fasts as they should have done. They deplored the loss of their temple, and its riches, &c.; but they did not humble themselves because of those iniquities which had brought the displeasure of God upon them, their temple, and their city.

Verse 7. The words which the Lord hath cried by the former prophets] נביאים הראשונים nebiim harishonim, is the title which the Jews give to Joshua, Judges, the two books of Samuel, and the two books of Kings.

The latter prophets, נביאים אחרונים nebiim acharonim, are Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, and the twelve minor prophets.

The hagiographa, כתובים kethubim, holy writings, are the Psalms, Proverbs, Job, Canticles, Ruth, Lamentations, Ecclesiastes, Esther, Daniel, Ezra, Nehemiah, and the two books of Chronicles. But the above words, the former prophets, seem to apply to Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel.

The south and the plain?] From Eleutheropolis to the sea, Obad. 19. The south was the wilderness and mountainous parts of Judea; and the plain, the plains of Jericho.

Verse 9. Execute true judgment] See the parallel texts in the margin.

Verse 10. Evil against his brother in your heart.] Do not indulge an unfavourable opinion of another: do not envy him; do not harbour an unbrotherly feeling towards him.

Verse 11. Pulled away the shoulder] From under the yoke of the law, like an unbroken or restive bullock in the plough.

Verse 12. Made their hearts as an adamant stone] שמיר shamir may mean the granite. This is the hardest stone with which the common people could be acquainted. Perhaps the corundum, of which emery

A. M. 3486. B. C. 518. Ol. LXV. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 17.

[x] therefore came a great wrath from the LORD of hosts.

13 Therefore it is come to pass, that as he cried, and they would not hear; so [y] they cried, and I would not hear, saith the LORD of hosts.

14 But [z] I scattered them with a whirlwind among all the nations [a] whom they knew not. Thus [b] the land was desolate after them, that no man passed through nor returned: for they laid [c] the [d] pleasant land desolate.

A. M. 3486. B. C. 518. Ol. LXV. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 17.

[x] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 16; Dan. ix. 11.——[y] Prov. i. 24–28; Isa. i. 15; Jer. xi. 11; xiv. 12; Mic. iii. 4.——[z] Deut. iv. 27; xxviii. 64; Ezek. xxxvi. 19; chap. ii. 6.——[a] Deut. xxviii. 33.——[b] Lev. xxvi. 22.——[c] Dan. viii. 9.——[d] Heb. land of desire.

is a species, may be intended. Bochart thinks it means a stone used in polishing others. The same name, in Hebrew, applies to different stones.

Verse 14. I scattered them with a whirlwind] This refers to the swift victories and cruel conduct of the Chaldeans towards the Jews; they came upon them like a whirlwind; they were tossed to and fro, and up and down, everywhere scattered and confounded.

CHAPTER VIII.

In this chapter God promises the continuance of his favour to those who are returned from the captivity; so that, upon the removal of his judgments, the fasts they had observed during the captivity may now be converted to so many occasions of rejoicing. He likewise promises in due time a general restoration of his people, and the enlargement of the Church by the accession of the Gentiles, 1–20. The conclusion of the chapter intimates farther that the Jews, after their restoration, will be instrumental in converting many other nations, 21–23. Compare Rom. xi. 15, 16.

A. M. 3486. B. C. 518. Ol. LXV. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 17.

AGAIN the word of the LORD of hosts came to me, saying,

2 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; [a] I was jealous for Zion with great jealousy, and I was jealous for her with great fury.

3 Thus saith the LORD; [b] I am returned unto Zion, and [c] will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem: and Jerusalem [d] shall be called A city of truth: and [e] the mountain of the LORD of hosts, [f] The holy mountain.

4 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; [g] There shall yet old men and old women dwell in the streets of Jerusalem, and every man with his staff in his hand [h] for very age.

A. M. 3486. B. C. 518. Ol. LXV. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 17.

5 And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof.

6 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; If it be [i] marvellous in the eyes of the remnant of this people in these days, [k] should it also be marvellous in mine eyes? saith the LORD of hosts.

7 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; Behold, [l] I will save my people from the east country, and from [m] the west country;

[a] Neh. i. 2; chap. i. 14.——[b] Chap. i. 16.——[c] Chap. ii. 10.
[d] Isa. i. 21, 26.——[e] Isa. ii. 2, 3.——[f] Jer. xxxi. 23.——[g] See Sam. ii. 31; Isa. lxv. 20, 22; Lam. ii. 20, &c.; v. 11–14.
[h] Heb. for multitude of days.

[i] Or, hard, or difficult.——[k] Gen. xviii. 14; Luke i. 37; xviii. 27; Rom. iv. 21.——[l] Isa. xi. 11, 12; xliii. 5, 6; Ezek. xxxvii. 21; Amos ix. 14, 15.——[m] Heb. the country of the going down of the sun; See Psa. l. 1; cxiii. 3; Mal. i. 11.

NOTES ON CHAP. VIII.

Verse 2. I was jealous] Some refer this to the Jews themselves. They were as the spouse of Jehovah: but they were unfaithful, and God punished them as an injured husband might be expected to punish an unfaithful wife. Others apply it to the enemies of the Jews. Though I gave them a commission to afflict you, yet they exceeded their commission: I will therefore deal with them in fury—in vindictive justice.

Verse 3. I am returned unto Zion] I have restored her from her captivity. I will dwell among them. The temple shall be rebuilt, and so shall Jerusalem; and instead of being false, unholy, and profligate, it shall be the city of truth, and my holy mountain. TRUTH shall dwell in it.

Verse 4. There shall yet old men and old women] In those happy times the followers of God shall live out all their days, and the hoary head be always found in the way of righteousness.

Verse 5. The streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls] The progeny shall be numerous, healthy, and happy. Their innocent gambols and useful exercises shall be a means of health, and a proof of happiness. To be healthy, children must have exercise. But they cannot take exercise, except in the way of play and diversion: ergo, such playfulness cannot be sinful. Let them be kept from evil words, lying, swearing, and scurrility; and all the rest may be innocent.

Verse 6. If it be marvellous] You may think that this is impossible, considering your present low condition: but suppose it be impossible in your eyes, should it be so in mine? saith the Lord of hosts.

Verse 7. I will save my people from the east country, and from the west] From every land in which

A. M. 3486. B. C. 518. Ol. LXV. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 17.

8 And I will bring them, and they shall dwell in the midst of Jerusalem: [n] and they shall be my people, and I will be their God, [o] in truth and in righteousness.

9 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; [p] Let your hands be strong, ye that hear in these days these words by the mouth of [q] the prophets, which were in [r] the day that the foundation of the house of the LORD of hosts was laid, that the temple might be built.

10 For before these days [s] there was no [t] hire for man, nor any hire for beasts; [u] neither was there any peace to him that went out or came in because of the affliction: for I set all men every one against his neighbour.

11 But now I will not be unto the residue of this people as in the former days, saith the LORD of hosts.

12 [v] For the seed shall be [w] prosperous; the vine shall give her fruit, and [x] the ground shall give her increase, and [y] the heavens shall give their dew; and I will cause the remnant of this people to possess all these things.

13 And it shall come to pass, that as ye were [z] a curse among the heathen, O house of Judah, and house of Israel; so will I save you, and [a] ye shall be a blessing: fear not, but [b] let your hands be strong.

A. M. 3486. B. C. 518. Ol. LXV. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 17.

14 For thus saith the LORD of hosts; [c] As I thought to punish you, when your fathers provoked me to wrath, saith the LORD of hosts, [d] and I repented not:

15 So again have I thought in these days to do well unto Jerusalem and to the house of Judah: fear ye not.

16 These are the things that ye shall do: [e] Speak ye every man the truth to his neighbour; [f] execute the judgment of truth and peace in your gates:

17 [g] And let none of you imagine evil in your hearts against his neighbour; and [h] love no false oath: for all these are things that I hate, saith the LORD.

18 And the word of the LORD of hosts came unto me, saying,

19 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; [i] The fast of the fourth month, [k] and the fast of the fifth, [l] and the fast of the seventh, [m] and the fast of the tenth, shall be to the house of Judah [n] joy and gladness, and cheerful [o] feasts; [p] therefore love the truth and peace.

20 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; It shall

[n] Jer. xxx. 22; xxxi. 1, 33; chap. xiii. 9.——[o] Jer. iv. 2. [p] Hag. ii. 4; ver. 18.——[q] Ezra v. 1, 2.——[r] Hag. ii. 18. [s] Or, the hire of man became nothing, &c.——[t] Hag. i. 6, 9, 10; ii. 16.——[u] 2 Chron. xv. 5.——[v] Hos. ii. 21, 22; Joel ii. 22; Hag. ii. 19.——[w] Heb. of peace.——[x] Psa. lxvii. 6.——[y] See Hag. i. 10.——[z] Jer. xlii. 18.——[a] Gen. xii. 2; Ruth iv. 11, 12; Isa. xix. 24, 25; Zeph. ii. 20; Hag. ii. 19.

[b] Ver. 9.——[c] Jer. xxxi. 28.——[d] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 16; chap. i. 6.——[e] Chap. vii. 9; ver. 19; Eph. iv. 25.——[f] Heb. judge truth and the judgment of peace.——[g] Prov. iii. 29; chap. vii. 10. [h] Chap. v. 3, 4.——[i] Jer. lii. 6, 7.——[k] Jer. lii. 12, 13; chapter vii. 3, 5.——[l] 2 Kings xxv. 25; Jer. xli. 1, 2.——[m] Jer. lii. 4. [n] Esth. viii. 17; Isa. xxxv. 10.——[o] Or, solemn, or set times. [p] Ver. 16.

any of them may be found. But these promises principally regard the Christian Church, or the bringing in the Jews with the fulness of the Gentiles.

Verse 9. By the mouth of the prophets] The day or time of the foundation was about two years before, as this discourse of the prophet was in the fourth year of Darius. After this God raised up prophets among them.

Verse 10. For before these days there was no hire for man] Previously to this, ye had no prosperity; ye had nothing but civil divisions and domestic broils. I abandoned you to your own spirits, and to your own ways.

Verse 12. For the seed shall be prosperous] Ye shall be a holy and peaceable people; and God will pour down his blessing on yourselves, your fields, and your vineyards.

Verse 13. As ye were a curse] Instead of being execrated among the people, ye shall be blessed; instead of being reproached, ye shall be commended. Ye shall be a blessing to all the nations round about. All these promises we may expect to be completely fulfilled when the Jews acknowledge their Messiah.

O house of Judah, and house of Israel] The restoration shall be complete, when both Israel and Judah are brought back.

Verse 16. Speak ye every man the truth] See chap. vii. 9, 10.

Verse 19. The fast of the fourth month] To commemorate the taking of Jerusalem; 2 Kings xxv. 3; Jer. xxxix. 2, and lii. 6, 7.

The fast of the fifth] In memory of the ruin of the temple, 2 Kings xxv. 8; Jer. lii. 12, 13.

The fast of the seventh] For the murder of Gedaliah, Jer. xli. 1–17.

The fast of the tenth] In commemoration of the siege of Jerusalem, which began on the tenth day of the tenth month; 2 Kings xxv. 1; Jer. lii. 4; Ezek. xxiv. 1, 2; and see on chap. vii. 3, 5.

Cheerful feasts] Ye shall find all your evils so completely redressed, that these mournful fasts shall be turned into joyful feasts.

Verse 20. There shall come people] Similar promises to those in Isa. ii. 3, and in Mic. iv. 1, 2. Many Gentiles, as well as Jews, will then be found devoting themselves to the Lord.

A. M. 3486. B. C. 518. Ol. LXV. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 17.

yet come to pass, that there shall come people, and the inhabitants of many cities:

21 And the inhabitants of one city shall go to another, saying, [q] Let us [r] go [s] speedily [t] to pray before the LORD, and to seek the LORD of hosts: I will go also.

22 Yea, [u] many people and strong nations shall come to seek the LORD of hosts in Jerusalem, and to pray before the LORD.

A. M. 3486. B. C. 518. Ol. LXV. 3. Anno Tarquinii Superbi, R. Roman., 17.

23 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; In those days it shall come to pass, that ten men shall [v] take hold out of all languages of the nations, even shall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, We will go with you: for we have heard [w] that God is with you.

[q] Isa. ii. 3; Mic. iv. 1, 2.——[r] Or, continually.——[s] Hebrew, going.——[t] Heb. to entreat the face of the LORD; chapter vii. 2.——[u] Isaiah lx. 3, &c.; lxvi. 23.——[v] Isaiah iii. 6; iv. 1. [w] 1 Cor. xiv. 25.

Verse 21. I will go also.] This is the answer of the person invited. It is a good work. We must have God for our friend. We cannot expect this unless we seek him: and as we know not what an hour may bring forth, let us go speedily.

Verse 22. And strong nations] This may refer to the conversion of the Mohammedan tribes; especially to those in the vicinity of Palestine. Perhaps even the Egyptians, inhabitants of Arabia Petræa, of Syria, &c.

Verse 23. Ten men—shall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew] The converts from among the Gentiles shall be to the Jews as ten to one. But ten may here signify a great number, without comparison. And from this scripture it appears as if the Jews, converted to God, should be the instruments of converting many Gentiles. See on Isa. iii. 6. Catching hold of the skirt is a gesture naturally used to entreat assistance and protection. This and the three foregoing verses, says Abp. Newcome, refer to the great accession of converts which the Jewish Church received between the captivity and the coming of Christ; to the number of Christian disciples which the Jewish preachers made, and to the future conversions of which the restoration of the Jews will be an eminent cause.

CHAPTER IX.

Syria, Phœnicia, and Palestine, were conquered by Nebuchadnezzar, and afterwards by Alexander. Some apply the beginning of this chapter (1–7) to the one event, and some to the other. The close of the seventh verse relates to the number of Philistines that should become proselytes to Judaism; (see Joseph. Antiq. xiv. 15, 4;) and the eighth, to the watchful providence of God over his temple in those troublesome times. From this the prophet passes on to that most eminent instance of God's goodness to his Church and people, the sending of the Messiah, with an account of the peaceable tendency and great extent of his kingdom, 9, 10. God then declares that he has ratified his covenant with his people, delivered them from their captivity, and restored them to favour, 11, 12. In consequence of this, victory over their enemies is promised them in large and lofty terms, with every other kind of prosperity, 13–17. Judas Maccabeus gained several advantages over the troops of Antiochus, who was of Grecian or Macedonian descent. But without excluding these events, it must be allowed that the terms of this prophecy are much too strong to be confined to them; their ultimate fulfilment must therefore be referred to Gospel times.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

THE [a] burden of the word of the LORD in the land of Hadrach, and [b] Damascus shall be the rest thereof: when [c] the eyes of man, as of all the tribes of Israel, shall be toward the LORD.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

2 And [d] Hamath also shall border thereby; [e] Tyrus, and [a] Jer. xxiii. 33.——[b] Amos i. 3.——[c] 2 Chron. xx. 12; Psa. cxlv. 15.——[d] Jer. xlix. 23.——[e] Isa. xxiii.; Ezek. xxvi., xxvii., xxviii.; Amos i. 9.

NOTES ON CHAP. IX.

Verse 1. The burden of the word of the Lord] The oracle contained in the word which Jehovah now speaks.

This is a prophecy against Syria, the Philistines, Tyre, and Sidon, which were to be subdued by Alexander the Great. After this the prophet speaks gloriously concerning the coming of Christ, and redemption by him.

Most learned men are of opinion that this and the succeeding chapters are not the work of Zechariah, but rather of Jeremiah, Hosea, or some one before the captivity. It is certain that chap. xi. 12, 13 is quoted Matt. xxvii. 9, 10, as the language of Jeremiah the prophet. The first eight chapters appear by the introductory parts to be the prophecies of Zechariah: they stand in connection with each other, are pertinent to the time when they were delivered, are uniform in style and manner, and constitute a regular whole; but the six last chapters are not expressly assigned to Zechariah, and are unconnected with those that precede:—the three first of them are unsuitable in many

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

[f] Zidon, though it be very [g] wise.

3 And Tyrus did build herself a strong hold, and [h] heaped up silver as the dust, and fine gold as the mire of the streets.

4 Behold, [i] the LORD will cast her out, and he will smite [k] her power in the sea; and she shall be devoured with fire.

5 [l] Ashkelon shall see it, and fear; Gaza also shall see it, and be very sorrowful, and Ekron; for her expectation shall be ashamed; and the king shall perish from Gaza, and Ashkelon shall not be inhabited.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum. 30.

6 And a bastard shall dwell [m] in Ashdod, and I will cut off the pride of the Philistines.

7 And I will take away his [n] blood out of his mouth, and his abominations from between his teeth: but he that remaineth, even he shall be for our God, and he shall be as a governor in Judah, and Ekron as a Jebusite.

8 And [o] I will encamp about mine house

[f] 1 Kings xvii. 9; Ezek. xxviii. 21; Obad. 20.——[g] Ezek. xxviii. 3. &c.——[h] Job xvii. 16; Ezek. xxviii. 4, 5.——[i] Isa. xxiii. 1.——[k] Ezek. xxvi. 1, 7.——[l] Jer. xlvii. 1, 5; Zeph. ii. 4. [m] Amos i. 8,——[n] Heb. bloods.——[o] Psa. xxxiv. 7; chap. ii. 5.

parts to the time when Zechariah lived; all of them have a more adorned and poetical turn of composition than the eight first chapters, and they manifestly break the unity of the prophetical book.

I conclude, from internal marks, that these three chapters, (ix., x., xi.,) were written much earlier than the time of Jeremiah, and before the captivity of the ten tribes. They seem to suit Hosea's age and manner; but whoever wrote them, their Divine authority is established by the two quotations from them, chap. ix. 9, and xi. 12, 13. See below.

The twelfth, thirteenth, and fourteenth chapters form a distinct prophecy, and were written after the death of Josiah, chap. xii. 11; but whether before or after the captivity, and by what prophet, is uncertain, although I incline to think that the author lived before the destruction of Jerusalem by the Babylonians. See on chap. xiii. 2–6. They are twice quoted in the New Testament, chap. xii. 10, and xiii. 7.—Newcome.

My own opinion is, that these chapters form not only a distinct work, but belong to a different author. If they do not belong to Jeremiah, they form a thirteenth book in the minor prophets, but the inspired writer is unknown.

The land of Hadrach] The valley of Damascus, or a place near to Damascus. Alexander the Great gained possession of Damascus, and took all its treasures; but it was without blood; the city was betrayed to him.

Damascus shall be the rest thereof] The principal part of this calamity shall fall on this city. God's anger rests on those whom he punishes, Ezek. v. 13, xvi. 42, xxiv. 13. And his rod, or his arm, rests upon his enemies, Ps. cxxv. 3; Isai. xxx. 23. See Newcome.

When the eye of man] Newcome translates thus:

"For the eye of Jehovah is over man,
And over all the tribes of Israel."

This is an easy sense, and is followed by the versions.

Verse 2. And Hamath also shall border thereby] Hamath on the river Orontes; and Tyre and Sidon, notwithstanding their political wisdom, address, and cunning, shall have a part in the punishment.

These prophecies are more suitable to the days of Jeremiah than to those of Zechariah; for there is no evidence—although Alexander did take Damascus, but without bloodshed—that it was destroyed from the times of Zechariah to the advent of our Lord. And as Tyre and Sidon were lately destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar, it is not likely that they could soon undergo another devastation.

Verse 3. And Tyrus did build herself] The rock on which Tyre was built was strongly fortified; and that she had abundance of riches has been already seen, Ezek. xxviii. 1, &c.

Verse 4. Will smite her power in the sea] See Ezek. xxvi. 17. Though Alexander did take Tyre, Sidon, Gaza, &c.; yet it seems that the prediction relative to their destruction was fulfilled by Nebuchadnezzar. See Amos i. 6–8; Zeph. ii. 4, 7.

Verse 5 Ashkelon shall see it, and fear] All these prophecies seem to have been fulfilled before the days of Zechariah; another evidence that these last chapters were not written by him.

Her expectation shall be ashamed] The expectation of being succoured by Tyre.

Verse 6. A bastard shall dwell in Ashdod] This character would suit Alexander very well, who most certainly was a bastard; for his mother Olympia said that Jupiter Ammon entered her apartment in the shape of a dragon, and begat Alexander! Could her husband Philip believe this? The word signifies a stranger.

Verse 7. I will take away his blood out of his mouth] The Philistines, when incorporated with the Israelites, shall abstain from blood, and every thing that is abominable.

And Ekron as a Jebusite.] As an inhabitant of Jerusalem. Many of the Philistines became proselytes to Judaism; and particularly the cities of Gaza, and Ashdod. See Joseph. Antiq. lib. xiii., c. 15, s. 4.

Verse 8. I will encamp about mine house] This may apply to the conquests in Palestine by Alexander, who, coming with great wrath against Jerusalem, was met by Jaddua the high priest and his fellows in their sacred robes, who made intercession for the city and the temple; and, in consequence, Alexander spared both, which he had previously purposed to destroy. He showed the Jews also much favour, and remitted the tax every seventh year, because the law on that year forbade them to cultivate their ground. See this because of the army, because of him that passeth by, and because of him that returneth: and [p] no oppressor shall pass through them any more: for now [q] have I seen with mine eyes.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2, Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 17.

9 [r] Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion; shout, O daughter of Jerusalem: behold, [s] thy King cometh unto thee: he is just, and [t] having salvation; lowly, and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt the foal of an ass.

10 And I [u] will cut off the chariot from Ephraim, and the horse from Jerusalem, and the battle bow shall be cut off: and he shall speak [v] peace unto the heathen: and his dominion shall be [w] from sea even to sea, and from the river even to the ends of the ends of the earth.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII 2 Tarquinii Prisci R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

11 As for thee also, [x] by the blood of thy covenant I have sent forth thy [y] prisoners out of the pit wherein is no water.

12 Turn you to the strong hold, [z] ye prisoners of hope: even to-day do I declare that [a] I will render double unto thee;

13 When I have bent Judah for me, filled the bow with Ephraim, and raised up thy sons, O Zion, against thy sons, O Greece, and made thee as the sword of a mighty man.

14 And the LORD shall be seen over them, and [b] his arrow shall go forth as the lightning:

[p] Isa. lx. 18; Ezek. xxviii. 24.——[q] Exod. iii. 7.——[r] Isa. lxii. 11; chap. ii. 10; Matt. xxi. 5; John xii. 15.——[s] Jer. xxiii. 5; xxx. 9; John i. 49; Luke xix. 38.——[t] Or, saving himself. [u] Hos. i. 7; ii. 18; Mic. v. 10; Hag. ii. 22.

[v] Eph. ii. 14, 17.——[w] Psa. lxxii. 8.——[x] Or, whose covenant is by blood; Exod. xxiv. 8; Heb. x. 29; xiii. 20.——[y] Isa. xlii. 7; li. 14; lxi. 1.——[z] Isa. xlix. 9.——[a] Isa. lxi. 7.——[b] Psa. xviii. 14; lxxvii. 17; cxliv. 6.

extraordinary account in Joseph. Antiq. lib. xi., c. 8, s. 5. Bishop Newcome translates: "I will encamp about my house with an army, so that none shall pass through or return."

Verse 9. Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion] See this prophecy explained on Matt. xxi. 5.

Behold, thy King cometh] Not Zerubbabel, for he was never king; nor have they had a king, except Jesus the Christ, from the days of Zedekiah to the present time.

He is just] The righteous One, and the Fountain of righteousness.

Having salvation] He alone can save from sin, Satan, death, and hell.

Lowly] Without worldly pomp or splendour; for neither his kingdom, nor that of his followers, is of this world.

Riding upon an ass] God had commanded the kings of Israel not to multiply horses. The kings who broke this command were miserable themselves, and scourgers to their people. Jesus came to fulfil the law. Had he in his title of king rode upon a horse, it would have been a breach of a positive command of God; therefore, he rode upon an ass, and thus fulfilled the prophecy, and kept the precept unbroken. Hence it is immediately added—

Verse 10. I will cut off the chariot from Ephraim, and the horse from Jerusalem] No wars shall be employed to spread the kingdom of the Messiah; for it shall be founded and established, "not by might nor by power, but by the Spirit of the Lord of hosts," chap. iv. 6.

Verse 11. As for thee also (Jerusalem) by the blood of thy covenant] The covenant made with Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and the Israelites in general, and ratified by the blood of many victims; until the time should come in which the Messiah should shed his blood, as typified by the ancient sacrifices.

I have sent forth thy prisoners] Those who were under the arrest of God's judgments; the human race, fast bound in sin and misery, and who by the pitifulness of his tender mercy were loosed, he dying in their stead.

Verse 12. Turn you to the strong hold] Ye who feel your sins, and are shut up under a sense of your guilt, look up to him who was delivered for your offences, and rose again for your justification. Ye have hope; let that hope lead you to faith, and that faith to the blood of the covenant; and, through that blood, to GOD, the Father of all.

I will render double unto thee] Give thee an abundance of peace and salvation.

Verse 13. When I have bent Judah] Judah is the bow, and Ephraim is the arrows; and these are to be shot against the Greeks. I am inclined, with Bp. Newcome, to consider that the language of this prophecy is too strong to point out the only trifling advantage which the Maccabees gained over Antiochus, who was of Macedonian descent; and it is probable that these prophecies remain to be fulfilled against the present possessors of Javan or Greece, Macedonia, and a part of Asia Minor.

Verse 14. The Lord shall be seen over them] Shadowing and refreshing them, as the cloud did the camp in the wilderness.

His arrow shall go forth as the lightning] They shall be conquered in a way that will show that God fights for his followers.

The description here is very sublime; we have a good imitation of it in Nonnus:—

Και τοτε γαιαν απασαν επεκλυσεν ὑετιος Ζευς,
Πυκνωσας νεφεεσσιν ὁλον πολον· ουρανιη γαρ
Βροντοις παταγοισι Διος μυκησατο σαλπιγξ.
NONN. DIONYS., lib. 6. ver. 229.

"When heaven's dread trumpet, sounding from on high,
Breaks forth in thunders through the darken'd sky;
The pregnant clouds to floods of rain give birth.
And stormy Jove o'erwhelms the solid earth."

J. B. B. C.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

and the Lord God shall blow the trumpet, and shall go [c] with whirlwinds of the south.

15 The Lord of hosts shall defend them; and they shall devour, and [d] subdue with sling-stones; and they shall drink, and make a noise as through wine; and they [e] shall be filled like bowls, and as [f] the corners of the altar.

16 And the Lord their God shall save them in that day as the flock of his people: for [g] they shall be as the stones of a crown, [h] lifted up as an ensign upon his land.

17 For [i] how great is his goodness, and how great is his beauty! [k] corn shall make the young men [l] cheerful, and new wine the maids.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

[c] Isa. xxi. 1.——[d] Or, subdue the stones of the sling.——[e] Or, shall fill both the bowls, &c.——[f] Lev. iv. 18, 24; Deut. xii. 27.

[g] Isa. lxii. 3; Mal. iii. 17.——[h] Isa. xi. 12.——[i] Psa. xxxi. 19. [k] Joel iii. 18; Amos ix. 14.——[l] Or, grow, or speak.

In these two verses there is a fine image, and an allusion to a particular fact, which have escaped the notice of every commentator. I must repeat the verses: 13: When I have bent Judah for me, filled the bow with Ephraim, and raised up thy sons, O Zion, against thy sons, O Greece, and made thee as the sword of a mighty man. 14: And the Lord shall be seen over them, and his arrows shall go forth like lightning. The reader will consult what is said on Hos. vii. 16, relative to the oriental bow, which resembles a ☽ in its quiescent state, and must be recurved in order to be strung. Here, Judah is represented as the recurved bow; Ephraim, as an arrow placed on the string, and then discharged against the Javanites or Greeks with the momentum of lightning; the arrow kindling in its course through the air, and thus becoming the bolt of death to them against whom it was directed.

Volat illud, et incandescit eundo,
Et quos non habuit, sub nubibus invenit ignes.

"It flies apace; and, heating, mounts on high, Glows in its course, and burns along the sky."

Verse 15. The Lord of hosts shall defend them] He alone is the sure trust of his Church.

Subdue with sling-stones] This was an ancient and powerful instrument in the hands of the Hebrews. See the note on Judg. xx. 16.

They shall drink] After the victory gained as above, thy people shall hold a feast, and drink and be filled with wine. There is no intimation here that they shall drink the blood of their enemies, as some barbarous nations were accustomed to do. When they have gained the victory, they shall banquet abundantly on the spoils taken from the enemy.

As the corners of the altar.] They shall pour out libations of wine at the foot of the altar, as the priests were accustomed to pour out the blood of the victims.

Verse 16. Shall save them in that day] They are his flock, and he is their Shepherd; and, as his own, he shall save and defend them.

As the stones of a crown] אבני נזר מתנוססות abney nezer mithnosesoth, "crowned stones erecting themselves;" i. e., being set up by themselves, as monuments of some deliverance, they seem to be lifting themselves up; offering themselves to the attention of every passenger. It may however refer to stones anointed with oil; a sort of temporary altars set up to the Lord for a victory gained. The same word is used, Lev. xxi. 12: "Because the crown, נזר nezer, of the anointing oil of his God is upon him." Perhaps most of those upright stones, standing in circles, which pass for druidical monuments, were erected to commemorate victories, or to grace the tomb of an illustrious chief. These verses may refer to some final victory over the enemies of God's people.

Verse 17. How great is his goodness] In himself and towards them.

And how great is his beauty!] His comeliness holiness, and purity, put in and upon them.

Corn shall make the young men cheerful] They shall be gladdened and strengthened by plenty of food; and they shall speak aloud of God's mercies in their harvest home.

And new wine the maids.] Who shall prepare the wine from an abundant vintage.

CHAPTER X.

The promise of prosperity and plenty in the close of the preceding chapter leads the prophet to suggest, next, the means of obtaining them; supplication to Jehovah, and not to idols, whose worship had already proved a fertile source of calamities, 1–3. The rest of the chapter (like the preceding) promises to the Jews a restoration to their own land under rulers and governors, victory over their enemies, and much increase and prosperity; and this in a manner so miraculous, that it is described, 4–12, by allusions to the deliverance from Egypt.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

ASK ye [a] of the LORD [b] rain [c] in the time of the latter rain; so the LORD shall make [d] bright clouds, and give them showers of rain, to every one grass in the field.

2 For the [e] idols have spoken vanity, and the diviners have seen a lie, and have told false dreams; they [g] comfort in vain: therefore they went their way as a flock, they [h] were troubled, [i] because there was no shepherd.

3 Mine anger was kindled against the shepherds, [k] and I [l] punished the goats: for the LORD of hosts [m] hath visited his flock the house of Judah, and [n] hath made them as his goodly horse in the battle.

5 Out of him came forth [q] the corner, out of him [p] the nail, out of him the battle-bow, out of him every oppressor together.

5 And they shall be as mighty men, which [q] tread down their enemies in the mire of the streets in the battle: and they shall fight, because the LORD is with them, and [r] the riders on horses shall be confounded.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

6 And I will strengthen the house of Judah, and I will save the house of Joseph, and [s] I will bring them again to place them; for I [t] have mercy upon them: and they shall be as though I had not cast them off: for I am the LORD their God, and [u] will hear them.

7 And they of Ephraim shall be like a mighty man, and their [v] heart shall rejoice as through wine: yea, their children shall see it, and be glad; their heart shall rejoice in the LORD.

8 I will [w] hiss for them, and gather them; for I have redeemed them: [x] and they shall increase as they have increased.

9 And [y] I will sow them among the people: and they shall [z] remember me in far

[a] Jer. xiv. 22. — [b] Deut. xi. 14. — [c] Job xxix. 23; Joel ii. 23. — [d] Or, lightnings; Jer. x. 13. — [e] Jer. x. 8; Hab. ii. 18. [f] Heb. teraphim; Judg. xvii. 5. — [g] Job xiii. 4. — [h] Or, answered that, &c. — [i] Ezek. xxxiv. 5. — [k] Ezek. xxxiv. 16. — [l] Heb. visited upon. — [m] Luke i. 68. — [n] Cant. i. 9.

[o] Num. xxiv. 17; 1 Sam. xiv. 38; Isa. xix. 13. — [p] Isa. xxii. 23. — [q] Psa. xviii. 42. — [r] Or, they shall make the riders on horses ashamed. — [s] Jer. iii. 18; Ezek. xxxvii. 21. — [t] Hos. i. 7. [u] Chap. xiii. 9. — [v] Psa. civ. 15; chap. ix. 15. — [w] Isa. v. 26. [x] Isa. xlix. 19; Ezek. xxxvi. 37. — [y] Hos. ii. 23. — [z] Deut. xxx. 1.

NOTES ON CHAP. X.

Verse 1. Ask ye of the Lord rain] Rain in the due seasons—1. To impregnate the seed when sown; and 2. To fill the ear near the time of harvest—was so essential to the fertility of the land, and the well-being of the people, that it stands well among the chief of God's mercies; and the promise of it here shows that God designs to ensure the prosperity promised, by using those means by which it was promoted.

Verse 2. The idols have spoken vanity] This is spoken of the Jews, and must refer to their idolatry practised before the captivity, for there were no idols after.

Therefore they went their way] They were like a flock that had no shepherd, shifting from place to place, and wandering about in the wilderness, seeking for pasture, wherever they might find it. Some think that the idols and diviners were those of the Seleucidæ Greeks, who excited their masters with promises of success against the Maccabees. Others think that the Babylonish captivity is foretold; for a determined future event is frequently spoken of by the prophets as past.

Verse 3. Mine anger was kindled against the shepherds] Bad kings and bad priests. I will punish the goats; these were the wicked priests, who were shepherds by their office, and goats by the impurity of their lives.

As his goodly horse in the battle.] The honourable war horse, or the horse that carried the general's equipage. In the unaccountable variation of interpreters on these chapters, this, among other things, is thought to be spoken of Matthias and Judas Maccabeus, who assembled the people from all quarters, as a shepherd gathers his sheep together; and led them against the sons of Greece, the Seleucidæ Greeks. Others refer every thing here to times before the captivity.

Verse 4. Out of him came forth the corner] This is spoken of the tribe of Judah: all strength, counsel, and excellence came from that tribe. The corner stone, the ornament and completion of the building; the nail, by which the tents were fastened, and on which they hung their clothes, armour, &c.; the battle-bow, the choicest archers.

Every oppressor together.] Those heroes and generals, by whom, under God, their foes should be totally routed. Newcome translates, "Every ruler together." Perhaps all this is spoken of the Messiah.

Verse 5. They shall be as mighty men] The Maccabees and their successors.

Riders on horses] The Macedonians, who opposed the Maccabees, and had much cavalry; whereas the Jews had none, and even few weapons of war; yet they overcame these horsemen.

Verse 6. I will strengthen the house of Judah] I doubt whether the sixth, seventh, eighth, and ninth verses are not to be understood of the future ingathering of the Jews in the times of the Gospel. See Jer. iii. 14; xxiii. 6; Hosea i. 2; vi. 11.

Verse 7. Ephraim shall be like a mighty man] This tribe was always distinguished for its valour.

Verse 8. I will hiss for them] אשרקה eshrekah, "I will shriek for them;" call them with such a shrill strong voice, that they shall hear me, and find that it is the voice of their redemption.

Verse 9. I will sow them among the people] Whercountries; and they shall live with their children, and turn again.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

10 [a] I will bring them again also out of the land of Egypt, and gather them out of Assyria; and I will bring them into the land of Gilead and Lebanon; and [b] place shall not be found for them.

11 [c] And he shall pass through the sea with affliction, and shall smite the waves in the sea, and all the deeps of the river shall dry up: and [d] the pride of Assyria shall be brought down, and [e] the sceptre of Egypt shall depart away.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587 Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

12 And I will strengthen them in the LORD: and [f] they shall walk up and down in his name, saith the LORD.

[a] Isa. xi. 11, 16; Hos. xi. 11.——[b] Isa. xlix. 20.——[c] Isa. xi. 15, 16.——[d] Isa. xiv. 25.——[e] Ezek. xxx. 13.——[f] Mic. iv. 5.

ever they have been dispersed, my voice in the preaching of the Gospel shall reach them. And they shall remember me, and they and their children shall turn again to the Lord, through Messiah their King.

Verse 10. Out of the land of Egypt] I will bring them out of all the countries where they have been dispersed, and bring them back to their own land; and they shall be so numerous that they shall scarcely find there, in all its length and breadth, a sufficiency of room. If all the Jews that are now scattered over the face of the earth were gathered together, they would make a mighty nation. And God will gather them together. As a wonderful providence has preserved them in every place, so a wondrous providence will collect them from every place of their dispersion. When the great call comes, no one soul of them shall be left behind.

Verse 11. And he shall pass through the sea] Here is an allusion to the passage of the Red Sea, on their coming out of Egypt, and to their crossing Jordan, when they went into the promised land; the waves or waters of both were dried up, thrown from side to side, till all the people passed safely through. When they shall return from the various countries in which they now sojourn, God will work, if necessary, similar miracles to those which he formerly worked for their forefathers; and the people shall be glad to let them go, however much they may be profited by their operations in the state. Those that oppose, as Assyria and Egypt formerly did, shall be brought down, and their sceptre broken.

Verse 12. I will strengthen them in the Lord] I, the God of Israel, will strengthen them in the Lord—Jesus, the Messiah; and thus indeed the Chaldee: I will strengthen them, במימרא דיי bemeymra dayai, in or by the WORD of Jehovah, the same personal Word which we so often meet with in the Chaldee paraphrases or Targum.

They shall walk up and down in his name] In the name of the Messiah. Saith the Lord—GOD speaks here, not of himself, but concerning his Christ. The Jews shall have complete liberty; they shall appear everywhere as a part of the flock of Christ, and no difference be made between them and the converted Gentiles. They shall be all one fold under one Shepherd and Bishop of all souls.

CHAPTER XI.

The commencement of this chapter relates to the destruction of Jerusalem and the Jewish polity, probably by the Babylonians; at least in the first instance, as the fourth verse speaks of the people thus threatened as the prophet's charge, 1–6. The prophet then gives an account of the manner in which he discharged his office, and the little value that was put on his labours. And this he does by symbolical actions, a common mode of instruction with the ancient prophets, 7–14. After the prophet, on account of the unsuccessfulness of his labours, had broken the two crooks which were the true badges of his pastoral office, (to denote the annulling of God's covenant with them, and their consequent divisions and dispersions,) he is directed to take instruments calculated to hurt and destroy, perhaps an iron crook, scrip, and stones, to express by these symbols the judgments which God was about to inflict on them by wicked rulers and guides, who should first destroy the flock, and in the end be destroyed themselves, 15–17. Let us now view this prophecy in another light, as we are authorized to do by Scripture, Matt. xxvii. 7. In this view the prophet, in the person of the Messiah, sets forth the ungrateful returns made to him by the Jews, when he undertook the office of shepherd in guiding and governing them; how they rejected him, and valued him and his labours at the mean and contemptible price of thirty pieces of silver, the paltry sum for which Judas betrayed him. Upon which he threatens to destroy their city and temple; and to give them up to the hands of such guides and governors as should have no regard to their welfare.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

OPEN [a] thy doors, O Lebanon, that the fire may devour thy cedars.

2 Howl, fir tree; for the cedar is fallen; because the [b] mighty is spoiled: howl, O ye oaks of Bashan; [c] for [d] the forest of the vintage is come down.

3 There is a voice of the howling of the shepherds; for their glory is spoiled; a voice of the roaring of young lions; for the pride of Jordan is spoiled.

4 Thus saith the LORD my God; [e] Feed the flock of the slaughter;

5 Whose possessors slay them, and [f] hold themselves not guilty: and they that sell them [g] say, Blessed be the LORD; for I am rich: and their own shepherds pity them not.

6 For I will no more pity the inhabitants of the land, saith the LORD: but lo, I will [h] deliver the men every one into his neighbour's hand, and into the hand of his king: and they shall smite the land, and out of their hand I will not deliver them.

A. M. cir. 3437 B. C. cir. 587 Ol. XLVIII 2. Tarquinii Prisci R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

7 And I will [i] feed the flock of slaughter, [k] even you, [l] O poor of the flock. And I took unto me two staves; the one I called Beauty, and the other I called [m] Bands; and I fed the flock.

8 Three shepherds also I cut off [n] in one month; and my soul [o] loathed them, and their soul also abhorred me.

9 Then said I, I will not feed you: [p] that that dieth, let it die: and that that is to be cut off, let it be cut off; and let the rest eat everyone the flesh [q] of another.

10 And I took my staff, even Beauty, and

[a] Chap. x 10.——[b] Or, gallants.——[c] Isa. xxxii. 12.——[d] Or, the defenced forest.——[e] Ver. 7.——[f] Jer. ii. 3; l. 7.——[g] Deut. xxix. 19; Hos. xii. 8.——[h] Heb. make to be found.——[i] Ver. 4.

[k] Or, verily the poor.——[l] Zeph. iii. 12; Matt. xi. 5.——[m] Or, Binders.——[n] Hos. v. 7.——[o] Heb. was straitened for them. [p] Jer. xv. 2; xliii. 11.——[q] Heb. of his fellow, or neighbour.

NOTES ON CHAP. XI.

Verse 1. Open thy doors, O Lebanon] I will give Mr. Joseph Mede's note upon this verse:—

"That which moveth me more than the rest, is in chap. xi., which contains a propheey of the destruction of Jerusalem, and a description of the wickedness of the inhabitants, for which God would give them to the sword, and have no more pity upon them. It is expounded of the destruction by Titus; but methinks such a propheey was nothing seasonable for Zachary's time, (when the city yet for a great part lay in her ruins, and the temple had not yet recovered hers,) nor agreeable to the scope. Zachary's commission, who, together with his colleague Haggai, was sent to encourage the people, lately returned from captivity, to build their temple, and to instaurate their commonwealth. Was this a fit time to foretell the destruction of both, while they were yet but a-building? And by Zachary too, who was to encourage them! Would not this better befit the desolation by Nebuchadnezzar!" I really think so. See Mr. J. Mede's lxi. Epistle.

Lebanon signifies the temple, because built of materials principally brought from that place.

Verse 2. Howl, fir tree] This seems to point out the fall and destruction of all the mighty men.

Verse 3. Young lions] Princes and rulers. By shepherds, kings or priests may be intended.

Verse 4. Feed the flock of the slaughter] This people resemble a flock of sheep fattened for the shambles; feed, instruct, this people who are about to be slaughtered.

Verse 5. Whose possessors] Governors and false prophets, slay them, by leading them to those things that will bring them to destruction.

And they that sell them] Give them up to idolatry; and bless God, strange to tell, that they get secular advantage by the establishment of this false religion.

Verse 6 For I will no more pity] I have determined to deliver them into the hands of the Chaldeans.

Verse 7. And I will feed the flock of slaughter] I showed them what God had revealed to me relative to the evils coming upon the land; and I did this the more especially for the sake of the poor of the flock.

Two staves] Two shepherd's crooks. One I called Beauty—that probably by which they marked the sheep; dipping the end into vermillion, or some red liquid. And this was done when they were to mark every tenth sheep, as it came out of the field, when the tithe was to be set apart for the Lord.

The other I called Bands] Probably that with the hook or crook at the head of it, by which the shepherd was wont to catch the sheep by the horns or legs when he wished to bring any to hand.

And I fed the flock.] These two rods show the beauty and union of the people, while under God as their Shepherd. It was the delight of God to see them in a state of peace and harmony.

Verse 8. Three shepherds also I cut off in one month] Taking this literally, some think the three shepherds mean the three Maccabees, Judas, Jonathan, and Simon; others, the three wicked high priests, Jason, Alcimus, and Menelaus; others, the three last princes of the Asmonean race, Alexander, Hyrcanus, and Antigonus.

Perhaps three orders may be intended: 1. The priesthood. 2. The dictatorship, including the Scribes, Pharisees, &c. 3. The magistracy, the great sanhedrin, and the smaller councils. These were all annihilated by the Roman conquest.

Verse 9. I will not feed you] I shall instruct you no longer: some of you are appointed to death by famine; others, to be cut off by the sword; and others of you, to such desperation that ye shall destroy one another.

Verse 10. I took my staff—Beauty, and cut it

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

cut it asunder, that I might break my covenant which I had made with all the people.

11 And it was broken in that day: and [r] so [s] the poor of the flock that waited upon me knew that it was the word of the LORD.

12 And I said unto them, [t] If ye think good, give me my price, and if not, forbear. So they [u] weighed for my price thirty pieces of silver.

13 And the LORD said unto me, Cast it unto the [v] potter: a goodly price that I was prized at of them. And I took the thirty pieces of silver, and cast them to the potter in the house of the LORD.

14 Then I cut asunder mine other staff, even [w] Bands, that I might break the brotherhood between Judah and Israel.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

15 And the LORD said unto me, [x] Take unto thee yet the instruments of a foolish shepherd.

16 For lo, I will raise up a shepherd in the land, which shall not visit those that be [y] cut off, neither shall seek the young one, nor heal that that is broken, nor [z] feed that that standeth still: but he shall eat the flesh of the fat, and tear their claws in pieces.

17 [a] Wo to the idol shepherd that leaveth the flock! the sword shall be upon his arm, and upon his right eye: his [b] arm shall be clean dried up, and his right eye shall be utterly darkened.

[r] Or, the poor of the flock, &c., certainly knew.——[s] Zeph. iii. 12; ver. 7.——[t] If it be good in your eyes.——[u] Matt. xxvi. 15; see Exod. xxi. 32.

[v] Matt. xxvii. 9, 12.——[w] Or, Binders.——[x] Ezek. xxxiv. 2, 3, 4.——[y] Or, hidden.——[z] Or, bear.——[a] Jer. xxiii. 1; Ezek. xxxiv. 2; John x. 12, 13.——[b] Psa. x. 5.

asunder] And thus I showed that I determined no longer to preserve them in their free and glorious state. And thus I brake my covenant with them, which they had broken on their part already.

Verse 11. So the poor of the flock] The pious, who attended to my teaching, saw that this was the word—the design, of God.

Verse 12. If ye think good, give me my price] "Give me my hire." And we find they rated it contemptuously; thirty pieces of silver being the price of a slave, Exod. xxi. 32.

Verse 13. And the Lord said unto me, Cast it unto the potter] Jehovah calls the price of his prophet his own price; and commands that it should not be accepted, but given to a potter, to foreshadow the transaction related Matt. xxvii. 7.

"Earthen vessels were used in the temple; and we may suppose that some Levites were employed within the sacred precincts to furnish them. To these, the humblest of his ministers in the temple, God commands that the degrading price should be cast." This is the substance of the notes on these two verses, given by Apb. Newcome.

We may look at it in another light, Give me my price! הבו שכרי habu sichri, bring my price, or give him my price; that is, Give the money to Judas which you have agreed to give him; for he can neither betray me nor you crucify me, but by my own permission. But if not, forbear; take time to consider this bloody business, and in time forbear. For though I permit you to do it, yet remember that the permission does not necessitate you to do it; and the salvation of the world may be effected without this treachery and murder.

See my notes on this place, Matt. xxvii. 9, where I have examined the evidence for the reading of "Zechariah the prophet," instead of "Jeremiah."

Verse 14. That I might break the brotherhood] I cannot, says Newcome, explain this passage, without supposing that the kingdom of Israel subsisted when the prophet wrote it; and that either the wars between Judah and Israel are referred to, (see 2 Kings xvi. 5,) or the captivity of the ten tribes, when the brotherly connection between these kingdoms ceased.

Verse 15. The instruments of a foolish shepherd.] Such as a bag without bread, a scrip without measure, and a staff without a hook, &c.; things that were needless or of no use; to point out to the Jewish pastors, who took no care of the flock, but devoured them, or ruled them with force and with cruelty.

Verse 16. I will raise up a shepherd in the land] Some wicked king; and Newcome supposes Hoshea may be meant. See 2 Kings xvii. 1, 2, and to such an abominable sovereign the prophecy may well apply.

Verse 17. Wo to the idol shepherd] רעי האליל roi haclil, "the worthless," or "good for nothing shepherd." The shepherd in name and office, but not performing the work of one. See John x. 11.

The sword shall be upon his arm] Punishment shall be executed upon the wicked Jews, and especially their wicked kings and priests. See ver. 16.

Arm—the secular power; right eye—the ecclesiastical state.

His arm shall be clean dried up] The secular power shall be broken, and become utterly inefficient.

His right eye shall be utterly darkened] Prophecy shall be restrained; and the whole state, ecclesiastical and civil, shall be so completely eclipsed, that none of their functions shall be performed. This may refer to the worthless and wicked governor mentioned in the preceding verse.

There are several things in this chapter that are very obscure, and we can hardly say what opinion is right; nor is it at all clear whether they refer to a very early or late period of the Jewish history.

CHAPTER XII.

The first part of this chapter, with several passages in chap. xiv., relates to an invasion that shall be made on the inhabitants of Judea and Jerusalem in the latter ages of the world, some time after the restoration and settlement of the Jews in their own land. It also describes, in very magnificent terms, the signal interposition of God in their favour. From this the prophet proceeds in the latter part of the chapter, 10–14, to describe the spiritual mercies of God in converting his people; and gives a very pathetic and affecting account of the deep sorrow of that people, when brought to a sense of their great sin in crucifying the Messiah, comparing it to the sorrow of a parent for his first-born and only son, or to the lamentations made for Josiah in the valley of Megiddon, 2 Chron. xxxv. 24, 25. A deep, retired sorrow, which will render the mourners for a season insensible to all the comforts and enjoyments of the most endearing society.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

THE burden of the word of the LORD for Israel, saith the LORD, [a] which stretcheth forth the heavens, and layeth the foundation of the earth, and [b] formeth the spirit of man within him.

2 Behold, I will make Jerusalem [c] a cup of [d] trembling unto all the people round about, [e] when they shall be in the siege both against Judah and against Jerusalem.

3 [f] And in that day will I make Jerusalem [g] a burdensome stone for all people: all that burden themselves with it shall be cut in pieces, though all the people of the earth be gathered together against it.

4 In that day, saith the LORD, [h] I will smite every horse with astonishment, and his rider with madness: and I will open mine eyes upon the house of Judah, and will smite every horse of the people with blindness.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

5 And the governors of Judah shall say in their heart, [i] The inhabitants of Jerusalem shall be my strength in the LORD of hosts their God.

6 In that day will I make the governors of Judah [k] like a hearth of fire among the wood, and like a torch of fire in a sheaf; and they shall devour all the people round about, on the right hand and on the left: and Jerusalem shall be inhabited again in her own place, even in Jerusalem.

7 The LORD also shall save the tents of Judah first, that the glory of the house of David and the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem do not magnify themselves against Judah.

8 In that day shall the LORD defend the

[a] Isa. xlii. 5; xliv. 24; xlv. 12, 18; xlviii. 13.——[b] Num. xvi. 22; Eccles. xii. 7; Isa. lvii. 16; Heb. xii. 9.——[c] Isa. li. 17, 22, 23.——[d] Or, slumber, or poison.——[e] Or, and also against Judah shall he be which shall be in siege against Jerusalem.——[f] Ver. 4, 6, 8, 9, 11; chap. xiii. 1; xiv. 4, 6, 8, 9, 13.——[g] Matt. xxi. 44.——[h] Psa. lxxvi. 6; Ezek. xxxviii. 4.——[i] Or, There is strength to me and to the inhabitants, &c.; Joel iii. 16.——[k] Obad. 18.

NOTES ON CHAP. XII.

Verse 1. The burden of the word of the Lord] This is a new prophecy. It is directed both to Israel and Judah, though Israel alone is mentioned in this verse.

Which stretcheth forth the heavens] See on Isa. xlii. 5.

Formeth the spirit of man within him.] Then it is not the same substance with his body. It is a SPIRIT within HIM.

Verse 2. Jerusalem a cup of trembling] The Babylonians, who captivated and ruined the Jews, shall in their turn be ruined.

I incline to think that what is spoken in this chapter about the Jews and Jerusalem, belongs to the "glory of the latter times."

Shall be in the siege] This may refer to some war against the Church of Christ, such as that mentioned Rev. xx. 9.

Verse 3. A burdensome stone] Probably referring to that stone which was thrown on the breast of a culprit adjudged to lose his life by stoning, by which the whole region of the thorax, heart, lungs, liver, &c., was broken to pieces.

Verse 4. I will smite every horse] Some apply this to the wars of the Maccabees with the Syrians; but it is more likely to be a prophecy not yet accomplished. The terms are too strong for such petty and evanescent victories as those of the Maccabees.

Verse 5. The governors of Judah] This supposes a union between the two kingdoms of Israel and Judah.

Verse 6. Jerusalem shall be inhabited again] This seems to refer to the future conversion of the Jews, and their "return to their own land."

Verse 7. The Lord also shall save the tents of Judah first] This, I suppose, refers to the same thing. The Gospel of Christ shall go from the least to the greatest. Eminent men are not the first that are called; the poor have the Gospel preached to them. And this is done in the wise providence of God, that the "glory of the house of David," &c., that secular influence may appear to have no hand in the matter; and that God does not send his Gospel to a great man, because he is such.

Verse 8. He that is feeble among them—shall be as David] Here is a marked difference between Judaism inhabitants of Jerusalem; and [l] he that is [m] feeble [n] among them at that day shall be as David; and the house of David shall be as God, as the angel of the LORD before them.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

9 And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will seek to [o] destroy all the nations that come against Jerusalem.

10 [p] And I will pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and supplications: and they shall [q] look upon me whom they have pierced, and they shall mourn for him, [r] as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him, as one that is in bitterness for his first-born.

A. M. cir. 3417 B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

11 In that day shall there be a great [s] mourning in Jerusalem, [t] as the mourning of Hadadrimmon in the valley of Megiddon.

12 [u] And the land shall mourn, [v] every family apart; the family of the house of David apart, and their wives apart; the family of the house of [w] Nathan apart, and their wives apart;

13 The family of the house of Levi apart, and their wives apart; the family [x] of Shimei apart, and their wives apart;

14 All the families that remain, every family apart, and their wives apart.

[l] Joel iii. 10.——[m] Or, abject.——[n] Heb. fallen.——[o] Hag. ii. 22; ver. 3.——[p] Jer. xxxi. 9; l. 4; Ezek. xxxix. 29; Joel ii. 28.——[q] John xix. 34, 37; Rev. i. 7.——[r] Jer. vi. 26; Amos viii. 10.

[s] Acts ii. 37.——[t] 2 Kings xxiii. 29; 2 Chron. xxxv. 24. [u] Matthew xxiv. 30; Revelation i. 7.——[v] Hebrew, families, families.——[w] 2 Sam. v. 14; Luke iii. 31.——[x] Or, of Simeon, as LXX.

and Christianity. So clear, full, and efficient shall be the salvation of believers under the Gospel, that the feeblest among them shall be as strong, as full of courage, and as successful as David when he went against Goliath. The least in the kingdom of heaven was greater than John the Baptist.

And the house of David—as the angel of the Lord] The family, the Church of the true David, the Lord Jesus, shall be as the angel of the Lord; shall stand in the Divine presence like Gabriel; for Christ hath said, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." So "we all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed from glory into glory, as by the Spirit of the Lord." Thus the house of David, the true Christians, shall here walk with, after, and before God.

Verse 9. I will seek to destroy all the nations] When this time shall arrive, all nations that "will not receive the faith of our Lord Jesus" shall be destroyed, when the longsuffering of God shall no longer wait upon them. This seems to belong to a period yet very remote.

Verse 10. I will pour upon the house of David] This is the way in which the Jews themselves shall be brought into the Christian Church. 1. "They shall have the spirit of grace;" God will show them that he yet bears favour to them. 2. They shall be excited to fervent and continual prayer for the restoration of the Divine favour. 3. Christ shall be preached unto them; and they shall look upon and believe in him whom they pierced, whom they crucified at Jerusalem. 4. This shall produce deep and sincere repentance; they shall mourn, and be in bitterness of soul, to think that they had crucified the Lord of life and glory, and so long continued to contradict and blaspheme, since that time.

Verse 11. A great mourning] A universal repentance.

As the mourning of Hadadrimmon] They shall mourn as deeply for the crucified Christ as their forefathers did for the death of Josiah, who was slain at Hadadrimmon in the valley of Megiddon. See 2 Chron. xxxv. 24, 25.

Verse 12. Every family apart] The meaning of the word apart, which recurs here so often, may be this: Their sorrow shall be so deep and distressing, that every one will endeavour to avoid another, and vent his grief and distress of soul in private. And even husbands and wives shall separate from each other in this general mourning, as they were obliged to do by law in certain circumstances. See 1 Cor. vii. 5, and the note there.

CHAPTER XIII.

After the humiliation and conversion of the Jews, foretold in the preceding chapter, they are here promised the full pardon of their sins, and a deliverance from idolatry and false prophets, 1–6. Prophecy concerning the death of the Messiah, and the persecution of his disciples, 7. The remaining verses may refer to those Jewish converts to Christianity who survived the calamities which their country suffered from the Romans, 8, 9.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

IN [a] that day there shall be [b] a fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem for sin and for [c] uncleanness.

2 And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the LORD of hosts, that I will [d] cut off the names of the idols out of the land, and they shall no more be remembered: and also I will cause [e] the prophets and the unclean spirit to pass out of the land.

3 And it shall come to pass, that when any shall yet prophesy, then his father and his mother that begat him shall say unto him, Thou shalt not live; for thou speakest lies in the name of the LORD: and his father and his mother that begat him [f] shall thrust him through when he prophesieth.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

4 And it shall come to pass in that day, that [g] the prophets shall be ashamed every one of his vision, when he hath prophesied; neither shall they wear [h] a [i] rough garment [k] to deceive:

5 [l] But he shall say, I am no prophet, I am a husbandman; for man taught me to keep cattle from my youth.

6 And one shall say unto him, What are these wounds in thine hands? Then he shall answer, Those with which I was wounded in the house of my friends.

7 Awake, O sword, against [m] my Shepherd, and against the man [n] that is my Fellow,

---

[a] Chap. xii. 3.——[b] Heb. ix. 14; 1 Pet. i. 19; Rev. i. 5. [c] Heb. separation for uncleanness.——[d] Exod. xxiii. 13; Josh. xxiii. 7; Psa. xvi. 4; Ezek. xxx. 13; Hos. ii. 17; Mic. v. 12, 13.——[e] 2 Pet. ii. 1.

[f] Deut. xiii. 6, 8; xviii. 20.——[g] Mic. iii. 6, 7.——[h] 2 Kings i. 8; Isa. xx. 2; Matt. iii. 4.——[i] Heb. a garment of hair. [k] Heb. to lie.——[l] Amos vii. 14.——[m] Isa. xl. 11; Ezek. xxxiv. 23.——[n] John x. 30; xiv. 10, 11; Phil. ii. 6.

NOTES ON CHAP. XIII.

Verse 1. In that day there shall be a fountain opened] This chapter is a continuation of the preceding, and should not have been separated from it.

A fountain] The source of mercy in Christ Jesus; perhaps referring to the death he should die, and the piercing of his side, when blood and water issued out.

To the house of David] To David's family, and such like persons as it included. See the history of David and his sons, and then learn for whom Christ shed his blood.

Inhabitants of Jerusalem] Such like persons as the Jews were in every part of their history, and in their last times, when they clamoured for the blood of Christ, and pursued him unto death! Learn from this also for whom Christ died! These were the worst of the human race; and if he died for them, none need despair. They rejected, betrayed, crucified, slew, and blasphemed Christ, and afterwards persecuted his followers. For these he died! Yes: and he tasted death for EVERY MAN.

For sin and for uncleanness.] For the removal of the guilt of sin, and for the purification of the soul from the uncleanness or pollution of sin.

Verse 2. I will cut off the names of the idols] There shall not only be no idolatry, but the very names of the idols shall be forgotten, or be held in such abhorrence that no person shall mention them. This prophecy seems to be ancient, and to have been delivered while idolatry had prevalence in Israel and Judah.

I will cause the prophets] All false teachers.

And the unclean spirit] That which leads to impurity, the spirit of divination; the lust of the flesh, and of the eye, and the pride of life. Satan shall have neither a being in, nor power over, the hearts of sincere believers in Christ.

Verse 3. When any shall yet prophesy] Falsely; such shall be the horror of such an evil, that there shall be no toleration of it. Itself, and they who practise it, shall be everywhere destroyed.

Verse 4. Neither shall they wear a rough garment] A rough garment made of goats' hair, coarse wool, or the coarse pile of the camel, was the ordinary garb of God's prophets. And the false prophets wore the same; for they pretended to the same gifts, and the same spirit, and therefore they wore the same kind of garments. John Baptist had a garment of this kind.

Verse 5. But he shall say, I am no prophet] This must be the case of a false prophet or diviner, who had been obliged to give up his infamous practice, and become even a labourer in the land. But having been known to be such, he is questioned by the people to see if he still were addicted in heart to the same practices. He declares he is no prophet, neither true nor false; that he is now a husbandman, and was brought up a herdsman.

Verse 6. What are these wounds in thine hands?] Marks which he had received in honour of his idols. But he shall excuse himself by stating that he had received these marks in his own family; when, most probably, they had been dedicated to some of those idols. See the note on Isa. xliv. 5. I do not think that these words are spoken at all concerning Jesus Christ. I have heard them quoted in this way; but I cannot hear such an application of them without horror. In quoting from the Old Testament in reference to the New, we cannot be too cautious. We may wound the truth instead of honouring it.

Verse 7. Awake, O sword, against my Shepherd] This is generally understood of Jesus Christ. The sword is that of Divine justice, which seemed to have been long asleep, and should long ago have struck either MAN, or his SUBSTITUTE, the Messiah. Jesus is here called God's Shepherd, because he had appointed him to feed and govern, as well as to save, the whole lost world. This is a prosopopœia, and the address saith the LORD of hosts: [o] smite the Shepherd, and the sheep shall be scattered: and I will turn mine hand upon [p] the little ones.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquini Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

8 And it shall come to pass, that in all the land, saith the LORD, two parts therein shall be cut off and die; [q] but the third shall be left therein.

9 And I will bring the third part [r] through the fire, and will [s] refine them as silver is refined, and will try them as gold is tried: [t] they shall call on my name, and I will hear them: [u] I will say, It is my people; and they shall say, The LORD is my God.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2 Tarquinii Prisci R. Roman. cir. annum 30.

[o] Matt. xxvi. 31; Mark xiv. 27.——[p] Matt. xviii. 10, 14; Luke xii. 32.——[q] Rom. xi. 5.——[r] Isa. xlviii. 10.——[s] 1 Pet. i. 6, 7.

[t] Psa. l. 15; xci. 15; chap. x. 6.——[u] Psa. cxliv. 15; Jer. xxx. 22; Ezek. xi. 20; Hos. ii. 23; chap. viii. 3.

to the sword is very poetic. There is a fine passage in Æschylus to the same effect:—

> Ξενος δε κληροις επινωμᾳ,
> Χαλυβος Σκυθων αποικος,
> Κτεανων χρηματοδαιτας
> Πικρος, ωμοφρων σιδαρος,
> Χθονα ναιειν διαπηλας
> Ὁποσαν αν και φθιμενοισι κατεχειν,
> Των μεγαλων πεδιων αμοιρος,
> ÆSCHYL. Sept. cont. Theb. 733.

"The rude barbarian, from the mines
Of Scythia, o'er the lots presides;
Ruthless to each his share assigns,
And the contested realm divides:
To each allots no wider a domain
Than, on the cold earth as they lie,
Their breathless bodies occupy,
Regardless of an ampler reign:
Such narrow compass does the sword—
A cruel umpire—their high claims afford."
POTTER.

The man that is my Fellow] גבר עמיתי ויעל veal geber amithi, "upon the strong man," or, "the hero that is with ME;" my neighbour. "The WORD was God, and the WORD was WITH God;" John i. 1. "I and my Father are ONE;" John x. 30.

Smite the Shepherd, and the sheep shall be scattered] This is quoted by our Lord, Matt. xxvi. 31, in relation to his disciples, who should be scattered on his crucifixion: and they were so; for every one, giving up all for lost, went to his own house.

And I will turn mine hand upon the little ones.] I will take care of the little flock, and preserve them from Jewish malice and Gentile persecution. And so this little flock was most wondrously preserved, and has been increasing from year to year from that time to the present day.

Verse 8. Two parts therein shall be cut off] In the war with the Romans.

But the third shall be left] Those who believe on the Lord Jesus Christ shall be preserved alive; and not one of these perished in the siege, or afterwards, by those wars.

Verse 9. I will bring the third part through the fire] The Christian Church shall endure a great fight of afflictions, by which they shall be refined—not consumed.

They shall call on my name] In this way shall they offer all their prayers and supplications to God.

I will say, It is my people] The Church that I have chosen in the place of the Jews who have filled up the measure of their iniquity.

And they shall say, The Lord is my God] And thus communion shall be established between me and them for ever. Thus there shall be a general restoration.

CHAPTER XIV.

The commencement of this chapter relates to the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans, and to the calamities consequent on that event. From this great Jewish tragedy the prophet immediately passes to the utter extermination of the enemies of Christianity in the latter days. God will display his power in behalf of his people in a manner so astonishing and miraculous, that even they themselves, and much more their enemies, shall be struck with terror, 4, 5. The national prosperity of the Jews shall then be permanent and unmixed, 6, 7; and these people shall be made the instruments of converting many to the faith of the Messiah, 8, 9. The great increase and prosperity of the Christian Church, the New Jerusalem, is then described in terms accommodated to Jewish ideas; and the most signal vengeance denounced against all her enemies, 10–19. From that happy period God's name will be honoured in every thing, and his worship everywhere most reverently observed, 20, 21.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

BEHOLD, [a] the day of the LORD cometh, and thy spoil shall be divided in the midst of thee.

2 For [b] I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle; and the city shall be taken, and [c] the houses rifled, and the women ravished; and half of the city shall go forth into captivity, and the residue of the people shall not be cut off from the city.

3 Then shall the LORD go forth, and fight against those nations, as when he fought in the day of battle.

4 And his feet shall stand in that day [d] upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east, and the mount of Olives shall cleave in the midst thereof toward the east and toward the west, [e] and there shall be a very great valley; and half of the mountain shall remove toward the north, and half of it toward the south.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30

5 And ye shall flee to the valley of [f] the mountains; [g] for the valley of the mountains shall reach unto Azal: yea, ye shall flee like as ye fled from before the [h] earthquake in the days of Uzziah king of Judah: [i] and the LORD my God shall come, and [k] all the saints with thee.

6 And it shall come to pass in that day, [l] that the light shall not be [m] clear, nor [n] dark:

7 But [o] it shall be [p] one day [q] which shall be known to the LORD, not day, nor night: but it shall come to pass, that at [r] evening time it shall be light.

8 And it shall be in that day, that living [s] waters shall go out from Jerusalem: half of [a] Isa. xiii. 9; Joel ii. 31; Acts ii. 20. — [b] Joel iii. 2. — [c] Isa. xiii. 16. — [d] See Ezek. xi. 23. — [e] Joel iii. 12, 14. — [f] Or, my mountains. — [g] Or, when he shall touch the valley of the mountains to the place he separated. — [h] Amos i. 1. — [i] Matt. xvi. 27; xxiv. 30, 31; xxv. 31; Jude 14.

[k] Joel iii. 11. — [l] That is, it shall not be clear in some places, and dark in other places of the world. — [m] Heb. precious. [n] Heb. thickness. — [o] Or, the day shall be one. — [p] Rev. xxii. 5. [q] Matt. xxiv. 36. — [r] Isa. xxx. 26; lx. 19, 20; Rev. xxi. 23. [s] Ezek. xlvii. 1; Joel iii. 18; Rev. xxii. 1.

NOTES ON CHAP. XIV.

Verse 1. Behold, the day of the Lord cometh] This appears to be a prediction of that war in which Jerusalem was finally destroyed, and the Jews scattered all over the face of the earth; and of the effects produced by it.

Verse 2. I will gather all nations] The Romans, whose armies were composed of all the nations of the world. In this verse there is a pitiful account given of the horrible outrages which should be committed during the siege of Jerusalem, and at its capture.

The residue of the people shall not be cut off] Many were preserved for slaves, and for exhibition in the provincial theatres.

Verse 3. Then shall the Lord go forth, and fight against those nations] Against the Romans, by means of the northern nations; who shall destroy the whole empire of this once mistress of the world. But this is an obscure place.

Verse 4. And his feet shall stand] He shall appear in full possession of the place, as a mighty conqueror.

And the mount of Olives shall cleave] God shall display his miraculous power as fully in the final restoration of the Jews, as he did when he divided the Red Sea that their forefathers might pass through dry-shod. Some refer this to the destruction of the city by the Romans. It was on the mount of Olives that Titus posted his army to batter Jerusalem. Here the tenth legion that came to him from Jericho was placed. JOSEPH. De Bello, lib. vi. c. 3. It was from this mountain that our Lord beheld Jerusalem, and predicted its future destruction, Luke xix. 41, with Matt. xxiv. 23; and it was from this mountain that he ascended to heaven, (Acts i. 12,) utterly leaving an ungrateful and condemned city.

And half of the mountain shall remove] I really think that these words refer to the lines of circumvallation, to intrenchments, redoubts, &c., which the Romans made while carrying on the siege of this city; and particularly the lines or trenches which the army made on Mount Olivet itself.

Verse 5. Ye shall flee to the valley] Some think this refers to the valley through which Zedekiah and others endeavoured to escape when Nebuchadnezzar pressed the siege of Jerusalem: but it appears to speak only of the Jewish wars of the Romans.

Azal] This, as a place, is not known. If a place, it was most probably near to Jerusalem; and had its name from that circumstance.

Verse 6. The light shall not be clear, nor dark] Metaphorically, there will be a mixture of justice and mercy in all this; or a bright light and darkness. Mercy shall triumph over judgment. There shall be darkness—distress, &c.; but there shall be more light—joy and prosperity—than darkness.

Verse 7. At evening time it shall be light.] At the close of this awful visitation, there shall be light. The light of the glorious Gospel shall go forth from Jerusalem; and next, from the Roman empire to every part of the earth.

Verse 8. Living waters shall go out] There shall be a wide diffusion of Divine knowledge, and of the plan of human salvation, which shall go out by apostles and preachers, first from Jerusalem, then to Syria, Asia Minor, Greece, Italy, the isles of the sea, Britain, &c.

The former sea, and—the hinder sea] The Dead Sea and the Mediterranean; see on Joel ii. 20 These are metaphors.

In summer] In time of drought; or in the countries where there was no knowledge of God, there shall these waters flow. The stream shall never them toward the [t] former sea, and half of them toward the hinder sea: in summer and in winter shall it be.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

9 And the LORD shall be [u] King over all the earth: in that day shall there be [v] one LORD, and his name one.

10 All the land shall be [w] turned [x] as a plain from Geba to Rimmon south of Jerusalem; and it shall be lifted up, and [y] inhabited [z] in her place, from Benjamin's gate unto the place of the first gate, unto the corner gate, [a] and from the tower of Hananeel, unto the king's wine-presses.

11 And men shall dwell in it, and there shall be [b] no more utter destruction; [c] but Jerusalem [d] shall be safely inhabited.

12 And this shall be the plague wherewith the LORD will smite all the people that have fought against Jerusalem; Their flesh shall consume away while they stand upon their feet, and their eyes shall consume away in their holes, and their tongue shall consume away in their mouth.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

13 And it shall come to pass in that day, that [e] a great tumult from the LORD shall be among them; and they shall lay hold every one on the hand of his neighbour, and [f] his hand shall rise up against the hand of his neighbour.

14 And [g] Judah also shall fight [h] at Jerusalem; [i] and the wealth of all the heathen round about shall be gathered together, gold, and silver, and apparel, in great abundance.

15 And [k] so shall be the plague of the horse, of the mule, of the camel, and of the ass, and of all the beasts that shall be in these tents, as this plague.

16 And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left of all the nations which came against Jerusalem shall even [l] go up from year to year

[t] Or, eastern, Joel ii. 20.——[u] Dan. ii. 44; Rev. xi. 15. [v] Eph. iv. 5, 6.——[w] Or, compassed.——[x] Isa. xl. 4.——[y] Chap. xii. 6.——[z] Or, shall abide.——[a] Neh. iii. 1; xii. 30; Jer. xxxi. 38.——[b] Jer. xxxi. 40.——[c] Jer. xxiii. 6.

[d] Or, shall abide.——[e] 1 Sam. xiv. 15, 20.——[f] Judg. vii. 22; 2 Chron. xx. 23; Ezek. xxxviii. 21.——[g] Or, thou also, O Judah, shalt.——[h] Or, against.——[i] Ezek. xxxix. 10, 17, &c.——[k] Ver. 12.——[l] Isa. lx. 6, 7, 9; lxvi. 23.

cease; it shall run in summer as well as winter. These are living waters—perennial, incessant; and waters that shall preserve life. See John vii. 37.

Verse 9. And the Lord shall be King] When this universal diffusion of Divine knowledge shall take place. Wherever it goes, the laws of God shall be acknowledged; and, consequently, he shall be King over the whole earth.

One Lord, and his name one.] There shall be in those blessed days only one religion, and one form of religion. There shall not be gods many, and lords many. All mankind shall be of one religion, the essence of which is, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, soul, mind, and strength; and thy NEIGHBOUR as thyself."

Verse 10. All the land shall be turned as a plain] Or rather, "He shall encompass the whole land as a plain." He shall cast his defence all around it; from Geba, in Benjamin, north of Jerusalem, (Josh. xxi. 17,) to Rimmon in Judah, to the south of Jerusalem, Josh. xv. 32.

It shall be lifted up] The city shall be exalted.

And inhabited in her place] Jerusalem shall be rebuilt in the very place in which it originally stood. From Benjamin's gate, which was probably on the north side of Jerusalem, unto the place of the first gate, supposed to be that called the old gate, Neh. iii. 6, xii. 39, placed by Lightfoot towards the south-west.

Unto the corner gate] See 2 Kings xiv. 13.

The tower of Hananeel] This tower and the corner gate seem to be placed as two extremities of the city.

Unto the king's wine-presses] Near to the king's gardens, southward.—See Newcome.

Verse 11. There shall be no more utter destruction] After this final restoration of Jerusalem it shall never more be destroyed; but as this was the first city of the living God upon earth, so shall it be the last; it shall be safely inhabited. It shall see war no more.

Verse 12. And this shall be the plague] All her enemies shall be destroyed.

Their flesh shall consume away] These are the effects of famine which are described in this verse.

Verse 13. A great tumult from the Lord] Among those enemies of his Church, who shall engage and destroy each other.

Verse 14. And Judah also shall fight] They shall have little else to do than take the spoil, the wealth of all the heathen round about; gold, silver, and apparel.

Verse 15. So shall be the plague of the horse, and the mule] There shall be plagues on the substance of the enemies of the Church, as there were on the cattle and goods of the Egyptians.

Verse 16. Shall even go up from year to year] The Jews had three grand original festivals, which characterized different epochs in their history, viz.:—

1. The feast of the passover, in commemoration of their departure from Egypt.

2. The feast of pentecost, in commemoration of the giving of the law upon Mount Sinai.

3. The feast of tabernacles, in commemoration of their wandering forty years in the wilderness.

This last feast is very properly brought in here to

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

to worship the King, the LORD of hosts, and to keep [m] the feast of tabernacles.

17 [n] And it shall be, that whoso will not come up of all the families of the earth unto Jerusalem to worship the King, the LORD of hosts, even upon them shall be no rain.

18 And if the family of Egypt go not up, and come not, [o] that [p] have no rain, there shall be the plague wherewith the LORD will smite the heathen that come not up to keep the feast of tabernacles.

19 This shall be the [q] punishment of Egypt, and the punishment of all nations that come not up to keep the feast of tabernacles.

A. M. cir. 3417. B. C. cir. 587. Ol. XLVIII. 2. Tarquinii Prisci, R. Roman., cir. annum 30.

20 In that day shall there be upon the [r] bells of the horses, [s] HOLINESS UNTO THE LORD; and the pots in the LORD's house shall be like the bowls before the altar.

21 Yea, every pot in Jerusalem and in Judah shall be holiness unto the LORD of hosts: and all they that sacrifice shall come and take of them, and seethe therein: and in that day there shall be no more the [t] Canaanite in [u] the house of the LORD of hosts.

[m] Lev. xxiii. 34, 43; Deut. xvi. 13, 16; Neh. viii. 14; Hos. xii. 9; John vii. 2.——[n] Isa. lx. 12.——[o] Heb. upon whom there is not.

[p] Deut. xi. 10.——[q] Or, sin.——[r] Or, bridles.——[s] Isa. xxiii. 18.——[t] Isa. xxxv. 8; Job iii. 17; Rev. xxi. 27; xxii. 15. [u] Eph. ii. 19, 20, 21, 22.

point out the final restoration of the Jews, and their establishment in the light and liberty of the Gospel of Christ, after their long wandering in vice and error.

Verse 17. Upon them shall be no rain.] Those who do not worship God shall not have his blessing; and those who do not attend Divine ordinances cannot have the graces and blessings which God usually dispenses by them. On such slothful, idle Christians, there shall be no rain!

Verse 18. If the family of Egypt] This may allude to those Jews who, flying from the persecution of Antiochus Epiphanes, settled in Egypt, and built a temple at Heliopolis, under the direction of Onias, son of the high priest. Joseph. Antiq. lib. xiii., c. 6, and WAR, lib. vii., c. 36. If these do not rejoin their brethren, they shall have no rain, no interest in the favour of God.

Verse 19. This shall be the punishment—of all nations that come not up] God will have his public worship established everywhere, and those who do not worship him shall lie under his curse.

Verse 20. Upon the bells of the horses] They appear, formerly, to have had bells on horses, camels, &c., as we have now, to amuse the animals, and encourage them in their work. In some very fine Asiatic paintings now before me, I see bells both on horses, mules, and camels; little bells tied to their legs, and larger ones about their necks, particularly in the representation of a caravan passing through the valley of serpents, in the island of Serendib, now Ceylon. The margin reads bridles.

HOLINESS UNTO THE LORD] As the Gospel is a holy system, preaching holiness and producing holiness in those who believe, so all without, as well as within, shall bear this impress; and even a man's labour shall be begun and continued, and ended in the Lord; yea, and the animals he uses, and the instruments he works with, shall be all consecrated to God through Christ.

The pots] "The meanest utensil in the house of God, Neh. x. 29, shall be as the vessels of silver, and gold used in solemn sacrifice; they shall be like the bowls before the altar."—See Newcome.

Verse 21. Yea, every pot in Jerusalem] "The utensils of the Jews shall be treated as holy, and the worshippers shall use them reverently. The idea of preparing food in them (they that—seethe therein) is taken from the custom of feasting after sacrifice. And no trafficker (see Ezek. xviii. 4) shall pollute the house of God, as was the custom when our blessed Lord cleansed the temple."—See Newcome. This is what is called the Canaanite in the house of God. The Canaanite is the merchant; and where such are tolerated in a place dedicated to Divine worship, that is not the house of the Lord of hosts. In churches and chapels, collections may be made for the simple purpose of supporting and extending the worship of Jehovah; but for no other purpose, especially on the Lord's day. Amen.

THE BOOK

OF THE

PROPHET MALACHI.

Chronological Notes relative to this Book.

Year from the Creation, according to Archbishop Usher, 3607.—Year from the vocation of Abram, 1524.—Year since the destruction of Troy, 787.—Year since the commencement of the kingdom of Israel by the Divine appointment of Saul to the regal dignity, 698.—Year from the division of Solomon's monarchy into the kingdoms of Israel and Judah, 578.—Fourth year of the ninety-fifth Olympiad.—Year from the building of Rome, according to the Varronian computation, 356.—Year before the vulgar era of Christ's nativity, 397.—Cycle of the Sun, 5.—Cycle of the Moon, 4.

CHAPTER I.

This chapter begins with showing the great and free favour which God had manifested to the Israelites, above what he had done to the Edomites, who are threatened with farther marks of the Divine displeasure; alluding, perhaps, to the calamities which they suffered from Judas Maccabeus and John Hyrcanus, (see 1 Macc. v. 65, and Joseph. Antiq. xiii. 9,) 1–5. God then reproaches his people, and especially their priests, for their ungrateful returns to his distinguished goodness, 6. They are particularly charged with sacrificing the refuse of beasts, 7–9, for which God threatens to reject them, 10, and choose other nations who will show more reverence to his name and worship, 11–14.

A. M. cir. 3607. B. C. cir. 397. Ol. cir. XCV. 4. Urbis Conditæ cir. annum 356.

THE burden of the word of the LORD to Israel [a] by Malachi.

2 [b] I have loved you, saith the LORD. Yet ye say, Wherein hast thou loved us? Was not Esau Jacob's brother? saith the LORD: yet [c] I loved Jacob,

3 And I hated Esau, and [d] laid his mountains and his heritage waste for the dragons of the wilderness.

A. M. cir. 3607. B. C. cir. 397. Ol. cir. XCV. 4. Urbis Conditæ cir. annum 356.

[a] Heb. by the hand of Malachi.—[b] Deut. vii. 8; x. 15. [c] Rom. ix. 13.

[d] Jer. xlix. 18; Ezek. xxxv. 3, 4, 7, 9, 14, 15; Obadiah 10, &c.

NOTES ON CHAP. I.

Verse 1. The burden of the word of the Lord to Israel by Malachi.] This prophet is undoubtedly the last of the Jewish prophets. He lived after Zechariah and Haggai; for we find that the temple, which was begun in their time, was standing complete in his. See chap. iii. 10. Some have thought that he was contemporary with Nehemiah; indeed, several have supposed that Malachi is no other than Ezra under the feigned name of angel of the Lord, or my angel. John the Baptist was the link that connected Malachi with Christ. According to Abp. Usher he flourished B. C. 416; but the authorized version, which we have followed in the margin, states this event to have happened nineteen years later. Both the Hebrew language and poetry had declined in his days.

Israel.—Here means the Jewish people in general.

Verse 2. Was not Esau Jacob's brother?] Have I not shown a greater partiality to the Israelites than I have to the Edomites?

I loved Jacob] My love to Jacob has been proved by giving him greater privileges and a better inheritance than what I have given to Esau.

Verse 3. And I hated Esau] I have shown him less love; Gen. xxix. 30, 31. I comparatively hated him by giving him an inferior lot. And now, I have not only laid waste the dwelling-place of the Edomites, by the incursions of their enemies; but (ver. 4) they shall remain the perpetual monuments of my vengeance. On the subject of loving Jacob and hating Esau, see the notes on Gen. xxvii., and Rom. ix. 13. Let it be remembered, 1. That there is not a word spoken here concerning the eternal state of either Jacob or Esau. 2. That what is spoken conceros merely their earthly possessions. And, 3. That it does not concern the two brothers at all, but the posterity of each.

A. M. cir. 3607. B. C. cir. 397. Ol. cir. XCV. 4. Urbis Conditæ cir. annum 356.

4 Whereas Edom saith, We are impoverished, but we will return and build the desolate places; thus saith the LORD of hosts, They shall build, but I will throw down; and they shall call them, The border of wickedness, and, The people against whom the LORD hath indignation for ever.

5 And your eyes shall see, and ye shall say, [e] The LORD will be magnified [f] from [g] the border of Israel.

6 A son [h] honoureth his father, and a servant his master: [i] if then I be a father, where is mine honour? and if I be a master, where is my fear? saith the LORD of hosts unto you, O priests, that despise my name. [k] And ye say, Wherein have we despised thy name?

7 [l] Ye offer [m] polluted bread upon mine altar; and ye say, Wherein have we polluted thee? In that ye say, [n] The table of the LORD is contemptible.

8 And [o] if ye offer the blind [p] for sacrifice, is it not evil? and if ye offer the lame and sick, is it not evil? offer it now unto thy governor; will he be pleased with thee, or [q] accept thy person? saith the LORD of hosts.

9 And now, I pray you, beseech [r] God that he will be gracious unto us: [s] this hath been [t] by your means: will he regard your persons? saith the LORD of hosts.

A. M. cir. 3607. B. C. cir. 397. Ol. cir. XCV. 4. Urbis Conditæ cir. annum 356.

10 Who is there even among you that would shut the doors for naught? [u] neither do ye kindle fire on mine altar for naught. I have no pleasure in you, saith the LORD of hosts, [v] neither will I accept an offering at your hand.

11 For [w] from the rising of the sun even unto the going down of the same my name shall be great [x] among the Gentiles; [y] and in every place [z] incense shall be offered unto my name, and a pure offering; [a] for my name shall be great among the heathen, saith the LORD of hosts.

12 But ye have profaned it, in that ye say, [b] The table of the LORD is polluted; and the fruit thereof, even his meat, is contemptible.

13 Ye said also, Behold, what a weariness is it! [c] and ye have snuffed at it, saith the LORD of hosts; and ye brought that which was torn, and the lame, and the sick; thus ye brought an offering: [d] should I accept this of your hand? saith the LORD.

14 But cursed be [e] the deceiver, [f] which hath in his flock a male, and voweth, and sacrificeth unto the LORD a corrupt thing: for [g] I am a great King, saith the LORD of hosts, and my name is dreadful among the heathen.

---

[e] Psa. xxxv. 27.——[f] Or, upon.——[g] Heb. from upon.——[h] Exod. xx. 12.——[i] Luke vi. 46.——[k] Chap. ii. 14, 17; iii. 7, 8, 13.
[l] Or, Bring unto, &c.——[o] Deut. xv. 21.——[n] Ezek. xli. 22; ver. 12.——[o] Lev. xxii. 22; Deut. xv. 21; ver. 14.——[p] Heb. to sacrifice.——[q] Job xlii. 8.——[r] Heb. the face of God.——[s] Hos. xiii. 9.——[t] Heb. from your hand.

[u] 1 Cor. ix. 13.——[v] Isa. i. 11; Jer. vi. 20; Amos v. 21.
[w] Psa. cxiii. 3; Isa. lix. 19.——[x] Isa. lx. 3, 5.——[y] John iv. 21, 23; 1 Tim. ii. 8.——[z] Rev. viii. 3.——[a] Isaiah lxvi. 19, 20.
[b] Ver. 7.——[c] Or, whereas ye might have blown it away.——[d] Lev. xxii. 20, &c.——[e] Ver. 8.——[f] Or, in whose flock is.——[g] Psa. xlvii. 2; 1 Tim. vi. 15.

Verse 4. They shall build, but I will throw down] We have already seen enough of the wickedness of the Edomites to justify the utmost severity of Divine justice against them. The pulling down predicted here was by Judas Maccabeus; see 1 Mac. v. 65; and by John Hyrcanus; see Joseph. Antiq., lib. xiii. c. 9. s. 1.

They shall call them, The border of wickedness] A wicked land. Among this people scarcely any trace of good could ever be noted.

Verse 5. Your eyes] Ye Israelites shall see, in your succeeding generations, that—

The Lord will be magnified] By his kindness in Israel, and his judgments beyond.

Verse 6. A son honoureth his father] I am your Father—where, then, is my honour? Where your filial obedience?

If I be a master, where is my fear?] The respect due to me.

Verse 7. Ye offer polluted bread] The priests, probably to ingratiate themselves with the people, took the refuse beasts, &c., and offered them to God; and thus the sacrificial ordinances were rendered contemptible.

Verse 8. Offer it now unto thy governor] פחת pechath, a word signifying a lieutenant, or viceroy, among the Chaldeans, Syrians, and Persians; for neither at this time, nor ever after, was there a king in Israel.

Verse 9. Beseech God] There were evident marks of God's displeasure in the land, and it was occasioned by these pollutions through the priests. And now he exhorts them to pray to God that they may be pardoned: for, if this practice be persisted in, God will not accept any offering made by them.

Verse 10. Who is—among you] From this we learn that there was not one sincere or honest priest among them. They were selfish and worldly; and so basely so, that not one of them would even kindle a fire on the hearth of the altar unless he were paid for it.

Verse 11. From the rising of the sun] The total abolition of the Mosaic sacrifices, and the establishment of a spiritual worship over the whole earth, is here foretold. The incense of praise, and the pure offering of the Lamb without spot, and through him a holy, loving heart, shall be presented everywhere among the Gentiles; and the Jews and their mock offerings shall be rejected.

Verse 12. Ye have profaned it] Ye have desecrated God's worship; is it any wonder that God should cast you off, and follow you with his judgments?

Verse 13. Ye have snuffed at it] A metaphor taken from cattle which do not like their fodder. They blow strongly through their nose upon it; and after this neither they nor any other cattle will eat it.

Ye brought that which was torn, and the lame, and the sick] There had never been such abominations in the Divine worship before. What was of no worth in itself, and what could not be used by its owner, was brought to God's altar, and offered for sacrifice! Was not the punishment of these wretches less than their crimes!

Verse 14. Cursed be the deceiver] Those who act thus, as they cannot elude God's notice, so neither shall they escape his curse.

And voweth, and sacrificeth—a corrupt thing] The history of Ananias and Sapphira, Acts v. 1, &c., is a complete comment on this. It was high time to break up this corrupt service; and after this time God does not appear to have paid any regard to it, for he sent them no other prophet.

CHAPTER II.

The priests reproved for their unfaithfulness in their office, for which they are threatened to be deprived of their share of the sacrifice, (the shoulder,) and rewarded only with ignominy and ordure, 1–3. The degeneracy of the order is then complained of, and they are again threatened, 4–9. The rest of the chapter reproves the people for marrying strange and idolatrous women; and multiplying divorces, with all their consequent distress, in order to make way for such illicit alliances, 10–17. See Neh. x. 30, and xiii. 33, &c.

A. M. cir. 3607. B. C. cir. 397. Ol. cir. XCV. 4. Urbis Conditæ cir. annum 356.

AND now, O ye priests, this commandment is for you.

2 [a] If ye will not hear, and if ye will not lay it to heart, to give glory unto my name, saith the LORD of hosts, I will even send a curse upon you, and I will curse your blessings: yea, I have cursed them already, because ye do not lay it to heart.

3 Behold, I will [c] corrupt your seed, and [d] spread dung upon your faces, even the dung of your solemn feasts; and [e] one shall [f] take you away with it.

A. M. cir. 3607. B. C. cir. 397. Ol. cir. XCV. 4. Urbis Conditæ cir. annum 356.

4 And ye shall know that I have sent this commandment unto you, that my covenant might be with Levi, saith the LORD of hosts.

5 [g] My covenant was with him of life and

[a] Lev. xxvi. 14, &c.; Deut. xxviii. 15, &c.——[b] 2 Pet. ii. 14. [c] Or, reprove.——[d] Heb. scatter.

[e] Or, it shall take you away to it.——[f] 1 Kings xiv. 10.——[g] Num. xxv. 12; Ezek. xxxiv. 25; xxxvii. 26.

NOTES ON CHAP. II.

Verse 2. If ye will not hear] What I have spoken, lay it to heart, and let it sink down into your souls.

Give glory unto my name] That honour that is due to me as a Father, and that fear that belongs to me as a Master, chap. i. 6.

I will even send a curse upon you] I will dispense no more good.

I will curse your blessings] Even that which ye have already shall not profit you. When temporal blessings are not the means of leading us to God and heaven, they will infallibly lead us to hell. In speaking of the abuse of temporal blessings, one of our old poets, in his homely phrase, expresses himself thus,—

Thus God's best gifts, usurped by wicked ones,
To poison turn by their con-ta-gi-ons.

Yea, I have cursed them already] This may refer, generally, to unfruitful seasons; or, particularly, to a dearth that appears to have happened about this time. See Haggai i. 6–11.

Verse 3. Behold, I will corrupt your seed] So as to render it unfruitful. Newcome translates,—"I will take away from you the shoulder." This was the part that belonged to the priest, Lev. vii. 32; Deut. xviii. 3.

Spread dung upon your faces] Instead of receiving a sacrifice at your hands, I will throw your offerings back into your faces. Here God shows his contempt for them and their offerings.

Verse 4. This commandment] That in the first verse; to drive such priests from his presence and his service.

That my covenant might be with Levi] I gave the priesthood and the service of my altar to that tribe.

Verse 5. My covenant was with him of life and peace] These are the two grand blessings given to men by the NEW Covenant, which was shadowed by the OLD. To man, excluded from the favour of God, and sentenced to death because of sin, God gave ברית berith, a covenant sacrifice, and this secured life—exemption from the death deserved by transgressors; communication of that inward spiritual life given by Christ, and issuing in that eternal life promised to all his faithful disciples. And, as it secured life, so it gave peace, prosperity, and happiness; peace between God and man, between man and man, and between man and his own conscience.

A. M. cir. 3607. B. C. cir. 397. Ol. cir. XCV. 4. Urbis Conditæ cir. annum 356.

peace; and I gave them to him [h] for the fear wherewith he feared me, and was afraid before my name.

6 [i] The law of truth was in his mouth, and iniquity was not found in his lips: he walked with me in peace and equity, and did [k] turn many away from iniquity.

7 [l] For the priest's lips should keep knowledge, and they should seek the law at his mouth: [m] for he is the messenger of the LORD of hosts.

8 But ye are departed out of the way; ye [n] have caused many to [o] stumble at the law; [p] ye have corrupted the covenant of Levi, saith the LORD of hosts.

9 Therefore [q] have I also made you contemptible and base before all the people, according as ye have not kept my ways, but [r] have [s] been partial in the law.

10 [t] Have we not all one Father? [u] hath not one God created us? why do we deal treacherously every man against his brother, by profaning the covenant of our fathers?

A. M. cir. 3607. B. C. cir. 397. Ol. cir. XCV. 4. Urbis Conditæ cir. annum 356.

11 Judah hath dealt treacherously, and an abomination is committed in Israel and in Jerusalem; for Judah hath profaned the holiness of the LORD which he [v] loved, [w] and hath married the daughter of a strange god.

12 The LORD will cut off the man that doeth this, [x] the master and the scholar, out of the tabernacles of Jacob, [y] and him that offereth an offering unto the LORD of hosts.

13 And this have ye done again, covering the altar of the LORD with tears, with weeping, and with crying out, insomuch that he regardeth not the offering any more, or receiveth it with good will at your hand.

14 Yet ye say, Wherefore? Because the LORD hath been witness between thee and [z] the wife of thy youth, against whom thou hast

[h] Deut. xxxiii. 8, 9.——[i] Deut. xxxiii. 10.——[k] Jer. xxiii 22; James v. 20.——[l] Deut. xvii. 9, 10; xxiv. 8; Lev. x. 11; Ezra vii. 10; Jer. xviii. 18; Hag. ii. 11, 12.——[m] Gal. iv. 14. [n] 1 Sam. ii. 17; Jer. xviii. 15.——[o] Or, fall in the law.——[p] Neh. xiii. 29.——[q] 1 Sam. ii. 30.

[r] Or, lifted up the face against.——[s] Heb. accepted faces. [t] 1 Cor. viii. 6; Eph. iv. 6.——[u] Gen. i. 27; Deut. iv. 32; Job xxxi. 15.——[v] Or, ought to love.——[w] Ezra ix. 1; x. 2; Neh. xiii. 23.——[x] Or, him that waketh and him that answereth.——[y] Neh. xiii. 28, 29.——[z] Prov. v. 18.

Verse 6. The law of truth was in his mouth] See the qualifications of Levi: 1. "He feared me;" he was my sincere worshipper. 2. "He was afraid;" he acted as in the presence of a just and holy God, and acted conscientiously in all that he did. 3. "My law of truth was ever in his mouth;" by this he directed his own conduct and that of others. 4. "No iniquity;" nothing contrary to justice and equity ever proceeded "from his lips." 5. "He walked with me in peace;" he lived in such a way as to keep up union with me. 6. "He did turn many away from iniquity;" by his upright administration, faithful exhortations, and pious walk, he became the instrument of converting many sinners. This character suits every genuine minister of God. And as the priest's lips should preserve knowledge, so the people should seek "the law at his mouth;" for he is the messenger of the Lord of hosts, ver. 7.

Verse 8. But ye are departed out of the way] Ye are become impure yourselves, and ye have led others into iniquity.

Verse 9. Therefore have I also made you contemptible] The people despised you because they saw that you acted contrary to your functions. This has happened repeatedly since, to several classes of priests. Not maintaining, by purity of life and soundness of doctrine, the dignity of the ministerial function, they became contemptible before the people; their meager preaching was disregarded, and their persons at last cast out as a general loathing to the universe! See what happened to the truly abominable priesthood of France and Rome, 1796–8. They were the sole cause of that infidelity that brought about the revolution. They are now partially restored; and are endeavouring to supply by grimace, paltry superstition, and jesuitical cunning, what they want in purity of morals, soundness of doctrine, and unction from God. They must mend, or look for another revolution. Mankind will no longer put up with the chaff of puerile and fanatical ceremonies in place of the wheat of God's word and worship.

Verse 10. Have we not all one Father?] From this to ver. 16 the prophet censures the marriages of Israelites with strange women, which the law had forbidden, Deut. vii. 3. And also divorces, which seem to have been multiplied for the purpose of contracting these prohibited marriages.—Newcome.

Why do we deal treacherously] Gain the affections of the daughter of a brother Jew, and then profane the covenant of marriage, held sacred among our fathers, by putting away this same wife and daughter! How wicked, cruel, and inhuman!

Verse 11. Daughter of a strange god.] Of a man who worships an idol.

Verse 12. The master and the scholar] He who teaches such doctrine, and he who follows this teaching, the Lord will cut off both the one and the other.

Verse 13. Covering the altar of the Lord with tears] Of the poor women who, being divorced by cruel husbands, come to the priests, and make an appeal to God at the altar; and ye do not speak against this glaring injustice.

Verse 14. Ye say, Wherefore?] Is the Lord angry with us! Because ye have been witness of the dealt treacherously: [a] yet is she thy companion, and the wife of thy covenant.

A. M. cir. 3607. B. C. cir. 397. Ol. cir. XCV. 4. Urbis Conditæ cir. annum 356.

15 And [b] did not he make one? Yet had he the [c] residue of the Spirit. And wherefore one? That he might seek [d] a [e] godly seed. Therefore take heed to your spirit, and let none deal [f] treacherously against the wife of his youth.

16 For [g] the LORD, the God of Israel, saith [h] that he hateth [i] putting away: for one covereth violence with his garment, saith the LORD of hosts: therefore take heed to your spirit, that ye deal not treacherously.

A. M. cir. 3607. B. C. cir. 397. Ol. cir. XCV. 4. Urbis Conditæ cir. annum 356.

17 [k] Ye have wearied the LORD with your words. Yet ye say, Wherein have we wearied him? When ye say, Every one that doeth evil is good in the sight of the LORD, and he delighteth in them; or, Where is the God of judgment?

[a] Prov. ii. 17.——[b] Matt. xix. 4, 5.——[c] Or, excellency. [d] Heb. a seed of God.——[e] Ezra ix. 2; 1 Cor. vii. 14.——[f] Or, unfaithfully.

[g] Deut. xxiv. 1; Matt. v. 32; xix. 8.——[h] Or, if he hate her, put her away.——[i] Heb. to put away.——[k] Isa. xliii. 24; Amos ii. 13; chap. iii. 13, 14, 15.

contract made between the parties; and when the lawless husband divorced his wife, the wife of his youth, his companion, and the wife of his covenant, ye did not execute on him the discipline of the law. They kept their wives till they had passed their youth, and then put them away, that they might get young ones in their place.

Verse 15. And did not he make one?] ONE of each kind, Adam and Eve. Yet had he the residue of the Spirit; he could have made millions of pairs, and inspired them all with living souls. Then wherefore one? He made one pair from whom all the rest might proceed, that he might have a holy offspring; that children being a marked property of one man and one woman, proper care might be taken that they should be brought up in the discipline of the Lord. Perhaps the holy or godly seed, זרע אלהים zera Elohim, a seed of God, may refer to the MESSIAH. God would have the whole human race to spring from one pair, that Christ, springing from the same family, might in his sufferings taste death for every man; because he had that nature that was common to the whole human race. Had there been several heads of families in the beginning, Jesus must have been incarnated from each of those heads, else his death could have availed for those only who belonged to the family of which he was incarnated.

Take heed to your spirit] Scrutinize the motives which induce you to put away your wives.

Verse 16. For the Lord—hateth putting away] He abominates all such divorces, and him that makes them.

Covereth violence with his garment] And he also notes those who frame idle excuses to cover the violence they have done to the wives of their youth, by putting them away, and taking others in their place, whom they now happen to like better, when their own wives have been worn down in domestic services.

Verse 17. Ye have wearied the Lord] He has borne with you so long, and has been provoked so often, that he will bear it no longer. It is not fit that he should.

Every one that doeth evil] Ye say that it is right in the sight of the Lord to put away a wife, because she has no longer found favour in the sight of her husband. And because it has not been signally punished hitherto, ye blaspheme and cry out, "Where is the God of judgment?" Were he such as he is represented, would he not speak out? All these things show that this people were horribly corrupt. The priests were bad; the prophets were bad; the Levites were bad; and no wonder that the people were irreligious, profane, profligate, and cruel.

CHAPTER III.

In allusion to the custom of sending pioneers to prepare the way for the march of an eastern monarch, the coming of Christ's forerunner is described, and then the coming of Christ himself, 1; with the terrible judgments which were to accompany that event, in order to refine and purify his people and his priests, 2–6. The following verses reprehend them for withholding the legal tithes and offerings, with large promises in case of their repentance and amendment, 7–12. The prophet expostulates with the people for their hard and profane speeches against the conduct of Providence, and declares God will one day make a fearful and final distinction between the righteous and the wicked, whose different characters are in the mean time carefully recorded, 13–18.

A. M. cir. 3607. B. C. cir. 397. Ol. cir. XCV. 4. Urbis Conditæ cir. annum 356.

BEHOLD, [a] I will send my messenger, and he shall [b] prepare the way before me: and the LORD, whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to his temple, [c] even the Messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in: behold, [d] he shall come, saith the LORD of hosts.

2 But who may abide [e] the day of his coming? and [f] who shall stand when he appeareth? for [g] he is like a refiner's fire, and like fuller's soap.

3 And [h] he shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver; and he shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver, that they may [i] offer unto the LORD an offering in righteousness.

4 Then [k] shall the offering of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant unto the LORD, as in the days of old, and as in [l] former years.

5 And I will come near to you to judgment; and I will be a swift witness against the sorcerers, and against the adulterers, [m] and against false swearers, and against those that [n] oppress the hireling in his wages, the widow, and the fatherless, and that turn aside the stranger from his right, and fear not me, saith the LORD of hosts.

A. M. cir. 3607. B. C. cir. 397. Ol. cir XCV. 4. Urbis Conditæ cir. annum 356.

6 For I am the LORD, [o] I change not; [p] therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed.

7 Even from the days of [q] your fathers ye are gone away from mine ordinances, and have not kept them. [r] Return unto me, and I will return unto you, saith the LORD of hosts. [s] But ye said, Wherein shall we return?

8 Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? [t] In tithes and offerings.

9 Ye are cursed with a curse: for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation.

[a] Matt. xi. 10; Mark i. 2; Luke i. 76; vii. 27.——[b] Isa. xl. 3. [c] Isa. lxiii. 9.——[d] Hag. ii. 7.——[e] Chap. iv. 1.——[f] Rev. vi. 17. [g] See Isa. iv. 4; Matt. iii. 10, 11, 12.——[h] Isa. i. 25; Zech. xiii. 9.——[i] 1 Pet. ii. 5.

[k] Chap. i. 11.——[l] Or, ancient.——[m] Zech. v. 4; James v. 4, 12.——[n] Or, defraud.——[o] Num. xxiii. 19; Rom. xi. 29; James i. 17.——[p] Lam. iii. 22.——[q] Acts vii. 51.——[r] Zech. i. 3. [s] Chap. i. 6.——[t] Neh. xiii. 10, 12.

NOTES ON CHAP. III.

Verse 1. Behold, I will send my messenger] מלאכי Malachi, the very name of the prophet. But this speaks of John the Baptist. I, the Messiah, the Seed of God, mentioned above, will send my messenger, John the Baptist.

He shall prepare the way] Be as a pioneer before me; a corrector of civil abuses, and a preacher of righteousness.

And the Lord, whom ye seek] The Messiah, whom ye expect, from the account given by the prophet Daniel, in his seventy weeks, chap. ix. 24.

Shall suddenly come to his temple] Shall soon be presented before the Lord in this temple; cleanse it from its defilement, and fill it with his teaching and his glory.

The Messenger of the covenant] He that comes to fulfil the great design, in reference to the covenant made with Abram, that in his seed all the families of the earth should be blessed. See the parallel texts in the margin, and the notes on them.

Verse 2. But who may abide the day of his coming?] Only they who shall believe on his name; for they that will not, shall be blinded, and the unbelieving nations shall be destroyed by the Romans.

Like fuller's soap] כבריח keborith, from ברר barar, to cleanse, any thing that deterges. Kali, or fern ashes, or such things. I doubt whether the composition which we call soap, was known in ancient times.

Verse 3. He shall sit as a refiner] Alluding to the case of a refiner of metals, sitting at his fire; increasing it when he sees necessary, and watching the process of his work.

The sons of Levi] Those who minister in their stead under the NEW covenant, for the OLD Levitical institutions shall be abolished; yet, under the preaching of our Lord, a great number of the priests became obedient to the faith, Acts vi. 7; and, as to the others that did not believe, this great Refiner threw them as dross into the Roman fire, that consumed both Jerusalem and the temple.

Verse 5. I will come near to you to judgment] And what fearful cases does he get to judge! Sorcerers, adulterers, false swearers, defrauders of the wages of the hireling, oppressors of widows and orphans, and perverters of the stranger and such as do not fear the Lord: a horrible crew; and the land at that time was full of them. Several were converted under the preaching of Christ and his apostles, and the rest the Romans destroyed or carried into captivity.

Verse 6. I am the Lord, I change not] The new dispensation of grace and goodness, which is now about to be introduced, is not the effect of any change in my counsels; it is, on the contrary, the fulfilment of my everlasting purposes; as is also the throwing aside of the Mosaic ritual, which was only intended to introduce the great and glorious Gospel of my Son.

And because of this ancient covenant, ye Jews are not totally consumed; but ye are now, and shall be still, preserved as a distinct people—monuments both of my justice and mercy.

Verse 7. Gone away from mine ordinances] Never acting according to their spirit and design.

Return unto me] There is still space to repent.

Wherein shall we return?] Their consciences were seared, and they knew not that they were sinners.

Verse 8. Will a man rob God?] Here is one point on which ye are guilty; ye withhold the tithes and offerings from the temple of God, so that the Divine worship is neglected.

Verse 9. Ye are cursed with a curse] The whole

A. M. cir. 3607. B. C. cir. 397. Ol. cir. XCV. 4. Urbis Conditæ cir. annum 356.

10 [u] Bring ye all the tithes into [v] the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the LORD of hosts, if I will not open you the [w] windows of heaven, and [x] pour [y] you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it.

11 And I will rebuke [z] the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not [a] destroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the LORD of hosts.

12 And all nations shall call you blessed: for ye shall be [b] a delightsome land, saith the LORD of hosts.

13 [c] Your words have been stout against me, saith the LORD. Yet ye say, What have we spoken so much against thee?

14 [d] Ye have said, It is vain to serve God: and what profit is it that we have kept [e] his ordinance, and that we have walked [f] mournfully before the LORD of hosts?

A. M. cir. 3607. B. C. cir. 397. Ol. cir. XCV. 4. Urbis Conditæ cir. annum 356.

15 And now [g] we call the proud happy; yea, they that work wickedness [h] are set up; yea, they that [i] tempt God are even delivered.

16 Then they [k] that feared the LORD [l] spake often one to another: and the LORD hearkened, and heard it, and [m] a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the LORD, and that thought upon his name.

17 And [n] they shall be mine, saith the LORD of hosts, in that day when I make up my [o] jewels; [p] and [q] I will spare them, as a man spareth his own son that serveth him.

18 [r] Then shall ye return, and discern between the righteous and the wicked, between him that serveth God and him that serveth him not.

[u] Prov. iii. 9, 10.——[v] 1 Chron. xxxvi. 20; 2 Chron. xxxi. 11; Neh. x. 38; xvi. 12.——[w] Gen. vii. 11; 2 Kings vii. 2.——[x] Heb. empty out.——[y] 2 Chron. xxxi. 10.——[z] Amos iv. 9.——[a] Heb. corrupt.——[b] Dan. viii. 9.——[c] Chap. ii. 17.——[d] Job xxi. 14, 15; xxii. 17; Psa. lxxiii. 12; Zeph. i. 12.——[e] Heb. his observation.——[f] Heb. in black.

[g] Psa. lxxiii. 12; chap. ii. 17.——[h] Heb. are built.——[i] Psa. xcv. 9.——[k] Psa. lxvi. 16; chap. iv. 2.——[l] Hebrews iii. 13.——[m] Psa. lvi. 8; Isa. lxv. 6; Rev. xx. 12.——[n] Exodus xix. 5; Deut. vii. 6; Psa. cxxxv. 4; Tit. ii. 14; 1 Peter ii. 9.——[o] Or, special treasure.——[p] Isa. lxii. 3.——[q] Psalm ciii. 13.——[r] Psa. lviii. 11.

nation is under my displeasure. The curse of God is upon you.

Verse 10. Bring ye all the tithes] They had so withheld these that the priests had not food enough to support life, and the sacred service was interrupted. See Neh. xiii. 10.

And prove me now herewith] What ye give to God shall never lessen your store. Give as ye should, and see whether I will not so increase your store by opening the windows of heaven—giving you rain and fruitful seasons—that your barns and granaries shall not be able to contain the abundance of your harvests and vintage.

Verse 11. I will rebuke the devourer] The locusts, &c., shall not come on your crops; and those that are in the country I will disperse and destroy.

Neither shall your vine cast her fruit] Every blossom shall bear fruit, and every bunch of grapes come to maturity.

Verse 12. All nations shall call you blessed] They shall see that a peculiar blessing of God rests upon you, and your land shall be delightsome; like Paradise, the garden of the Lord.

Verse 13. Your words have been stout against me] He speaks here to open infidels and revilers.

What have we spoken] They are ready either to deny the whole, or impudently to maintain and defend what they had spoken!

Verse 14. Ye have said, It is vain to serve God] They strove to destroy the Divine worship; they asserted that it was vanity; that, if they performed acts of worship, they should be nothing the better; and if they abstained, they should be nothing the worse. This was their teaching to the people.

Walked mournfully] Even repentance they have declared to be useless. This was a high pitch of ungodliness; but see what follows; behold the general conclusions of these reprobates—

Verse 15. And now we call the proud happy] Proud and insolent men are the only happy people, for they domineer everywhere, and none dares to resist them.

They that work wickedness are set up] The humble and holy are depressed and miserable; the proud and wicked are in places of trust and profit. Too often it is so.

They that tempt God are even delivered.] Even those who despise God, and insult his justice and providence, are preserved in and from dangers; while the righteous fall by them.

Verse 16. They that feared the Lord] There were a few godly in the land, who, hearing the language and seeing the profligacy of the rebels above, concluded that some signal mark of God's vengeance must fall upon them; they, therefore, as the corruption increased, cleaved the closer to their Maker. There are three characteristics given of this people, viz.:—

1. They feared the Lord. They had that reverence for Jehovah that caused them to depart from evil, and to keep his ordinances.

2. They spake often one to another. They kept up the communion of saints. By mutual exhortation they strengthened each other's hands in the Lord.

3. They thought on his name. His name was sacred to them; it was a fruitful source of profound and edifying meditation. The name of God is God himself in the plenitude of his power, omniscience, justice, goodness, mercy, and truth. What a source for thinking and contemplation! See how God treats such persons: The Lord hearkened to their conversation, heard the meditations of their hearts; and so approved of the whole that a book of remembrance was written before the Lord—all their names were carefully registered in heaven. Here is an allusion to records kept by kings, Esth. vi. 1, of such as had performed signal services, and who should be the first to be rewarded.

Verse 17. They shall be mine] I will acknowledge them as my subjects and followers; in the day, especially, when I come to punish the wicked and reward the righteous.

When I make up my jewels] סגלה segullah, my peculium, my proper treasure; that which is a man's own, and most prized by him. Not jewels; for in no part of the Bible does the word mean a gem or precious stone of any kind. The interpretations frequently given of the word in this verse, comparing saints to jewels, are forced and false.

I will spare them] When I come to visit the wicked, I will take care of them. I will act towards them as a tender father would act towards his most loving and obedient son.

Verse 18. Then shall ye return] To your senses when perhaps too late; and discern—see the difference which God makes, between the righteous and the wicked, which will be most marked and awful.

Between him that serveth God] Your obedience to whom, ye said, would be unprofitable to you.

And him that serveth him not.] Of whom ye said, his disobedience would be no prejudice to him. You will find the former received into the kingdom of glory; and the latter, with yourselves, thrust down into the bitter pains of an eternal death. Reader, ponder these things.

In the great day of the Lord, at least, if not long before, it will be fully discovered who have been the truly wise people; those who took up their cross and followed Christ; or those who satisfied the flesh, with its affections and desires, following a multitude to do evil.

CHAPTER IV.

God's awful judgments on the wicked, 1. Great blessedness of the righteous, 2, 3. The prophet then, with a solemnity becoming the last of the prophets, closes the Sacred Canon with enjoining the strict observance of the law till the forerunner already promised should appear, in the spirit of Elijah, to introduce the Messiah, and begin a new and everlasting dispensation, 4–6.

A. M. cir. 3607. B. C. cir. 397. Ol. cir. XCV. 4. Urbis Conditæ cir. annum 356.

FOR behold, [a] the day cometh, that shall burn as an oven; and all [b] the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be [c] stubble: and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the LORD of hosts, that it shall [d] leave them neither root nor branch.

2 But unto you that [e] fear my name shall the [f] Sun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings; and ye shall go forth, and grow up as calves of the stall.

A. M. cir. 3607. B. C. cir. 397. Ol. cir. XCV. 4. Urbis Conditæ cir. annum 356.

3 [g] And ye shall tread down the wicked; for they shall be ashes under the soles of your

[a] Joel ii. 31; chap. iii. 2; 2 Pet. iii. 7.——[b] Chap. iii. 18. [c] Obad. 18.——[d] Amos ii. 9.——[e] Chap. iii. 16.

[f] Luke i. 78; Eph. v. 14; 2 Pet. i. 19; Rev. ii. 28.——[g] 2 Sam. xxviii. 43; Mic. vii. 10; Zech. x. 5.

NOTES ON CHAP. IV.

Verse 1. Behold, the day cometh, that shall burn as an oven] The destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans.

And all the proud] This is in reference to ver. 15 of the preceding chapter.

The day that cometh shall burn them up] Either by famine, by sword, or by captivity. All those rebels shall be destroyed,

It shall leave them neither root nor branch.] A proverbial expression for total destruction. Neither man nor child shall escape.

Verse 2. You that fear my name] The persons mentioned in the sixteenth verse of the preceding chapter; ye that look for redemption through the Messiah.

The Sun of righteousness] The Lord Jesus, the promised Messiah; the Hope of Israel.

With healing in his wings] As the sun, by the rays of light and heat, revives, cheers, and fructifies the whole creation, giving, through God, light and life everywhere; so Jesus Christ, by the influences of his grace and Spirit, shall quicken, awaken, enlighten, warm, invigorate, heal, purify, and refine every soul that believes in him; and, by his wings or rays, diffuse these blessings from one end of heaven to another; everywhere invigorating the seeds of righteousness, and withering and drying up the seeds of sin. The rays of this Sun are the truths of his Gospel, and the influences of his Spirit. And at present these are universally diffused.

And ye shall go forth] Ye who believe on his name shall go forth out of Jerusalem when the Romans shall come up against it. After Cestius Gallus had blockaded the city for some days, he suddenly raised the siege. The Christians who were then in it, knowing, by seeing Jerusalem encompassed with armies, that the day of its destruction was come, when their Lord commanded them to flee into the mountains, took this opportunity to escape from Jerusalem, and go to Pella, in Cœlesyria; so that no Christian life fell in the siege and destruction of this city.

But these words are of more general application and meaning; "ye shall go forth" in all the occupations of life, but particularly in the means of grace; and—

Grow up as calves of the stall] Full of health, of life, and spirits; satisfied and happy.

Verse 3. Ye shall tread down] This may be the commission given to the Romans: Tread down the wicked people, tread down the wicked place; set it on fire, and let the ashes be trodden down under your feet.

A. M. cir. 3607. B. C. cir. 397. Ol. cir. XCV. 4. Urbis Conditæ cir. annum 356.

feet in the day that I shall do this, saith the LORD of hosts.

4 Remember ye the [h] law of Moses my servant, which I commanded unto him [i] in Horeb for all Israel, with [k] the statutes and judgments.

5 Behold, I will send you [l] Elijah the prophet [m] before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the LORD:

A. M. cir. 3607. B. C. cir. 397. Ol. cir. XCV. 4. Urbis Conditæ cir. annum 356.

6 And [n] he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers, lest I come and [o] smite the earth with [p] a curse.

[h] Exod. xx. 3, &c.——[i] Deut. iv. 10.——[k] Psa. cxlvii. 19. [l] Matt. xi. 14; xvii. 11; Mark ix. 11; Luke i. 17.

[m] Joel ii. 31.——[n] Ecclus. xlviii. 10.——[o] Zech. xiv. 12. [p] Zech. v. 3.

Verse 4. Remember ye the law of Moses] Where all these things are predicted. The Septuagint, Arabic, and Coptic, place this verse the last.

Verse 5. Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet] This is meant alone of John the Baptist, as we learn from Luke i. 17, (where see the note,) in whose spirit and power he came.

Verse 6. And he shall turn (convert) the heart of the fathers (על al, WITH) the children] Or, together with the children; both old and young. Lest I come, and, finding them unconverted, smite the land with a curse, חרם cherem, utter extinction. So we find that, had the Jews turned to God, and received the Messiah at the preaching of John the Baptist and that of Christ and his apostles, the awful חרם cherem of final excision and execration would not have been executed upon them. However, they filled up the cup of their iniquity, and were reprobated, and the Gentiles elected in their stead. Thus, the last was first, and the first was last. Glory to God for his unspeakable gift!

There are three remarkable predictions in this chapter:—1. The advent of John Baptist, in the spirit and authority of Elijah. 2. The manifestation of Christ in the flesh, under the emblem of the Sun of righteousness. 3. The final destruction of Jerusalem, represented under the emblem of a burning oven, consuming every thing cast into it. These three prophecies, relating to the most important facts that have ever taken place in the history of the world, announced here nearly four thousand years before their occurrence, have been most circumstantially fulfilled.

In most of the Masoretic Bibles the fifth verse is repeated after the sixth—"Behold, I send unto you Elijah the prophet, before the great and terrible day of Jehovah come;" for the Jews do not like to let their sacred book end with a curse; and hence, in reading, they immediately subjoin the above verse, or else the fourth—"Remember ye the law of Moses my servant."

In one of my oldest MSS. the fifth verse is repeated, and written at full length: "Behold, I send you Elijah the prophet, before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord." In another, only these words are added: "Behold, I will send you Elijah." It is on this ground that the Jews expect the reappearance of Elijah the prophet; and at their marriage-feasts always set a chair and knife and fork for this prophet, whom they suppose to be invisibly present. But we have already seen that John the Baptist, the forerunner of our Lord, was the person designed; for he came in the spirit and power of Elijah, (see on chap. iii. 1,) and has fulfilled this prophetic promise. John is come, and the Lord Jesus has come also; he has shed his blood for the salvation of a lost world; he has ascended on high; he has sent forth his Holy Spirit; he has commissioned his ministers to proclaim to all mankind redemption in his blood; and he is ever present with them, and is filling the earth with righteousness and true holiness. Hallelujah! The kingdoms of this world are about to become the kingdoms of God and our Lord Jesus! And now, having just arrived at the end of my race in this work, and seeing the wonderful extension of the work of God in the earth, my heart prays:—

O Jesus, ride on, till all are subdued,
Thy mercy make known, and sprinkle thy blood;
Display thy salvation, and teach the new song,
To every nation, and people, and tongue!

In most MSS. and printed Masoretic Bibles there are only three chapters in this prophet, the fourth being joined to the third, making it twenty-four verses.

In the Jewish reckonings the Twelve Minor Prophets make but one book; hence there is no Masoretic note found at the end of any of the preceding prophets, with accounts of its verses, sections, &c.; but, at the end of Malachi we find the following table, which, though it gives the number of verses in each prophet, yet gives the total sum, middle verse, and sections, at the end of Malachi, thereby showing that they consider the whole twelve as constituting but one book.

MASORETIC NOTES
On the Twelve Minor Prophets.

Hosea has	197 verses.
Joel	73
Amos	146
Obadiah	21
Jonah	48
Micah	105
Nahum	57
Zephaniah	53
Habakkuk	56
Haggai	38
Zechariah	211
Malachi	55

The sum of all the verses of the Twelve Minor Prophets is 1060.

The middle verse is Micah, chap. iii. ver. 12.

Number of Sections, 21.

TO GOD THE FATHER, SON, AND HOLY GHOST, BE ETERNAL PRAISES. AMEN.

I have this day completed this Commentary, on which I have laboured above thirty years; and which, when I began, I never expected to live long enough to finish. May it be a means of securing glory to God in the highest, and peace and good will among men upon earth! Amen, Amen. ADAM CLARKE.

Heydon Hall, Middlesex,
Monday, March 28, A. D. 1825.

AN

EPITOME OF THE JEWISH HISTORY

FROM THE

TIME OF NEHEMIAH AND MALACHI TO THE BIRTH OF CHRIST, FILLING UP THE CHASM BETWEEN

THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS.

As many have wished to see an epitome of the Jewish history, from the days of the prophet Malachi to the advent of Christ, in order to connect the history of the Old and New Testaments, I have prepared the following, which, in such a work as this, is as much as should be expected.

On all hands Malachi is allowed to have been the last prophet under the Old Testament; and he flourished about four hundred and nine years before the coming of Christ, according to the commonly received chronology; and Nehemiah, who was contemporary with him, was the last of those civil governors appointed by God himself. His last act of reformation is fixed by Prideaux, B. C. 409; soon after which it is supposed that he died, as at this time he could not be less than seventy years of age. For the administration of affairs in his times and in those of Ezra, whom he succeeded in the government of Judea, the reader is referred to the notes on Ezra, Nehemiah, and Daniel.

We have seen, in the book of Nehemiah, that, on the return of the Jews from the Chaldean captivity, many of them brought strange wives and a spurious offspring with them, and refusing to put them away, were banished by Nehemiah, and went and settled in Samaria. Among those exiles there was a son of Jehoiada, the high priest, named Manasseh, who had married the daughter of Sanballat the Horonite, and put himself under the protection of his father-in-law, who was governor of the place. After the death of Nehemiah, Sanballat obtained a grant from Darius to build a temple on Mount Gerizim, near Samaria, of which he made Manasseh, his son-in-law, high priest. This temple was begun to be built B. C. 408.

From the building of this temple, Samaria became the refuge of all refractory Jews: and though by this means the old superstition of the land was reformed to the worship of the God of Israel, they of Jerusalem would never consider the Samaritan Jews otherwise than apostates. On the other hand, the Samaritans maintained that Mount Gerizim was the only proper place for the worship of God. This people rejected all traditions, and adhered only to the written word contained in the five books of Moses.

Nehemiah's death was also attended with a change of the Jewish government at Jerusalem. Judea had no longer a governor of its own. It was united to the prefecture of Syria; the rulers of which committed the administration of both civil and ecclesiastical affairs to the high priest for the time being.

By this means the high priesthood became an office under the heathen; and towards the latter end of Artaxerxes Mnemon's reign, B. C. 405, who succeeded his father Darius Nothus, B. C. 423, the office was conferred by the governor of Syria and Phœnicia. For Bagoses, the governor, took upon himself to displace Johanan the high priest, in favour of the said priest's brother Joshua; which nomination, though it did not take place, (for Johanan slew his brother Joshua in the inner court of the temple, as he endeavoured by force to usurp the high-priest's office by virtue of the governor's commission, B. C. 366,) was attended with this bad consequence—that Bagoses, hearing of the murder, came in great wrath to Jerusalem, and laid a heavy fine upon the nation, which lasted seven years, or during the whole of his government.

Artaxerxes Mnemon died B. C. 359, with grief at the brutality of his son Ochus, who had so terrified his eldest brother Ariaspes, that he poisoned himself, and had his younger brother Harpates assassinated. So that Ochus succeeded to the dignity and empire of his father.

In the third year of Ochus, about 356 before Christ, Alexander the Great was born at Pella in Macedonia. Ochus, having reigned twenty-one years, was poisoned by his favourite Bagoas, in hopes of getting the whole government into his own hands, and to put the crown on the head of Arses, his youngest son, whom he also poisoned soon after, and raised Codomannus, a distant relation of the late king, to the throne. This new king took the name of Darius; and when Bagoas had also prepared a poisonous draught for him, he obliged Bagoas to drink it himself; by which means he saved his own life, and punished the traitor.

It was about the year B. C. 336 that Alexander the Great succeeded to the kingdom of Macedon, on the death of his father Philip, who was slain by the noble Macedonian Pausanias, as he celebrated the marriage of his daughter with Alexander, king of Epirus, before he set out upon the Grecian expedition against Persia, being chosen captain-general of the united forces of Greece.

Alexander also succeeded to that command by a new election. In one campaign he overran all Asia Minor; vanquished Darius in two battles; took his mother, wife, and children prisoners; and subdued all Syria as far as Tyre, B. C. 332.

During the seige of Tyre, he demanded the submission of the neighbouring provinces of Galilee, Samaria, and Judea. The two former submitted to him; but Judea would not renounce their allegiance to Darius so long as he lived. This brought upon them the wrath of the conqueror; who, having taken Tyre, by carrying a bank from the continent through the sea to the island on which the city stood, and burned it down to the ground, destroyed and slew all the inhabitants in a barbarous manner, both in the sackage of the town, and afterwards in cold blood; and then marched to Jerusalem to wreak his vengeance upon the Jews. Upon his approach, and the report of his having crucified two thousand of the Tyrian prisoners, the high priest Jaddua and all the city were under dreadful apprehensions. They had nothing but God's protection to depend upon. They fasted and prayed: and God in a vision directed the high priest to go in his pontifical robes, attended by the priests in their proper habits, and all the people in white garments, and meet Alexander out of the city.

As soon as Alexander saw this procession moving towards him, and the high priest in the front, he was overawed, drew near, bowed down, and saluted him in a religious manner; alleging that he did so in regard to that God whose priest he was; adding, moreover, that the high priest so habited had appeared to him in a dream at Dio in Macedonia, assuring him of success against the Persians.

Jaddua conducted him into the city; and, having offered sacrifices in the temple, showed him the prophecies of Daniel, concerning the overthrow of the Persian empire by a Grecian king.

Alexander was well satisfied with his reception at Jerusalem; and at his departure granted the Jews a toleration of their religion, and an exemption from tribute every seventh year. And the Jews were so well pleased with the conqueror's behaviour, that, upon his signifying that he would receive as many of them as would enlist into his service, great multitudes entered under his banner, and followed him in his other expeditions.

The Samaritans met him with great pomp and parade, as he left Jerusalem, and invited him to their city. But Alexander deferred both the invitation, and petition for certain privileges, till his return from Egypt; and left his favourite Andromachus governor of Syria and Palestine.

Andromachus, coming some time after to Samaria upon business, was burned to death in his house, as it was thought on purpose, by the Samaritans, in revenge of the slight which they apprehended Alexander had shown them. But as soon as Alexander heard it, he caused those to be put to death who had acted any part in the murder, banished all the other inhabitants from Samaria, planted therein a colony of Macedonians, and gave the residue to the Jews.

Upon the ruin of the Persians, Alexander had erected the Grecian or Macedonian monarchy. But coming to Babylon, after the conquest of the most part of the then known world, he gave himself up so much to drunkenness and gluttony, that he soon put an end to his life, B. C. 323.

Here it cannot be amiss to observe, that Alexander was of a bold and enterprising spirit; but more full of fire than discretion. His actions, though successful, were furious and extravagantly rash. His few virtues were obscured with more and greater vices. Vainglory was his predominant passion; and the fables of the ancient Greek heroes were the only charts by which he steered his conduct. His dragging Balis round Gaza, his expedition into India, his drunken procession through Caromania, and taking to himself the name of the son of Jupiter, are so many vouchers of this assertion. And, were all his actions duly considered and estimated, he would be properly characterized the great cut-throat of the age in which he lived; as all they are who delight in bloodshed, and will forfeit ALL to obtain universal monarchy; whereas those only are the true heroes who most benefit the world, by promoting the peace and welfare of mankind. In a righteous cause, or a just defence of a man's country, all actions of valour are worthy of praise; but in all other cases victory and conquest are no more than murder and robbery. Therefore Alexander's heroism is to be avoided, and not to be followed, as the surest way to honour and glory.

Alexander was no sooner dead, than Ptolemy Soter seized upon Egypt; and having in vain endeavoured to gain Syria, Phœnicia, and Judea from Laomedon, whom Alexander had appointed governor instead of Andromachus, who was burnt, invaded them by sea and land, took Laomedon prisoner, and got possession of those provinces also, except Judea; which, upon the account of their allegiance to the surviving governor, refusing to yield, felt the severity of the conqueror; for, understanding that the Jews would not so much as defend themselves on the Sabbath day, he stormed Jerusalem, took it without resistance on that day, and carried above one hundred thousand of them captives into Egypt.

From this time we may date the Jews' subjection to the kings of Egypt. And it was in the fifth year of this Ptolemy's reign that Onias the Jewish high priest died, and was succeeded by his son Simon the Just, on whom an eulogium may be found in Ecclus. l. 1, &c., B. C. 292.

Simon the Just was high priest nine years, and is supposed to have completed the canon of the Old Testament by adding the books of Ezra, Nehemiah, Esther, Malachi, and the two books of Chronicles, with the aid and assistance of the great synagogue. He was succeeded by his brother Eleazar, his son Onias being a minor, B. C. 291.

Ptolemy Soter was succeeded by his son Ptolemy Philadelphus, B. C. 285, who completed the college or museum of learned men, and the famous library at Alexandria in Egypt, which was begun by his father, and contained seven hundred thousand volumes, and placed in that library an authentic translation of the book of the law. This translation was finished under the inspection of Eleazar the high priest, and is called the Septuagint, on account of the joint labour of seventy-two translators employed in it, B. C. 254.

Ptolemy Philadelphus died in the thirty-ninth year of his reign, and in the sixty-third of his age, B. C. 247. He was a learned prince, and a great patron of learning; so that men of learning flocked to his court from all parts, and partook of his favour and bounty. Among these were the poets Theocritus, Callimachus, Lycophron, and Aratus, and Manetho, the Egyptian historian.

B. C. 247, Ptolemy Euergetes succeeded his father Ptolemy in Egypt. He found Onius, the son of Simon the Just, in the pontificate at Jerusalem, who was very old, weak, inconsiderate, and covetous. And Euergetes, perceiving that the high priest had for many years kept back the annual tribute, sent one Athenion, an officer at court, to Jerusalem, to demand it, being a very large sum, with threats of sending an army to dispossess them of the country upon refusal.

This demand and threatening threw the whole nation into great confusion; and one Joseph, the high priest's nephew by his sister's side, rebuked his uncle sharply for his injustice and ill management of the public interest, proposed Onias's journey to Alexandria, as the best expedient, and, upon his uncle's refusal, offered to go in person to pacify the king's wrath, which was accepted by the high priest, and approved by the people, B. C. 226.

Joseph all this time had entertained Athenion in a most elegant manner at his own house, and at his departure loaded him with such valuable gifts, that when he arrived at Alexandria, he found the king prepared much in his favour to receive him, and made himself more acceptable by informing him concerning the revenues of Cœlesyria and Phœnicia, whose value he had inquired more perfectly from their farmers, with whom he had travelled to court part of the way; and was thereupon admitted the king's receiver general of Cœlesyria, Phœnicia, Judea, and Samaria. He immediately satisfied the king for his uncle's arrears with five hundred talents he borrowed at Alexandria on the credit of his new office, which he enjoyed twenty-two years, though he met with great opposition at his first collecting, till he had brought some of the ringleaders to exemplary punishment.

B. C. 221. All things were again composed at Jerusalem; and Philopater having succeeded his father Ptolemy Euergetes in Egypt, and defeated the army of Antiochus the Great, he in the fifth year of his reign took the tour of Jerusalem while he visited his conquests. But this was very unfortunate for the Jews. For Philopater being led by a vain curiosity to enter into the sanctuary and the holy of holies on the great day of expiation, B. C. 217, where no one but the high priest was allowed to enter, he was opposed by the deprecations and lamentations of the people; and when he would still advance beyond the inner court, he was seized with such a terror and consternation, that he was obliged to be carried back in a manner half dead. He recovered; but when he left the city, he vowed revenge. And accordingly, he was no sooner returned to Alexandria than he deprived the Jews of all their rights and privileges; ordered them to be stigmatized with a burn representing an ivy leaf, under pain of death, in honour of his god Bacchus; and excluded all persons from his presence that would not sacrifice to the god he worshipped. Then he commanded as many Jews as he could seize in Egypt to be brought and shut up in the Hippodrome, or place for horse-races, at Alexandria, to be destroyed by elephants. But God turned the wild beasts upon those that came to see the dreadful massacre, by which numbers of the spectators were slain; and so terrified the king and his subjects with other tokens of his displeasure and power, that Philopater immediately not only released the Jews from the Hippodrome, but restored the whole nation to their privileges, reversed every decree against them, and put those Jews to death who for fear of persecution had apostatized from their religion.

Ptolemy Philopater was succeeded, B. C. 204, by his son Ptolemy Epiphanes, then only five years old. This minority gave Antiochus the Great an opportunity to regain Cœlesyria and Palestine: in which expedition the Jews had shown so much favour to Antiochus, that he granted them many favours, a liberty to live according to their own laws and religion, a prohibition to strangers to enter within the sept of the temple, &c. But as soon as Ptolemy was marriageable, he made peace with him, and gave him his daughter, with Cœlesyria and Palestine for her portion. On this occasion Joseph, who had been Ptolemy's receiver general in those provinces, and displaced by Antiochus, was restored.

Ptolemy in a short time had a son; and it being customary on such occasions for all the great officers of state to congratulate the king and queen, and to carry them presents, Joseph, whose age would not permit him to take so long a journey, sent his son Hyrcanus, B. C. 187, who, upon an unlimited credit given him by his father, when he was arrived at Alexandria, borrowed a thousand talents, or two hundred thousand pounds sterling, with which, buying a hundred beautiful boys for the king, and as many beautiful young maids for the queen, at the price of a talent per head, and presenting them each with a talent in their hands, and disposing of the remaining sum among the courtiers and great officers, he so obliged the king and queen, and all the court, that he found it easy to supplant his father, and obtained the king's commission for collecting the royal revenues in all the country beyond Jordan.

Hyrcanus, having thus abused his trust, went with a strong guard to execute his office; and being met by his brothers, killed two of them. He came to Jerusalem; but his father would not admit him to his presence, and he was shunned by every body. Upon the death of his father, which happened soon after, he endeavoured by force of arms to oust his brethren from the paternal estate. This disturbed the peace of Jerusalem for a while; till at last his brothers, being assisted by the high priest and the generality of the people, drove him over Jordan, where he lived in a strong castle, till he fell upon his own sword and killed himself to avoid the punishment with which Antiochus Epiphanes, upon his succeeding to the throne of Syria, threatened him. B. C. 175.

Antiochus the Great being slain by the inhabitants of Elymais, as he attempted by night to plunder the temple of Jupiter Belus, thereby to pay the Romans according to his agreement, his son Seleucus Philopater succeeded him in the provinces of Syria, Judea, &c., and resided at Antioch.

Seleucus, at his first advancement to the dominion of these provinces, continued his father's favours to the Jews; but being afterwards informed by one Simon a Benjamite that there was great treasure in the temple, he sent one Heliodorus to seize it, and to bring all the riches he could find therein to Antioch. Heliodorus attempted to execute this commission; but he was so terrified at the sight of an armed host of angels that appeared to defend the entrance of the sacred treasury, that he fell speechless to the ground; nor did he recover till the high priest interceded to God for him.

This same Heliodorus poisoned his sovereign Seleucus, hoping to obtain the kingdom; but his design was frustrated by Eumenes, king of Pergamus, and his brother Attalus, who set Antiochus Epiphanes, another son of Antiochus the Great, on the throne of Syria.

Epiphanes, at his accession to the throne, finding himself hard pressed by the Romans, endeavoured to raise their heavy tribute by all manner of exactions. Amongst other means he deposed the good and pious high priest, Onias, and sold the pontificate to his brother Jason for the yearly sum of three hundred and sixty talents; and afterwards he deposed Jason, and sold it to his brother Menelaus for three hundred talents more, B. C. 174.

Menelaus, having invaded the pontificate by these unjust means, and finding himself straitened to raise the annual payment according to contract, by the means of Lysimachus, another of his brothers, he robbed the temple of many gold vessels, which, being turned into money, he paid to the king; and bribed Andronicus, the governor of Antioch, to murder his brother Onias, lest at any time he should stand in his way. It is true that at the instance of the people Andronicus was seized and executed for his villany and murder, and Lysimachus was put to death by the mob at Jerusalem; yet Menelaus found means by bribery, not only to acquit himself, but to obtain sentence against, and even the execution of, the three delegates that went from Jerusalem to prosecute him in the name of the sanhedrin.

But while Antiochus was engaged in the Egyptian war, Jason, on a false report that the king was dead, marched with a thousand men, surprised the city of Jerusalem, drove Menelaus into the castle, and cruelly put to the sword and to other kinds of death all those that he thought were his adversaries.

Immediately the news of this revolution and massacre reached Antiochus, he hastened to reduce the Jews to their obedience; and in his way, being informed that the inhabitants of Jerusalem had made great rejoicings at the report of his death, he was so provoked, that, taking the city by storm, B. C. 170, he slew forty thousand persons, and sold as many more for slaves to the neighbouring nations. He entered the holy of holies, sacrificed a sow upon the altar of burnt-offerings, and caused the broth or liquor thereof to be sprinkled all over the temple. He plundered the temple of as much gold and furniture as amounted to eight hundred talents of gold. Then, returning to Antioch, he made one Philip, a most barbarous and cruel man, governor of Judea; Andronicus, as bad a man, governor of Samaria; and continued Menelaus, the worst of all, in the pontificate. And, as if this was not sufficient to satisfy his rage, he not long after sent an army of two and twenty thousand men, under Apollonius his general, with commission to put all the men of Jerusalem to the sword, and to make slaves of the women and children; which was rigorously executed on a Sabbath day, so that none escaped but such as could hide themselves in caves, or reach the mountains by flight.

This cruelty soon after pursued the Jews, wherever dispersed: for by a general decree to oblige all people in his dominions to conform to the religion of the king, one Athenæus, a Grecian idolater, was pitched upon to receive and instruct all the Jews that would turn idolaters, and to punish with the most cruel deaths those who refused. It was at this time that the temple was dedicated to Jupiter Olympius; the books of the law were burned; and women, accused of having their children circumcised, were led about the streets with these children tied about their necks, and then both together cast headlong over the steepest part of the wall, B. C. 167; for many of them chose rather to die than to renounce their God; as the holy zeal and religious fortitude of the very aged and pious Eleazar, a chief doctor of the law, and of the heroine Salomona and her seven sons, do testify; whom neither the instruments of death could terrify, nor the allurements of the tyrant could persuade, to forfeit their interest with the Almighty, either by idolatry or dissimulation.

Matthias, great grandson of Asmonæus, and a priest of the first course, retired with his five sons, John, Simon, Judas, Eleazar, and Jonathan, from the persecution at Jerusalem, to a little place called Modin, in the tribe of Dan. But as soon as they were discovered, Antiochus sent one Appelles to that place, to oblige all the inhabitants, on pain of death, to turn idolaters. This officer delivered his commission by endeavouring to persuade Matthias to embrace idolatry, tendering to him the king's favour, and promising him great riches; which the good priest not only scornfully rejected, but slew the first Jew that dared to approach the idolatrous altar; and then, turning upon the king's commissioner, he despatched him and all his attendants, with the assistance of his sons and those that were with them. After this he put himself at the head of as many Jews as he could collect; and, having broken down the idols and the altars of the heathens, retired with them into the mountains. Here, as he took measures for their defence, he was joined by a numerous party of Assidæans; a valiant people, who practised great hardships and mortifications, and were resolved to lay down their lives for the recovery of the temple. By these, and the accession of great numbers of other Jews, Matthias found himself in a capacity to take the field; but as their mistaken notion about resting on the Sabbath day had been one great cause of their being surprised by their enemies, and brought many great misfortunes upon them, because they would not defend themselves on that day from their enemies, he caused it to be unanimously agreed and decreed, that it was lawful, and that they might defend themselves, and repel force by force, on the Sabbath day, should they be attacked.

After this decree had passed, with the approbation of the priests and elders, Matthias left his lurking-places, marched round the cities of Judah, pulled down the heathen altars, restored the true worship and circumcision, and cut off both the apostates and persecutors that fell in his way, till death summoned him to immortality, in the hundred and forty-seventh year of his age.

When he found death approaching, he exhorted his five sons to persevere in the cause of God, as he had begun; and he appointed his son Judas his successor in the command of the army; and Simon to be their counsellor, B. C. 166. He was buried at Modin with great lamentation of all Israel.

Judas, who had signalized himself on former occasions for his great valour, was distinguished by the title Maccabeus; and having taken the command of his people upon him, he prosecuted the good work of reformation begun by his father, and took all the measures he was able, by fortifying towns, building castles, and placing strong garrisons, to maintain the liberty and religion of his country against all opposition.

Apollonius was sent by Antiochus to march an army of Samaritans against him; but he was killed, and his troops defeated and entirely routed, after a great slaughter, by our young general, who, finding Apollonius's sword among the spoils, took it for his own use, and generally fought with it ever after.

This news having reached Celosyria, Seron, deputy-governor of that province, marched with all the forces he could collect to revenge the death of Apollonius; but he met with the same fate.

Antiochus was so enraged at these defeats, that he immediately ordered forty thousand foot, seven thousand horse, and a great number of auxiliaries, made up of the neighbouring nations and apostate Jews, to march against Judea, under the command of Ptolemy Macron, Nicanor, and Gorgias, three eminent commanders, B. C. 162.

Upon their advancing as far as Emmaus, about seven miles from Jerusalem, Judas, who may be supposed at that time besieging or at least blocking up Jerusalem, then in the hands of the heathen, retired to Mizpeh. Here the whole army addressed themselves to God. Judas exhorted them most pathetically to fight for their religion, laws, and liberties; but at last, giving those leave to withdraw from his army that had built houses, or betrothed wives within the year, or that were in any degree fearful, he presently found himself at the head of no more than three thousand men.

However, he was resolved to give the enemy battle. In the mean time God ordained him an easy victory; for while Gorgias was detached with five thousand foot and one thousand horse to surprise his little army by night, Judas, being informed of the design, marched by another way, fell upon the camp in the absence of Gorgias, killed three thousand men, put the rest to flight, and seized the camp. Gorgias, not finding the Jews in their camp, proceeded to the mountains, supposing they were fled thither for safety. But not meeting with them there, he was much surprised in his return at what had happened in his absence; and his army, hearing that Judas waited to give them a warm reception in the plains, flung down their arms and fled. Judas in the pursuit killed six thousand more, and wounded and maimed most of the rest. This victory opened to him the gates of Jerusalem, where he and his army celebrated the next day, which was a Sabbath, with great devotion and thanksgiving.

Timotheus and Bacchides, governors or lieutenants under Antiochus, marched immediately to the assistance of Gorgias; but they fell a sacrifice to the valour and conduct of Judas, who, by the spoils taken from the enemy, was enabled the better to carry on the war.

This defeat was succeeded by another of Lysias, the governor of all the country beyond the Euphrates. He had penetrated as far as Bethzura, a strong fortress about twenty miles from Jerusalem, threatening to destroy the country with an army of sixty thousand foot and five thousand horse. But he was defeated also by Judas with ten thousand men only.

This victory gave him some respite; and accordingly he restored the temple to the true worship of God, removed all the profanations, built an altar of unhewn stones, and replaced the furniture that Antiochus had carried away, out of the gold and other rich spoils taken in this war. Thus he dedicated the temple again, and ordained that a feast of dedication should be kept annually, in commemoration thereof for ever, about the 20th of November.

His next care was to subdue the fortress on Mount Acra, which Apollonius had erected to command the temple; and being yet in the power of the heathens, gave them great opportunities to annoy the Jews that went to worship in the temple. But not having men enough to spare to form a blockade, he silenced it by another fortification, which he erected on the mountain of the temple.

When this revolt and success of the Jews reached Antiochus, in his expedition into Persia, he threatened utterly to destroy the whole nation, and to make Jerusalem the common place of burial to all the Jews. But God visited him with a sudden and sore disease. He at first was afflicted with grievous torments in his bowels; his privy parts were ulcerated and filled with an innumerable quantity of vermin; and the smell was so offensive that he became nauseous to himself and all about him. Then his mind was so tormented with direful spectres and apparitions of evil spirits, and the remorse of his wicked life and profanations gnawed him so grievously, that he at last acknowledged the justice of God in his punishment, and offered up many vows and promises of a full reparation in case he recovered. But God would not hear him; therefore, when his body was almost half consumed with abominable ulcers, he died under the most horrid torments of body and mind, in the twelfth year of his reign.

Judas Maccabeus began now to consider how the government should be fixed, and therefore, in a general assembly held at Maspha, he revived the ancient order, and appointed rulers over thousands, hundreds, fifties, and tens. And it is also probable that he constituted the high court of sanhedrin, in which was a settled Nasi, president or prince, who was the high priest for the time being; an Abbethdin, or father of the house of judgment, who was the president's deputy; and a Chacan, or the wise man, who was sub-deputy. The other members were called elders or senators, men of untainted birth, good learning, and profound knowledge in the law, both priests and laymen. And they in particular were empowered to decide all private difficult controversies, all religious affairs, and all important matters of state.

This was properly the senate or great council of the nation, which grew into great power under the administration of the Asmonean princes, and was in great authority in the days of our Saviour's ministry.

Lysias, who had been so shamefully routed by Judas, having the care of Antiochus's son, who was called Antiochus Eupater, and only nine years old, set him on the throne, and seized the government and tuition of the young king into his own hands, and immediately combined with the neighbouring Idumeans and other nations, enemies to Judah, to unite in an attempt utterly to destroy and extirpate the whole race of Israel.

When Judas was informed of this confederacy, he resolved to prevent their intentions, and to carry the war into Idumea. Thus he entered their country by Acrabatene, a canton of Judea, near the southern extremity of the Dead Sea, and slew there twenty thousand of them. Then falling upon the children of Bean, another tribe of the Idumeans, he killed twenty thousand more, routed their army, and took their strong holds. Hence passing over Jordan into the land of the Ammonites, he defeated them in several engagements, slew great numbers of them, and took the city Jahazah, at the foot of Mount Gilead, near the brook Jazah; and so returned home.

After his return into Judea, one Timotheus, a governor in those parts, pretended to follow him with a numerous army. But Judas fell upon him; and having overthrown him with a very great slaughter, pursued him to the city Gazara, in the tribe of Ephraim, which he took; and he slew both Timotheus and his brother Chereas, governor of that city, and Apollophanes, another great captain of the Syrian forces.

This success stirred up the jealousy of the heathen nations about Gilead, who fell upon the Jews in the land of Tob; and, having slain one thousand, took their goods, carried their wives and children captives, and drove the residue to seek for refuge and security in the strong fortress Dathema, in Gilead. But Timotheus, the son of him slain at Gazara, shut them up with a great army, and besieged them, while the inhabitants of Tyre, Sidon, and Ptolemais, were contriving to cut off all the Jews that lived in Galilee.

Judas, in this critical juncture, by the advice of the sanhedrin, dividing his army into three parts, he and his brother

Jonathan marched with eight thousand men to the relief of the Gileadites; his brother marched with three thousand into Galilee; and his brother Joseph was left with the command of the remainder to protect Jerusalem and the country round, and to remain wholly on the defensive, till Judas and Simon should return.

In their march to Gilead, Judas and Jonathan attacked Bossora, a town of the Edomites, slew all the males, plundered it, released a great number of Jews reserved to be put to death as soon as Dathema should be taken, and burned the city. When they arrived before Dathema, which was by a forced march in the night, the brothers gave Timotheus so sudden and violent an assault, that they put his army to flight, and slew eight thousand in the pursuit. And wherever he came and found any Jews oppressed or imprisoned, he released them in the same manner as he did at Bossora.

At the same time Simon defeated the enemy several times in Galilee, drove them out of the country, and pursued them with very great slaughter to the gates of Ptolemais. But Joseph, contrary to his orders, leaving Jerusalem, was put to flight by Gorgias, governor of Syria, and lost two thousand men in that ill-projected expedition, against Jamnia, a seaport on the Mediterranean.

Lysias by this time had assembled an army of eight hundred thousand men, eighty elephants, and all the horse of the kingdom, and marched in person against the Hebrew conqueror. Judas met him at the siege of Bethzura, gave him battle, slew eleven thousand foot, one thousand six hundred horse, and put the rest to flight.

This victory was happily attended with a peace between Judas and Lysias, in the name of the young king; by which the heathen decree of uniformity made by Epiphanes was rescinded, and the Jews permitted to live according to their own laws.

However, this peace was soon broke by the people of Joppa and Jamnia; but Judas was no sooner informed that they had cruelly treated and murdered the Jews that lived amongst them, but he fell upon Joppa by night, burned their shipping, and put all to the sword that had escaped the fire; and he set fire to the haven of Jamnia, and burned all the ships in it.

Timotheus also, who had fled before this conqueror, was discontented with the peace, and gathered an army of one hundred and twenty thousand foot, and two thousand five hundred horse, in order to oppress the Jews in Gilead. But when the news of this armament reached Judas, he marched against him; and after he had defeated a strong party of wandering Arabs, and made peace with them; taken the city Caspis, which was Heshbon in the tribe of Reuben; slain the inhabitants; destroyed the place; taken Caraca also, and put its garrison of ten thousand men to the sword, he came up with Timotheus near Raphon on the river Jabbok, gave him battle, slew thirty thousand of his men, took him prisoner, pursued the remainder of his army to Carnion in Arabia; took that city also, and slew twenty-five thousand more of Timotheus's forces; but gave him his life and liberty, on the promise that he would release all the Jewish captives throughout his dominions.

As he returned to Jerusalem he stormed the strong city of Ephron, well garrisoned by Lysias, put twenty-five thousand people to the sword; plundered it, and razed it to the ground; because the people refused to grant him a passage through it. This campaign was concluded with a day of thanksgiving in the temple at Jerusalem.

Thus Judas, finding himself disengaged from the treaty of peace by these hostilities, carried the war into the south of Idumea; dismantled Hebron, the metropolis thereof; passed into the land of the Philistines, took Azotus or Ashdod, destroyed their idols, plundered their country, and returned to Judea, to reduce the fortress of Acra, which was still in the hands of the king of Syria, and was very troublesome in time of war to those that resorted to the temple.

Judas prepared for a regular siege: but Antiochus, being informed of its distress, marched to its relief with an army of one hundred and ten thousand foot, twenty thousand horse, thirty-two elephants with castles on their backs full of archers, and three hundred armed chariots of war. In his way through Idumea, he laid siege to Bethzura, which at last was forced to surrender, after Judas, who had marched to its relief, had killed four thousand of the enemy by surprise in the night; lost his brother Eleazar in battle, crushed to death by an elephant that he had stabbed; and was forced to retreat and shut himself and his friends up in the temple.

The king and Lysias were both present in this army of the Syrians; and would have compelled Judas to surrender, had not Philip, whom Epiphanes had upon his death-bed appointed guardian of his son, taken this opportunity of their absence to seize upon Antioch, and to take upon him the government of the Syrian empire.

Upon this news Lysias struck up a peace immediately with Judas, upon honourable and advantageous terms to the Jewish nation. But though it was ratified by oath, Eupater ordered the fortifications of the temple to be demolished.

It was in this war that Menelaus, the wicked high priest, fell into disgrace with Lysias, while he was prompting the heathen barbarity to destroy his own people: for being accused and convicted of being the author and fomentor of this Jewish expedition, Lysias ordered him to be carried to Berrhœa, a town in Syria; and there to be cast into a high tower of ashes, in which there was a wheel which continually stirred up and raised the ashes about the criminal, till he was suffocated, and died. This was a punishment among the Persians for criminals in high life. This wicked high priest was succeeded at the promotion of Antiochus Eupater, by one Alcimus, a man altogether as wicked as his immediate predecessor.

Eupater returned home, and by an easy battle killed the usurper Philip, and quelled the insurrection in his favour. But it was not so with Demetrius, the son of Seleucus Philopater, who, being now come to maturity, claimed the kingdom in right of his father, elder brother to Epiphanes.

Demetrius had been sent to Rome as a hostage, in exchange for his uncle Antiochus Epiphanes, in the very year that his father died. Antiochus, returning in the very nick of time, was declared king, in prejudice to the right of Demetrius. And though Demetrius had often solicited the assistance of the Roman senate, under whom he was educated, to restore him to his kingdom, reasons of state swayed with them rather to confirm Eupater, a minor, in the government, than to assert the right of one of a mature understanding. Yet, though he failed in this application, Demetrius resolved to throw himself upon Providence. To which end, leaving Rome incog., Demetrius got safe to Tripolis, in Syria; where he gave out that he was sent, and would be supported by the Romans, to take possession of his father's kingdom. This stratagem had its desired effect; every one deserted from Eupater to Demetrius; and the very soldiers seized on Eupater and Lysias, and would have delivered them into his hands. But Demetrius thought it more politic not to see them; and having ordered them to be put to death, was presently settled in the possession of the whole kingdom.

During this interval the Jews enjoyed a profound peace, but having refused to acknowledge Alcimus their high priest, because he had apostatized in the time of the persecution, Alcimus addressed the new king, Demetrius, implored his protection against Judas Maccabeus, and so exasperated him against the whole body of his party by false representations, that Demetrius ordered Bacchides to march an army into Judea, and to confirm Alcimus in the pontificate.

Alcimus was also commissioned with Bacchides to carry on the war in Judea, who upon the promise of a safe conduct, having got the scribes and doctors of the law into their power, put sixty of them to death in one day. Bacchides left him in possession with some forces for his support; with which he committed many murders, and did much mischief; and at last obtained another army from Demetrius, under the command of Nicanor, to destroy Judas; to disperse his followers, and the more effectually to support the said Alcimus in his post of high priest.

Nicanor, who had experienced the valour of Judas, proposed a compromise: but Alcimus, expecting more advantage to himself by a war, beat the king off it; so that Nicanor was obliged to execute the first order. The war was carried on with various success, till Nicanor was slain in a pitched battle near a village called Bethoron; and his whole army of thirty-five thousand men, casting down their arms, were to a man cut off in the flight.

This victory was followed with a day of thanksgiving, which was established to be continued every year under the name of the anniversary day of solemn thanksgiving.

Judas, observing that the Syrians paid no regard to any treaties, thought that, by making a league with the Romans, his nation would be much better secured against such a perfidious people. Therefore he sent Jason and Eupolemus to Rome, who soon obtained the ratification of a league of mutual defence between them, and a letter to Demetrius, requiring him, upon the peril of having war denounced against him, to desist from giving the Jews any more uneasiness and trouble.

This, however, proved of no service. For while this league was negotiating, Demetrius sent Bacchides and Alcimus a second time into Judea with a numerous army to revenge the defeat and death of Nicanor. At this time Judas had no more than three thousand men to oppose them; and of these all but eight hundred deserted their general, at the report of the number and strength of their enemies. Yet Judas refused to yield up the cause of God; and being followed by that handful of brave men, he charged and broke the right wing, where Bacchides commanded in person, and pursued them as far as the mountains of Azotus; and must have gained a complete victory, had not his little army been followed and encompassed by the left wing. But being surrounded with an exceeding great force, the Jews sold their lives at a dear rate; Judas was killed, and then such as survived him were forced to flee away.

His body was carried off by his brothers Simon and Jonathan, and buried in the sepulchres of his ancestors, at Modin, with great funeral honour, as he deserved.

Bacchides, after his success, seized on the whole country, and used the adherents of the Maccabees so inhumanly, that Jonathan was necessitated to retire at the head of his distressed countrymen to the wilderness of Tekoa. This little army encamped with a morass on one side, and the river Jordan on the other. Bacchides pursued them; secured the pass of their encampment; and, though he attacked them on the Sabbath day, he lost a thousand men in the assault, before the Maccabees broke; and then, being overpowered by numbers, they threw themselves into the river, and escaped by swimming to the other side, without being pursued.

About this time (B. C. 160) Alcimus, the wicked pontiff, died suddenly of a palsy; and Demetrius, having received the senatorian letter from Rome, commanding him to desist from vexing the Jews, recalled Bacchides; so that Jonathan found himself in a condition to bring his affairs into better order. But this state of rest lasted only for two years; for the malcontents invited Bacchides to return with his army, under a promise to support his enterprise, and to seize Jonathan. But before this association could take place, Jonathan had information of it, took fifty of the principal conspirators, and put them to death. And when Bacchides arrived with his great army, Jonathan and his brother Simon gave him such uneasiness, and so artfully distressed and harassed his army, without giving him any pitched battle, that Bacchides grew weary of his undertaking, put several of those that invited him to that expedition to death, and at last made peace with the Maccabees, restored all his prisoners, and swore never more to molest the Jews, B. C. 158.

When Jonathan found himself in quiet possession of Judea, and that there was no more to fear from Bacchides, he punished the apostate Jews with death, reformed the Church and state, and rebuilt the walls about the temple and city of Jerusalem. And soon after, the high priesthood having been vacant seven years, he put on the pontifical robe, at the nomination of Alexander, who, by the assistance of the Roman senate, and the management of one Heraclides, claimed the crown of Syria in right of his pretended father Antiochus Epiphanes.

Jonathan, though Demetrius made him more advantageous offers, suspected that these promises were not real, but only to serve the present purpose, and accepted Alexander's proposals; which was so acceptable to the new king, that when he had beaten and slain Demetrius, and made himself master of the whole Syrian monarchy, he invited Jonathan to his marriage with Cleopatra, daughter of Ptolemy, king of Egypt; and, besides great personal honours, conferred on him the post of general of all his forces in Judea, and chief sewer of his household, B. C. 153.

However, this prosperity was soon disturbed by Apollonius, governor of Cœlosyria, who, taking part with Demetrius, the son of Demetrius the late king, who had concealed himself with his brother Antiochus in Crete, during the late troubles, was now landed in Cilicia with an army of mercenaries, and had marched with an army as far as Jamnia, challenging Jonathan to give him battle. Jonathan marched out with a body of ten thousand men; took Joppa in sight of the enemy; gave Apollonius battle, beat him, and pursued his broken forces to Azotus, where he destroyed eight thousand men, the temple of Dagon, and the city, with fire and sword, which engaged Alexander's affections so much, that he gave him the golden buckle, (a distinguished mark of the royal family of Persia,) and the city and territories of Ecron.

After this succeeded a surprising revolution in Syria. Alexander had called to his assistance his father-in-law Ptolemy Philometer, who, suspecting that his son Alexander had conspired his death, carried off his daughter Cleopatra; gave her to Demetrius, Alexander's competitor; then, turning his arms upon Alexander, settled Demetrius upon the throne of his ancestors; and, after gaining a complete victory, forced him to flee into Arabia, where Zabdiel, the king of the country, cut off his head, and sent it to Ptolemy, B. C. 146.

This Demetrius took the style of Nicanor, or Conqueror; and though he summoned Jonathan to appear before him to answer certain accusations, the high priest found means to gain his favour; and not only a confirmation of former, but a grant of additional privileges; which, with the promise to withdraw the heathen garrison from Acra, so recommended him to Jonothan, that, when Demetrius was in danger of being murdered by the inhabitants of Antioch, he marched three thousand men to the king's assistance, burned a great part of the city, slew one hundred thousand of the inhabitants with fire and sword, and obliged the rest to throw themselves upon the king's mercy. Yet this service, and his promise also, was presently forgot by Demetrius, when he thought the storm was blown over; and, he would, on the contrary, have certainly obliged him, under pain of military execution, to pay the usual taxes and tribute paid by his predecessors, had he not been prevented by the treason of a discontented courtier, whose name was Tryphon.

Tryphon (B. C. 144) at first declared for, and set Antiochus Theos, the son of the late Alexander, on the throne of Syria, after he had vanquished Demetrius, and forced him to retire into Selencia. Jonathan, for his own interest, declared for the new king; by which he obtained a confirmation of the pontificate, &c., and his brother Simon was made commander of all his forces from Tyre to Egypt.

As soon as Demetrius heard of Jonathan's revolt, he marched to chastise him for it; but it turned to his loss; for he was repulsed twice, and lost Gaza, with all the country as far as Damascus, and Joppa in the land of the Philistines.

Tryphon intended now to pull off the mask: but not daring to attempt so foul a crime till Jonathan could be removed, prevailed with him to disband his army, and to accompany him with one thousand men only to Ptolemais; where he was no sooner entered, but his men were put to the sword, and Jonathan put under an arrest. Then, marching his army into Judea, he proposed to restore him, on condition of one hundred talents; and that his two sons should be given for hostages of their father's fidelity. Jonathan was persuaded to comply with this demand: but the villain not only caused them and their father to be put to death, but having also murdered Antiochus privately, he assumed the title of king of Syria.

Simon, (B. C. 143,) hearing that his brother was murdered, and buried at Bascama, in Gilead, sent and brought him thence, and buried him under a curious monument of white wrought and polished marble, at Modin. And after he was admitted governor in his stead, he offered his service to Demetrius, then at Laodicea; who, on condition that the Jews would assist him in the recovery of his crown, conceded to him the high priesthood and principality, and granted the people many privileges.

But Demetrius being about this time persuaded to head the Elymæan, Parthian, and Bactrian revolters against Mithridates, king of Parthia, Simon applied himself to fortifying his cities; and reduced the fortress of Acra; which he not only took, but even levelled the mount on which it was built.

Mithridates (B. C. 141) vanquished Demetrius; and after he had taken him prisoner, gave him his daughter Rhodaguna in marriage; which so exasperated his wife Cleopatra, then shut up in Seleucia, that she offered herself and the kingdom to Antiochus, his brother, B. C. 139, then in Crete. Antiochus accepted the proposal; and upon his landing in Syria with an army of mercenaries, he was so strengthened with deserters from Tryphon's forces, that he drove him into Apamea, near the mouth of the Orontes, and took him and put him to death.

Thus Antiochus became possessed of his father's throne; though not without the assistance of Simon, whom he had promised to reward with many new privileges. But he no sooner found himself delivered from all opposition, than he forgot his promises; and, on the contrary, demanded the restoring of Joppa and Gazara, &c., or a thousand talents in lieu of them.

Simon refused to comply; and Antiochus sent Cendebeus with an army to force him. Simon, now very old, attended by his sons Judas and John Hyrcanus, put him to flight at the first onset, and killed a great number of the enemy in the pursuit. After this, Simon, and his sons Judas and Mattathias, B. C. 135, being perfidiously murdered by Ptolemy, Simon's son-in law, whom he had made governor of the plains of Jericho, at an entertainment prepared for them in the castle of Jericho, with a design to usurp the government of Judea to himself, sent a party to Gazara to seize John Hyrcanus also. But he was informed, and so prepared to receive them, that he despatched the intended murderers; and hastening to Jerusalem, secured both the city and the temple, where he was declared his father's successor in the pontificate and principality of the Jews.

Antiochus thought to serve himself of these distractions, and accordingly marched a large army into Judea; and after he had driven Hyrcanus into Jerusalem, obliged him to accept of a peace upon the hard terms of delivering up their arms, dismantling Jerusalem, paying a tribute for Joppa, &c., held by the Jews out of Judea, and five hundred talents to buy off the rebuilding of Acra.

Hyrcanus accompanied Antiochus to the Parthian war, in which he signalized himself with great renown. He returned home at the end of the year. But Antiochus, who chose to winter in the East, was with his whole army destroyed in one night by the natives, who, taking the advantage of their separate quarters all over the country, rose on them, and cut their throats in cold blood: so that Antiochus himself was slain, and out of four hundred thousand persons, of which his army consisted, scarce a man escaped to carry home the news of this massacre.

Phraortes, the king of Parthia, having suffered much by this invasion of Antiochus, endeavoured to get quit of him by sending his prisoner Demetrius Nicanor into Syria, to recover his own kingdom: so that when the news came of Antiochus's death, he was without more delay reinstated on the throne. But his tyrannical proceedings presently raised him up a new pretender to the crown, (B. C. 127,) one Alexander Zabina, the pretended son of Alexander Balas, who, by the assistance of Ptolemy Physcon, king of Egypt, defeated him in the field; and, taking him prisoner in Tyre, put him to death.

Zabina being raised to the throne of Syria by the king of Egypt, Ptolemy expected that he should hold it in homage from him; and, upon his refusal, gave his daughter Tryphæna to Antiochus Gryphus, the son of Nicanor, whom he made king of Syria, and pursued Zabina till he got him into his hands, and put him to death.

Hyrcanus, in the midst of these revolutions, shook off the Syrian yoke. He built the famous tower of Baris upon a steep rock. He took several cities on the borders of Judea, amongst which was Shechem, the chief seat of the Samaritans, (B. C. 130,) and destroyed the temple on Mount Gerizim. He extended his conquests over the Idumeans, (B. C. 129,) who were prevailed on to embrace the Jewish religion; so that from this time they exchanged the name of Idumeans or Edomites for that of Jews. He renewed the alliance with the senate of Rome, and obtained greater privileges and advantages than his nation ever had before; and concluded his military operations with the siege and utter destruction of Samaria, under the conduct of his sons Aristobulus and Antigonus.

After these great actions, Hyrcanus enjoyed full quiet from all foreign wars; and had nothing to trouble him at home, but the false insinuations of the Pharisee Eleazar, who declared that his mother was a captive taken in the wars, and that, therefore, he was incapable of holding the high priesthood. Hyrcanus had been educated in this sect: but one Jonathan, an intimate friend of his, and a Sadducee, took this opportunity to draw him over to his own sect; which he effected so sincerely, that Hyrcanus renounced the Pharisees for ever, abrogated their traditional constitutions, and made it penal for any one to observe them. Yet he was an excellent governor; and, dying in the thirtieth year of his administration, left five sons: but the high priesthood and sovereignty he left to Judas Aristobulus, his eldest son, B. C. 107.

Aristobulus (B. C. 107) was the first since the captivity that put on the diadem, and assumed the title of king: but he was of that suspicious and cruel disposition, that he cast his own mother into prison, and starved her to death, imprisoned all his brethren except Antiganus, whom at last he ordered to be murdered in a fit of jealousy, B. C. 106: of which, however, he repented, and gave up the ghost in great anxiety of mind, after a reign of no more than one year; though in that time Antigonus had reduced the Iturœans to his obedience, and forced them to conform to the religion of the Jews. At this time Pompey and Cicero were born.

Alexander Jannæus, his third brother, was released from his confinement by Salome, Aristobulus's widow. The like favour was also extended to his two other brothers. But as soon as Jannæus was settled on the throne, he put one of them to death under a suspicion of treason, and he took Absalom the younger into his favour.

This Alexander (B. C. 105) attempted to extend his dominions by new conquests. But in his attempts against Ptolemais and Ptolemy Lathyrus, who came to the assistance of Zoilus and the Gazæans, he lost a fine army, and was reduced to sue for protection from Cleopatra, who had seized upon Egypt, and obliged her son Lathyrus to be contented with the island of Crete.

Cleopatra, at first, was inclined to take advantage of Alexander's misfortunes, and to seize upon him and his dominions; but Annias, one of her generals, by birth a Jew, and a relation to Alexander, dissuaded her from so unjust a design, and obtained her protection for him.

Nevertheless Alexander's martial spirit sought out new employments. His country being clear of foreign forces, he attacked and took Gadara and Amathus in Syria. But being followed by Theodorus, prince of Philadelphia, who had laid up his treasure at Amathus, he lost his plunder, ten thousand men, and all his baggage, B. C. 101.

This did not deter him from attempting the reduction of Gaza; which, however, he could not have taken, had it not been treacherously surrendered to him by Lysimachus, the governor's brother. Here Alexander, ordering his soldiers to kill, plunder, and destroy, was the author of a sad scene of barbarity, and reduced that ancient and famous city to ruin and desolation.

After his return from this carnage, he was grossly insulted by a mob at home, while he was offering the usual sacrifices on the feast of tabernacles. But he made the people pay dearly for it; for he fell upon them with his soldiers, and slew six thousand. And from this time he took into his pay six thousand mercenaries from Pisidia and Cilicia, who always attended his person, and kept off the people while he officiated.

B. C. 101. All being again quieted at home, Alexander marched against the Moabites and Ammonites, and made them tributaries. In his return he took possession of Amathus, which Theodorus had evacuated; but he lost most of his army, and was very near losing his own life in an ambuscade which Thedus, an Arabian king, had laid for him near Gadara. This raised fresh discontents among his subjects, and new troubles at home, which were attended with the most unheard-of barbarities. They were not able to overpower him; but his wickedness had so provoked them that nothing but his blood could satisfy them; and at length, being assisted by Demetrius Eucærus, king of Damascus, they entirely routed him, so that he was forced to consult his own safety by fleeing to the mountains.

His misfortune was the cause of six thousand of his rebel subjects deserting him; which, when Demetrius perceived, he withdrew, and left the revolters to fight their own battle. After this separation Alexander gained several advantages; and at last, having cut the major part off in a decisive battle, he took eight hundred of the rebels in Bethome, whom he carried to Jerusalem; and having first killed their wives and children before their faces, he ordered them all to be crucified in one day, before him and his wives and concubines, whom he had invited to a feast at the place of execution. Then, resolving to revenge himself on the king of Damascus, he made war on him for three years successively, and took several places; when, returning home, he was received with great respect by his subjects.

His next expedition was against the castle of Ragaba, in the country of the Gerasens, where he was seized with a quartan ague, which proved his death, B. C. 79. His queen Alexandra, by his own advice, concealed it till the castle was taken; and then, carrying him to Jerusalem, she gave his body to the leaders of the Pharisees, to be disposed of as they should think proper; and told them, as her husband had appointed her regent during the minority of her children, she would do nothing in the administration without their advice and help.

This address to the Pharisees so much gained their esteem that they not only settled the queen dowager in the government, but were very lavish in their encomiums on her deceased husband, whom they honoured with more than ordinary pomp and solemnity at his funeral.

The Pharisees having now the management of the queen regent, and of Hyrcanus and Aristobulus, her sons by Alexander, had all the laws against Pharisaism repealed and abolished, recalled all the exiles, and demanded justice against those that had advised the crucifixion of the eight hundred rebels.

The queen made her eldest son, Hyrcanus, high priest. But Aristobulus was not contented to live a private life; and therefore, as soon as his mother seemed to decline, he meditated in what manner he might usurp the sovereignty from his brother, at her decease; and he had taken such measures beforehand, that upon the death of his mother he found himself strong enough to attempt the crown, though Alexandra had declared Hyrcanus her successor. The two armies met in the plains of Jericho; but Hyrcanus, being deserted by most of his forces, was obliged to resign his crown and pontificate to Aristobulus, and promise to live peaceably upon his private fortune.

This resignation was a subject of great discontent to some of Hyrcanus's courtiers, among whom was Antipater, father to Herod the Great, who persuaded Hyrcanus to fly to Aretas, king of Arabia, who, on certain conditions, supplied him with fifty thousand men, with which Hyrcanus entered Judea, and gained a complete victory over Aristobulus. But while he besieged him in the temple, Aristobulus, with the promise of a large sum of money, engaged Pompey, the general of the Roman army, then before Damascus, to oblige Aretas to withdraw his forces; but Aristobulus, though he was for the present delivered from his brother's rage, prevaricated so with Pompey, that he at last confined Aristobulus in chains, took Jerusalem sword in hand, retrenched the dignity and power of the principality, destroyed the fortifications, ordered an annual tribute to be paid to the Romans, and restored Hyrcanus to the pontificate, and made him prince of the country, but would not permit him to wear the diadem.

Pompey, having thus settled the government of Judea, returned in his way to Rome with Aristobulus, his sons Alexander and Antigonus, and two of his daughters, to adorn his triumph.

Alexander found means to escape, by the way, and about three years after arrived in Judea, and raised some disturbance; but he was defeated in all his attempts by Gabinius, the Roman governor in Syria, who, after this, coming to Jerusalem, confirmed Hyrcanus in the high priesthood, but removed the civil administration from the sanhedrin into five courts of justice of his own erecting, according to the number of five provinces, into which he had divided the whole land.

When Aristobulus had lain five years prisoner at Rome, he with his son escaped into Judea, and endeavoured to raise fresh trouble; but Gabinius soon took them again; and being remanded to Rome, the father was kept close confined, but the children were released.

It was about this time, B. C. 48, that the civil war between Pompey and Cæsar broke out; and when Aristobulus was on the point of setting out, by Cæsar's interest, to take the command of an army in order to secure Judea from Pompey's attempts, he was poisoned by some of Pompey's party.

When Cæsar was returned from the Alexandrian war, he was much solicited to depose Hyrcanus in favour of Antigonus, the surviving son of Aristobulus; but Cæsar not only confirmed Hyrcanus in the high priesthood and principality of Judea, and to his family in a perpetual succession, but he abolished the form of government lately set up by Gabinius, restored it to its ancient form, and appointed Antipater procurator of Judea under him.

Antipater, who was a man of great penetration, made his son Phasael governor of the country about Jerusalem, and his son Herod governor of Galilee.

Soon after this appointment, Herod, who was of a very boisterous temper, having seized upon one Hezekiah, a ringleader of a gang of thieves, and some of his men that infested his territories, he put them to death. This was presently looked upon as a breach of duty to the sanhedrin, before whom he was summoned to appear. But lest the sentence of that court should pass upon him, he fled to Sextus Cæsar, the Roman prefect of Syria at Damascus; and, with a large sum of money, obtained of him the government of Cœlesyria. He afterwards raised an army, marched into Judea, and would have revenged the indignity which he said the sanhedrin and high priest had cast upon him, had not his father and brother prevailed with him to retire for the present.

While Julius Cæsar lived, the Jews enjoyed great privileges; but his untimely death, B. C. 44, by the villanous and ungrateful hand of Brutus, Cassius, &c., in the senate house, as he was preparing for an expedition against the Parthians to revenge his country's wrong, delivered them up as a prey to every hungry general of Rome. Cassius immediately seized upon Syria, and exacted above seven hundred talents of silver from the Jews; and the envy and villany of Malicus, who was a natural Jew, and the next in office under Antipater, an Idumean, rent the state into horrid factions. Malicus bribed the high priest's butler to poison his friend Antipater, to make way for himself to be the next in person to Hyrcanus. Herod, making sure of Cassius, by obtaining his leave and assistance to revenge his father's death, took the first opportunity to have him murdered by the Roman garrison at Tyre.

The friends of Malicus, having engaged the high priest and Felix the Roman general at Jerusalem on their side, resolved to revenge his death on the sons of Antipater. All Jerusalem was in an uproar; Herod was sick at Damascus; so that the whole power and fury of the assailants fell upon Phasael, who defended himself very strenuously, and drove the tumultuous party out of the city. As soon as Herod was able, the two brothers presently quelled the faction; and had not Hyrcanus made his peace by giving Herod his granddaughter Mariamne in marriage, they certainly would have shown their resentment of the priest's behaviour with more severity.

Again, this faction was not so totally extinguished but that several principal persons of the Jewish nation, upon the defeat of Brutus and Cassius, accused Phasael and Herod to the conqueror, Mark Anthony, of usurping the government from Hyrcanus. But the brothers had so much interest with the conqueror that he rejected the complaints of the deputies, made them both tetrarchs, and committed all the affairs of Judea to their administration; and to oblige the Jews to obey his decision in this affair, he retained fifteen of the deputies as hostages for the people's fidelity, and would have put them to death had not Herod begged their lives.

The Jews, however, when Anthony arrived at Tyre, sent one thousand deputies with the like accusations, which he, looking upon as a daring insult, ordered his soldiers to fall upon them, so that some were killed and many wounded. But upon Herod's going to Jerusalem the citizens revenged this affront in the same manner upon his retinue; the news whereof so enraged Anthony, that he ordered the fifteen hostages to be immediately put to death, and threatened severe revenge against the whole faction. But after that Mark Anthony was returned to Rome, the Parthians, at the solicitation of Antigonus, the son of Aristobulus, who had promised them a reward of a thousand talents and eight hundred of the most beautiful women in the country, to set him on the throne of Judea, entered that country, and being joined by the factious and discontented Jews, (B. C. 37,) took Jerusalem without resistance, took Phasael and Hyrcanus, and put them in chains; but Herod escaped under the cover of night and deposited his mother, sister, wife, and his wife's mother, with several other relations and friends, in the impregnable fortress Massada, near the lake Asphaltites, under the care of his brother Joseph, who was obliged to go to Rome to seek protection and relief.

In the mean time Antigonus remained in possession of all the country, and was declared king of Judea. The Parthians delivered Hyrcanas and Phasael to Antigonus; upon which Phasael, being so closely handcuffed and ironed that he foresaw his ignominious death approaching, dashed his own brains out against the wall of the prison. Antigonus cut off the ears of Hyrcanus, to incapacitate him from the high priesthood, and returned him again to the Parthians, who left him at Seleucia, in their return to the East.

Herod on this occasion served himself so well on the friendship which had been between his father and himself with the Roman general, Mark Anthony, and the promise of a round sum of money, that he in seven days' time obtained a senatorial decree, constituting him king of Judea, and declaring Antigonus an enemy to the Roman state. He immediately left Rome, landed at Ptolemais, raised forces, and being aided with Roman auxiliaries, by order of the senate, he reduced the greater part of the country, took Joppa, relieved Massada, stormed the castle of Ressa, and must have taken Jerusalem also, had not the Roman commanders who were directed to assist him been bribed by Antigonus, and treacherously obstructed his success. But when Herod perceived their collusion, he, for the present, satisfied himself with the reduction of Galilee; and hearing of Anthony's besieging Samosata on the Euphrates, went in person to him to represent the ill treatment he had met with from the generals, Ventidius and Silo, whom he had commanded to serve him.

Upon his departure, Herod left the command of his forces to his brother Joseph, with charge to remain upon the defensive. But Joseph, contrary to orders, attempting to reduce Jericho, was slain, and most of his men were cut to pieces. And thus Herod again lost Galilee and Idumea.

Mark Anthony granted all he requested; and though at first the army which Anthony had spared him was roughly handled, and he himself wounded as he approached Jerusalem to revenge his brother's death, he afterwards slew Pappus, Antigonus's general, and entirely defeated his army; and in the next campaign, after a siege of several months, Herod, assisted by Socius, the Roman general, took it by storm. The soldiers expecting the spoils of the city as their due, and being exasperated by the long resistance of the citizens, spared neither men, women, nor children, and would certainly have utterly destroyed every thing and person with rapine and devastation, death and slaughter, had not Herod redeemed them with a large sum of money.

Antigonus surrendered himself to Socius, who carried him in chains to Anthony; and he for a good sum of money was bribed to put him to death, that in him the Asmonæan family, which had lasted one hundred and twenty-nine years, might be extinct.

By this event Herod found himself once more in full power, and at liberty to revenge himself upon his enemies. He began his reign with the execution of all the members of the great Sanhedrin except Pollio and Samcas, who are also called Hillel and Shammai. Then he raised one Ananel, born of the pontifical family at Babylon, to the place of high priest; but Mark Anthony, at the intercession of Cleopatra, queen of Egypt, who was solicited thereto by Alexandra, Mariamne's mother, and the entreaties of his own beloved Mariamne in behalf of her young brother, prevailed with him to annul this nomination, and to prefer Aristobulus to the pontificate. But as Hyrcanus was yet alive, and the Jews, in the place of his exile, paid him all the honours and reverence due to their king and high priest, Herod, under a pretence of gratitude and friendship to that author of all his fortunes, prevailed with the old prince to desire it, and with Phraortes, king of Parthia, to permit his return to Jerusalem, with an intention to cut him off at a proper opportunity; which he soon after did on a pretence of his holding treasonable correspondence with Malchus, king of Arabia. But in the mean time Alexandra, valuing herself upon the interest she had with Cleopatra, laid a scheme to obtain the regal dignity for her son Aristobulus, by the same means that she had got him the pontificate. But this intrigue ended in the death of Aristobulus, and her own close confinement at first, and afterwards in her own and her daughter Mariamne's death; though this tragic scene was at several times acted under disguise. Aristobulus was drowned at Jericho, as it were accidentally, B. C. 29, in a fit of jealousy; Mariamne was adjudged to die, and Alexandra was ordered for execution, B. C. 28, on a supposition that she wished his death; which unjust sentence pursued his very innocent children Alexander and Aristobulus, for expressing their dislike of their father's cruelty to their mother Mariamne. But it is very probable that he himself had fallen a sacrifice to Octavius after the battle, and the total loss of Mark Anthony at Actium, (fought B. C. 31,) had he not hastened to the conqueror at Rhodes, and in an artful speech appeased him, and with a promise to support his faction in those parts, obtained from him a confirmation of his royal dignity.

The cruelties, however, which he exercised to his own flesh and blood filled his mind with agonies of remorse, which brought him into a languishing condition; and what helped to increase his disorder was the conspiracy of Antipater, his eldest son by Doris, born to him whilst he was a private man But Herod having discovered the plot, accused him thereof before Quintilius Varus, the Roman governor of Syria, and put him to death also; which occasioned that remarkable exclamation of the Emperor Octavius, that "it was better to be Herod's hog than his son."

The great pleasure that Herod took (B. C. 25) in obliging his protector Octavianus, and the dread he had of being dethroned for his cruelties, prompted him to compliment him with the names of two new cities, the one to be built on the spot where Samaria stood before Hyrcanus destroyed it, (B. C. 22,) which he called Sebaste, the Greek word for Augustus; the other was Cæsarea, once called the Tower of Straton, on the sea-coast of Phœnicia. After this he built a theatre and amphitheatre in the very city of Jerusalem, to celebrate games and exhibit shows in honour of Augustus; set up an image of an eagle, the Roman ensign, over one of the gates of the temple; and at last carried his flattery so far as idolatrously to build a temple of white marble in memory of the favours he had received from Octavianus Augustus.

These advances to idolatry were the foundation of a conspiracy of ten men, who bound themselves with an oath to assassinate him in the very theatre. But being informed thereof in time, Herod seized the conspirators, and put them to death with the most exquisite torments; and to ingratiate himself with the Jews, he formed a design to rebuild the temple, (B. C. 17,) which now, after it had stood five hundred years, and suffered much from its enemies, was fallen much into decay. He was two years in providing materials; and it was so far advanced that Divine service was performed in it nine years and a half more, though a great number of labourers and artificers were continued to finish the outworks till several years after our Saviour's ascension; for when Gessius Florus was appointed governor of Judea, he discharged eighteen thousand workmen from the temple at one time. And here it should be observed that these, for want of employment, began those mutinies and seditions which at last drew on the destruction both of the temple and Jerusalem, in A. D. 70.

Thus I have finished that brief connection of the affairs of the Jews from the death of Nehemiah and conclusion of the Old Testament, to the coming of Christ, where the New Testament begins, which from the creation of the world, according to the most exact computation, is the year 4000.

The general state of the heathen world was in profound peace under the Roman emperor, Augustus, to whom all the known parts of the earth were in subjection when Christ was born. This glorious event took place in the year of the Julian Period 4709, and the fifth before the vulgar era of Christ commonly noted A. D., Anno Domini, or the year of our Lord. See the learned Dr. Prideaux's connected History of the Old and New Testaments.

I need not add here the years from the birth of Christ to the end of the New Testament History, as these are regularly brought down in a Table of Remarkable Eras, immediately succeeding the Acts of the Apostles, and terminating at A. D. 100.

For the desolation that took place when the temple was taken and destroyed, see the notes on Matt. xxiv. 31.

The general history of the Jews, especially from the destruction of their temple, A. D. 70, to the end of the sixteenth century, has been written by Mr. Basnage, entitled, "Histoire des Juifs, depuis Jesus Christ, jusqu à present; pour servir de continuation à l'Histoire de Joseph;" the best edition of which was printed at the Hague, 1716, 12mo., in fifteen vols. The first edition was translated into English by T. Taylor, A. M., Lond. 1708, fol.; but the author has greatly enlarged and corrected his work in the Hague edition above mentioned. The learning and research manifested in this work are amazing; and on the subject nothing better, nothing more accurate and satisfactory, can be well expected. This work I heartily recommend to all my readers.

For the state of the Jews in different nations of the earth, the Itinerary of Rabbi Benjamin, a native of Tudela, in the kingdom of Navarre, has been referred to; first translated from Hebrew into Latin by B. A. Montanus, and printed at Antwerp in 1575, and much better by Constantine L'Empereur, and printed at Leyden, 12mo., with the Hebrew text and notes, 1633. This work has gone through many editions among the Jews, in Hebrew and in German. It has also been translated into French by Baratier, with many learned notes, Amsterdam, 1734.

But all the preceding translations have been totally eclipsed by that of the Rev. B. Gerrans, lecturer of St. Catherine Coleman, and second master of Queen Elizabeth's free grammar school, St. Olave, Southwark, with a Dissertation and Notes, 12mo., Lond. 1784. If we can believe Rab. Benjamin, (who it appears flourished in A. D. 1160,) he travelled over the whole world, and found the Jews in general in a most flourishing state, and living under their own laws in many places. But the work is a wretched imposition, too hastily credited by some learned men; written with a view of keeping up the credit of the Jewish people, and with the tacit design to show that the Messiah is not yet come, and that the sceptre has not departed from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet; but he is at such variance with himself, and with the whole geography of the globe, that, as Mr. Gerrans properly observes, no map could possibly be made of his travels. "Reduce," says he, "the universe to its primeval chaos; confound Asia with Africa; north with south, and heat with cold; make cities provinces, and provinces cities; people uncultivated deserts with free and independent Jews, and depopulate the most flourishing kingdoms; make rivers run when and where you please, and call them by any names but the right one; take Arabia upon your back, and carry it to the north of Babylon; turn the north pole south, or any other way you please; make a new ecliptic line, and place it in the most whimsical and eccentric position which the most hobby-horsical imagination can possibly conceive or describe; and such a map will best suit such an author." What therefore this author says of his travels and discoveries is worthy of no regard; and it is a doubt with me (if this person ever existed) whether he ever travelled beyond the limits of the kingdom of Navarre, or passed the boundaries of the city of Tudela. I mention these works, the first in the way of strong recommendation; the second, to put the reader on his guard against imposition; at the same time recommending these outcasts of Israel to his most earnest commiseration and prayers, that the God of all grace may speedily call them to eternal glory by Christ Jesus, that all Israel may be saved; and that through all their dispersions they may be soon found singing the song of Moses and the Lamb! Amen, Amen.

CONCLUSION.

In my general preface prefixed to the book of Genesis, I gave a succinct account of the plan I pursued in preparing this work for the press; but as this plan became necessarily extended, and led to much farther reading, examination, and discussion, I judge it necessary, now that the work is concluded, to give my readers a general summary of the whole, that they may be in possession of my mode of proceeding, and be enabled more fully to comprehend the reasons why the work has been so long in passing through the press. [This refers only to the first edition.]

My education and habits from early youth led me to read and study the Bible, not as a text-book to confirm the articles of a preconceived creed, but as a revelation from God to man, (of his will and purposes in reference to the origin and designation of his human offspring,) which it was the duty of all the inhabitants of the earth deeply to study, and earnestly to endeavour to understand, as it concerned their peace and happiness, and the perfection of their being in reference to both worlds.

Conscious that translators in general must have had a particular creed, in reference to which they would naturally consider every text, and this reference, however honestly intended, might lead them to glosses not always fairly deducible from the original words, I sat down with a heart as free from bias and sectarian feeling as possible, and carefully read over, cautiously weighed, and literally translated every word, Hebrew and Chaldee, in the Old Testament. And as I saw that it was possible, even while assisted by the best translations and best lexicographers, to mistake the import of a Hebrew term, and considering that the cognate Asiatic languages would be helps of great importance in such an inquiry, I collated every verse where I was apprehensive of any difficulty with the Chaldee, Syriac, Arabic, and Persian, and the Æthiopic in the Polyglot translation, as far as the sacred writings are extant in these languages; and I did this with a constant reference to the various readings collected by Houbigant, H. Michaelis, Kennicott, and De Rossi, and to the best editions of the Septuagint and Vulgate, which are the earliest translations of the Hebrew text that have reached our times.

Nor have I been satisfied with these collections of various readings; I have examined and collated several ancient Hebrew MSS., which preceding scholars had never seen, with many ancient MSS. of the Vulgate equally unknown to Biblical critics. This work required much time and great pains, and necessarily occasioned much delay; and no wonder, when I have often, on my plan, been obliged to employ as much time in visiting many sources and sailing down their streams, in order to ascertain a genuine reading, or fix the sense of a disputed verse, as would have been sufficient for some of my contemporaries to pass whole sheets of their work through the press. Had I not followed this method, which to me appeared absolutely necessary, I should have completed my work, such as it would have been, in less than one half of the time.

These previous readings, collations, and translations, produced an immense number of notes and observations on all parts of the Old Testament, which, by the advice and entreaty of several learned and judicious friends, I was induced to extend in the form of a perpetual comment on every book in the Bible. This being ultimately revised and completed as far as the book of Judges, which formed, in my purpose, the boundary of my proceedings on the Hebrew Scriptures, I was induced to commit it to press.

Though my friends in general wished me to go forward with the Old Testament, yet, as several of them were apprehensive, from the infirm state of my health at that time, that I might not live long enough to finish the whole, they advised me strongly to omit for the present the Old Testament, and begin with the New. This was in conformity with my own feelings on the subject; having wished simply to add the four Gospels and Acts of the Apostles to the five books of Moses and the books of Joshua and Judges; as these two parcels of Divine revelation, carefully illustrated, would give a full view of the origin and final settlement of the Church of the Old Covenant, and the commencement and completion of that of the New. And thus I proceeded:—

After having literally translated every word of the New Testament, that last best gift of God to man; comparing the whole with all the ancient versions, and the most important of the modern; collating all with the various readings collected by Stephens, Courcel, Fell, Gherard of Macstricht, Bengel, Mill, Wetstein, and Griesbach; actually examining many MSS., either cursorily or not at all examined by them; illustrating the whole by quotations from ancient authors, rabbinical, Grecian, Roman, and Asiatic; I exceeded my previous design, and brought down the work to the end of the Apocalypse; and passed the whole through the press.

I should mention here a previous work, (without which any man must be ill qualified to undertake the illustration of the New Testament,) viz., a careful examination of the Septuagint. In this the phraseology of the New Testament is contained, and from this the import of that phraseology is alone to be derived. This I read carefully over to the end of the book of Psalms, in the edition of Dr. Grabe, from the Codex Alexandrinus; collating it occasionally with editions taken from the Vatican MS., and particularly that printed by Field, at Cambridge, 1665, 18mo., with the Parænetic preface of the learned Bishop Pearson. Without this previous work, who did ever yet properly comprehend the idiom and phraseology of the Greek Testament! Now, all these are parts of my labour which common readers cannot conceive; and which none can properly appreciate, as to the pains, difficulty, and time which must be expended, who have not themselves trodden this almost unfrequented path.

When the New Testament was thus prepared and finished at press, I was induced, though with great reluctance, to recommence the Old. I was already nearly worn down by my previous work, connected with other works and duties which I could not omit; and though I had gone through the most important parts of the sacred records, yet I could easily foresee that I had an ocean of difficulties to wade through in those parts that remained. The Historical Books alone, in their chronology, arrangement of facts, concise and often obscure phraseology, presented not a few; the books of Solomon, and those of the major and minor prophets, a multitude. Notwithstanding all these, I hope I may say that, having obtained help of God, I am come with some success to the conclusion; having aimed at nothing, throughout the whole, but the glory of God and the good of men.

But still something remains to be said concerning the modus operandi, or particular plan of proceeding. In prosecuting this work I was led to attend, in the first instance, more to words than to things, in order to find their true ideal meaning; together with those different shades of acceptation to which they became subject, either in the circumstances of the speakers and those who were addressed, or in their application to matters which use, peculiarity of place and situation, and the lapse of time, had produced. It was my invariable plan to ascertain first, the literal meaning of every word and phrase; and where there was a spiritual meaning, or reference, to see how it was founded on the literal sense. He who assumes his spiritual meanings first, is never likely to interpret the words of God either to his own credit or to the profit of his readers; but in this track commentator has followed commentator, so that, in many cases, instead of a careful display of God's words and the objects of his providence and mercy, we have tissues of strange doctrines, human creeds, and confessions of faith. As I have said in another place, I speak not against compilations of this kind; but let them be founded on the words of God, first properly understood.

As I proceeded in my work I met with other difficulties. I soon perceived an almost continual reference to the literature, arts, and sciences of the Ancient World, and of the Asiatic nations in particular; and was therefore obliged to make these my particular study, having found a thousand passages which I could neither illustrate nor explain, without some general knowledge at least of their jurisprudence, astronomy, architecture, chemistry, chirurgery, medicine, metallurgy, pneumatics, &c., with their military tactics, and the arts and trades (as well ornamental as necessary) which are carried on in common life.

In the course of all this labour I have also paid particular attention to those facts mentioned in the sacred writings which have been the subjects of animadversion or ridicule by freethinkers and infidels of all classes and in all times: and I hope I may say that no such passage is either designedly passed by or superficially considered; that the strongest objections are fairly produced and met; that all such parts of these Divine writings are, in consequence, exhibited in their own lustre; and that the truth of the doctrine of our salvation has had as many triumphs as it has had attacks from the rudest and most formidable of its antagonists; and on all such disputed points I humbly hope that the reader will never consult these volumes in vain. And if those grand doctrines which constitute what by some is called orthodoxy; that prove that God is loving to every man; that from his innate, infinite, and eternal goodness, he wills and has made provision for the salvation of every human soul; be found to be those which alone have stood the rigid test of all the above sifting and examination; it was not because these were sought for beyond all others, and the Scriptures bent in that way in order to favour them; but because these doctrines are essentially contained in, and established by, the Oracles of God.

I may add, that these doctrines and all those connected with them, (such as the defection and sinfulness of man; the incarnation and sacrificial death of Christ; his infinite, unoriginated, and eternal Deity; justification by faith in his blood; and the complete sanctification of the soul by the inspiration of the Holy Spirit,) have not only been shown to be the doctrines of the sacred records, but have also been subjected to the strongest test of logical examination; and, in the notes, are supported by arguments, many of them new, applied in such a way as has not been done before in any similar or theological work.

In this arduous labour I have had no assistants; not even a single week's help from an amanuensis; no person to look for common-places, or refer to an ancient author; to find out the place and transcribe a passage of Greek, Latin, or any other language, which my memory had generally recalled, or to verify a quotation; the help excepted which I received in the chronological department from my nephew. I have laboured alone for nearly twenty-five years previously to the work being sent to press; and fifteen years have been employed in bringing it through the press to the public; and thus about forty years of my life have been consumed; and from this the reader will at once perceive that the work, well or ill executed, has not been done in a careless or precipitate manner; nor have any means within my reach been neglected to make it in every respect, as far as possible, what the titlepage promises,—A Help to a Better Understanding of the Sacred Writings.

Thus, through the merciful help of God, my labour in this field terminates; a labour, which were it yet to commence, with the knowledge I now have of its difficulty, and my, in many respects, inadequate means, millions, even of the gold of Ophir, and all the honours that can come from man, could not induce me to undertake. Now that it is finished, I regret not the labour; I have had the testimony of many learned, pious, and judicious friends relative to the execution and usefulness of the work. It has been admitted into the very highest ranks of society, and has lodged in the cottages of the poor. It has been the means of doing good to the simple of heart; and the wise man and the scribe, the learned and the philosopher, according to their own generous acknowledgments, have not consulted its pages in vain.

For these, and all his other mercies to the writer and reader, may God, the Fountain of all good, be eternally praised!

Adam Clarke.

Eastcott, April 17, 1826.

A TABLE

Of the several places of the OLD TESTAMENT cited in the NEW, which are taken from the Hebrew or Septuagint, from both, or from neither.

In this Table, O stands for the Old Testament; H, for Hebrew; G, for the Greek version or Septuagint; and N, for neither, or doubtful.

Chap.	Ver.	MATTHEW.
i.	23.	from Isa. vii. 14.	O
ii.	6.	from Mic. v. 2.	N
	15.	from Hos. xi. 1.	H
	18.	from Jer. xxxi. 15.	H
	23.	from Judg. xiii. 5.	N
iii.	3.	from Isa. xl. 3.	G
iv.	4.	from Deut. viii. 3.	G
	6.	from Psa. xci. 11, 12.	N
	7.	from Deut. vi. 16.	G
	10.	from Deut. vi. 13.	N
	15, 16.	from Isa. ix. 1, 2.	N
v.	21.	from Exod. xx. 13; Lev. xxiv. 21	N
	31.	from Deut. xxiv. 1.	O
	33.	from Num. xxx. 2.	N
	38.	from Exod. xxi. 24.	O
	43.	from Lev. xix. 18.	N
viii.	17.	from Isa. liii. 4.	H
ix.	13.	from Hos. vi. 6.	H
xi.	10.	from Mal. iii. 1.	H and N
	14.	from Mal. iv. 5.	H
xii.	4.	from 1 Sam. xxi. 6.	O
	5.	from Num. xxviii. 9.	O
	18, &c.,	from Isa. xlii. 1.	G and N
xiii.	14.	from Isa. vi. 9, 20.	G
	35.	from Psa. lxxviii. 2.	G and N
xv.	4.	from Exod. xx. 12, xxi. 17.	O
	8, 9.	from Isa. xxix. 13.	G
xix.	4.	from Gen. i. 27.	O
	5.	from Gen. ii. 24.	O
	7.	from Deut. xxiv. 1.	O
xxi.	5.	from Zech. ix. 9.	N
	9.	from Psa. cxviii. 25, 26.	O
	13.	from Isa. lvi. 7, partim. from Jer. vii. 11, partim.	N
	16.	from Psa. viii. 2.	O
	42.	from Psa. cxviii. 22, 23.	O
xxii.	24.	from Deut. xxv. 5.	O
	32.	from Exod. iii. 6	O
	37.	from Deut. vi. 5.	N
	39.	from Lev. xix. 18.	O
	44.	from Psa. cx. 1.	O
xxiv.	15.	from Dan. xii. 11.	G
	29.	from Isa. xiii. 10.	N
xxvii.	9, 10.	from Zech. xi. 13.	O and N
	35.	from Psa. xxii. 18.	O
	46.	from Psa. xxii. 1.	O

Chap.	Ver.	MARK.
i.	2.	from Mal. iii. 1.	O
	3.	from Isa. xl. 3.	O
ii.	26.	from 1 Sam. xxii. 6.	N
iv.	12.	from Isa. vi. 9.	O
vii.	6.	from Isa. xxix. 13.	O
x.	8.	from Gen. ii. 24.	O
xi.	9, 10.	from Psa. cxviii. 22, 23.	O
	17.	from Isa. lvi. 7; Jer. vii. 11.	O
xii.	10, 11.	from Psa. cxviii. 22, 23.	O
	19.	from Deut. xxv. 5.	O

Chap.	Ver.
xii.	26.	from Exod. iii. 6.	O
	29, 30.	from Deut. vi. 4, 5.	O
	31.	from Lev. xix. 18.	O
	36.	from Psa. cx. 1.	O
xiii.	14.	from Dan. xii. 11.	O
xiv.	27.	from Zech. xiii. 7.	H and N
xv.	28.	from Isa. liii. 12.	O
	34.	from Psa. xxii. 1.	O

		LUKE.
ii.	23.	from Exod. xiii. 2; Num. viii. 17.	N
	24.	from Lev. xii. 8.	O
	34.	from Isa. viii. 14.	N
iv.	4.	from Deut. viii. 3.	O
	8.	from Deut. vi. 13.	O
	10, 11.	from Psa. xci. 11, 12.	O
	12.	from Deut. vi. 16.	O
	18, 19.	from Isa. lxi. 1, 2.	G and N
vi.	4.	from 1 Sam. xxi. 6.	O
vii.	27.	from Mal. iii. 1	O
x.	27.	from Deut. vi. 5; Lev. xix. 18.	O
xix.	46.	from Isa. lvi. 7; Jer. vii. 11.	O
xx.	17.	from Psa. cxviii. 22.	O
	37.	from Exod. iii. 6.	O
	42, 43.	from Psa. cx. 1.	O
xxii.	37.	from Isa. liii. 12.	O

		JOHN.
i.	23.	from Isa. xl. 3.	O
ii.	17.	from Psa. lxix. 9.	O
vii.	42.	partim from Mic. v. 2, partim. from 1 Sam. xvi. 1, partim.	O
viii.	5.	from Lev. xx. 10.	O
	17.	from Deut. xvii. 6.	O
x.	34.	from Psa. lxxxii. 6.	O
xii.	15.	from Zech. ix. 9.	O
	38.	from Psa. liii. 1.	O
	40.	from Isa. vi. 10.	N
xiii.	18.	from Psa. xli. 9.	N
xix.	24.	from Psa. xxii. 18.	O
	28, 29.	from Psa. lxix. 21.	O
	36.	from Exod. xii. 46.	N
	37.	from Zech. xii. 10.	H

		ACTS.
i.	20.	partim from Psa. lxix. 26, partim. from Psa. cix. 8, partim.	N
ii.	17, &c.	from Joel ii. 28, &c.	G
	25, &c.	from Psa. xvi. 8, &c.	G
	34, 35.	from Psa. cx. 1.	O
iii.	22.	from Deut. xviii. 15, 18, 19.	N
	25.	from Gen. xxii. 18.	N
iv.	25, 26.	from Psa. ii. 1, 2.	O
vii.	42, 43.	from Amos v. 25, 26, 27.	N
	49, 50.	from Isa. lxvi. 1, 2.	O
viii.	32, 33.	from Isa. liii. 7, 8.	G
xiii.	33.	from Psa. ii. 7.	O
	34.	from Isa. lv. 3.	O

Chap.	Ver.
xiii.	35.	from Psa. xvi. 10.	O
	41.	from Hab. i. 5.	G
	47.	from Isa. xlix. 6.	O
xv.	16, 17.	from Amos ix. 11, 12.	G
xxiii.	5.	from Exod. ii. 28.	O
xxviii.	26, 27.	from Isa. vi. 9, 10.	O

ROMANS.

i.	17.	from Hab. ii. 4.	O
iii.	4.	from Psa. li. 4.	G
	10, 11, 12.	from Psa. xiv. 1, 2, 3.	N
	13.	from Psa. v. 10; Psa. cxl. 4.	from Psa. xiv. 1, 2, 3, juxta, lxx. G
	14.	from Psa. x. 7.
	15.	from Prov. i. 16.
	16, 17.	from Isa. lix. 7, 8.
	18.	from Psa. xxxvi. 12.
iv.	3.	from Gen. xv. 6.	O
	17.	from Gen. xvii. 5.	O
	18.	from Gen. xv. 5.	O
viii.	36.	from Psa. xliv. 23.	O
ix.	9.	from Gen. xviii. 10.	O
	12.	from Gen. xxv. 23.	O
	13.	from Matt. i. 2.	O
	15.	from Exod. xxxiii. 9.	O
	17.	from Exod. ix. 16.	H
	25.	from Hos. ii. 23.	O
	26.	from Hos. i. 10.	O
	27, 28.	from Isa. x. 22, 23.	O
	29.	from Isa. i. 9.	O
	33.	from Isa. viii. 14, and xxviii. 16.	H
x.	5.	from Lev. xviii. 5.	O
	6.	from Deut. xxx. 12.	O
	8.	from Deut. xxx. 14.	O
	11.	from Isa. xxviii. 16.	G
	13.	from Joel ii. 32.	O
	15.	from Isa. lii. 7.	H
	16.	from Isa. liii. 1.	O
	18.	from Psa. xix. 5.	O
	19.	from Deut. xxxii. 21.	O
	20, 21.	from Isa. lxv. 1, 2.	O
xi.	3.	from 1 Kings xix. 10.	O
	4.	from 1 Kings xix. 18.	H
	8.	from Isa. xxix. 9, vi. 9.	N
	9, 10.	from Psa. lxix. 23, 24.	G
	26.	from Isa. lix. 20.	N
	27.	from Isa. xxvii. 9.	N
	34.	from Isa. xl. 13.	O
	35.	from Job xli. 2 or 10.	H
xii.	19.	from Deut. xxxii. 35.	H
	20.	from Prov. xxv. 21, 22.	O
xiv.	11.	from Isa. xlv. 23.	N
xv.	3.	from Psa. lxix. 10.	O
	9.	from Psa. xviii. 50.	O
	10.	from Deut. xxxii. 43.	O
	11.	from Psa. cxvii. 1.	O
	12.	from Isa. xi. 10.	O
	21.	from Isa. lii. 15.	O

1 CORINTHIANS.

i.	19.	from Isa. xxix. 14.	G and N
	31.	from Jer. ix. 24.	O
ii.	9.	from Isa. lxiv. 4.	N
	16.	from Isa. xl. 13.	O
iii.	19.	from Job v. 13.	H
	20.	from Psa. xciv. 11.	N
vi.	16.	from Gen. ii. 24.	O
ix.	9.	from Deut. xxv. 4.	O
x.	7.	from Exod. xxxii. 6.	O
	26.	from Psa. xxiv. 1.	O
xiv.	21.	from Isa. xxviii. 11, 12.	N
xv.	45.	from Gen. ii. 7.	O
	54.	from Isa. xxv. 8.	H

2 CORINTHIANS.

iv.	13.	from Psa. cxvi. 10.	O
vi.	2.	from Isa. xlix. 8.	O
	16.	from Lev. xxvi. 11, 12; Ezek. xxxvii. 27.	O
vi.	17.	from Isa. lii. 11.	O
	18.	from Jer. xxxi. 1, 9.	O
viii.	15.	from Exod. xvi. 18.	O
ix.	9.	from Psa. cxii. 9.	O
xiii.	1.	from Deut. xvii. 6.	O

GALATIANS.

iii.	8.	from Gen. xii. 3, xviii. 18.	O
	10.	from Deut. xxvii. 26.	O
	11.	from Hab. ii. 4.	O
	12.	from Lev. xviii. 5.	O
	13.	from Deut. xxi. 23.	O
	16.	from Gen. xvii. 7.	O
iv.	22.	from Gen. xvi. 15, 21.	O
	27.	from Isa. liv. 1.	O
	30.	from Gen. xxi. 10.	O

EPHESIANS.

iv.	8.	from Psa. lxviii. 19.	N
v.	31.	from Gen. ii. 24.	O
vi.	2, 3.	from Exod. xx. 12; Deut. v. 16.	G

1 TIMOTHY.

v.	18.	from Deut. xxv. 4.	O

HEBREWS.

i.	5.	from Psa. ii. 7; 2 Sam. vii. 14.	O
	6.	from Psa. xcvii. 7.	G
	7.	from Psa. civ. 4.	O
	8, 9.	from Psa. xlv. 6, 7.	O
	10–12.	from Psa. cii. 25–27.	O
	13.	from Psa. cx. 1.	O
ii.	6–8.	from Psa. viii. 4–6.	O
	12.	from Psa. xxii. 22.	O
	13.	from 2 Sam. xxii. 3, and Isa. viii. 18.	O
iii.	7–11.	from Psa. xcv. 7–11.	O
iv.	4.	from Gen. ii. 2.	O
v.	5.	from Psa. ii. 7.	O
	6.	from Psa. cx. 4.	O
vi.	14.	from Gen. xxii. 17.	O
vii.	1.	from Gen. xiv. 18.	O
	17.	from Psa. cx. 4.	O
viii.	5.	from Exod. xxv. 40.	O
	8–12.	from Jer. xxxi. 31–34.	N
ix.	20.	from Exod. xxiv. 8.	O
x.	5–7.	from Psa. xl. 6–8.	G
	16, 17.	from Jer. xxxi. 32, 34.	O
	30.	from Deut. xxxii. 35, 36.	O
	37, 38.	from Hab. ii. 3, 4.	G and N
xi.	5.	from Gen. v. 24.	G
	18.	from Gen. xxi. 12.	O
	22.	from Gen. xlvii. 31.	G
xii.	5, 6.	from Prov. iii. 11, 12.	O
	16.	from Gen. xxv. 33.	O
	18.	from Exod. xix. 16.	O
	20.	from Exod. xix. 19.	O
	26.	from Hag. ii. 6.	O
	29.	from Deut. iv. 24.	O
xii.	5.	from Deut. xxxi. 6, 8, and Josh. i. 5.	O
	6.	from Psa. cxviii. 6.	O

JAMES.

i.	12.	from Job v. 17.	N
ii.	8.	from Lev. xix. 18.	O
	23.	partim from Gen. xv. 16, partim.	O
		from 2 Chron. xx. 7, partim.	O
iv.	5.	from Gen. vi. 3, 5.	N
	6.	from Prov. iii. 34.	G

1 PETER.

i.	16.	from Lev. xi. 44.	O
	25.	from Isa. xl. 6, 7.	G
ii.	6.	from Isa. xxviii. 16.	O
	7.	from Psa. cxviii. 22; Isa. viii. 14.	O
	22.	from Isa. liii. 9.	O

Chap.	Ver.
ii.	24, 25. from Isa. liii. 5, 6.	O
iii.	6. from Gen. xviii. 12.	O
	10–12. from Psa. xxxiv. 12–16.	O
iv.	18. from Prov. xi. 31.	N
v.	5. from Prov. iii. 34.	O

2 PETER.

ii.	22. from Prov. xxvi. 11.	O
iii.	8. from Psa. xc. 4.	O
	9. from Ezek. xxxiii. 11.	O

JUDE.

	9 from Zech. iii. 2.	H

APOCALYPSE.

i.	7. from Zech. xii. 10.	H
ii.	23. from Psa. vii. 10.	O
	27. from Psa. ii. 10.	O
iii.	7. from Isa. xxii. 22.	O
	19. from Prov. iii. 12.	O
iv.	8. from Isa. vi. 3.	O
v.	5. from Gen. xlix. 9.	O
	11. from Dan. vii. 10.	O
vi.	14. from Isa. xxxiv. 4.	O
	16. from Isa. ii. 19; Hos. x. 8.	O
vii.	3. from Ezek. ix. 4.	O
vii.	17. from Isa. xxv. 8.	O
x.	5. from Dan. xii. 7.	O
	9. from Ezek. iii. 3.	O
xi.	4. from Zech. iv. 3.	O
xii.	5. from Psa. ii. 9.	O
xiii.	10. from Gen. ix. 6.	O
xiv.	5. from Psa. xxxii. 2.	O
	8. from Psa. xxi. 9.	O
	10. from Psa. lxxv. 8.	O
xv.	4. from Jer. x. 7.	O
	8. from Exod. xl. 34.	O
xviii.	2. from Isa. xiii. 21, 22.	O
	4. from Isa. xlviii. 20; Jer. l. 8.	O
	6. from Psa. cxxxvii. 8.	O
	7. from Isa. xlvii. 7, 8.	O
	11. from Ezek. xxvii. 35, 36.	O
	17, &c. from Ezek. xxix. 29, &c.	O
	21. from Jer. li. 64.	O
	23. from Jer. xxv. 10.	O
xix.	13. from Isa. lxiii. 2, 3.	O
xx.	8. from Ezek. xxxviii. 2; xxxix. 1.	O
xxi.	1. from Isa. lxv. 17.	O
	4. from Isa. xxv. 8.	O
	15. from Ezek. xl. 3.	O
	23. from Isa. lx. 19.	O
	25. from Isa. lx. 20.	O
	27. from Isa. xxxv. 8.	O
xxii.	5. from Isa. lx. 19, 20.	O

18 H. 27 G. 47 N. Plerumque O.; i. e., 200, aut eo circiter.

The above table was printed by Mr. E. Leigh, for his Critica Sacra. I have made a few corrections and additions.—A. C.

TABLE I.

Of passages collected from the Old Testament, as a testimony to the New; not indeed in the same words, but having the same meaning.

GENESIS.

Chap.	Ver.
i.	1.	By faith we know that the worlds were made. Heb. xi. 3.
		The heavens were of old. 2 Pet. iii. 5.
	27.	Adam was first formed. 1 Tim. ii. 13.
ii.	22.	But the man is not of the woman. 1 Cor. xi. 8.
iii.	4.	But the serpent deceived Eve by his subtilty. 2 Cor. xi. 3.
	6.	Adam was not deceived. 1 Tim. ii. 14.
iv.	4.	By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain. Heb. xi. 4.
	8.	From the blood of righteous Abel. Matt. xxiii. 35.
		Not as Cain, who was of that wicked one. 1 John iii. 12.
		Wo to them, for they have gone in the way of Cain. Jude 12.
v.	24.	By faith Enoch was translated. Heb. xi. 5.
vi.	12.	When once the longsuffering of God waited. 1 Pet. iii. 20.
	13.	By faith Noah was warned. Heb. xi. 7.
	22.	Noah, the eighth person, a preacher of righteousness. 2 Pet. ii. 5.
vii.	4.	For as the days that were before the flood. Matt. xxiv. 32.
ix.	6.	All they that take the sword shall perish by the sword. Matt. xxvi. 52; Rev. xiii. 10.
xii.	4.	By faith Abraham, when he was called. Heb. xi. 8.
xiv.	18.	For this Melchisedek. Heb. vii. 1.
xvi.	15.	Abraham had two sons, the one by a bondmaid Gal. iv. 22.
xvii.	11.	And gave him the covenant of circumcision. Acts vii. 8; Rom. iv. 11.
xviii.	10.	By faith Sarah herself received strength. Heb. xi. 11.
	12.	As Sarah obeyed Abraham. 1 Pet. iii. 6.
xix.	25.	And the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah. 2 Pet. ii. 6.
		As Sodom and Gomorrah. Jude 7.
	26.	Remember Lot's wife. Luke xvii. 32.
		For as it was in the days of Lot, they ate, they drank, they bought. Luke xvii. 27.
xxi.	1.	Abraham had a son by the free-woman. Gal. iv. 22.
xxii.	1.	By faith, Abraham, when he was tried. Heb. xi. 17.
	9.	Abraham offered his son upon the altar. James ii. 21.
xxii.	16.	As he spoke unto our fathers. Luke i. 55.
xxv.	22.	Rebecca also conceived by one, our father Isaac. Rom. ix. 10.
	31.	Lest there be a fornicator or profane person, as was Esau, who for one mess of pottage sold his birthright. Heb. xii. 16.
xxvii.	28.	By faith he blessed them concerning things to come. Heb. xi. 20.
xlviii.	15.	By faith, Jacob when he was dying. Heb. xi. 21.
xlix.	10.	Of whom Moses wrote in the law. John i. 45.
l.	24.	By faith, Joseph, when he died. Heb. xi. 22.

EXODUS.

Chap. Ver.
ii. 2. By faith, Moses, when he was born. Heb. xi. 23.
11. By faith, Moses, when he was come to years. Heb. xi. 24.
Moses, seeing one of them suffering wrong. Acts vii. 24.
iii. 2. And when forty years were expired. Acts vii. 30.
xii. 11. Through faith he kept the passover. Heb. xi. 28.
xiv. 22. They were baptized unto Moses in the cloud. 1 Cor. x. 2.
By faith they passed through the Red Sea. Heb. xi. 29.
xvi. 15. Our fathers ate manna in the wilderness. John vi. 49.
He gave them bread from heaven. John vi. 31.
They did all eat that spiritual meat. 1 Cor x. 3.
xvii. 6. For they drank of that spiritual rock which followed them. 1 Cor. x. 4.
xix. 6 A holy nation, a peculiar people. 1 Pet. ii. 9.
12. And if a beast touch the mountain. Heb. xii. 20.
16. Ye are not come unto the mountain. Heb. xii. 18.
xxiv. 8. When Moses had spoken every precept. Heb. ix. 19.
xxvi. 1. For there was a tabernacle made, the first. Heb. ix. 2.
xxxii. 6. Be not ye idolaters, as were some of them. 1 Cor. x. 7.
xl. 4. Wherein was the candlestick. Heb. ix. 2.

LEVITICUS.

xii. 3. Ye on the Sabbath circumcise a man. John vii. 22.
When eight days were fulfilled. Luke ii. 21.
4. When the days of their purification. Luke ii. 22.
6. And to offer a sacrifice according to the law. Luke ii. 24.
xiv. 4. Bring the gift which Moses hath commanded. Matt. viii. 4; Mark i. 44.
xvi. 14. If the blood of bulls and goats. Heb. ix. 13.
17. The whole multitude of the people were without worshipping. Luke i. 10.
xix. 15. Not with respect to persons. James ii. 1.
17. If thy brother sin against thee. Matt. xviii. 15; Luke xvii. 3.
xx. 10. Moses in the law commanded such to be stoned. John viii. 5.

NUMBERS.

viii. 16. Every male that openeth the womb. Luke ii. 23.
ix. 18. All our fathers were under the cloud. 1 Cor. x. 1.
xi. 7. He gave them bread from heaven to eat. John vi. 31.
xii. 7. Moses was faithful in all his house. Heb. iii. 2.
xiv. 37. Whose carcasses fell in the wilderness. Heb. iii. 17.
xvi. 1. They have perished in the gainsaying of Korah. Jude 11.
xix. 3. For the bodies of the beasts whose blood is brought. Heb. xiii. 12.
xx. 10. They drank of that spiritual rock that followed them. 1 Cor. x. 4.
xxi 5. Neither let us tempt Christ. 1 Cor. x. 9.
9. As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness. John iii. 14.
xxii. 23. The dumb ass speaking with a man's voice. 2 Pet. ii. 16.
39. Following the way of Balaam. 2. Pet. ii. 15; Jude 11.
xxiv. 14. They hold the doctrine of Balaam, who taught Balak. Rev. ii. 14.
xxv. 6. Let us not commit adultery as some of them. 1 Cor. x. 8.
xxvi 64 Whose bodies fell in the wilderness. 1 Cor. x. 5.

Chap. Ver.
xxviii. 8. The priests profane the Sabbath in the temple. Matt. xii. 5.

DEUTERONOMY.

i. 16, 17. Have not respect of persons. James ii. 1, 9.
x. 17. For there is no respect of persons with God. Rom. ii. 11; Acts x. 34; Col. iii. 25; Ephes vi. 9.
xvii. 6. He that despised Moses' law. Heb. x. 28.
xviii. 1. Do ye not know that they who minister in holy things. 1 Cor. ix. 13.
xxiv. 1. Whosoever shall put away his wife. Matt. v 31, xix. 7; Mark x. 4.

JOSHUA.

ii. 1. Likewise Rahab the harlot. James ii. 25.
vi. 20. By faith the walls of Jericho fell down. Heb. xi. 30.
By faith, Rahab the harlot. Heb. xi. 31.

1 SAMUEL.

xxi. 6. Do ye not know what David did when he was hungry. Matt. xii. 3; Mark ii. 25; Luke vi. 4.

1 KINGS.

ii. 10. Let me speak freely concerning the patriarch David. Acts ii. 29, xiii. 36.
x. 1. The queen of the south. Matt. xii. 42; Luke xi. 31.
xvii. 1. The heavens were shut for the space of three years. Luke iv. 25.
Elijah was a man of like passions with us. James v. 17.

2 KINGS.

iv. 29. Salute no man by the way. Luke x. 4.
v. 13. Many lepers were in Israel. Luke iv. 27.

1 CHRONICLES.

xxiii. 13. But no man receiveth this honour to himself, but he that was called, as was Aaron. Heb. v. 4.

JOB.

i. 21. For we brought nothing into this world. 1 Tim. vi. 7.
v. 17. Blessed is the man that endureth temptation. James i. 12.
xxxiv. 19. For God is no respecter of persons. Acts x. 34.

PSALMS.

xli. 10. But the Son of man goeth. Matt. xxvi. 24; Mark xiv. 21; Luke xxii. 22. cxxxii. 5. David desired to find a tabernacle for the God of Jacob. Acts vii. 46.

PROVERBS.

xi. 31. If the righteous scarcely be saved. 1 Pet. iv. 18.
xvii. 27. Let every one be swift to hear. James i. 19.
xx. 9. If we say we have no sin. 1 John i. 8.
xxiv. 13. Have not the faith, with respect of persons. James ii. 1.
xxv. 6. Sit not down in the chief seat. Luke xiv. 8.

ISAIAH.

viii. 14. Behold this is set for the fall and rising again. Luke ii. 34.
xiii. 10. After the tribulation of those days, the sun shall be darkened. Matt. xxiv. 29; Mark xiii. 24.
xli. 8. He hath holpen his servant Israel. Luke i. 54.
liv. 1. Blessed are the barren. Luke xxiii. 29.
lviii. 7. I was hungry and ye gave me meat. Matt. xxv. 35.

Chap. Ver.
lxiii. 2. Clothed with a garment dipped in blood. Rev. xix. 13.

JEREMIAH.

ii. 21. A man that was a householder. Matt. xxi. 33; Mark xii. 1; Luke xx. 9. xviii. 6. Shall the thing formed say to him who formeth it. Rom. ix. 20.

EZEKIEL.

xii. 21. Where is the promise of his coming. 2 Pet. iii. 4.
xviii. 7. I was hungry and ye gave me meat. Matt. xxv. 35.
xxxix. 2. And when the thousand years shall be finished. Rev xx 7.

DANIEL.

Chap. Ver.
vii. 10. And thousands of thousands. Rev. v. 11.
xii. 7. And the angel which I saw standing on the sea. Rev. x. 5.

JOEL.

iii. 15. The sun shall be darkened. Matt. xxiv. 29; Mark xiii. 24.

MICAH.

ii. 10. Here we have no continuing city. Heb. xiii. 14.
iv. 7. He shall reign over the house of Jacob. Luke i. 33.

TABLE II.

Of passages collected from the Old Testament, as a testimony to the New; not indeed in the same words, but having the same meaning.

GENESIS.

Chap. Ver.
i. 27. He made them male and female. Matt. xix. 4.
ii. 2. And God rested the seventh day. Heb. iv. 4.
7. And the first man Adam was. 1 Cor. xv. 47.
24. Therefore shall a man leave father and mother. Matt. xix. 5; Mark x. 7; 1 Cor. vi. 16; Eph. v. 31.
And they two shall be one flesh. Matt. xix. 5; Mark x. 7; 1 Cor. vi. 16; Eph. v. 31.
xii. 1, 5, 6. Go out of thy country. Acts vii. 3.
In thy seed shall all the kindreds of the earth be blessed. Acts iii. 25.
xv. 5. So shall be thy seed. Rom. iv. 18.
6. And Abraham believed. Rom. iv. 18; James ii. 23; Gal. iii. 6.
13, 16. Thy seed shall sojourn. Acts vii. 6.
xvii. 4. Thou shalt be a father of many nations. Rom. iv. 17.
xviii. 10. I will return, according to the time of life. Rom. ix. 9.
xxi. 10. Cast out the bondwoman and her son. Gal. iv. 30.
In Isaac shall thy seed be called. Rom. ix. 7.
xxii. 17. In blessing will I bless thee. Heb. vi. 14.
18. In thy seed shall all nations of the earth be blessed. Gal. iii. 8; Acts iii. 25.
xxv. 23. The elder shall serve the younger. Rom. ix. 12.

EXODUS.

iii. 6. I am the God of Abraham. Matt. xxii. 32; Mark xii. 26; Luke xx. 37; Acts vii. 32.
ix. 16. For this cause have I raised thee up. Rom. ix. 17.
xii. 46. A bone of him shall not be broken. John xix. 36.
xiii. 2. Every male that openeth the womb. Luke ii. 23.
xvi. 18. He that gathered much had nothing over. 2 Cor. viii. 15.
xx. 12. Honour thy father and mother. Matt. xv. 4; Eph. vi. 2.
13. Thou shalt not kill. Matt. v. 21.
14. Thou shalt not commit adultery. Matt. v. 27.
15. Thou shalt not steal, &c. Rom. xiii. 9.
17. Thou shalt not covet. Rom. vii. 7.
xxi. 17. He that curseth his father or mother. Matt. xv. 4; Mark vii. 10.
24. Eye for eye, tooth for tooth. Matt. v. 38.
xxii. 28. Thou shalt not speak evil of the ruler of thy people. Acts xxiii. 5.
xxiv. 8. Behold the blood of the covenant Heb. ix. 20; xiii. 20; 1 Pet. i. 2.

Chap. Ver.
xxv. 40. Look that thou make all after the pattern. Heb. viii. 5; Acts vii. 44.
xxxii. 1. Make us gods that may go before us. Acts vii. 40.
xxxiii. 19. I will be gracious to whom I will be gracious. Rom. ix. 15.
xxxiv. 33. Moses put a veil on his face. 2 Cor. iii. 13.

LEVITICUS.

xi. 44. Ye shall be holy, for I am holy. 1 Thess. iv. 7; 1 Pet. i. 15, 16.
xviii. 5. Which if a man do, he shall live in them. Luke x. 28; Rom. x. 5.
xix. 12. Ye shall not swear by my name falsely. Matt. v. 33; James v. 12.
18. Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. Matt. v. 43; xxii. 39; Gal. v. 14; James ii. 8.
xx. 9. Every one that curseth father or mother. Matt. xv. 4.
xxiv. 20. Eye for eye, tooth for tooth. Matt. v. 38.
xxvi. 11. I will dwell among you. 2 Cor. vi. 16.

NUMBERS.

ix. 12. Nor break any bone of it. John xix. 36.

DEUTERONOMY.

iv. 24. The Lord thy God is a consuming fire. Heb xii. 29.
v. 16. Honour thy father and thy mother. Matt. xv 4; Mark vii. 13; Eph. vi. 2.
17. Thou shalt not kill. Matt. v. 21.
18. Thou shalt not commit adultery. Luke xviii. 20
19. Thou shalt not steal. Luke xviii. 20; Rom xiii. 9.
20. Thou shalt not bear false witness. Luke xviii 20; Rom. xiii. 9.
21. Thou shalt not covet. Rom. vii. 7.
vi. 4. Hear, O Israel, the Lord our God is one Lord. Mark xii. 29.
5. Thou shalt love the Lord. Matt. xxii. 37, Mark xii. 30; Luke x. 27.
13. Thou shalt fear the Lord thy God, and serve him. Matt. iv. 10; Luke iv. 8.
16. Ye shall not tempt the Lord your God. Matt. iv. 7; Luke iv. 12.
viii. 3. Man doth not live by bread only. Matt. iv. 4. Luke iv. 4.
x. 17. God accepteth not persons. Acts x. 34; Rom. ii. 11; Gal. ii. 6; Eph. vi. 9; 1 Pet. i. 17.

Chap. Ver.

xviii. 15. A prophet shall the Lord raise up unto thee. John i. 45; Acts iii. 22, vii. 37.
xix. 15. At the mouth of two witnesses. Matt. xviii. 16; John viii. 17; 2 Cor. xiii. 1; 1 Tim. v. 19; Heb. x. 28.
21. An eye for an eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand. Matt. v. 38.
xxi. 23. He that is hanged is accursed. Gal. iii. 13.
xxv. 4. Thou shalt not muzzle the ox. 1 Cor. ix. 9; 1 Tim. v. 18.
5. If a man's brother die. Matt. xxii. 24; Mark xii. 19; Luke xx. 28.
xxvii. 26. Cursed is he who confirmeth not all the words of this law. Gal. iii. 10.
xxx. 12. Who shall go up for us to heaven. Rom. x. 6, &c.
14. But the word is very nigh unto thee. Rom. x. 6, &c.
xxxii. 21. I will move them to jealousy. Rom. x. 19.
35. To me belong vengeance and recompense. Rom. xii. 19; Heb. x. 30.

JOSHUA.

i. 5. I will not fail thee. Heb. xiii. 5.

II. SAMUEL.

vii. 14. I will be his father. Heb. i. 5.

I. KINGS.

xix. 10. They have slain thy prophets. Rom. xi. 3.
18. I have left me seven thousand in Israel. Rom. xi. 4.

JOB.

v. 13. He taketh the wise in their own craftiness. 1 Cor. iii. 19.

PSALMS.

ii. 1. Why do the heathen rage. Acts. iv. 25.
7. Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee. Acts xiii. 33; Heb. i. 5; v. 3.
9. Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron. Rev. ii. 27, xii. 5, xix. 15.
iv. 4. Stand in awe and sin not. Eph. iv. 26.
v. 9. Their throat is an open sepulchre. Luke xi. 44; Rom. iii. 13.
vi. 8. Depart from me, ye workers of iniquity. Matt. vii. 23, xxv. 41; Luke xiii. 27.
viii. 2. Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings. Matt. xi. 25, xxi. 16; 1 Cor. i. 27.
4. What is man that thou art mindful of him? Heb. ii. 6.
6. Thou hast put all things under his feet. 1 Cor. xv. 27; Heb. ii. 8.
x. 7. His mouth is full of cursing. Rom. iii. 14.
xiv. 3. There is none that doeth good. Rom. iii. 10.
xvi. 8. I have set the Lord always before me. Acts ii. 25.
10. Thou wilt not suffer thy holy one to see corruption. Acts ii. 31, xiii. 35.
xviii. 2. My God, in whom I will trust. Heb. ii. 13.
49. I will give thanks unto thee among the heathen. Rom. xv. 9.
xix. 4. Their line is gone out through all the earth. Rom. x. 18.
xxii. 1. My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? Matt. xxvii. 46; Mark xv. 34.
18. They part my garments among them. Luke xxiii. 34; John xix. 23, 24.
22. I will declare thy name to my brethren. Heb. ii. 12.
xxiv. 1. The earth is the Lord's. 1 Cor. x. 26, 28.
xxxi. 5. Into thy hand I commit my spirit. Luke xxiii. 46; Acts vii. 59.
xxxiv. 12. What man is he that desireth life. 1 Pet. iii. 10.
xxxv. 19. They hated me without a cause. John xv. 25.
xl. 6. Sacrifice and offering thou didst not desire. Matt. xii. 7; Heb. x. 5.
xli. 9. He who did eat of my bread. John xiii. 18.
xliv. 22. For thy sake are we killed all the day. Rom. viii. 36.
xlv. 6. Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever. Heb. i. 8.
li. 4. That thou mightest be justified when thou speakest. Rom. iii. 4.
lv. 22. Cast thy burden upon the Lord. 1 Pet. v. 7.
lxii. 12. Thou renderest to every man according. Matt. xvi. 27; Rom. ii. 6; 1 Cor. iii. 8. lxviii. 18. Thou hast ascended on high, and led captivity captive. Eph. iv. 8.
lxix. 9. The zeal of thy house hath eaten me up. John ii. 17.
The reproaches of them that reproach thee. Rom. xv. 3.
22. Let their table become a snare. Rom. xi. 9, 10.
25. Let their habitation be desolate. Acts i 20.
lxxviii. 2. I will open my mouth in parables. Matt. xiii. 35.
24. He gave them bread from heaven. John vi. 31; 1 Cor. x. 3. lxxxii. 6. I have said, Ye are gods. John x. 34.
lxxxix. 20. I have found David my servant. Acts xiii. 22.
xci. 11. He will give his angels charge concerning thee. Matt. iv. 6; Luke iv. 10.
xciv. 11. The Lord knoweth the thoughts of man. 1 Cor. iii. 20.
xcv. 7. To-day, if ye will hear his voice. Heb. iii. 7, iv. 7.
11. Unto whom I sware in my wrath. Heb. iv. 3.
cii. 25. Thou, Lord, in the beginning hast laid. Heb. i. 10.
civ. 4. Who maketh his angels spirits. Heb. i. 7.
cix. 8. His bishopric let another take. Acts i. 20.
cx. 1. The Lord said unto my lord. Matt. xxii. 44; Mark xii. 42; Acts ii. 34; 1 Cor xv. 25.
Until I make thine enemies thy footstool. 1 Cor. xv. 25.
4. Thou art a priest for ever. Heb. v. 6, vii. 17, 21.
The Lord hath sworn, and will not repent. Heb. vii. 17.
cxii. 9. He hath dispersed abroad. 2 Cor. ix. 9.
cxvi. 10. I believed; therefore have I spoken. 2 Cor. iv. 13.
11. I said in my haste, All men are liars. Rom. iii. 4. cxvii. 1. Praise the Lord, all ye nations. Rom. xv. 11.
cxviii. 6. The Lord is on my side. Heb. xiii. 6.
22. The stone which the builders rejected. Matt. xxi. 42; Mark xii. 10; Luke xx. 17; Acts iv. 11; 1 Pet. ii. 4, 7.
25, 26. Save now, I beseech thee,—Blessed is he that cometh. Matt. xxi. 9. cxxxii. 11. Of the fruit of thy body. Luke i. 69; Acts ii. 30.
cxl. 3. Adder's poison is under their lips. Rom. iii. 13.

PROVERBS.

iii. 7. Be not wise in thine own eyes. Rom. xii. 16.
11. My son, despise not the chastening of the Lord. Heb xii. 5.
12. For whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth. Rev. iii. 19.
x. 12. Love covereth all sins. 1 Pet. iv. 8.
xvii. 15. Whoso rewardeth evil for good. 1 Thess. v. 15; 1 Pet. iii. 9.
xx. 20. Whoso curseth his father. Matt. xv. 4.
xxv. 21. If thine enemy be hungry, give him bread. Matt. v. 44; Rom. xii. 20.
xxvi. 11. As a dog returneth to his vomit. 2 Pet. ii. 22.

ISAIAH.

i. 9. Except the Lord had left us a very small remnant Rom. ix. 29.

Chap. Ver.
v. 1, &c. My well beloved hath a vineyard. Matt. xxi. 33; Mark xii. 1; Luke xx. 9.
vi. 3. Holy, holy, holy. Rev. iv. 8.
9. Hear ye indeed, but understand not. Matt. xiii. 14; Mark iv. 12; Luke viii. 10; John xii. 40; Acts xxviii. 26; Rom. xi. 8.
vii. 14. Behold, a virgin shall conceive. Matt. i. 23; Luke i. 31.
viii. 18. Behold, I and the children. Heb. ii. 13.
ix. 1. The land of Zebulun and the land of Naphtali. Matt. iv. 16.
x. 22. Yet a remnant of them shall return. Rom. ix. 27.
xi. 4. With the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked. 2 Thess. ii. 8; Rev. i. 16.
xxi. 9. Babylon is fallen, is fallen. Rev. xiv. 8, xviii. 2.
xxii. 13. Let us eat and drink, for to-morrow we die. 1 Cor. xv. 32.
22. He shall open, and none shall shut. Rev. iii. 7
xxv. 8. The Lord will wipe away tears from all faces. Rev. vii. 17.
xxviii. 11. For with stammering lips and another tongue. 1 Cor. xiv. 21.
16. Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation. Matt. xxi. 42; Acts iv. 11; Rom. ix. 33; Eph. ii. 20; 1 Pet. ii. 6–8.
xxix. 13. This people draw near me with their mouth. Matt. xv. 8, 9; Mark vii. 6.
14. The wisdom of their wise shall perish. 1 Cor. i. 19.
xxxiii. 18. Where is the wise, where is the receiver? 1 Cor. i. 20.
xl. 3. The voice of him that crieth in the wilderness. Matt. iii. 3; Mark i. 3; Luke iii. 4; John i. 23.
6. All flesh is grass. James i. 10; 1 Pet. i. 24.
13. Who hath directed the Spirit of the Lord. Rom. xi. 34; 1 Cor. ii. 16.
xli. 4. I the Lord the first, and with the last. Rev. i. 17.
xlii. 1. Behold my servant whom I uphold. Matt. xii. 18.
xliii. 19. Behold, I will do a new thing. 2 Cor. v. 17; Rev. xxi. 5. xliv. 6. I am the first, and I am the last. Rev. xxii. 13.
xlv. 9. Shall the clay say to him that fashioneth it. Rom. ix. 20.
23. Unto me every knee shall bow. Rom. xiv. 11; Phil. ii. 10.
xlix. 6. I will give thee for a light to the Gentiles. Luke ii. 32; Acts xiii. 47, xxvi. 8.
8. In an acceptable time have I heard thee. 2 Cor. vi. 2.
10. They shall not hunger nor thirst. Rev. vii. 16.
l. 6. I hid not my face from shame and spitting. Matt. xxvi. 67, xxvii. 26.
lii. 7. How beautiful upon the mountains. Rom. x. 15.
5. My name continually every day is blasphemed. Rom. ii. 24.
11. Depart ye, depart ye, touch no unclean thing. 2 Cor. vi. 17; Rev. xviii. 4.
15. For that which had not been told them. Rom. xv. 21.
liii. 1. Who hath believed our report? John xii. 38; Rom. x. 16.
4. Surely he hath borne our griefs. Matt. viii. 17.
5. He was bruised for our iniquities. Rom. iv. 25; 1 Cor. xv. 3; 1 Pet. ii. 24.
7. He is brought as a lamb to the slaughter. Acts viii. 32.
9. He did no violence, neither was deceit found in his mouth. 1 Pet. ii. 22.
12. He was numbered with the transgressors. Mark xv. 28; Luke xxii. 37.
liv. 1. Sing, O barren, thou that didst not bear. Gal. iv. 27.
13. All thy children shall be taught of the Lord. John vi. 45; 1 Cor. ii. 10.

Chap. Ver.
lv. 1. Ho, every one that thirsteth. John iv. 14, vii. 37; Rev. xxi. 6, xxii. 17.
3. I will give you the sure mercies of David. Acts xiii. 34.
lvi. 7. For my house shall be called a house of prayer. Matt. xxi. 13; Mark xi. 17; Luke xix. 46.
lix. 7. Wasting and destruction are in their paths. Rom. iii. 15.
17. He put on righteousness as a breastplate. Eph. vi. 14, 17; 1 Thess. v. 8.
20. The Redeemer shall come to Zion. Rom. xi. 26.
lx. 11. Thy gates shall be open continually. Rev. xxi. 25.
19. The sun shall be no more thy light. Rev. xxi. 23; xxii. 5.
lxi. 1. The Spirit of the Lord is upon me. Luke iv. 18.
lxii. 11. Say ye to the daughter of Zion. Matt. xxi. 5; John xii. 15.
lxiv. 4. Men have not seen nor perceived by the ear. 1 Cor. ii. 9.
lxv. 1. I am sought of them that asked not for me Rom. ix. 24–26, x. 20; Eph. ii. 13.
2. I have spread out my hands all the day. Rom. x. 21.
17. I create new heavens and a new earth. 2 Pet. iii. 13; Rev. xxi. 1.
lxvi. 1. Heaven is my throne. Acts vii. 48, 49, xvii. 24.
24. Their worm shall not die, neither shall their fire Mark ix. 44–48.

JEREMIAH.

vii. 11. Is this house become a den of robbers. Matt. xxi. 13; Luke xix. 46.
ix. 24. But let him that glorieth glory in this. 1 Cor. i. 31; 2 Cor. x. 17.
x. 7. Who would not fear thee, O king of nations? Rev. xv. 4.
xvii. 10. I the Lord search the heart and try the reins. Rom. viii. 27; Rev. ii. 23.
xxxi. 9. I will be a father to Israel. 2 Cor. vi. 18; Rev. xxi. 7.
15. A voice was heard in Ramah. Matt. ii. 17, 18.
31. Behold, the days come—that I will make a new covenant. Heb. viii. 8, x. 10.
li. 8. Babylon is suddenly fallen. Rev. xiv. 8, xviii. 2.

EZEKIEL.

iii. 1–3. Eat this roll. Rev. x. 9.
xx. 11, 13, 21. Which if a man do he shall even live in them. Rom. x. 5; Gal. iii. 12.
xxxii. 8. All the bright lights of heaven will I make dark. Matt. xxiv. 29.
xxxvi. 23. I will sanctify my great name which was profaned. Rom. ii. 24.

DANIEL.

ix. 27. The overspreading of abominations. Matt. xxiv. 15; Mark xiii. 14; Luke xxi. 20.

HOSEA.

i. 10. In the place where it was said unto them. Rom. ix. 26.
ii. 23. I will say unto them that were not my people. Rom. ix. 25; 1 Pet. ii. 10.
vi. 6. For I desired mercy, and not sacrifice. Matt. ix. 13; xii. 7.
x. 8. They shall say unto the mountains, Cover us. Luke xxiii. 30; Rev. vi. 16, ix. 6.
xi. 1. I called my son out of Egypt. Matt. ii. 15.
xiii. 14. O death, I will be thy plagues. 1 Cor. xv. 54, 55.

JOEL.

ii. 28. It shall come to pass in the last days. Acts ii. 17.

Chap. Ver.
ii 32. Whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord. Rom. x. 13.

AMOS.

v. 25. Have ye offered to me sacrifices. Acts vii. 42.
vi. 1. Wo to them that are at ease in Zion. Luke vi. 24.
ix. 11. I will raise up the tabernacle of David. Acts xv. 16, 17.

JONAH.

i. 17. Jonah was in the belly of the fish three days and three nights. Matt. xii. 40, xvi. 4; Luke xi. 30.
iii. 4–9. The people of Nineveh repented. Matt. xii. 41; Luke xi. 32.

MICAH.

v. 2. Thou, Beth-lehem Ephratah. Matt. ii. 6; John vii. 42.
vii. 6. The son dishonoureth his father. Matt. x. 21, 35, 36; Luke xii. 53, xxi. 16.

NAHUM.

i. 15. Behold upon the mountains the feet. Rom. x. 15.

HABAKKUK.

i. 5. Behold ye among the heathen—and wonder. Acts xiii. 41.

Chap. Ver.
ii. 4. But the just shall live by faith. John iii. 36; Rom. i. 17; Gal. iii. 11; Heb. x. 38.

HAGGAI.

ii. 6. I will shake the heavens and the earth. Heb xii. 26.

ZECHARIAH.

viii. 16. Speak every man truth to his neighbour. Eph. iv. 25.
ix. 9. Behold thy King cometh. Matt. xxi. 5; John xii. 15.
xi. 11, 12. So they weighed for my price thirty pieces of silver. Matt. xxvi. 15, xxvii. 9, 10.
xii. 10. They shall look upon me whom they have pierced. John xix. 34, 37; Rev. i. 7.
xiii. 7. I will smite the Shepherd. Matt. xxvi. 31; Mark xiv. 27.

MALACHI.

i. 2, 3. I loved Jacob, and hated Esau. Rom. ix. 13.
iii. 1. Behold, I send my messenger. Matt. xi. 10; Mark i. 2; Luke i. 76, vii. 27.
iv. 5. Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet. Matt. xi. 14, xvii. 11; Mark ix. 11; Luke i. 17.
6. He shall turn the hearts of the fathers to the children. Luke i. 17.

GENERAL INDEX

TO THE

NOTES ON THE OLD TESTAMENT.

N B. In principio refers to the observations at the beginning, and in fine to those at the end, of the chapter.

A.

AARON, why called "God's holy one," Deut. xxxiii. 8.

Abana, a river of Damascus; reasons for believing that the river known in the time of Elisha by this name is a branch of the Barrady, 2 Kings v. 12.

Abarim, mountains of, Dr. Shaw's description of the, Num. xxvii. 12. The fortieth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, Num. xxxiii. 47.

Abed-nego, derivation of the name, Dan. i. 7. How it should be pronounced, ibid.

Aben Ezra, account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 2.

Abenim, אבנים, why weights were originally so named by the Hebrews, Lev. xx. 36.

Abib, constituted the first month of the Jewish ecclesiastical year, Exod. xii. 2.

Abijah, battle of, with Jeroboam, great discordances in the versions respecting the number of the combatants and of the slain, 2 Chron. xiii. 3. The number of men engaged and slain, probably only a tenth part of that stated in the present copies of the Hebrew, ibid.

Ablutions, before offering sacrifice to the gods, evidently borrowed by the heathens from the Jewish purifications, Exod. xix. 10.

Abner, observations on David's lamentation over, 2 Sam. iii. 33.

Aboras, where this river is situated, Ezek. i. 1.

Abrabanel or Abarbanel, (Rabbi Isaac) account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 2.

Abraham, import of the name, Gen. xii. 2; xiv. 13; xvii. 5. In what it differs from Abram, Gen. xii. 2. Extreme trifling of rabbins and others upon this name, Gen. xvii. 5. Reasons for believing that the righteous man spoken of in the forty-first chapter of Isaiah refers to Abraham rather than to Cyrus, Isa. xli. 2. Character of Abraham, Gen. xxv., in fine.

Abraham's bosom, lying in, and to recline next to Abraham in the kingdom of heaven, images by which the state of the blessed is represented, Isa. lxvi. 24. A similar imagery employed by heathen writers, ibid.

Abrech, אברך, rendered bow the knee, of doubtful signification, Gen. xli. 43.

Absalom, David's very pathetic lamentation on the death of, 2 Sam. xviii. 33. In what order the words were probably pronounced, ibid.

Absalom's hair, substance of Bochart's dissertation on the weight of, 2 Sam. xiv. in fine. The reasoning of this great Hebrew critic not conclusive, and another mode proposed of removing the difficulties which exist in the present Hebrew text upon this subject, ibid.

Abu Thaher, a chief of the Carmathians, singular anecdote respecting, Gen. xxxiv. 24.

Abyssinia, list of the monarchs of, from Maqueda, queen of Saba, to the nativity, 1 Kings x., in fine.

Acacia Nilotica, some account of the, Exod. xxv. 5. Supposed by some to be the Shittim wood of Scripture, ibid.

Acanthum vulgare, a species of thistle extremely prolific, Gen. iii. 18. Calculation of the number of individuals that could proceed from a single plant in four years, ibid.

Acarus sanguisugus, description of this animal, Exod. viii. 16.

Achad, אחד, probable reason why the Jews, assembled in synagogue, so frequently repeat, and loudly vociferate, this word, whenever that very celebrated passage in the Pentateuch relative to the unity of the Divine Being occurs in the Sabbath readings, Deut. vi. 4.

Achan, inquiry whether the sons and daughters of this man were stoned to death and burnt as well as their father, Josh. vii. 25.

Achashdarpeney, אחשדרפני, import of this word, Ezra viii. 36; Esth. iii. 12; Dan. iii. 2.

Achmetha, the same with Ecbatana, Ezra vi. 2.

Adad, a Syrian idol, supposed to have been the same with Jupiter and the sun, Isa. lxvi. 17. Meaning of the name, according to Macrobius, ibid. The appellation of this idol formed a part of the name of some Syrian kings, ibid.

Adam, meaning of this word, Gen. i. 26. The names given by Adam to the animals, a strong proof of the original perfection and excellence of man, Gen. ii. 20.

Additions in the versions to the commonly received Hebrew text, Gen. iv. 8; xlvi. 20; Num. x. 6; Judg. iv. 9; Neh. vii. 69; Esth. ii. 20; Psa. xiv. 3, et in fine; xxxviii. 20; cxlviii. 8; Prov. iv., in fine; xii. 11; xix. 22; xxii. 1.

Adjuration, most solemn form of, in use among all nations, Deut. iv. 26.

Adonai, אדני, its derivation and import, Gen. xv. 8; Psa. xcvii. 1.

Adonis, situation of this river, 1 Kings v. 9. Probable origin of the fable concerning, Ezek. viii. 14.

Adoration, origin of the word, 1 Kings xix. 18; Job xxxi. 26; Hos. xiii. 2. The kings of Persia never admitted any to their presence without first requiring the act of prostration, called adoration, Isa. xlix. 23. Very remarkable example of adoration as related by Harmer, ibid.

Adrammelech, an object of idolatrous worship among the Sepharvites. 2 Kings xvii. 31, et in fine. Meaning of the name, ibid. Represented, according to Jarchi, under the form of a mule, 2 Kings xvii. 31.

Adullam, where situated, Mic. i. 15.

Adultery, anciently punished by burning, Gen. xxxviii. 24. Derivation of the word, according to Minshieu, ibid. How the crime of adultery was punished among the Chaldeans, Persians, and Romans, Prov. vi. 33; Ezek. xxiii. 25.

Adulteresses, punishment of, among the ancient Germans, Hos. ii. 3.

Adytum, Ἀδυτον, definition of this word by Hesychius, Isa. xlv. 19.

Ægæ or Ægea, the usual burying-place of the ancient Macedonian kings, Dan. viii. 5.

Ægeadæ, the people that inhabited Ægæ or Ægea, Dan. viii. 5.

Ælian, remark of, how common angelic appearances are to be distinguished from those of the gods, Ezek. i. 7.

Ænigma, see Enigma.

Aeroliths, Izarn's table respecting, showing the places and times in which these substances fell, and the testimonies by which these facts are supported, Josh. x. 11. Chemical analyses of two aeroliths by Fourcroy and Vauquelin, ibid. Hypotheses by which the falling of stones from the atmosphere have been accounted for, ibid.

Æschylus, citation of a very beautiful passage from this poet respecting the omnipotence of the Divinity, Hab. iii. 6.

Æthiopians, conjecture concerning their origin, Gen. x. 6.

Æthiopic version, account of the, General Preface, p. 21.

Æthon, one of the horses of the sun, according to the pagan mythology, meaning of the name, 2 Kings ii. 11.

Afghons, singular and very interesting remark of Sir William Jones respecting the probable origin of this people, 2 Kings xvii. 6.

Afrasiab, an ancient king, when and where he flourished, Job xviii. 15.

Agate, some account of this precious stone, Exod. xxviii. 17.

Agriculture, in ancient times the principal employment, trade and commerce being little known, 1 Sam. xi. 4. General agreement among all nations in attributing the science of agriculture to the inspirations of their deities, Isa. xxviii. 26.

Ahashteranim, אחשתרנים, its derivation according to Bochart, Esth. viii. 10.

Ahasuerus of Ezra, thought to be the same with the Cambyses of the Greeks, Ezra iv. 6. The Ahasuerus of Esther the same with Artaxerxes Longimanus, according to Prideaux, Esth. i. 1.

Ahava, a river supposed to be the same with that which is called Diava or Adiava, Ezra viii. 15.

Ahaz, observations on the nature and structure of the sundial of, with a diagram of its supposed form, 2 Kings xx., in fine.

Ahijah the Shilonite, author of a history of the reign of Solomon long since lost, 1 Kings xi. 29. Explanation of his symbolical prophecy respecting the division of the monarchy of Solomon into two very unequal parts, to form two distinct and independent kingdoms, 1 Kings xi. 31–39.

Ainsworth, (Henry) a celebrated commentator on the Pentateuch, Psalms, and Canticles, General Preface, p. 7. His curious conjecture respecting the typical import of the forty-two stations of the children of Israel, Num. xxxiii. 2. His interesting observations on the travels of the Israelites through the wilderness, Num. xxxiii., in fine.

Αιων, inquiry into the proper meaning of this term, Gen. xxi. 33. Whence derived, according to Aristotle, ibid.

Akrabbim, why probably so named, Judg. i. 36.

Alamoth, possible import of this word, Psa. xlvi., in principio.

Al-cahol, Al-kahol, Alcohale, or Alcoholados, see Stibium.

Alcimus, a soldier in the army of Demetrius, extraordinary weight of his panoply, according to Plutarch, 1 Sam. xvii. 7. Probably not equal to that of Goliath of Gath, ibid.

Aldebaran, longitude of this fixed star, B. C. 2337, and A. D. 1800, Job ix., in fine.

Aleppo, duration of the vintage at, Amos ix. 13. Commencement and termination of the sowing season, ibid.

Alexander's tomb, an Egyptian coffin vulgarly so called in the British Museum, description of, Gen. l., in fine.

Alexandria, principally peopled with Jews in the time of the Ptolemies, Isa. xix., in principia: xxiv. 14. The Jews of this city had privileges granted to them by Alexander equal to those of the Macedonians, Isa. xix., in principio.

Alexandria on the Tanais, walls of, in what time said to have been built by Alexander, Neh. vi. 15.

Alexandrian money, table of the, Exod. xxxviii. 24.

Algiers, Dr. Shaw's account of the summer retreats of the persons of quality round about this city, Amos iii. 15.

Alliteration, remarkable instances of, in sacred and profane writers, Gen. xlix. 19; Psa. cxxii. 6.

Almah, עלמה, its derivation and import, Gen. xxiv. 43; xxix. 9; Isa. vii. 15. This term, in its most obvious and literal acceptation, applicable to the mother of our Lord till she had brought forth her first-born Son, Isa. vii. 15.

Almon-diblathaim, the thirty-ninth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, Num. xxxiii. 46.

Almond tree, time of its efflorescence, &c., according to Pliny, Jer. i. 11. Why used as a symbol of promptitude, ibid.

Almug tree or Algum tree, very uncertain what tree is meant by this name, 1 Kings x. 14.

Alnajab, an Ethiopian tribe who perform the rite of circumcision with knives made of stone, Josh. v. 2.

Altar, derivation and import of the term, Gen. viii. 20. Deemed sacrilege to molest a man who had taken refuge there, 1 Kings i. 50; ii. 30. The altar no asylum for a presumptuous murderer, 1 Kings ii. 30.

Al-taschit, import of this term, Psa. lvii., in principio.

Alting's ingenious method of reconciling the discrepances in the sacred text with respect to the number of captives that returned from Babylon, Ezra ii. 2.

Alukah, עלוקה, rendered "horseleech," probably a proper name, Prov. xxx. 14.

Aluph, אלוף, what it imports, Gen. xxxvi. 15; Exod. xv. 15; Jer. xi. 19.

Alush, the ninth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, Num. xxxiii. 13.

Ambidexter, to be an, in high repute among the ancients, Judg. iii. 15. Quotations from Homer and Aristotle in illustration of this circumstance, ibid.

Amen, very whimsical rabbinical derivation of this word, Num. v. 22.

American Indians, singular opinion of the author of a work entitled The Star in the West, respecting the origin of these people, Hos. ix. 17.

Americans, the Gog of Ezekiel, according to Mede, Ezek. xxxviii. 2.

Amethyst, account of this precious stone, Exod. xxviii. 17.

Amorites, where formerly situated, Josh. iii. 10. A name often given to the Canaanites in general, 2 Sam. xxi. 2.

Amos, short biographical sketch of, Introduction to Amos. Observations of Jerome, Lowth, and Newcome, on the style of this prophet, ibid.

Amriolkais, an Arabic poet, whose works are in the Moallakat, Psa. lx., in principio.

Amru, an eminent Arabian poet, Psa. lx., in principio.

Amygdalus communis, or common almond tree, description of the, Num. xvii. 8.

Anammeleeh, an object of idolatrous worship among the Sepharvites, 2 Kings xvii. 31. Meaning of the name, ibid. Represented under the form of a horse, according to Jarchi, ibid. Probably the same with the Moloch of the Ammonites, ibid.

Anathoth, situation of, according to Eusebius, Jerome, and Josephus, Isa. x. 28.

Anar, ענר, rendered meek, what it properly imports. Num. xii. 3.

Anaximander, supposed by the Greeks to have been the inventor of the division of the day into hours, Dan. iii. 6.

Anaximenes, singular anecdote concerning, Eccles ix. 14.

Ancient versions, readings in the, confirmed by Hebrew manuscripts, Gen. xxv. 8, xlix. 25; Judg. iii. 7; Job v. 15, ix. 33, xxi. 13; Psa. ix., in principio, xvi. 10, xxiv. 6, xxv. 5, xxxiv. 10, liii. 4, lvii. 8, lix. 9, lxxxix. 17, xc. 1, 17, cx. 1, 3, 6, 7, cxv., in principio; Prov. viii. 15; Isa. i. 29, ii. 10, iii. 6, xiv. 3, xviii. 4, xxv. 2, xxix. 3, 11, xxx. 6, xxxii. 13, xli. 2, 3, xlii. 20, xliv. 11, xlvii. 13, xlviii. 11, xlix. 5, l. 2, li. 19, lii. 15, lvi. 3, liv. 8, lvi. 10, lvii. 12, lvm. 13, lx. 4, lxii. 5, lxiii. 6, lxv. 23, lxvi. 18; Jer. xviii. 13.

Ancile, or sacred shield that fell from heaven in the reign of Numa Pompilius, probably an aerolith, Josh. x. 11.

Andreas of Cæsarea, account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 4.

Aneb el dib, a name given by the Arabs to the solanum incanum, or hoary nightshade, Isa. v. 2.

Angel, its general import in the Scriptures, Gen. xxxii. 1; Exod. iii. 2; Eccles. v. 6; Hag. i. 13. Remarkable passage in Philo Judæus relative to the angel in whom is the name of Jehovah, Exod. xxiii. 20.

Angelic ministry, doctrine of, defended, Gen. xxxii. 1, 2; Zech. i. 2. Remarkable passage in Hesiod respecting the ministration of angels, Gen. xxxii. 1.

Anglo-Saxon version, some account of the, General Preface, p. 22.

Animalculæ, astonishing minuteness of some species of, inhabiting the water, Gen. i. 20.

Animals, offered to God under the Jewish dispensation, thoughts concerning the, Lev. i. 2. The pagan theology differed widely in this respect from the law of Moses, ibid.

Animals that had been employed for agricultural purposes not offered in sacrifice by the Hebrews, Greeks, Romans, nor Egyptians, Num. xix. 2.

Animals clean and uncleon among the Jews, observations concerning, with an inquiry into the derivation of the various Hebrew words by which these animals are expressed, Lev. xi. Their Linnæan classification and description, Deut. xiv.

Anna Perenna, a pagan feast of antiquity, how celebrated, Lev. xxiii. 34.

Anointing, ceremony of, see Unction.

Anointing of stones, images, &c., to set them apart to idolatrous worship, common among ancients and moderns, Gen. xxviii. 18; Isa. lvii. 6.

Anomalies, instances of, which are all probably corruptions, Isa. i. 30, v. 1, li. 16, lxiii. 2.

Ant, natural history of the, Prov. vi. 6.

Antarah, an eminent Arabic poet, whose work is contained in the Moallakat, Psa. lx., in principio.

Antares, longitude of this fixed star, B. C. 2337, and A. D. 1800, Job ix., in fine.

Antediluvian patriarchs, table of the great discrepances in the Hebrew, Samaritan, and Septuagint copies, with respect to the time they are stated to have lived before their sons' births, Gen. v. 3.

Anthony, immense debt contracted by this individual, the whole of which was paid in less than a month, Esth. iii. 9.

Anthropopathia, a striking example of this metaphor, Isa. i. 24.

Antigone of Sophocles, quotation from the, very similar to a passage in Psa. cxxi. 4.

Antimony, employed by the Asiatics in staining the eyes, 2 Kings ix. 30.

Antiochus Epiphanes, this Syrian monarch supposed by Martin to be the Gog of Ezekiel, Ezek. xxxviii. 2.

Anubis, a city of Egypt, why also called Cynopolis, Exod. xi. 7.

Anubis Latrator, why this Egyptian idol was so named, Exod. xi. 7.

Apalim, עפלים, rendered emerods, probably mean hemorrhoids, 1 Sam. v. 8.

Apicius, an individual immensely rich, Esth. iii. 9. His tragical end, ibid.

Apis, an object of Egyptian idolatry, Gen. xliii. 32; Deut. iv. 17. Thought to have been posterior to the time of Joseph, ibid. The molten calf of Aaron supposed by some to have been an exact resemblance of this Egyptian idol, Exod. xxxii. 4. For what purpose a white bull was occasionally sacrificed to Apis by the Egyptians, Lev. xvi. 10.

Apocryphal writings, that St. Paul quoted from the, according to the opinion of some, utterly incredible, Isa. lxiv. 4.

Apollo, whence this heathen divinity had his name, according to Plutarch, Exod. iii., in fine. Worshipped under the form of a crow by the ancient Egyptians, Exod. viii. 26. Whence the fable of Apollo or the sun being seated in a blazing chariot, drawn by horses which breathed and snorted fire, originated, according to some, 2 Kings ii. 11.

Απομυιος, why this epithet was applied to Jupiter, Exod. viii. 24.

Aponius, a commentator on Solomon's Song, General Preface, p. 4.

Aquila, a translator of the Hebrew Scriptures into Greek, General Preface, p. 21.

Arabic version of the Old Testament, some account of the, General Preface, p. 22; Isa. lxvi., in fine.

Arabon, ערבון, rendered pledge, inquiry into its import, Gen. xxxviii. 17.

Arabs, their independent condition from the remotest antiquity, an irrefragable proof of the Divine origin of the Pentateuch, Gen. xvi. 12. Dr. Shaw's account of the manner in which the Arabs entertain strangers, Judg. vi. 19. Volney's description of their personal appearance, Job v. 5. Various tribes of Arabs, Isa. xlii. 11.

Aram Naharaim, the same with Mesopotamia, Amos ix. 7.

Arbiter bibendi, among the Romans, who were the, Esth. i. 8.

Arbor infelix, the tree on which criminals were hanged so named among the Romans, Josh. viii. 29; Esth. vii. 8.

Archimedes, how this celebrated mathematician destroyed the Roman fleet, and thus prolonged for a short time the political existence of Syracuse, Eccles. ix. 14.

Architecture of the temple, Dr. Delaney's remarks on the Divine original of the, 1 Chron. xxviii. 19.

Arcturus, import of the Hebrew word so translated very uncertain, Job ix. 9.

Ardsheer Diraz Dest, the same with Artaxerxes Longimanus, Ezra i. 1.

Argonautics, citation of a passage from the, which bears a close analogy to a part of the history of Jonah, Jonah i. 14.

Ariel, conjecture why Jerusalem was so named, Isa. xxix. 1.

Ariopharnes, king of Thrace, anecdote respecting, 1 Kings iii. 25.

Aristotle, Works of, said to contain four hundred and forty-five thousand two hundred and seventy verses; in what sense we are to understand this statement, Introduction to Ezra.

Ark of Noah, its tonnage according to Arbuthnot, Gen. vi. 15. Shown to have been sufficiently capacious to contain every species of animal, with food for twelve months, ibid. Dr. Lightfoot's calculation of its draught of water, Gen. viii. 4.

Ark, in which were deposited the two tables of stone, its construction and dimensions, Exod. xxv. 10. Why the ark is called the footstool of God, Isa. lx. 13.

Arks of the heathens, some account respecting the, Exod. xxv., in fine.

Armour, burning of, as an offering made to the god supposed to be the giver of victory, a custom among some heathen nations, Isa. ix. 4. The Romans used it as an emblem of peace, ibid. Description of a medal struck by Vespasian illustrative of this ancient custom, ibid.

Arpach, ארפח, import of this memorial symbol of the rabbins, Masoretic Notes at the end of Numbers.

Arrack, made of the juice of the date or palm tree, Psa. xcii. 12.

Arrows, customary among the heathens to represent any judgment from the gods under the notion of, Deut. xxxii. 23. Arrows, round the heads of which inflammable matter was rolled and then ignited, were used by the ancients, and shot into towns to set them on fire, and were discharged among the towers and wood-works of besiegers, Psa. lxxvi. 3.

Arsenal, for the temple, provided by David, according to Josephus, 2 Kings xi. 10.

Arvad or Arad, where situated, Ezek. xxvii. 8.

Asa, king of Judah, his very magnificent funeral, 2 Chron. xvi. 14.

Asaph, a very celebrated musician who flourished in the time of David, Psa. l., in principio. Twelve of the Psalms in the sacred canon, which bear the name of Asaph, thought by some to have been written by him, ibid. The style of David and Asaph compared, ibid.

Ashchenaz, where situated, Jer. li. 27.

Asher, why so named, Gen. xxx. 13.

Asherah, אשרה, rendered grove, more probably signifies an idol of some description; perhaps the same with the Venus of the pagan mythology, 2 Kings xxi., in fine.

Ashes upon the head, a sign of sorrow and great distress among many nations, 1 Sam. iv. 12.

Ashima, an ancient object of idolatrous worship, 2 Kings xvii., in fine.

Ashtoreth, an idol of the Sidonians, 1 Kings xi. 5; 2 Kings xxiii. 13.

Ashummed Jugg, of the Hindoos, particular description of the, with an explanation of the mystic ceremonies, as given by the commentators upon their original scriptures, Lev. xvi. 10. A very close copy of the Jewish scape-goat, ibid.

Asiatic bow, description of the, Psa. lxxviii. 57. Figure of its form in its quiescent state, and when ready to discharge the arrow or missile, ibid; Zech. ix. 14.

Asiatic idols, description of several in the author's possession, Ezek. i. 10.

Asiatic proverbs, collection of, Prov. xxxi., in fine.

Asmoneans, observations on the motto said to have been upon their ensigns, Exod. xv. 11.

Asnapper, very uncertain who, Ezra iv. 10.

Asp, a very small serpent peculiar to Egypt and Libya, Psa. xci. 13. No remedy for the bite of an asp, ibid. Singular effect of the venom upon the animal system, ibid. Why Cleopatra, the celebrated queen of Egypt, chose to die by the bite of this animal, ibid.

Asphaltites, Lake of, exceedingly salt, Josh. xv. 62.

Ass's head, in the Holy of Holies, probable origin of the story of the heathens, that the Jews had a figure of this description to which they paid religious worship, 2 Kings xvii., in fine.

Assembly of Divines, account of their notes upon the Scriptures, General Preface, p. 7.

Assyrians, their origin, Gen. xxv. 18. The same people with the Babylonians, according to Herodotus and Strabo, Isa. xlv. 25.

Astrology. Judicial, demonstrated to be vain, unfounded, absurd, and wicked, 1 Sam. vi., in fine.

Asuppim, the house of, why so named, 1 Chron. xxvi. 15.

Asyla of the Greeks and Romans, for what purpose erected, Num. xxxv. 11.

Atlas, fable of, whence it originated, Job xxvi. 11.

Atmosphere, enumeration of some of the great benefits derived from the, Job xxviii., in fine. Calculation of its pressure upon the whole terraqueous globe, 1 Sam. ii., in fine; Job xxxviii., in fine. Observations on its refractive nature, 2 Kings xx., in fine. In what sense the atmosphere may be termed the belt or girdle of the earth, ibid.

Atonement or expiation for sin, tradition concerning, strongly and universally retained among the heathens, 2 Kings xvii., in fine.

Attic moneys, tables of the, Exod. xxxvi. 24.

Augustine, some account of this celebrated commentator, General Preface, p. 4.

Aur, אור, generally translated light, has various imports in different parts of the Old Testament, Gen. i. 3.

Aurum Reginæ or Queen Gold, what, Esth. ii. 18.

Authorized version, detailed account of the, General Preface, p. 14, &c.

Autumnal rains, in the East, Dr. Shaw's account of the, with their accompaniments, Psa. cxxxv. 7.

Avarice, very nervous saying of an English poet concerning, Jer. xvii. 11.

Aven or On, the famous Heliopolis, Ezek. xxx. 17.

Aven, Plain of, the same with Baal-Bek, according to Calmet, Amos i. 5.

Avites, very uncertain who these people were, 2 Kings xvii., in fine. Conjecture of Grotius respecting them, ibid.

Ayal, איל, Dr. Shaw's opinion relative to the meaning of this Hebrew word, Deut. xii. 15.

Azariah, import of this name, Dan. i. 7.

Azubah, wife of Caleb, why so named, according to the Targum, 1 Chron. ii. 18.

B.

Baal, what this term imports, Judg. ii. 11.

Baal-bek, the ancient Aven or Heliopolis, Amos i. 5.

Baal-hatturim, (Rabbi Jacob) account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 2.

Baal-peor, probably the Priapus of the Moabites, and worshipped with the same obscene and abominable rites, Num. xxiii. 28; Deut. iii. 29.

Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron, why so named, Exod. iii. 24; 2 Kings i. 2.

Baal-zephon, probably an idol temple, Exod. xiv. 2.

Babel, derivation and import of this name, Gen. xi. 9.

Babel, tower of, heathen testimonies concerning, Gen. xi. 4. Various conjectures relative to the purpose for which this tower was built, Gen. xi. 9.

Babet or Baby, conjecture respecting the origin of this word, Zech. ii 8.

Babylon, its great naval power before the time of Cyrus, Isa. xliii. 14. Semiramis, the foundress of this part of the Babylonian greatness, ibid. Manner of the taking of Babylon by Cyrus, Isa. xxi. 1, xliv. 27, xlv. 2; Jer. l. 24. Policy of the Persian monarchs in destroying the naval importance of Babylon, Isa. xliii. 14. Some particulars of the greatness of Babylon, Isa. xiii. 19, xlv. 2. Notation of the several steps by which the remarkable prophecies against this great city were ultimately accomplished in its total ruin, ibid. The annihilation of its walls accounted for, ibid. Deliverance from Babylon a frequent figure in the prophetical writings for the deliverance of the people of God from the power of evil under the Gospel dispensation, Isa. xl. 6–8.

Babylonian embassy to Hezekiah, observations on the, 2 Kings xxi., in fine.

Babylonians, singular custom among these people of selling all their marriageable virgins by public auction, Gen. xxix. 20. In what the dress of this people consisted, according to Herodotus, Dan. iii. 21.

Babylonish robes, some account of the, Josh. vii. 21.

Bacchus, some portions of the fable concerning, very similar to what is related of Moses, Exod. iv. 17. This idol worshipped under the form of a goat by the ancient Egyptians, Exod. viii. 26.

Backbite and Backbiter, words of Anglo-Saxon origin, Psa. xv. 3. Intended to convey the treble sense of knarishness, cowardice, and brutality, ibid.

Bacon's (Friar) method of restoring and strengthening the natural heat, 1 Kings i., in fine.

Badad, בדד, import of this word when employed by the Jews as a memorial symbol, Masoretic notes at the end of Numbers.

Badgers' skins, the Hebrew words so translated of very uncertain import, Exod. xxv. 5.

Baeshah, באשה, various conjectures respecting the meaning of this word, Job xxxi. 40.

Ba gad, בא גד, import of this phrase when employed by the Jews as a memorial symbol, Masoretic Notes at the end of Leviticus.

Baking in the East, manner of, with an account of the instruments employed in the process, Lev. ii. 7.

Balaam, character of this prophet of the Most High God, Num. xxiv., in fine. Observations on his famous prophecy concerning a star to spring out of Jacob, Num. xxiv. 6.

Balonce, trial by the, a species of ordeal among the Hindoos, Num. v., in fine.

Banditti, hordes of, frequent in Arabia to the present day, Job i. 15.

Banner, giving the, very ingenious illustration of, by Mr. Harmer, Psa. lx. 4, et in fine.

Barach, ברך, generally rendered to bless, very extensive import of the original word, Gen. ii. 3; 1 Kings xxi. 9.

Barbary, Dr. Shaw's account of the chocolate-coloured pottage made by the inhabitants of, Gen. xxv. 29.

Bards, among the ancient Druids, who, Num. xxi. 27.

Barley harvest, time of its commencement in Palestine, Ruth i. 22.

Barrady, Maundrell's account of this river, 2 Kings v. 12.

Barrows or Tumuli, in England, what, 2 Sam. xviii. 17.

Bars of the pit, what probably meant by this phrase among the ancients, Job xvii. 16.

Batamm, בטנים, its import uncertain, Gen. xliii. 11,

Bath, some account of this Hebrew measure of capacity, Exod. xvi. 16; Ezra vii. 22.

Battering-ram, description of the, Ezek. v. 2. This machine unknown in the time of Homer, ibid.

Battle, trial by, when and where supposed to have had its origin, Num. v., in fine.

Baxter, (Richard) a commentator on the New Testament, General Preface, p. 7.

Beards, held in high respect in the East, the possessor considering it his greatest ornament, often swearing by it, and in matters of great importance pledging it, 2 Sam. x. 4; Song v. 13; Isa. vii. 20. Never cut off but in mourning or as a mark of slavery, ibid.; Jer. xli. 5. Considered by the Turks a great affront to take a man by his beard, unless it be to kiss it, Isa. vii. 20. Beards of the Macedonians ordered by Alexander to be shaved off, and the singular reason given by this king for the mandate, 2 Sam. ii. 16.

Beduni or Beduui, a people of Arabia, Isa. xlii. 11.

Bede, account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 4.

Bedolach, בדלח, translated bdellium, Bochart's opinion respecting the meaning of this word, Gen. ii. 12

Bedouin, Volney's description of the, Job v. 5.

Beds of ivory, what, Amos vi. 4.

Beech tree, juice of the, used for drink in the northern parts of Europe, Job xxx. 4.

Bees, Homer's very nervous description of a great swarm of, Psa. cxviii. 12

Behemah, בהמה, translated cattle, import of the term, Gen. i. 24.
Behemoth, various conjectures respecting the animal intended by this name in Scripture, Job xl. 15. Reasons for supposing it to have been a species now extinct, perhaps the mammoth, ibid.
Belial, its derivation and import, Deut. xiii. 13, xv. 9.
Belibbo, בלבר, import of this memorial symbol of the rabbins, Masoretic Notes at the end of Exodus.
Bellerophon, son of Glaucus, king of Ephyra, story of, supposed to be a fabulous formation from the Scripture account of David's adultery with Bathsheba, and his murder of Uriah, 2 Sam. xi. 14.
Bells on horses, camels, &c., account of the, Zech. xiv. 20.
Belt, the chief ornament of a soldier, and highly prized in all ancient nations, 2 Sam. xviii. 11. Considered a rich present from one chieftain to another, ibid.
Ben, בן, a son, whence derived, Ruth iv. 11; Psalm cxxvii. 1.
Beneficiarii, among the Romans, who, Hab. iii. 6.
Bene-jaakan, the twenty-seventh station of the Israelites in the wilderness, Num. xxxiii. 31.
Beney adam, בני אדם, and beney ish, בני איש, very remarkable distinction between, Psa. lxii. 9.
Bengel, (John Albert) author of an edition of the Greek Testament, with various readings and critical notes, General Preface, p. 10.
Benjamin, why so named, Gen. xxxv. 18. Remarks upon the provisions set before this patriarch by Joseph being much greater than what were set before each of his brethren, Gen. xliii. 34.
Benjamite messenger, remarks upon his very laconic relation of the discomfiture of the Israelites by the Philistines, and of the taking of the ark of God, 1 Sam. iv. 17.
Benson, (Dr.) a commentator on different portions of the New Testament, General Preface, p. 8.
Bereshith, the first book of the Hebrew Scriptures, whence so named, Preface to the Book of Genesis.
Berith, ברית, rendered covenant, what it imports, Gen. vi. 18; Lev. xxvi. 15.
Beryl, account of this precious stone, Exod. xxviii. 17; Ezek. x. 9.
Bethany, why so named, Isa. x. 30.
Beth-el, meaning of this name, Gen. xxviii. 19.
Beth-jesimoth, the forty-second and last station of the Israelites in the wilderness, where situated, Num. xxxiii. 49.
Bethron, why probably so named, Song ii. 17.
Beth-shean, the same that was afterwards called Scythopolis, Josh. xvii. 11.
Beth-shemesh, various conjectures concerning the number of the inhabitants of, who were smitten for looking into the ark, 1 Sam. vi. 19. The words חמשים אלף ארש chameshim, elaph ish, fifty thousand men, which stand in our present Hebrew copies, most probably an interpolation, ibid.
Bethyllia or consecrated stones, remarks upon the, Gen. xxviii. 18; Job xxxi. 1; Isa. lvii. 6.
Bey of Tunis, his manner of living, as mentioned by Pococke, Neh. iv. 18.
Beza, (Theodore) account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 8.
Bezer, one of the cities of refuge, import of the name, Josh. xx. 7.
Bibliotheca Magna Rabbinica of Bartolocci, account of this great work, General Preface, p. 3.
Bildad, the Shuhite, who, Job. ii. 11
Bipens, a military weapon of the ancients, Eph. vi. 13.
Birds, thoughts on the wonderful structure of their wings and feathers, Gen. i. 22.
Birth-days, keeping of, a custom of very remote antiquity, Gen. xl. 20.
Bishebuah, בשבעה, a Jewish memorial symbol, Masoretic Notes at the end of Deuteronomy.
Bishop, remarkable saying of a, Job xix. 15.
Bitter waters of jealousy, rabbinical notion how a Jewess, suspected of adultery, could be said, in drinking these waters, to drink the very words of the execration written by the priest, Num. v. 23.
Blair's affecting picture of the death of a wicked man, Job xxvii. 8.
Blayney, (Rev. Dr.) translator of the Prophet Jeremiah, with notes, General Preface, p. 10.
Blasphemy of Shelomith's son, very doubtful in what it consisted, Lev. xxiv. 16, &c.
Blemishes, curious rabbinical enumeration of the, which disabled a Jew from entering into the priest's office, Lev xxii. 20.
Blessings and curses of the law, observations on the mode in which these were pronounced, and the arrangement of the tribes for this purpose on Mounts Gerizim and Ebal, Deut. xxvii. 26.
Blood, prohibition of the eating of, one of the seven Noahic precepts, Gen. ix. 4. Philosophical reasons for the prohibition, ibid. The eating of blood forbidden by the law of Moses, Lev. iii. 17, xvii. 10–14. Dr. Hunter's theory of the vitality of the blood, Lev. xvii. 11.
Blotting out of the book of God, what meant by this phrase, Exod. xxxii. 32.
Board, account of the, borne by the criminal in China, to which the accusation is affixed, Job xxxi. 36.
Boccore, Dr. Shaw's account of this species of fig, Isa. xxviii. 4.
Bochart, (Samuel) author of a very accurate work on the geography of the sacred writings, General Preface, p. 9.
Bochim, why probably so named, Judg. ii. 5.
Bodies of the illustrious dead, how treated, according to Virgil, 2 Chron. xvi., in fine.
Bolled, import of this word, Exod. ix. 31.
Bones, enumeration of the, in the human body, Job xxxiii. 19.
Bonny, inhabitants of, mode in which these people construct their dwellings, Deut. xx. 5.
Book of Life and Book of Death, among the Chinese, what, Exod. xxxii. 32. See also Ezek. ix. 1.
Book of the Wars of the Lord, Dr. Lightfoot's opinion concerning the, Num. xxi. 14.
Booths or sheds, erected in the East by the keepers of the vineyards, to cover them from the scorching sun while watching the ripening grapes, made of the lightest and most worthless materials, Job xxvii. 18.
Boruwlaski, (Count) some account of this famous Polish dwarf, 1 Sam. xvii., in fine.
Bosom, the place where the Asiatics carry every thing precious or valuable, Job xxiii. 12.
Bottles of the ancients ordinarily made of goat's skin, Gen. xxi. 14; 2 Sam. xvi. 1. Description of one in the author's possession, 2 Sam. xvii. 28; Job xxxii. 19.
Bow, the grand weapon of our English ancestors, 2 Sam. viii. 18.
Bow, song of the, remarks upon its great excellences, 2 Sam. i., in fine. Dr. Kennicott's Latin version, ibid.
Bow of the Asiatics, description of the, Psa. lxxviii. 57. Figure of its form in its quiescent state, and when ready to discharge the missile, ibid.; Hos. vii. 16, Zech. ix. 14. General dimensions of the Persian bows, according to Xenophon, Isa. xiii. 18.
Bowing the body, manner of, in Eastern countries, Exod. iv. 31. The Jewish custom in this respect described, ibid.
Brain, contained in the cranium, and enveloped with the dura and pia mater, the golden bowl of Scripture, Eccles. xii. 6. Why so named, ibid.
Branches, feast of, for what purpose instituted, Exod. xxiii. 14.
Brass, a factitious metal known from very remote antiquity, Exod. xxv. 3; Psa. xviii. 34. How made, ibid.; Job xxviii. 2.
Breaking the jaws of the wicked, a metaphor taken from hunting, Job xxix. 17.
Breastplate of judgment, why so named, Exod. xxviii. 15. Its description and ornaments, ibid. Breastplates, something like that of the Jewish high priest, formerly worn by the president of the courts of justice in Egypt, Exod. xxviii. 30.
Bribery, ordinance against, in Magna Charta, Exod. xxiii. 8, 1 Sam. viii. 3; Mic. vii. 9. Some account of the intolerable abuses which prevailed in this country before the publication of the great charter, ibid.
Bricks, dimensions of the, commonly used by the ancients in building, according to Palladius, Ezek. v. 1. Manner of their formation, Isa. ix. 9, xiii. 19, xxx. 13; Nah. iii. 14.

Brimstone, used by the ancients in their superstitious purifications, Job xviii. 15. This illustrated by quotations from Pliny, Ovid, and Servius, ibid.
British army, descending scale of commanders in a, Num. ii., in fine. Ascending scale of ranks which every officer must pass through, ibid.
British constitution, great advantages of the, pointed out, 1 Sam. viii., in fine. Shown to be much more excellent than even the constitution of the kingdom of Israel, in the reign of David, 2 Sam. v., in fine
Broidered coat, what, Exod. xxviii. 4.
Bruce's opinion respecting the situation of Ezion-geber, Tarshish, and Ophir, 1 Kings ix., in fine. His account of Solomon's voyage to Ophir, 1 Kings x., in fine. His description of the manner in which the rain-clouds are frequently collected together in Abyssinia, 1 Kings xviii. 44.
Brundusium, import of this name in the ancient language of that country, Isa. v. 1.
Brydone, (Mr. Patrick) his argument against the Mosaic account of the creation, drawn from the eruptions of Mount Ætna, and the formation of the different lavas, considered, Gen. i., in fine.
Bubastis, a city in which the Egyptians were accustomed to hold their principal annual feast in honour of Diana, Exod. x. 9.
Budhoo, priests of, manner of their dancing, jumping, &c., when making offerings to their demon gods, 1 Kings xviii. 26. Priests of this idol shave their heads close to the skin, Ezek. xliv. 20.
Buildings, Eastern, description of the walls, &c., of the, Isa. ix. 9, xiii. 19, xxx. 13.
Bul, an ancient Hebrew month, answering to a part of our October and November, 1 Kings vi. 38. This name supposed to be of Chaldean origin, 1 Kings vi. 1.
Burdensome stone, what probably meant by this expression, Zech. xii. 3.
Burkitt, (Rev. William) author of a very useful commentary on the New Testament, General Preface, p. 8.
Burkius, (Phil. David) author of notes on the twelve minor prophets, General Preface, p. 10.
Burns, (Charles) extraordinary stature of this man, 1 Sam. xvii., in fine.
Burnt-offerings, have been common among almost all the people of the earth, Lev. i. 4.
Burying in towns, churches, and chapels, observations on the great impropriety of, Lev. xi. 8.

C.

Cab, see Kab.
Cables, made by the Egyptians of the leaves of the flag, Job viii. 11.
Cabod, כָּבוֹד, a memorial symbol of the rabbins, Masoretic notes at the end of Deuteronomy.
Caduceus, the, or rod of Mercury, evidently borrowed from the Scripture account of the rod of Moses, Exod. iv. 17.
Cæli enarrant, first six verses of this Psalm from an old English manuscript, Psa. xix. 3.
Cælius Antipater, an accredited historian who lived before the time of Pliny, Isa. ii. 13–16. This writer assures us that he had seen a merchant who had made a voyage from Gades to Ethiopia, ibid.
Cain, import of this name, Gen. iv. 1.
Cairns, what, Josh. vii. 26; 2 Sam. xviii. 17.
Calais, affecting history of the six citizens of, who presented themselves before Edward III., with ropes round their necks, and the keys of the town and castle in their hands, 1 Kings xx., in fine.
Calmet, (Dom. Augustine) a very celebrated commentator upon the whole Scriptures, General Preface, page 5. His enumeration of the different ways in which a Hebrew might lose his liberty, Exod. xxi. 2.
Calneh, the same with Ctesiphon, according to Calmet, Amos iv. 2.
Caloric, or natural heat, when accumulated in any particular part, will diffuse itself to all bodies with which it comes in contact, till their temperature be equal, 2 Kings iv. 35.
Calves of gold, set up by Jeroboam, remarks concerning the, 1 Kings xii. 28, 29.
Calvin, (John) a commentator on all the prophets and the evangelists, General Preface, p. 6.
Cambyses, king of Persia, the Gog of Ezekiel, according to Calmet, Ezek. xxxviii. 2.
Camel, Volney's description of the, Job v. 5.
Campbell, (Dr.) author of a treatise on the evangelists, General Preface, p. 8.
Canaan, land of, its superficial contents, Num. xviii. 21. What proportion of the promised land belonged to the Levites, ibid.
Canaanites, where those people, particularly so named, were situated, Josh. iii. 10.
Candle or lamp, often used as the emblem of prosperity and posterity, Job xxi. 17.
Candlestick, golden, of the temple or tabernacle, description of the, Exod. xxv. 31.
Candlesticks in the heathen temples, bearing a great number of lamps, Exod. xxv., in fine.
Canoes, formerly wholly constructed from the papyrus, Isa. xviii. 1, 2.
Cantate Domino, great similarity between this psalm and the Magnificat, or Song of the Blessed Virgin, Psa. xcviii., in fine. List of the most striking parallels, ibid.
Canticles, book of, carefully transcribed from a manuscript of the fourteenth century in the editor's possession, Introduction to Solomon's Song, in fine.
Cape of Good Hope, passage round the, known to the ancients, Isa. ii. 13–16. This navigation recovered by the Portuguese, after it had been lost for many centuries, ibid.
Caphtor, the island of Crete, Amos ix. 7.
Cappadocians, from whom descended, Gen. x. 2.
Caraba, description of the, Isa. xxv. 6.
Caravans in the East, some account of the, Song vi. 4. Manner in which the hadgees or pilgrims are conducted by these conveyances in their travels by night, ibid.
Carbuncle, account of this precious stone, Exod. xxviii. 17.
Carduus vulgatissimus, a species of thistle amazingly prolific, Gen. iii. 18.
Carmel, altar on this mount mentioned by Tacitus and Suetonius, which Vespasian went to consult, 1 Kings xviii. 30.
Carmelites, religious order of the, different opinions respecting the time of the foundation of this order, Josh. xix. 26.
Carolina sylvestris, a species of thistle amazingly prolific, Gen. iii. 18.
Caryl, (J.) a commentator on the book of Job, General Preface, p. 7.
Casiphia, generally supposed to be the same with the Caspian mountains, Ezra viii. 17.
Cassiopeia, form of the constellation of, resembled by Aratus to a key, Isa. xxii. 22.
Cassiterides, the same with the islands of Scilly and Cornwall, Isa. ii. 13–16.
Castor oil, whence obtained, Jonah iv. 6.
Castrametation of the ancient Israelites, Scheuchzer's remarks on the, Num. ii., in fine.
Cataneans, from whom supposed to be descended, Gen. xxv. 2.
Cato's directions in the construction of threshing-floors, 1 Sam. xxiii., in fine.
Cattle, mischievous, customary among the Romans to twist hay about the horns of, that people seeing it might shun them, Exod. xxi. 28.
Causes, two supreme, coeternal, and independent, according to the magian theology, Isa. xlv. 7.
Cares, vast capacity of, in the East, according to Strabo and Pococke, 1 Sam. xxiv. 3; Isa. ii. 19–21.
Cedar of Lebanon, Gabriel Sionita's description of the, Num. xxiv. 6. Some curious particulars concerning this tree related by De la Roque, which he learned from the Maronites of Mount Libanus, ibid. Maundrell's description of the cedars he found growing on Mount Libanus in 1697, ibid. Psa. xcii. 12.
Cedreans, their origin, Gen. xxv. 13.
Ceneth, בֵּעֵנֶת, various conjectures respecting the meaning of this word, Ezra iv. 11.
Celibacy has no countenance in the sacred oracles, Gen. ii. 18, 24.

Cemarim, an order of idolatrous priests in Judea in the time of Josiah, 2 Kings xxiii. 5. Why Christian ministers have been called cemarim by the Jews, ibid.

Census of the children of Israel, in the second year after their departure from Egypt, compared with another census of the same people made thirty-eight years afterwards, Num. i. 46. Curious observation of Ainsworth on the number of families in the twelve tribes at the second census, Num. xxvi. 51.

Centurion, derivation and import of this word, Gen. xxxvi. 15.

Cerastes, whence this animal has its name, Gen. xlix. 17.

Chacameyah, חכמיה, rendered wise men, Porphyry's definition of the original term, Gen. xli. 8.

Chag, חג, Parkhurst's definition of this word, Lev. vii., in fine. Its import among the Jews when used as a memorial symbol, Masoretic notes at the end of Deuteronomy.

Chairs, never used in Persia but at the coronation of their kings, Isa. lii. 2. Eastern chairs always so high as to make a footstool necessary, ibid.

Chalal, חלל, a word very improperly rendered in our version, Ezek. xxi. 14. Its genuine import, ibid.

Chaldaic version, account of the, General Preface, p. 21.

Chaldeans, from whom these people probably had their name, Gen. xi. 34; Isa. xxiii. 13. Some account of the ancient condition of this people, Isa. xxiii. 13.

Chalil, חלל, a wind-instrument, 1 Sam. x. 5.

Champion, whence derived, and what its import, 1 Sam. xvii. 4.

Chance, inquiry into the derivation and meaning of this word, 1 Sam. vi. 9.

Chaos, notions of the heathens concerning this divinity probably borrowed from the Mosaic account of the creation, Gen. i. 2.

Chaplets, wearing of, at banquets, customary among the ancient Jews, Greeks, and Romans, Isa. xlviii. 1.

Chappelow, a commentator on the book of Job, General Preface, p. 7.

Chapters, division of the Holy Scriptures into, by whom effected, Introduction to Ezra. Instances of the very injudicious division of the chapters of holy writ, Isa. iv. 1, ix. 7, xiii., in principio; xv., in principio; xxvii., in principio.

Charashim, חרשים, rendered carpenters, inquiry into the true import of this word, Zech. i. 21.

Charetummim, חרטמים, import of this word, Gen. xli. 8; Exod. vii. 11.

Chariot, emblematical of Jehovah, remarks upon the, Ezek. i. Observations on it by the continuator of the Historical Discourses of Saurin, Ezek. x., in fine.

Charming of serpents and other animals, how this was professed to be done both by ancients and moderns, Psa. lviii. 4, et in fine.

Chasdim, the same with the Chaldeans, Isa. xxiii. 13.

Chatath, חטאת, and Chatah, חטאה, commonly translated sin, import of these words, Gen. iv. 7.

Chebar, Chaborus, or Aboras, where this river is situated, Ezek. i. 1.

Chelekeca, חלקך, import of this word when used as a memorial symbol, Masoretic notes at the end of Numbers.

Chemosh, the grand idol of the Ammonites, Ruth i. 15; Jer. xlviii. 7.

Cherem, חרם, what it imports, Lev. xxvii. 21, 28, 29. The Jews had a most horrible form of excommunication called by this name, Num. xxii. 6.

Cherethites, who, 1 Sam. xxx. 14; Exek. xxv. 16; Amos ix. 7; Zeph. ii. 5.

Chersydrus, a very venomous reptile, Num. xxi. 6.

Cherubim, various opinions concerning the, Gen. iii. 24. How represented, ibid; Exod. xxv. 18, xxxvi. 8; Psa. xviii. 10. Improperly written cherubims, Gen. iii. 24; Exod. xxv. 18; Ezek. x. 20.

Chevy Chase, quotation from this old national ballad respecting the slaying of Sir Hugh Montgomery, 1 Kings xxii. 34.

Chical, see Jackal.

Chickpea, Dr. Shaw's account of the, 2 Kings vi. 25.

Children, among many ancient nations, considered the property of their parents, who had a right to dispose of them for the payment of their debts, 2 Kings iv. 1. Carrying of children astride upon the hip, with the arm round their body, a general custom in the East, according to Chardin, Isa. lx. 4. Children formerly sometimes employed to despatch captives, Judg. viii. 21. Considered disgraceful to fall by the hand of a child, ibid.

Chiliarch, its import, Gen. xxxvi. 15.

Chilmad, possibly Chalmadora on the Euphrates, Ezek. xxvii. 23.

Chimah and Chesil, Dr. Hales' reasons for the supposition that by these terms the constellations Taurus and Scorpio are intended, Job ix., in fine.

Chinese chronology of ancient events of a very extravagant and fabulous complexion, Isa. lxv. 22.

Chinnereth, sea of, where situated, Num. xxxiv. 11.

Chiromancy, upon what the doctrine of, is built as its Scripture foundation, according to John Taisnier, Job xxxvii. 7.

Chittim, the island of Cyprus, according to Josephus, Jer. ii. 10. Bochart's conjecture, ibid. Other conjectures, Isa. xxiii. 1; Ezek. xxvii. 6.

Choheleth, or The Royal Preacher, some account of this work, as given by the late Rev. John Wesley, Introduction to Ecclesiastes.

Chomesh, חמש, rendered the fifth rib, what it properly imports, 2 Sam. xx. 10.

Choun, an idol worshipped among the Peruvians from the remotest antiquity, Amos v. 26.

Christ, of the same import with Messiah, Exod. xxix. 7.

Chronicle, remarks on the, which was read to Ahasuerus, Esth. vi. 1.

Chronicles, books of, this portion of holy writ variously named in the versions, Preface to Chronicles. The author or authors of the Chronicles not known, ibid. Reasons for the supposition that Ezra was the compiler, ibid. Jerome's opinion of these books, ibid.

Chronological list of the prophets of the Old Testament from Adam to Malachi, Introduction to Isaiah. Chronological list of the sixteen prophets whose writings are preserved, ibid.

Chronological Tables.—Table of the principal events recorded in the book of Genesis, according to the computation of Archbishop Usher, interspersed with a few connecting circumstances from profane history, Gen. l., in fine. Table upon the same plan, to the book of Exodus, Exod. xl., in fine. Table of the great epochs, A. M., B. C., and the Julian period, synchronized with the reigns of the sovereigns of the four principal monarchies, viz., those of Egypt, Sicyon, the Argivi, and the Athenians, from the death of Jacob, A. M. 2315, to the erection of the tabernacle, A. M. 2514, ibid. General chronological table for the Pentateuch and Joshua, containing (in five and six different eras) a synchronical arrangement of the years of the life of the antediluvian and postdiluvian patriarchs, and also of the years of the reigns of contemporary monarchs, Josh. xxiv., in fine. Chronological table of the book of Judges, according to Archbishop Usher, Preface to Judges. Chronological table of this book, according to the scheme of Sir John Marsham, ibid. Chronological table of this book, according to Dr. Hales, ibid. Table of the kings of Israel and Judah in the consecutive order of their reigns, from their commencement to the destruction of the former by the Assyrians, and of the latter by the Babylonians, interspersed with contemporary events from profane history, 2 Chron., in fine. Chronological tables of the prophecies of Jeremiah, according to Drs. Dahler and Blayney, Introduction to Jeremiah. Chronological table of the prophecies of Ezekiel, according to Calmet, Introduction to Ezekiel. Chronological table of the prophecies of Daniel, according to Calmet, Introduction to Daniel.

Chrysolite, some account of this precious stone, Exod. xxviii. 17; Ezek. x. 9.

Chrysostom, account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 3. Why so named, Psa. xvi., in principio.

Chukkoth, חקת, its derivation and import, Lev. xxvi. 15.

Church, what constitutes a, according to Tertullian, Judg xx. 2.

Cicer, Dr. Shaw's description of this pulse, 2 Kings vi. 25.

Cicero, quotation of a beautiful passage from, to show that even the heathens derived consolation from the reflection that after death they should meet their friends in a state of conscious existence, 2 Sam. xii. 23. Commencement of his celebrated oration against Cataline, Job xxxviii., in fine.

Cider, whence this word is probably derived, Lev. xi. 9.
Cimmerians, or Cimbrians, from whom these people are supposed to have originated, Gen. x. 2.
Circulation of the blood in the animal system, evidently known to the writer of the book of Ecclesiastes, Eccles. xii. 7.
Circumcision, remarkable passage in Herodotus respecting, considered, Gen. xvii. 10. This rite performed by the Jews and others with a knife made of stone, Josh. v. 2. Physical reason why metallic edge-tools are improper in the performance of this rite, ibid.
Cities of the ancients, how the larger kind were generally built, Jonah iv. 11. Consecrated to their gods, and the very walls considered as sacred, Neh. xii. 27.
Cities of the Levites, with a diagram of their dimensions, &c., Num. xxxv. 5.
Cities of refuge among the Hebrews, some account of the, Num. xxxv. 11. Their typical import, Num. xxxv., in fine. Josh. xx., in fine.
Cities walled up to heaven. What is the meaning of this phrase, Deut. i. 28.
City, examples of the high acceptation of this word, Psa. lxxxvii. 4.
City of the sun, generally supposed to have been the same with Heliopolis, Isa. xix. 18. Conjecture of Conrad Ikenius, ibid.
Clap, how caused by the lightning, Job xxxviii. 26. Illustrated by an easy experiment on the air-pump.
Clara, (Hugo de Saneta) see Hugh de St. Cler.
Clarius, (Isidore) account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 5.
Claudius, anecdote respecting this Roman emperor, 1 Kings iii. 25.
Claudius the poet, quotation of a part of his panegyric upon the fourth consulship of Honorius Augustus, in illustration of 1 Kings i. 37.
Cleopatra, queen of Egypt, Lucan's description of the splendour of her apartments, Ezek. xxviii. 14.
Cler, (Hugh de St.) or Hugo de Saneta Clara, account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 5.
Climax, double, remarkable instance of a, Psa. i. 1.
Cloud, ancient heathen writers represent their gods, in their pretended manifestations to men, as always encompassed with a, Exod. xiii. 21. Probable origin of this custom, ibid.
Clouted, derivation and import of this old English word, Josh. ix. 5.
Coats of mail, how formed in different countries, 1 Sam. xvii. 5. Weight of that which appertained to Goliath of Gath, reduced to avoirdupois pounds and ounces, ibid.
Coa Vestis, see Mulitia.
Cock, consecrated to Apollo, or the sun, among the later heathens, 2 Kings xvii., in fine.
Cockatrice, Kimchi's observation on the sparkling of the eyes of this animal, Isa. xi. 8.
Cœna, or Supper, why so named by the Romans, Job xxxi. 17.
Coffins of the martyrs accustomed to be anointed by the primitive Christians, Gen. xxviii. 18. For a dead body to be put in a coffin a mark of great distinction among the ancient Egyptians, Gen. l. 26. Some of the Egyptian coffins made of granite, and covered over with hieroglyphics, ibid.
Coin, in many countries, had its name from the image it bore, as instanced in the Jacobus, Carolus, &c., Gen. xxxiii. 19. The Jews had probably no coined or stamped money before the Babylonish captivity, Jer. xxxii. 9. Description of the coin struck by Vespasian on the capture of Jerusalem, Lam. i. 1.
Coke, (Rev. Dr.) account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 9.
Cold, at particular times so very intense in the East as to kill man and beast, Psa. cxlvii. 17.
Collation of an archbishop to the spiritualities and temporalities of this see, and investing him with plenary sacerdotal authority by sending him the pallium or pall, whence the Romanists probably borrowed this rite, 1 Kings xix., in fine.
Collections, feast of, for what purpose instituted, Exod. xxiii. 14.
Coloquintida, description of this fruit, 2 Kings iv. 39.
Columella's directions in the construction of threshing-floors, 1 Sam. xxiii., in fine.
Combat, trial by, a species of ordeal very frequent in the dark ages, Num. v., in fine.
Common prayer, book of, observations concerning the, General Preface, p. 17.
Concubine, its derivation and import, Gen. xxii. 24.
Con fu tsee, character of the ordinances and institutions attributed to this great Chinese lawgiver, Deut. xxxiv., in fine.
Conscience, a terrible accuser, Gen. xxxii. 6. Fine sayings of two heathen poets upon this subject, ibid., l. 15.
Contempt of court, anecdote of a woman punished for, Exod. vi. 3.
Contingency shown to exist in human affairs; that is, that God has poised many things between a possibility of being and not being, leaving it to the will of the creature to turn the scale, 1 Sam. xxiii. 11, 12.
Coptic version, some account of the, General Preface, p. 21.
Cor, its content in English measure, Ezra vii. 22.
Coral, account of the, Job xxviii. 17.
Cords of vanity, what meant by this expression, Isa. v. 18.
Corner of the room, among the inhabitants of the East, the most honourable place, Isa. xxxviii. 2; Amos iii. 12.
Cornet, what the import of the original word so translated, Dan. iii. 5.
Cornwall, what this county was named in the ancient British tongue, Isa. v. 1. Camden's observations on the origin of its present appellation, ibid. Conjecture of Sammes, ibid.
Corsned, trial by the, a species of ordeal common among the Catholic clergy, Num. v., in fine.
Cosha, trial by the, species of ordeal among the Hindoos, Num. v., in fine.
Coune, description of this Eastern vehicle, Isa. lxvi. 20.
Court of King's Bench, the place where the king presides, and where he is supposed to be always present, Psa. lxxxiii. 1.
Covenant of salt, a figure of speech denoting an everlasting covenant, Num. xviii. 19.
Covenant with death, or the beasts of the field, a proverbial expression used by the ancients to denote perfect security from evil of any sort, Isa. xxviii. 15.
Covenants, inquiry into the practices of the ancients in the formation of, Gen. vi. 18, xv. 10, xxvii. 4; Josh. ix. 6; Jer. xxiv. 18.
Covert for the Sabbath in the temple, various conjectures respecting the, 2 Kings, xvi. 18.
Covetousness awfully punished in Gehazi, 2 Kings v. 27.
Cracknels, the Hebrew word so translated signifies what is to the present day called Jews' bread, and used by them at the passover, 1 Kings xiv. 3.
Crassus, Plutarch's account of the great wealth of this man, Esth. iii. 9.
Crimson, whence this word is derived, Isa. i. 18.
Critica Sacri, account of this immense collection of Biblical critics, General Preface, p. 11.
Crocodile, a sacred animal among the Egyptians, Exod. i. 11. Number and curious disposition of its scales, Job xli. 21. Eyes of the crocodile among the Egyptians, the emblem of the morning, Job xli. 18. Amazing strength of this animal in its tail, Job xli. 19. Particular description of the crocodile, Job xli., passim. This animal supposed to be the leviathan of Scripture, ibid.
Crooked serpent, various conjectures respecting the meaning of this phrase, Job xxvi. 13.
Cross, curious extract from a Saxon homily relative to the canonical times of signing the body with the mark of the cross, Psa. cxix. 164.
Cross, trial by the, a species of ordeal frequent in the middle ages, Num. v., in fine.
Crown taken from the king of the Ammonites, valuation of the, 2 Sam. xii. 20.
Crusaders, instance of their horrible cruelties, as related in the Gasta Dei per Francos, Psa. lx., in fine.
Crystal, some account of this mineral, Job xxviii. 17.
Cubians, where these people were situated, according to Ptolemy, Ezek. xxx. 5.
Cud, derivation and import of the term Lev. xi. 3. Philosophical observations relative to the faculty which certain animals possess of chewing the cud, ibid.

Cudworth, (Dr.) his excellent remarks on the ark, table of shewbread, &c., Exod. xxv. 23.
Cumean sibyl, Virgil's description of the seat of the, Isa. xlv. 19.
Cup, its metaphorical import in Scripture, Psa. xi. 6, cxvi. 13. This metaphor similarly employed among the heathens, as shown by a quotation from Homer, ibid.
Cup of consolation, its literal and metaphorical acceptation, Jer. xvi. 8.
Cup of trembling, probably an allusion to the ancient method of taking off criminals by a cup of poison, Isa. li. 17.
Cup of the wrath of Jehovah, a very bold, highly poetical, and sublime image, frequently employed by the sacred writers, Isa. i. 22, li. 21. Whence this figure is taken, Isa. i. 22.
Cupel, a sort of instrument used in the purification of silver, Prov. xvii. 3. Its description and use, Psa. xii. 6; Jer. vi. 27.
Cupid and Psyche, an ancient allegory by which marriage is happily illustrated, Gen. ii. 24.
Customs and usages of universal prevalence, enumeration of, from which the derivation of mankind from one common stock is demonstrable, Gen. x., in fine.
Cutheans, who, 2 Kings xvii. 24.
Cutting off the hair, a sign of great distress, and practised on the death of near relatives, Isa. xv. 2; Amos viii. 10; Mic. i. 16.
Cuttings of the flesh, common among the heathens in their religious rites, Lev. xix. 28; Deut. xiv. 1; Jer. xvi. 16.
Cymbal, description of this ancient musical instrument, Isa. xviii. 1.
Cynopolis, why this city was so named, Exod. xi. 7.
Cyrus, why so partial to the Jews, according to Josephus, Ezra i. 1. A golden cagle, αετος χρυσους, the ensign of Cyrus, according to Xenophon, Isa. xlvi. 11. This Persian monarch very probably named by Isaiah עיט aeit, or the eagle, from this circumstance, ibid. Pliny's account of the wealth taken by Cyrus in Asia, Isa. xlv. 3. Manner of the death of Cyrus as related by Herodotus, ibid; Ezek. xxxv. 6. Vast extent of his empire, Ezra i. 2; Esth. i. 1. Xenophon's list of the nations conquered by Cyrus, Isa. xlv. 1. The righteous man mentioned by Isaiah to be understood of Abraham, and not of this monarch, Isa. xli. 2.

D.

Dabar Yehovah, דבר יהוה, import of this phrase, Lev. xxvi. 15.
Dædalus and Icarus, fable of, moralized by a Roman poet, Prov. xxv. 7.
Dagon, description of this idol of the Philistines by Diodorus Siculus, Judg. xvi. 23. A quotation from Horace, which seems to have an allusion to the image of Dagon, ibid.; 1 Sam. v. 4. This idol supposed to have been the same with Dirceto, Attergatis, the Venus of Askelon, and the Moon, 1 Sam. v. 2.
Daman-Israel, account of this animal, Prov. xxx. 24.
Damascenes, excessive superstition of the, according to the Midrash, Isa. xvii. 1.
Damascus, the capital of the ancient kingdom of Syria, Amos i. 3.
Damme, (Thomas) extraordinary longevity of this man, Psa. xc., in fine.
Dan, why this patriarch was so named, Gen. xxx. 6.
Daniel, sketch of the life and character of this prophet, Introduction to Daniel, p. 560. Chronological arrangement of the events recorded in his book, ibid., pp. 562, 563.
Daphne, Ovid's description of the beauties of, Song iv. 7.
D'Arvieux's account of the costly ornaments of the Arabian ladies, Song i. 10.
Date, or palm tree, its description and various uses, Psa. xcii. 12.
Date wine, see Palm wine.
Daughters given in marriage according to their seniority, a very ancient custom, still observed among the Hindoos, Gen. xxix. 26.
David, number of the children born to this prince in Jerusalem, according to the Hebrew text, 2 Sam. v. 14–16. Number according to the Septuagint version, ibid. Our English version, which states that David houghed all the chariot horses of Hadadezer, shown not to contain the sense of the original, 2 Sam. viii. 4. Dr. Delaney's enumeration of the wars which David righteously undertook, and gloriously terminated, in the first nineteen or twenty years of his reign, 2 Sam. x. 19. The account of David's adultery with Bath-sheba, and his murder of Uriah (as recorded in the Old Testament) an illustrious proof of the truth of Divine revelation, 2 Sam. xi., in fine. Dr. Kennicott's remarks upon the Song which David composed when God had delivered him out of the hand of all his enemies, 2 Sam. xxii., in fine. A peculiarly sublime passage of this Song pointed out, where sense and sound are astonishingly combined, 2 Sam. xxii. 11; Psa. xviii. 10. L. De Dieu's judicious observations on the Scripture statement that the kingdom of David shall be perpetual, 2 Sam. xxiii., in fine. The tomb of David said to have been ransacked by Hyrcanus, the high priest, when besieged by Antiochus, and three thousand talents taken from it, to induce Antiochus to raise the siege, 1 Kings ii. 10. Dr Kennicott's criticism on that part of the sacred text containing an account of David's dying charge relative to Shimei, 1 Kings ii., in fine Calculation of the equivalent in British standard to the hundred thousand talents of gold and to the million talents of silver that were prepared by David for the temple, 2 Chron. x., in fine. In what sense those scriptures are to be understood which state David to have been a man after God's own heart, 1 Sam. xiii. 14. Sketch of the life and character of David, book of Psalms, in fine.
Day, Jewish division of the, Exod. xii. 6. Natural division of the day for necessary refreshment, Eccles. x. 17.
Days of the creation, supposed to typify the chiliads of the world which are to elapse before the commencement of the rest that remains for the people of God, Gen. i. 16.
Days of restraint, why this name was given to certain holy days ordained by the law, Isa. i. 13.
Daysman, what intended by this term in our courts of jurisprudence, Job ix. 30.
Dead, methods of honouring the, among the ancients, Gen. l. 26. Customary in ancient times to deposit gold, silver, and precious stones with the more illustrious dead, 1 Kings ii. 10. Raising the bodies of the dead, and scattering their bones about, formerly the highest expression of hatred and contempt, Jer. viii. 1.
Dead Sea, description of its waters, Gen. xix. 25.
Death, fine saying of Seneca relative to, Job. iii. 9.
Death, image of, why hung up by Domitian in his dining-room, Isa. xxii. 13. Impious epigram of Martial on this image, ibid.
Death of the righteous, import of this phrase in the time of Moses, Num. xxiii. 10.
Debash, דבש, rendered honey, what it properly imports, Gen. xliii. 11.
Decalogue, controversy whether this was written on the first tables, Exod. xxxiv. 1.
Dedication, feast of the, why instituted, Exod. xxiii. 14.
Defunct, frequent repetition of the name of the, common in lamentations, 2 Sam. xix. 4.
Delhi, remarkable Persian couplet above the hall of audience in the imperial palace at, Neh. ii. 8.
Delaney's character of David, 1 Chron. xxix., in fine.
Delphic oracle, description of the, by Diodorus and Strabo, Isa. xlv. 19. Cicero's account of the answers generally given by the, ibid.
Demosthenes, passage in, admired by Longinus for the sublimity of its sentiment, as well as the harmony of its numbers, Isa. xliv. 22.
Desmond, countess of, extraordinary longevity of the, Psa. xc., in fine.
Desolation, very nervously described by a Persian poet, Job xviii. 15; Isa. xiii. 22; Zeph. ii. 14.
Destinies, or Fatal Sisters, fable of the, Job vii. 6.
Desvœux's analysis of the book of Ecclesiastes, Introduction to Ecclesiastes.
Deus judicium, Montgomery's poetical version of the principal passages in this Psalm, Psa. lxxii., in fine.
Deus misereatur, an ancient opinion of the Christian Church that the triple mention of אלהים Elohim, God, in the close of this Psalm, has a reference to the Holy Trinity, Psa lxvii. 7

Deuteronomy, the last book of the Pentateuch, why so named, Preface to Deuteronomy.
Devil, whence this word is derived, Job i. 6. The name of this apostate spirit nearly the same in most European languages, Psa. cix. 6.
Dew, thoughts on the manner of its production, Deut. xxxii. 2; Job xxxviii. 28.
Diadem of the earth, a most elegant expression to show the progress of the sun through the twelve signs of the zodiac in a natural year, Psa. lxv. 11.
Dial of Ahaz, observations on the nature and structure of the, with a diagram of its supposed form, 2 Kings xx., in fine.
Diamond, some account of this precious substance, Exod. xxviii. 17.
Diana of Ephesus, image of, supposed to have been an aerolith bearing some rude resemblance to the human form, Josh. x. 11
Dibon-gad, the thirty-eighth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, where supposed to be situated, Num. xxxiii. 45.
Didymus, import of this name, Gen. xxv. 24.
Dinah, why so named, Gen. xxx. 21.
Diodorus Siculus, his account of the funeral ceremonies of the Egyptians, Gen. l. 2.
Diospolis, or Thebes, the No of Jeremiah. See chap. xlvi. 25. See also Ezek. xxx. 14.
Dipsas, mortal effects of the bite of the, as described by Lucan, Num. xxi. 6.
Diseases, charming away of, how professed to be done by ancients and moderns, Psa. lviii. 4, et in fine.
Divination by arrows, manner of, among the Arabs, Ezek. xxi. 21.
Divination by cups, of very remote antiquity, Gen. xliv. 5.
Divination by serpents, common among the ancients, Deut. xviii. 10.
Divine Being, some observations on the manner of approaching the, in prayer, Exod. ix. 29.
Divinity of Christ demonstrated, Psa. xlv. 8; Isa. vii. 15, ix. 7; Mic. v. 2, vii. 20; Zech. ii. 8, xiii. 7.
Divorcement, form of a bill of, among the Jews, Deut. xxiv. 3.
Dixit insipiens, remarks on six verses supposed to be cited by St. Paul from this Psalm, but which do not exist in the present copies of the common Hebrew text; Psa. xiv. 3, et in fine.
Dodd, (Rev. Dr. William) author of a very excellent commentary on the Scriptures, General Preface, p. 9.
Doddridge, (Dr. Philip) account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 8.
Dogs, remarks upon the howlings of, Exod. xi. 7.
Domesday book, account of, 2 Sam. xxiv. 8. At present in a state of great preservation in the Chapter House, Westminster, ibid.
Domine, Dominus noster, the whole of this Psalm given at full length from an ancient manuscript, Psa. viii., in fine.
Domitian, account of the expulsion of the Jews from Rome by this emperor, Psa. cix. 11.
Doors of the courts and houses in Palestine made very low to prevent the Arabs, who seldom leave the backs of their horses, from riding into the courts and houses, and spoiling the goods, Prov. xvii. 19.
Dophkah, the eighth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, Num. xxxiii. 12.
Dothan, where supposed to have been situated, 2 Kings. vi. 13.
Dove's dung, the Hebrew word so rendered probably means a kind of pulse, 2 Kings vi. 25. Dove's dung of great value in the East for its power in producing cucumbers, melons, &c., ibid.
Dowry, to give a, for a wife, a custom very frequent among all ancient nations, Gen. xxix. 20. The Tartars and Turks still buy their wives, ibid.
Drag, an instrument used in threshing, Isa. xxviii. 27, 28. Its description, ibid.
Dragon-well at Jerusalem, why probably so named, Neh. ii. 13.
Dream, ineffectual working of the imagination in a, figuratively employed by sacred and profane writers, Isa. xxix. 7. Citation of instances from Virgil and Lucretius, ibid.
Dreams, enumeration of their causes, Gen. xli., in fine; 1 Kings iii. 5; Jer. xxiii. 27. Gregory Nyssen's theory respecting dreams, 1 Kings iii. 5. Joseph's dream of the eleven stars bowing down to him, supposed by Vallancy to have reference to the signs of the zodiac, Gen. xlix., in fine. Discourse on Nebuchadnezzar's dream of the metallic image, Dan. ii., in fine.
Dress of an English beau in the fourteenth century, as described by Dr. Henry, Lev. xix. 19. Curious extract against luxury in dress, taken from a sermon composed in the fourteenth century, ibid.
Drinking, regulations respecting, among the ancient Greeks and Romans, in their entertainments, Esth. i. 8.
Druids, Pliny's account of their great veneration for the oak and mistletoe, Gen. xxi. 33.
Drunkenness, Herbert's nervous description of the baleful effects of, xxiii. 33.
Drusius, (John) account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 6.
Dudaim, דוּדָאִים, import of this word extremely uncertain, Gen. xxx. 14.
Duelling, when the general practice of, is supposed to have taken place, Num. v., in fine. Account of the duel between Dioxippus the Athenian, and Horatus a Macedonian, as given by Quintus Curtius, 2 Sam. xxiii. 21. Description of the ancient mode of duel between the retiarius and secutor, Mic. vii. 2. Observations on the practice of duelling in this country, Hos. iv. 2.
Duke, derivation and import of this word, Gen. xxxvi. 15.
Dung of the ox and cow in a dried state a common fuel in the East, Isa. xxvii. 11; Ezek. v. 12.
Dura, plain of, uncertain where situated, Dan. iii. 1.
Durandus, his account of the manner of constructing the pallium or pall, 1 Kings xix., in fine.
Dust, throwing of, into the air, a mark among the ancients of the greatest contempt, 2 Sam. xvi. 13.
Dyrbeans, anecdote concerning these people, Lev. vi. 3.

E.

Eagle, esteemed by the heathens as a bird sacred to Jupiter, and thought by them to be employed in carrying the souls of departed heroes, kings, &c., into the celestial regions, Exod. xix. 4. Whence this fable probably originated, ibid. The eagle was the Roman ensign, Deut. xxviii. 49. A golden eagle was the ensign of Cyrus, according to Xenophon, Isa. xlvi. 11. The eagle proverbial among ancients and moderns for its strong and clear sight, Job xxxix. 27–29. Some eagles stated to have attained a very great age, Psa. ciii. 5. A very current opinion among the ancients that the eagle moults in his old age, and renews his feathers, and with them his youth, Isa. xl. 31.
Ear, boring of the, an ancient custom in the East, Exod. xxi. 6.
Earing, whence derived, and its ancient and modern acceptations, Gen. xlv. 6.
Ear-rings, formerly worn as amulets and charms, Gen. xxxv 4. The Ishmaelites or Arabs had probably a crescent in each ear-ring, Judg. viii. 21.
Earth, rotation round its axis the cause of the regular succession of day and night, Gen. i. 4; Psa. xix. 5. Its superficial and solid contents, Psa. viii. 3. Its spheroidal figure, Gen. i. 10. What to be understood by the pillars or compressors of the earth, 1 Sam. ii. in fine.
Earth, two mules' burden of, inquiry into what Naaman meant by this phrase, 2 Kings v. 17.
Earth and water, annual offering of, to the Persian monarchs, and its signification, Neh. ii. 3.
Earthen jars, vessels in which the people of the East keep their corn and meal to preserve them from insects, 1 Kings xvii. 12.
Earthquakes, description of, with their accompaniments, 1 Kings xix. 11.
Eastern bow, description of the, Psa. lxxviii. 57. Its figure, and what named by the Greeks when in a quiescent state, and when ready to discharge the missile, ibid.; Hos. vii. 16; Zech. ix. 14.
Eastern divan, in what its furniture chiefly consists, Isa. xxxviii. 2.
East Indian ink, readily discharged from the paper by the application of a wet sponge, Num. v. 23.

Ebronah, the thirtieth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, Num. xxxiii. 34.
Eden, its derivation and import, Gen. ii. 8.
Edge-tools of the ancients commonly made of stones and flints, Josh. v. 2.
Edicts of the Persian monarchs could not be formally repealed; but new edicts could be issued by which the preceding might be counteracted, Esth. viii. 8.
Edomites, their origin, and frequent hostilities with the Israelites, Gen. xxv. 23; Isa. xxxiv., in principio. Fulfilment of the prophecies concerning these people, Gen. xxvii. 28, et seq.
Edoth, עדות, its derivation and import, Lev. xxvii. 15.
Education of children, instructions for the proper discharge of this duty, 1 Sam. iii., in fine. Fearful consequences to be apprehended from a neglected religious education, ibid. Thoughts on the mode of education in our national schools and universities, Dan. i. 5.
Egypt, ancient constitution of, according to Diodorus Siculus, Gen. xlvii. 23. The earliest account of a religion supported by the state is that which was established in this country, ibid. Egypt has a double seed-time and harvest, Exod. ix. 31. Amazing number of Jews in this country in the time of Philo, Isa. xix., in principio. Brief sketch of the revolutions of Egypt, Ezek. xxix. 14.
Egyptians, why shepherds were had in abomination among these people, Gen. xlvi. 34. Excessive superstition of the Egyptians, Exod. viii. 26, xx. 4; Lev. xvii. 7.
Eheyeh asher eheyeh, אהיה אשר אהיה, rendered "I am that I am," inquiry into the import of the original words, Exod. iii. 14.
Ei, אי, a Jewish memorial symbol, Masoretic notes at the end of Exodus.
Eilon, אלון, rendered oak, what it properly signifies, Gen. xii. 6.
Elam, probably the same with the Elymais of the Greeks, Jer. xlix. 34.
Elanitic Gulf, why so named, 2 Kings xiv. 22.
Eldest son, giving the estates to the, origin of this law, Gen. xxv. 6.
Electrical winds, Jackson's account of the, Hab. i. 9.
Elephant, natural history of the, Job xl. 15. Supposed by some to be the behemoth of Scripture, ibid. Manner of hunting the elephant in Ceylon, Job xviii., in fine.
Elephantiasis, description of this very horrible disorder, Deut. xxviii. 27; Job ii. 7 vii. 5, xvi. 8, xxx. 18. In what it differs from the smallpox, Job ii. 7.
Eliezer, son of Moses, why so named, Exod. xviii. 4.
Elihu, various conjectures respecting, Job xxxii. 2.
Elijah the Tishbite, idolatrous superstition of the Jews relative to this prophet, Mal. iv. 6.
Elim, the fifth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, some account of, Num. xxxiii. 9.
Eliphaz the Temanite, who, Job ii. 11.
Elisha, inquiry whether this prophet received his office by unction, 1 Kings xix., in fine.
Elishah, supposed to be the same with Elis, a part of the Peloponnesus, Ezek. xxvii. 7.
Elixir vitæ, attempts at the discovery of the, in most nations, Job xiv. 5.
Ellipsis, instances of the, Isa. i. 9, x. 26, xli. 2, xliii. 19, lvii. 2.
Elm, prodigious quantity of seeds produced by this tree, Gen. i. 12.
El Maamah, Dr. Pococke's account of this very large Eastern grotto, 1 Sam xxiv. 3.
Elohim, אלהים, demonstrated to be the plural form of אל El, or אלה Eloah, by a reference to thirty-one passages in the Old Testament, Gen. i. 1; see also Deut. vi. 4. Inquiry into the derivation and import of the word, ibid. A very beautiful paronomasia upon this word, Psa. xcvi. 5.
Embalming, art of, among the Egyptians, largely described, Gen. l. 2.
Emerald, some account of this precious stone, Exod. xxviii. 17. Its component parts, Job xxxviii. 38.
Emeth, אמת, its derivation and import, Lev. xxvi. 15.
Emim, some account of this ancient people, Deut. ii. 10.
Empneumatosis, or windy inflation of the womb, description of this disorder by Michaelis, Isa. xxvi. 18.
Encampments of the Israelites in the wilderness, Scheuchzer's description and plan of the, Num. ii. 2. The Arabs always form a circle in their encampments, and put their principal officers in the centre, 1 Sam. xxvi. 5.
Enemies, a practice among the ancients of disabling, by cutting off their thumbs and great toes, Judg. i. 7. Customary with the Persians, after they had slain, strangled, or beheaded their enemies, to hang their bodies upon poles, or to empale them, Lam. v. 12.
Enetæ, or Henctæ, where these ancient people were situated, Gen. xxxvi. 24. Whence the fabulous account of their origin is possibly derived, ibid.
Engines for the attack or defence of besieged places invented in the reign of Uzziah, king of Judah, 2 Chron. xxvi. 15.
Enigmas proposed at ancient entertainments, some examples of, Judg. xiv. 14. Ancient enigma in which the double use of the style is pointed out, 2 Kings xxi. 13.
Enoch, meaning of the word, Gen. iv. 17. Remark upon the age of Enoch, the father of Methuselah, at the period of his translation, Gen. v., in fine.
Enosh, אנוש, a word rendered man in our version, its precise import, Psa. lxii. 9.
Envy, definition of, Gen. xxxvii., in fine. Curious rabbinical story relative to this malignant passion, which has been formed by the moderns into a fable, Prov. xxvii. 4.
Eous, one of the horses of the sun, according to the pagan mythology, what the name imports, 2 Kings ii. 11.
Ephah, some account of this Hebrew measure of capacity, Exod. xvi. 16.
Ephod, account of the, Exod. xxv. 7. Its curious girdle, Exod. xxviii. 8. Observations on the ephod made by Gideon, Judg. viii. 27., et in fine.
Ephraim, son of Joseph, why so named, Gen. xli. 50.
Ephrem Syrus, some account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 3.
Epithalamium, definition of the, Introduction to Solomon's Song.
Equinoctial points, precession of the, occasioned by a slow revolution of the celestial poles around the poles of the ecliptic, Psa. xix. 5. In what time this revolution is performed, ibid. From this cause the tropical year is shorter than the siderial, ibid. In twenty-five thousand seven hundred and sixty-THREE complete revolutions of the earth round the sun, there are twenty-five thousand seven hundred and sixty-FOUR summers, and as many autumns, winters, and springs, ibid. Remarkable phenomena in the starry firmament occasioned by the precession of the equinoctial points, ibid.
Equus hemionus, see Jehta.
Erasmus, (Desiderius) a commentator on the New Testament, General Preface, p. 6. How fully convinced of the doctrine of the Trinity, Eccles. iii. 14.
Ereb, ערב, translated evening, import of the term, Gen. i. 31. From this word is derived Erebus, the name of a heathen deity, ibid.
Ermin or Erminage-street, where situated, Job xxiii. 11.
Ermine, royal robes of kings and great officers adorned with the skin of this animal, 2 Kings ii. 8.
Esau, import of this name very uncertain, Gen. xxv. 25 Dr. Shuckford's character of Esau, Gen. xxxvi., in fine.
Eshcol, valley of, where situated, Isa. v. 2.
Esob, אזוב, rendered hyssop, of doubtful import, Exod. xii. 22.
Esquire, derivation and original import of this word, 1 Sam. xiv. 1. Its modern acceptation, ibid.
Esther, biographical sketch of, by Prideaux, Introduction to Esther.
Eternal filiation of the Son of God, remarks on the doctrine of the, Psa. ii. 7; Prov. viii., in fine.
Eternity of rewards and punishments, in a future state, shown to be a doctrine of Scripture, Gen. xvii. 7, 8, xxi. 33; Psa. lxxiii. 27; Isa. lxvi. 24.
Eternity, thoughts concerning this vast and incomprehensible subject, Job ix., in fine; Psa. xc. 2.
Eternity of God, reflections upon the, Exod. iii., in fine; Mic. v. 2. Remarkable passages in Plutarch on this point, ibid.
Eth, את, rabbinical glosses upon this Hebrew particle, Gen. i. 1.

Eth, the old third person singular ending in, used by our English ancestors for the imperative mood, Isa. lv. 1. This illustrated by a quotation from an old MS. Bible in the author's possession, ibid.

Etham, the second station of the Israelites in the wilderness, some account of, Num. xxxiii. 6.

Ethanim, the name of a Jewish month, 1 Kings vi. 1, viii. 2.

Ets, עץ, rendered galloics, real import of the word, Esth. v. 14.

Ευαγγελιον, Gospel, shown to signify the reward which the bringer of good tidings is entitled to receive, 2 Sam. iv. 10.

Eudoxus, remarkable among the ancients for having sailed round the Cape of Good Hope, Isa. ii. 13–16.

Euphrates, remarkable overflowing of this river, Nah. i. 8, ii. 6. Time and cause of its ordinary overflowings, Isa. xliv. 27. How Semiramis confined the waters of Euphrates within its channel, Isa. xxi. 1.

Euripides, citation from, in which sense and sound are very happily combined, Isa. i. 5.

Euryalus, see Nisus.

Eusebius, the reason given by this writer why the Egyptians worshipped their deities under the form of certain animals, Exod. viii. 26.

Evaporation, how instrumental in the production of rain, Psa. civ. 10.

Eve, meaning of the word, Gen. iii. 20. This name contains in itself a prophecy of the redemption of the world by Jesus Christ, ibid.

Events, enumeration of the different methods of recording, among the ancients, Jer. xvii. 1.

Evermore, import of this term, Exod. xv. 18; Psa. xvi. 11.

Evil report, fine personification of, by Virgil, 2 Sam. xiii. 30.

Execrations against those who should rebuild those cities which had been destroyed in war, the revival of whose power and influence was dreaded, frequent in ancient history, Josh. vi., in fine. Some examples produced, ibid. Pouring execrations on an enemy previously to battle, an ancient custom, Num. xxii. 6; Psa. lxxxiii. 15.

Exodus, the second book of the Old Testament Scriptures, whence so named, Preface to Exodus.

Expeditions of the ancient Eastern monarchs, manner of the, Isa. xl. 3.

Expiation, feast of, why instituted, Exod. xxiii. 14.

Expounding of the Scriptures, manner of, among the Jews, Neh. viii., in fine.

Ezekiel, Archbishop Newcome's historical sketch of the times in which this prophet lived, Introduction to Ezekiel. Character of Ezekiel as a poet drawn up by this great prelate, ibid. Chronological table of the prophecies of Ezekiel from Calmet, ibid. Plan and description of Ezekiel's temple, Ezek. xlviii., in fine.

Ezer kenegedo, עזר כנגדו, translated helpmeet, inquiry into the import of these words, Gen. ii. 18.

Ezion-gaber, the thirty-first station of the Israelites in the wilderness, some account of, Num. xxxiii. 35.

Ezra, biographical sketch of, by Prideaux, Introduction to Ezra.

Ezra, book of, very remarkable passage said to have been originally contained in this portion of holy writ, which the Jews are accused by Justin Martyr of erasing through their enmity to the Christians, Ezra x., in fine.

F.

Fable of Dædalus and Icarus, with its moral as given by a Roman poet, Prov. xxv. 7.

Face or Forehead, why the first part of the body whence the sweat begins to issue, Gen. iii. 19.

Face, covering of the, a sign of mourning, 2 Sam. xix. 4. When a criminal was ordered to have his face covered, it was a sign among the Persians and Romans of his being devoted to death, Esth. vii. 8.

Falarica, see Phalarica.

Falcon, natural history of the, Job xxxix. 26.

False witnesses, laws of the Hebrews, Romans, and English against, Deut. xix. 19.

Falsity diffused through the nature of man, Psa. cxvi. 11. This idea finely expressed by Herbert, ibid. Remarkable Italian proverb to the same effect, ibid.

Fame, fine personification of, by Virgil, 2 Sam. xiii. 30.

Family religion, maintenance of, indispensable, Gen. xviii., in fine, xix., in fine; Deut. iv. 9, vi. 7.

Famines that were decreed to take place before the coming of the Messiah, according to the Targum, Ruth i. 1.

Father, probably a name of office in Egypt, Gen. xlv. 8. Certain officers of state among the Phœnicians, Persians, Arabians, and Romans, addressed by this title, ibid. Among the Jews, father was the title of preceptor, and son, that of disciple or scholar, Prov. i. 8.

Favouritism has often brought prosperous nations to the brink of ruin, Eccles. x. 5.

Feasts, three principal, of the Jews, which, Zech. xiv. 16.

Federal act formed by Joshua with the people of Israel, a little before his death, outline of Saurin's excellent dissertation on the, Josh. xxiv., in fine.

Felling of trees, directions of Vitruvius respecting, 1 Kings v. 6.

Ferdinand IV., king of Naples and the Sicilies, institute of this monarch relative to mournings for the dead, Gen. l. 7.

Ferdoosy, remarks on the famous epic poem written by this man, Esth. vi. 1.

Festivals, Jewish, some account of the, Exod. xxiii. 14.

Figs, Eastern, Dr. Shaw's account of the, Isa. xxviii. 4. Citation from Pliny relative to the medical properties of the fig, with Philemon Holland's translation, Isa. xxxviii. 21.

Filigree silver-work, Asiatics greatly excel in this kind of production, Prov. xxv. 11. Instances which have come under the author's inspection, ibid.

Final perseverance of the saints, doctrine of the, considered, Deut. vii. 12; 2 Sam. vii. 15; Ezek. xviii. 24.

Fine linen of Egypt, observations upon the, Gen. xli. 42.

Finger-mountain, the highest of the mountains of Ararat, where some have supposed the ark of Noah to have rested, Gen. viii. 4.

Fire, among the Hebrews and many other ancient nations, a very significant emblem of the Deity, Exod. iii. 2. This element the offspring of Ormusd, according to the modern Parsees, ibid. Deified among the Egyptians, Exod. xii., in fine.

Fire-cross, of the ancient Highlanders, what, Judg. xix. 29; 1 Sam. xi., in fine.

Fire consuming the thorns, a beautiful metaphor used by sacred and profane writers, Psa. cxviii. 12.

Fire-ordeal, among the Persians, account of the, Num. v., in fine.

Fire of God, import of this Hebraism, Job i. 16.

First-born, observations on the import of this term in various parts of Scripture, Exod. xii. 29.

First-born, redemption of the, one of the rites still practised among the Jews, Num. xviii. 16. How this rite was performed, ibid.

First-fruits offered to God not only by the Hebrews, but several quotations from ancient writers to show that the heathens also offered them to their idols, Exod. xxii. 29.

Fishes, their amazing fecundity instanced in the tench, carp, and cod, Gen. i. 20.

Flag, Hasselquist's description of the, Job viii. 11. Ropes made of its leaves by the Egyptians, ibid.

Flail or Staff, account of this instrument used in threshing, Isa. xxviii. 27, 28.

Flesh, preservation of, by potting, common in Asiatic countries, Gen. xlv. 23.

Flint, our ancestors had their arrow and spear-heads of this substance, Josh. v. 2.

Flocks, why great care was necessary in driving them, among the ancients, Isa. xl. 11.

Flogging, system of, among the British, considered, Deut xxv. 3. Saying of a Mandarin on this subject, ibid.

Flour of parched barley, according to Mr. Jones, the chief provision of the Moors in their journeys, 2 Sam. xvii. 28.

Flux and reflux of the ocean, phenomena and cause of the, Job xxxviii. 11; Psa. civ. 9.

Footstool, a necessary appendage to a throne, Isa. lii. 2, lx. 13.

Formido or Terror, among the ancients, what, Isa. xxiv. 17, 18

Forty, Ainsworth's observations upon the very frequent occurrence of this number in Scripture. Deut. xxv. 3.

Forty days, a remarkable period in Scripture, Gen. vii. 4; Deut. xxv. 3
Forty years, which are stated to have elapsed from the commencement of Absalom's rebellion to his departure for Hebron, most manifestly a corruption of the sacred text, 2 Sam. xv. 7.
Fosse-street, some account of, Job xxiii. 11.
Foxes, formerly a custom in Rome to let loose a number of, in the circus, with lighted flambeaux on their backs, that the people might be amused in seeing these animals run about till roasted to death by the flames with which they were enveloped, Judg. xv., in fine. Origin of this custom as given by Ovid, and by Serrarius and Bochart, ibid.
Frankincense, description of this resinous substance, Exod. xxx. 34.
Fray, whence this word is derived, Zech. i. 21.
Free agency of man demonstrated, Deut. v. 29, xi. 26, xxx. 15.
Freemen forbidden by Diocletian and Maximian to be sold on account of debt, 2 Kings iv. 1.
Friend, Cicero's definition of a genuine, Psa. xxxi. 7.
Frogs, according to Bryant, a sacred animal among the Egyptians, Exod. xii., in fine., xx. 4.
Froissart's account of the six citizens of Calais, who came to Edward III. with ropes round their necks, and the keys of the town and castle in their hands, 1 Kings xx., in fine.
Fuel, great scarcity of, in most parts of the East, Isa. xxvii. 11.
Funeral banquets to commemorate the dead, and comfort the surviving relatives, common among the ancients, Jer. xvi. 8.
Funeral ceremonies among the ancient Egyptians, account of the, by Diodorus Siculus, Gen. l. 2.
Fur, how this Latin word has been applied by the ancient Romans, Psa. lxxxvi. 16.

G.

Gad, why so named, Gen. xxx. 11.
Gad, perhaps an object of idolatrous worship among the ancient Israelites, Isa. lxv. 11.
Gal, גל, import of this term, Gen. xxxi. 46.
Galbanum, description of this plant, Exod. xxx. 34.
Gall, anciently supposed to be that in which the poison of serpents consists, Job xx. 16.
Galvanism, method of decomposing water by, Job xxxviii. 26.
Gam, גם, import of this Jewish memorial symbol, Masoretic notes at the end of Genesis.
Gammadims, various conjectures respecting the import of the Hebrew term so translated, Ezek. xxvii. 11.
Gaon, (Rabbi Saadias) account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 3.
Gaphrith, גפרית, rendered brimstone, of very uncertain etymology, Gen. xix. 24.
Gardens encompassing Damascus, Maundrell's description of the, Isa. i. 30.
Garments, presents of, by Asiatic sovereigns to ambassadors and persons of distinction, very frequent, Gen. xlv. 22. Description of the garments appertaining to the Jewish priesthood, Exod. xxviii. Customary in the East to pull off the upper garments in times of great mourning, Exod. xxxiii. 5.
Garments, transparent, of the ancient Greeks and Romans, Isa. iii. 23. These garments called by the Romans multitiæ and Coæ, and why, ibid.
Garvanços, Dr. Shaw's account of this plant, 2 Kings vi. 25.
Gate, the place of judgment in the East, Judg. v. 11; Job v. 4, xxix. 7; Isa. xxix. 21.
Gates of many Eastern cities closed at sunset, and on no consideration opened till the following morning, Neh. vii. 3. Gates in Priam's palace covered with plates of brass, 1 Kings iv. 13.
Gat phe, גט ף, import of this memorial symbol of the rabbins, Masoretic notes at the end of Leviticus.
Gava, גרע, the authorized version frequently inaccurate in the rendering of this word, Gen. xxv. 8. What the original term properly imports, ibid.
Gaza, why so named, and where situated, Judg. xvi. 1.
Gebal, where situated, Ezek. xxvii. 9.
Gehenna, why this word is used by our Saviour for the place of punishment of the wicked in a future state, Isa. xxx. 33.
Genealogical lists contained in the Old Testament Scriptures of essential service in the cause of Divine revelation, Gen. xxxvi., in fine.
Generation, various lengths of a, among the ancients, Gen. xv. 16.
Genesis, the first book of the Old Testament Scriptures, whence so named, Preface to Genesis. General Observations on the great importance of this book, Gen. l., in fine.
Genista, or common furze, exceedingly prolific, Gen. iii. 18.
Genius, extraordinary, of some men, reflections concerning the, Exod. xxviii. 3; xxxi. 6.
Gentiles very probably borrowed their first sacrificial rites from the patriarchs, Num. xix. 2.
Gentoo laws, very interesting extract from Mr. Halhed's code of, relative to the Ashummed Jugg, Lev. xvi. 10.
Gentoos, remarkable law among these people respecting marriage, Gen. xxix. 25.
Georgium Sidus, or Herschel, periodic and sidereal revolutions, distances from the sun and earth, diameter, volume, density, and hourly orbitical motion, of this primary planet, Gen. i. 1.
Gerizim, some account of this mount, Deut. xxvii. 4.
Gershom, why so named, Exod. ii. 22; xviii. 3.
Ghost, its derivation and import, Gen. xxv. 8. To GIVE UP the ghost, an act properly attributable to Jesus Christ alone, ibid.
Giants, seven Hebrew words rendered thus in our English Bibles, Gen. vi. 4. Fable of the giants, Job xxvi. 5.
Gibborim, גבורים, rendered mighty men, what it properly signifies, Gen. vi. 4.
Giblites, an ancient people famous for their knowledge in ship-building, 1 Kings v. 18; Psa. lxxxiii. 7.
Gibyle, where situated, Psa. lxxxiii. 7.
Gideon, principle which impelled him to slay Zebah and Zalmunna illustrated by a quotation from Virgil, Judg. viii. 18. Character of Gideon, Judg. viii., in fine.
Gifts, rabbinical enumeration of the, presented to the priests, Num. xviii. 20.
Gigantic stature, account of persons of, in modern times, Num. xiii. 33.
Gilgal, a place of great celebrity in the Jewish history, Josh. iv. 19.
Gill, (Dr. John) author of a very diffuse commentary on the Old and New Testaments, General Preface, p. 8
Girba or Caraba, description of the, Isa. xxv. 6.
Girding up of the loins, what meant by this phrase among the ancients, Jer. i. 17.
Girdle, a very general and expensive article of dress in the East, Prov. xxxi. 24. The girdle so essential a part of a soldier's accoutrement, being the last he put on to make himself ready for action, that to be girdled anciently imported "to be completely armed, and ready for battle," Isa. v. 27.
Girgashites, where these people were situated, Josh. iii. 10.
Gitagovinda, or the songs of Jayadeva, given at full length. See the Song of Solomon, in fine.
Glass, manufacture of, known to the ancients, Deut. xxxiii. 19; Josh. xi. 8.
Glean, whence derived, Ruth ii. 2. Formerly a custom in England and Ireland for the poor to collect the straggling ears of corn after the reapers, ibid. Present law of England with respect to gleaning, ibid.
Glowing sandy plain, its deceptive appearance at a distance, Isa. xxxv. 7. Dr. Hyde's explanation and derivation of the original term so translated, ibid.
Goadby, author of a work entitled, "An Illustration of the Sacred Writings," General Preface, p. 9.
Coat, an object of religious veneration in Egypt, 2 Chron. xi. 15. Why a symbol of the Grecian or Macedonian power, Dan. viii. 5.
Goat's hair of Asia Minor, Syria, Cilicia, and Phrygia, description of the, Exod. xxv. 4.
Goat's skin used in Barbary for the carrying of meal, figs, and raisins, Deut. xxviii. 5. All sorts of things, both dry and liquid in Eastern countries, generally carried in a goat's or kid's skin, ibid.
God, derivation and import of the term, Gen. i. 1, iii. 22 A notion prevalent among the ancient Jews and heathens that if any man saw God or his representative angel, he must surely die, Judg. vi. 29, xiii. 22. The Hebrew original of Esther, (as it has come down to us,) remarkable for not containing the name of God or Lord, Esth. ii., in fine. This circumstance not true of the Septuagint version of this book, ibid.

God the only ruler of princes, in what sense this phrase is to be taken, 1 Sam. xxiv. 7.

God be gracious unto thee, my son! a usual form of salutation in the East from the aged and superiors to the younger and inferiors, Gen. xliii. 29.

God make thee as fruitful as Ephraim, and multiply thee as Manasseh! a form of salutation still in use, Gen. xlviii. 20.

God make thee as Sarah and Rebecca! a salutation still in use, Gen. xlviii. 20.

Gods, carrying of the, to battle, customary among most nations, 2 Sam. v. 21. Whence this custom probably originated, Jer. xlviii. 7.

Goel, גֹּאֵל, import of this term, Gen. xlviii. 16; Ruth ii. 20. Applicable to our Lord Jesus Christ in a most eminent sense, ibid.

Gog, various conjectures concerning the person or people intended by this name, Isa. lxiii., in principio. Ezek. xxxviii. 2.

Golan, one of the cities of refuge, import of the name, Josh. xx. 7.

Gold, four Hebrew words so translated, Exod. xxv. 3; Job xxviii. 16, 17, 19. Calculation of the value of the gold, in British standard, which came to Solomon in one year, independently of what the chapmen and merchants brought him, 2 Chron. x., in fine.

Gold of Parvaim, various conjectures respecting the meaning of the Hebrew words so translated, 2 Chron. ii. 6.

Gold chain, in several nations, the emblem of civil authority, Gen. xli. 42; Psa. lxxiii. 6; Prov. i. 9.

Golden Psalm, the meaning of, see on Psa. xvi. 1, and in title of Psa. lx.

Golden age, idea of the renewal of the, among the ancient Greeks and Romans, Isa. xi. 6–8. Citations from Ferdusi and Ibn Onein upon the same subject, ibid.

Golden bowl, what meant by this phrase, Eccles. xii. 6.

Golden Fleece, probable origin of the fable of the, Exod. xxv. 5.

Golden image of Nebuchadnezzar, calculation of its weight of gold, upon the supposition of its having been a circular column of solid gold, Dan. iii. 1. Highly probable that it was only gilt, or covered with thin plates of gold, ibid. Not likely that this image was in the human form, ibid.

Goliath of Gath, his extraordinary stature reduced to English measure, 1 Sam. xvii. 4. Description of his armour, 1 Sam. xvii. 4–6. Probable weight of his panoply, 1 Sam. xvii. 7.

Gomed, גֹּמֶד, rendered cubit, of very doubtful signification, Judg. iii. 16.

Good shepherd, qualifications of a, Ezek. xxxiv. 6.

Good, (Mr. Mason) his reasons for the supposition that Moses was the writer of the book of Job, Preface to Job.

Gopher wood, different opinions concerning the, Gen. vi. 14. The same with the cypress, according to Bochart, ibid.

Goshen, conjecture of Jerome and others why this land was so named, Gen. xlv. 10.

Gourd kind, fruits of the, in much request in the East, Isa. i. 8.

Grain formerly separated from the husk, in Palestine, by the feet of the oxen trampling among the sheaves, or by bringing a rough-shod wheel over them, Prov. xx. 26.

Granite, its component parts, Psa. cv. 41.

Grapes, bunches of, grew to an extraordinary size in the promised land, Num. xiii. 23.

Grave the appointed house for the whole human family, a most solemn truth well expressed in several quotations from poets, ancient and modern, 1 Kings ii. 2; Job iii. 19, xxx. 23.

Great fish that swallowed up Jonah could not have been a whale, and why, Jonah i. 17. That it was a shark, not an improbable conjecture, ibid. Strange trifling of ancient and modern commentators relative to this subject, Jonah ii. 10.

Great lights, the sun and moon so called in Scripture, not according to their bulk or solid contents, but from the proportion of light they shed on the earth, Gen. i. 16.

Great sea, a term in Scripture for the Mediterranean, Dan. vii. 4.

Greaves of brass or iron, account of this species of armour among the ancients, 1 Sam. xvii. 6.

Greek cities declared free by the Romans, and the rapture of the inhabitants on the occasion, as related by Livy, Psa. cxxvi. 1.

Greeks, from whom supposed to be descended, Gen. x. 2; Joel iii. 6.

Gregory the Great, account of this Catholic commentator, General Preface, p. 4.

Grief, excessive, its strong effect upon the mental faculty, Lev. x. 3. Remarkable saying of Seneca on this subject, ibid. Passage in the Psalms in which deep-seated grief is surprisingly expressed in the very sound of the words, Psa. lxxxi. 13.

Grinding of corn, manner of doing this in the East, Exod. xi. 5.

Grot between Aleppo and Bir capacious enough, according to Tavernier, to hold near three thousand horse, Isa. ii. 19–21. Maundrell's account of several grots of vast capacity, ibid.

Grotius, (Hugo) or Hugh le Groot, a celebrated commentator upon the whole Scriptures, General Preface, p. 6.

Groves, plantations of, about idol temples, for the purpose of obscene worship, Deut. xvi. 21; Isa. i. 29, 30.

Grounds and Reasons of the Christian Religion, a Deistical work so entitled, arguments of its author purporting to show that the promise of the Messiah is not to be gathered from the seventh chapter of the second book of Samuel, stated and refuted, 2 Sam. vii., in fine.

H.

Habakkuk, some account of this prophet, Hab. i., in principio. His style as a poet, ibid.

Habergeon, or Hauberk, description of the, Exod. xxxix. 43. Probable derivation of the word, Neh. iv. 16.

Hachammah, הַחַמָּה, a rabbinical memorial symbol, Masoretic notes at the end of Deuteronomy.

Hades, image of, sometimes employed in ancient poetry, Isa. v. 13, 14, xiii., in principio. Beautiful personification of, Hos. xiii. 14.

Hafiz, remarkable couplet in this author something similar to a passage in the Psalms, Psa. xxvii. 9.

Hagar, Abram's handmaid, import of her name, Gen. xvi. 1

Hagarites, tribes of Nomade or Scenite Arabs, 1 Chron. v. 10.

Haggai, some account of this prophet, Hag. i., in principio.

Hagiographa, what books of holy writ were known among the Jews by this name, Zech. vii. 7.

Hail, general supposition respecting the mode of its formation, Exod. ix. 18; Job xxxviii. 22.

Hail-storms, account of several in England and elsewhere, Exod. ix. 18; Josh. x. 11.

Haime, (John) a preacher among the Wesleyan Methodists, singular anecdote respecting, 2 Sam. vii., in fine.

Hair, much used in divination among the ancients, and for purposes of superstition among the Greeks, Lev. xix. 27; Num. vi. 18. Tearing the hair a mark of deep affliction and distress, Josh. vii. 6; 1 Sam. iv. 12; Job i. 20; Jer. xvi. 6.

Halimus, a species of plant, where found, Job xxx. 4.

Ham, Dr. Hales' remarks on the political condition of the descendants of, Gen. ix., in fine.

Haman the Agagite, remarks on his offer of paying out of his own private property into the exchequer of the Persian monarch the enormous sum of ten thousand talents of silver, to prevent any deficiency accruing to the revenue in consequence of the execution of the projected massacre of the Jews, Esth. iii. 9.

Hamath, probably the famous city of Emessa, 2 Sam. viii. 9; Amos vi. 2.

Hammond, (Dr. Henry) account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 7.

Hananiah, import of the name, Dan. i. 7.

Hand in the clouds, all the appearances of God thus represented in a very ancient manuscript of the Septuagint, Dan. x. 10.

Hand placed on the head, a mark of deep sorrow occasioned by utter desolation, Jer. ii. 37.

Handmills formerly in use among the ancients, and still used in many parts of the East, Deut. xxiv. 6.
Hands, stretching out of the, and lifting them up to heaven, in frequent use among the ancients, Exod. ix. 29. This practice of antiquity illustrated by quotations from Homer and Virgil, ibid. See also 1 Kings viii. 22.
Handwriting on the wall of Belshazzar's palace, conjecture why it could not be read by the wise men of Babylon, Dan. v. 8. Exhibition of the writing in the ancient Hebrew characters, in which it is thought to have been originally written, Dan. v. 25.
Hanger, origin of this word, Gen. xxvii. 3.
Hanging up by the hand, very probably a mode of punishment in former times, Lam. v. 12.
Hannah, import of the name, 1 Sam. i. 2. Dr. Hales' observations on her prophetic song, 1 Sam. ii. 1. Exhibition of the whole of this hymn in hemistich or poetic lines, ibid.
Hannets, הַנֵּץ, a rabbinical memorial symbol, Masoretic notes at the end of Deuteronomy.
Hanno the Carthaginian, remarkable among the ancients for having sailed round the Cape of Good Hope, Isa. ii. 13–16.
Haphtorah, see Sections of the Law and Prophets.
Haradah, the twentieth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, Num. xxxiii. 24.
Hardening of Pharaoh's heart, inquiry into the import of this phrase, Exod. iv. 21. When properly understood, gives not the least countenance to the doctrine of unconditional election and reprobation, ibid. Exod. ix. 15, et in fine.
Hardicanute, quotation from the old ballad of, relative to predatory excursions, Job v., in fine.
Hardy, publisher of a Greek Testament with notes, General Preface, p. 7.
Hareth, an eminent Arabian poet, Psa. lx., in principio.
Harlot, conjectures respecting the origin of this word, Gen. xxxiv. 31.
Harmer, (Rev. Mr.) author of a very useful work, entitled "Observations on various Passages of Scripture," General Preface, p. 9.
Harpocrates, the god of silence, represented with his finger compressing his upper lip, Job xxi. 5.
Hart, reason assigned by Ælian, Appian, Nicander, and Pliny, why this animal more than any other thirsts for the waters, Psa. xlii., in fine. Ridiculous assertion of several of the primitive fathers relative to this animal, ibid.
Harvest-field, Homer's description of the labours of a, as represented by Vulcan on one compartment of the shield which he made for Achilles, Ruth ii. 5.
Harvest-home, probable origin of this custom, Exod. xxii. 29.
Hashem, הַשֵּׁם, possibly the name of some Egyptian deity, Lev. xxiv. 10.
Hashmonah, the twenty-fifth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, conjecture respecting, Num. xxxiii. 29.
Hassan Sabat, anecdote respecting, Gen. xxxiv. 24.
Hawk, the flight of this bird wonderfully swift, Job xxxix. 26. Instances produced, ibid. From the swiftness of this bird the Egyptians, in their hieroglyphics, made it the emblem of the wind, ibid.
Hayemim, הָרְמִים, rendered mules, numerous conjectures respecting its import, Gen. xxxvi. 24.
Hazeroth, the thirteenth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, where situated, according to Dr. Shaw, Num. xxxiii. 17.
Head, covering of the, the attitude not only of a mourner, but of a culprit, 2 Sam. xv. 30.
Head, lifting up of the, inquiry into the import of this phrase, Gen. xl. 20.
Head, putting dust upon the, a mark of deep affliction and distress, Josh. vii. 6.
Heathen rites, enumeration of, which greatly resemble those contained in the Jewish worship, Exod. xxv., in fine; xxvii., in fine.
Hebrew manuscripts, account of, formerly in the possession of the Rev. Cornelius Schulting, a Protestant minister at Amsterdam, Isa. lxvi., in fine.
Hebrew moneys, table of the, Exod. xxxviii. 24.
Hebrews, whence these people are supposed to have derived their name, Gen. x. 21. Highly probable that the language of this people was the only one spoken in the earth till the time of Peleg, ibid.
Hebron, conjecture why so named, Josh. xiv. 15, xx. 7
Hegiage, remarkable harangue of this prince to his people, Job xxxiv., in fine. Singular anecdote respecting, as related by Jami in his Baharistan, ibid.
Helen compared by Theocritus to a horse in a Thessalian chariot, Song i. 9.
Hell, whence derived, and what it now imports, 1 Sam. ii. 6. Mohammed's description of hell, Psa. xi. 6.
Hennah, Hasselquist's description of this plant, Deut. xxi. 12. How the leaves of this plant are prepared by the Indians for the purpose of staining with a beautiful reddish yellow the nails of their fingers and toes, and other parts of their bodies, ibid.
Henry, (Dr.) his account of the English dress in the reign of Edward III., Lev. xix. 19.
Henry, (Rev. Matthew) author of a very extensive and popular commentary on the whole Scriptures, General Preface, p. 8.
Heroldry, whence it probably originated, Dan. viii. 4.
Herbert, advice of, respecting the spirit in which religious disputation should be always conducted, Job xx., in fine.
Herculaneum and Pompeii, observations on the ruins of, 2 Chron. xxxiv. 12.
Hercules, statue of, mentioned by Cicero as having its chin and lips considerably worn by the frequent kissing of its worshippers, 1 Kings xix. 18.
Hercules and Samson, parallel between, traced by M. de Lavaur, Judg. xvi., in fine.
Herodotus, his account of the mode of embalming among the Egyptians, Gen. l. 2. His description of the principal annual feast held by the Egyptians in honour of Diana, Exod. x. 9. In what the dress of the Babylonians consisted, according to this writer, Dan. iii. 21.
Heroopolis, thought to be the same with Goshen, Gen. xlvi. 28.
Herschel, see Georgium Sidus.
Hertham or Herthum, an object of idolatrous worship among our Saxon ancestors, Exod. xxv., in fine. Whence the name of this idol is plainly derived, ibid.
Hewers of wood and drawers of water, Harmer's observations on the condemnation of the Gibeonites to this employment, Josh. ix. 23. In what the disgrace of it consisted, ibid.
Hhadesi, a people of Arabia, living in cities, Isa. xlii. 11.
Hidden chambers of the south, a phrase supposed to allude to those constellations around the antarctic pole which never appear above the horizon of Arabia, Job xxiii. 9.
Hiel the Bethelite, thoughts on his rebuilding of Jericho, 1 Kings xvi. 34.
Hieroglyphics of Scripture, explanation of the, Introduction to Isaiah.
Highlanders, Sir Walter Scott's account of their superstitious modes of inquiring into futurity, Isa. lxv. 3.
High place of Isaac, where situated, Amos vii. 9. Demolished by Josiah, 2 Kings xxiii. 8; Amos vii. 9.
High priest, consecration of the, among the Romans, bore a considerable resemblance to the consecration of the Jewish high priest, Lev. viii. 23. A long quotation from Aurelius Prudentius in attestation of this circumstance, ibid.
Highwayman, singular case of the conversion of a, Job xxiv., in fine.
Hin, some account of this Hebrew measure of capacity, Exod. xvi. 16, xxix. 40.
Hind, natural history of the, Job xxxix. 1–4. Remarkable longevity attributed to some individuals, Job xxxix. 1.
Hindoos, remarkable law among these people respecting marriage, Gen. xxix. 26.
Hinnom, valley of the son of, where situated, Josh. xv. 8. Appears to have been the receptacle of all the filth and impurities which were carried out of Jerusalem, ibid. Continual fires are supposed to have been kept up in this valley to consume those impurities, and prevent infection, ibid.; and see 2 Kings xxiii. 10. The rites of Moloch are said to have been performed in this valley, 2 Kings xxiii. 10; Isa. xxx. 33, lxvi. 24.
Hippopotamus, or river horse, natural history of the, Job xl. 15. Supposed by some to be the behemoth of Scripture, ibid.

Hitopodesa, Sir William Jones's account of the, Judg. ix., in fine.
Hittites, where these people were situated, Josh. iii. 10.
Hivites, where these people were situated, Josh. iii. 10.
Hoar-frost, phenomena of the, Job xxxviii. 29. Their causes not yet well ascertained, ibid.
Holiness unto the Lord, observations on this inscription upon the high priest's forehead, Exod. xxviii. 36.
Holinshed's account of the condition of the English and French armies previous to the battle of Agincourt, Esth. iii. 7.
Holocaust, account of the, Lev. i. 8.
Homage, Eastern modes of, Isa. xlix. 23, li. 23.
Homer, some account of this Hebrew measure of capacity, Exod. xvi. 16. In what it differed from the omer, ibid. Lev. xxvii. 16.
Homer, cities which claimed the honour of giving birth to this celebrated Greek poet, Preface to Job.
Honey-comb, flavour of the honey in the, much finer than after it has been expressed from it, and exposed to the action of the air, Prov. xxiv. 13.
Hoop-net, among the Goths, what, Job xix. 6.
Hor, the thirty-third station of the Israelites in the wilderness, remarkable for the death of Aaron, Num. xxxiii. 37.
Horace, sentiment of, respecting the training up of children, not unlike that celebrated one of Solomon, Prov. xxii. 6. His description of the commonwealth of Rome under the emblem of a beautiful ship, Ezek. xxvii. 4.
Horatius Caius, daughters of, remarkable for having six fingers on each hand, 2 Sam. xxi. 20.
Hor-hagidgad, the twenty-eighth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, conjecture why so named, Num. xxxiii. 32.
Horites, where this ancient people resided, Isa. ii. 19–21.
Horn, its symbolical import, Deut. xxxiii. 17; 1 Sam. ii. 1; Job xvi. 15; Psa. lxxv. 10; Lam. ii. 3; Dan. vii. 7; Amos vi. 13. Frequently worn on crowns and helmets, Job xvi. 15. Bruce's description of that worn by the Abyssinian chiefs, ibid.
Horne, (Rev. Dr.) author of an excellent commentary on the Psalms, General Preface, p. 10.
Hornet, natural history of the, Exod. xxiii. 28.
Horse, among the ancient Asiatics used only for war, Prov. xxi. 31. Because of his swiftness and utility, formerly dedicated to the sun, 2 Kings xxiii. 11. Extract from the Guardian of 1713, containing a critique on the description of the horse in the book of Job compared with similar descriptions in Homer and Virgil, Job xxxix. 19. Why the horse is one of the most timid of animals, Job xxxix. 20. How brought to bear the din of arms and the thundering cannon, ibid. Price of a horse in the time of Solomon, 2 Chron. i. 17.
Hosea, time of his prophesying, and a sketch of his life, Introduction to Hosea, and chap. i., in principio.
Host of God, a Hebraism for an exceedingly numerous army, 1 Chron. xii. 22.
Hostilities, commencement of, among the ancients signified by casting into the country to be invaded a dart, spear, or arrow, 2 Kings xiii. 17.
Houbigont, some account of this very celebrated Hebrew critic, Gen. Preface, p. 6. His table of the booty taken by the Israelites from the Midianites, with its division among the soldiers and people, and the proportion given by each to the Lord and to the Levites, Num. xxxi. 32.
Hours, Jewish day divided into, Exod. xii. 6.
House, warming the, a custom observed in some parts of England, Deut. xx. 5.
Houses in the East, how generally constructed, Deut. xxii. 8; Josh. ii. 6; 1 Sam. ix. 25; Isa. xxii. 1.
Houses of the soul, what meant by this expression, Isa. iii. 20.
Hugo de Sancto Claro, or Hugo Cardinalis, author of the division of the books of the Holy Scriptures into chapters, Introduction to Ezra.
Huldah, the prophetess, Dr Priestley's judicious remark respecting her Divine call, 2 Kings xxii. 14.
Human body, thoughts on the wonderful construction of the, Psa. cxxxix. 14–16.
Human events, thoughts on the contingency of, Hos. xiv. 1.
Human friendship, striking view of the fickleness of, as given by Mr. Heath, Job xlii. 11.
Human knowledge, thoughts on the great imperfection of, even in the wisest men, Job iv., in fine.
Human victims offered, on extraordinary occasions, by almost all nations to their gods, Deut. xii. 31; 2 Kings iii. 27. Method by which the rabbins account for the horrible sacrifice of the eldest son of the king of Moab in the time of Elisha, 2 Kings iii. 27.
Hunger, particular effects of, upon the animal system, Psa cix. 24.
Hunter, (Dr.) his theory respecting the vitality of the blood, Lev. xvii. 11.
Hunting, various arts and methods practised in, Job xviii. 9; Isa. xxiv. 17, 18. Account of a treatise on, by Tuberville, Psa. xvii., in fine.
Husband, its derivation and original import, Gen ix. 20.
Hycsos, or king-shepherds, account of the, Gen. xlii. 32, xlvi. 34.
Hydrogen, a constituent part of water, Gen. vii. 11, viii. 1; Job xxxviii. 26; Jer. x. 13.
Hydrus, terrible effects with which the bite of this serpent is accompanied, Num. xxi. 6.
Hygeia, a certain mixture of flour mingled with oil and wine, used as a charm against sickness, Lev. ii. 1.
Hykes, among the Arabs, what, Exod. xx. 34, xxii. 26; Judg. xiv. 12.
Hypocrite, description of the, in Scripture sense of the term, Job. viii. 13, xxxvi. 13.
Hyppolitus, account of this commentator of the third century, General Preface, p. 4.
Hyssop, its description and medicinal properties, Exod. xii. 22.

I.

Iberians, conjecture concerning the origin of this people, Gen. x. 2.
Ibex, or mountain goat, natural history of the, Job xxxix. 1.
Ice, supposed to be the natural state of water, Job xxxvii. 29. Specific gravity of ice, ibid. To what the rarefaction of ice is thought to be owing, ibid.
Ichnograph of the temple, with elevations, sections, and specifications, of every part, given by David to Solomon, 1 Chron. xxviii. 11.
Icknild or Ricknild-street, where situated, Job xxiii. 11.
Iddo the seer, author of a history of the reign of Solomon, the whole of which work is lost, except some slight fragments preserved in the books of Kings and Chronicles, 1 Kings xi. 41.
Idolatrous practices among the Jews, Isa. lxv. 3, 4, 11.
Idolatry, origin of, as stated by Maimonides, Gen. iv. 26. The sacred writers generally large and eloquent upon the subject of idolatry, treating it with great severity, and setting forth its absurdity in the strongest light, Isa. xliv. 12. Citations from Horace and Juvenal, in which idolatry is very severely ridiculed, Psa. cxv. 4; Isa. xliv. 12.
Idyl, definition of the, Introduction to Solomon's Song, p. 2.
Ἱεροδοῦλοι γυναικες, who, Gen. xxxviii. 21.
Ije-abarim, the thirty-seventh station of the Israelites in the wilderness, why probably so named, Num. xxxii. 44.
Iliad of Homer, what verse in the, in the opinion of Alexander the Great, the most correct in sentiment, 1 Sam. ix. 16. Quotation of a line in this poem in which the rolling up of the waves into a swell, and the break of the top of the swell, and its dash upon the shore, are surprisingly represented, Psa. xlii. 7. Very remarkable passage on the subject of prayer, Psa. lxxxviii. 2. Citation of a passage in which the ancient pagan notion relative to the cause of good and evil is exhibited, Isa. li. 21.
Illuminated manuscripts, account of, Psa. lx., in principio.
Image of God, what is meant by man being made in this similitude, Gen. i. 26.
Image of jealousy, various conjectures concerning the, Ezek. viii. 3.
Imagery of the prophets, explanation of the, Introduction to Isaiah.
Images, trial by, a species of ordeal among the Hindoos, Num. v., in fine.
Images of the destroyer, or of the things on which the plague particularly rested, were anciently made of gold, silver, ivory, wax, clay, &c., under certain configurations of the heavens, and set up in some appointed place, that the evils thus represented might be driven away, 1 Sam. vi., in fine.

Images of the gods, among rude people made of wood, Judg. vi. 26. Account of several ancient Egyptian images of Isis, Osiris, Anubis, &c., in the author's possession, Ezek. i. 7.

Immanuel, a name given to the Messiah, Isa. vii. 15.

Impaling, horrible punishment of, described, Esth. ii. 23.

Imprecation, form of, used by the Romans and Albans in their solemn leagues, Gen. xv. 10.

Impressions of various kinds indelibly made on the arms, breast, and other parts, by the inhabitants of the East, Cant. viii. 6.

Imreth, אמרת, its derivation and import, Lev. xxvi. 15. Distinction between אמרת imreth or imrath, and דבר dabar, both sometimes indifferently rendered word in our version, Psa. cxix., in principio.

Incantations, forms of, which were used to induce the tutelary gods to forsake the cities, &c., over which they were reputed to preside, and to devote cities and whole armies to destruction, Num. xxii. 6.

Incense, manner of burning, among the Jews, Lev. x. 1.

Indago, or Snare, description of the, as made by the ancients, Isa. xxiv. 17, 18.

In exitu Israel, Anglo-Saxon version of this Psalm at full length, Psa. cxiv., in fine.

Infant, reflections on the manner in which it extracts the milk from the breast of its mother, Psa. viii. 2.

Infernum Poeticum of the Hebrews, Isa. xiii., in principio.

Inhabitants, probable number of, in the world at the time of Abel's murder, Gen. iv. 15.

Inn, no such place of entertainment in the desert of Arabia, Gen. xlii. 27; Jer. ix. 2. The Hebrew word so translated, what it imports, ibid.

Inscriptions, Eastern, frequently in relievo, Deut. xxviii. 2. Account of one of these inscriptions in the author's possession, ibid. Remarkable inscription which Sesostris caused to be put on all the temples which he built in Egypt, 1 Kings ix. 21.

Insurrection in England, chiefly under the direction of Wat Tyler, history of the, Num. xxv. 8.

Interment, Asiatic mode of, for princes, saints, and nobles, Job xxi. 33.

Invested with an office, origin of this phrase, Exod. xxix. 5; Num. xx. 26.

Investigate, two derivations of this word, Psa. lxiv. 6. Distinction between investigate and ransack, ibid.

Ionians of Asia Minor, whence these people had their origin, Gen. x. 2.

Iphigenia, sacrifice of, supposed by M. De Lavaur and others to be a fable founded on the Scripture history of Jephthah's daughter, Judg. xi., in fine. Parallel between Jephthah and Iphigenia, as drawn up by M. De Lavaur, ibid.

Ireland not infested with any venomous creature, 1 Sam. vi., in fine. Reason given by superstition for this fact, ibid.

Iron, the ancient Gauls had no method of hardening this metal, Psa. lxxxix. 43.

Iron, red hot, trial by, a species of ordeal among the ancient Greeks and modern Hindoos, Num. v., in fine.

Iron age, degeneracy of man in the, as described by a heathen poet, Job xxviii. 11.

Irony, instance of, quoted from Ovid, Job ii. 9.

Isaac, why so named, Gen. xvii. 17. Character of this patriarch, Gen. xxxv., in fine.

Isaiah, Vitringa's observations on the work of this prophet, Introduction to Isaiah. Calmet's division of the subjects contained in Isaiah, Introduction to Isaiah.

Ish, איש, and Ishah, אשה, observations on these words, Gen. ii. 23. Very remarkable distinction between אדם Adam, and איש ish, which are rendered man in our version, Psa. lxii. 9. In what they both differ from אנוש enosh, another word for man in the Hebrew, ibid.

Ish debarim, איש דברים, a man of words, import of this Hebrew periphrasis, Exod. iv. 10.

Ishmael, its derivation and import, Gen. xvi. 11.

Isis, an Egyptian goddess of great celebrity, Exod. xii., in fine. Worshipped under the form of a heifer, Num. xix. 2; Jer. xlvi. 20. The priests of this idol shave their heads close to the skin, Ezek. xliv. 20.

Isles of the Gentiles, very generally supposed to be a Hebrew periphrasis for Europe, Gen. x. 5.

Ismed, a powder with which the women of Barbary blacken the middle of their eyelids, 2 Kings ix. 30. Their method of doing it, as described by Russel, ibid.

Israel, why the patriarch Jacob was so named, Gen. xxxii. 28. This term often used by Ezekiel for the Jews, exclusively of the TEN tribes carried into captivity by Shalmaneser, Ezek. vi. 2.

Israelites, observations on the travels of these people through the wilderness, Exod. xl., in fine. Scheuchzer's observations and calculations relative to the prodigious multiplication of the children of Israel in Egypt, Num. i. 46. Their order of marching in the wilderness, Num. x. 14.

Israelitish camp in the wilderness, Scheuchzer's plan of the, with a diagram, Num. ii., in fine.

Issachar, why so named, Gen. xxx. 18.

Italian proverb, in which the falsity diffused through the unregenerate nature of man is finely expressed, Psa. cxvi. 11.

Italy, Mezeray's account of a very dreadful storm of hail in, accompanied with a horrible darkness, Exod. ix. 18.

Itinerant ministry, remarkable account of the, established by Jehoshaphat for the diffusion of the worship of God throughout his kingdom, 2 Chron. xvii. 7–9. Observations on a similar itinerant system established in these kingdoms by the late Rev. John Wesley, A. M., ibid.

Itureans, from whom descended, Gen. xxv. 14.

Ivory house, what probably meant by this expression, Amos iii. 15.

J.

Jabbok, from whom this brook took its name, according to Calmet, Gen. xxv. 2.

Jabesh-gilead, remarks of a literary friend upon the inhabitants of this place taking the bodies of Saul and his sons from the wall of Beth-shan, and burning them in Jabesh, 1 Chron. x., in fine.

Jabez, great discordances in the versions in their rendering of the sacred text relative to this man, 1 Chron. iv. 9. Observations on the prayer of Jabez, 1 Chron. iv., in fine.

Jackal or Shiagal, howlings of the, by night most lamentable, Mic. i. 8. Hasselquist's account of this animal, Isa. i. 8.

Jacob, why so named, Gen. xxv. 26. Dr. Kennicott's remarks relative to the time spent by this patriarch in the service of his father-in-law Laban in Mesopotamia, Gen. xxxi., in fine. Character of this patriarch, Gen. xlix., in fine.

Jaddua, stratagem of, by which Jerusalem was prevented from being destroyed by Alexander, Eccles. ix. 14; Zech. ix. 8.

Jael, thoughts on her conduct towards Sisera, Judg. iv., in fine.

Jah, יה, a name of God, inquiry into its import, Exod. xv. 2.

Jamaica, remarkable phenomena occasioned by an earthquake in this island, Psa. xviii. 15.

Jami Jemsheed or The Cup of Jemsheed, traditions concerning, Gen. xliv. 5.

Jao, Ιαω, evidently a corruption of Jehovah, frequent on Egyptian monuments, Exod. iii. 15.

Japheth, remarkable coincidence between the name of this son of Noah and the political condition of his posterity, Gen. ix., in fine. Japheth supposed to have been the same with the Japetus of the Greeks, Gen. x. 2.

Jarchi or Isaaki, (Rabbi Solomon) account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 2.

Jarmain or Mishnical Doctors, some account of the, Introduction to Ezra.

Jasher, book of, possibly the same with the book of the wars of the Lord mentioned by Moses, Num. xxi. 14.

Jasper, some account of this precious stone, Exod. xxviii. 17.

Java, eldest son of the emperor of, who was reigning in 1648, remarkable for having six fingers on each hand, and six toes on each foot, 2 Sam. xxi. 20.

Jayadeva, Songs of, given at full length. See Song of Solomon, in fine.

Jebusites, the ancient inhabitants of Jerusalem, Josh. iii. 10.

Jehoram, king of Judah, remarks on the writing said to have been sent to him from Elijah the prophet, 2 Chron. xxi. 12.

Jehovah, observations upon this appellative of the Divine Being, Exod. vi. 3, ix, 1, xxxiv. 6.
Jehu, inquiry into the import of the original words rendered top of the stairs, where Jehu was proclaimed king, 2 Kings ix. 13. Character of this prince, 2 Kings x., in fine.
Jenkins, (Henry) his great age, Job xiv. 5; Psa. xc., in fine.
Jeopardy, a word of French origin, derived from the exclamation of a disappointed gamester, Judg. v. 18.
Jephthah, vow of, inquiry into the meaning of the Hebrew text respecting the, Judg. xi. 31, et in fine.
Jeremiah, some account of this prophet, Introduction to Jeremiah. His character as a writer, ibid. Chronological tables of his prophecies, as drawn up by Drs. Blayney and Dahler, ibid. Remarks on a supposed interpolation in the tenth chapter of this prophet, Jer. x. 11.
Jericho, observations on the curse pronounced against this city by Joshua, Josh. vi. 26, and on its rebuilding by Hiel, 1 Kings xvi. 34.
Jeroboam I., king of Israel, his invention of a political religion, something similar to that contained in the law of Moses, 1 Kings xii. 28–33.
Jerome, account of this celebrated commentator, General Preface, p. 4.
Jerusalem, conjecture concerning the derivation of this name, Josh. x. 1. Surrounded by hills and mountains, Psa. cxxv. 2.
Jeshurun, its derivation and import, Deut. xxxii. 15; Isa. xliv. 2. Conjecture of Grotius respecting it, Isa. xliv. 2.
Jether the Ishmaelite, why so named, according to the Targum, 1 Chron. ii. 17.
Jew, remarkable saying of a, to the author, Zeph. iii. 13.
Jewels of the feet, nostrils, &c., Isa. ii. 17.
Jewish rolls, description of the, Jer. xxxvi. 2.
Jews, particular description of their very gross idolatries previously to the Babylonish captivity, Ezek. viii., passim. Dr. Blayney's observations on the six deportations of these people in the reign of Nebuchadnezzar, Jer. lii. 28–30. Circumstantial history of the Jews from the taking of Jerusalem by the Babylonians to their retreat into Egypt, Jer. xl.–xliv. Great favour shown to the Jews by Alexander and the Ptolemies, Isa. xix., in principio. This the means in the hand of God of diffusing the knowledge of the true God among heathen nations, and preparing them for the reception of Christianity, Isa. xxiv. 14. Citations from Juvenal and Seneca to show that the Jews were despised by the heathens for observing the Sabbath, Lam. i. 7. Remarkable custom among the ancient Jews in behalf of one capitally convicted, as related in the Mishna and the Gemara of Babylon, Isa. liii. 8. Prophetic penitential confession and supplication of the Israelites in their present state of dispersion, Isa. lxiii. 7, &c. Brief sketch of the history of the Jews from the Babylonish captivity as given by Dr. Taylor, Esth x., in fine. Bp. Newton's observations on their wonderful preservation as a distinct people for so many ages, Jer. xlvi., in fine.
Jezebel, reflections on the very tragical end of this wicked woman, 2 Kings ix. 37.
Jezreel, import of the name, Hos. i. 4.
Jichta or Equus hemionus, natural history of the, Job xxxix. 5.
Joachan ben Zachai, parable of this rabbi very similar to that of our Lord relative to the wise and foolish virgins, Isa lxv. 11.
Joash, curious circumstance mentioned by the Targum, relative to the coronation of, 2 Chron. xxiii. 21.
Job, reasons advanced to show that this man lived posterior to the promulgation of the law, Job i., in fine, ix., in fine. Sketch of his character, Job xlii., in fine.
Job, book of, its character, and various opinions respecting the writer. See the Preface, and chap. xlii., in fine. Very remarkable prophecy in this book relative to the redemption of the world by Jesus Christ, and the general resurrection, Job xix. 25, et in fine.
Jonah, some account of this prophet, Introduction to Jonah. Fable of Laomedon, king of Troy, and his daughter Hesione, supposed to be founded upon the story of Jonah being swallowed by a great fish, ibid.
Jonathan ben Uzziel's curious reason for the command given by Pharaoh to the Egyptian women to destroy all the male children of the Hebrews, Exod. i. 16.
Joppa, where situated, Jonah i. 3.
Jordan, some account of this celebrated river of Israel, Num. xxxiv. 12. Description of its source as given by Josephus, Josh. i. 2. When it overflows its banks, and the reason assigned, Josh. iii. 15.
Joseph, why so named, Gen. xxx. 24. Extravagant notions of the Mohammedans with respect to the comeliness of this patriarch, Gen. xxxix. 7, xlix. 22. Dr. Delaney's remarks on Joseph's bowing himself, with his face to the earth before his dying father, Gen. xlviii. The Doctor's strong encomium of Joseph on this account very reprehensible, ibid. Strictures on the moral and political conduct of Joseph, Gen. l., in fine. History of this patriarch by Justin, the Roman historian, ibid.
Josephus, a celebrated Jewish historian and commentator, account of, General Preface, p. 2.
Joshua, brief sketch of his character, Josh. xxiv., in fine. See also the Preface to Joshua.
Josiah, king of Judah, very remarkable prophecy concerning, 1 Kings xiii. 2, 3.
Jotbathah, the twenty-ninth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, Num. xxxiii. 33.
Jotham, parable of, the oldest and best fable or apologue in the world, Judg. ix. 8. Its most excellent moral pointed out, and illustrated by a quotation from Shakspeare, Judg. ix. 14.
Jove, or Jupiter, a corruption of Jehovah, Exod. iii. 15.
Jubilate Deo, a Psalm which has long made a part of the public worship of the established church, Psa. c., in fine. The Anglo-Saxon and Anglo-Scottish versions of this Divine ode given at full length, ibid.
Jubilee, institution of the year of, Lev. xxv. 8, &c. Conjecture relative to the derivation of the word jubilee, Lev. xxv. 11. Typical import of this institution, according to Parkhurst, ibid. Calmet's thoughts on the very great advantages which the Jewish people derived from this Divine ordinance, Lev. xxv., in fine.
Judah, why so named, Gen. xxix. 35. Illustrious prophecy concerning the Messiah, who was to spring from this patriarch, Gen. xlix. 8–12.
Judah, kingdom of, its north and south boundaries, 2 Chron. xix. 4.
Judas, whence this Asmonean prince is said to have obtained his surname of Maccabeus, Exod. xv. 11.
Judea, Harmer's observations on the fertility of the land of, Deut. viii. 8. Judea sometimes called The Mountain, and why, Isa. v. 1.
Judges, book of, very uncertain by whom written, Preface to Judges. Chronological table of this book, according to Archbishop Usher, ibid. Chronology of this book, according to Sir John Marsham, ibid.
Judgment, great variety of acceptations of the Hebrew word so translated, Isa. xlii. 1.
Juggernaut, a Hindoo temple, where human victims are frequently offered to Cali, a goddess of the Hindoos, Deut. xii. 31.
Juju, a serpent-god worshipped by the inhabitants of Bonny in Africa, Deut. xx. 5; to whom they dedicate an apartment of their dwellings, ibid.
Julius Cæsar, his letter to the Roman senate, communicating the total defeat of Pharnaces, king of Pontus, 1 Sam. iv. 17. Great mourning for the death of Julius Cæsar as described by Virgil, Jonah iii. 8.
Juniper, roots of, formerly used for food among the Goths, according to the testimony of one of their prelates, Job xxx. 4. Charcoal made of this wood the most durable of all others, ibid.
Juno, distance from the sun and earth, diameter, and relative surface and volume, of this primary planet, Gen. i. 1.
Juno, worshipped under the form of a heifer by the ancient Egyptians, Exod. viii. 26.
Jupiter, periodic and sidereal revolutions, mean distance from the sun, perigeal and apogeal distances, diameter in English miles, relative volume, time of rotation, inclination of axis to orbit, mass or quantity of matter, and mean hourly orbitical motion, of this primary planet, Gen. i. 1.
Jupiter, worshipped by the ancient Egyptians under the form of a ram, Exod. viii. 26. The infant Jupiter, according to Callimachus, tenderly nursed with goat's milk and honey, Isa. vii. 15.

Jupiter and Semele, fable of, whence it originated, Exod. xxxiii. 20.
Jupiter Brontes, or Jupiter Keraunos, always represented with forked or zigzag lightnings in his hand, Hab. iii. 4.
Juror, among the Jews, lifted up his right hand to heaven, Ezek. xx. 5.
Justification by faith, without any merit of works, shown to be a doctrine of Scripture, Gen. xv. 6, xxviii. 4, xlviii. 14; Job ix. 3; Mic. vi. 8.
Justus, bishop of Orgelitanum, account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 4.
Iuvenal, excellent advice of, with respect to putting confidence in the Divinity, Psa. xxxvii. 7. Remarkable passages from this Roman poet, in which is described the miserable condition of the Jews after the destruction of their polity by the Romans, Psa. cix. 11.

K.

Kab, some account of this Hebrew measure of capacity, Exod. xvi. 16; 2 Kings vi. 25.
Kadim, or the east wind, a very stormy wind in the Levant, supposed to be the same with that called by the Greeks Euroclydon, Job xv. 2.
Karkor, קַרְקֹר, rendered in our version as the name of a place, signifies more probably rest, Judg. viii. 10.
Kasheth, or The Song of the Bow, exquisite excellences of the, pointed out, 2 Sam. i., in fine. Dr. Kennicott's Latin version of this song, ibid.
Kadesh, one of the cities of refuge, import of the name, Josh. xx. 7.
Kedeshah, קְדֵשָׁה, rendered harlot in our version, inquiry into its precise import, Gen. xxxviii. 21.
Keeumras, the first king of the Peeshdadian dynasty, according to the Persian historians, Gen. xiv. 1. Possibly the same with the Chedorlaomer of Scripture, ibid.
Kehelathah, the eighteenth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, Num. xxxiii. 22.
Keimah, כִּימָה, rendered the Pleiades, of very uncertain import, Job ix., in fine.
Kennicott, (Dr.) his account of the great differences in the Hebrew and Samaritan copies with respect to the history of the first seven Egyptian plagues, Exod. xi., in fine. Observations of this great Biblical critic upon the four hundred and thirty years' sojourning of the children of Israel, Exod. xii. 40. His removal of some difficulties in the book of Numbers, chap. xxi., in fine. Reasons advanced by him to show that from the twelfth to the thirty-first verse (both inclusive) of the seventeenth chapter of the first book of Samuel is an interpolation of some rabbin, 1 Sam. xvii., in fine. His translation of that portion of the sacred history which gives an account of David's taking from the Jebusites the strong hold of Zion, 2 Sam. v. 6–8. His remarks upon the catalogue of David's mighty men of valour, as given in two different portions of Scripture, 1 Chron. xi. 11. His reasons for the supposition that the first fourteen verses of the fortieth chapter of Job are transposed, Job xl., in fine.
Kepler, curious notion of, relative to the animation of the whole material universe, Neh. ix. 6.
Kerchief, derivation and import of this word, Ezek. xiii. 18.
Kermes oak, a shrub growing in Provence and Languedoc, why so named, Isa. i. 18.
Kermez, or summer fig, some account of the, by Dr. Shaw, Isa. xxviii. 4.
Kernaw, the ancient name for Cornwall, Isa. v. 1. Its import in the ancient British and Phœnician languages, ibid.
Kerub, כְּרוּב or כְּרוֹב, translated eherub, derivation and import of the word, Gen. iii. 24.
Kesil, כְּסִיל, rendered Orion, of very uncertain import, Job ix., in fine.
Kesitah, a word of doubtful signification, Gen. xxxiii. 19.
Kethem, כֶּתֶם, its derivation and import, Job xxviii. 16.
Kethubim, same as Hagiographa, see Zech. vii. 7.
Kets, קֵץ, beautiful paronomasia on this word, Ezek. vii. 6.
Hakets, הַקֵּץ, the end, personified, ibid.
Keys of the ancients, description of the, Isa. xxii. 2. When borne on the shoulder, a mark of office, ibid.
Khondemir's fabulous relation respecting Job, Preface to Job.
Khosroo, a verse in this Persian poet very similar to a passage in Job. See Job xiv. 10. Citation of a very beautiful passage, in which the poet deplores the loss of all his friends, Psa. lxxxviii. 18.
Kibroth-hattaavah, the twelfth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, some account of, Num. xxxiii. 16.
Kidneys of wheat, inquiry into the meaning of this phrase, Deut. xxxii. 14.
Kikayon, קִיקָיוֹן, rendered gourd, probably the ricinus, or palma Christi, Jonah iv. 6.
Kimchi, (Rabbi David) account of this comentatator, General Preface, p. 3.
King, manner of the, which God commanded Samuel to show to the Israelites, Puffendorf's excellent observations concerning the, 1 Sam. viii. 9.
King can do no wrong, on what ground this political maxim in our laws is formed, 2 Sam. xix. 43.
King of terrors, an epithet given to death (either literally or substantially) by the ancient Greeks and Romans, Job xviii. 14. The words so rendered in the book of Job shown not to contain the sense of the original, ibid.
King's mowings, what to be understood by this expression, Amos vii. 1.
Kings, books of the, this portion of holy writ generally supposed to have been compiled by Ezra, Preface to 1 Kings.
Kings, folly of, to have foreigners for their valets and most confidential servants, 2 Chron. xxiv. 26.
Kings of Israel, how the ceremonies of their proclamation and anointing were probably performed, 1 Kings i. 35.
Kings of Israel and Judah, years of the reigns of the, synchronically arranged, from the commencement of the reigns of Rehoboam and Jeroboam to the destruction of the kingdom of Israel by Shalmaneser, 2 Chron., in fine
Kinnor, כִּנּוֹר, rendered harp, what it imports, Gen. iv. 21; 1 Sam. x. 5; Job xxi. 12; Psa. lxxxi. 2. The testudo, or lyre with three strings, according to Calmet, Psa. xxxiii. 2.
Kir, thought to be the same with the country of Cyrene, Amos i. 5.
Kir-haraseth, the royal city of the Moabites, 2 Kings iii. 25; Isa. xvi. 7, 11.
Kirjoth-orba, or City of the Four, conjectures why so named, Gen. xxiii. 2; Josh. xv. 15.
Kishon, some account of this brook, Judg. iv. 6.
Kissing the beard, the neck, and the shoulders, in use among the Asiatics to the present day, Gen. xlv. 14.
Kissing the hand often practised by idolaters in honour of their divinities, 1 Kings xix. 18. How this ceremony was performed, ibid. Kissing the hand shown to be derived from and synonomous with adoration, ibid.
Knave, ancient and modern imports of this word, Psa. lxxxvi. 16, cxiii. 1.
Kneading troughs of the Arabs, description of the, Exod. xii. 34.
Kneeling ever considered to be the proper posture of supplication, Exod. ix. 29; 1 Kings viii. 22. If the person to whom the supplication was addressed was within reach, the supplicant caught him by the knees, ibid.
Knight, great stature of two brothers of this name, who were born in the same township with the author, 1 Sam. xvii., in fine.
Knives of rock, stone, or flint, common among the ancients, Josh. v. 2.
Koheleth, derivation and import of this word, Eccles. i. 1.
Korah and his company, probable allusion in the book of Job to the destruction of, Job xx. 26, 27, 28.
Koran, for what excellences it possesses it is principally indebted to the sacred Scriptures, Exod. xx., in fine; Num. iii. 1; Deut. xxxiv., in fine. The Mohammedans never write the Koran upon vellum or skin of any kind, Ezek. xliv. 17. Copies of the Koran frequently highly illuminated, Psa. lx., in principio. Citation of a beautiful passage from the Koran, which is said to have been the means of converting Labid, an Arabian poet, to Mohammedanism, Isa. viii. 21.
Korban, import of this word, Lev. i. 2.
Κρασπηδον, a term importing rather the fringe, than the hem of a Jewish garment, Num. xvi. 38.
Krebsius, (Jo Tobias) an eminent Biblical critic, General Preface, p. 12.

Kumund, a sort of running loop among the Persians, for what purpose employed, Job xix. 6.
Kurtuk Dumnik, Frazer's account of the, Judg. ix., in fine.
Kypke, a great Biblical critic, General Preface, p. 12.

L.

Lachrymatories or Urnæ Lachrymales, small vials so named, into which it was customary among the ancient Greeks and Romans to put the tears shed for the death of any person, and offer them upon the tomb of the deceased, Psa. lvi. 8. Of what materials these lachrymatories were constructed, ibid. Account of one in the author's possession, ibid.
Lad, a word supposed to be of Hebrew origin, Gen. xxxvii. 2.
Ladder of Jacob, very probably an emblem of the providence of God, by which he watches over and regulates all terrestrial things, Gen. xxviii. 12.
Lahatim, לַהֲטִים, rendered enchantments, what the probable import of this term, Exod. vii. 11.
Lake below the wine-press, what, Isa. v. 2.
Lambs, immense number of, annually slain in Jerusalem at the feast of the passover, in the time of Cestius, the Roman general, Num. xxix. 12.
Lamech's speech to his wives, as it stands in the Hebrew original, probably the oldest piece of poetry in the world, Gen. iv. 23. Inquiry into the cause of this remarkable speech, ibid.
Lamentations, very noisy among the Asiatics, Gen. xlv. 2.
Lamentations of Jeremiah, Hebrew names of this portion of the sacred canon, Introduction to the Lamentations. Its appellation in the Septuagint version, ibid. Singular opinion of Herman Van der Hardt, relative to this poem, ibid. Its very technical character, ibid. Observations of Drs. Lowth, Smith, and Blayney, on the peculiar style of this composition, ibid.
Lamp, to raise up a, to a person, what intended by this phrase both in sacred and profane history, 2 Sam. xiv. 7.
Lamps first introduced into the pagan temples by the Egyptians, Exod. xxv., in fine.
Lampsacus, singular preservation of this city by Anaximenes, Eccles. ix. 14.
Lance, usual in Arab camps for every man to have his lance stuck in the ground beside him, that he may be ready for action in a moment, 1 Sam. xxvi. 12.
Land, measurement of, by the ancients by lines or cords of a certain length, in a similar way to that by the chain among us, and the schœnus or cord among the Egyptians, Deut. iii. 4.
Land of promise, some account of the, Num. xxxiv. 13.
Landmarks of the ancients, in what they generally consisted, Deut. xix. 14; Job xxiv. 2. Held very sacred among the Romans, and at last deified, Deut. xix. 14; Prov. xxii. 28. A passage from Ovid in illustration of this circumstance, Prov. xxii. 28.
Land-torrents, which make a sudden appearance, and as suddenly vanish, allusion to, Job vi. 15.
Lapide, (Cornelius à) account of this voluminous commentator, General Preface, p. 5.
Lapis lazuli, its component parts, Job xxxviii. 38.
Lass, supposed to be a contraction of ladess, an old English word for a girl or young woman, Gen. xxxvii. 2.
Latter days, a phrase in Scripture generally importing the times of the Messiah, Isa. ii. 2; Dan. ii. 28.
Leaping on or over the threshold, what probably meant by this expression, Zeph. i. 9. Harmer's conjecture, ibid.
Leasing, derivation and meaning of this old English word, Psa. iv. 2, lv. 6.
Leb, לֵב, and לִבִּי, Lebab, what these words import when employed by the Jews as memorial symbols, Masoretic notes at the end of Numbers and Deuteronomy.
Lebeid, quotation of several sentiments from the poem of, very similar to some in the book of Job, Job xxxi. 21. This poem contained in the Moallakat, Psa. lx., in principio.
Lecha, לֶךְ, import of this Jewish memorial symbol, Masoretic notes at the end of Genesis.
Lectisternium, Jerome's account of this pagan festival of antiquity, Isa. lxv. 11.
Leech, the ancient English word for a physician, Isa. iii. 7.
Lemuel's description of a virtuous wife, Prov. xxxi. 10–31.
Lentulus, the augur, the immense wealth this man is said to have possessed, Esth. iii. 9.
Leopard, proverbial among the ancients for its swiftness, Hab. i. 8.
Leper, an emblem of the wretched state of man by the fall, according to Dr. Lightfoot, as contradistinguished from the NAZARITE, an emblem of man in his state of innocence, Num. vi. 2.
Leprosy, Maundrell's account of the appearance of several persons whom he saw infected with this disorder in Palestine, Lev. xiii. 2. This malady a most expressive emblem of the pollution of the soul of man by sin, Lev. xiii., in fine, xiv. in fine.
Lethe, among the ancient mythologists, what, Psa. lxxxviii. 12.
Letters, alphabetic, when and by whom invented, Exod. xxxi., in fine.
Letters, sent to chiefs and governors in the East, always carefully folded up, and put in costly silken bags, and these carefully sealed, Neh. vi. 5. An open letter sent by Sanballat to Nehemiah a mark of contempt, ibid.
Levi, import of the name, Gen. xxix. 34. Conjectures why the posterity of this patriarch were appointed to the service of the sanctuary, Num. iii. 12. Very beautiful paronomasia on the name of Levi, Num. xviii. 2.
Levi ben Gershom, (Rabbi) account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 3.
Leviathan, supposed to be the crocodile, Job xli. 1; Isa. xxviii. 1. This hypothesis not without its difficulties, Job xli., in fine. Not impossible that the animal described in Scripture under this name is now wholly extinct, ibid.
Leviticus, the third book of the Pentateuch, why so named, Preface to Leviticus.
Lex, derivation and import of the word, Exod. xii. 49.
Lex talionis, earliest account we have of the, Exod. xxi. 24. Constituted a part of the Twelve Tables so famous in antiquity, ibid.
Libations of water, wine, milk, honey, and blood, frequent among the Greeks and Romans, 1 Sam. vii. 6; 2 Sam. xxiii. 16. The term libation sometimes synonymous with covenant, Isa. xxx. 1.
Libnah, the sixteenth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, uncertain where situated, Num. xxxiii. 20.
Lick, supposed to be of Hebrew origin, Prov. ii. 16.
Lie, definition of a, Gen. xx. 12.
Life, unreasonable attachment to, strongly ridiculed by the heathen poets, Gen. xxv. 8. Probable origin of the phrase, "I put my life in my hands," Judg. xii. 3. Its import, Psa. cxix. 109.
Light, inquiry into its production on the first day of the creation, Gen. i. 3. Its immense diffusion and extreme velocity, ibid. 1 Kings viii. 27; Job xxxviii. 26.
Lightfoot, (Dr. John) a very learned commentator on the whole Scriptures, General Preface, p. 7.
Lignum infelix, the tree on which criminals were hanged so named among the Romans, Josh. viii. 29.
Ligure, account of this precious stone, Exod. xxviii. 17.
Limercece, a species of food, how prepared, 2 Sam. xvii. 28.
Linen yarn, the import of the Hebrew word thus rendered extremely uncertain, 1 Kings x. 28.
Lines in the writings of prose authors, as well as of poets, termed verses by the ancients, Introduction to Ezra.
Lion, Homer's beautiful description of the great courage and fierceness of this animal after a long abstinence from food, Isa. xxxi. 4. Five Hebrew words rendered lion in our version, with an inquiry into the particular import of each, Job iv. 11.
Lion, the standard of Judah, Gen. xlix. 8.
Lion of God, an ancient appellation for a hero, a figure still employed in the same sense by the Arabians and Persians, Isa. xxxiii. 7.
Liverpool, great storm of hail near this town, Exod. ix. 17.
Living waters, what meant by this phrase among the ancients, Gen. xxvi. 19; Lev. xiv. 5; Psa. xxxvi. 9; Zech. xiv. 9.
Lo, לֹא, the Hebrews had a peculiar way of joining this particle to a noun, to signify in a strong manner a total negation of the thing expressed by the noun, Isa. x. 15. Several examples produced, ibid.

Loadstone, probably known in the East long before its discovery by the Europeans, Job xxviii. 18.
Lo-ammi, son of Hosea, meaning of the name, Hos. i. 9.
Locke, account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 8.
Locusts, description of the, Exod. x. 4. Volney's account of their terrible devastations in Syria, Egypt, and Persia, ibid. Dr. Shaw's relation of most formidable swarms of these insects in Barbary which came under his immediate observation, ibid.; Joel i. 12, ii. 2. Curious remark of an Arabic writer with respect to the similitude of the locust to ten different kinds of animals, Joel ii. 4. Relation by Livy and Augustine of a pestilence occasioned by an immense swarm of locusts, Joel ii. 20.
Log, some account of this Hebrew measure of capacity, Exod. xvi. 16.
Long, (Dr.) his ingenious experiment to ascertain the superficial proportion of land and water on the whole terraqueous globe, Gen. i. 10, vii. 11; Job xxviii. 25.
Longevity, some instances of, among the moderns, Psa. xc., in fine.
Longinus, (Dionysius) his remarkable criticism upon passages in the first chapter of Genesis, Gen. i. 3; Preface to Job.
Lord, its derivation and import, Gen. ii. 4.
Lord's day, or Christian Sabbath, should be kept strictly holy, Amos viii. 5.
Lord's prayer, as it stands in the present authorized version, exhibits the best specimen of our ancient language now in use, Preface to Job.
Lo-ruhamah, import of the name, Hos. i. 6.
Lost property, laws relative to the finding of, among the Hebrews, Romans, and others, Lev. vi. 3.
Lot, meaning and use of the, Num. xxxvi. 55. Manner of casting lots in the case of the scape-goat, Lev. xvi. 8, 9. How the land of Canaan was divided to the Israelites by lot, Josh. xiv. 2, xviii. 11.
Lo techsar, לֹא תֶחְסַר, import of these words when used as a memorial symbol, Masoretic notes at the end of Deuteronomy.
Louis de Dieu, account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 5.
Louis XIV., motto on the brass ordnance of, Judg. xiv. 3.
Love of God, Deut. vi. 5, x. 12, xi. 1.
Love of neighbour, Scripture precept concerning, Lev. xix. 18.
Lowth, (Dr.) a very celebrated commentator on portions of the Old Testament Scriptures, General Preface, pp. 8, 10.
Lu, לוּ, import of this Hebrew interjection when used as a memorial symbol, Masoretic notes at the end of Numbers.
Lucan's description of the splendour of the apartments of Cleopatra, queen of Egypt, Ezek. xxviii. 14.
Lud, the same with Lydia, Ezek. xxvii. 10.
Luther, (Martin) character of, 2 Kings xii. 6.
Luxury, formerly the characteristic of the Eastern princes, and particularly of the Persians, Esth. i. 4.
Lying, excellent advice of a genuine Christian poet against, Josh. ii., in fine. Saying of Diphilus upon this subject not defensible upon Christian principles, 1 Sam. xxi. 2.
Lyranus, or Nicholas de Lyra, account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 3.

M.

Maachah, mother of Asa, king of Judah, inquiry into the nature of the idolatry patronized by this woman, 1 Kings xv. 13.
Mabul, מַבּוּל, a word applied only to the general deluge, Gen. vi. 17. Its derivation, Gen. vii. 11.
Maccabees, very fanciful rabbinical derivation of the name of this people, Psa xxi. 15.
Machpelah, cave at, the first public burying-place mentioned in history, Gen. xlix. 29.
Macknight, (Dr.) author of a translation of the Epistles, with notes, General Preface, p. 8.
Macdi, a tribe of Arabs, whence so named, Isa. xlii. 11.
Magian religion, great principle of the, Isa. xlv. 7.
Magnet, reasons for believing that this stone was known in the East long before its discovery by the Europeans, Job xxviii. 18.
Magnitudes, bulks, or volumes of the sun, moon, and planets, compared with that of the earth, Gen. i. 1.
Magog, conjecture where situated, Ezek. xxviii. 2.
Maher-shalal-hash-baz, meaning of the name, Isa. viii. 1.
Maimonides, or Rabbi Moses ben Maimon, account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 3.
Major hostia, or chief sacrifice, what so considered by the pagans, according to Livy, Lev. i. 2.
Makheloth, the twenty-first station of the Israelites in the wilderness, Num. xxxiii. 25.
Malachi, some account of this prophet, Mal. i., in principio.
Maldonat, (John) a commentator on particular parts of the Old and New Testaments, General Preface, p. 5.
Manasseh, why so named, Gen. xli. 51.
Mandrakes, some account of these plants, Gen. xxx. 14.
Manes, or ghosts of the dead, or spirits presiding over the dead, formerly supposed to have their habitation in the centre of the earth, or in the deepest pits or caverns, Job xxviii. 11. A quotation from Ovid to this effect, ibid. Several captives have sometimes, in time of war, been sacrificed to the manes of the departed hero, 2 Chron. xvi., in fine.
Manifesto of the Duke of Brunswick, reflections on this document, 2 Kings xviii. 17; Isa. xxxvii. 9.
Manna, why so named, Exod. xvi. 15.
Manners of the ancients and moderns compared, 2 Sam. iii., in fine.
Mantes, or bald locusts, Dr. Shaw's account of the, Joel ii. 2.
Mantle or pallium, the peculiar garb of a Hebrew prophet, 1 Kings xix. 19; 2 Kings ii. 8. Probably dressed with the hair on, ibid. A sort of mantle was the habit of the Greek philosophers, 1 Kings xix., in fine
Marah, the fourth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, where supposed to be situated, Num. xxxiii. 8.
Marble, temple built of large blocks of white marble, beautifully polished, according to Josephus, 1 Chron. xxix. 2.
Mareshah, Maresheth, or Marasthi, a place famous for being the birth-place of the prophet Micah, and for a battle fought near it between Asa, king of Judah, and Zerah, king of the Æthiopians, Josh. xv. 44.
Mark, variety of opinions respecting that which God set upon Cain, Gen. iv. 15.
Marks indelibly printed on the hands and other parts of the body, both by ancients and moderns, Isa. xliv. 5, xlvi. 16.
Maroth, מִרְאֹת, rendered looking-glasses in our version, signifies polished metallic surfaces of any description, Exod. xxxviii. 8.
Marriage, a very solemn contract among the ancients, Gen. xxix. 22. Reason for believing that sacrifices were offered and libations poured out on such an occasion, ibid. Customary in the East, according to Sir John Chardin, for youths that were never married always to marry virgins, and widowers, however young, to marry widows, Isa. lxii. 5. Remarkable law among the Gentoos respecting marriage, Gen. xxix. 26. Customary in ancient times for a king or great man to promise his daughter in marriage to him who should take a city, kill an enemy, &c. Josh. xv. 16.
Marriage ceremonies among the Romans, Song v. 5.
Marrow, in what manner this substance is contained in the bones, Prov. iii. 8. The solidity and strength of the bone occasioned by the marrow which is diffused through it, ibid. This circumstance illustrated by an easy experiment, ibid.
Mars, periodic and sidereal revolutions, semimajor axis of orbit in English miles, perigeal and apogeal distances, diameter, relative volume or bulk, time of rotation, inclination of axis to orbit, mass or attractive power compared with that of the earth, (from which the density or specific gravity is easily deducible,) and mean hourly orbitical motion, of this primary planet, Gen. i. 1.
Marseilles, ancient inhabitants of, when afflicted with any pestilence, sacrificed one of their citizens to appease the wrath of the divinity, Lev. xvi. 10.
Martin, (David) translator of the Scriptures into French, with notes, General Preface, p. 7.

Maschil or Maskil, why this title is given to several of the Psalms, Psa. xxxii., in principio.
Mashal, what, among the Hebrews, Iss. vi. 10, xiv. 4, xxviii. 20, xxix. 17.
Mask, definition of a composition so named, Introduction to Solomon's Song.
Masorctes, account of these eminent Jewish commentators, General Preface, p. 2.
Masoretic punctuations, critical observations on the, Isa. lxvi., in fine.
Massa, מַשָּׂא, rendered burden, inquiry into the meaning of this word, Nah. i. 1; Hab. i. 1; Zech. ix. 1.
Masses, or attractive powers, of the sun, moon, and primary planets, compared with that of the earth, Gen. i. 1.
Mastodon, or Mammoth, an animal long since extinct, Gen. i. 24; Job xl. 15. Description of a part of a skeleton of this animal, ibid. Calculation of the probable stature of the mammoth, ibid. Reasons for the supposition that the mammoth is the same with the behemoth of Job, ibid.
Materia medica of the ancients extremely simple, Isa. i. 6.
Materiality of the human soul, a doctrine which has no place in the sacred records, Num. xvi. 22; Job xiv. 12; Psa. lxxviii. 39; Eccles. iii. 21.
Maurbanie, what the Aleppines mean by this term, Song ii. 11.
Mawr-al-nahar, where situated, and why so named, Jer. ii. 18.
Maxim advanced by some, that children ought not to be taught religion, but should be left to themselves till they are capable of making a choice, considered, Deut. vi., in fine.
Measures of capacity among the Hebrews, short account of the, Exod xvi. 16.
Mecasheph, מְכַשֵּׁף, its import, Deut. xviii. 10.
Mecholoth, מְחֹלֹת, rendered dances, what it properly signifies, Exod. xv. 20.
Medicine, art of, in the East, in what it principally consists, Isa. i. 6.
Mediterranean, why called the Great Sea in Scripture, Josh. i. 4.
Medulla oblongata, or spinal marrow, the silver cord of Scripture, Eccles. xii. 6.
Megiddo, the same with Magdolum, according to Usher, 2 Kings xxiv. 30.
Megilloth, what books of the sacred canon are so named by the Jews, Introduction to the Lamentations.
Meimra, מֵימְרָא, and פִּתְגָם pithgam, very remarkable distinction between, in the Targum of Joseph, 2 Chron. i. 9. See Word.
Melanethon, (Philip) character of, 2 Kings xii. 6.
Melas, why the Nile was so named by the Greeks, Isa. xxiii. 3.
Melchizedek, king of Salem, derivation and import of his name, Gen. xiv. 18; Josh. x. 1.
Melitta, every young woman of Babylon obliged once in her life, according to Herodotus, to prostitute herself to some stranger in honour of this idol, 2 Kings xvii., in fine. Melitta the same with the Venus of the Greeks and Romans, ibid.
Melo, the same with the Nile, Isa. xxiii. 3. Why so named, ibid.
Memorial symbols of the Jews, several curious examples of the, Masoretic notes at the end of Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, Deuteronomy, and Joshua.
Memphis, now Cairo, Hos. ix. 6.
Menachash, מְנַחֵשׁ, its derivation and import, Deut. xviii. 10.
Meni, supposed to have been an object of idolatrous worship among the ancient Hebrews, Isa. lxv. 11.
Menochius, (John) account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 5.
Menu, some account of the institutes of, by the late Sir William Jones, Deut. xxxiv., in fine.
Merab, or Saba, city of, account of a dreadful inundation by which this ancient city was overthrown, Isa. i. 30.
Meraehepheth, מְרַחֶפֶת, inquiry into the meaning of this term, Gen. i. 2.
Mercury, revolutions as measured by the equinoxes and fixed stars; semimajor axis of orbit in English miles; perigeal and apogeal distances, when the radius vector is precisely one half of the line of the apsides; diameter; relative magnitude; volume or bulk; mass or attractive power, that of the earth being considered as unity; and mean hourly orbitical motion, of this primary planet, Gen. i. 1.
Mercury, considered by the ancients as the deity who presided over highways, Prov. xxvi. 8.
Mercy-seat, why so named, Exod. xxv. 17. Its description, ibid.
Merib-baal, the same with Mephibosheth, 1 Chron. viii. 34. Why the Israelites changed Merib-baal into Mephibosheth, ibid.
Meshach, import of the name, Dan. i. 7.
Meshelim, of the ancient Asiatics, probably the same with the poetæ of the western world, Num. xxi. 27, xxii. 6.
Mesopotamia, why this country was so named, Gen. xxxv. 26; Judg. iii. 8. Where situated, ibid.; Amos ix. 7.
Messiah, import of the term, Gen. xlix. 8; Exod. xxix. 7.
Metal, some account of a factitious, in use among the Asiatics, as bright and fine as gold, Ezra viii. 26.
Metallic image, discourse on Nebuchadnezzar's dream of the, Dan. ii., in fine.
Metallurgy, the Israelites employed in, in Egypt, Deut. iv. 20.
Metheg-ammah, a word of very doubtful import, 2 Sam. viii. 1. Variously rendered by the versions, ibid.
Methuselah, the oldest man on record, Gen. v. 27. Meaning of his name, Gen. v., in fine. Apparently prophetical of the destruction of the world by water, ibid.
Mezahab, rabbinical gloss on this name, 1 Chron. i. 50.
Micah, some account of this prophet, Introduction to Micah. Newcome's observations on the style of his writings, ibid.
Michtam, or Mictam, meaning of this word, Psa. xvi, in principio, lx., in principio.
Mid-day, the time allotted by the heathens for the worshipping of demons, Psa. xci. 6.
Migdol, the same with Magdolum, Jer. xlvi. 14.
Mikoch, מִקֹּחַ, a word of very uncertain import, 1 Kings x. 28. Variously rendered in the versions, ibid.
Milcom, an idol of the Ammonites, 1 Kings xi. 5; 2 Kings xxiii. 13; Jer. xlix. 1; Amos i. 15.
Milk and honey, land flowing with, a figure used by sacred and profane writers to denote great fertility, Exod. iii. 8; Job xx. 17; Ezek. xx. 6.
Milky-way or Galaxy, Dr. Herschel's idea of the nature of the, Gen. i. 16. Prodigious multitude of stars in the milky-way which passed through the field of view in his telescope in the space of forty-one minutes of time, ibid.
Mill, when the noise of the, is not heard, how a sign of desolation, Jer. xxv. 10.
Mill, behind the, inquiry into the meaning of this phrase, Exod. xi. 5.
Millenary of the world, reflections upon our Saviour's being born at the termination of the fourth, Gen. i. 16.
Mills, grinding at, the work of females in Algiers, Tunis, and other places, Isa. xlvii. 2.
Mingrelio, inhabitants of, sleep with their swords under their heads, and their other arms by their sides, Isa. xiii., in principio.
Mining, process of, among the ancients, Job xxviii. 1, &c. Difficulties miners had to encounter previously to the invention of the steam-engine, Job xxviii. 4, &c.
Minister, anecdote of a, Psa. lxv. 2.
Ministry, Divine call to the, and directions for the proper discharge of the ministerial office, Ezek. xxxiv. 6.
Minor prophets, order and time in which they flourished, according to Archbishop Newcome, Introduction to Hosea.
Mirrors of brass, steel, tin, copper, and silver, in use among the ancients, Exod. xxxviii. 8; Isa. viii. 1.
Miscenus, funeral rites paid to, as related by Virgil, 2 Chron xvi., in fine.
Misery, in what manner the animal system is affected at the sight of, Jer. iv. 19.
Mishael, import of this name, Dan. i. 7.
Mishemerotim, מִשְׁמָרוֹתִים, its derivation and import, Lev xxvi. 15.
Mishnah, or oral law of the Jews, account of the, Genera

Preface, p. 2. When composed, according to Prideaux and Lardner, Isa. liii. 8.
Mishpat, משפט, its import, Isa. xlii. 1. A beautiful paronomasia on this word, Isa. v. 7.
Misletoe, held in extraordinary veneration among the ancient Druids, Gen. xxi. 33. The golden branch mentioned by Virgil apparently an allusion to this plant, ibid.
Mithcah, the twenty-fourth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, Calmet's conjecture concerning, Num. xxxiii. 28.
Mitre, its derivation and import, Exod. xxviii. 4.
Mitsvoth, מצות, its derivation and import, Lev. xxvi. 15.
Mizbeach, מזבח, rendered altar, what it properly signifies, Gen. viii. 20, xiii. 18.
Mizmor, מזמור, why a Psalm was so named among the Hebrews, Introduction to the Psalms; Psa. iii., in principio.
Mnevis, an object of idolatry among the ancient Egyptians, Hos. viii. 5.
Moab, plains of, the forty-first station of the Israelites in the wilderness, Num. xxxiii. 48.
Moadim, מואדים, translated seasons, inquiry into its import, Gen. i. 14.
Moallakat, some account of this collection of Arabic poems, Psa. lx., in principio.
Modhahebat, a collection of Arabic poems, why so named, Psa. lx., in principio.
Molech, curious rabbinical description of this idol, Lev. xx. 2.
Molech, passing through the fire to, several opinions concerning the meaning of this phrase, Lev. xviii. 21.
Monarchy, hereditary succession in a, to be preferred to the elective, 1 Kings i. 12.
Mongoz, this animal kept by the inhabitants of the East for the purpose of destroying the snakes that infest them, Amos v. 19.
Moneys of different ancient nations, tables of the, Exod. xxxviii. 24.
Monoceros of Scripture, probably the same with the rhinoceros, Psa. xcii. 10.
Monodon, see Narwall.
Montgomery's metrical version of the principal passages in the seventy-second Psalm, Psa. lxxii., in fine.
Months, names of the, among the Hebrews, 1 Kings vi. 1.
Moon, great probability of her being a habitable globe, Gen. i. 16. Telescopic appearance of her disk, ibid. Periodic and sidereal revolutions; mean distance from the sun; perigeal and apogeal distances; diameter; relative magnitude, volume, or bulk; time of rotation; inclination of axis to orbit; mass, quantity of matter, or attractive power, that of the earth being considered as unity; and mean hourly orbitical motion; of this secondary planet, Gen. i. 1.
Moorish dress, Jackson's description of the, Judg. xiv. 12.
Mosaic chronology, specious objections of modern skeptics against the, answered, Gen. i., in fine.
Mosaic pavement, some account of the, Exod. xxiv. 10. Its origin, Esth. i. 6.
Moscovites, from whom descended, Gen. x. 2.
Moseroth, the twenty-sixth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, conjectures respecting. Num. xxxiii. 30, 37.
Moses, why so named, Exod. ii. 10. His character as a historian, philosopher, and chronologer, Gen. i., in fine. Observations on the staying up of his hands in the conflict of the children of Israel with the Amalekites, Exod. xvii. 11. Enumeration by Moses of the seven different means used by the Almighty in effecting Israel's deliverance, Deut. iv. 34. Sketch of the history and character of Moses, Exod. xix., in fine; Deut. xxxiv., in fine.
Moths, various modes adopted in the destruction of these insects, Gen. xxvii. 27.
Motto, very singular one affixed to a pamphlet written by a young woman of the city of Gloucester against Bishop Warburton's Doctrine of Grace, 2 Kings xix. 21.
Mountain of God, import of this Hebraism, Psa. xxxvi. 6.
Mountain torrents, how produced, Job xxiv. 8.
Mourning sometimes indicated among the ancients by the changing or reversing the harness or ornaments of cattle, Jonah iii. 8.
Mourning songs or lamentations, composed by the Hebrews upon the death of great men, princes, and heroes, Lam. v., in fine.
Mourning women, account of the, among the ancients, who were hired to make lamentations for the dead, Jer. ix. 17.
Muagrus of the Eleans, why this idol was so named, Exod. viii. 24.
Μυλλαδα μυλλειν, a Greek paronomasia, Job xxxi., in fine.
Multitia, multicia, or coa vestis, a name given by the Romans to the transparent garments of the Greeks, Isa. iii. 23. Sometimes worn even by the men, but looked upon as a mark of great effeminacy, ibid. Humorous and satirical description of the multitia by Publius Syrus, ibid.
Mummies, description of the Egyptian, Gen. l. 2. Peter du Val's account of a mummy supposed to be the remains of one of the supreme judges, Exod. xxviii. 30. Manner in which the mummies were wrapped round with strong swathings of linen or cotton cloth, Job xl. 13; Prov. xxxi. 22.
Munster, (Sebastian) a Protestant commentator, General Preface, p. 6.
Μυωδης, why this epithet was applied to the supreme divinity of the heathens, Exod. viii. 24.
Murder, the only crime for which a human being should be punished with death, Gen. ix. 6.
Murex or purpura, a species of shell-fish, from which the Tyrian purple is supposed to have been obtained, Exod xxv. 4; Deut. xxxiii. 19.
Muscarum abactor, why this epithet was given to Hercules, Exod. viii. 24.
Music, Treatise on, by Philodemus, where discovered, 2 Chron xxxiv. 12.
Music, strange effects of, 2 Kings, iii. 15.
Musical instruments, observations on the use of, in the house of God, 1 Chron. v. 39, xvi. 42; 2 Chron. xxix. 35; Amos vi. 5. Condemned, see Psa lxii. 1. Reasons for believing that musical instruments were employed to encourage and enliven the workmen when engaged in the repairs of the temple in the reign of Josiah, 2 Chron. xxxiv. 12.
Musive or Mosaic work, origin of, Esth. i. 6.
Mysce, a name of Bacchus in the hymns of Orpheus, evidently borrowed from the name of the great Jewish legislator, Exod. iv. 17.
Mystical or spiritual sense, very often the most literal of all, Isa. lii. 13.

N.

Nabatheans, their origin, Gen. xxv. 13.
Nabi, נביא, rendered prophet in our version, its precise import, Num. xi. 25.
Nachash, נחש, commonly translated serpent, has several meanings in the Old Testament, Gen. iii. 1. A variety of reasons produced to show that the animal instrumental in deceiving our first parents was probably of the simia genus, ibid. Objection against this hypothesis, that the Septuagint version and the New Testament נחש nachash is translated by οφις, answered, ibid.
Naharaga, see Pallacopas.
Naharmalca or the Royal River, a canal constructed by Nebuchadnezzar to let the abundant waters of the Euphrates into the Tigris, Isa. xliv. 27.
Nahum, some account of this prophet, Introduction to Nahum.
Nails, staining of the, practised by the ancient Egyptians and modern Indians, Deut. xxi. 12.
Nails, spikes, or pegs of the ancients, some account of the Isa. xxii. 23.
Naksi Rustam, description of the, Isa. xxii. 16.
Names of the ancient generals and princes frequently taken from those of birds and beasts, Judg. vii. 25.
Names, changing of, frequent among the ancients, 2 Kings xxiii. 34. A mark of supremacy, in those who changed them, ibid.
Napeir, (John) account of his commentary on the revelation of St. John, General Preface, p. 22.
Naphtali, why so named, Gen. xxx. 8.
Napkin or kerchief, by which a Jewish criminal was strangled, why buried with him in the same grave, Isa. xv. 19.

Napoleon, reflections on the singular fortune and sudden reverses of this late emperor of the French, Psa. cvii. 40.
Narwall or monodon, a species of whale, with a very fine curled ivory horn, Psa. xxii. 21. Length of a horn of this animal in the author's possession, ibid.
Nathan the prophet, author of a history of the reign of Solomon, long since lost, 1 Kings xi. 41.
Natron of the ancients, some account of the, Prov. xxv. 20. Used in the East, according to Dr. Shaw, for the purposes of washing, ibid; Jer. ii. 22.
Nature, observations on this divinity of the modern infidel, Job v. 5.
Nature, divine and human, in Christ. See on Psa. xxii. 20.
Navel-string, the medium by which the fetus receives nourishment while in the womb of its mother, Prov. iii. 8; Song vii. 2.
Nausicaa, daughter of Alcinous, king of the Phæacians, anecdote concerning, Exod. ii. 4.
Nazarite, enumeration of the particulars in which the vow of a, consisted, Num. vi. 5.
Nebel, נבל, probably a musical instrument similar to the bagpipe, 1 Sam. x. 5; Psa. lxxxi. 2.
Nebuchadnezzar, in what the malady of this Babylonish monarch probably consisted, Dan. iv. 32.
Nebuchadnezzar's dream of the metallic image, discourse on, Dan. ii., in fine.
Necoth, נכאת, rendered spices, what it imports, Gen. xliii. 11.
Necromancy, pretenders to the art of, among the ancients, chiefly women, Isa. xxix. 4.
Neder, נדר, account of this species of Jewish vow, Lev. xxvii. 29. In what it differed from the cherem, חרם, ibid.
Negonoth, probable import of this term, Psa. v., in principio; Hab. iii. 19.
Nego, one of the Babylonish divinities, Dan. i. 7.
Nehemiah, biography of this eminent reformer of Israel, Introduction to Nehemiah, and chap. xiii., in fine. Eminent men who were contemporary with Nehemiah, Chronological notes at the commencement of Nehemiah.
Nehiloth, probable import of this term, Psa. v., in principio.
Nehushtan, the name given by Hezekiah to the brazen serpent of Moses, conjectures why so denominated, 2 Kings xviii. 4.
Neith, a name of Diana, Exod. x. 9.
Nephalim, נפלים, rendered giants, much more probable meaning of the original word, Gen. vi. 4.
Neptune, remarkable speech of, to the winds, contained in the Æneid, Psa. xxvii. 13.
Nergal, an idol of the Cutheans, supposed to have been the sun, and why, 2 Kings xvii., in fine. How represented, according to the rabbins, ibid.
Nesek, נשך, why usury was so named by the Jews, Ezek. xviii. 8.
Ness's observations on the marriage of Orpah and Ruth, Ruth i., in fine.
Net, description of that species of combat among the Romans, in which one of the combatants was armed with a sword and shield, and the other with a trident and net, Job xix. 6.
Newcome, (Dr.) translator of the minor prophets, with critical notes, General Preface, p. 10.
New moon, feast of the, when celebrated, Exod. xxiii. 14; Psa. lxxxi. 3. Method adopted by the ancient Jews of ascertaining the day of the new moon, Psa. lxxxi. 3.
New song, meaning of this phrase illustrated by two quotations from Virgil, Psa. cxlix. 1.
New-year's-day, a time of festivity in all civilized nations, Num. xxix. 1.
Nibhaz, an object of idolatrous worship among the Avites, 2 Kings xvii., in fine. According to the rabbins, was in the shape of a dog, much like the Anubis of the Egyptians, ibid. Conjecture respecting the derivation of the name, ibid. Jurieu's ingenious idea upon this subject, ibid.
Night, very philosophical saying of Servius respecting, in his comment upon a passage in the fourth Æneid, Job vii. 2.
Nile, overflowing of the, of essential service in the fertilization of Egypt, Gen. xli. 25, 31; Isa. xviii. 2. Pliny's scale of the different heights to which the waters of the Nile ascend, with the consequent degrees of plenty and dearth, ibid. The Nile an object of religious worship among the ancient Egyptians, Exod. vii. 15; viii. 26. Great salubrity and peculiar pleasantness of its waters, Exod. vii. 18. Abounds with incredible numbers of all sorts of fish, according to Diodorus, Isa. xix. 8.
Nilus, a name given to Bacchus, by Diodorus and Macrobius, on account of his being said to have been exposed on the Nile, Exod. iv. 17.
Nimbus. A practice among many nations to represent those men to whom they attributed extraordinary sanctity, and whom they supposed to have had familiar intercourse with the Deity, with a lucid nimbus or glory round their heads, Exod. xxxiv. 29.
Nimrod, probably the same with Ninus, Gen. x. 11.
Nineveh, some account of this very celebrated city of antiquity, Jonah i. 2, iii. 3. Bishop Newton's remarks upon the fall and irretrievable ruin of Nineveh, Nah. iii., in fine.
Ninyas, son of Ninus and Semiramis, supposed by Dr. Shuckford to be the same with Chedorlaomer, Gen. xiv. 1.
Nissah, נסה, rendered tempt, what it properly imports, Gen. xxii. 1.
Noah, whence this name is probably derived, Gen. v. 29.
No-Ammon, the Diospolis of the Greeks, Nah. iii. 8.
Nominative case often used for the vocative by the ancient Greeks, especially in the Attic dialect of their language Psa. xlv. 6.
Νομος, its derivation and import, Exod. xii. 49.
Nonnus the poet, quoted Zech. ix. 14. See notes.
Noonday, the time allotted by the heathens for the worshipping of demons, Psa. xci. 6.
Noph, the same which was afterwards named Memphis, and now Cairo, Ezek. xxx. 13; Jer. ii. 16; xlvii. 14.
Northern army, why this name is given to immense swarms of locusts, Joel ii. 20.
Norwich, ancient city of, formerly stood some miles from the modern city so named, Josh. xvi., in fine.
Nose or nostrils, considered by the ancients the seat of anger, Psa. xviii. 8.
Nose, cutting off the, a frequent punishment of adulterers among the Persians and Chaldeans, Ezek. xxiii. 25. Adulteresses formerly thus treated by the Egyptians, ibid.
Nose-ring, or jewel for the nose, of very frequent use in the East, Gen. xxiv. 22; Prov. xxv. 12; Isa. iii. 21.
Nova Zembla, extraordinary instance of refraction of the solar light in this island in the sixteenth century, 2 Kings xx., in fine.
Novus, not unfrequently synonymous with magnus mirandus, Psa. cxlix. 1.
Numanus, remarkable saying of, to the Trojans, as related by Virgil, Nah. iii. 13.
Numbers, the fourth book of the Pentateuch, why so named, Preface to Numbers.
Numbers in the sacred Scriptures often erroneous, and why, 2 Sam. x. 18.
Nuptial crown, among the Greeks and Romans, what, Song iii. 11.

O.

Oak, a sacred tree among the ancient Greeks and Romans, Gen. xxi. 23; the Druids had their feasts and sacrifices under it, ibid. Why this tree was named robur by the Romans, Hos. iv. 13. Accounted one of the most long-lived of all the trees of the forest, Isa. lxv. 22.
Oath, inquiry into the spirit and essence of an, Gen. xxiv. 9; Deut. vi., in fine.
Obadiah, some account of this prophet, Obad., in principio.
Obed, the father of Jesse, why so named, Ruth iv. 17.
Obed-edom, very curious and whimsical rabbinical account of the mode in which God is said to have blessed this Gittite, while the ark remained in his house, 1 Chron. xiii. 14.
Oboth, אבות, what this term imports, Lev. xix. 31.
Oboth, אבת, the thirty-sixth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, Num. xxxiii. 43.
Ode, what is generally understood by this term, Introduction to the Song of Solomon. Isaiah's prophetic ode on the destruction of Babylon by the Medes and Persians, and the deliverance of Judah from captivity, a composition of supreme and singular excellence, standing unrivalled among all the monuments of classic antiquity, Isa. xiii., in principio.

Oded, remarks on the beautiful speech of this prophet to the Israelites, 2 Chron. xxviii. 9.
Offerings, Jewish, general account of the, Lev. vii., in fine. The reference in which they all stood to the great sacrifice offered by Christ, ibid.
Og, king of Bashan, remarks upon his very great stature, Deut. iii. 11. Extreme trifling of the rabbins upon this subject, ibid.
Oil, anointing with, an ancient method of installation to particular offices, Exod. xxix. 7.
Oil, holy anointing, its component parts, and the quantity of each ingredient, Exod. xxx. 21.
Oil, trial by boiling, a species of ordeal among the Hindoos, Num. v., in fine.
Olam, עולם, inquiry into its general import, Gen. xiii. 15, xvii. 7, 8, xxi. 33; Exod. xii. 14; Num. xxv. 13; 2 Kings v. 27; Eccles. iii. 11, 12, xii. 15; Mic. v. 2; Hab. iii. 6.
Olam haba, עולם הבא, the world to come, a phrase applied by the Jews to the days of the Messiah, Heb. ii. 5.
Old age, great reverence paid to, by the ancient and modern Egyptians, Gen. xlviii. 12; by the ancient Romans, ibid.; and even to this day by the Mohammedans, ibid. Bacon's grand secret for the strengthening of the natural heat in aged persons, Ruth iv. 16; 1 Kings i., in fine.
Olives, mount of, Zech. xiv. 4.
Omer, some account of this Hebrew measure of capacity, Exod. xvi. 16.
Omniscience of God, thoughts concerning the, Gen. xvi. 15.
On or Aven, the famous Heliopolis, Ezek. xxx. 17.
Only Son, Christ the, see on Psa. xxii. 20.
Onycha, account of this perfume, Exod. xxx. 34.
Onyx, the name of a precious stone, whence it has its name, Gen. ii. 12; Exod. xxv. 7; Job xxviii. 16. The Hebrew word so translated of uncertain import, Exod. xxviii. 17.
Opal, its component parts, Job xxxviii. 38.
Opes, riches, whence derived, Gen. xxxiii. 19.
Ophel, a part of Mount Sion, rising higher than the rest, Isa. xxxii. 14.
Ophiamanteia of the Greeks, what, Lev. xix. 26.
Ophir, situation of, utterly unknown, 1 Kings ix. 28. Dr. Jubb's conjecture, Isa. ii. 13–16.
Ophthalmia, how generally caused in Egypt, Deut. xxviii. 24.
Optic nerve, account of the, Eccles. xii. 3.
Oracles of the heathens expressed in such dubious language as to appear to be fulfilled in whatever way the events might happen, 1 Kings xxii. 15. Some examples produced, ibid. The pagan oracles generally delivered their answers from some deep and obscure cavern, Isa. xlv. 19.
Orange garden of the emir of Beroot, Maundrell's description of the, Isa. i. 30.
Orbits, mean hourly motions of the primary planets in their, Gen. i. 1. Inclination of the axes of rotation of the earth, moon, Mars, Jupiter, and Saturn to the planes of their orbits, Gen. i. 1. Angles with the semidiameters of the orbits of the satellites of Jupiter, Saturn, and Herschel subtend, as seen from the earth, when the radii vectores of their primaries are equal to one half of the latera transversa, or principal diameters of the ellipses in which they move round the sun, ibid.
Ordeal, trial by, some account of the, Num. v., in fine. Why called Judicium Dei, "The judgment of God," ibid. Supposed to have taken its origin from the waters of jealousy, ibid.
Oreb, a prince of the Midianites, import of his name, Judg. vii. 25.
Origen, account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 3. Specimens of his very fanciful interpretation of Scripture, Exod. i., in fine. Num. xii. 14. His thoughts on the miracle of the fleece, dew, and dry ground, Judg. vi., in fine. Origen's account of a dispute he had with some of the Jews relative to a passage in Isaiah, Isa. liii. 8.
Original sin, doctrine of, Job xiv. 4; Psa. li. 5.
Orion, Hebrew word so translated of very uncertain import, Job ix. 9. The constellation of Orion, according to Mr. Good, a correct and elegant synecdoche for the winter at large, Job xxxviii. 31.
Ornaments upon the heads, necks, bodies, and legs of camels, horses, and elephants, common from the remotest antiquity, Judg. viii. 21. Seven kinds of ornaments still in use in Asiatic countries, Gen. xxiv. 22.
Orpheus, remarks on the fable concerning this very celebrated musician of antiquity, 2 Chron. xxxiv. 12.
Osiris, description of a beautiful marble figure of, in the author's possession, 1 Sam. vi., in fine.
Ossifrage, why this animal is so named, Lev. xi. 13.
Ostracism, among the Greeks, what, Gen. xxvi. 16. Remarkable saying of Bacon upon this subject, ibid.
Ostrich, observations on its remarkable fleetness, Job xxxix. 13, 18. Natural history of this bird, as given by Dr. Shaw, Job xxxix., in fine; Mic. i. 8.
Oth, אות, translated sign, inquiry into its import, Gen. i. 14; Deut. xiii. 1.
Ottoman court, conjecture why called the Porte, Isa. xxix. 21.
Ovid's account of the ceremonies used in laying the foundations of the walls of the city of Rome by Romulus, Neh. xii. 27. The fable of Dædalus and Icarus very beautifully moralized by this great Roman poet, Prov. xxv. 7.
Ox, particular description of its four stomachs, Lev. xi. 3 This animal an object of idolatrous worship among the ancient Egyptians, Hos. viii. 5.
Oxen, the Hebrew word thus rendered most clearly a corruption of the sacred text, 2 Chron. iv. 3.
Oxurunchus, an Egyptian idol, Exod. xx. 4.
Oxygen, a constituent part of water, Gen. vii. 11, viii. 1; Job xxxviii. 26; Jer. x. 13.

P.

Padan-aram, the same with Mesopotamia, Gen. xxxv. 26.
Pagan priests believed by their adherents to have been able to walk on burning coals unhurt, Dan. iii. 27. Quotation from Virgil in illustration of this circumstance, ibid. How the feet of the priests were enabled to resist the action of the fire, according to Varro, ibid.
Pagans, notion among the, that every district had its tutelary deity, who could do nothing out of his own sphere, 1 Kings xx. 23; 2 Kings xvii. 25.
Pall, ceremony of the, among the Romanists, 1 Kings xix., in fine.
Pallacopas or Naharaga, a canal made by Nebuchadnezzar, by which the redundant waters of the Euphrates were carried into a vast lake forty miles square, Isa. xliv. 27.
Palladium, the Greeks employed all their artifice to steal away this from the Trojans, and why, Num. xxii. 6. Conjecture that the Trojan palladium was an aerolith, Josh. x. 11.
Pallas, distances from the sun and earth, diameter, and relative surface and volume, of this primary planet, Gen. i. 1.
Palliatus, why this word is used to signify a Greek, 1 Kings xix., in fine.
Palma Christi, account of the, as given by Celsus, Jonah iv. 6.
Palm tree, its description and various uses, Psa. xcii. 12. Leaves of the palm tree used in the East instead of paper, Job xix. 23.
Palm wine, how made by the ancients, according to Pliny, Isa. v. 11. The Jews had plenty of this wine, ibid. According to Theodoret and Chrysostom, the same with the שכר sacar of the Hebrews, and the σικερα of the Greeks, ibid.
Palmyra, some account of the ruins of, 1 Kings ix. 18.
Panoply, ordinary weight of a soldier's, according to Plutarch, 1 Sam. xvii. 7.
Paphlagonians, conjecture concerning their origin, Gen. x. 3.
Papyrus of Egypt, description and use of this very celebrated plant, Exod. ii. 3; Esth. x., in fine; Isa. xviii. 1. Its Linnæan classification and description, Job viii. 11. Gerarde's account of this plant, ibid.
Parable or allegory, example of a, in which a variety of images are employed, all taken from the science of agriculture, Isa. xxviii. 23–28.
Parabolic style of the Hebrews, some very striking examples of the, Isa. ii. 13–16, xiii. 10, xxiv. 21–23, xxvii. 1, xli. 19, xlii. 7, xlviii. 21, xlix. 23, liv. 11, 12, lv. 13, lx., in principio.
Paradise, its derivation and import, Gen. ii. 8; Eccles. ii. 5. Notion of the Mohammedans respecting Paradise, ibid. Great variety of opinions concerning its situation, Gen. ii. 10.
Paragogic letters in the Hebrew always increase and deepen the meaning of the words to which they are attached, Psa. lxxxix. 16.

Parcæ, or the Fates, fable of, Job vii. 6, xxxiii. 22.
Pareshioth, see Sections of the Law.
Paronomasia or play upon words, instances of, Num. xviii. 2; Job xxxi., in fine; Isa. v. 7, xxiv. 17, 18, xxv. 11, xxxii. 7, xxxviii. 17, lxi. 3; Jer. i 12; Amos v. 5, viii. 2; Mic. i. 10.
Paros, one of the Cyclade islands, famous for its white marble, 1 Chron. xxix. 2.
Parr, (Thomas) his great age, Job xiv. 5; Psa. xc., in fine.
Partridges, manner of hunting, among the Arabs, 1 Sam. xxvi. 20.
Passages, tables of, in the New Testament cited from the Old, Mal. iv., in fine.
Passover, a Jewish festival, whence so named, Exod. xii. 11; Deut. xvi. 1; Isa. xxxi. 5. Its typical import, Exod. xii. 27. The heathen sacrifice termed propter viam probably borrowed from this Jewish ordinance, Exod. xii. 10.
Pastoral, definition of the, Introduction to Solomon's Song.
Pathros, conjectures where situated, Ezek. xxix. 14, xxx. 14.
Patrick, (Dr. Simon) a celebrated commentator on the Old Testament, General Preface, p. 7.
Pavilion, derivation of this word, 1 Kings xx. 12; Psa. xxvii. 5.
Paz, פַּז, its derivation and import, Job xxviii. 17.
Pearce, (Dr. Zachary) author of an excellent commentary on the Four Gospels, the Acts, and the First Epistle to the Corinthians, General Preface, p. 8.
Pearl, the production of a shell-fish of the oyster kind, called berberi, Job xxviii. 18. Sometimes found in the common oyster and muscle, ibid. Six pearls taken out of one oyster by the author, ibid. Account of a pearl which formed the entire body of a Hindoo idol, ibid.
Pecunia, money, whence derived, Psa. xv. 5.
Peleg, the son of Eber, from what circumstance he had his name, Gen. x. 25. What is probably meant by the division of the earth which happened in his time, ibid.
Peninnah, import of the name, 1 Sam. i. 2.
Pentateuch, Dr. Priestley's excellent observations respecting the, Deut. xxiv., in fine.
Pentecost, feast of, why instituted, Exod. xxiii. 14.
Peraoth, פְּרָעוֹת, rendered revenges, what it properly imports, Deut. xxxii. 42.
Perfection, Christian, doctrine of, stated and defended, Gen. xvii. 1; Psa. cxix. 96.
Perfume, holy, its component parts, Exod. xxx. 34.
Perfumes, Eastern, account of the, Isa. iii. 24.
Perfuming the head, beard, and other parts of the bodies of guests very frequent in the East, Prov. xxvii. 9. Description of two vessels in the author's possession, employed for this purpose, ibid.
Peri, פְּרִי, import of this word when employed as a memorial symbol, Masoretic notes at the end of Deuteronomy.
Perillus, the first person burned alive in the brazen bull which he had made for the punishment of others, Esth. vii. 9.
Περιψημα, a sacrificial term among the ancient pagans, Lev. xvi. 10.
Perizzites, where these people were probably situated, Josh. iii. 10.
Perpetual fire of the Hebrews imitated by the ancient Persian Magi, and their descendants the Parsees, Lev. vi. 13. Perpetual fire in the temple of Vesta, Lev. ix. 23.
Perpetual table, showing, through the course of thirteen lunar cycles, the day of the week with which the Jewish year begins, and on which the passover is held, as also the length of the months Marchesvan and Cisleu, Deut. xxxiv., in fine.
Persic version of the Pentateuch, some account of the, General Preface, p. 22.
Phagrus, an ancient object of idolatry, Exod. xx. 4.
Phalarica or falarica, a dart or spear with a spherical leaden head, to which fire was attached, Psa. lxxvi. 3, cxx. 4. Why so named, ibid.
Pharaoh, a common name for the kings of Egypt till the commencement of the monarchy of the Greeks, Gen. xii. 15, xli. 44; Exod. i. 11. Why Pharaoh is called in the Koran the lord or master of the nails, Isa. xxii. 23.
Pharez, import of the name, Gen. xxxviii. 29.
Pharmacy, in great repute among the ancient Egyptians, Exod. xii., in fine.
Pharpar, a river of Damascus, reason for supposing that the river known by this name, in the time of Elisha, is a branch of the Barrady, 2 Kings v. 12.
Philo, bishop of the Carpathians, author of a comment on Solomon's Song, General Preface, p. 4.
Philo Judæus, account of this Jewish commentator, General Preface, p. 2.
Philosopher, anecdote of a, Jer. v. 1. Remarkable saying of a philosopher when at sea in a violent storm, Jonah i. 7.
Φιλοσοφος, probable origin of this word, Gen. xli. 8.
Phlegon, one of the horses of the sun, according to the pagan mythology, what the name signifies, 2 Kings ii. 11.
Phoccans, remarkable imprecation of the, when resolved to leave their country, and never to revisit it, Jer. li. 64.
Phocylides, citation of a very remarkable passage from this poet, Jer. ix. 24.
Phosphorescence of the sea in certain states of the weather, Job xli. 32.
Phrygians, Bochart's conjecture concerning their origin, Gen. x. 2.
Phut, a people of Africa, Ezek. xxvii. 10.
Phylacteries, particular account of the, Exod. xiii. 9.
Pibeseth, probably the same with Bubastum, or Bubaste, Ezek. xxx. 17.
Pihahiroth, the third station of the Israelites in the wilderness, what supposed to be its present appellation, Num. xxxiii. 7.
Pikudim, פְּקוּדִים, its derivation and import, Lev. xxvi. 15.
Pilgash, פִּלֶגֶשׁ, rendered concubine, inquiry into its import, Gen. xxii. 24, xxxiv. 31.
Pilgrim, a word of French or Latin origin, Gen. xlvii. 9.
Pilkington's reasons for the supposition that from the 12th to the 31st verse of the first book of Samuel is an interpolation of some rabbin, 1 Sam. xvii., in fine.
Pillar of a cloud in the wilderness, observations concerning the, Exod. xiii. 21, xiv. 20.
Pillar of salt into which Lot's wife was changed, various opinions and legends concerning the, Gen. xix. 26.
Pillars of heaven, what intended by this strongly figurative expression, Job xxvi. 11.
Pindar's elegant ridicule of the work of the statuary, when set in competition with his own poetry, Isa. xlvi. 3.
Pinna magna, a species of muscle found on the shores of the Mediterranean, 1 Chron. xv. 27; Prov. xxxi. 22. Description of a pair of gloves which the author has seen made of this very rich stuff, ibid.
Piscator, (John) author of a comment on the whole Scriptures, General Preface, p. 6.
Pitcher broken at the fountain, what meant by this phrase, Eccles. xii. 6.
Pitfall or forea, among the ancients, what, Psa. vii. 15, lvii. 6; Isa. xxiv. 17, 18; Ezek. xix. 4.
Plagues of Egypt, times of their happening, according to Archbishop Usher, Exod. vii. 17. Critical observations on these Divine judgments, Exod. vii., et seq. Seven of these plagues more largely described in the Samaritan copies than in the Hebrew, Exod. xi., in fine. Translation of the eleventh chapter of Exodus from the Samaritan text ranged in collateral columns with that in our common version, to show the great additions in the former, ibid. General observations on the ten plagues of Egypt, Exod. xii., in fine.
Plane tree, conjectures why this tree was so named, Gen. xxv. 37.
Planets, primary and secondary, tables of their revolutions, distances, &c., Gen. i. 1. To prevent mistake, it will be proper to observe that the least and greatest distances of the planets and satellites from the earth, contained in these tables, are their perigeal and apogeal distances when the radii vectores of the planets are equal to the semimajor axes of their orbits, the earth being in every case assumed to be at its mean distance from the sun. But on account of the eccentricities of the planetary orbits, the distances of the planets from the earth, when in perigee and apogee, are very variable. The nearest possible approaches of the inferior planets Mercury and Venus to the earth (viz., when the inferior conjunction of each takes place in the higher apsis) are, respectively, 52,376,602 and 27,339,176 English miles. The greatest possible distances of these planets from the earth (viz., when the superior conjunction of each is made in the aphelion) are, respectively, 138,620,495 and 163,667,549 English miles. The perigeal distances of Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, and Herschel (when the opposition of each to the sun takes place in the lower apsis or perihelion) are respectively, 35,357,826, 376,944,330, 766,223,-200, and 1,642,663,450 English miles. The greatest possible apogeal distances of these planets (viz., when the conjunction of each with the sun is in the higher apsis) are, respectively, 255,709,508, 616,586,248, 1,056,059,684 and 2,002,487,006 English miles. In these calculations the eccentricities of the orbits of the planets, in English miles, have been assumed as follows:—that of Mercury, 7,598,-601; Venus, 471,320; the Earth, 1,604,800; Mars, 13,665,466; Jupiter, 24,346,964; Saturn, 50,988,386; and Herschel, 85,035,892.

Plant of renown, observations on the Hebrew words thus rendered, Ezek. xxxiv. 29.

Platforms common on the houses of the East, Judg. iii. 20.

Plato, republic of, thoughts concerning the, Deut. xxxiv., in fine.

Pledge of the beard, in the East, the most secure of all pledges, which the owner will redeem at the hazard of his life, 2 Sam. x. 4.

Pleiades, Hebrew word so translated of very uncertain import, Job ix. 9, xxxviii. 31.

Ploughing the foundations of cities, a custom among ancient conquerors to signify an irreparable and total destruction, Mic. iii. 12.

Ploughing with one's heifer, or ploughing in another man's ground, what meant by this phrase among the ancient Jews, Greeks, and Romans, Judg. xiv. 18.

Ploughing iniquity and reaping the same, a proverbial mode of expression, illustrated by quotations from sacred and profane writers, Job iv. 8.

Plutarch's account of a man who, aiming a blow at his enemy's life, cut open an imposthume, which, by a salutary discharge, saved his life, Prov. xxvii. 5.

Poetic compositions, titles of, among the Asiatics, frequently bore no resemblance to the subjects, Psa. xxii., in principio. Many examples produced, ibid.

Poetry in use among all nations from the remotest antiquity, Exod. xv. 1. Its advantages pointed out, ibid; Deut. xxxi. 19. Character of the Hebrew poetry; and its great superiority, in many respects, over that of any other nation, Isa. ii. 13–16.

Poison, trial by, a species of ordeal among the Hindoos, Num. v., in fine.

Poison of serpents supposed by the ancients to consist in their gall, which is thought to be copiously exuded when these animals are enraged, Job xx. 16.

Polygamy tolerated under the Mosaic dispensation, 2 Sam. v. 13. Shown to be unnatural, and what could not have entered into the original design of God, ibid; Mal. ii. 14, 15.

Polytheism, in some of its branches, so utterly contemptible, that it became an object of ridicule among the more serious heathens, Psa. cxv. 4. Quotation of a remarkable passage from Juvenal to this effect, ibid.

Poole, (Matthew) account of this commentator, General Preface, pp. 7, 11.

Pools, Maundrell's description of the supposed remains of those made by Solomon for the reception and preservation of the waters of a spring, Isa. i. 30.

Popilius, remarkable anecdote concerning this Roman legate, Dan. xi. 30.

Porte, the, why the Ottoman court was probably so named, Isa. xxix. 21.

Postdiluvian patriarchs, table of the great discrepances in the Hebrew, Samaritan, and Septuagint copies, with respect to the times they are stated to have lived before their sons' birth, Gen. v. 3.

Potter's wheel, description of the, Jer. xviii. 3.

Præster, terrible effects of the bite of the, as described by Lucan, Num. xxi. 6.

Prayer, observations on, Psa. lxxxviii. 2. Citation of a very remarkable passage from the Iliad upon this subject, ibid.

Prayers to angels and departed saints, examination of a passage in the Psalms which the Romanists allege in favour of, Psa. cxxxviii. 1.

Preaching from a text, probable origin of, Neh. viii., in fine.

Precession of the equinoxes, quantity of the, in 4138 years, Job ix., in fine. The precession caused by a very slow revolution of the celestial poles around the poles of the ecliptic, Psa. xix. 5. See Equinoctial points, precession of the.

Predestination, unconditional, to eternal life and to eternal death, cannot be supported by the example of God's dealings with Jacob and Esau, or their posterity, Gen. xxv. 23, xxvii. 28–40, et in fine; xxix. 31; Mal. i. 3.

Presents to the great indispensable in Eastern countries, Isa. lvii. 9. When accepted by the superior, a certain pledge of favour, Gen. xxxiii. 10. Offered with very great ceremony, Judg. iii. 18. Numerous examples in Homer and other ancient writers of presents of arms and clothing made by warriors to each other in token of friendship, 1 Sam. xviii. 4.

Prevent, acceptation of this term among our English ancestors, Psa. xxi. 3. Whence derived, ibid.

Pride ever makes its possessor unhappy, Esth. v. 13. Examples produced, ibid.

Prideaux's account of the monies of different nations, Exod. xxxix. 24.

Priesthood, Jewish and pagan, none eligible to the, that had any sort of blemish, Lev. xxi. 17–21.

Priestley, (Rev. Dr.) author of a useful commentary on the Scriptures, General Preface, p. 9.

Primasius, of Utica, account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 4.

Primogeniture, rights generally supposed to have been attached to, in ancient times, Gen. xxv. 31.

Prisoners of the earth, Dr. Blayney's observations on the import of this phrase, Lam. iii. 34.

Privy seal of many of our sovereigns appears to have been inserted in their rings, Esth. iii. 9.

Probation, nature of a state of, defined, Num. v. 4.

Proclamation of T. Quintius, declaring freedom to the Grecian cities, and the effect it had upon the inhabitants, as related by Livy, Psa. cxxvi. 1.

Prophecies of Jeremiah, Ezekiel, and Daniel, chronological arrangement of the, see chronological tables.

Prophecy of Isaiah against Babylon, one of the most beautiful examples that can be given of elegance of composition, variety of imagery, and sublimity of sentiment and diction, Isa. xiii., in principio.

Prophecy concerning Nineveh, related by Diodorus Siculus, Nah. ii. 6.

Prophet, what this word imports in different parts of the sacred oracles, Gen. xx. 7; 1 Sam. x. 5; 1 Kings xviii. 29; 1 Chron. xxv. 1, 2. Celebrated prediction of Moses of a prophet like unto himself, Deut. xviii. 15–19. Many reasons advanced to show that this prophecy was fulfilled in Jesus the Christ, Deut. xviii., in fine, xxxiv. 10.

Prophetic song of Isaiah upon the overthrow of Babylon, see Ode.

Prophetical symbols, explanation of the, Introduction to Isaiah.

Prophets, probably employed by the kings under whom they lived to compile the annals of their reigns, Preface to the two books of Chronicles. Succession of prophets in the Jewish Church, Introduction to Isaiah. Chronological arrangement of the major and minor prophets, ibid. Dr. Smith's summary view and explanation of the writings of the prophets, ibid. Manner in which the prophets were generally clad, ibid. Former and latter, how divided by the Jews, Zech. vii. 7.

Propter viam, a heathen sacrifice, in what it consisted, and whence probably derived, Exod. xii. 10.

Proselyte, derivation and import of the word, Exod. xii. 43. Distinction between proselytes of the gate, and proselytes of justice, or of the covenant, ibid.

Prosopopœia, a figure of rhetoric very frequent in Scripture, Gen. l. 25; Lev. xviii. 25; Isa. xiii., in principio; Jer. ii. 33, ix. 17; Lam. i. 4; Hos. ii. 22; Zech. xiii. 7.

Prosperity and adversity shown to be no marks either of the Divine approbation or disapprobation, Job ix. 24, xlii., in fine.

Proverb, its derivation and import, Introduction to Proverbs. A collection of Asiatic proverbs extracted from Galand's Maximes des Orientaux, Prov. xxxi., in fine.

Providence, general and particular, doctrine of, Esth. iv. 14; Psa. xcvii. 1.

Providentia, Cicero's definition of this Latin word, Psa. xcvii. 1.

Psalms, book of, why called by the Hebrews סִפְרֵי תְהִלִּים Sepher Tehillim, Introduction to the Psalms. General division of this book, ibid. Table of the differences in dividing the Psalms between the Hebrew text and the ancient versions, ibid. Compilation of the book, and the authors to whom the Psalms have been attributed, ibid. Classification of the Psalms as they stand in our common version, ibid. Chronological arrangement of the book of Psalms, ibid. Psalms which contain no note or indication of the time when written, ibid. Psalms composed by David while persecuted by Saul, ibid. Psalms composed after the commencement of the reign of David, and after the death of Saul, ibid. Psalms composed during the rebellion of Absalom, ibid. Psalms written between the rebellion of Absalom and the Babylonish captivity, ibid. Psalms composed during the captivity, ibid. Psalms written after the Jews were permitted by the edict of Cyrus to return to their own land, ibid. General observations on the great difference of character, between the Hebrew poets and those of Greece and Italy, ibid. Manner in which several of the Psalms appear to have been composed, ibid. On the use made of the Psalms in the New Testament, ibid. On the subject matter of the Psalms, and the method of applying them, ibid. On the particular subject and use of each Psalm, ibid. General use of the Psalms in the Christian Church, ibid. Observations on the metrical version of the Psalms by Sternhold and Hopkins, and on that by Dr. Brady and Nahum Tate, ibid. Reasons for the great discrepances between the Psalms in the Prayer Book, called The Reading Psalms, and those in our authorized version, ibid. Anglo-Saxon version of the one hundred and fourteenth Psalm, with a literal reading, line for line, as near to the Saxon as possible, to show the affinity of the languages, Psa. cxiv., in fine. Psalms which constitute the Great Hallel, Psa. cxiii., in principio.

Psalter, why the book of Psalms is so named, Introduction to the Psalms.

Psaltery of ten strings, singular reason given by Eusebius why this instrument was used by David in celebrating the praises of God, Psa. xcii. 3.

Psylli, a people of Libya, whose peculiar property, according to Lucan, was to be unhurt by the bite of serpents, Isa. xxviii. 15.

Pudding, description of this large collar of iron fastened to the feet of slaves, Job xiii. 27.

Puffendorf's excellent remarks concerning the manner of the king which God directed Samuel to show to the Israelites, 1 Sam. viii. 9.

Punctures indelibly made on different parts of the body both by ancients and moderns, Isa. xliv. 5, xlix. 16.

Punon, the thirty-fifth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, where situated, Num. xxxiii. 42.

Pupil of the eye described, Eccles. xii. 3. Why so named, ibid.

Purim or feast of lots, for what purpose instituted, Exod. xxiii. 14; Esth. ix. 26. Manner in which the Jews at present celebrate this festival, Esth. x., in fine. Part of the ceremony performed by the ancient Jews ordered to be discontinued by the emperors Theodosius and Justinian, and why, Esth. v., in fine, x., in fine.

Purpura, a kind of shell-fish from which the famous Tyrian purple is supposed to have been obtained, Exod. xxv. 4; Prov. xxxi. 22.

Purver, (Anthony) author of an English translation of the whole Scriptures, with critical notes, General Preface, p. 8.

Pushtoo, the language of the Afghans, has a manifest resemblance to the Chaldaic, 2 Kings xvii. 6.

Pyramids of Egypt, conjecture respecting their origin, Exod. i. 11. Pliny's account of the time taken up in the erection of one of the pyramids, and the number of men employed, 1 Kings vi., in fine.

Pyrocis, one of the horses of the sun, according to the pagan mythology, signification of the name, 2 Kings ii. 11.

Pythagoreans accustomed to calm their minds, and sooth their passions, by singing, and playing upon the harp, 2 Kings iii. 15.

Pythius the Lydian, immense wealth of this individual, according to Herodotus, Esth. iii. 9.

Q.

Quails, Hasselquist's account of flocks of these birds which he saw in Egypt, Num. xi. 31. Allusion, in the book of Job, to the quails which God showered down upon the murmuring Israelites pointed out, Job xx. 23, &c. The quail considered by the ancient Egyptians an emblem of safety and security, Exod. xvi. 13.

Quaker, thoughts concerning the affirmation of a, in a court of judicature, Deut. vi., in fine.

Queen of Sheba or queen of the south, who was contemporary with Solomon, called Balkis by the Arabians, and Maqueda by the Abyssinians, 1 Kings x. 1.

Quenching the light of Israel, what intended by this phrase, 2 Sam. xiv. 7, xxi. 17.

Querns, among our Saxon ancestors, what, Judg. xvi. 21.

Quesnel, remarks upon his Moral Reflections on the New Testament, General Preface, p. 5.

Quintius, (T.) proclamation by this Roman general of freedom to the Grecian cities at the time of the Isthmian games, and the extraordinary effect the words of the herald had on the inhabitants, as related by Livy, Psa. cxxvi. 1.

R.

Rabanus Maurus, account of this very voluminous commentator, General Preface, p. 4.

Rabbinoo Isaioh, account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 2.

Rabdomancy, explanation of this species of divination, Hos. iv. 12.

Rabsaris, the name of an office, and not of a person, according to Calmet, 2 Kings xviii. 17.

Rabshakeh, the name of an office, and not of a person, according to Calmet, 2 Kings xviii. 17.

Rahab, generally called the harlot, inquiry into her character, and reasons advanced to show that the original word translated harlot should rather be rendered a tavern-keeper, Josh. ii. 1.

Raiment, shaking of the, what it imported among the ancient Jews, Neh. v. 13.

Rain, how produced, Gen. ii. 6; Exod. ix. 27; Job xxxvi. 27; Eccles. i. 7. Rain, according to St. Jerome, never falls in Judea in the time of harvest, 1 Sam. xii. 17 Times of the former and latter rain, Jer. iii. 3, v. 24.

Rainbow, origin and nature of the, Gen ix. 13. Reasons for believing that this phenomenon was of as frequent occurrence before as after the flood, ibid. Quotations from Homer and Virgil to show that both the Greeks and Romans considered the rainbow as a Divine token or portent, Gen. ix. 17.

Rakesh, רֶכֶשׁ, rendered dromedaries, probably means post-horse, 1 Kings iv. 28.

Rakia, רָקִיעַ, translated firmament, proper meaning of the term, Gen. i. 6.

Ram, a sacred animal among the Egyptians, Exod. viii. 26. Eusebius's reasons for this, ibid. Rams with red or violet-coloured fleeces often mentioned by ancient writers, Exod. xxv. 5.

Rameses, the same with Goshen, Gen. xlvi. 28, 34, xlvii. 23.

Ramoth, one of the cities of refuge, import of the name, Josh. xx. 7.

Ranges for pots, description of an Arabian custom to which this expression has an allusion, Lev. xi. 35.

Rape of the Sabine women, substance of Livy's account of the, Judg. xxi., in fine.

Raphelius, (G.) an eminent Biblical critic, General Preface, p. 12.

Rash judgments, doubly pernicious, 2 Sam. vi. 22.

Rashim, רָאשִׁים, a degree of civil distinction among the Hebrews, Josh. xxiii. 2.

Rorens, arguments to show that Elijah was not fed by these birds, as stated in our English version, but that the Hebrew word עֲרֵבִים orbim, is probably the name of a people tha lived in or near Arabia, 1 Kings xvii, in fine.

Rebellion against the state, act of, defined, Judg. iii., in fine; Ezra iv. 19.
Rechabites, short sketch of their history, Jer. xxxv. 2.
Red heifer, remarks upon several curious particulars respecting the ordinance of the, Num. xix. 2.
Red Sea, conjecture why so named, Exod. x. 19; Num. xxiii. 10. Description of its two gulfs, ibid. Observations upon the miraculous separation of its waters in the time of Moses, Exod. xiv. 21, et in fine. The sixth station of the Israelites in the wilderness was in the vicinity of this sea, Num. xxxiii. 10. Manifest allusion, in the book of Job, to the miraculous passage of the Israelites through the Red Sea, Job xxvi. 12.
Redeemer of blood, who, among the Jews, Num. xxxv. 19.
Redemption of the first-born, a rite still practised among the Jews, Num. xviii. 16. How performed, according to Leo of Modena, ibid.
Refraction, observations on the nature of, 2 Kings xx., in fine. Extraordinary refraction of the rays of light in Nova Zembla in the year 1596, ibid.
Rehoboam, Houbigant's conjecture relative to the age of this prince at the commencement of his reign over Judah, 2 Chron. xii. 13.
Religion, in its pure state, the strongest bulwark of the state, 1 Chron. xxvi., in fine. Definition of true religion, Gen. ix. 20; Prov. i. 7.
Remes, רמש, translated creeping thing, inquiry into its import, Gen. i. 24.
Remigius of Auxerre, a commentator on the twelve minor prophets, General Preface, p. 4.
Rending the clothes, a mark of deep affliction and distress among the ancients, Josh. vii. 6; 1 Sam. iv. 12; Ezra ix. 3; Job i. 20, ii. 12; Jer. xvi. 6.
Renominatus, derivation and import of this Latin term, Gen. vi. 4.
Rephaim, valley of, celebrated for its plentiful harvest, Isa. xvii. 5. Used poetically for any fruitful country, ibid.
Rephidim, the tenth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, Num. xxxiii. 14.
Reprobation, unconditional, doctrine of, demonstrated to be a lie against all the attributes of Deity, Psa. cxlv. 9; Jer. xviii. 6.
Responsive songs, frequent among the ancient Jews, Isa. vi. 3, xxvii. 2, xl. 9.
Restitution, doctrine of, Gen. xlii., in fine.
Resurrection of the dead, doctrine of the, a popular and common doctrine among the Jews long before the advent of our Lord, Isa. xxvi. 19, xlv. 8.
Retiarius, among the Romans, who, Job xix. 6; Mic. vii. 2.
Reuben, import of the name, Gen. xxix. 32.
Revelation of God, particular explanation of the various terms employed to point out different properties of the, Lev. xxvi. 15; Psa. cxix., in principio.
Reverend, and most reverend, observations on these ecclesiastical titles, Psa. cxi. 9.
Revolutions, periodic and sidereal, of the sun, moon, and planets, Gen. i. 1. Periodic and synodic revolutions of the satellites of Jupiter, Saturn, and the Georgium Sidus, ibid.
Riblah, where this ancient city was situated, Jer. xxxix. 5.
Rice, method practised by the ancients of sowing this grain, Eccles. xi. 1; Isa. xxxii. 20.
Rice, trial by, a species of ordeal among the Hindoos, Num. v., in fine.
Riches, instances of immense, possessed by some of the ancients, Esth. iii. 9.
Ricinus or Palma Christi, account of the, as given by Celsus, Jonah iv. 6.
Ricknild or Icknild-street, where situated, Job xxiii. 11.
Riddles or enigmas, customary among the ancient Greeks to propose such at entertainments, and to give a recompense to those who found them out, Judg. xiv. 14. Examples of Greek enigmas, with their solutions, ibid. From what the English word riddle is derived, Ezek. xvii. 2.
Ridorus, (C. Cæcilius) immense wealth of this individual, Esth. iii. 9.
Righteous and righteousness, true etymology of these words, Psa. xii. 8. Their import, ibid.
Rimmon, a Syrian idol, possibly the same with the Remphan of the New Testament, 2 Kings v. 26. Supposed by Selden to be the same with Elion, a god of the Phœnicians, ibid. Other suppositions, ibid.
Rimmon-parez, the fifteenth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, Num. xxxiii. 19.
Ring of Saturn, its perigeal and apogeal distances, diameter, time of rotation, and inclination of axis to the orbit of the planet, Gen. i. 1.
Rings of gold, ensigns of civil power among the ancients, Psa. lxxiii. 6.
Rissah, the seventeenth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, Num. xxxiii. 21.
Rithmah, the fourteenth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, where situated, and why so named, Num. xxxiii. 18.
River of the pool, see Pallacopas.
Robe of the Jewish high priest, description of the, Exod. xxviii. 4, 31.
Rock in Horeb, some account of the, Exod. xvii. 6; Psa. cv. 41. Its present appearance, ibid.
Rock of a sword, meaning of this phrase, Deut. viii. 8.
Rolls of the Jews, bow made, and in what manner written upon, Jer. xxxvi. 2; Ezek. ii. 9, 10.
Roman moneys, table of the, Exod. xxxviii. 24.
Rome, Ovid's account of the ceremonies used in laying the foundations of the walls of the city of, Neh. xii. 27.
Ropes of great strength made in Ireland of the fibres of bog-wood, or the larger roots of the fir, Judg. xvi. 7. Ropes made of the leaves of the flag by the Egyptians, Job viii. 11.
Rotations of the sun, moon, and planets, in what times performed, Gen. i. 1.
Rough garments of the ancient prophets, some account of the, Zech. xiii. 4.
Royal river, see Nahurmalca.
Ruach, רוח, various opinions concerning the meaning of this word, Gen. i. 2; Eccles. iii. 21.
Ruby, some account of the oriental, Job xxviii. 18. Its component parts, Job xxxviii. 38.
Rushn Achter's extraordinary fortune as expressed in a Persian couplet, Eccles. iv. 15.
Ruth, book of, uncertain by whom written, Preface to Ruth. Sum of its history, ibid.
Rutty, (Dr. John) extract from his Spiritual Diary, Introduction to the Psalms.

S.

Saady, beautiful couplet in this poet, in which the work of total desolation is most forcibly expressed, Job xviii. 15.
Saba, reservoir of, description of this stupendous work of antiquity, Isa. i. 30. By whom supposed to have been constructed, ibid.
Sabbath, observations on the institution of the, Gen. ii. 3. Rigorous observances of this day by the ancient Jews, Exod. xvi. 29.
Sabbatus, Houbigant's excellent observations on the remarkable fulfilment of the prophecy that the land of Israel should enjoy her Sabbaths in a state of desolation which the Israelites had profaned in the time of their prosperity, Lev. xxvi. 34.
Sabbatical year, reasons for its institution, according to Calmet, Exod. xxiii. 11.
Sabeans, from whom descended, Gen. xxv. 3. In the opinion of Bruce, a distinct people from the Ethiopians, 1 Kings x. 1.
Sabeism, in what this idolatrous system of religion consisted, Job xxxi. 26.
Sabine women, account of the rape of the, Judg. xxi., in fine.
Sacceans, from whom thought to have descended, Gen. xxv. 2.
Sack, שק, a word that has passed into a great number of languages, Job xvi. 15.
Sackbut, why this musical instrument was probably so named, Dan. iii. 5.
Sacred hieroglyphics, explanation of the, Introduction to Isaiah.
Sacrifices, design of the, under the Mosaic economy, twofold,

Gen. ix. 20. No genuine religion could ever possibly exist without sacrifice actually offered or implied, ibid.

Sakar, שֵׁכָר, the same with the date or palm wine, according to Theodoret and Chrysostom, Isa. v. 11, xxiv. 9.

Salam, sacredness of this word of salutation among the Arabs, Gen. xxxvii. 4; 1 Sam. x. 4

Salisbury, ancient city of, was not situated where the modern city of the same name now stands, Josh. xvi., in fine.

Salonius, bishop of Vienna, account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 4.

Salsaria, salsolo, or saltwort, an extensive genus of plants, Job xxx. 4.

Salt, an essential ingredient in all offerings, Jewish or pagan, Lev. ii. 13.

Salt, sowing a place with, a custom in different nations to express permanent desolation and abhorrence, Josh. ix. 45. Some examples produced, ibid.

Salt Sea, where situated, Gen. xix. 45; Num. xxxiv. 3.

Salutation, various forms of, Gen. xxix. 6, xxxvii. 4, xliii. 29, xlviii. 20; 1 Sam. x. 4.

Samaria, slight sketch of its history, 1 Kings xvi. 24. Its modern appellation, Isa. xxviii. 1.

Samaritan text, some account of the, General Preface, p. 20.

Samaritan version, character of the, General Preface, p. 20.

Samaritans, their present condition, according to Baron Sylvestre de Lacy, 2 Kings xvii. 27.

Samiel, a pestilential east wind, 1 Kings xx., in fine.

Samson, why probably so named, Judg. xiii. 24. Sketch of his character, Judg. xvi., in fine.

Samuel, derivation and import of the name, 1 Sam. i. 28. Sketch of the character of this prophet, 1 Sam. xxv., in fine.

Samuel, books of, very uncertain by whom written, Preface to 1 Samuel. Calmet's conjecture concerning, ibid. Several reasons advanced to show that the twenty-first chapter of the second book of Samuel, as it stands in the Hebrew, is in a state of great corruption, 2 Sam. xxi., in fine.

Sanctification, Scripture doctrine of, Exod. xiii. 2.

Sanctuary, a part of the tabernacle, why so named, Exod. xxv. 8. Its typical import, ibid.

Sandal tree, some account of the, Num. xxiv. 6.

Santeer, an Egyptian instrument of music, probably the same with the psaltery, Dan. iii. 5. Dr. Russel's description of it, ibid.

Sapphire, description of this precious stone, Exod. xxiv. 10; Job xxviii. 16; Ezek. i. 26.

Saracens, memorable defeat of the, by the Spaniards, Ezek. xxxix. 9.

Sarah, wife of Abraham, import of her name, Gen. xvii. 5. In what this name possibly differs from Sarai, ibid.

Sarbal, סַרְבָּל, rendered hat, what its real import, Dan. iii. 21.

Sarcasm, remarkable example of this figure of speech, Ezek. xxxv. 6.

Sard, some account of this precious stone, Job xxviii. 16.

Sardius, description of this precious stone, Exod. xxviii. 17.

Sardonyx, account of this precious stone, Job xxviii. 16.

Sarepta or Zarephath, its present condition according to Maundrell, 1 Kings xvii. 9.

Saris, סָרִיס, import of this word, Gen. xxxviii. 36.

Satan, שָׂטָן, Σατανας, meaning of this word, 1 Kings v. 4, xi. 14; Job i. 6, 7. Not found in the plural number in the originals of the Old and New Testaments, and the reason assigned, Job. i. 6. Observations on the permission given to this great adversary to tempt man, Job xiii., in fine.

Satellites of Jupiter, Saturn, and Herschel or the Georgium Sidus, tables of their motions, distances, &c., Gen. i. 1. Radii of the orbits of these satellites in parts of the ecliptic, as seen from the earth, when their primaries are at their mean distances from, and in quartile aspect with, the sun, Gen. i. 1. See Orbit.

Saturn, periodic and sidereal revolutions, semimajor axis of orbit in English miles, mean perigeal and apogeal distances, diameter, proportional bulk, time of rotation, inclination of axis to orbit, mass, and mean hourly orbitical motion, of this primary planet, Gen. i. 1.

Saul, his tragical end, with a sketch of his character, 1 Sam. xxxi. The appearance of Samuel to this king after the prophet's death shown to have been wholly independent of the incantations of the witch of Endor, 1 Sam. xxviii 14.

Saul's malady, Dr. Scheuchzer's theory respecting, 1 Sam. xvi. 14.

Saurin's singular apostrophe to Louis XIV., when treating of the banishment of the Protestants from France by the revocation of the edict of Nantz, 2 Sam. ii. 5.

Sauromates, from whom descended, according to Calmet, Gen. x. 3.

Scale, Ainsworth's conjecture concerning the derivation of this word, Gen. xx. 16.

Scape-goat, ceremonies concerning the, and its very expressive typical import, Lev. xvi.

Scaurus, (M.) valuation of his furniture which was burnt at Tusculum, Esth. iii. 9.

Sceptre, swearing by the, usual among the ancients, Num. xvii. 8. Quotations from Homer and Virgil illustrative of the form of this oath, ibid.

Sceptre of gold worn by the ancient princes of Persia, Esth. v. 2. Citation from Xenophon in illustration of this, ibid.

Scheuchzer, (Dr. I James) author of an elaborate work on the natural history of the Bible, General Preface, p. 9.

Sciences and arts, the late amazing and extraordinarily rapid discoveries and improvements in every department of the, shown to be not the effect of chance, but the result of a most gracious providence of God in behalf of his intelligent offspring, Exod. xxviii. 3.

Schism in religion defined, Josh. xxii., in fine.

Schoettgenius, (Christian) author of Horæ Hebraicæ et Talmudicæ in Universum Novum Testamentum, General Preface, p. 7.

Schultens, (Albert) a commentator on the book of Job, General Preface, p. 7.

Scinocephalus, an animal peculiarly sacred to the ancient Egyptians, 2 Kings xvii., in fine. Of what it was reputed hieroglyphical, and for what purpose kept in their temples, ibid.

Scoffers, manner in which they turned into ridicule the warnings of God by his prophets, Isa. xxviii. 9.

Scorpion, a military weapon among the Romans, why so named, 1 Kings xii. 11.

Scotch woman, remarkable anecdote of a, Job xxxiv. 28.

Scott, (Rev. T.) author of a very useful commentary on the Scriptures, General Preface, p. 9.

Scriptures, how divided by the Jews, Zech. vii. 7.

Scythians, whence they had their origin, Gen. x. 2. The gog of Ezekiel, according to Houbigant, Ezek. xxxviii. 2.

Seah, what this Hebrew measure contained, according to Bishop Cumberland, Gen. xviii. 6. See also Exod. xvi. 16.

Sealing up transgression in a bag, what meant by this expression among the ancients, Job xiv. 17.

Seals, for sealing clay, frequent in the East, Job xxxviii. 13. Description of six of these seals in the author's possession, ibid.

Seasons of the year, time of their commencement, according to the Copts, Gen. vii. 22.

Sebaste, the ancient Samaria, Isa. xxviii. 1. Maundrell's account of its situation, ibid.

Secondary planets, revolutions, distances, magnitudes, &c., of the, Gen. i. 1.

Sectarian marks of the ancients and moderns, some account of the, Lev. xix. 28. More largely explained, Deut. xxxii. 5; Isa. xliv. 5, xlvi. 16; Ezek. ix. 4.

Sections of the law, table of the, as read in the different Jewish synagogues for every Sabbath of the year; in which are incorporated the haphtaroth or sections of the prophets, as they are appointed to be read in the synagogues of the Portuguese and Italian, and the German and Dutch Jews, Deut. xxxiv., in fine. To determine the order of the reading the pareshioth and haphtaroth for any given Jewish year, the following tables, inserted at the end of the notes on Deuteronomy, have been carefully constructed:—I. A perpetual table, showing, through the course of thirteen lunar cycles (which embrace every possible variation) the day of the week with which the Jewish year begins and on which the passover is held; as also the lengths of the months Marchesvan and Cisleu. The radix of this table is the rabbinical year of the world 5568, corresponding with A. D. 1807, 1808. II. A table containing the whole variations in the reading of the pareshioth for every year (embolismic and common) of the Jewish cycle of 247 years. III. and IV. Tables to determine upon what day of the week any Jewish month commences for any given year, as also the day of the week upon which the Jews celebrate their principal fasts and festivals. V. Table containing the order of reading the pareshioth and haphtaroth for ninety Jewish years, i. e., from A. M. 5572 to A. M. 5661, (both inclusive,) connected with the corresponding dates in the Christian era according to the Gregorian or New Style. VI. Table containing the year of the Jewish lunar cycle, the golden number, the first day of the Jewish passover, Easter Sunday, and the commencement of each Jewish year, according to the Gregorian calendar, from A. D. 1812 to A. D. 1900 (both inclusive.)

Secutor, among the Romans, who, Job xix. 6; Mic. vii. 2.

Sedulius Hybernicus, account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 4.

Seed of the woman, an epithet applicable only to our blessed Lord, and why, Gen. iii. 15.

Seedtime at Aleppo, when it begins and terminates, Amos ix. 13.

Seer, what intended by this word, 1 Sam. ix. 9; Introduction to Isaiah. The words seer and prophet not altogether synonymous, 1 Sam. ix. 9.

Seething a kid in its mother's milk, observations on this very ancient heathen custom, Exod. xxiii. 19.

Segor, סגור, what it imports, Job xxviii. 16.

Selah, various conjectures respecting the meaning of this word, Psa. iii. 2. Probably a nota bene, or note of attention, Psa. iii. 2, iv. 2, 4, vii. 5, ix. 16, &c.

Selavim, שלוים, rendered quails, observations of Harmer and others relative to the import of the original term, Exod. xvi. 13.

Self-idolatry, instances of, from ancient authors, Hab. i. 16.

Semiramis, account by Diodorus Siculus of the marches of this monarch into Media and Persia, Isa. xl. 3.

Seneca, citation of a passage from the Octavia of, very similar to a verse in the Psalms, Psa. lv. 7.

Senir, where this mountain is situated, Ezek. xxvii. 5. Its Sidonian and Hebrew name, ibid.

Sennacherib, king of Assyria, in what manner the destruction of his immense army was probably effected, 2 Kings xix. 35.

Sennachies, among the ancient Celtic inhabitants, who, Num. xxi. 27.

Sepharad, various conjectures respecting the place intended by this name, Obad. 20.

Sepharvites, probably the same with the Saspires of Herodotus, 2 Kings xvii., in fine.

Sepher, ספר, rendered book, meaning of the original word, Gen. v. 1.

Septuagint version, great importance of, to every minister of the word of God, General Preface, p. 13; Esth. x., in fine. When made, General Preface, p. 21; Psa. cii. 15; Isa. lxvi., in fine.

Sepulchres of the ancients, account of the, Isa. xxii. 16, liii. 9.

Sepulture, forms of among the Hebrews, 1 Sam. xxxi. 12.

Serab, derivation and import of this Arabic word, Isa. xxxv. 7.

Sesostris, in erecting temples all over Egypt, did not employ a single Egyptian in the work, 1 Kings ix. 21. This king supposed by some to have been the same with Shishak, who was contemporary with Solomon, 1 Kings xi. 40.

Seven, a number of perfection or completion among the Hebrews, Exod. xxix. 30; Psa. cxix. 164; Zech. iv. 2.

Seventy weeks of Daniel, Dean Prideaux's remarks on the, Dan. ix. 24, &c. Collection of various readings in the different MSS. of this very celebrated prophecy, Dan. ix., in fine.

Sexdigitism, examples of, in ancient and modern times, 2 Sam. xxi. 20 An instance of this sort known to the author, ibid.

Shaal, שאל, unhappily rendered borrow, what its real signification, Exod. iii. 22.

Shadow on the dial of Ahaz probably brought back by means of refraction, 2 Kings xxi., in fine. Reasons for this supposition, ibid.

Shadrach, import of this name, Dan. i. 7.

Shah we Guddah, remarkable couplet in a Persian poem so entitled, Psa. xxvii. 9.

Shaking of the nations spoken of by Haggai, observations of a correspondent relative to the, Hag. ii., in fine.

Shalashim, שלשים, inquiry into the import of this word, 2 Sam. xxiii. 13, 24.

Shalom, a term frequent in Hebrew salutations, its import, Gen. xxix. 6, xxxvii. 4.

Shapher, the nineteenth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, Num. xxxiii. 23.

Sharp, (Dr.) archbishop of York, singular anecdote respecting, Job xxiv., in fine.

Shaving the head, in Eastern countries, a token of a person having abandoned Christianity and turned Mohammedan, Deut. xxi. 12.

She-bear, remarkable instance of affection in a, 2 Sam. xvii., in fine. Observations on the destruction of forty-two persons by two she-bears in the time of Elisha, 2 Kings ii. 23.

Shechem, one of the cities of refuge, import of the name, Josh. xx. 7.

Shechinah, what, Exod. xxv. 22.

Sheep at Aleppo, Dr. Russel's account of the, Lev. iii. 9.

Sheked, שקד, why the amygdalus communis, or common almond tree, was so named by the Jews, Num. xvii. 8.

Shekel of the sanctuary, before the captivity, equal in weight to three hundred and twenty grains of barley, Gen. xx. 16; after the captivity, to three hundred and eighty-four grains, ibid. Its value according to Prideaux, Gen. xxxii. 15, xxxvii. 28; Exod. xxv. 39, xxx. 13, xxxix. 24.

Shem, Dr. Hales' account of the political condition of the descendants of, Gen. ix. 20. Remarkable prophecy concerning the Messiah, of whom Shem was appointed to be the lineal ancestor, ibid.

Sheol, שאל, what this word imports, Num. xvi. 30; Job vii. 10, xxiv. 19; Ezek. xxxii. 21; Hos. iii. 14.

Shephatim, שפטים, its derivation and import, Lev. xxvi. 15.

Shepherd, sentiment of a, as related by Virgil, when enraptured with the elegy which his associate had composed on their departed friend, Hos. xiv. 5.

Shepherd, (Miss Mary Freeman) her observations on the genealogy of Job, and the time in which he is thought to have lived, Preface to Job.

Shepherds, an abomination among the ancient Egyptians, and why, Gen. xlvi. 34.

Shepherds of the people, ποιμενες λαου, a title given by the ancient Greeks to sovereign princes, 2 Sam. v., in fine.

Sherah, daughter of Ephraim, why so named, according to the Targum, 1 Chron. vii. 24.

Sheshbazzar, probably the Chaldean name of him who was originally called Zerubbabel, Ezra i. 8. Corruption of the sacred text relative to the number of sacred vessels of the temple which were restored to Sheshbazzar, Ezra i. 11.

Shetum, שתם, falsely rendered in our English version, Num. xxiv. 15.

Shew-bread, why probably so named, Exod. xxv. 30. Observations concerning the shew-bread, Exod. xxv. 30.

Shiagal, howlings of the, by night most lamentable, Mic. i. 8.

Shibboleth, its import, and in what it differed in meaning and sound from Sibboleth. Judg. xii. 6.

Shibto, שבטו, his rod, the ט teth in this word written large in the Masoretic Bibles, and the curious reason assigned for this circumstance, Job ix. 34.

Shichor, why the Nile is so named by the Hebrews, Isa. xxiii. 3.

Shields of beaten gold, made by Solomon, calculation of their value in British sterling, 1 Kings x. 17; 2 Chron. ix., in fine.

Shiggaion, שגיון, import of this word, Psa. vii., in principio.

Shiloh, derivation and import of this word, Gen. xlix. 8–10. Demonstrated, when taken in connection with the context, to be applicable to Jesus Christ ALONE, who is in a very peculiar sense the SENT of God. Gen. xlix. 8–10.

Shinar, the ancient name of Babylon, Dan. i. 2

Ships of Tarshish, used metonymically for ships in general employed in carrying on traffic between distant countries, Isa. ii. 13–16.

Shittim wood, different opinions concerning the import of the original term thus rendered, Exod. xxv. 5.

Shiver, this word evidently derived from the Hebrew word שבר shabar or sharor, Psa. li. 17.

Shoeing of horses with iron plates nailed to the hoof, unknown to the ancients, Isa. v. 28. Description of the horseshoes of leather and iron sometimes mentioned by ancient writers, ibid.

Shoes, pulling off the, an emblem of laying aside the pollutions contracted by walking in the way of sin, Exod. iii. 5. General agreement among Eastern nations to perform all their acts of worship barefooted, ibid.

Shoes of matting, or rushes, always worn by the Egyptian priests, Ezek. xliv. 17.

Shomeron, the same with Samaria, 1 Kings xiii. 32, xvi. 2.

Shopher, שופר, a species of musical instrument, Psa. lxxxi. 3.

Shophetim, שופטים, a degree of civil distinction among the Hebrews, Josh. xxiii. 2. See also the Preface to the book of Judges.

Shoshabin or Paranymph, see Paranymph.

Shoshanim, שושנים, import of this term, Psa. xlv., in principio.

Shoterim, שוטרים, a degree of civil distinction among the Hebrews, Josh. xxiii. 2. In what the Shoterim differed from the Shophetim, Deut. xvi. 18; Josh. i. 10.

Shrub we krub, a beautiful rill of water that runs into a basin of Roman workmanship, Judg. v. 11. Why so named, ibid.

Shual, שועל, rendered fox, inquiry into the precise import of the original term, Judg. xv. 4. Dr. Kennicott's arguments to show that Samson's destruction of the standing corn of the Philistines was not effected by three hundred foxes with one hundred and fifty firebrands, but by three hundred handfuls or sheaves of corn, and one hundred and fifty firebrands, ibid. Reasons for rejecting the doctor's hypothesis, ibid.

Shuner, (Agnes) extraordinary longevity of this woman, Psa. xc., in fine.

Shushan-eduth, import of this term, Psa. lx., in principio.

Sibbah, סבה, inquiry into the import of this term, 1 Kings xii. 15.

Sibyl, Cumean, Virgil's description of the seat of the, Isa. xlv. 17.

Sidon, סדן, whence supposed to be derived, and its import, Prov. xxxi. 24. The mother city of Tyre, Isa. xxiii. 4.

Sikera, Σικερα, the same with the date or palm wine, according to Theodoret and Chrysostom, Isa. v. 11. See Sakar.

Silence, a species of reverence paid by the retinue, viziers, foreign ambassadors, &c. of an Asiatic sovereign when he goes to the mosque on any of the great festivals, Hab. ii. 20.

Siloah, brook of, where situated, Isa. viii. 6, 7.

Silver, account of the purification of, by the cupel. See Cupel.

Silver cord, what to be understood by this phrase, Eccles. xii. 6.

Simeon, import of this name, Gen. xxix. 33. The tribe of Simeon generally believed among the Jews to have been schoolmasters to the other tribes, Gen. xlix. 7.

Simoom or smoom, account of this very destructive Eastern wind, Gen. xli. 6; Deut. xxviii. 22.

Simple, whence this word is derived, Prov. i. 4. Striking contrast between its ancient and modern acceptation, ibid.

Sin, import of this word, Judg. xx. 16; 1 Sam. xvii. 49; Job v. 24. Doctrine that there is no total deliverance from sin in this life stated and refuted, 1 Kings viii. 46.

Sin, wilderness of, the seventh station of the Israelites in the wilderness, where situated. Num. xxxiii. 11.

Sinai, whence this name is probably derived, Exod. iii. 1.

Sinai, wilderness of, the eleventh station of the Israelites in the wilderness, where probably situated, Num. xxxiii. 15.

Sincere, derivation and import of the term, Gen. xvii. 1; Phil. i. 10.

Sistrum of Egypt, description of the, Isa. xviii. 1. This musical instrument given in a medal of Adrian as the proper attribute of Egypt, ibid. In shape somewhat like the ancient lyre, ibid.

Sitting, common manner of, in Eastern countries, Isa lii. 2. Account of the Asiatic mode of sitting in state, ibid.

Sitting on the ground, a token of sorrow among the ancients, Gen. xxxiii. 3; Job i. 20, ii. 13; Isa. iii 26

Skins of the sacrifices appertained to the priests among both Jews and Gentiles, Lev. vii. 8. The heathen priests lay upon them in their temples in hope to have future things revealed to them in their dreams, ibid. This superstition prevails to the present day in the Highlands of Scotland, ibid.

Slaves employed in the Brazils to search for particles of gold and diamonds; and by a law of the state, he who finds a diamond of a given number of carats obtains his liberty, Prov. i. 4.

Slave trade, remarks on this odious traffic, Lev. xxii. 10; Hab. ii. 12.

Sleep of the soul, from the moment of the death of the body till the resurrection, a doctrine which cannot be legitimately deduced from the sacred oracles, Job xiv. 12.

Sling, a very ancient warlike instrument, Judg. xx. 16. The inhabitants of Majorca and Minorca the most famous slingers of antiquity, ibid. Observations respecting the velocity of the ball projected from the sling, ibid. From what distance, according to Vegetius, expert slingers could in general hit the mark, ibid. Description of the sling that was in use among the Greeks and Hebrews, 1 Sam. xvii. 40. Quotation from Diodorus Siculus to show the great destructiveness of the missiles discharged by skilful hands from the slings, 1 Sam. xvii. 49.

Slot or track of the hart, observations on the, Psa. xvii., in fine.

Sloth, passage from the celebrated fable of, by Prodicus, describing the transparent garments of the ancients, Isa. iii. 23.

Sluggard, remarks on Solomon's very beautiful and instructive parable of the, Prov. xxiv. 30, et seq.

Smiting upon the thigh, a usual sign of deep affliction, Jer. xxxi. 19. Two quotations from the Iliad in illustration of this, ibid; Ezek. xxi. 12.

Smoom, see Simoom.

Snare or toils, account of the, among the ancients, Isa. xxiv 17, 18.

Snow, general definition of, Job xxxvii. 6. Mode of its formation, ibid. Appearance of a flake of snow, as seen through a magnifying glass, ibid. To what the whiteness and lightness of snow are owing, ibid. The immediate cause of the formation of snow not well understood, ibid. Snow an especial blessing of Providence in northern countries, ibid.

Snow houses in use in the East, Prov. xxv. 13.

Snow water, supposed by the ancients to have a more detergent quality than common water, Job ix. 30.

Soap, what known at present by this name probably unknown to the ancients, Mal. iii. 2.

Sofas of the Asiatics, account of the, Isa. lii. 2.

Solar light, how much it exceeds that of the full moon, Gen. i. 14. Dr. Herschel's very probable hypothesis that the solar light, abstractedly considered, is not the cause of heat, but that heat is the result of the action of the rays of light upon the atmosphere, Gen. i. 16.

Solar system, general view of the, Gen. i. 1; Psa. viii. 3.

Solomon, son of David, the commencement of the reign of this monarch inauspicious, 1 Kings iii. 1. His marriage of Pharaoh's daughter shown to have been a direct violation of the law of God, ibid. His decision of the case brought before him by the two tavern-keepers a proof of his sound wisdom, penetration, and acquaintance with human nature, 1 Kings iii. 25. Great extent of Solomon's kingdom, 1 Kings iv. 21. In what the great wisdom of Solomon consisted, 1 Kings iv. 29–33. Reasons advanced to show that this king was probably the writer of the book of Job, Preface to Job. The Iliad of Homer supposed by some to have been the work of Solomon, ibid. Solomon's dreadful apostacy, 1 Kings xi. 1, &c. Sketch of his reign and character, 1 Kings xi., in fine.

Solomon's throne, curious account of the, extracted from a Persian manuscript, 2 Chron. x., in fine.

Solon, law of, excluding natural children from the paternal inheritance, Gen. xxv. 6. His law respecting lost property, Lev. vi. 3.

Somerhill, (Mrs.) remarkable longevity of this woman, Psa. xc., in fine.

Son, among the Jews, was the title of a disciple or scholar, Prov. i. 8.

Son of man, import of this phrase when applied to a created being, Ezek. i. 3; when applied to our Lord Jesus Christ, ibid.

Song of Deborah and Barak, Kennicott's and Hales' observations on the, Judg. v., in fine. Their versions of it in collateral columns, ibid.

Song of Moses, celebrating the discomfiture of the Egyptian host, and the miraculous passage of the Israelites through the Red Sea, the earliest specimen of epic poetry extant, Exod. xv. 1. Observations on the song which Moses composed a short time before his death, Deut. xxii., in fine.

Song of Solomon, various opinions respecting this composition, Introduction to Solomon's Song. Harmer's view of the design of the Canticles, ibid. Considered by some as a regular drama, ibid. Dr. Mason Good considered the Canticles as a collection of sacred idyls, twelve in number, ibid. Scheme of the idyls, according to this celebrated critic, ibid. See Canticles.

Songs, sacred and profane, in great repute from very remote antiquity, Exod. xv. 1; Deut. xxxi. 19. The record of things of great importance, and of common concern, whether in verse or prose, generally sung by the ancients, Deut. xxxi. 19.

Sophocles, passage in the Antigone of, very similar to one in the book of Psalms, Psa. cxxi. 4.

Sophonites, a people mentioned by Ptolemy, whence they probably had their name, Deut. i. 1.

Sophronia, anecdote concerning, as given by Tasso in the Gerusalemme Liberata, Josh. ii., in fine.

Sorek, valley of, where situated, Isa. v. 2. The vine of Sorek known to the Israelites, ibid.

Soul, doctrine of the materiality of the, has no place in the sacred records, Job xiv. 12.

Sound, how produced, Job xxxvii. 4. Its rate of travelling, ibid., xxxviii. 26.

Sovereigns of Persia, their affectation of the highest degrees of majesty, and even of Divine honours, Esth. iv. 11.

Sparks, criticisms on the Hebrew words thus rendered, Job v. 7.

Spears in very ancient times used by kings instead of diadems, and consecrated to the gods, 1 Sam. xviii. 11, xxvi. 12.

Speech of ghosts, probable origin of the popular notion that this was a weak, stridulous, almost inarticulate sort of sound, Isa. xxix. 4.

Spinal marrow, or medulla oblongata, the silver cord of Scripture, Eccles. xii. 6.

Spirit, existence of an immaterial and immortal, in man, demonstrated, 1 Kings xvii. 22.

Spirits, remarks on the evocation of, 1 Sam. xxviii. 11, et in fine.

Spitting in any one's presence, a high offence among the Medes and Persians, Isa. l. 6.

Spitting upon the ground, in speaking of any one's actions, an expression throughout the East of the utmost detestation, ibid.

Spoils won in battles, customary among most people to dedicate a portion of these to the divinities to whom their successes have been attributed, 1 Chron. xxvi. 27.

Sponde, Σπονδή, why this Greek word means both a covenant and a libation, Isa. xxx. 1.

Stacte, account of this gum, Exod. xxx. 34.

Stag, incredible longevity attributed to some of these animals, Job. xxxix. 1. Remarkable inscription on a collar which was upon the neck of one taken by Charles VI. in the forest of Senlis, ibid.

Standing before the Lord, meaning of this phrase, Josh. xx. 9.

Star, the supposition that Balaam's prophecy of a star to arise out of Jacob has a reference to the supernatural meteor which guided the magi to the place of our Lord's nativity, highly improbable, Num. xxiv. 19.

Stars, (fixed) with very great probability supposed to be suns, similar to that which occupies the lower focus of our system, Gen. i. 16. Dr. Herschel's very ingenious theory concerning the fixed stars, ibid. Number of stars that can be seen with the naked eye in both hemispheres, Deut. i. 10. Reflections upon the inconceivable multitude of stars scattered throughout the vast immensity of space, Deut. x. 14.

Stars in their courses fighting against Sisera, what probably meant by this phrase, Judg. v. 20.

Στεφανοφοροι, why the priests and priestesses among the ancient Greeks were so named, Exod. xxxix. 30.

Στερεωμα, the Septuagint translation of the Hebrew word רקיע rokia, shown not to contain the sense of the sacred text, Gen. i. 6.

Stibium or antimony, employed in Asiatic countries to the present day in staining the eyes, 2 Kings ix. 30; Isa. iii. 16; Jer. iv. 30. Waring's account of this custom among the Persians, 2 Kings ix. 30. The Romans used stibium for the same purpose, according to Cyprian, ibid.

Stiff neck, Bruce's remarks on the ancient custom to which the original thus rendered is supposed to have an allusion, Psa. lxxv. 5.

Στιγματα of the ancients, what, Lev. xix. 23.

Stile, construction of the, with which the ancients wrote on boards thinly spread over with wax, 2 Kings xxi. 13.

Stomachs of the ox, description of the, and their particular uses, Lev. xi. 3.

Stone which Jacob set up for a pillar, foolish tradition concerning, Gen. xxviii. 18. Stone by which a Jewish criminal was stoned to death, why buried with him in the same grave, Isa. xv. 19.

Stones which Joshua set up as a memorial of the passage of the Israelites through the Jordan, Dr. Kennicott's remarks concerning the, Josh iv. 9.

Stoning, Dr. Lightfoot's observations on the punishment of, among the Jews, Zech. xii. 3.

Στωπυρα, why the few persons who are said to have survived the deluge of Deucalion are so named, 2 Sam. xiv. 7.

Stories in the heavens, observations on this remarkable expression, Amos ix. 6.

Storm, Virgil's description of the, that dispersed the fleet of Æneas, Psa. cvii. 26, et in fine.

Strabo, or Walfridus Strabus, account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 4.

Straw, various conjectures concerning the use of, in making brick, Exod. v. 7.

Street, derivation of the word, Job xxiii. 11. Some account of the four grand Roman or British streets or roads which intersected this kingdom, ibid.

Stripping a man of his gown, the form of degradation from ecclesiastical offices among Roman Catholics and others, Num. xx. 26.

Substantive verb, a very frequent acceptation of the in the Hebrew, Chaldee, and Chaldæo-Syriac languages, Gen. xl. 12.

Succoth, whence this place was probably so named, Exod. xii. 37; Num. xxxiii. 5; Josh. xiii. 27. The first station of the children of Israel after their departure from Egypt, Num. xxxiii. 5.

Succoth-benoth, an object of idolatry among the Babylonians, 2 Kings xvii. 30, et in fine. Conjectures respecting the meaning of the name, ibid. Very probably the same with the Melitta of Herodotus, ibid.

Suffetes, the chief magistrates of the Carthaginians were so called, and why, Amos ii. 3.

Sukkiims, the same with the Troglodytes, 2 Chron. xii. 3.

Sulphur, uses of, natural and superstitious, according to Pliny, Ovid, and Servius, Job xviii. 15.

Sultan, conjecture respecting the origin of this word, Gen. xlii. 6.

Summer parlour of Ehud, observations concerning the, Judg. iii. 20.

Sun, its amazing magnitude, telescopic appearance, &c., Gen. i. 16; Psa. viii. 3. An object of idolatrous worship among heathen nations, Exod. xii., in fine; Judg. viii. 21. Form used by the Egyptian priests in addressing the sun on behalf of a deceased person, that he might be admitted into the society of the gods, according to Porphyry, ibid. Standing still of the sun and moon at the command of Joshua explained agreeably to the Newtonian system of the universe, Josh. x. 11. Perigeal and apogeal distances, relative volume, time of rotation, and mass or attractive power, of this great luminary of day, Gen. i. 1.

Sundials, general observations on the invention and construction of, 2 Kings xx., in fine.

Supernatural directions and assistances, so frequent in ancient times, why not communicated now, 2 Sam. v., in fine.

Suphah, סכה, a Hebrew word in which sense and sound are well expressed, Prov. i. 27.

Supper, why named cœna by the Romans, according to Plutarch, Job xxxi. 17.

Susa or Shuster, the Shushan of Scripture, Neh. i. 1; Esth. i. 2.

Suvarrow, character of this late Russian general, 1 Kings ii. 25.

Swearing, remarks upon the form of, by putting the hand under the thigh, Gen. xxiv. 9.

Sword by which a Jewish criminal was beheaded, why buried with him in the same grave, Isa. xv. 19.

Sword and arrow, metaphorically applied to powerful speech, Isa. xlix. 2.

Sycamore, whence the name is derived, 1 Kings x. 27. The ancient Egyptians made their coffins of the wood of this tree, Psa. lxxviii. 47. Barques constructed by the modern Egyptians of sycamore wood, ibid.

Syene, where situated, Ezek. xxix. 10. Its modern name, ibid. Famous for a well into which the rays of the sun fell perpendicularly at midday, ibid.

Symbols of Scripture, explanation of the, Introduction to Isaiah.

Symmachus, a translator of the Hebrew Scriptures into Greek, some account of, General Preface, p. 21.

Symphonia, Συμφωνεια, what, Dan. iii. 5.

Synagogues, or places for religious worship among the Jews, shown to have been in existence long before the Babylonish captivity, Psa. lxxiv. 8.

Syracuse, account of the temporary preservation of this city by Archimedes, Eccles. ix. 14.

Syriac version of the Old Testament, some account of the, General Preface, p. 21.

T.

Tabernacle, description of the, Exod. xxvi. 1–37. Calculation of the total value and weight of all the gold, silver, and brass, contributed by the Israelites for the service of the tabernacle, Exod. xxxviii. 24.

Tabernacles, feast of, how celebrated, Exod. xxiii. 14.

Tabor, Maundrell's description of this mount, and of the beautiful prospect from its summit, Judg. iv. 6.

Tadmor in the wilderness, universally allowed to be the same with the celebrated Palmyra, 1 Kings ix. 18.

Taghairm, Sir Walter Scott's account of this Highland superstition, Isa. lxv. 8.

Tahapanes or Tahpanhes, a city of Egypt, the same with Daphne, Jer. ii. 16, xliii. 7. According to Jerome, the place where Jeremiah was stoned to death, Jer. xliii. 7.

Tahath, the twenty-second station of the Israelites in the wilderness, Num. xxxiii. 26.

Taisnier, author of a famous work on chiromancy, Job xxxvii. 7.

Talc, its derivation and import, Exod. v. 8.

Talent of gold among the Hebrews, what was its value, Exod. xxxviii. 24. Valuation of the Babylonish talent of gold and silver, ibid. Calculation of the value, in British standard, of the 120 talents of gold which the queen of Sheba gave to King Solomon, 2 Chron. x., in fine. Valuation of the six hundred and sixty-six talents of gold that came to Solomon in one year, 1 Kings x. 14; 2 Chron. ix., in fine.

Talmud of Babylon, account of the, General Preface, p. 2.

Talmud of Jerusalem, account of the, General Preface, p. 2.

Tambellit, Sir John Chardin's account of the, Gen. xlii. 25.

Tammuz, see Thammuz.

Tanered, banner of, what, Psa. lx., in fine.

Tanneenim, תנינים, translated whales, inquiry into the import of this word, Gen. i. 21.

Tarah, the twenty-third station of the Israelites in the wilderness, Num. xxxiii. 27.

Targets of beaten gold, calculation of the value of the two hundred which Solomon put in the house of the forest of Lebanon, 2 Chron. x., in fine.

Targum on the two books of Chronicles, attributed to R. Joseph the Blind, account of the, General Preface, p. 2; Preface to the two books of Chronicles.

Targum, or Chaldee paraphrase on Solomon's Song, given at full length, Song of Solomon, in fine.

Targum ascribed to Jonathan ben Uzziel, account of the, General Preface, p. 2.

Targum Yerushlemey, account of the, General Preface, p. 1.

Tarrentes, Vinsauf's account of, Exod. viii. 16.

Tarshish, the place to which Jonah attempted to flee, various conjectures where situated, Jonah i. 3. Dr. Jubb's reason for thinking that to go to Tarshish and to Ophir is one and the same thing, Isa. ii. 13–16.

Tartak, an object of idolatrous worship among the Avites, 2 Kings xvii., in fine. Whence the name is probably derived, according to Parkhurst, ibid. What the emblem of this idol, according to the Jews, ibid.

Tartan, the name of an office, and not a person, according to Calmet, 2 Kings xviii. 17.

Tartars or Tatars, their origin, Gen. x. 2.

Tartarus or hell, opinion of the ancients respecting, Job xxvi. 6.

Tatian, author of a Harmony of the Four Gospels, General Preface, p. 3.

Tatnai's letter to Darius, remarks on, Ezra v., in fine.

Tau, the last letter of the Hebrew alphabet, why probably so named, Psa. lxxviii. 41. Its form on the ancient Samaritan coins still extant, Ezek. ix. 4.

Taylor, (Dr.) remarkable reply of, to his persecutors, Job xix. 22.

Tebeth, תבת, rendered ark, what it properly signifies, Gen. vi. 14.

Teeth, description of the, Eccles. xii. 4. Names and usea of the three kinds of, in the human subject, ibid.

Tehaphnehes, Tahpanhes, or Tahapanes, the same with the Pelusian Daphne, Ezek. xxx. 18. See Tahapanes.

Telesm, corruptly called talisman, whence derived, and what it signifies, Num. xxxiii. 41; 1 Sam. vi., in fine. Description and reported virtues of several telesms, 1 Sam. vi., in fine.

Temple, Dr. Delaney's remarks on the Divine original of the architecture of the, 1 Chron. xxviii. 18. Reflections on the spoliation of the temple by Titus, Exod. xxv. 31.

Temple of Solomon, dimensions of the, in English measure, 1 Kings vi. 2. Reason why neither hammer, axe, nor any tool of iron, was suffered to be heard in the temple during the time of its building, 1 Kings vi. 7. Its description and history, according to Calmet and Josephus, 1 Kings vi., in fine.

Temple of Diana at Ephesus, some account of this celebrated edifice, 1 Kings vi., in fine.

Tent, portable, a necessary part of a traveller's baggage in countries subject to violent tempests, Isa. iv. 6.

Tents, feast of, a pagan festival of antiquity, in imitation of the Jewish feast of tabernacles, Lev. xxiii. 34.

Teraphim, various opinions concerning the, Gen. xxxi. 19; 1 Sam. xviii. 13; Isa. ii. 8.

Terebinth tree, the אלה, ellah of Isaiah, according to Celsius, Isa. i. 29, 30.

Terminus, see Landmark.

Terror or formido, description of the, used by the ancients in hunting, Isa. xxiv. 17, 18.

Tertullian, quotation of a remarkable passage from, to show that the heathens borrowed many of their religious rites from the Hebrews, Exod. xxvii., in fine. Quotation from a work against the heretic Marcion, attributed to Tertullian, respecting Gideon's three hundred men who were victorious over the Midianites, Judg. vii. 20.

Thammuz or Tammuz, probably the same with Adonis, Ezek. viii. 3. Meaning of the name, Ezek. viii. 14.

Tharafah, an eminent Arabic poet, Psa. lx., in principio.

Theb, anecdote of a prince who was required to pronounce this word, Judg. xii. 6.

Thebais, mountains of the desert of, described, Deut. xxxii. 10.

Thebes, city of, the No of Jeremiah, see chap. xlvi. 25. Whence the fable respecting the manner of its being built probably originated, 2 Chron. xxxiv.

Theocracy, the political state of the Jews, before the reign of Saul, Judg. iii. 10; 1 Sam. viii. 5.
Theodotion, a translator of the Hebrew Scriptures into Greek, some account of, General Preface, p. 21.
Theodulus of Cœlesyria, a commentator on the Epistle to the Romans, General Preface, p. 4.
Theophilus of Antioch, a commentator on the Four Gospels, General Preface, p. 4.
Theophylact, account of this commentator, General Preface, p. 4.
Θεος, several citations from the Septuagint in which this word with the article prefixed has the import of Θεε, O God, Psa. xlv. 8.
Thomas, import of this name, Gen. xxv. 24.
Thraciuns, from whom descended, Gen. x. 2.
Three, a mystical number in Scripture, according to Ainsworth, Gen. xxii. 4.
Three and four times, a mode of expression among the ancients, denoting abundance and excess, Amos i. 3. Several examples produced, ibid.
Threshing, different ways of, in use among the Hebrews, and the manner of performing them, Isa. xxviii. 27, 28.
Threshing-floors, Cato's directions in the construction of, 1 Sam. xxiii., in fine. How to be constructed, according to Columella, ibid.
Throne, description of a, by Athenæus, Isa. lii. 2.
Throne of Solomon, curious account of the, extracted from a Persian manuscript, 2 Chron. x., in fine.
Thunder and lightning, according to the pagans, the mode by which Jupiter testified his approbation of the sacrifices offered to him, Lev. ix. 23.
Thunder clap, how caused by the lightning, Job xxxviii. 26. Illustrated by an easy experiment on the air pump, ibid.
Thunder cloud, rule by which its distance from the spectator of the lightning issuing from it is calculated, Job xxxvii. 4.
Thyrsus of Bacchus, fable of the, evidently borrowed from the story of the rod of Moses, Exod. iv. 17.
Tiberius Cæsar, remarkable saying of, Mic. iii. 1.
Tides, phenomena and cause of the, Job xxxviii. 11.
Tiglath-pileser, king of Assyria, supposed by Prideaux to have been the same with Arbaces, called by Ælian Thilgamus, and by Usher Ninus junior, 2 Kings xv. 29.
Tigris, account of a very remarkable overflowing of this river, Introduction to Nahum. See chap. ii. 6.
Time, אדן idden, and מועד moad, thus rendered in our common version, the prophetic symbol for a year, Dan. iv. 16, vii. 25, xii. 8.
Tin, method adopted in Cornwall of purifying this metal from all its dross, Jer. xxiii. 29.
Tippoo Sultan, description of a seal of, in the author's possession, Esth. iii. 9.
Tirshatha, probably the name of an office, Ezra ii. 63; Neh. viii. 9.
Titans, fable of the, Job xxvi. 5; Hesiod's description of Jupiter fighting against the Titans, one of the grandest things in all pagan antiquity, Psa. xviii. 7.
Tithes, disquisition concerning, Gen. xxviii., in fine; Ezek. xliv. 28.
Tithing the sheep, manner of, among the Jews, Ezek. xx. 37; Zech. xi. 7.
Titles given to the sovereigns and great men of the East extremely pompous, Job xxxii., in fine. Some examples produced, ibid.
Titus, triumphal arch of, particular description of the devices and inscription on the, Exod. xxv. 31.
Tobh, טוב, generally translated good, inquiry into its import, Gen. i. 10.
Toga prætexta, description of this Roman vestment, Gen. xxxvii. 3.
Toga virilis or toga pura, account of the, Gen. xxxvii. 3.
Togarmah, what people possibly meant by this name, Ezek. xxvii. 14.
Togatus, why this word is employed in speaking of a Roman, 1 Kings xix., in fine.
Tohoo, תהו, and bohoo, בהו, translated "without form and void," inquiry into the import of these words, Gen. i. 2. The names of the Syrian and Egyptian gods Theuth and Baü, probably borrowed from these terms, ibid.
Toleration, unlimited, in religious matters, should be allowed under the Christian dispensation, and why, Num. xv. 14.
Tombs of the dead very sacred among the ancients, Neh. ii. 5.
Toozuki Teemour, beautiful saying in the, quoted, Deut. xxxii. 24; Lam. iii. 12.
Topaz, description of this precious stone, Exod. xxviii. 17; Job xxviii. 18, 19. Where found in abundance, according to Diodorus Siculus, Job xxviii. 19.
Toph, תף, its import, Exod. xv. 20; 1 Sam. x. 5; Job xxi. 12; Psa. lxxxi. 2.
Tophet, Jerome's account of, 2 Kings xxiii. 10. Derivation of the name, according to the rabbins, ibid. Farther description, Isa. xxx. 33.
Torah, תורה, its derivation and import, Exod. xii. 49; Lev. xxvi. 15.
Toston, (Peter) extraordinary longevity of this man, Psa. xc., in fine.
Transpositions in the Hebrew text, some instances of, Isa. vii. 4, viii. 12; Jer. xxiv. 1.
Trap to catch rats, foxes, &c., particular description of the, Amos iii. 5.
Treading of cattle, a method employed by the ancients in separating the corn from the ear, Isa. xxviii. 27, 28.
Tread-mill, in this country, the revival of an ancient employment for slaves, Isa. xlvii. 2.
Tree, accounted by the Jews as accursed and polluted, on which a malefactor had been executed, or on which he had been hanged after having been put to death by stoning, Isa. xv. 19.
Tree of the knowledge of good and evil, observations concerning the, Gen. ii. 9.
Tree of life, observations on the, Gen. ii. 9, iii. 19.
Trees, remarkable longevity of some species, Isa. lxv. 22. Extravagant notions of the Chinese respecting what they call the immortal tree, ibid. Trees in very ancient times frequently served for the temples of the gods, Judg. iii. 7.
Trefoil, this herb said to have been the means of fully convincing the learned Erasmus of the truth of the doctrine of the Trinity, Eccles. iii. 14.
Tremellius, author of a Latin version of the Hebrew Bible, with critical notes, General Preface, p. 6.
Trial by jury, one of the greatest ornaments of the British constitution, Gen. xxxvii. 36.
Trinity, doctrine of the, shown to be a doctrine of Scripture, Gen. i. 1, 26; Deut. vi. 4; Isa. xlviii. 16.
Troglodytes, who, Isa. ii. 13–16.
Troy, calamities of, described by Virgil under imagery similar to what Jeremiah employs in narrating the miseries of Jerusalem, Lam. i. 20.
Trumpets, feast of, why so named, and when celebrated, Exod. xxiii. 14.
Tryphon, human beings sacrificed to, in several cities of Egypt, according to Plutarch, Exod. xii., in fine.
Tsach, צחח, a memorial symbol of the rabbins, Masoretic notes at the end of Leviticus.
Tsahar, צהר, rendered window, of very doubtful signification, Gen. vi. 16.
Tsal, צל, literally importing to overspread or overshadow, how metaphorically applied, Num. xiv. 9.
Tse, צא, import of this word among the Jews, when employed as a memorial symbol, Masoretic notes at the end of Genesis.
Tseba, צבא, host or army, inquiry into the meaning of the original term, Gen. ii. 1.
Tsebi, צבי, Dr. Shaw's opinion relative to the meaning of this Hebrew word, Deut. xii. 15.
Tsidekah or Tsidekath, צדקה, its derivation and import, Lev. xxvi. 15. A beautiful paronomasia on this word, Isa. v. 7
Tug, a species of cord among the Irish, how manufactured, and for what purposes employed, Judg. xvi. 7.
Tumeet, a species of food, how prepared, 2 Sam. xvii. 28.
Tumuli or barrows, in England, what, 2 Sam. xviii. 17. To make the tumulus still more elevated and conspicuous, a pillar or some other ornament was often erected upon it, Isa. liii. 9.
Turkish couch, description of a, Song iii. 10.
Tutelar deity, among heathen nations, every city said to have a, Jer. ii. 28. The tutelary saints of the Romanists a copy of this pagan superstition, ibid.

Twilight, how caused, 2 Kings xx., in fine; Job xxxviii. 12; Prov. iv. 18.
Tympanum, description of this musical instrument, Gen. xxxi. 27.
Typhon, the evil demon, worshipped among the Egyptians, Num. xix. 2. Formerly customary to sacrifice red bulls to appease this divinity, ibid.
Tyre, some account of this celebrated city of antiquity, and its great vicissitudes of fortune, Josh. xix 29; Ezek. xxv., xxvi., xxvii.; Isa. xxiii. Why called the daughter of Tarshish, Isa. xviii. 10.

V.

Ugab, עוּגָב, rendered organ, what it imports, Gen. iv. 21; Job xxi. 12; xxx. 31.
Ulai, the same with the Eulæus, a river which divided Shushan or Susiana, from Elymais, Dan. viii. 2.
Ulaloo or Ullaloo, the funeral song of the Irish, Isa. lii. 5.
Umbilical cord, the medium by which the fetus receives its nourishment while in the womb of its mother, Prov. iii. 8; Song vii. 2; Ezek. xvi. 4.
Ungodly, definition of this word, Psa. i. 1. In what it differs in import from sinner and scornful, ibid.
Unicorn, what animal probably intended by the Hebrew word so translated, Num. xxxiii. 22; Deut. xxxiii. 17; Job xxxix. 9. The animal like a horse, with one long rich curled horn growing out of his forehead, commonly called the unicorn, shown to be wholly fabulous, Job xxxix. 9. Very curious passage in an old Psalter respecting this animal, Psa. xxii. 21.
Uniformity of worship, absolute necessity of, under the Mosaic economy, Deut. xii. 14. Why not so necessary under the Christian dispensation, ibid.
Uninterrupted succession, boasted of in the Romish Church, a mere fable, Ezek. xxxiv. 23, 24.
Universe, thoughts on the vast immensity of the, 1 Kings viii. 27; Amos ix. 6.
Upper garments, customary in the East to pull off the, in times of deep mourning, Exod. xxxiii. 5.
Ur, account of this very ancient city of Chaldea, Gen. xi. 31. Its primitive inhabitants generally supposed to have been ignicolists, ibid.
Urim and Thummim, various conjectures concerning, Exod. xxviii. 30. Inquiry into the mode of consultation by, ibid.; Josh. vii. 14; 1 Sam. xxviii. 6.
Urnæ Lachrymales, see Lachrymatories.
Urns containing the ashes and half-calcined bones of the dead, of frequent occurrence in barrows or tumuli in this country, 2 Chron. xvi., in fine; Jer. xxxiv. 2.
Usury, observations concerning, Exod. xxii. 25; Psa. xv. 5. The Jews remarkable for usury and usurious contracts, ibid.
Uxor, why a married woman was so called among the Romans, Song v. 5.
Uz, the country of Job, where probably situated, Preface to the book of Job, and chap. i. 1.

V.

Valerianus, how this Roman emperor was treated by Sapor, king of Persia, Isa. li. 23.
Vallancy, (General) his ingenious hypothesis that the twelve patriarchs are resembled to the twelve signs of the zodiac, Gen. xlix., in fine. The asterism belonging to each patriarch, ibid.
Valley of vision, what meant by this expression, Isa. xxii., in principio.
Van of the ancients, what, Isa. xxx. 28.
Vasco de Gama, a celebrated Portuguese navigator, who recovered the passage round the Cape of Good Hope after it had been intermitted and lost for many centuries, Isa. ii. 13–16.
Vates and poeta, synonymous terms among the Romans, Gen. xx. 7.
Veeheych, וְאֵהֵיךָ, import of this memorial symbol of the rabbins, Masoretic notes, end of Leviticus.
Vegetable creation, astonishing power with which God has endued its different species to multiply themselves, instanced in the elm, Gen. i. 12.
Veil of the Eastern women, description of the, Song iv. 1
Veil of the tabernacle, description of the, Exod. xxvi. 31. Its great costliness, ibid.
Veil on the face of Moses, its typical import, Exod. xxxiv. 32.
Veil to shade the court, of what form, Isa. xl. 22.
Vein of lives, a phrase probably alluding to the great aorta in the human system, Psa. xxxvi. 9.
Velo hathmahmaheti, רֹאשׁ הַתְמַהְמַהְתִּי, inquiry into this oxpression of the psalmist, Psa. cxix 60.
Vena cava, the fountain of Scripture, why so named, Eccles xii. 6.
Venema, (Hermann) author of a commentary on the Psalms and Malachi, General Preface, p. 10
Venite, exultemus Domino, a Psalm long used in the Christian Church towards the commencement of public service, Psa. xcv., in principio. Parts of which it is composed, according to Houbigant and others, ibid.
Ventriloquism of the ancients, as described by Psellus, Isa. xxiv. 4
Venus, formerly customary for women to appear in armour in their worship of this idol, Deut. xxii. 5. Prostitutes publicly kept in the temple of Venus Melytta, whose gains were applied to the support of her abominable worship, Deut. xxiii. 18; 2 Kings xvii. 30. Conjecture respecting the origin of the name of this idol, 2 Kings xvii. 30.
Venus, revolutions as measured by the equinoxes and fixed stars, mean distance from the sun, perigeal and apogeal distances, diameter, relative volume, time of rotation, mass, and mean hourly orbitical motion, of this primary planet, Gen. i. 1.
Vermilion, whence produced, according to Pliny, Isa. i. 18
Vespasian, description of the coin struck by this emperor at the capture of Jerusalem, Isa. iii. 26; Lam. i. 1.
Vestry, the places where the sacerdotal robes and pontifical ornaments are kept, whence the word is derived, 2 Kings x. 22.
Vesuvius, some account of the eruption of, in A. D. 79, Gen. i., in fine.
Vetaron, הֵתֶרֶן, import of this Jewish memorial symbol, Masoretic notes at the end of Joshua.
Vicarious sacrifices, after the similitude of the Jewish scapegoat, have been common among most ancient nations, Lev xvi. 10.
Victim of the heathens being brought without reluctance to the altar considered by them a good omen, and vice versa, Isa. lx. 7.
Victimæ optimæ or chief sacrifice, what the pagans so considered, according to Pliny, Lev. i. 2
Victor of Antioch, a commentator on St. Mark's Gospel, General Preface, p. 4.
Vile person, definition of the Hebrew word thus rendered, Isa. xxxii. 5.
Vine, when probably first cultivated, Gen. ix. 21. Mode adopted in its cultivation, Psa. lxxx. 8, &c. The vine formerly cultivated in Egypt for the sake of eating the grapes, not for wine, Isa. v. 2. The leaves of this tree often used by the Egyptians for wrapping up their mincemeat, Psa. lxxviii. 47. This tree very frequently used in a metaphorical sense in Scripture, Psa. lxxx. 8.
Vines, large trunks of the, in Persia, Isa. v. 2.
Vineyards of Tripoli, principally enclosed, according to Rauolf, with hedges of the rhamnus, paliurus, oxyacantha, &c., Isa. xxvii. 4
Vineyard tower of the ancients, what, Isa. v. 2.
Vintage at Aleppo, its time and duration, Amos ix. 13
Virgil's description of Neptune appeasing the storm raised by Juno for the destruction of the fleet of Æneas, Psa. xxix., in fine.
Virgin, see Almah.
Virtue, whence this word is derived, Prov. xii. 4.
Vision, Mr. Mason Good's remarks on the, related by Eliphaz the Temanite, Job iv. 13. Mr. Hervey's striking and natural illustration, ibid.
Vision, manner of, described, Eccles. xii. 3.
Vitringa, (Campegius) author of a comment on Isaiah, General Preface, p. 10.
Vitruvius's directions relative to felling of trees, 1 Kings v. 6.
Vitziliputzli, the supreme deity of the Mexicans, how represented, Exod. xxv., in fine.

Voice of the Lord, thunder frequently called by this name in Scripture, Exod. ix. 28; Job xxxix. 1; Psa. xxix. 3, &c.
Voleatius, the poet, according to Pliny, had six fingers on each hand, 2 Sam. xxi. 20.
Voltaire, examination of a passage of Scripture grossly misrepresented by this philosopher, Ezek. xxxix. 19.
Volumen, volume, why the Romans gave this appellation to a book, Ezek. ii. 9.
Volume, magnitudes, or bulks, of the sun, moon, and planets, compared with that of the earth, Gen. i. 1.
Vow, Ainsworth's definition of a, Lev. xxvii. 2. Enumeration of the different kinds of vow, Num. xxx. 2. Dr. Hales' observations on the vow of Jephthah, Judg. xi., in fine. Saying of Philo relative to rash vows, Num. xxx. 3.
Vulcan, a heathen deity, probably derived his name from Tubal-cain, the son of Lamech, Gen. iv. 22.
Vulgate, or Latin version of the Scriptures by Jerome, some account of the, General Preface, p. 22. See also Isa. lxvi., in fine. High veneration entertained by the Romanists for the Vulgate version of the Scriptures, Isa. lxvi., in fine.

W.

Wain, an instrument employed in threshing, Isa. xxviii. 27, 28. In what it differed from the drag, ibid.
Wall said to have fallen upon twenty-seven thousand Syrians, Dr. Kennicott's remarks concerning the, 1 Kings xx., in fine.
Walls of ancient cities in the East built of unbaked bricks, Ezek. xiii. 11; Mic. vii. 10.
Walls of the houses and gardens of Damascus, as described by Maundrell, Isa. xiii. 19.
Walls of the tombs of the kings and nobles of Egypt covered with figures of the ancient objects of idolatry, Ezek. viii. 10.
War, manner of the proclamation of, among the ancients, 2 Kings xiii. 17.
Warburton's judicious remarks on Solomon's multiplying horses, 2 Chron. i., in fine.
Wardrobes of the Asiatics, account of the, Isa. iii. 7. Isaiah's inventory of the wardrobe of a Hebrew lady, as explained by Shroeder, Isa. iii. 16.
Warfare, character of, in ancient times, Psa. cxxxvii. 9.
War song, Dr. Kennicott's remarks on a very ancient one of the Hebrews, Num. xxi. 17, 18, et in fine.
Washing the hands in token of innocence, an ancient rite among the Hebrews, Greeks, and Romans, Job ix. 30; Psa. xxvi. 6.
Watch, why a division in the seasons of darkness was so named, Exod. xiv. 24. Into how many watches the night was divided, ibid.
Watches in the East, how performed, Isa. xii. 6.
Watchmen in the temple, on constant duty, Isa. lxii. 6.
Water, constituent parts of, Gen. vii. 11; Job xxxviii. 26; Jer. x. 13. Decomposed by the galvanic fluid, Gen. viii. 1; Jer. x. 13. Expansive power of water in freezing, Job xxxvii. 10.
Water, pouring out of, in the way of libation, a religious ordinance among the Hebrews and other nations, 1 Sam. vii. 6. Deep penitential sorrow often represented under the notion of pouring out water, ibid.
Water, trial by, a species of ordeal among the Hindoos, and the Bithynians and Sardinians, Num. v., in fine.
Watering the ground with the foot, what intended by this phrase, Deut. xi. 10; Psa. i. 3.
Waters of jealousy, rabbinical comment on the, Num. v., in fine.
Water-mills, not invented till a little before the time of Augustus, Isa. xlvii. 2.
Water-spouts, description of, Psa. xlii. 7. Frequent on the coast of Syria, ibid.
Watling-street, some account of, Job xxiii. 11.
Wealth, instances of astonishing, possessed by some of the ancients, Esth. iii. 9.
Wean, whence this word is derived, Gen. xxi. 8. Time for weaning children as fixed by the Koran, ibid.
Weights, anciently made of stone, Deut. xxv. 13. The standards of the Jewish weights and measures kept in the sanctuary, 1 Chron. xxiii. 29.

Wells, scarce in every part of the East, Judg. v. 11; Job xi 18. Esteemed a great virtue in the East to furnish thirsty travellers with water, Job xxii. 7.
Wells, (Dr. Edward) publisher of a New Testament in Greek and English, with notes, General Preface, p. 7.
Wench, various opinions concerning the derivation of this word, 2 Sam. xvii. 17.
Wesley, (Rev. John) author of Notes on the Old and New Testament, General Preface, p. 8.
Wesley, (Mrs.) mother of the late celebrated John and Charles Wesley, her character, Prov. xxxi. 29.
Wetstein, (J. James) a celebrated critic on the New Testament, General Preface, p. 7.
Wheel broken at the cistern, what meant by this phrase, Eccles. xii. 6.
Wheels of Ezekiel, observations upon this very remarkable vision, Ezek. i. 15–21, x., in fine.
Wheel carriages in use from very remote antiquity, Gen. xlv. 21, xlvi. 29.
Whirlwind, סוּפָה suphah, and סְעָרָה searah, indifferently thus rendered, in what they may possibly differ in import. Job xxxvii. 9, xxxviii. 1; Psa. lviii. 9; Prov. i. 27.
Whispering or chirping out of the dust, import of this phrase, Isa. xxix. 4.
Whit or wid, derivation and import of this old English word, 1 Sam. iii. 18.
Whitby, (Dr.) a very able commentator on the New Testament, General Preface, p. 8.
White asses or ass colts, riding upon, anciently the privilege of persons of high rank, Gen. xlix. 8.
Whoredom, the idolatries of the Jews very frequently so termed in the prophetical writings, 1 Chron. v. 25; Ezek. xvi. 23.
Wild ass, natural history of the, Job xxxix. 5–8.
Wild grapes, the Hebrew word so translated, in the opinion of Hasselquist, means the solanum incanum or hoary nightshade, known to the Arabs by the name of aneb el dib, Isa. v. 2.
Will, observations on the freedom of the, Psa. cx. 3; Prov. i. 10.
Wind-mills, an invention posterior to that of water-mills, Isa. xlvii. 2.
Wine, anciently the expressed juice of the grape, without fermentation, Gen. xl. 11. Method adopted by the inhabitants of the East in cooling their wines, Prov. xxv. 13. How the ancients preserved their wine, Song ii. 4. The wines of Egypt, according to Hasselquist, not the produce of its own vineyards, Isa. v. 2. Account of the mixed wine of the ancient Greeks and Romans, Isa. i. 22. Observations on the mode of the treatment of wines, Isa. xxv. 6.
Wine-presses in Persia, how formed, according to Chardin, Isa. v. 2.
Wing, an emblem of protection, Ruth iii. 9.
Winged cymbal, the same with the Egyptian sistrum, according to Bochart, Isa. xviii. 1.
Winnowing of grain, how formerly effected, Ruth iii. 2; Psa. i. 4. Nearly the same with that practised in various parts of England and Ireland before the invention of the winnowing machine, ibid.
Wisdom of Solomon, the sacred historian's resemblance of the extraordinary greatness of the, to the sand on the seashore, very beautifully illustrated by Lord Bacon, 1 Kings iv. 29.
Witches, consideration of the question whether the persons thus denominated only pretended to have, or actually possessed, the power commonly attributed to them, Exod. xxii. 18.
Withred, king of Kent, singular anecdote respecting, 2 Chron. ii. 11.
Wives of the conquered king the property of the conqueror, 2 Sam. xvi. 21.
Wizard, derivation and import of this word, Lev. xix. 31; Deut. xviii. 11. Wizard usually considered the masculine of witch, ibid.
Wolf, remarkable for its fierceness and quick sight, Hab. i. 8. Why the tribe of Benjamin was resembled to this animal, Gen. xlix. 27.
Wolf grapes, the same with the solanum incanum or hoary nightshade, Isa. v. 2.

Woman, inquiry into the derivation of the term, Gen. ii. 23. To be slain by a woman considered by the ancients a mark of great disgrace, Judg. ix. 54.
Women employed in Eastern countries in grinding the corn, Exod. xi. 5; Isa. xlvii. 2. Women, among the ancients, generally kept houses of entertainment, or in other words, were tavern-keepers, Josh. ii. 1. Several quotations from ancient writers in attestation of this circumstance, ibid. Women formerly employed in the tabernacle service, Exod. xxxviii. 8; 1 Sam. ii. 22. The announcing and celebrating of great events formerly performed by women, Isa. xl. 9.
Word, citations from the Targums in which מֵימְרָא meimra or word, is evidently used personally, Gen. xv. 1, xxvi. 5, xxxi. 3; Exod. iv. 12; Judg. i. 19; 1 Chron. v. 22, vii. 21, ix. 20, xvi. 2, xxi. 13, 15; 2 Chron. ii. 1, xiv. 11, xv. 2, xvii. 3, xx. 17, 20, 29, 37, xxi. 14, xxv. 7, xxvi. 16, xxviii. 3, xxxii. 8, 16, 21, 31, xxxiii. 13, 17, 18, xxxvi. 33; Job xlii. 10; Psa. xxiii. 4, lv. 16, lxviii. 16; Isa. xlv. 22.
World, this word sometimes used for land or country, Isa. xiii. 11., xxiv. 14.
Worlds, thoughts respecting the plurality of, Deut. x. 14; 1 Kings viii. 27.
Wormwood, figurative import of this word in Scripture, Deut. xxix. 18; Lam. iii. 15. A man grievously afflicted termed by an Arabic poet a pounder of wormwood, ibid.
Wotteth, its derivation and import, Gen. xxxix. 8.
Writing on the Egyptian papyrus, mode of, in ancient times, Num. ix. 1. Transpositions, errors of very easy occurrence, ibid. Account of the different modes of writing in the time of Job, Job xix. 23.

X.

Xerxes, immense wealth of this Persian monarch, Dan. xi. 3. His prodigious armament against Greece, ibid.
Xylophoria, a Jewish feast, for what purpose instituted, Exod. xxiii. 14; Neh. x. 34.

Y.

Yad, יָד, a Jewish memorial symbol, Masoretic notes at the end of Joshua.
Yagid, יָגִיד, a Jewish memorial symbol, Masoretic notes at the end of Deuteronomy.
Yam, יָם, rendered sea, its general import, Num. xxxiv. 6; Deut. xxxiii. 23; Josh. i. 4. Generally rendered in the Septuagint by θαλασσα, Num. xxxiv. 6.
Year, length of a tropical or natural, according to the computation of modern astronomers, Gen. i. 14.
Year of release, institution of the, Deut. xv. 1. The whole book of Deuteronomy appointed to be read at this time, Deut. xxxi. 10, 11. This precept appears to have been very little attended to by the Jews, ibid.
Yechaveh, יְחוָה, and yehegeh, יְהגֶה, import of these Jewish memorial symbols, Masoretic notes at the end of Exodus and Leviticus.
Yenachilam, יְנַחִילֵם, import of this Jewish memorial symbol, Masoretic notes at the end of Deuteronomy.
Yideonim, יִדְּעֹנִים, why witches were so denominated by the ancients, Lev. xix. 31; Deut. xviii. 11.
Yisadecha, יִסָּדֵךְ, import of this memorial symbol of the rabbins, Masoretic notes at the end of Exodus.
Yobelim, יוֹבְלִים, improperly rendered rams' horns, Josh. vi. 4.
Youth of both sexes in Eastern countries marriageable at a very early age, 2 Kings xvi. 2.

Z.

Zabii, singular instance of superstition among the, Exod. xxiii. 19.
Zahab, זָהָב, its derivation and import, Job xxviii. 17.
Zalmonah, the thirty-fourth station of the Israelites in the wilderness, where probably situated, and why so named, Num. xxxiii. 41.
Zamarenians, from whom probably descended, Gen. xxv. 2.
Zamzummim, some account of this ancient people, Deut. ii. 20.
Zaphnath-paaneah, import of this word very uncertain, Gen. xli. 45. Probably an Egyptian epithet, ibid.
Zarah, import of the name, Gen. xxxviii. 30.
Zarephath, the same with Sarepta of the Sidonians, 1 Kings xvii. 9.
Zebulun, why so named, Gen. xxx. 20.
Zechariah, some account of this prophet, Introduction to Zechariah.
Zeeb, a prince of the Midianites, import of his name, Judg vii. 25.
Zeh, זֶה, import of this word among the Jews, when used as a memorial symbol, Masoretic notes at the end of Genesis.
Zelgaphoth, a pestilential east wind, suddenly killing those who are exposed to it, 1 Kings xx., in fine. Highly probable that a wind of this description, and not a wall, as stated in our translation, occasioned the death of the twenty-seven thousand Syrians in the time of Ben-hadad, ibid.
Zelophehad's daughters, peculiar case of, Num. xxvii. 1 Solemn trifling of some commentators relative to the mysterious imports of their names, Num. xxvii. 7.
Zeradusht, Zerdust, or Zeratusht, see Zoroaster.
Zidon, where situated, Ezek. xxvii. 8.
Zif, a Hebrew month answering to a part of our April and May, 1 Kings vi. 38. This name supposed to have been borrowed from the Chaldeans, and to be an evidence that the books of Kings were written after the Babylonish captivity, 1 Kings vi. 1.
Zikenim, זְקֵנִים, a degree of civil distinction among the Hebrews, Josh. xxiii. 2.
Zimerah, זִמְרָה, probably a kind of musical instrument, Psa. lxxxi. 2.
Zin, wilderness of, the thirty-second station of the Israelites in the wilderness, some account of, Num. xxxiii. 36.
Zion, capture of this very celebrated fortress of the Jebusites by David, 2 Sam. v. 7. Dr. Kennicott's translation of the Hebrew text which contains the account, ibid.
Ziph, where situated, Psa. liv., in principio.
Zoan, the same with Tanis, Ezek. xxx. 14.
Zodiac, signs of the, known in Egypt and Chaldea in the time of Joseph, Gen. xlix., in fine. Very elegant allusion in the book of Psalms to the twelve signs of the zodiac, Psa. lxv. 11.
Zohair, an eminent Arabic poet, Psa. lx., in principio.
Zonah, זוֹנָה, commonly rendered harlot, what it properly imports, Gen. xxxviii. 15, 21. Distinction between זוֹנָה zonah and קְדֵשָׁה kedeshah, both indifferently rendered harlot in our version, Gen. xxxviii. 21.
Zophar the Naamathite, who, Job ii. 11.
Zoroaster or Zeradusht, traditions concerning, Exod. iii. 2 Character of the institutes attributed to him, Deut. xxxiv., in fine. In what sense we are to understand the tradition that the works of Zoroaster, which are in prose, contain two millions of verses, Introduction to Ezra. Zoroaster supposed by some to be a confused picture of the prophet Daniel, Introduction to Daniel.
Zuleekha, the name of Potiphar's wife, according to the Asiatics, Gen. xxxix. 6. Remarkable anecdote concerning this woman, as related in the Koran, ibid.
Zumeet, a kind of food, how prepared, 2 Sam. xvii. 28.
Zuzim, a people of antiquity, possibly the same with the Zamzummim, Gen. xiv. 5; Deut. ii. 20.